We have now briefly to chronicle the performances which led up to the unique celebration of Monday, the 4th ult. At the Concert of the previous Monday, there was a new pianist in the person of Mr. Kwast, a son-in-law of the late Ferdinand Hiller. We believe it was at the recommendation of Madame Schumann that the young player was awarded a hearing. With commendable modesty he was content with Mendelssohn's Prelude and Fugue in E minor (Op. 35, No. 1) as his first essay, and of this familiar piece he gave a sound and accurate reading, a tendency to over accentuate certain notes being the only noticeable defect. The concerted works at this Concert were Beethoven's Quartet in F (Op. 59, No. 1) and Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor (Op. 25), and Mr. Joachim gave his masterly rendering of Bach's Chaconne. Some vocal duets by Maude White and Rubinstein were sung with much charm by Miss Liza Lehmann and Miss Jansen.

In the ordinary course of things, the last Concert of the season would have been the 999th, so to bring the number up to the required 1,000, an extra performance was given on Friday, the 1st ult. A Beethoven programme was offered, consisting of the Quartets in B flat (Op. 18, No. 6) and C sharp minor (Op. 131), and the favourite Kreutzer Sonata for piano and violin, of which Madame Schumann and Mr. Joachim gave a truly memorable performance. Of course the public listened to the voice of the charmer, the hall being as crowded as at an ordinary Saturday Concert. Mr. Lloyd being indisposed, Mr. Shakespeare took his place, and sang "Adelaide" and a Lied by Jensen.

The most noteworthy feature on the following day was the co-operation of Madame Néruda and Mr. Joachim. These great artists played the solo parts in Bach's Concerto in D minor, for two violins, and were the leaders in Spohr's Double Quartet in E minor (Op. 87, No. 3), which had not been heard for nine years. Bach's work, however, was evidently most to the taste of the audience, and the lovely slow movement was so persistently redemanded that at last the artists consented to repeat it. Mr. Santley was also asked to sing "The Erl-King" a second time, but he firmly declined. Haydn's Quartet in D minor (Op. 76, No. 2), one of the most popular of the eighty-three, and Beethoven's Sonata in F (Op. 19, No. 2), played by Mr. Charles Hallé, completed the programme.

All the reserved seats for the solemnity of the 4th ult. were secured many days beforehand, and as early as two o'clock in the afternoon people began to assemble at the orchestra entrance. The occasion was unexampled, and so was the widespread desire to be present. Had Mr. Chappell doubled his prices the result would probably have been the same; but the temptation was nobly resisted. Popular, in the widest sense, his Concerts have ever been, and no attempt was made to rob this historical celebration of its true character by rendering it exclusive. Putting aside the special interest of this 1,000th Concert, the programme was extraordinarily attractive. It was a treat of the highest order to hear Schumann's Piano Quintet in E flat (Op. 44) with such artists as Mr. Joachim, Madame Néruda, Messrs. Straus and Piatti, and Madame Schumann. Solos were also given by most of these artists, and by Miss Zimmermann, Miss Fanny Davies, Miss Liza Lehmann, and Mr. Santley. Of the subsequent congratulatory proceedings in the dining saloon there is no occasion to speak at length in this place. It was quite in accordance with the fitness of things that Mr. Arthur Chappell should be presented with a souvenir of his remarkable success in a field of labour from which no good harvest could have been expected at the outset. In his reply, the Director of the Popular Concerts modestly and justly attributed the initiation of the idea to the late J. W. Davison, who, with the keen eye of a practised musician and critic, foresaw the possibility of educating the public to the required standard for the appreciation of classical music. The result, as we all know, has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations. Supply has created demand, and next to oratorio, chamber music is unquestionably the most popular form of the art at the present time in London.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The novelty of the third Concert, on the 21st ult.—a Suite Concertante in A, for piano-pédalier and orchestra, composed by Gounod—naturally created a large amount of interest, especially as it was announced to be performed by Madame Lucie Palicot, for whom the work was expressly written. As experience has taught us to beware of a "novel with a purpose," we are by no means surprised to find that even so great a man as M. Gounod should not be at his best, when, instead of giving the reins to his fancy, he is bent upon composing "with a purpose." Clever as the Suite is in certain parts, therefore, it failed to produce any marked effect; indeed, it seems to us that a piano-pédalier is by no means suited for combination with a full orchestra; and that the composer felt this also is evidenced by the fact of his making but little use of the pedals, save where the instrument is left alone in the Cadenza. The Suite was excellently played by Madame Palicot, but she was evidently more at home in Bach's organ Toccata in F, which was warmly and most deservedly applauded. The orchestral pieces were Max Bruch's Prelude to the Opera "Loreley," Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, and Mendelssohn's "Hebrides" Overture, all of which were finely rendered, especially Beethoven's Symphony, every movement of which was taken at precisely the right tempo. The duet "Hark, her step," from Dr. Stanford's Opera "The Canterbury Pilgrims," partly re-written by the composer, was sung by Miss Marie de Lido and Mr. Barton McGuckin, and produced quite a sensation (although in portions of the composition the lady seemed somewhat overweighted), Dr. Stanford, who conducted, being awarded a large share of the applause. The fervent singing of Mr. McGuckin in the solo from Mackenzie's "Story of Sayid" gave the utmost effect to a composition, the inherent beauty of which made itself felt by every hearer, and the applause at the conclusion was general and most enthusiastic. The programme also included Beethoven's "Ah! perfido," well sung by Miss de Lido. Sir Arthur Sullivan, who conducted, was cordially welcomed on his first appearance at these Concerts this season.

MR. LESLIE'S CHOIR.

It would be idle to declare that this justly famed Association continues to occupy the exalted position which once belonged to it by right. There has been a great deal of "levelling up" of late years; perfection of ensemble, refinement, and strict observance of light and shade now characterise the performances of other and younger choirs, whereas, formerly, Mr. Leslie's singers stood alone in these matters. Nevertheless, they can still do good and valuable work. With other societies unaccompanied part-singing is not made a special feature, but it constitutes the one branch of art to which the Leslie choir should continue to devote itself, and so keep alive a taste for the glorious treasured bequeathed to us by the composers of the Madrigalian era. Such was the thought suggested by the rendering at St. James's Hall, on March 30, of Gibbons's "The Silver Swan," Benet's "Flow, O my tears," and other early seventeenth century compositions; together with the scarcely inferior modern imitations of Pearsall, Walmisley, and Mr. Leslie himself. By way of novelty, there was Mr. Gerard Cobb's clever and spirited little motett "Surge, illuminare," which was not long since spoken of in our review columns. The piece is as effective as it is musicianly, and the audience was not slow to recognise its merits. To give the requisite variety to the programme, Miss Fanny Davies and Mr. Joachim played some solos, and joined in Mozart's Sonata in B flat, for piano and violin. Songs were contributed by Miss Trebelli and Mr. Santley. The second Concert of the season took place on the 27th ult., just too late for notice in our present number.

MR. COWEN'S SONG RECITAL.

Mr. F. H. Cowen gave a Concert, exclusively devoted to his songs, in Steinway Hall, on March 29. He was supported by competent artists, including Miss Mary Davies, Miss Louise Phillips, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Damian, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. F. King. Much of the programme was taken up by liberal selections from a set of twelve songs recently composed and published in a collective form. All these have merit, and are a happy combination of English melody with a more significant and scholarly accompaniment than the typical English lyric can boast. Some of the pieces made a special effect; such as, for example, "He and she," sung by Miss Davies; and "Nightfall," in which Miss Phillips made her mark. Mr. Lloyd was immensely applauded for his delivery of "The World of Dreams," and Miss Damian very successfully introduced a new composition, entitled "Tears," with accompaniment for piano (Mr. Cowen) and harmonium (Mr. Coward). Some charming duets were sung by Miss Phillips and Madame Fassett. Their effect, however, was marred by the faulty intonation of the second voice. Mr. Cowen accompanied every song.

MR. HAUSMANN'S VIOLONCELLO RECITALS.

Whether the performances given by Mr. Hausmann at the Prince's Hall, on March 26 and the 6th ult., were rightly named—the pianoforte having as large a share in the programmes as the violoncello—matters comparatively little; they were very enjoyable, and the second was in a certain sense important. Mr. Hausmann, who is an executant of rare ability, had the able assistance of Mr. Max Pauer on both occasions. The programme at the first Concert included Beethoven's Sonata in A (Op. 69), some of Brahms's Hungarian Dances, arranged by Mr. Piatti, Mendelssohn's Variations Sérieuses, and pieces by Corelli, Bach, and Romberg. That which gave interest to the second Concert was the performance, for the first time, of Brahms's new Sonata in F, for piano and cello (Op. 99), one of three chamber works recently produced by the eminent composer. It is gratifying to be able to speak of the composition as a valuable addition to the by no means large stock of high class music for the two instruments. The opening Allegro vivace and the Adagio affettuoso are both in Brahms's best manner; full of deep expression and lofty idea, and not too involved for ready comprehension. The third movement, virtually a scherzo, though not so named, seemed less happy at a first hearing; but the brief finale, based on a very tuneful theme, brings the Sonata to a genial termination. Thanks to a very fine performance it was warmly received and appears likely to become a favourite. There was nothing else in the programme to call for mention, but Mr. Hausmann's fine rich tone and splendid execution were greatly admired, and the Recitals were a thorough artistic success.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The last Concert of the term was held on March 31, and was remarkable for the ambitious character of the programme, Brahms's Second Symphony in D, Schumann's "Manfred" Overture, and the "Leonora" Overture (No. 1) constituting the chief orchestral numbers. We have had occasion already to comment on the remarkably favourable acoustic properties of the new Concert-hall in the Alexandra House, as tested by the performance of Chamber Music there, and will only add that the sonority of the building was still further exemplified at this Concert, the first at which a full orchestra was employed within its walls. The renderings, given under the bâton of Professor C. V. Stanford, of the great works mentioned above were thoroughly workmanlike and enjoyable—save for the almost overpowering predominance at times of the brass—and, in particular, the interpretation of the Symphony calls for the highest commendation. Of the three vocalists who appeared on this occasion, Mr. Fischer distinguished himself the most, his singing of Verdi's "Eri tu" ("Un Ballo in Maschera") being marked by greater delicacy and more finished vocalisation than we have hitherto observed in his performances. Mr. Price has abundance of intelligence and dramatic force, but he has not yet learned to sing a run smoothly, and, under these circumstances, the choice of "Wo berg' ich mich" ("Euryanthe") was most unadvisable. Mr. Price has so many admirable qualities that it is with great regret we notice this growing tendency on his part to sacrifice all finish to fervour. The remaining vocal number was the air, "Io Pæan," from Sullivan's "Martyr of Antioch," given by Miss Hoskins, who has a voice of fine quality, though as yet not completely under control.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

At first sight it appears strange, considering the vast popularity of sacred music in this country, that a work so highly esteemed in Germany as Graun's "Der Tod Jesu" should have been completely ignored for considerably more than a century. The explanation, however, is simple. For many years Handel was the only one of the old masters whose works were generally accepted with us, and it is only within the present generation that any real enthusiasm has been kindled on behalf of Bach. No one would dream of placing Graun on a level with either of these musical giants, and hence he has suffered unmerited neglect, for with English amateurs there is very much in a name. But no one who listened to his celebrated Passions-Cantata, under the auspices of the Royal Academy of Music, on the 1st ult., can have been insensible to the beauties of the work; and now that it is available in Novello's cheap and handy form, and the custom of observing the sacred seasons of the year is so largely on the increase, it is quite likely to be in demand, if only by way of contrast to the Passions of J. S. Bach, of whom Graun was a contemporary. Music at this period was in a transition state, and "Der Tod Jesu" shows this more plainly than the works of the greater master. After he had finished his musical education at the Kreuzschule, in Dresden, Graun devoted himself to opera, first as a tenor singer and next as a composer. Of course his lyric dramas, written under the influence of Lotti and Hasse, are entirely out of date, but his association with Italian art may be distinctly traced in his sacred masterpiece. The airs are distinguished by old-world grace, and though the choruses are pervaded by a solemn beauty wholly in keeping with the subject, they are more melodious and less rugged than those of Bach. But it is in the recitatives that Graun's individuality is most strongly manifested. The declamatory power displayed in these is remarkable, and gives a significance to Ramler's somewhat ornate and rhapsodical text which it would otherwise lack. The rendering of the work under Mr. Barnby's direction was as good as circumstances would permit. The choir was unequally balanced, owing to the preponderance of female voices; but it did its work well, and, as students, Miss Helen Haldane, Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys, and Mr. Alec Marsh may be highly commended. The most promising member of the quartet was Miss Neilson, who has a sympathetic mezzo-soprano voice, and the making of an excellent artist. The Passions-Cantata was preceded by Mr. Hattersley's Leeds Overture in E minor, and was followed by a miscellaneous selection, in which several pupils made vocal and instrumental essays, with more or less favourable results.

PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

Easter brought with it a lull in these entertainments, and we have only two performances to chronicle this month, both of which may be dealt with in a few lines. On Wednesday, March 30, Mr. Max Pauer gave his second Recital at the Prince's Hall, with a well varied programme. The most important item was Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata, of which the young pianist gave an extremely commendable rendering, his execution being all that could be desired, and his style free from extravagance and affectation. Brahms's two Rhapsodies (Op. 79) are both in the composer's best manner, though there is nothing rhapsodical in the plan of either piece. No. 2, in G minor, is very impressive, and is suggestive of Beethoven in his darker mood. Other numbers worthy of mention were Schubert's rarely heard Adagio and Rondo (Op. 145), Bennett's three popular Sketches "The Lake, Millstream, and Fountain," and some trifles by Moszkowski and two other presumably Polish composers, Zarzycki and Noskowski.

On the following afternoon Miss Agnes Zimmermann gave a Recital in the same hall. Not one of our resident pianists is more generally esteemed than this excellent artist, and her admirers mustered in strong force. Criticism of her playing would be needless, if not out of place. Every one knows her thoughtful, intelligent, but unassuming, reading of classical works, and on this occasion her rendering of Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 31, No. 3) afforded a valuable lesson to any young players who may have been present. We cannot, however, acquit Miss Zimmermann of lack of judgment in including Liszt's Transcription of Bach's Organ Fantasia and Fugue in G minor. Granting the cleverness of the arrangement, we would rather have heard one of the genuine Clavier Suites or Partitas which are so unreasonably neglected. Schumann's "Faschingschwank aus Wien" (Op. 26), and items by Handel, Arne, Couperin, Martini, and more modern composers formed part of the programme.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

As in former seasons, this energetic Society finished its labours with an English night, and the crowded state of the Shoreditch Town Hall, on Monday, the 25th ult., showed that in the north-eastern suburbs, at any rate, native talent meets with due appreciation. Only three works were performed—viz., Mr. Prout's setting of the 100th Psalm, his Birmingham Symphony in F, and Mr. Cowen's Cantata "Sleeping Beauty." The first named item was written, we believe, for a choral society in Glossop, and this was its first performance in London. It is mainly choral, but the second verse is set as a soprano solo. The strength of the work, however, lies in the choruses, especially the first and last. In these the composer has put forth his full strength, and the breadth and energy of the writing are really astonishing. In the final splendid fugue, the brass thunders out the Old Hundredth Psalm with telling effect. The general style of the music is Handelian, but it is none the worse for that, and the work is of just the nature to suit provincial societies and their audiences. Nothing need be said of Mr. Prout's Symphony, as it is already becoming an English classic, nor of the Cantata, which, with its delicate and fanciful strains, formed an excellent contrast to Mr. Prout's more masculine style. The performance throughout was worthy of the Society, and Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. H. Piercy, and Mr. Watkin Mills formed an unusually fine quartet of soloists.

BOW AND BROMLEY INSTITUTE.

It is by no means an unfrequent occurrence for one of our suburban musical Societies to take the lead in bringing a new work to a hearing. Mr. McNaught's well trained choir is specially to be noted for its enterprise in this direction, and a prominent instance was afforded on March 29, when Mr. Corder's Cantata "The Bridal of Triermain" was performed for the first time in London. The work was produced as far back as September last, at the Wolverhampton Festival, and unanimously declared to be by far the best thing the composer has as yet given us. The great charm of Mr. Corder's Cantata is the abundance of fresh and piquant melody which the composer has infused into it. His ideas seem to have flowed spontaneously, and we cannot recall a modern work more free from any suspicion of labour in design or detail. At the same time, the music is not by any means trivial. For example, in the long and spirited number descriptive of Gyneth's arrival at Arthur's court, the writing is masterly, and in the scene of De Vaux's temptations—terrific and seductive—Mr. Corder shows with what ease he can produce picturesque effects. The work is eminently qualified to win favour from all classes of listeners, and as it becomes known it will materially add to its composer's fame. The performance, so far as regards the choir and soloists, was admirable. The choruses were rendered with the utmost precision and unity of expression, and Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Piercy, and Mr. Watkin Mills did full justice to the principal parts, the two artists last named especially distinguishing themselves. In the orchestra, however, there were several slips, due evidently to misconception of the Conductor's intentions. Dr. Stanford's "The Revenge" and Mr. Prout's Oxford Symphony in D, No. 4, completed the programme. The former is already so familiar as to require no further description, and Mr. Prout's genial work has been recently dealt with in our notice of the Crystal Palace Concerts. It had the great advantage of its composer's direction, and it was received with enthusiasm.

MR. BONAWITZ'S "BRIDE OF MESSINA."

Victory is generally the reward of continued perseverance, and if Mr. Bonawitz lives long enough and does not grow fainthearted, he may some day wake up and find himself famous as an operatic composer. Whether he has made an advance towards the goal by his latest work, "The Bride of Messina," performed in concert-room fashion at the Portman Rooms, on the 23rd ult., may be doubted. At the best, Schiller's gloomy tragedy is not a promising subject for musical illustration, and a work on such a basis, written in the Wagnerian style by a composer not possessed of Wagner's genius, cannot fail to prove tedious and depressing. We desire to speak with due caution of the new opera of Mr. Bonawitz. It may be that with proper stage accessories it would prove less irritating than it did on the above occasion, but we are not confident. Nine-tenths of the music are so much weary declamation, relieved here and there by a stray melodic phrase, as welcome as an oasis in the desert. The absence of a female chorus tended to increase the monotony. As exceptions to the rule of dulness may be named a trio, with chorus, for the Queen Isabella and her sons, in the first act, and a duet for the unhappy Beatrice and her guilty brother Cæsar in the third. The composer certainly exhibits some knowledge of dramatic effect, but he is far too ambitious, and frequently wanders out of his depth. Very fair justice was rendered to his work by Madame Waldman-Leideritz, Miss Marie de Lido, Messrs. Watson, Bernard, Hinrichs, and an efficient male chorus and orchestra. The performance was given in aid of the German Hospital, at Dalston, and we hope the institution benefited to some extent, as there was a numerous attendance.

"THE GOLDEN LEGEND" AT BATH.

Sir Arthur Sullivan conducted a fine performance of his new Cantata, "The Golden Legend," at the Concert of the Bath Philharmonic Society, of which he is President, on the 26th ult., at the Bath Theatre. The solos were taken by Miss Nordica, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Watkin Mills, and Mr. Lionel Moore. Mr. Betjeman led the band, and Mr. L. Balcar was at the great bells, the carillon used at Leeds. The work was magnificently rendered and all the salient points were received with a spontaneous and enthusiastic applause rarely heard in a Concert-room. The purity of melody in the solo voice-parts, variety of colour in the orchestration, and dramatic power displayed in the choral portions fairly took the audience by surprise, and at the conclusion of the performance a perfect ovation was bestowed upon the composer, who was called forward and bowed his acknowledgments. Seldom, indeed, has so decisive a success been achieved even by this flourishing Society, and all concerned are to be warmly congratulated upon so brilliant a result.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

There was no lack of music here, both sacred and secular, for the celebration of Eastertide, but the performances generally were of a popular and unpretending character, and events of real musical interest during the past month have been comparatively few. The closing days of Lent, however, were relieved by a couple of performances to which a few words are due. One of these was the Annual Concert of Madame Agnes Miller, which took place in the Masonic Hall, on March 31, when the bénéficiaire was assisted by Mr. Ludwig Straus, the eminent violinist; and the other was the Good Friday performance of Handel's Passion Music, at St. Augustine's Church, under the conductorship of Mr. Gaul.

Madame Miller's programme, though not remarkable for novelty, was of unexceptionable quality, comprising Brahms's G major Sonata (Op. 78), for pianoforte and violin; Bach's Italian Concerto, for pianoforte alone; Corelli's Violin Sonata in D, the ever-welcome "Moonlight" Sonata of Beethoven, a Violin Romance by Spohr, a couple of pianoforte pieces by Schumann, and Kiel's Duet for violin and piano entitled "Deutsche Reigen." Madame Miller's performance was, as usual, distinguished by brilliant, if somewhat obtrusive, technique, with that occasional tendency to exaggeration of phrasing affected by so many players of the modern higher development school. Her playing of Bach and Schumann, however, was entitled to higher praise, and the first two movements of the Beethoven Sonata were rendered in a manner to satisfy the most fastidious taste. The playing of the Corelli Sonata by Mr. Straus was one of the gems of the evening, and the Romance from Spohr's Concerto (Op. 28) was greeted with hearty applause.

Good Friday was celebrated, according to wont, by a special musical performance at St. Augustine's Church, the selection on this occasion being Handel's early and comparatively unknown setting of "The Passion, according to St. John," composed at Hamburg, in 1704, when Handel was yet a lad of nineteen. It was not until 1834, when the German Handel Society obtained access to the archives of the Berlin Library, where the MS. was lying, that the music was published, and there is reason to believe that the first complete rendering of the work in this country was that which took place at Birmingham on the 8th ult. On application to the English publishers, Messrs. Novello, it appeared that there were no separate band parts in existence, and these had consequently to be written out from the full score, and supplemented by additional wood-wind and brass parts to fit the work for a modern orchestra. This delicate and important task was very judiciously executed by Mr. William Moore, under the general supervision of the Conductor, Mr. Gaul. The performance, though not faultless, was a fairly effective one, alike as to principals, band, and chorus. Miss Lilian Mills sang the soprano solos with refinement and fervour, and Mr. Horrex and Mr. R. L. James also acquitted themselves very creditably. The band, led by Mr. T. M. Abbott, found no difficulties in the simple orchestral parts. Dr. Winn officiated at the Organ, and the choir, which was specially reinforced for the occasion, did justice to the many beautiful choral numbers.

On the same evening the members of the Midland Musical Society gave a performance of Gounod's "Redemption," in the Town Hall, and the Birmingham Musical Association performed "The Messiah," at the Grand Theatre, the proceeds in this latter case being devoted to the funds of the local medical charities. Although "The Redemption" was given with purely local resources, the interest of the work drew a crowded audience, whose satisfaction with the performance was expressed by hearty and frequent applause. Miss Brunner was very effective in the solos "From Thy love as a Father," which was encored, and "Lovely appear"; and the beautiful quartet, "Beside the cross remaining," was charmingly sung by Mrs. Mann, Miss Bourne, Mr. Bromage, and Mr. Pountney. Mr. Percy R. Taunton also acquitted himself very successfully of his share of the music. The band was scarcely equal to the exigencies of the orchestral parts, though it contributed largely to the success of the "March to Calvary," but the chorus, though numbering little more than 200 performers, gave a very good account of the choral numbers, under the judicious direction of the honorary conductor, Mr. H. M. Stevenson. "The Messiah" performance, by the members of the Musical Association, was also a popular success. Miss Hannah Johnson distinguished herself in the soprano solos, especially impressing the audience in the more florid numbers, and Miss Bayley was exceedingly effective in the principal contralto music. The tenor numbers found a competent exponent in Mr. Edmund Badger, and Mr. S. Bishop was especially effective in "Why do the nations?" The choir, numbering some 200 voices, are entitled to a word of praise, though they certainly did not "sing in unison throughout," as alleged in a local musical report. Mr. George Halford conducted.

Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company commenced a series of performances here, at the new Queen's Theatre, on the 9th ult., opening with "Maritana," in which Madame Constance Bellamy and Mr. Turner as Maritana and Don Cæsar, respectively, carried off the principal honours. Auber's "Fra Diavolo" attracted a large audience on the following Monday; but the only novelty produced in the course of the series was Herr Meyer Lutz's setting of "Black-eyed Susan," originally brought out at the London Gaiety Theatre, on November 5, 1881. The music, though tuneful and tastefully scored, is wanting in dramatic character and originality, but it seemed to afford great satisfaction to the audience.

At the monthly meeting of the Birmingham and Midland Musical Guild, on the 11th ult., Mr. S. Stratton read an interesting paper on "The Telephone of fifty years ago," showing that the credit of this invention was due to a musician, Jean François Soudré. The lecture was followed, as usual, by a members' Concert, of which the principal features were Schubert's pianoforte solo, "Souvenir de Vienne"; Dünkler's "Rêverie," for violoncello; Rubinstein's "Tarantella," for pianoforte duet; a MS. Romance, for violoncello, by Mr. Troman; a new song, "Angel voices," by Dr. Walter Stokes, and miscellaneous vocal items.

In celebration of the Jubilee of the present management of the Theatre Royal, a series of three performances was given on the evening of the 2nd, 4th, and 5th ult., and on two of these occasions music played an important part in the programme. The opening performance was devoted to Gilbert and Sullivan's popular operetta "H.M.S. Pinafore," which was very creditably rendered by an amateur company, consisting of members of the local Clef Club and Kyrle Societies. On the 5th Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," by members of the same organisation, was very flatteringly received by a large audience.

Organ Recitals, relieved by vocal and other performances, are fast becoming a standing feature here on the Saturday afternoon, among the principal organists being Mr. Langston, Mr. J. W. Beard, and Mr. Halliley. On the 2nd ult. Mr. Beard's organ performances were relieved by the vocal efforts of Mr. Valentine Smith, a member of the Carl Rosa Company, and the violin solo of Mr. F. Ward.

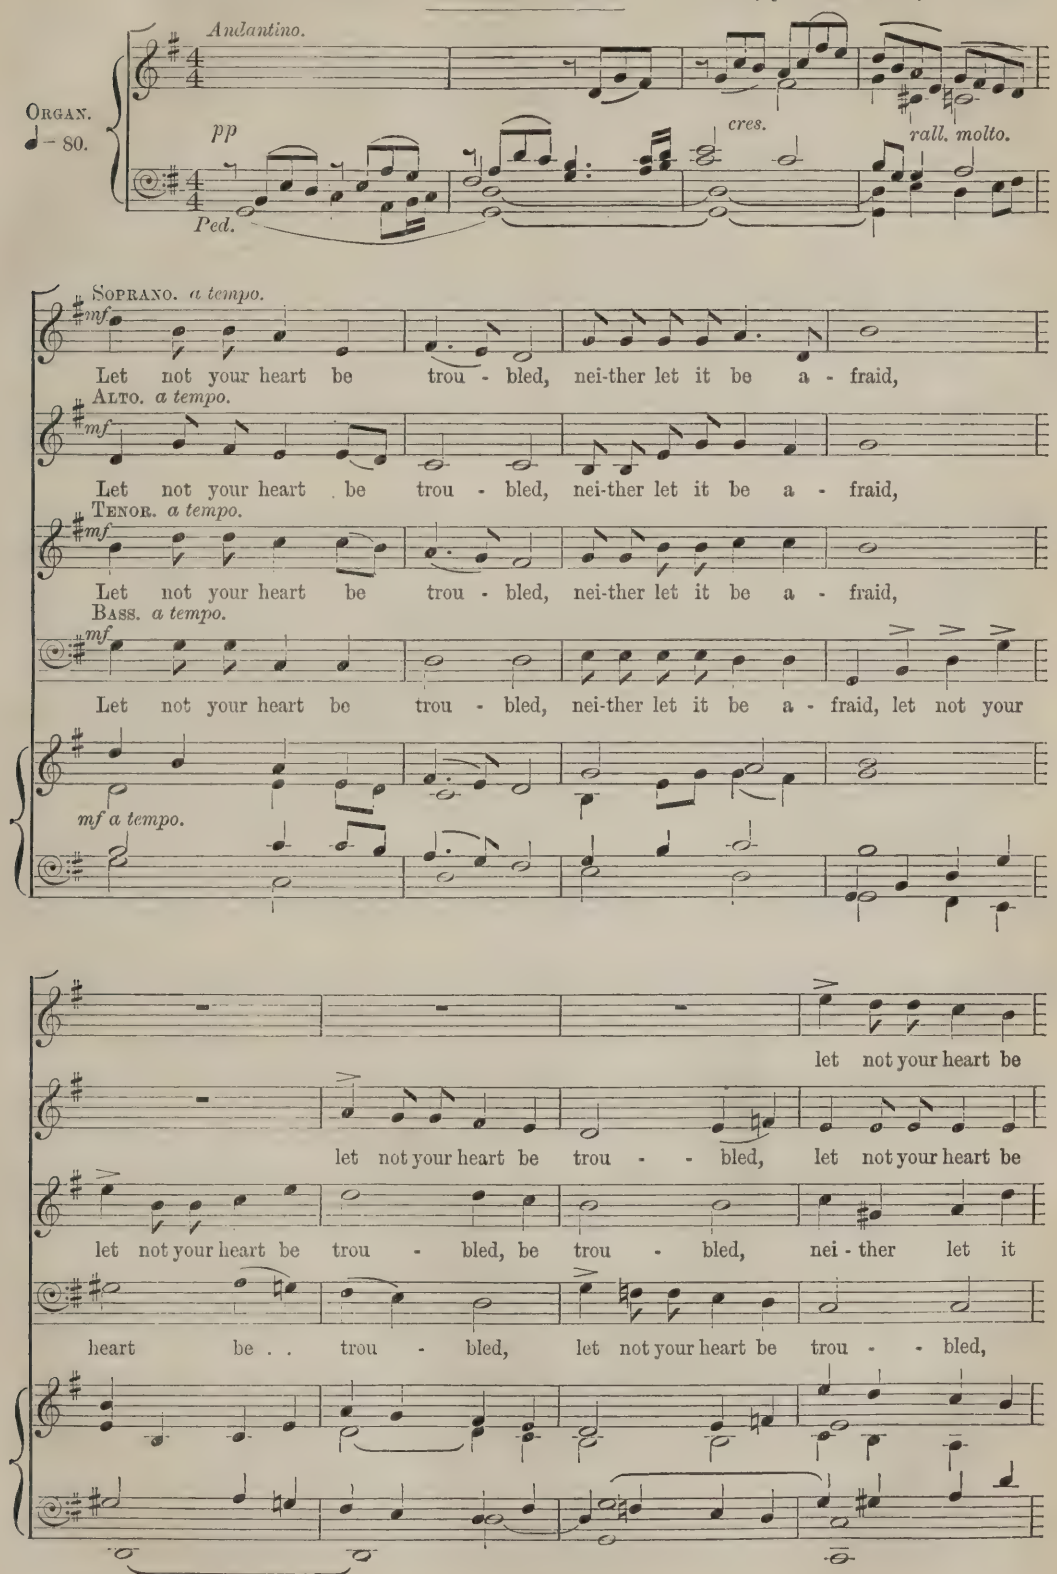
The fourth and last of the current series of Mr. Stockley's Orchestral Concerts, which took place on the 21st, was of a more popular character than its predecessors, though the orchestral selections were still of a high order of excellence, including Beethoven's Fifth Symphony (in C minor), Weber's "Jubilee" and Sterndale Bennett's "Naiades" Overtures, and the introduction to the third act of Wagner's "Lohengrin." None of these items call for special remark, as they are familiar to Concert-goers, and the performance was scarcely up to the usual level of Mr. Stockley's band, the playing of the Symphony in particular being very unequal. After the "Jubilee" Overture, which concludes, it will be remembered, with the strains of our National Anthem, an excellent point was made, as a tribute presumably to the Jubilee year, by the singing of two verses of "God save the Queen," by the boys of the various surpliced choirs of the town to the number of about 500. The orchestral music was relieved by a performance of De Beriot's Sixth Air for violin on the contrabasso, and a couple of adaptations of Gounod and Pearsall for the trombone quartet; but though these pieces were in each case capitally played, their raison d'être in a Concert of classical pretensions is not very obvious. The vocalists were Miss

Let not your heart be troubled.

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

S. John, xiv. 1, 13, 15--17. Composed by H. G. Trembath, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)



Andantino.
Organ.
♩ = 80. pp
cres.
rall. molto.
Ped.
Soprano. a tempo.
mf
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei-ther let it be a - fraid,
Alto. a tempo.
mf
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei-ther let it be a - fraid,
Tenor. a tempo.
mf
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei-ther let it be a - fraid,
Bass. a tempo.
mf
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei-ther let it be a - fraid, let not your mf a tempo.
let not your heart be let not your heart be trou - - bled, let not your heart be let not your heart be trou - bled, be trou - bled, nei - ther let it heart be . . trou - bled, let not your heart be trou - - bled, accel.

trou - bled, nei - ther let it . . be a - fraid.
accel.
trou - bled, nei - ther let . . it . . be . . a - fraid.
accel.
be a - fraid, nei - ther let it be a - fraid.
accel.
nei - ther . . let it be a - fraid.
accel.
Poco animato.
mf
cres.
Ye be-lieve in God, be - lieve al - so in Me, ye be - lieve in Ye be-lieve in God, be - lieve al - so in Me, ye be - lieve in Ye be-lieve in God, be - lieve al - so in Me, ye be - lieve in . .
Ye be-lieve in God, be - lieve al - so in Me, ye be - lieve in . .
Full Swell.
marcato.
God, be - lieve al - so in Me; and what - so - ev - er ye shall ask, shall God, be - lieve al - so in Me; and what - so - ev - er ye shall ask, shall God, be - lieve al - so in Me; and what - so - ev - er ye shall ask, shall God, be - lieve al - so in Me; and what - so - ev - er ye shall ask, shall

p
mf
ask in My Name, that will I do, that, that will I . . do, that the ask in My Name, that will I do, that will I . . do, that the ask in My Name, that will I do, that will I do, that the ask in My Name, that will I do, that will I do, that the Lento.
pp
Fa - ther may be glo - ri - fied, be glo - ri - fied in the Son.
Fa - ther may be glo - ri - fied, be glo - ri - fied in the Son.
Fa - ther may be glo - ri - fied, be glo - ri - fied in the Son.
Fa - ther may be glo - ri - fied, be glo - ri - fied in the Son.
Lento.
Andante maestoso.
Tenor Solo.
cres.
Andante maestoso.
Sw. to Prin.
♩ = 66.
If ye love Me, keep My com - mand - ments, if ye
Soft S ft. solo.
16 ft. Bourdon to Sw.
love Me, keep My command - ments... And I will pray . . the Fa - ther, will pray . . the Fa - ther, . . and He shall give you an - o - ther Com - fort - er, an - Chorus.

p
cres.
If ye love Me, keep My com - mand - ments, if ye Chorus.
p
cres.
If ye love Me, keep My com - mand - ments, if ye Chorus.
p
cres.
- o - ther Com - fort - er. If ye love Me, keep My com-mand - ments, if ye Chorus.
cres.
If ye love me,
Gt. to Sw.
Ped. Open to Gt.
love Me, keep My com-mand - ments, . . and I will pray . . the Fa - ther, will love Me, keep My com - mand-ments, and I will pray, . . and I will pray the love Me, keep My com-mand - ments, and I will pray, . . and I will pray the keep My com-mand - - - ments, and I will pray the Fa - ther, will

cres.
pray the Fa - ther . . . and He shall give you an - o - ther Com - fort-er, an -
Fa-ther, and I will pray, and He shall give you an - o - ther Com- fort- er, an -
Fa - ther, and I will pray, and He shall give you an - o - ther Com-fort - er, an - pray the Fa - ther, and He shall give you an - o - ther Com - fort- er, an -
- o - ther Com - fort - er, e - ven the Spi - rit of truth,
- o - ther Com - fort - er, e - ven the Spi - rit of truth,
- o - ther Com - fort - er, e - ven the Spi - rit of truth,
- o - ther Com - fort - er, e - ven the Spi - rit of truth,
mf accel.
e - ven the Spi - rit of truth, that He may a - bide with e - ven the Spi - rit of truth, that He may a - bide, a - e - ven the Spi - rit of truth, that He may a - bide, a - e - ven the Spi - rit of truth, that He may a - bide, a -

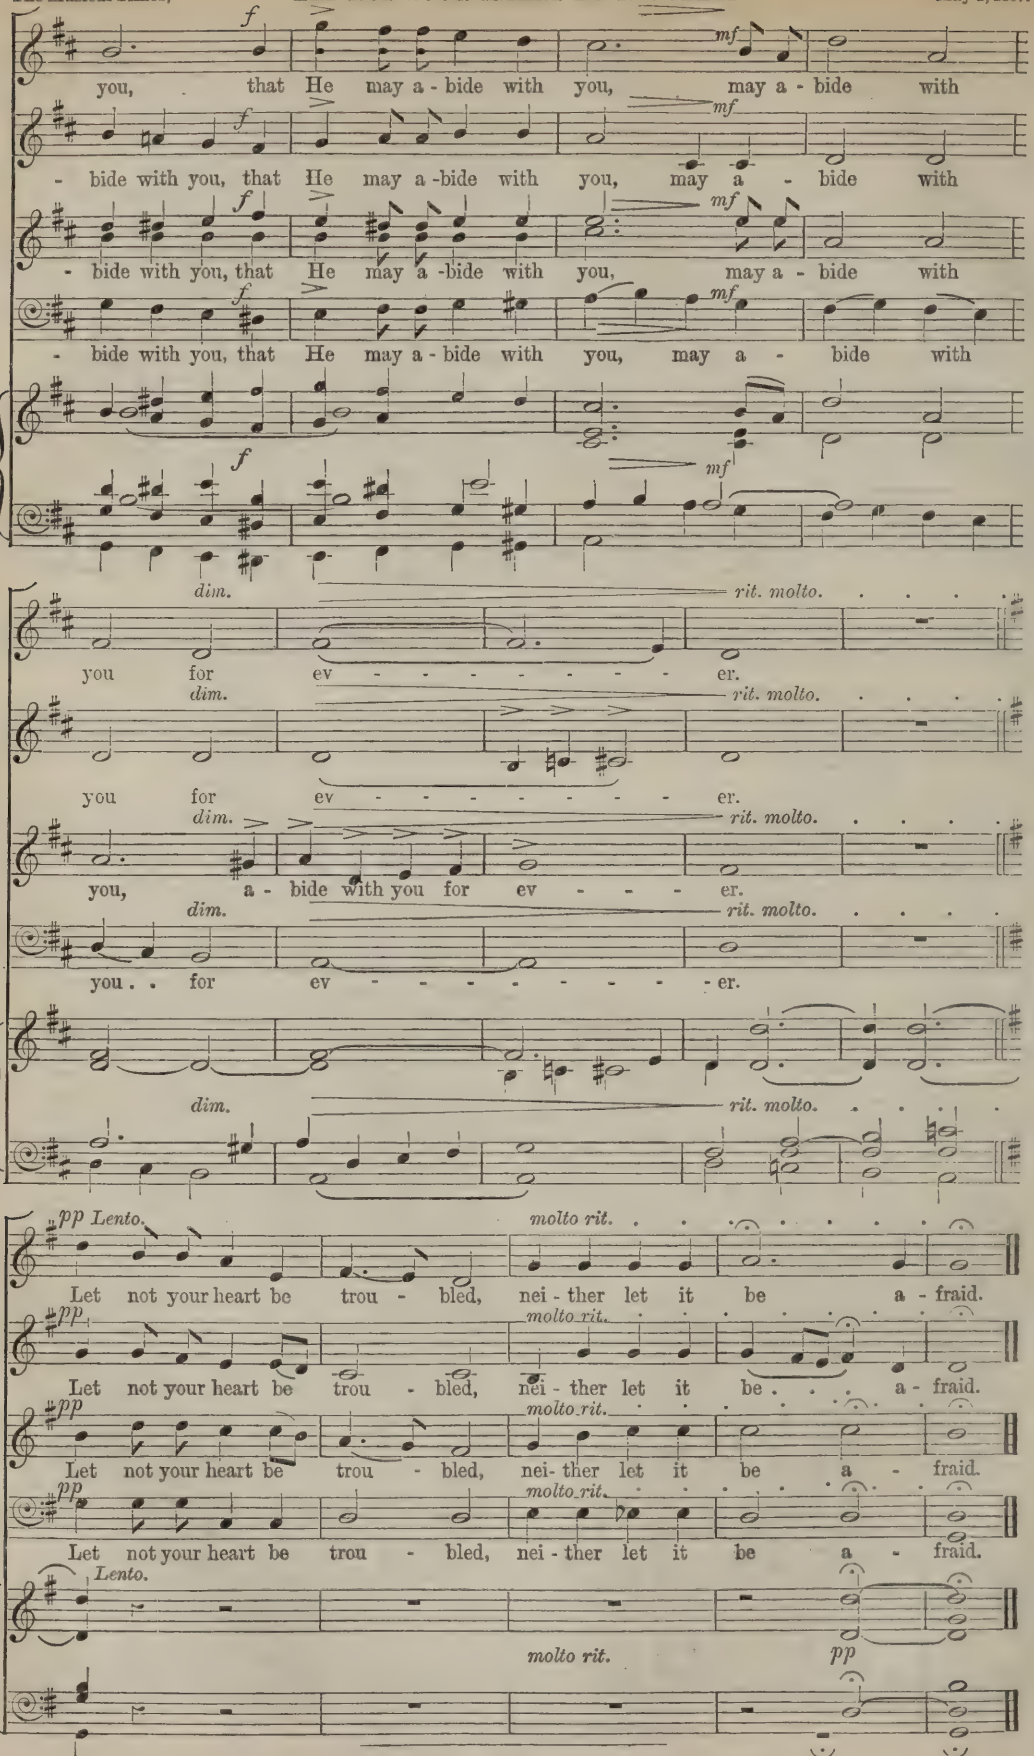
* If found too high the small notes may be used.



you, that He may a - bide with you, may a - bide with
- bide with you, that He may a - bide with you, may a - bide with
- bide with you, that He may a - bide with you, may a - bide with
- bide with you, that He may a - bide with you, may a - bide with you for ev - - - - - - - - er.
you for ev - - - - - - - - er.
you, a - bide with you for ev - - - - er.
you . . for ev - - - - - - - - - er.
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei - ther let it be a - fraid.
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei - ther let it be . . . a - fraid.
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei - ther let it be a - fraid.
Let not your heart be trou - bled, nei - ther let it be a - fraid.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 551, price 1*d*.

Antoinette Trebelli and Mr. Lloyd, who were both in excellent voice, but their selection, though it evidently afforded great satisfaction to the audience, was open to much the same criticism as the instrumental part of the programme. Thus, after singing the recitative and air "I will extol thee," from Costa's "Eli," Miss Trebelli gave the Laughing song from Auber's "Manon Lescaut," followed by "Within a mile o' Edinboro' town," and the Verdi canzone "Saper vorreste." Mr. Lloyd gave a good rendering of the scena from Oberon, "Oh, 'tis a glorious sight to see," a song by Stephen Adams, "The star of Bethlehem," and another from Clay's "Llalah Rookh."

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Very little of interest has transpired here during April. A few straggling Concerts—chiefly so-called "benefits"—have fringed the conclusion of the winter season, and, for the most part, poverty of attendance has proved the preference of people, generally, for out-of-door amusements. At the Concert Hall Mr. Hallé is giving the Recitals that, in the earlier part of the session, were postponed through his illness. At the Free Trade Hall, amid the scaffolding of decorators, Mr. Seymour Jackson met his many friends on the 23rd, and offered them a miscellaneous entertainment calling for no special remark. The Suburban Choral Societies have finished their work, and closed their books; and it is gratifying that such powerful agencies for good have to report continued success and prosperity. The Stretford Choral Society appealed to Dr. Hiles to complete the work undertaken by Mr. Hecht, and so sadly interrupted by his lamented death; and the performance of the "Creation" showed how quickly and readily the choir had yielded to the sway of an experienced Conductor. The solos, as well as the choruses, were admirably rendered, and evinced an artistic capability not generally met with in similar Associations. Especially excellent were the soprano airs "With verdure clad," and the more trying "On mighty pens." The Vocal Society, under Dr. Watson's guidance, has concluded an energetic campaign, and, as of old, gained credit for the balance of its ensemble singing.

Viewed as a whole, the past season has been one of quiet persistence and perseverance, rather than of striking energy or new effort; and our hopes are now turned to the Jubilee Exhibition, which commences on the 3rd inst., and to the music promised us during the six months that it will last. On the opening day 500 performers, under Mr. Hallé's bâton, will essay Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and also Dr. Stanford's setting of the 150th Psalm, a work in three sections, for soprano solo, choir, and orchestra. The juxtaposition of two compositions upon the same subject will prove trying. The musical committee of the Exhibition promises a succession of military band performances of highest merit, and of visits from most distinguished organists, in addition to regular Recitals by Mr. Kendrick Pyne, our townsman. Of new works, except the one above mentioned, nothing is said. Surely in an Exhibition prominently artistic, and with such activity of performance even musical, something beyond the mere amusement of the hour might be attempted. The Exhibition could easily be turned into one long Festival, with a succession of new works illustrating our progress in musical art. The financial prosperity of the undertaking is certain, and the opportunity for doing something which may mark an epoch in the history of such gatherings is unique. Should the affair degenerate musically, as seems likely, into a mere ear-tickling of crowds of sight-seers, an excellent chance for good will be missed, and a severe blow will be inflicted upon our reputation, or our pretension, as a music-loving community.

In my last letter I reported the great success of the short operatic campaign here of the Carl Rosa Company. Mr. Corder's "Nordisa" continued, in spite of many inadequacies, to attract; but I rejoice that, in London, it is to have the fairer chance which a much stronger set of principals will give it. The changes of cast announced are an admission, by the management, of the necessity for greater vocal and histrionic power. The present willingness to listen to really English music is not owing to the efforts of a particular patriotic or far-seeing speculator. Happily, the readiness springs from something far deeper seated—from an almost instinctive perception of the bright future in store for our native artists. But it deserves and demands that the new works presented to the public, whether in the metropolis or in the provinces, should be worthily interpreted.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

For the twelfth and last of the Liverpool Philharmonic Society's Concerts, of the season 1886-7, a varied and, on the whole, interesting programme was presented. The first part consisted of a performance of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and the second part included Bach's Cantata, entitled "God's time is the best," a duet by Winter, a Sacred Dialogue by Becker, together with the songs—both by Gounod—"There is a green hill" and "Lend me your aid," the vocal principals being Misses Thudichum and Hilda Wilson, and Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Watkin Mills. The tuneful and melodious numbers which make up this familiar work were rendered in a manner reflecting undoubted credit on all concerned, if the slight misunderstanding between the trombones at the commencement of the "Cujus animam" be excepted. Special comment is needed,though, for the truly exquisite rendering by the four principals of the quartets "Sancta Mater" and "Quando Corpus." Perhaps no greater contrast could have been given to Rossini's sparkling music than the antique and ponderous numbers of Bach's Cantata named above. In this work, the practical members deserve unstinted praise for their singing of the somewhat difficult and not over "taking" music. The Winter duet served to show the sweetness of tone of Misses Thudichum and Wilson, the latter of whom enhanced the favourable impression she has already made here by the pathos with which she invested her part of the dialogue by Becker, written for alto solo, chorus, and organ. Mr. Lloyd aroused the enthusiasm of the proverbially apathetic audience by a magnificent and spirited rendering of "Lend me your aid." Mr. Best was at the organ, and Mr. Charles Hallé conducted with his usual ability. Handel's Coronation Anthem, "The King shall rejoice," brought the Concert and season to a successful conclusion.

Some arrangements have been made with regard to the musical portion of the Royal Jubilee International Exhibition to be opened on the 16th of this month. These include the engagement of a permanent orchestra of fifty performers, together with several of our best English bands.

A Concert was given on Good Friday, at the Royal Court Theatre, by the members of the Carl Rosa Opera Company. The first part consisted of the "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), and the second part was of a miscellaneous nature. Great pleasure and satisfaction are felt and expressed here at the news that Messrs. Cramer and Co., who amalgamate with Mr. Charles Hallé in his series of Concerts in Liverpool, have persuaded that gentleman to revoke his decision of abandoning his usual eight Concerts. Messrs. Cramer and Co. have determined to lower the prices to what they formerly were, and as this was the bone of contention between them and the public, no doubt these high-class Concerts will in the future attract very large audiences.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

There is but little to record of the doings of musical societies during the past month, the exceptionally prolific season having practically come to an end a month ago, with the close of the Serial Concerts. Public interest too seems to have abated, and the attendances at the few Concerts which have been held during April have been anything but satisfactory from a managerial point of view. At Bradford, on March 26, an excellent programme of high-class music was presented on the occasion of a benefit Concert to Mr. W. B. Sewell, given in St. George's Hall. Mr. Sewell's orchestra gave the Scherzo and Finale from Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture, Délibes' "Coppelia Ballet," several overtures, and selections from Boccherini and Handel. The band also accompanied Mr. John Dunn in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, in which (as also in several other pieces) he was highly successful. Mr. Dunn has become quite a favourite with Yorkshire audiences. The vocalists were Madame Emilie Clarke and Mr. J. W. Calverley.

The Chevalier Emil Bach gave an Orchestral Concert in the same building on the 1st ult., with Mr. Randegger as Conductor. Sir Arthur Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture was again heard, in company with portions of Beethoven's Concerto in C minor, the Overture to "Tannhäuser," and Weber's Jubilee Overture. The pianist had every facility for displaying his gifts, which are of a very high order, and evoked in more than one instance unbounded enthusiasm. Liszt's Fantaisie Hongroise was magnificently played, and accomplishments of an exceptional order were shown in the cadenza to the Beethoven Concerto. Mr. Bach also figured, but with much less acceptance, as a composer, being represented in that capacity by a Capriccio and a very ordinary Jubilee Song. Mr. Randegger's Canzone-Valse "Marinella" was one of the vocal features of the programme, and had a good reception. The vocalists were Madame Ida Simon and Mdlle. Ernesta Lanari, the former of whom made an excellent impression. The Queensbury Glee Union gave a worthy rendering of Hollingworth's good old Glee, "Here's life and health to England's Queen."

On the 15th ult. the Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society gave the final Concert of its season in the Town Hall. Among the items of the programme were Gaul's setting of "The Better Land," Smart's "Ave Maria," Rossini's chorus "To Thee, Great Lord," and Parry's "Sailors' Chorus." Interspersed with part-songs and choruses were ballads, in the singing of which Miss Wilkinson, Miss Henrietta Cooke, Mrs. Henry Hirst, Mr. Henry Beaumont, Mr. Chas. Kingsley, and Mr. L. Stott gave every satisfaction. Mr. North was the Conductor.

On the 22nd ult. the Bradford Festival Choral Society was once more to the fore, after a long interval of quiescence, though not of obscurity. During the last few months the Society has passed through troublous times. At its last annual meeting Mr. R. S. Burton, the former Conductor, was superseded by Mr. Hecht, whose untimely death rendered a fresh appointment necessary. Dr. Joseph C. Bridge was appointed to the post, and the Concert on the 22nd was the first given under his bâton. The works produced were the selection of Mr. Hecht during his brief term of office—namely, Handel's "St. Cecilia," Dr. Stanford's Psalm xlvi., and Schubert's "Song of Miriam." The selection was excellently given as a whole, though the band might have been improved. The Handelian choruses brought out the fulness and sonority of the Bradford voices, and Dr. Bridge's beat was very faithfully observed. Dr. Stanford's Psalm was a great success, the music being, above all, recognised as the product of a great musician. The opening chorus to the second part especially made a deep impression. The soloists who took part in the Ode were Miss Annie Marriott and Mr. J. Wright, and they were joined by Mrs. Ashcroft Clarke and Mr. Charles Kingsley in the quartet of the Psalm. Mr. Kingsley gave a fine rendering of the solo "God is our strength." In Schubert's work, Miss Marriott was again the soloist. Beethoven's Overture to "Egmont" was admirably played by the band.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Towards the end of Lent musical services of a special character were given in several of the Bristol churches, and our citizens had the opportunity of hearing Dr. Stainer's new Oratorio "The Crucifixion" no less than three times in little more than a week. It was first given on March 31, at the Church of St. Mary Redcliffe, when the spacious and beautiful building proved too small for all who wished to be present at the service. The choir of the church numbers seventy voices, and was slightly reinforced for the occasion. As a whole, the performance was most praiseworthy, and showed careful preparation, the leads being generally well taken up. The solos, rendered for the most part by members of the choir, were satisfactorily given, and the whole service was highly creditable to both the choir and the Organist, Mr. J. Lawson. The work was very fairly given at Christ Church, on the 7th ult., when the usual forces of the church were augmented for the occasion; and the third performance was given at the Clifton Down Congregational Church, on the evening of Good Friday.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was given at the Pro-Cathedral on Palm Sunday, with full choir and orchestra, conducted by Mr. T. Carrington. Three ladies well known in Clifton divided the soprano and contralto solos, while the tenor and bass solos were entrusted to Mr. D'Arcy Ferris, of Cheltenham, and Mr. Montague Worlock. The performance was far from faultless, but several of the numbers were creditably given, the solos being more deserving of praise than the choruses. Other musical services were given at this season of more or less importance, in various churches of the neighbourhood; indeed it seems that Bristol is becoming more alive to the advisability of such services, and the taste for them is becoming more widely diffused throughout the city. May we hope that the day when the Cathedral shall no longer stand aloof is not far distant? On Good Friday two Concerts of a sacred character were given in Colston Hall, in the afternoon and evening, both being well attended. The first Concert consisted of an Organ Recital of a special character by Mr. George Riseley, interspersed with vocal and other pieces, the vocalists being Miss Emily Parkinson and Mr. Scofield, and the instrumentalists Mr. Skelding (piano) and Mr. T. Carrington (violin). The evening programme was more ambitious, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" occupying a prominent place in the scheme. The band and chorus were under the direction of Mr. Augustus Simmons, and Mr. Carrington was the leader. In addition to the two vocalists already mentioned, Miss Flora Edwards, Miss Donovan, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. Worlock took part in the evening Concert, and both in the "Stabat Mater" and in the second miscellaneous part of the programme, acquitted themselves well, and won deserved commendation. On the next evening the hall was again filled by an expectant audience, who came prepared to enjoy a capital miscellaneous selection offered to them by the Bristol Musical Association, under the direction of Mr. G. Gordon. The programme embraced songs of a popular description by Madame Pauline Harries, Mr. J. W. Page, and Mr. Lawford Huxtable; cornet solos by Signor Coviello, and organ solos by Mr. George Riseley, as well as two overtures by the band, and half-a-dozen choruses by various composers, well rendered by the choir.

Mr. John Barrett's Choir gave its annual Concert in the Victoria Rooms, on the 12th ult., before an interested body of auditors, who seemed well pleased with the programme provided. Gade's Cantata "Psyche" formed the first part of the Concert, and was rendered in a highly meritorious manner by this well-trained body of vocalists, the solos being wisely entrusted to local singers, who amply justified their selection. Mr. Barrett's choir only comes before the public once a year, but never unprepared, and no doubt its capable and hard working Conductor knows what he is about in thus limiting the ambition of the members to one good annual Concert. Certainly he has no reason to be ashamed of the manner in which "Psyche" was given, and the other choral work, Jensen's "Feast of Adonis," given for the first time in Bristol, was also well rendered, and seemed to give genuine pleasure to the audience. Mrs. Brockbank Young presided at the pianoforte, and also distinguished herself in a pianoforte solo. Several new works by local composers found places in the programme, notably a part-song entitled "The Voice of Spring," by Mr. J. L. Roeckel, which elicited quite a storm of applause.

Many Concerts by the choral societies of different parishes have taken place lately, and we are glad to see that compositions of no inconsiderable merit and difficulty are often offered, such as Mendelssohn's Psalms, Gaul's "Holy City," Prout's "Alfred," &c. We trust we may take this as a sign of a growing love for music of a high order, and we know that in many cases no little labour is willingly undertaken by both choir and conductor in order to present the works chosen in an adequate way.

The Bristol and Clifton Philharmonic Society gave its second annual Concert at the Victoria Rooms, on the 18th ult. The programme was composed of part-songs and solos, which were well sung and heartily applauded. The members of the choir were especially successful in Allen's "Slumber Song," Leslie's "Lullaby of Life," and Pinsuti's "Parting Kiss." The soloists were Miss Ada Patterson, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Mason, and Mr. Montague Worlock. Mr. Cockram accompanied with taste and skill, and Mr. W. Kidner conducted.

Organ Recitals were given at the Colston Hall by Mr. George Riseley on the 2nd, 7th, 16th, and 23rd ult.

The Salisbury Vocal Union gave their twenty-fifth Concert in the Hamilton Hall, Salisbury, on the 14th ult., when William Carter's Sacred Cantata "Placida," the same composer's Jubilee Ode, Dr. Stainer's Jubilee Madrigal "The Triumph of Victoria," and other vocal and instrumental selections were performed with great success. The soloists were Miss Marian Graham, Miss Isabel Stedman, Mr. Henry Kirby, Mr. Arthur Crick, Mr. J. M. Hayden, Mr. S. P. Davis, and Mr. J. Deane Willis. Mr. J. T. Calkin was leader of the orchestra, Miss Winifred Harwood presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. John Hayden conducted, as usual.

The Sarum Choral Society performed "Judas Maccabæus" at their first Concert of the season, at the Assembly Rooms, Salisbury, on the 19th ult. The principal vocalists were Madame Wilson-Osman, Miss Blanche Murray, Mr. George Cox (in the absence of Mr. Percy Palmer), and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail. The chorus was considerably enlarged, and the band (led by Mr. J. T. Calkin) was most effective. The Concert was a great success, the work being admirably performed. Mr. South, the Cathedral Organist, conducted.

On Easter Tuesday, the usual invitation Easter Concert of Lord Weymouth's Grammar School, Warminster, took place. The band and chorus, numbering 100 performers, were conducted by Dr. Alcock, the head master, ably assisted by his son, the second master. Miss Christine Chute, R.A.M., was the vocalist, and gave F. Clay's setting of Kingsley's words "The Sands of Dee," with a purity of tone and finish only attained by a true artist. The Symphony was the "Eroica," and save some unsteadiness in the horns in the Scherzo, its performance was marked by firmness, brilliancy, and taste. Weber's Overtures "Der Freischütz" and "Oberon," especially the latter, were admirably played. The vocal pieces included Handel's "Coronation" Anthem, and "Let their celestial concerts," Haydn's "The Heavens are telling," and some half-dozen of Mendelssohn's part-songs, all without exception tastefully performed, and marking a point of musical attainment rarely found in schools.

Two Pianoforte and Violin Recitals were given in the Public Rooms, Exeter, on March 29, by Mr. Charles Hallé and Madame Norman-Néruda. Comment on the performance of such well-known artists are needless; suffice it to say that thoroughly enjoyable programmes were provided and were much appreciated. Mr. Farley Sinkins was the vocalist.

The Western Counties Musical Association Festival Concerts were held in the Victoria Hall, on the 14th ult. "Judas Maccabæus" was the work selected for the morning Concert, and the Miscellaneous Concert in the evening included Rossini's Overture to "Il Barbiere," the Andante and Finale from Mozart's Symphony in D, a violin Concerto in A minor, by Mr. F. Koeller, Mus. Bac. (of Tiverton), played by the composer, "Thyrsis, sleepest thou?" (Madrigal), by J. Benet (1598), a charming part-song, "There is an hour," by Salaman, and other works. The chorus sang extremely well both in "Judas" and in the unaccompanied music in the evening, showing marked improvement both in precision and expression. The performance of the orchestra also exhibited a considerable advance upon former years. The solo vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, who sang magnificently throughout, Miss Mary Bliss, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Foli. A special word of praise is due to the Organist, Mr. E. M. Vinnicombe, and the very efficient leader, Mr. M. G. Price, of Torquay. Mr. D. J. Wood, Organist of the Cathedral, conducted.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On March 30 Mr. Gallrein (violoncellist) gave a Chamber Concert, assisted by Miss Nellie Macgregor (violinist), Mr. Arthur Dace (pianist), and Mr. Seligmann, who sang two tenor songs, Schubert's "Du bist die Ruh" and Sullivan's "Edward Gray."

In aid of the funds of the Tramway Servants' Society, a Concert was given on the 2nd ult. The vocalists were Madame Clara Samuell and Mr. Foli; Miss Anna Lang was violinist, and the Edinburgh Amateur Orchestra supplied instrumentalists. The programme, which was of the popular type, included the Overtures "Zauberflöte," "Zampa," and "Oberon."

An orchestra of ladies, under the conductorship of Mr. Waddel, gave a Concert on the 4th ult. The Overtures "Prometheus" and "Don Juan," Volkmann's, "Serenade," and Beethoven's Symphony (No. 1) were the orchestral numbers. Solos by Miss Nellie Macgregor, Mr. Winram, and Mr. Millar Craig completed the programme.

On the 9th ult. the Edinburgh Choral Union performed "The Messiah," and attracted a large audience to the Music Hall. Mrs. Smith, Miss Wright, Messrs. Gledhill, and Glencorse were the soloists, and Mr. Collinson conducted.

The Edinburgh Ladies' Choir and the Male Glee Club gave a Concert, on the 13th ult., when a Cantata by Ernest Ford, "The Eve of the Festa," formed the principal feature. The remainder of the programme was composed of madrigals, glees, and ballads. Mr. Millar Craig conducted.

On the 14th ult. a Service of Song was held in Palmerston Place Church. After an organ solo (Easter Concerto), composed by the Dresden Organist, Carl August Fischer, selections from "The Messiah," and an Anthem, "The Lord your God is gracious," by the Conductor, Mr. Franklin Peterson, were given. Mr. Magnus Peterson officiated as Organist.

The Edinburgh Choral Society began its first season on the same evening, by a performance of Handel's "Acis and Galatea," followed by a miscellaneous selection.

Also on the same evening the Dalkeith Philharmonic Society performed "The Messiah." Mesdames Annie Grey and Emily Clarke, and Messrs. Acott and Riley were the soloists. Mr. Charles Guild conducted.

On the 18th ult. the Edinburgh Amateur Orchestral Society gave its third Concert, under the conductorship of Mr. Carl Hamilton. The novelty in the programme was the March from Dr. A. C. Mackenzie's "Story of Sayid." Selections, including Schubert's unfinished Symphony in B minor, and a Concerto by Mozart, for pianoforte and orchestra, completed the programme, which was varied by a few vocal contributions.

In St. Mary's Cathedral, on the evening of the 19th ult., Gounod's "Redemption" was performed, under the leadership of Mr. Collinson, the Organist. The excellent rendering of this work made the service an impressive one to the large audience present.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(From our own Correspondent.)

We have had quite a plethora of Association Concerts during the past month, and hardly any other form of musical event has taken place than of that nature. Church musical societies, in particular, have again been coming to the front, and, taken altogether, with evidence of by no means unimportant work done during the season now very near a close.

I may first mention one or two Concerts which took place after my April letter was despatched. These were—first, a meritorious performance of Gaul's sacred Cantata "Ruth," on March 28, by the choir of St. Vincent Parish Church, under the conductorship of Mr. James Eaglesham, together with several secular pieces of music, including Coward's National Jubilee Song "Awake, O happy nation"; next, an excellent performance, with orchestral accompaniment, of Mozart's First Mass, and selections from Handel and Gounod, by the Musical Association of Plantation United Presbyterian Church, on the following evening, Mr. A. Macrae conducting; then a Concert by the Crosshill Musical Association, with "Spring" from Haydn's "Seasons," as the chief number in a miscellaneous programme. The singing of the latter Society was, on this occasion, fully up to the standard of excellence it has attained under Mr. Alexander Patterson, its Conductor. An instrumental Concert was also given on the last day of March, in the Hall of Pollokshields United Presbyterian Church, by Mr. Henry Bretton, Organist of the Church, and several competent local executants. The programme included several well selected examples of chamber music.

The first Concert of April was that given by the Glasgow University Choral Society, on the 1st ult., in the Bute Hall of the College. There was a chorus of eighty male voices, and an orchestra of forty. Selections from Mendelssohn's "Antigone," and the "Fest-Gesang" of the same composer, were the principal numbers. The singing generally was rough and unprecise. In the orchestral portion a very creditable performance was given of Mozart's "La Clemenza di Tito" Overture, the accompaniments in "Antigone" and the "Fest-Gesang," and of Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture, which latter was played without the organ, from the instrument being found unmanageably different in pitch. Mr. Montague Smith, a musician of ability, conducted, and is not to blame for the state of musical matters as at present existing in our University.

The Pollokshields Musical Association gave its second Concert for the season, on the same evening, in the Crosshill Burgh Hall. Gadsby's "Lord of the Isles" was brought forward and most creditably presented. The Society, if somewhat smaller in number, is not less effective than before. Mr. W. T. Hoeck conducted, and Mr. A. Heap on the harmonium ably seconded the piano accompaniments by a lady member.

On the 5th ult. several events took place. The Pollokshields Lyrical Society, a newly formed body of amateurs, mostly senior pupils of the music classes instructed by Mr. D. McColl, gave their first Concert in the Crosshill Burgh Hall, there being no public hall in Pollokshields as yet, large as the district has now become. The display, if somewhat premature, was yet promising and creditable. The Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society, which is under the experienced and able direction of Mr. W. T. Hoeck, gave its second Concert for the season in the Waterloo Rooms. The programme comprised the Overture to Cherubini's "Lodoiska," Saint-Saëns's Suite in D (Op. 49), a Serenade for cello and orchestra, by Mr. Manns (paraphrase on a German melody), extracts from Schubert's "Rosamunde," and the Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra (No. 1, in C), by Beethoven, the solo part in the latter being played with much skill and promise by a youthful brother of the Conductor. The tone and executive ability of the amateurs generally were both remarkably excellent, great progress having been made in ensemble playing since Mr. Hoeck was appointed their trainer. Several ladies were playing in the violin section. Dennistoun Musical Association gave its annual Concert, on the same evening, in the Hall of Blackfriars Church, the lengthiest number being Such's "Narcissus and Echo." Eaton Faning's "Miller's Wooing" and Ciro Pinsuti's "Tell me, Flora," were among the shorter pieces. Mr. B. J. Whall conducted.

Not the least important of the numerous Concerts that took place last month was that given by the choir of St. Vincent Street United Presbyterian Church—its nineteenth annual performance. This year the occasion was specially interesting, as introducing to notice, for the first time here, Cherubini's Fourth Mass in C. I have not heard the choir, which numbers between seventy and eighty voices, and is always without extraneous aid, sing better than at this Concert. The solo parts were taken by Miss V. Beaumont, Miss Roxburgh, and Mr. J. T. Murray. There was an orchestra led by Mr. W. H. Cole. Mendelssohn's "As the hart pants" was also included in the programme. The Concert opened with the National Anthem, as has been done since this year of Jubilee began.

The Kyrle Choir still continues to fill an important place in the operations of the benevolent Society it forms a section of. The annual Concert of the choir, as distinct from its usual work, took place on the 14th ult., when Macfarren's "Lady of the Lake" was performed. Mr. C. H. Woolnoth conducted, and Messrs. T. and W. T. Hoeck accompanied. On the previous evening, Mendelssohn's "Athalie" was rendered, without, however, the connecting readings, by the choir of Queen's Park Free Church, under Mr. Cunningham. The Victoria Musical Association, in its first year, gave a Concert of part-music in the Waterloo Rooms, on the 16th ult., Mr. W. M. Miller conducting.

On the 22nd ult. a Concert was given by the Southern Boys' Choir, Sullivan's "On Shore and Sea" being in the programme, also Dr. Stainer's Jubilee Anthem "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers"; and on the same evening the South Side Choral Union performed Gade's "Crusaders" and portions of Handel's "Samson"; also Mr. W. H. Coles's fourth and last Concert of Chamber Music for the season took place in St. Andrew's Hall.

Music has been quite as active in the neighbourhood of Glasgow as in the city itself. The Busby Choral Union, which is conducted by Mr. Alexander Patterson, gave a Concert in that rising place on March 30, the programme comprising chiefly Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen." In Greenock, on the 1st ult., an Organ Recital was given in Finnart United Presbyterian Church, by Mr. Cathcart W. Methven; and on the 4th ult. Gaul's Cantata "The Holy City" was performed by the Mid Parish Church Musical Association of the same town. Mr. D. Middleton conducted, and Mr. J. B. McCallum accompanied on the organ.

The Bearsden Musical Society, recently formed, gave a "Musical Evening" on the 1st ult., in which the performance of a number of English glees and madrigals formed the principal part of the entertainment. The singing of the choir is very promising. Mr. J. D. Boyack is the Conductor.

The Bothwell Choral Society held its Annual Concert on the 7th ult., when L. N. Parker's "Silvia" was performed with considerable success, Mr. McHutchison conducting, and Messrs. Jeffrey and Fyfe accompanying on the piano and harmonium respectively.

At Bridge of Weir, on the 8th ult., Cowen's "Rose Maiden" was produced by the Musical Association of the village. At Uddingston, important as a residential place, the Musical Association, now under the charge of Mr. James Pattinson, produced, on the 12th ult., with a marked degree of success, Barnett's "Ancient Mariner." On the same date the Helensburgh Choral Union gave an excellent performance of Handel's "Alexander's Feast," with orchestral accompaniment. Mr. Brash conducted. The Mount Vernon Society, at its Concert of the 15th ult., revived Henry Smart's "Jacob," a work which has been rather overlooked, though it was written for the Glasgow Choral Union and first performed by them. Under the training of Mr. Robert Riddell, the honorary Conductor, the Society has advanced, and a generally excellent performance of the work was given.

The Paisley Choral Union gave Sullivan's Cantata "The Golden Legend" on the 11th ult. The choir rendered every justice to the choruses, both in the dramatic and reflective music of the Cantata. The soloists were Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss C. Myers, and Messrs. Iver McKay and A. Black. Mr. Black, a local baritone of great promise, who has gone south to pursue his studies further, and who, I venture to predict, will take a very high place ere long, took the part of Lucifer with great success. The orchestra was led by Mr. W. H. Cole. Mr. J. Barratt was at the organ, and was as successful as could be expected in his effort to supply the want of the Cathedral bells. Mr. James Barr conducted. The Paisley Glee Club gave an interesting Concert of male voice glees and madrigals on the 5th ult.

The Glasgow Choral Union is at present without a fixed Conductor, or rather choral trainer, Mr. Allan Macbeth having withdrawn his name for re-nomination for the post which he has held with much credit to himself for a number of years. The appointment is a yearly one.

MUSIC IN SOUTH WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The month of April, unlike the preceding period, was marked by musical events of considerable importance and interest to South Wales generally.

The Jubilee Fête on Easter Monday, at Pontypool, was a very remarkable event, and attracted over 70,000 persons.

The managerial duties were carried out by Mr. Gus Bevan and a committee. The Eisteddfod was held in a large marquée in the Home Park, the ulterior object of the combined undertakings being to aid a fund which is being raised to build a free library and public hall for the locality. The musical adjudicators were Messrs. Proudman, Venables, and D. Jenkins. Mr. David Williams presided, and the Conductor was the Rev. Gurnos Jones. Intense interest was taken in the chief choral competition, the first prize in which was £200 and a gold medal for the Conductor; and the second, £50 and a silver medal. The test piece was the chorus "Wretched lovers" ("Acis and Galatea"). The choirs sang in the following order:—(1) Abercarn (170 voices), led by Mr. David Bowen; (2) Pontypool (135), Mr. Roger Prothero, Conductor; (3) Dowlais Harmonic Society (210), Mr. Dan Davies; (4) Llanelly United Choir (235), Mr. Richard Jenkins; (5) Burslem Tonic Sol-fa (200), Mr. W. Docksey; (6) Aerefair, Wrexham, North Wales, conducted by Mr. J. T. Gabriel. Mr. Proudman prefaced his adjudication with some general remarks about Eisteddfodau, criticising the choirs in their respective performances. He awarded the first prize to Dowlais, which sang steadily throughout, kept in tune, and seemed thoroughly to understand the composition, and the second prize to Llanelly. Great cheering followed the announcement. In the soprano solo competition, "Rejoice greatly" ("Messiah"), the first prize of three guineas was awarded to Miss Pollie Rowlands, the second of two guineas to Miss M. Purvis, and the third to Miss Winnie Edwards. Tenor solo (similar prizes); test piece, "Then shall the righteous shine" ("Elijah"). First prize was awarded to Mr. David Evans, Ferndale; second to Mr. John Thomas, third to Mr. D. Howells (Gwyn Alaw). Bass solo (similar prizes): Mr. Evan Evans (1), Mr. Thomas Lewis (2), and Mr. Llew. Bedw (3). Male voices: the Leeds Glee Society, the Tredegar Glee Society, and the Merthyr Orpheus Society competed. The first prize of ten guineas and a gold medal was awarded to the Merthyr Society (Mr. W. H. Powell, Conductor), the second of two guineas to Tredegar (Mr. David Jones, Conductor).

The Abergavenny Market Hall was again the arena of important musical contests, which took place on Easter Monday, in the presence of a vast audience. The adjudicators were Mr. E. H. Turpin (London), Mr. D. Emlyn Jones (Hereford), Mr. C. C. Caird, and Mr. Throne Biggs. The Conductor was the Rev. Theophilus Rees, Pentyrch. The test piece in the chief competition was the same as at Pontypool Eisteddfod. The two winning choirs at Pontypool, as well as the Abercarn choir, arrived from that town in time to take part in this competition. The number of voices was stipulated to be not less than 150, and not more than 300 in each choir. First prize was £100 and a gold medal to the Conductor; second prize, £75 and a silver medal. Mr. Evans, in announcing the award of the adjudicators, said that, on the whole, he had no hesitation in saying that this was the best choral competition the present adjudicators had ever heard in Abergavenny. Award: first prize, to Abercarn; second, Llanelly; third, Dowlais. Chorus for male voices, thirty to forty-five in number; test, "The Soldiers' Chorus" ("Faust"). Nine choirs competed for a prize of £10, and a silver medal to the Conductor: Glanhowy Orpheus Society (Tredegar) was successful. Pedal Harp Competition—"Autumn," by the Queen's Harpist, Mr. John Thomas: First prize of £7 10s. awarded to Mr. Thomas Thomas, Sirhowy; second, £2 10s., to Mr. T. C. Page, Blaine, who is blind. Four choirs, each of between sixty and ninety voices, sang the "March of the Men of Harlech," for a prize of £20, with gold medal for the Conductor; Abercarn was the winning choir. Miss M. M. Jones, Mountain Ash, took a prize of £2 for her singing of "Bid me discourse." On the 14th ult., the members of the Abercarn Choir gave a reception to their Conductor, Mr. D. Bowen.

On Sunday, the 17th ult., the Dowlais Harmonic Society, about whose intentions in regard to London there has been some doubt—principally on account of the ill-health of the Conductor, Mr. Dan Davies—held a meeting, at which it was decided by the members to take part in the great choral competitions at London. The Conductor's duties will be temporarily discharged by other gentlemen.

An interesting letter has been written by Mr. E. H. Turpin, one of the Abergavenny adjudicators, in which he made several observations that may well deserve to receive the consideration of vocalists in South Wales and elsewhere. He pointed out that there seemed to be some danger of vocal deterioration and a contraction of the performers' musical perceptions and mastery of style, in the habit of working too exclusively at the test pieces. He proceeded: "I would not in the least disparage the splendid diligence and discipline which produced the remarkably fine performances I heard at Abergavenny. All the same, I cannot but note the heavy strain upon the weaker voices, which such persistent practice in a given key and a given style necessarily produces. I would suggest that the rehearsal of test pieces be varied by the frequent interchange of other music in different modes, time-measures, and styles." He also said he "would further venture to urge upon conductors the advisability of employing means whereby the excellent voices they had under command might be duly developed and carefully preserved. He was pained to observe in the juvenile solo competition that tender and precious voices were now and again cruelly forced and suffering from defective methods, or rather habits of voice production. It might be well, too, to remind even the finest and most experienced choirs that competing for more than one prize, or at two separate meetings, which was done by two societies at Pontypool and Abergavenny on Easter Monday, owing to the rare coincidence of two meetings being held on the same day within a reasonable distance, was very likely to be attended with disappointments. The strain upon the singers' attention and physical powers (he continued) is too great to admit of repetition without some diminution of watchfulness and power. This remark is subject to some modification in the case of instrumental performers dealing with artificial tone mediums of a less susceptible character than that delicate organ, the human voice." In further observations he protested against any soloists "entering two competitions under different names, as either creating needless distinctions, or consciously or unconsciously opening the way to some form of deception"; and regarding general arrangements, he argued that "separate entrance and exit doors should always be provided, in order to enable the competing choirs to take and to leave their places with as little loss of time and confusion as possible."

The annual Eisteddfod was held at Neath on Easter Monday, on which occasion the Market Hall was occupied by about 5,000 persons. Sir H. Hussey Vivian, Bart., M.P., presided, and the Mayor (Mr. J. H. Rowland) occupied the vice-chair. Mr. W. Abraham, M.P., was the Conductor, and Mr. W. G. McNaught was adjudicator. "Hallelujah to the Father" was the test piece in the chief choral competition. First prize, £60 and gold medal; second, £25, with silver medal; third, £15 and silver medal. Four choirs competed, and the adjudicator divided the first and second prizes between the Glantawe and Neath Choirs. As the former was just a point in advance of the other, he thought the gold medal should go to the Glantawe Conductor. The Committee afterwards decided, however, to give a gold medal to the leader of the Neath Choir also. "Then round about the starry throne" was the test piece for a prize of £12. Six choirs competed, and the honours fell to the Zoar (Swansea) Choir.

On Good Friday, at Abervan, near Merthyr Tydfil, a well-attended Eisteddfod was held, under the presidency of Mr. R. T. Griffiths. Mr. E. Beddoe was the Conductor, and the musical adjudicator was Mr. John Thomas, Llanwrtyd. There was a number of minor competitions. John Sandbrook, Dowlais, took the prize for the best rendering of the bass solo "Now heaven in fullest glory shone." Thirty-three hymn tunes were submitted, and Henry Jenkins, Abercanaid (Merthyr), took the prize. The chief choral competition involved the rendering, for a prize of £12 and £1 to the Conductor, of "Yr arglwydd sydd yn teyrnasu." Capcoch (Aberdare) Choir was successful.

On the same day, an Eisteddfod took place at Trealaw, Mr. Rhys Williams, Miskin Manor, presiding. There was a brass band competition for £5, the test piece being "And the glory of the Lord" ("Messiah"). The Mountain Ash Brass Band (Mr. Robshaw) took the honours. A choral competition for £5 resulted in the victory of the Bethel Harmonic Society. Miss Rachel Davies won a prize of half-a-guinea for singing the "Lost Chord." The musical adjudicator at New Milford Eisteddfod was Mr. D. A. Andrews, Pembroke Dock. The chief prizes were taken by local choirs. On Good Friday there were also Eisteddfodau at Garw Valley and Llanbyther.

At Cardiff, on Easter Monday evening, there was a performance in the Park Hall, by the Ebenezer Choral Society, of the Cantata "Esther, the Beautiful Queen." Mr. Richard Jones conducted the choir. Miss C. Thomas, London, sang the part of Esther, and other leading vocalists were: Mr. J. Hocking, Maestig; Mr. J. B. Phillips, Swansea; and Mr. Gwynne Walters, Cardiff. Mr. E. T. Roberts led the band, and Mr. G. Bull and Miss M. J. Thomas were the organ and pianoforte accompanists.

A large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Park Hall on the occasion of the last Concert for the season by the Cardiff Orchestral Society. Miss Mary Davies was no doubt one of the chief attractions, and she was accorded a reception due to the reputation of so distinguished a soprano. Valuable assistance was also given by Mr. Henry Piercy. As a harpist, Miss Annie F. Jones appeared to advantage, and the performances of the Society were admirable.

The South Wales Choral Union, with "Caradog" as leader, produced "St. Paul" at the Park Hall, Cardiff, on the 20th ult., and fully justified the expectations of the large audience which assembled on the occasion. Their singing was generally considered to have been very creditable, and it is hoped that, having made a start, the choir will take up a prominent position as a representative Welsh association. The leading vocalists were—Madame Williams-Penn, Miss Blodwen Jones, Eos Morlais, and Mr. Lucas W. Williams. Mr. T. Carrington, Bristol, had charge of the orchestra, and Mr. T. E. Aylward was the organ accompanist.

It is stated that the people of Brecon are anxious to have their town fixed upon as the place of the National Eisteddfod meeting of 1888, and that an earnest endeavour will be made to forward their claim to a successful issue.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, April 11.

SIX performances of extemporised Italian opera, with Madame Patti as the central attraction, and one Concert each by the Symphony Society and Mr. Van der Stucken's orchestra at Chickering Hall, and we will be able to close the books on all that is serious of the New York musical season 1886-87. In other parts of the country (except the far West, the Pacific slope, in fact, whither the National Opera Company has betaken itself, in the hope of repairing its badly shattered financial constitution) the same state of things prevails. But in the way of retrospection there is abundance of material for a longer letter than I would dare to inflict on the readers of THE MUSICAL TIMES. Two novelties which have recently been produced, however, first call for attention.

On March 14, the National Opera Company produced Rubinstein's "Nero" for the first time in an English dress. Between that date and the close of the Company's five weeks' season, on April 2, the opera was given six times, before numerous and enthusiastic audiences. The version of the book used by the Company was expressly made for it by Mr. John P. Jackson, now an attaché of the World newspaper of this city. Mr. Jackson's translation is a serviceable one, creditable for the greater part to him as an experienced hand at operatic verse-making; but it does in no wise mark a profound reform in this department of artistic labour any more than do the representations of the company in the department of operatic performance. The performances of "Nero" were, nevertheless, the finest artistic efforts put forward by the company. The lovers of poetry and music, as distinguished from the admirers of spectacular shows, would, it is true, have been glad had the exposition of the dramatic and musical soul of the work been given greater potency than the external dress of the piece; but money can buy fine stage habiliments while it cannot endow mediocre artists with musical and histrionic ability of a high order, and so the public had to be content to admire "Nero," for the greater part, as a show piece. The effort to present it in this character was so zealous and so effectively made that the eyes of many among those who are inclined to be critical in their estimates of new lyric dramas—those, for instance, who refused to accept "Merlin" as worthy of representation by the German Company—were blinded to the inherent weaknesses of Jules Barbier's book and Anton Rubinstein's music. Some of these critics went so far in their complacency as to wink at the fact that, as presented, it was impossible to follow the drift of the story at the base of the opera, except by reading, not the poet's text (as emended), but the translator's preface to the book, in which the plot was expounded with great particularity. Yet it has been fondly imagined that the progress of opera reform during the last few decades had at least carried us so far that we were justified in demanding that the progress and relation of dramatic incidents should be discoverable to honest and earnest endeavour. Barbier's book has some good poetry, which has not been quite destroyed even in the process of double translation and sophistication to which it has been submitted; but after the first act it ceases to be a drama. The first act, which closely follows in thought, spirit, and episode the first canto of Hamerling's truly poetical and virile epic "Ahasver in Rome," is excellent in every way; the pageantry and picturesque mummery in it fit into, or rather grow out of, the dramatic conceit at the base of the act. This conceit is Nero's mock-marriage to a virtuous Christian maiden whom he and his ribald companions have chased from the street into the house of Epicharis, whither she had fled for protection, only to discover that Epicharis is her mother and a celebrated courtesan. It can easily be imagined how such an episode adapts itself to operatic treatment. But with this one idea—a palpable variant of the scene in Locusta's den in the epic of Hamerling—Barbier's inventive faculty exhausted itself, and in the second act the dramatic principle of "Nero" perishes and is never resuscitated. Rubinstein's music betrays a good deal of earnestness in endeavour, but it is the music (in spite of its beauties I feel bound to say so) of a man upon whom artistic principles sit lightly. Where it is beautiful it is entirely lyrical. Much of it is conventional, old-fashioned operatic music; it has no obligations toward the drama; it exists for its own sake. Two duets in the third act are lovely, but commonplace in ideas, and where one expects the most (at the climax of the play when the heroine and all the female representatives of the good principle meet their death, with the burning of Rome as a back ground), playwright and composer give us the least. Finally, in the last act, all the previous folly of the piece is overtopped by a scene in which Nero meets the ghosts of all his victims, and calls the roll of their names for the benefit of the audience in the mausoleum of Augustus.

But I must not tarry longer with "Nero." The second novelty was a new Symphony by a composer whose name even was unknown to any reviewer in town, with a single exception. This was a Symphony played from manuscript, composed by Alberto Franchetti. As this name is equally unfamiliar in England, and the Symphony (which is in the little used symphonic key of E minor) proving to be a very respectable work, justifying at least the expectation that its author will yet enrich musical literature with composition of sterling merit, it may not be amiss to identify the composer. Franchetti belongs to a family that has made a mark in Italian politics. Two brothers are or were in the diplomatic service of their country at Madrid and Munich. On his mother's side, I believe, he is connected with the Austrian or Italian branch of the Rothschild family. He is still a young man, and having studied in the music-schools of Italy, and spent three years at the Conservatory of Munich, he is now living quietly at Dresden, and working zealously in the higher fields of composition. Just at present the work in hand is a grand opera on Wagnerian models, and portions of Signor Franchetti's music, beside the Symphony which New York heard last week at the last Concert of the Philharmonic Society, have been performed in Dresden, under the direction of Court Chapelmaster Schuch. In Bologna, I believe, Signor Faccio brought it forward at a Concert, and the kind words spoken of it after that performance attracted the attention of Mr. Theodore Thomas, who wishing a novelty for the Philharmonic, had a search made until he found Franchetti and his score at Dresden. The Symphony is an unscriptural case of new wine put into old bottles without catastrophe, but with equal advantage to receptacles and contents. Franchetti has taken up the spirit of modern German music and bodied it forth in the time-honoured "form." His Italian blood shows itself in his uncompromising adherence to melody as the chief staple of his work, but in his handling of his material he is a young German inoculated with the new romanticism.

The Concert season has not been entirely satisfactory to the dilletante. Mr. Thomas has been kept away from the city so much because of his obligations to the National Opera Company, that the Philharmonic Society's Concerts suffered from want of sufficient study and drill. The engagement of his orchestra too, by the Opera Company, took half-a-hundred of the best musicians of the city out of the ranks of the Society for half the Concerts. These facts, together with one or two disappointing programmes, and the change from the Academy of Music to the vast Metropolitan Opera House, where the acoustical conditions are not well adapted to symphonic concerts, caused a deal of complaint among the subscribers. Mr. Thomas's own Concerts have shown the effect of overwork on his part as well as on the part of the orchestra. The list of novelties produced, however, is still respectable. In the following table, arranged in the order of their performance, are the chief novelties of the season, including Rubinstein's new Symphony, which Mr. Van der Stucken has put in the scheme of his last Concert on April 23, after both Mr. Thomas and Herr Seidl rejected it. The chief of the English novelties, "Ruddygore," I am sorry to say has been a failure, and last Saturday was withdrawn after a five weeks' run. The critics pronounced against the work though all praised Sir Arthur Sullivan's music :—

Composer.	Title of Composition.	Occasion.
Gadsby, Hy.... ...	The Forest of Arden ...	Thomas's Popular.
Massenet	Marche Heroïque ...	" "
Nicodé, J. L.... ...	Jubilee March	" "
Cui, César	Tarantelle	" "
Massenet	La Vierge...	" "
Tschaikowsky ...	Marche Slave (Op. 31) ...	" "
Schytle, Ludvig ...	Pantomimes (Op. 30) ...	" "
MacDowell, E. A. ...	Ophelia	Van der Stucken's Concert.
Saint-Saëns	Rhapsodie d'Auvergne ...	" "
Raff	Festival March (Op. 139)	" "
Sullivan, Arthur ...	Overt., "In Memoriam"	Thomas's Popular.
Bird, Arthur... ...	Symphony in A	Symphony Society.
Tschaikowsky ...	Capriccio Italien ...	" "
Bruckner, Anton ...	Symphony, E major ...	Philharmonic Soc.
Bruch, Max	Achilleus	Liederkranz Concert
Wagner	Tristan und Isolde ...	German Opera.
Offenbach	The Commodore ...	Miss Cameron's Season.
Saint-Saëns	Symph. after "Manfred"	Philharmonic Soc.
Nicodé, J. L. ...	Suite Symphonique (Op. 17)	Van der Stucken's Concert.
Paine, J. K.	The Shepherds on the Lawn	" "
Massé, V.	Galatea	National Opera.
Goldmark	Merlin	German Opera.
Audran	Indiana	McCaull Opera.
Floersheim, O. ...	Elevation	Mr. Musin's Concert
Rheinberger ...	Rosen von Hildesheim...	Liederkranz Concert
Hummel, Ferd. ...	Columbus	" "
Saint-Saëns	Symphony, C minor ...	Philharmonic Soc.
Gilbert and Sullivan	Ruddygore	Fifth Ave. Theatre.
Dvorák	Slavonic Rhapsody(No.1)	Thomas's Popular.
Berlioz	Trojans in Carthage ...	Van der Stucken's Concert.
Dellinger	Lorraine	McCaull Opera.
Svendsen	Festival Polonaise ...	Thomas's Popular.
Dvorák	Legend	" "
Délibes	Coppelia	National Opera.
Rubinstein	Paradise Lost	Brooklyn Philharm.
Rubinstein	Nero	National Opera.
Liszt	Christus	Oratorio Society.
Moszkowski... ...	Suite (No. 1, Op. 39) ...	Thomas's Popular.
Hofmann, H. ...	Octet (Op. 80)	Philharmonic Club.
Dvorák	Suite (Op. 39)	Thomas's Popular.
Franchetti, Alberto	Symphony, E minor ...	Philharmonic Soc.
Rubinstein	Symphony (No. 6) ...	Van der Stucken's Concert.

A Musical Scholarship for female Students has just been founded by the authorities of Trinity College, London, in honour of the Jubilee year of her Majesty's reign. The Scholarship, to be entitled "The Queen Victoria Scholarship," will be for Musical Composition, and will be open to all British born subjects.

On Saturday evening, the 23rd ult., the celebrated French Organist, Mr. Eugene Gigout, gave a very successful Recital at the Bow and Bromley Institute. There was a large attendance, who gave the artist a hearty reception. The programme was of very high class character, including amongst others of Mr. Gigout's own compositions, a Religious March, a Communion, and an arrangement of Bach's well known aria "My heart ever faithful"; Mendelssohn's Sonata in D minor, Dubois's "Marche des Rois Mages," Lemmens's Fanfare, and Bach's Fugue in G minor formed also part of the programme. An improvisation on a Theme given by one of the audience was most cleverly worked out in various styles. Mr. Gigout was enthusiastically applauded after each piece and had to bow his acknowledgments several times. Previous to this performance (on the 21st ult.) Mr. Gigout played at Bolton, where he also obtained a complete success. At Mirfield, also, where he performed on the great four-manual concert organ at the private residence of Mr. T. W. Pilling, in the presence of at least a hundred organists and other professional men, his playing excited the greatest admiration. We think that Mr. Gigout cannot but feel satisfied with the success that has accompanied him during his short visit to this country, and we hope it may not be long before he again visits us.

The Park Church (Highbury) Psalmody Association and Orchestral Society, numbering together about 150 performers, gave the final Concert of the present season on Tuesday evening, the 19th ult., at the Highbury Athenæum. The programme comprised Dr. Stainer's sacred Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" and Spohr's "God, Thou art great," the Triumphal March and Chorus from Sir Michael Costa's "Naaman," "How vain is man" (Handel), "But the Lord is mindful" (Mendelssohn), "Angels ever bright and fair" (Handel), "Why do the nations" (Handel), concluding with the National Anthem, as arranged by Sir M. Costa. The solo quartet were Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Rose Dafforne, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Frank Ward, who rendered the pieces entrusted to them artistically and with feeling. The choir and band were well under the control of their excellent Conductor, Mr. John E. Borland, the Organist and Choirmaster of Park Church. The two Societies may be congratulated upon a very successful Concert.

Miss Leslie Trowbridge gave a Concert at the Portman Rooms, Baker Street, on Tuesday evening, the 19th ult., which was fully attended. The programme was well selected and contained many highly interesting features, notably two songs, a duet for soprano and tenor and a quartet from the Mass in D, both composed by Miss Trowbridge. These compositions are as yet in MS., but they are good enough to warrant the supposition that they will not long remain so. The last mentioned number (Agnus Dei) is extremely attractive, and one of the songs, "My Rose," which was delightfully rendered by Mr. Iver McKay, produced a very favourable impression. Mr. McKay's excellent voice and refined style were also displayed in "Salve dimora" (Gounod) and Blumenthal's "Message." Madame Ellen Lamb's songs were well rendered, and Miss Trowbridge, who has a fine contralto voice, sang in a musicianly manner, and was enthusiastically received.

A number of the members of the choir and congregation of St. Philip's Church, Dalston, met in the Vestry on Easter Tuesday to present a testimonial to Mr. Charles Dixon, who for twenty-five years has been Organist to the Church. The presentation, consisting of an illuminated address and a purse of thirty guineas, was made by the Rev. F. Cox, who, in expressing regret at Mr. Dixon's retirement, referred to the great interest and untiring energy he had shown in the execution of his duties during the long period he had held the post.

The Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "The Messiah," on March 30, in Trinity Chapel, Poplar. The soloists were Miss Annie Daymond, Miss Gerry, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. A second performance of the Oratorio was given on the 6th ult., in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Waterloo Bridge Road; the soloists were Mrs. Stanesby, Mrs. Oram, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Robert Cocks, the well known and long established music publisher. Six years after the battle of Trafalgar he came, as a boy, to London; and after an apprenticeship, started a music publishing business in Princes Street, Hanover Square, as far back as 1823. About the year 1844 the establishment was removed to New Burlington Street, where the business has been continued ever since, Mr. Cocks retiring from the firm in 1881, and being succeeded, as senior partner, by his son, Mr. Stroud L. Cocks. The catalogue of the firm exceeds 18,000 works, including the "Schools" of Czerny, Spohr, Campagnoli, and Albrechtsberger, the organ history of Hopkins and Rimbault, and a large number of the dance compositions of Strauss and Lanner. Mr. Cocks was the oldest music publisher in England, and probably in the world, having, at the time of his decease, entered his ninetieth year.

The second anniversary of the Westminster Orchestral Society was celebrated on the 1st ult., by a dinner at the Holborn Restaurant, under the presidency of Mr. Frederick Rose. After the usual loyal toasts, General Sim proposed prosperity to the Society, which was responded to in an eloquent speech by Professor Sir George Macfarren, senior vice-president of the Society, who traced the history of this rapidly rising institution—cradled in the great firm, which he said "shall be nameless," in Pulteney Street—from its early days to the present time, and expressed an earnest wish that the excellent work which it had commenced might be vigorously carried on in the future, and that the Society might eventually grow into all the importance its promoters could desire. Amongst the other speakers were Mr. Charles Stewart Macpherson, Conductor of the Society, Mr. George F. Rose, Mr. Walter Macfarren, Mr. Black, Mr. Algernon Rose, and the Chairman.

An exceedingly creditable performance of Handel's Oratorio "The Messiah" was given by the Musical Association in connection with Mr. F. N. Charrington's mission work, at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, on Good Friday. The chorus singing was characterised by much vigour and intelligence throughout. The solos were sung by Miss Annie Williams, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail, all of whom gave much effect to the important music entrusted to them. Mr. Duncan Callow presided at the organ, and Mr. G. Day Winter conducted with great care and judgment. On Easter Sunday afternoon an experiment was tried in the form of a "Special Service of Praise," given by the above Musical Association, under Mr. Winter's conductorship, and, judging from the large audience of some 4,000 persons, the success was decisive.

The 218th consecutive Monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union took place on the 1st ult., in the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street, the programme being entirely devoted to sacred music. The first part included a solo from each of the artists Mendelssohn's "Judge me, O God" and "As the hart pants"; Sterndale Bennett's Cantata "The Woman of Samaria" formed the second part. The rendering of the solos in this work by Miss Kate Fusselle, Mrs. Osborne Williams, Mr. William Nicholl, and Mr. Frederick Bevan was excellent, a special feature being the Quartet "God is a Spirit." The chorus singing was very good throughout. Mr. F. R. Kinkee and Mr. H. King presided at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, and Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

The eighth annual Report of the Orphan School and Benevolent Fund for Musicians, established under the management of Miss Helen Kenway, tells us that about £650 is still required to clear off the debt and purchase the house now occupied. Many professors and lovers of music are giving all the help they can in the good cause, and we sincerely hope that such aid will not only be continued but strengthened in the future, so that the institution may be placed on a sound and permanent footing.

Mr. H. C. Tonking was the performer at the Saturday Evening Organ Recitals given at St. Barnabas', Kentish Town, on Saturday, the 23rd ult., and is engaged for the Tuesday one o'clock Organ Recitals at Canon Shuttleworth's Church, St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, on Tuesday, the 3rd inst.

The Stormont Road Choral Society, Lavender Hill, gave its third Concert on the 21st ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Frank Idle. The first half of the programme was devoted to a performance of Sir Arthur Sullivan's Oratorio "The Prodigal Son," the solo parts in which were sung by Miss Winifred Parker, Miss Abel, Mr. Collwyn Thomas, and Mr. Richard Green. In the second part of the programme the above-named vocalists contributed songs, and Mr. Crowther, R.A.M., played a composition of his own, Etude in B flat, which was loudly encored. A part-song, by Marcellus Higgs, "Queen of Fragrance," and the Bridal Chorus, from Cowen's "Rose Maiden," were also well received by the audience.

The members of the St. Andrew's Choral Society held their third annual Concert at the Athenæum, Hammersmith, on Wednesday evening, March 30. The programme consisted of Cowen's Cantata "The Rose Maiden," which was highly appreciated. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Wilson, Mr. Alfred Moore, and Mr. J. Dalgety Henderson. The choruses were performed in a very efficient manner, under the able conductorship of Mr. Archibald D. Taylor. Miss Braddock presided at the pianoforte. In the second portion of the programme songs were contributed by Miss de Wilde and Mr. J. Dalgety Henderson; and a pianoforte solo by Mr. R. W. Lewis was exceedingly well received. Mr. J. Stansfeld, R.A.M., was the solo violinist.

The Services at St. Agnes', Kennington Park, on Easter day, were of a highly festal character. At the eleven o'clock celebration of the Holy Communion, Gounod's Messe Solennelle (St. Cecilia) was sung with orchestral accompaniment, the solos being rendered by Madame Worrell, Messrs. Cole, Cox, and Plant. Handel's "Worthy is the Lamb" was sung at the Offertory, and a successful service was brought to a close by the playing of Prout's Triumphal March from "Alfred," by Mr. W. W. Hedgcock (the Organist) and the orchestra. One of Stainer's Gregorian arrangements for the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, and Macfarren's "This is the day," were sung at the evening service.

Saturday, the 23rd ult., being St. George's Day, special services were held in the Parish Church, Beckenham, on the occasion of the opening of the new building. At the High Celebration Foster's Service in E flat was sung by the choir, with orchestral accompaniments. The Festival was continued on Sunday, the same music being given in the morning; at the evening service Handel's "Hallelujah" was sung as the Anthem, and after the processional, a solemn Te Deum, as an act of thanksgiving for the completion of the church. The excellent rendering of the whole of the music reflects the utmost credit upon the Organist, Mr. G. J. Hall.

A Concert was given in the Chelsea Town Hall, on March 29, by Mrs. A. J. Layton, F.C.O., in aid of the funds of the Victoria Hospital for Children. The soloists were Miss José Sherrington, Miss Beata Francis, Miss Annie Layton, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Alfred J. Layton; pianoforte, Miss Amina Goodwin; harp, Miss Ida Audain; reciter, Mrs. Ellis Cameron. Mrs. Layton's Ladies' Choral Class sang some part-songs in a highly finished manner, and among the items for mixed voices was Mr. William Carter's Jubilee Ode "Victoria," conducted by the composer, the solo being sung by Mr. Henry Beaumont.

A Pianoforte Recital was given at the Holly Park Lecture Room, Crouch Hill, on the 22nd ult., by Mr. W. Herbert Lanyon. His selections comprised Scherzo (Op. 31), Nocturnes (Op. 9, No. 2; Op. 37, No. 2), Waltzes (Op. 64, Nos. 1 and 2), Chopin; works by Gottschalk and Mendelssohn, and several compositions of his own. His rendering of the various pieces was received with much favour by the audience. A setting of the Evening Hymn by the Concert-giver was well sung by Mrs. W. J. Davey.

At the Concert of the Bach Choir, on the 17th inst., under the conductorship of Dr. Villiers Stanford, a Choral Ode in eight parts, "Blest pair of Sirens" (Milton's Ode "At a solemn Musick"), composed expressly for the occasion by C. Hubert H. Parry, and Berlioz's Te Deum will be performed, Mr. Edward Lloyd being the principal vocalist.

THE first Concert of the newly-formed Streatham Choral Society (of which Sir George Macfarren is President) took place on Monday, the 25th ult., at the Assembly Room, Streatham Common, under the conductorship of Mr. Charles Stewart Macpherson. The programme comprised Sir George Macfarren's Cantata "May Day" and Dr. A. C. Mackenzie's Cantata "The Bride," besides an interesting miscellaneous selection. The artists were — vocalists, Madame Wilson-Osman and Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys; violin, Miss Cecilia Yates; accompanists at the pianoforte and harmonium, Messrs. Herbert Lake and Harold E. Macpherson.

ON March 30 a special Evensong was held in West Hackney Church, at which full orchestral accompaniments were used. The voluntary choir of the church was augmented to about ninety voices. In place of the Anthem, A. R. Gaul's Passion Service was given, the solos being well rendered by Masters Watts and Redfern, and Messrs. Thom, Harvey, and Kempton. The performance was under the direction of Mr. F. L. Kett, the able Choirmaster of the Church, by whom the service hymns had been scored for the orchestra. Mr. H. Baynton was leader, and Mr. R. T. Gibbons, F.C.O., presided at the organ. The service throughout was excellently rendered.

THE members of the St. Peter's Choral Society gave the third and last Concert of the season in St. Peter's Hall, Wickham Road, S.E., on the 19th ult. The works performed were Spohr's "Last Judgment" and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise." The choir, under the beat of their Conductor, Dr. C. J. Frost, was thoroughly efficient, the difficult choruses being sung with a zeal and certainty highly commendable. The solos were taken by Miss Mary Beare, Madame Kate Lewis, Mr. T. Hanson, and Mr. F. Horscroft. The accompaniments were admirably played by Miss Willcocks (pianoforte) and Mr. E. F. Barker, A.C.O. (harmonium).

THE Lewisham Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Arthur E. Brown, gave its second Concert of the season in the School Room, Court Hill Road, on Tuesday, the 19th ult., the programme consisting of Gade's Cantata "The Erl-King's Daughter" and a miscellaneous second part. A band of strings, led by Mr. G. Dinelli, accompanied the work. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Condy, Madame Schluter, and Mr. Edward Owen, all of whom were well received. Mr. Dinelli played a violoncello solo with great taste and finish. Miss Louie Boyce and Mr. H. A. Hurdle accompanied on the pianoforte and harmonium respectively.

ON Tuesday, March 29, the Oratorio "Land of Promise" (Francis Howell) was given by the Dulwich Grove Choral Society, at the Congregational Church, Dulwich Grove. The principal soloists were Miss N. Brown, Miss McLean, Mr. E. W. Smith, and Mr. C. Rivington Shill, all of whom gave excellent renderings of the portions allotted to them. The choir, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Williamson, sang in a very satisfactory manner. Mr. J. W. Lewis accompanied throughout on the organ. At the close, Mr. J. Williamson was presented with a testimonial from the members of the choir, in recognition of his services as Conductor.

MR. H. W. WESTON, F.C.O., gave a short Recital to a numerous congregation, on Easter Sunday, after Evensong, at Balham Parish Church. The programme comprised a Festmarsch, by Raff; Allegro, by Widor; and works by Hesse, Guilmant, and Handel. The same performer also gave a Recital at St. Nicholas', Cole Abbey, on Easter Tuesday, when he rendered a programme containing Guilmant's Scherzo Symphonique, Schumann's Canon (No. 5), and works by Sir R. P. Stewart, Salomè, Henselt, and Lemmens.

A VERY good performance of "The Messiah" was given in the Congregational Church, Stratford, by the Choral Society, on Good Friday evening, the principal vocalists being Madame Clara West, Miss Rose Dafforne, Mr. A. Jones, and Mr. Sackville Evans; organ, Mr. E. J. Scrive: pianoforte, Miss Harris, R.A.M.; leader of the band, Mr. Stallworthy; trumpet obbligato, Mr. W. G. Wilson; Conductor, Mr. J. W. Hale.

AT Honor Oak, on Monday, the 18th ult., a Cantata entitled "Joshua," by Mr. Seymour Smith, was performed for the first time. The work showed a considerable amount of originality. The duet for soprano and contralto, "Take up the timbrel," the solo and chorus "Night's tender calm," and the choruses "God is our hope" and "The Lord is King," were the most noteworthy items in the work. A March, somewhat in the style of the March from "Eli," should become a valuable addition to an organist's stock of this class of music. The work was excellently performed by the St. Augustine's Choral Society, and conducted by the composer.

A MISCELLANEOUS Concert of Sacred Music was given in the Wesleyan Church, West Kensington Park, on Good Friday. The principal choral items were Barnby's "King all glorious," Smart's Anthem "The Lord is my strength," Sullivan's "I will sing of Thy power," and several choruses from "The Messiah." The remainder of the programme comprised quartets, duets, and solos. Miss Crisp and Mr. Harvey played a duet for violin and pianoforte. Mrs. Hector Tomkins, who presided at the organ, performed a Prelude and Fugue by Bach, in D minor, and Van Eyken's "Evening Hymn." Miss Crisp played the pianoforte accompaniments, and Mr. J. Barratt West conducted.

THE musical services held on Sunday afternoons, at four o'clock, at the Church of All Saints', Norfolk Square, have been largely attended since the commencement of the present year. During Lent, Dr. Stainer's "Crucifixion" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were sung. At the Easter season, the second part of Gounod's "Redemption" was given, and this is to be followed by a selection from "The Messiah," the third part of "The Redemption," the "Woman of Samaria," Gounod's "Mors et Vita," &c. Mr. Stedman is the Conductor, and Mr. Augustus Toop the Organist.

THE last of a series of three Concerts, in aid of the choir fund of St. Mark's Church, Lewisham, took place at the Institute, Old Road, Lee, on Thursday, the 21st ult., under the direction of Mr. Frederic Leeds, A.C.O., the Organist. The programme included a pianoforte duet (Miss Leeds and Mr. F. Leeds), songs by Miss Ida Everard, Miss Leeds, and Mr. F. Leeds; violin solos by Mr. Hughes Brabant, a trio for flutes and pianoforte by Messrs. C. S. West and P. R. Buck (flutes) and Mr. T. E. Trotter (pianoforte), and Mackenzie's "A Franklyn's Dogge," by the gentlemen of the choir. These Concerts have been a great success.

ON Easter Monday, a new programme was put forth at St. George's Hall. The first piece, written by J. Comyns Carr, and music by King Hall, is entitled "The Naturalist." The characters were sustained with much spirit by Miss Fanny Holland, Miss Kate Tully, Mr. D. Young, Mr. Walter Browne, and Mr. Alfred Reed. The musical portion was excellently rendered and found much favour with the audience. The concluding item was a musical sketch, "Jubilee Notes," by Mr. Corney Grain. This was given in his well-known attractive manner, and elicited continual laughter and applause.

ON Wednesday, the 6th ult., the Kyrle Choir, augmented by the choir of the Church, gave a performance of "The Messiah" at St. John's, Waterloo Road, S.E., under the direction of Mr. F. A. Docker, and with Mr. E. H. Turpin at the organ. The Organ Recitals were resumed on Tuesday evening, the 19th ult., when Mr. Edmund West gave an interesting programme. The Recital of the 26th ult. was given by Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O., who included an Organ Sonata by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster Abbey, in his scheme. These Recitals will be continued throughout the months of May, June, and July.

THE Civil Service Vocal Union's final Concert of the season took place on Monday evening, the 18th ult., when a "Ladies'" night was given in the Great Hall at Cannon Street Hotel. The part-music was rendered throughout in a manner worthy of the warmest commendation, and included a new (MS.) Part-song, entitled, "Come live with me," composed by the honorary Conductor, Mr. J. H. Maunder. The vocalists were Mr. Iver McKay, Mr. E. G. Richardson, Mr. Schartau, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint; Mr. Arthur Payne (violin), and Mr. F. Upton (reciter). Mr. Maunder conducted.

At the Downs Chapel, Clapton, on March 30, the Rev. T. Vincent Tymms delivered a Lecture upon "Elijah," illustrated by music from Mendelssohn's Oratorio, sung by the chapel choir, under the direction of Mr. Charles E. Smith, Organist of the chapel, the careful rendering of the pieces giving great satisfaction, and reflected much credit upon the training of the conductor. The choir was assisted by the following soloists: Messrs. Myles Mole, W. G. Forington, Miss Hilda Coward, and Miss Anna C. Smith. Messrs. David Davies and William Bolton, R.A.M., very ably accompanied at the piano and harmonium respectively.

A Concert was given by the Bloomsbury Choral Association, at the St. George the Martyr Mission Hall, Great Ormond Street, on March 29, before a large audience. The first part of the programme was devoted to the performance of Mr. T. Mee Pattison's Cantata "The Ancient Mariner," the principal vocal parts being well sustained by Miss Mary Warner, Miss E. Cunnington, Mr. W. G. W. Goodworth, and Mr. A. Cook. The work was excellently rendered, under the conductorship of Mr. C. Iseard; Miss Katie Hebditch presiding with much efficiency at the pianoforte. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous.

On the Wednesday in Passion and Holy Week, Dr. Stainer's work "The Crucifixion" was sung by the choir of St. Mark's Church, Notting Hill, at a special service at 8 p.m. The recitatives, &c., received sympathetic treatment from the soloists, Mr. Reginald Groome and Mr. Stanley Smith, of St. Andrew's, Wells Street. The choir, ably conducted by Mr. W. A. Philpott, showed excellent training. The organ was played with admirable effect by Mr W. Tear. A feature of the service was the participation of the congregation in the hymns.

On Wednesday, the 20th ult., a Concert was given in St. Mark's Room, Notting Hill. The vocalists were Mrs. Bolton, Miss Meredyth Elliott, Miss Buchanan, Mrs. Sharpe, Miss Krohn, Mr. F. E. Choveaux, Mr. Deane, Mr. Willey, and Mr. Kingston. Mr. Choveaux contributed pianoforte solos and acted as accompanist, Mrs. F. B. Jewson accompanying the band. Two charming songs, "Baby Angels" and "One Day," both by Miss Krohn, were sung respectively by Miss Meredyth Elliott and Mr. Choveaux.

A highly satisfactory performance of Dr. Sloman's Cantata "Supplication and Praise" was given, with orchestral accompaniments, on Wednesday evening, the 20th ult., at St. Faith's Church, Wandsworth. There was a very large and attentive congregation, and the offertory was devoted to the Choir Fund. Mr. T. Carey, Organist of the Church, conducted; Mr. W. H. Weston, F.C.O., presided at the organ; and Herr Eberwein was leader of the orchestra. The solos were well sung by Mr. E. Smith and Mr. F. Swinford.

The first annual Conversazione of the St. Pancras Parliamentary Debating Society was held at the Vestry Hall, St. Pancras, on the 21st ult. The chief feature of the evening was a Concert, in which Miss Edith Oliver, Miss Ethel Campbell, Miss Norman, Mr. H. L. Fulkerson, Mr. Alfred Moore, and Mr. J. L. Phillips took part. Mr. Edward O'Brien, R.A.M., contributed two effective violin solos, and Mr. Charles Fry's elocutionary powers were displayed in two recitations, dramatic and humorous. A Smoking Concert was also given in another part of the building.

Although the Hebrew version of "God save the Queen" ("El Sh'mor Hamalko"), arranged by D. M. Davis, can scarcely be noticed in our reviewing columns, we may mention that a copy of it has been accepted by Her Majesty, and that it will probably be sung as an Anthem at any special services which may be held to celebrate the Jubilee in the Synagogues throughout the British Empire. The arranger, Mr. Davis, is Choirmaster at the new West-End and St. John's Wood Synagogues, and the composition is published by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

The St. John's Choral Society, Upper Holloway, gave a free Concert in the Gymnasium on Easter Tuesday evening, which was largely attended by the poor of the district. The programme included part-songs, instrumental solos, songs, and recitations. Mr. Henry J. B. Dart was the Conductor.

Miss Annie Matthews gave her annual Concert at Brixton Hall, on Thursday evening, the 21st ult., assisted by Madame Clara Samuell, Miss R. Crooks, Miss Grace Woodward, Miss Alice Bocquet, Mr. Harper Kearton, Mr. Henry Yates, Mr. James Budd, Mr. Robert Grice, Miss C. A. Brousil (violin), Miss Minnie Hailstone (solo pianoforte), and Mr. Turle Lee (accompanist). Miss Matthews obtained a hearty reception for Gounod's "Far greater in his lowly state" ("Reine de Saba"), and Purcell's "Nymphs and Shepherds."

The Concert at the Peckham Conservative Club, on the 23rd ult., was under the direction of Mr. C. H. Schofield. The following gentlemen assisted:—Messrs. F. Cozens, Heney, Sidney Tower, Charles Chilley, A. Weston, Donnell Balfe, A. Hubbard, and A. Moore. The instrumental part of the programme was sustained by Mr. G. T. Miles (whose harp solos were much applauded), Mr. Schilsky (violin), and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, who, besides conducting the Concert, played a Gigue in D minor, of his own composition.

The Annual Dinner of the College of Organists took place on the 18th ult. Sir George Grove presided, and made several admirable and genial speeches. He was supported by Dr. Hopkins, Dr. J. F. Bridge, Dr. Longhurst, Dr. C. Warwick Jordan, Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. Little, Messrs. M. E. Wesley, C. E. Stephens, E. H. Turpin, Hoyte, Cooper, J. Higgs, J. Turpin, &c., and among the guests were visitors from Germany, America, Norway, &c.

An excellent performance of Haydn's "Creation" was given by the Finchley Choral Society, in the Parish Church, Finchley, on March 29. The soloists were Madame Adeline Paget, Mr. W. Anstice, and Mr. J. M. Bazin, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably. The choruses were given with great precision. Mr. A. A. Yeatman, F.C.O., Organist of the Church and Conductor of the Choral Society, presided at the organ.

A Concert was given at the Mechanics' Institute, Stratford, on March 30, by Miss E. J. Golledge, assisted by Miss Clara Dowle, Miss Beatrice Golsworthy, R.A.M., Mr. H. Aldridge, and Mr. Barter, vocalists; Miss Adela Duckham, violinist; and Mr. Alaric Burton, elocutionist. The Concert was most successful in every respect, an excellent programme being well carried out.

At St. Marylebone Parish Church, during Lent, Dr. Stainer's new Sacred Cantata "The Crucifixion" was sung five times, and a selection from Gounod's "Redemption" three times. On each occasion there was a very large congregation. On Ascension Day and the Thursday following (19th and 26th inst.) Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" will be given, with organ accompaniment, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Stainer's new Cantata "The Crucifixion" was sung on Thursday in Holy Week, at a Special Service in Chester Cathedral. The work was most impressively rendered, the Precentor conducting, and Dr. J. C. Bridge presiding at the organ. The congregation numbered about 1,500 persons.

A paper on the "Rise and Development of Synagogue Music" will be read by the Rev. Francis L. Cohen, at the Anglo-Jewish Historical Exhibition, Royal Albert Hall, on Thursday, the 19th inst., at eight p.m. The illustrations will include choruses by the choir of the West London Synagogue, under the direction of Dr. C. G. Verrinder.

Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was performed at Hanover Chapel, Rye Lane, Peckham, on March 27, after the evening service. The soloists were Miss Hattie Hickling, Miss Marion La Thangue, and Mr. Bates. The choruses were very efficiently sung by the choir. Mr. Talbot ably presided at the organ throughout.

The Paddington Choral Union gave an excellent Concert, consisting of Sullivan's "Prodigal Son" and a miscellaneous selection, on Tuesday evening, the 19th ult., the soloists being Madame Clara West, Miss Annie West, Mr. J. H. Mullerhausen, and Mr. Charles Victor; Organist, Mr. H. G. Holmes; Conductor, Mr. J. H. Moon.

Dr. Joseph C. Bridge, of Chester Cathedral, has been appointed Conductor of the Bradford Festival Choral Society, in place of the late Mr. Edward Hecht.

At SS. Peter and Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Clerkenwell, on Easter Sunday, the choir rendered Mozart's Twelfth Mass with orchestral accompaniment. Mr. B. B. Barrett conducted.

An excellent Organ Recital was given at St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, on the 19th ult., by Mr. Henry J. Wood. The programme included works by Bach, Handel, Freyer, Guilmant, and Fink.

Dr. C. Villiers Stanford's setting of Lord Tennyson's Jubilee Ode, "Carmen sæculare," will be performed at one of the forthcoming State Concerts.

REVIEWS.

Blessed be the Lord, by J. F. Bridge; Behold, O God, our Defender, by F. W. Hird; Hear, O God, by A. M. Friedländer; Rejoice in the Lord, by Philip Armes; Let every soul be subject, and Lord Thou art God, by J. Stainer; Give the Lord the honour due, by Charles H. Lloyd. Jubilee Anthems. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Behold, O God, our Defender, by Sir G. Elvey. Jubilee Anthem. [Alphonse Cary.]

As a matter of course the Jubilee excitement has influenced composers, and has already affected the usually calm and placid atmosphere of the organ loft. This is not a matter for surprise or regret. The above list of names is sufficient to show that we have here to do with efforts more worthy of criticism than the loyal and patriotic songs, "with chorus," which are now being issued in such large numbers. The first named anthem bears an official cachet, as it will be performed at the ceremonial in Westminster Abbey on June 21st, and the name of the composer is a sufficient guarantee for, at any rate, excellence of workmanship. This we find, and also evidence of a desire to make the composition specially suitable to the occasion. It opens quietly enough with a chorus in the orthodox church style, quiet and unassuming, but after this has proceeded for some time there is a sudden transition from the dominant of E, to C, and the organ gives out the first phrase of the National Anthem with startling effect. A little later on the Prince Consort's choral "Gotha" appears as a canto fermo for bass solo, the chorus supplying the counterpoint. Then the original movement is resumed, and the anthem comes to a close with a second delivery of the National Anthem as before, but now in E. Nothing could be less pretentious than Dr. Bridge's anthem, and nothing more appropriate, as the musical arrangements of the Court Service are to be studiously simple. The next on our list was composed for the York Diocesan Choral Association Festival, to be held during the present month. It consists of several short movements, the composer apparently fearing to trust himself with the development of a theme either fugally or otherwise. But the writing is at once spirited and melodious, and, despite its patchiness, the anthem would be effective. No solo voices are required. Mr. Friedländer's composition is dedicated to "the Rev. Dr. Herman Adler, delegate Chief Rabbi," and has Hebrew and English words taken from the 61st Psalm, revised version. The music is not in any way remarkable, and the only charge that could be brought against it is that it is decidedly common-place. In form it resembles a rondo, a hymn-like theme occurring three times, with episodes of a freer and more varied character. The next is more elaborate than any of the foregoing. It commences with a bold and vigorous chorus, developed at considerable length, after which we have a treble solo in 9-8 time, extremely refined and melodious; and to this succeeds another chorus, more spirited and energetic than the first, bringing the anthem to a highly effective conclusion. The title-page states that it was written at the request of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, and it may fairly be said that Dr. Armes has risen to the occasion, and produced a piece worthy to take high rank among Jubilee music. The first of the two anthems by Dr. Stainer is on a smaller scale. It consists, for the most part, of phrases for solo voice or choir in unison, answered by the full chorus, and ends with the hymn "O King of kings, Thy blessing shed," set as a tenor solo, with repeats for choir and congregation. Strictly speaking, the next is not a Jubilee anthem, as it is composed for the forthcoming Sons of the Clergy Festival, but its general character fits it for inclusion in the present series, and it is emphatically one of the best efforts of its composer. After a fine and striking opening chorus, there is a beautiful tenor solo, with a highly effective accompaniment in the modern style. To this succeeds a lengthy and splendidly worked out chorus, with a good deal of free fugal writing. With this the anthem may fitly conclude on ordinary occasions, but the composer has added another short chorus leading up to the National Anthem, and no doubt this coda will be included in the celebration of the 11th inst. An anthem composed expressly for the antipodes is noteworthy on this, if on no other account. Mr. Lloyd's composition is intended for the Festival of the Christ Church Diocesan Choral Association in New Zealand this year. The writer has evidently a high idea of the capabilities of colonial church singers, for his anthem is by no means simple. It consists of two lengthy choruses with an intervening trio, all three movements showing a good deal of elaboration both in the voice parts and the accompaniment. The music looks remarkably effective, but it will need a strong body of trained singers to render it justice. The last on our list is a spirited composition in the orthodox church style. Sir George Elvey is evidently a devotee of Handel, and he has given us a capital fugal "Amen" by way of Finale. Though his music is distinctly of the old school, it is extremely well written, and shows a rare knowledge of the effects to be gained by comparatively simple and straightforward means.

The Bandmaster's Guide, Vol. II. On the Instrumentation of Military Bands. By Palgrave Simpson. [Boosey and Co.]

If this book is meant for a joke, it is a bad one, unworthy of the handsome cover; and seven shillings and sixpence is far too high a price to pay for the amusement (or vexation) involved in the perusal. If it is meant seriously, it will be a hard task for experienced men to read the contents to the end without losing all patience, and calling it anything but a Guide. For the sake of our famous military bands it is to be hoped that the principles advocated therein will not be acted upon, as it would mean assimilating their character to that of a German band, or to some of the inferior brass bands with a few clarinets added, a proceeding by which the very character of the instrumentation is destroyed. Yet this is what the proposals in the above book amount to. Let the book condemn itself; a few quotations will suffice:—

In Chap. I., page 3, the Author says: "Trumpets: it is difficult to see their general utility; . . . the trumpet has a more brilliant tone than the cornet, but this difference is hardly sufficient to justify its retention." "French Horns: . . . it is also difficult to see why natural or even valved French horns should be used in military bands" (to us it is more difficult to see why a colour-blind man should meddle with instrumentation!). "Trombones: . . . their use is limited to occasional forte passages, . . . but as trombones are necessary for orchestras, it appears to be thought necessary to retain them in military bands, so as to provide performers for the orchestra" (how considerate and kind of Her Majesty's officers!). In Chap. II., on page 32, it is proposed to dispense with second and third clarinet parts; on page 125, ditto the oboe. "Bassoons were important before the introduction of valved instruments to reinforce second and third clarinet parts, but are no longer wanted," and the author thinks they, like the trombones, are simply retained to supply orchestras! (?) We find a resumé of this nonsense in Section VI., on large reed and brass bands, page 131, where the author considers that "Oboes, tenor clarinet, bassoons, trumpets, horns, and trombones (and second and third clarinets, as per page 32) may be regarded as in a measure ad libitum, and may be placed in the category of supplementary instruments."

A great deal of the letterpress is unnecessary, and many useless repetitions occur, according to the author's own showing, page 131: "Having shown . . . having already dealt with . . . we have already dealt . . . we have already pointed out . . . it has already been mentioned . . . it has already been seen." Much space (sometimes one-half or two-thirds of a page) is wasted in numerous examples, in which two and even three bars of score are printed twice over

(Ex. 236, 240, &c.), or one bar three times over (Ex. 241). In Ex. 209 four bars are given of "Zampa" wherein the third is wanted in the second chord of the third bar, and perfect fifths occur between horn and bassoon from end of third bar into the fourth bar—a setting which is hardly likely to be that of Hérold.

On page 105 the author takes credit for "rescuing Mozart's Clarinet Concerto from oblivion by transposing it four notes lower for Cornet!" Haydn, Beethoven, and other composers have to be equally obliged to him for his considerate attention to their compositions in this book.

If any one wishes to do young Bandmasters and students a service, let him publish the scores of a few selections in Boosey's or Chappell's Journals, so carefully arranged by such experienced military Bandmasters as the Godfreys, Van Maanen, Kappey, Winterbottom, and others. Comments would be unnecessary, as the pupil would see from the scores themselves the utility of all the instruments and parts in use at present, and also when and how they may be judiciously and effectively utilised and framed into tone-pictures of the most varied kinds.

The Empire Flag. A Patriotic Song for Solo and Chorus. The words written by Stuart Reid (Victoria), and Wm. Alex. Barrett. The music composed by A. C. Mackenzie. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

England possesses a large treasury of patriotic songs, most of which deal with the principle of loyalty in the abstract. These are known chiefly for their poetry, and rarely because of the music with which many are associated. It has been stated that two only live in the minds of the people—namely, "Rule Britannia" and "God save the Queen." The first, because it ministers to the vain-glorious sentiments which all Britons feel in contemplating the advantages of their birth. The second, because they have no other musical means of expressing their adherence to the constitution of the realm, as represented by the head of the State under which they enjoy the advantages of freedom and protection. The falsity of these statements need not be made the subject of argument or defence, for all who know the literature of the country as exemplified in its songs can furnish proofs to the contrary in abundance if they are required. Additions are constantly made to the list of patriotic songs. The present year has seen many new ones inspired by the interesting occasion which is shortly to be celebrated. Dr. Mackenzie's song "The Empire Flag," is a distinct and independent creation, for while the majority of the patriotic effusions recently produced have reference to that one event, they will be no longer available when it is past, and will enjoy no more than a local popularity, while his song is of a character which may secure a permanent acceptance for it. The words repudiate the notion that the various colonies are distinct nations owing allegiance to one power, but emphasise the unity of feeling which should belong to all under the protection of the Empire flag. The music is bold, spirited, and original, and enforces the manly, earnest expression of the words. Without suggesting any common form of sequence, the melody is impressive and easy to learn. Both words and music will be found available and appropriate for all gatherings of Englishmen throughout the world, especially of those who desire to see the Empire supported in its integrity, by the hands, in the hearts, and by the voices of the people. The various habitations of the Primrose League, in particular, will find in this song a means likely to be acceptable for the support of the principles upon which they work. All loyal subjects, irrespective of the claims of party, will doubtless give it a hearty welcome.

Clergyman's Sore Throat, and Post Nasal Catarrh; Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment, for Speakers and Singers. By George Stoker. [J. and A. Churchill.]

This work, by the Surgeon to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, should be read by all whose profession compels them constantly to use their vocal organs. The author tells us in his preface that he has been tempted to write the book because the ailment of which it treats is not only easily prevented, but, if taken in time, easily cured. Chapter I. gives the definition and cause of the complaint; Chapter II. tells us how it is known—its signs and symptoms; and Chapter III. how it may be prevented and cured. Much valuable information is contained in these three short chapters; and this information is conveyed in so clear and convincing a style that we cannot too earnestly recommend the book to sufferers from even slight catarrh.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Verdi's new opera "Otello" was produced for the first time at Rome, on the 16th ult., and excited great enthusiasm, confirming the favourable impression already made in Milan. The orchestra and the artists were the same as at the first performance of the opera. Among the numbers encored were Iago's "Credo," the duet in the second act, and Desdemona's "Ave Maria." Signor Ricordi, of Milan, has just issued an édition de luxe of the opera, consisting of only one hundred copies, each being adorned by a life-like portrait of the composer.

Weber's "Oberon" is being mounted at the Paris Grand Opéra, the directors having requested M. Victor Wilder (the translator of "Die Meistersinger" and other Wagnerian librettos) to furnish a French rendering of the text. It is probable that the late Sir Julius Benedict's additional recitative will be made use of at the performance in question. "Oberon" is also likely to be included in the répertoire of the Paris Opéra Comique during the present season. The negotiations to produce "Otello" at the Grand Opéra have, it is stated, proved unsuccessful.

The first representation of Wagner's "Lohengrin" at the Eden Theatre, Paris, which was to have taken place on the 26th ult., has been postponed on account of the generally expressed apprehension that the performance would be made the occasion for riotous demonstrations. M. Lamoureux, having informed the French Government of his readiness to give up the performance if it were deemed advisable, has been told that it was considered prudent to defer it for the present. Thus "la question Lohengrin" remains still an open one, and is likely to continue in that state for some time to come.

A music festival in honour, and in the presence of M. Gounod, was held at Bordeaux last month, on which occasion "Mors et Vita" was performed at the church of Notre Dame, and "Faust" was given at the Bordeaux Opera House.

A commemorative tablet is to be affixed to the house No. 2, Rue de la Chaussée d'Antin, of Paris, where Rossini resided for many years.

A selection from Bach's "Christmas" Oratorio was given for the first time in Paris last month by the Société Nationale.

The season of the Paris Châtelet Concerts came to a close, on the 24th ult., with an enthusiastically received performance of Berlioz's "La Damnation de Faust."

The new Leipzig Stadt-Theater affords another instance of the laudable endeavours, more than once alluded to by us, of German operatic managers, to present to their audiences a variety of work emanating from different periods, and representing various styles of musico-dramatical art. Thus, at the establishment referred to, there were, during the month of March last, nineteen performances of opera, comprising fourteen different works, viz:—"Die Walküre," "Rheingold," "Der fliegende Holländer," and "Lohengrin" (Wagner); "Die Zauberflöte" and "Figaro" (Mozart); "Johann von Paris" (Boieldieu); "Robert le Diable" and "L'Africaine" (Meyerbeer); "Fidelio" (Beethoven); "Freischütz" (Weber); "Hans Heiling" (Marschner); "Nachtlager in Granada" (Kreutzer); and "Heinrich der Löwe" (Kretschmer). Assuming even moderately good representations of these operatic works, the advantages presented to the art-student by a system excluding long "runs," and based upon a catholicity of taste, are, of course, obvious.

We extract the following from a recent number of the Daily Telegraph:—"The latest catalogue issued by Leo Lippmannsohn, the great German autograph collector, contains some highly remarkable and interesting items—amongst others, a MS. Opera by the Austrian Emperor Ferdinand III.; the original score of Albert Lortzing's unpublished operetta, 'Mozart,' consisting of an overture and nine vocal numbers, with orchestral accompaniment; a chatty letter, written by Leopold Mozart to an intimate friend, and full of 'Meister Wolferl's' exploits (Wolferl was the great composer's pet name, by which his father usually designated him in familiar correspondence); and several manuscript letters and scores from the pen of the late Richard Wagner. One of the letters, addressed to his body servant, Franz Maschek, is a humorous composition, which Wagner wound up by exhorting Maschek to prove, in the execution of certain commissions entrusted to him, that he was 'instinct with the genius that should inspire a true-born valet.' This missive the composer of the Tetralogy signed 'your most obedient master, Richard Wagner.'"

Two new compositions by Johannes Brahms—viz., a Sonata for violin and pianoforte (Op. 100) and a Pianoforte Trio—were produced, for the first time, at the Leipzig Gewandhaus last month, at a Concert entirely devoted to Brahms's music.

An interesting feature was introduced into the programme of a Concert held on the 3rd ult., by the Tonkünstler Verein of Hamburg. This was in the performance of nineteen settings by different composers of Goethe's famous ballad of the "Erl-King"—viz., by Corona Schroeter (b. 1748, d. 1802); Petersen Grönland (1760-1834); Andreas Romberg (1767-1821); J. F. Reichardt (1752-1804); W. J. Thomaschek (1774-1850); H. T. Petschke (?); C. G. Reiniger (1798-1859); Fr. Otto (?); C. B. von Miltitz (1781-1845); B. Pichler (?); B. J. Klein (1793-1832); C. H. Zöllner (1792-1836); C. Blum (1786-1844); J. C. G. Löwe (1796-1869); J. Schneider (1805-1885); L. Spohr (1784-1859); M. Weyermann (1871); L. Schlottmann (1826) and, as a matter of course, Schubert's famous composition. Besides the above-named, there are numerous settings of the weird verses extant by other composers which, however, have never been published.

A Concert was announced to be given on the 28th ult., at Berlin, under the auspices of the directors of the Berlin Royal Academy of Arts, for the purpose of affording a public hearing to a Symphony and some choral compositions by Herr Stolzenberg, and an orchestral work and a Psalm for à capella chorus, by Herr Baussnern. Both these young composers are pupils of Professor Woldemar Bargiel, and the above compositions are highly spoken of by competent judges.

At the music festival to be held next month at Breslau, Herr Woldemar Bargiel's Psalm, composed on the occasion of the Emperor of Germany's eighty-fourth birthday, will be performed under the direction of the composer.

This year's music festival of the Lower Rhine, will take place during Whitsuntide, at Düsseldorf, under the conductorship of Hans Richter. Among the works to be performed, are Handel's "Joshua," two Cantatas by Bach and C. M. von Weber respectively, the "Eroica" Symphony by Beethoven, and that in C major by Schumann, the Vorspiel to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner, and the "Academic" Overture by Brahms.

At the Annual Meeting of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikverein, to be held next month at Cologne, the performance of Liszt's "Saint Elizabeth," as well as of choral compositions by Wüllner, Bülow, Rheinberger, P. Cornelius, and Bargiel, will be included in the proceedings, extending over four days, of the Society. Dr. Wüllner, the energetic Cologne Capellmeister, the successor of the late Ferdinand Hiller, will conduct the performances.

Miss Florence May gave her first Pianoforte Recital at Berlin, on the 13th ult., in the presence of several of the leading musicians of that capital. The gifted English pianist was also invited to take part in a Matinée given by the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany, and shortly after received from the Court Marshal, Count Rodolinsky, a letter accompanied by a handsome piece of jewellery, sent by their Imperial Highnesses in remembrance of the occasion.

The highly successful performances of Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Mikado," were resumed on the 9th ult. at the Krollsche Theater of Berlin, where the work continues to attract crowded audiences.

An opera, "Loreley," composed by Otto Fiebach (who is his own librettist), met with a very favourable reception on its recent first production at the Stadt-Theater of Königsberg.

An interesting and valuable collection of antique musical instruments, the property of Herr De Witt, the editor of the Zeitschrift für Instrumentenbau, is just now being exhibited at Leipzig. The collection is especially rich in specimens of the clavier kind.

It is stated in German papers that Dr. Hans von Bülow's co-operation has been secured by Herr Pollini in the conductorship of the Hamburg Stadt-Theater, one of the leading operatic institutions in the Fatherland, in conjunction with the highly efficient Herr Sucher, the husband of the well-known German primâ donna. Among the performances specially assigned to the bâton of the eminent pianist-conductor are a "cycle" of Mozart's operas, Bizet's "Carmen," and two operatic works from the classical répertoire, to be left to the choice of the Conductor. Dr. von Bülow has also entered upon an engagement to conduct a series of the Subscription Concerts, to be given at Berlin by the orchestra of the defunct Philharmonic Society of that capital during the present season; and what with similar projected undertakings elsewhere, both in his capacity of virtuoso and of Conductor, the energies of this exceptionally gifted, albeit somewhat restless artist, will be fully engaged for some time to come.

Herr Paul Prill, formerly a member of the famous Bilse Orchestra, of Berlin, has been appointed successor of Herr Carl Schröder in the Conductor's chair of the German Opera at Rotterdam.

In consequence of the recent successful production of "Die Walküre" at the Théâtre de la Monnaie of Brussels, the entire Tetralogy of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" (with M. Wilder's rendering of the German text) is to be mounted by that enterprising institution, the third drama of that series, "Siegfried," being already in course of preparation.

The successful production is reported at Ghent of a new Flemish opera entitled "De Bloemenbruid," the libretto by Emil van Goethen, and the music by Franz van Herzeele.

An International Musical Exhibition is to take place next year at Bologna, the scheme including also the performance on a large scale of church music, operas, and symphonies in illustration of the history and development of these different art-forms.

Two new operas are shortly to be produced at Milan—viz., at the Theatre Dal Verme, "Colomba," by the Maëstro Pradeglia, and at the Theatre Manzoni, "Edoardo Stuart," by Signor Cipriano Pontoglio, a barrister by profession, and already known to Italian audiences by previous operatic productions.

At the Teatro Nuovo of Florence, a new operetta, "Don Pedro di Medina," by the Maëstro Lanzini, has been exceedingly well received.

A new opera, "Giuditta," by Signor Falchi, has met with conspicuous success on its recent first production at the Apollo Theatre of Rome.

Anton Rubinstein is credited with the project of establishing a Russian national opera at St. Petersburg, at a theatre to be specially erected for the purpose.

A very curious sight was recently presented to the public in New York on the day when the box-office opened at the Metropolitan Opera House for the sale of single seats for the Adelina Patti season. The line of purchasers extended from Broadway down Fortieth Street, as far as Seventh Avenue. One day's sale of tickets amounted to 13,500 dollars.

Under the title of "Beethoveniana," a series of essays and sketches, found amongst the papers of the late Gustav Nottebohm, has just been published by the Leipzig firm of J. Rieter-Biedermann.

The publication has just been completed of Dr. Riemann's highly meritorious, and in some respects unique, "Opern Handbuch," to which reference has already been made in these columns. A third edition (revised) of the same author's "Musik-Lexikon" is in course of progress, and will shortly be reviewed by us.

Commemorative tablets, recording the residence there during the years 1848 to 1886 of Franz Liszt, have been placed against the Hofgärtnerei and the Altenburg at Weimar.

The monument erected, at Vienna, to Joseph Haydn, is to be unveiled on the 31st inst., the seventy-eighth anniversary of the death of the "father of the symphony."

At Leipzig died, at the age of seventy, Robert Schaab, organist of the Johanniskirche of that town.

Wilhelm Osterwald, the poet whose lyrics have, in many instances, been associated with the music of the greatest of living German song writers, Robert Franz, died at Mühlhausen (Thuringia) on March 27, at the age of sixty-seven.

Madame Offenbach, the widow of the celebrated composer of opéra bouffe, died last month, at Paris, where, since the death of her husband, she had spent her days in complete retirement.

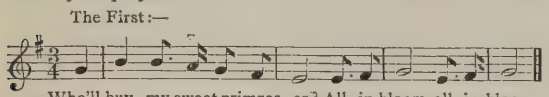
CORRESPONDENCE.

"ON MELODY IN SPEECH."

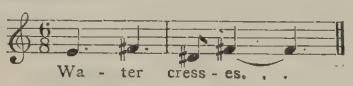
TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—At the close of your notice of Mr. Weber's paper "On Melody in Speech," you suggest that experiments be made so as to lead to a confirmation, or the reverse, of his statement, upon the precision of "the intervals observed in our speech, or in the sounds of nature." Happening to turn up an old note-book in which, when in Chelsea, I used to write melodies heard in the streets and elsewhere, I came upon the following, which are entirely at your service. I may state, at the outset, that in no case but the last were the intervals precisely true—the scope of variation in the others being not only in pitch, but in tonic relation. But the keys subjoined were the nearest to those actually employed.

The First:—

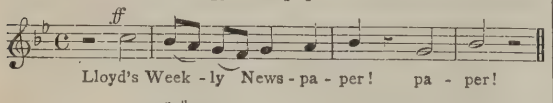


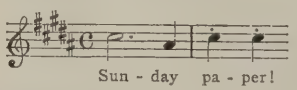
And the Second—



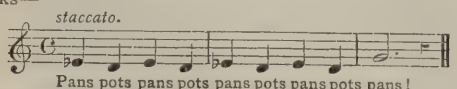
were chanted by young women. She who sang the latter had a rich alto, which imparted a fine dreamy effect to the above phrase, on her regular morning and evening rounds. The primrose-seller was, of course, a rara avis.

Of the next two, it is flattering to say that their actual tonality at all approached the true intervals; but after much listening I "averaged" the notes of these boys and jotted down their usual twangy newspaper cries as follows:—

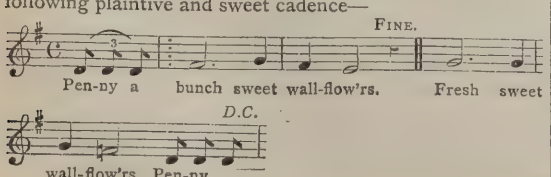




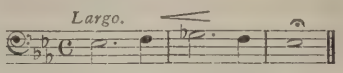
The Lloyd's paper cry always opened the Sunday solo performance; but as the boy's impatience increased, or the fear of a rival came upon him, he would intersperse the first cry with the short one in B major, repeated accelerato agitato—to the excruciation of all sensitive nerves. The next cry is remarkable chiefly for its monotony, and the terrible emphasis with which the vendor of these pots and pans marked the time by thumping his barrow with the crocks—



It was a pleasant relief to lose this in a down-street diminuendo, and be beguiled into dreams of the country with the following plaintive and sweet cadence—



But the most perfectly musical cry of this species I ever heard was at Llanfairfechan, North Wales, on a hot hazy autumn afternoon—breathlessly calm. No sound broke the stillness of the long row of houses—the very waves to the rear were hushed; when suddenly, as it were out of a boundless distance, there came a sweet cadence—swelling and falling, gradually coming nearer and nearer, till it resolved itself into this—



It was the very expression of the dreamy, fragrant, balmy warmth of the hour.

One word as to bird-songs. I fail to see how the higher notes of any of our songsters can be written at all—they are so utterly beyond the reach of true tones. I can whistle up to the higher C sharp myself, but many birds seem to have that note as a middle tone. The yellow-hammer generally sings—which the Devonshire folk say means "Little bit of bread and no cheese"—a very happy libretto, as the quality of the final note suits the sound of cheese to perfection. Frequently, however, their final note is not anything like a semitone below the reciting-note; and often, when one bird answers another, one will sing the final note just as much above the C sharp as the other sings it below. In our present condition we have no means for writing these minute shades, and I doubt much if many persons can distinguish them.

F. R. C.

[The concluding paragraphs of our correspondent's interesting letter prompt us to observe that the difficulty which he notices of writing down the higher notes of bird-songs, is applicable to the human whistle as well. We have heard persons whistle a high D sharp, which, to the best of our belief, entirely transcended the compass of the pianoforte. The instance of the squeak of a bat, which some ears cannot detect at all, will readily occur to our readers.—Ed. Musical Times.]

A QUESTION OF AUTHORSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I should be glad if any of your readers could throw some light on the curious double authorship of a Mazurka which fell into my hands only this week. We are in the present day often expected to believe that "there is nothing impossible under the sun," but I find it too hard to swallow that two composers like Chopin and Charles Mayer should have separately and individually written each a Mazurka having only a difference of key to distinguish one from the other, but being otherwise note for note alike.

The Mazurka in question begins thus—and is published by the late firm of Duncan Davison and Co., under the title—"Chopin's posthumous Mazurka, revised and edited by Sir Julius Benedict." In the Musical Supplement of July, 1882 number, of the Monthly Musical Record, published by Messrs. Augener and Co., I find the same Mazurka given as by Charles Mayer, with the title—"Souvenir de Pologne," and the key F sharp major.

From internal evidence, I am inclined to consider the latter as the true author; but, on the other hand, my confidence is somewhat shaken by the prominent support of the late Sir Julius Benedict's name to the Chopin authorship. Is it possible that Benedict was misled?

I remain, yours truly,

C. G. Padel.

Park Cottage, Park Street, The Mount, York.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

R. W.—We cannot speak with authority upon the subject contained in our correspondent's communication, and are disinclined to enter upon a long correspondence which certainly would be provoked by the insertion of the letter forwarded to us.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—The Choir of Belmont Street Church performed a selection of sacred music on the evening of March 28. There was a large audience. Besides two choruses, "And the Glory" and "Their sound has gone out" (Handel), there was an excellent selection of anthems, including "Arise! shine!" (Dr. Elvey), "Like as the hart" (Novello), "What are these?" (Dr. Stainer), and "O taste and see" (Sir John Goss), all of which were well rendered. Interspersed were solos, &c., by Mrs. J. Hunter, jun., Mrs. J. Murray, Miss C. Davidson, Miss McHardy, Miss Mitchell, Miss Wilson, Mr. G. B. Esslemont, Mr. T. Dalgarno, and Mr. J. Williamson. Mr. J. Murray conducted, and Mr. W. Morrison presided at the organ.——The Philharmonic Society gave its third Concert for the season in the Music Hall Buildings, on Tuesday, March 29, before a very large audience. The principal item was Max Bruch's Fair Helen, which suffered somewhat from the preponderance of the instruments over the voices. The solo parts were taken by Miss Mary Owen and Mr. Franklin Clive. The orchestral pieces were the Larghetto from Beethoven's D major Symphony, a Serenade by Schubert, Rossini's Overture to Semiramide, Brahms's Hungarian Dances, and the Overture to Martha, all of which were excellently played. Miss Owen and Mr. Clive also contributed songs with much success.——On Wednesday evening, the 6th ult., the Choral Union gave a selection from Mendelssohn's St. Paul, Costa's Eli, and Handel's Messiah, in the Music Hall. Miss Watson sang "But the Lord is mindful of His own" (St. Paul), and the "Evening Prayer" (Eli), in an admirable manner. The absence of any accompaniment, except that of the organ, detracted from the brilliancy of some of the choruses, and perhaps revealed certain weaknesses which would not otherwise have been so easily perceived. Mr. Kirby conducted, and Mr. Morrison presided at the organ.——A Concert was given in the Rosemount Parish Church, on Wednesday evening, the 20th ult. The chief features in the programme were a series of organ solos, by Dr. A. L. Peace, Glasgow, and the singing of a number of concerted pieces by a choir, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Herd. Amongst the compositions performed were the Prelude and Fugue on the name "Bach," a Berceuse by Guilmant, J. N. Hummel's Polonaise in C major, and the Jubilee Overture (Weber), all of which were excellently rendered. Several vocal solos were given, and one of the most effective of the choral numbers was Dr. Peace's "Magnificat."

ABERGELE.—A Concert was given on the 13th ult. in aid of the funds for the restoration of the church bells, as a local memorial of the Jubilee. The principal vocalists were Miss Wright, Miss Smith, Miss O. Jones, Miss Walton Evans, Mr. Lewis, and Mr. Matthews. Mr. Lloyd gave some trombone solos with much effect, and the Glee party, under the direction of Miss Walton Evans, sang excellently throughout; the quartet and chorus, "Rule Britannia," being especially successful. There was a very large audience.

ALLOA, N.B.—Gade's Cantata The Crusaders was the chief item in the last Concert of the season given by the Musical Association in the Corn Exchange, on Wednesday, the 6th ult. Miss K. E. Fountain (R.A.M.), Mr. Charles Banks, and Mr. A. Black were the principal vocalists. The band of twenty-five performers, led by Mr. W. H. Cole, rendered the accompaniments excellently, and the singing of the choir evinced thorough training by the Conductor, Mr. W. H. Locker. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous.

ALVA, N.B.—The newly formed Musical Association, in connection with the United Presbyterian Church, performed Van Bree's Cantata St. Cecilia's Day at its first Concert, on the 8th ult., in the Public Hall. Miss E. E. Falkner gave an artistic rendering of the solos in the Cantata, and of songs in the second part, receiving quite an ovation. Songs were also contributed by Mrs. Jarvie, Miss Cowan, and Mr. R. Graham, and several part-songs were well sung by the choir. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Dickie (harmonium) and Miss Alice Cowan (pianoforte), with taste and judgment. Mr. W. H. Locker conducted.

AMBLESIDE.—The Choral Society terminated its season on the 13th ult., with a Concert in the Pavilion, when Hiller's Song of Victory, the soprano solo excellently sung by Miss Bessie Holt, was performed with much success. In the second part of the programme vocal solos were given with much effect by Miss Holt and Miss Tolson, and Mr J. P. Johnson played two concertina pieces, which were warmly received. Mr. Shelton was the Conductor, and Mr. White accompanied on the pianoforte.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Mr. J. Buckley Thompson gave an interesting Organ Recital on Monday evening, March 28, in the Wesleyan Chapel, Stamford Street, before a large congregation. The programme was good and varied, and well calculated to display the resources of the instrument over which Mr. Thompson has complete mastery Vocal selections were well rendered by Miss Lottie Herod.

AYR, N.B.—The second Subscription Concert of the Choral Union took place on the 5th ult., before a large audience. The principal work performed was Mendelssohn's Loreley, which was rendered with considerable effect, as was also the Miserere Scene from Il Trovatore. The soloists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Mr. James Moir, Mr. McCririck, and Mr. Shirley. Mr. Hall presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Cowap at the organ. Mr. H. McNabb conducted. The Concert was considered one of the best ever given by the Choral Society.

BALTIMORE, U.S.A.—On Palm Sunday Dr. Stainer's Cantata The Crucifixion, was produced at St. Luke's Church with marked success. As in Bach's Passion, hymns are used in this composition, in which the congregation joined. Mr. John Bottomley and Mr. French, tenor and bass soloists, were thoroughly satisfactory, and the choruses, especially "God so loved the world," were finely rendered, many of the passages creating a thrilling effect upon the listeners. The church was filled in every part.

BARDSLEY, ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—On Wednesday evening, the 13th ult., a Concert was given in the large room of the Mowbray Conservative Club, by Mr. J. Greaves's Concert party. An excellent programme was much appreciated by a numerous audience. Mr. J. Greaves played several solos on the pianoforte, and also accompanied.

BASINGSTOKE.—A very successful Concert was given in the Town Hall, on the 14th ult., by Mrs. Gibson, Organist of the Congregational Church, assisted by Miss Pattie Michie, R.A.M. (vocalist), Mr. Luigi Mèo (violinist), and several local amateurs.

BEDFORD.—Much regret is felt at the retirement, from failing health, of Mr. Rose, Organist of St. Paul's Church—an appointment he has held for over twenty years. Though not originally intended for the musical profession, he has seen no less than fifty years' service as an organist in Bedford; and, both at the organ and with the choir, he has thoroughly won the respect and esteem of all with whom he has been brought into contact.

BELFAST.—On March 26, the Philharmonic Society, under the able direction of Herr Beyschlag, gave an excellent performance of Schumann's Faust (Part 3), orchestra, soloists, and choir showing throughout this arduous work the result of careful and intelligent preparation. In the second part of the programme Mr. Rudersdorff played a violoncello solo by Goltermann, and several choruses were excellently rendered.——On the 1st ult., Dvorák's Stabat Mater was given by the Philharmonic Society, in the Ulster Hall, the principal vocalists being Mrs. Hutchinson, Mdme. McKenzie, Mr. Bernard Lane, and Mr. Egbert Roberts. The band was admirable, and all the choruses were finely sung, reflecting the utmost credit upon the training of Herr Beyschlag, who conducted with his usual skill and judgment. In the second part of the programme, which was miscellaneous, a marked effect was created by Mrs. Hutchinson in Berlioz's "Absence," and by Madame McKenzie in "Fare thee well," both of which were encored.

BLACKBURN.—The Vocal Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. H. Robinson, brought its twelfth season to a close on March 31. The programme was miscellaneous. The artists were Miss Annie Lea and Mr. Iver McKay, vocalists, and Mr. Charles Reynolds (oboe), all of whom were well received. The various part-songs and choruses were rendered by the choir with much precision.——On Thursday, the 14th ult., the St. Cecilia Society closed its twelfth season with a highly successful Concert in the Exchange Hall. The principal works were Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, and Massenet's Narcissus, the vocalists being Miss Frederika Taylor, Mr. Valentine Smith, and Mr. John Nutton. The orchestra, consisting of members of Mr. Charles Hallé's band, performed the Overtures to Athalie (Mendelssohn), and The Wood Nymphs (Bennett). The programme also included solos by the principals, the motet "Ave Verum" (Mozart), and the glee "Come, bounteous May" (Spofforth). The singing of the choir throughout the Concert reflected the greatest credit upon the Conductor, Mr. Jas. H. Rooks, of Bradford. Miss Taylor made her first appearance in Blackburn at this Concert, and created a most favourable impression.

BLINDLEY HEATH, GODSTONE.—On Tuesday, the 5th ult., the members of the late choral class met in the evening to present to Mr. George Axtell (the respected schoolmaster) one of Young's double duplex reading lamps, as a token of their esteem for the genial manner in which he has always come forward to lead in musical and other entertainments.

BRIGHTON.—The members of the Sacred Harmonic Society gave the first Concert of their forty-second season, in the Dome, on Thursday evening, March 31, before a large audience. The programme comprised Beethoven's Mass in C, performed for the first time in Brighton, and Rossini's Stabat Mater. The principal artists were Miss Patti Winter, Miss Alice Gomes, Mr. A. Kenningham, and Mr. W. H. Brereton. Mr. W. Baker led the band, Mr. F. Butler, F.C.O., presided at the organ, and Mr. Robert Taylor conducted. Both works were excellently rendered, and received with the greatest enthusiasm.

BURNHAM.—A successful Concert was given on Thursday, the 14th ult., in the Town Hall. Several glees and part-songs were sung by the Burnham Choral Society, and received a very creditable rendering. The choir numbered thirty voices, under the conductorship of Mr. C. Lavington, of Bridgewater. The soloists were Miss Ford and Mr. Drayton, vocalists, and Mr. Rowe, flute. Miss Saunders played the accompaniments to the glees on the pianoforte.

BURNLEY.—The winter session of the Literary and Scientific Club, which has furnished an admirable series of instructive and entertaining meetings, was brought to a close on the 12th ult. with a Musical Soirée, given under the direction of a local violinist, Mr. George Crompton. The entertainment was appropriately entitled "An evening with the great tone poets—Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven." The performers were, first violin, Mr. Crompton; second violin, Mr. Titherington; viola, Mr. Booth; violoncello, Mr. E. Crompton; and the selections—which were given with the utmost precision, taste, and skill—were Quartet in G (Op. 54, No. 2), Haydn; Quartet in D minor (No. 2), Mozart; and Quartet in C minor (No. 4), Beethoven. Before the performance Mr. Crompton spoke briefly of the character and works of the three great composers whose pieces were in the programme.

Bury St. Edmunds.—The Choral Society gave Gounod's Messe Solennelle and a miscellaneous selection, on Thursday, the 14th ult., in the Athenæum. The principal vocalists were Madame Clara West, Mr. Ralph Dawes, and Mr. Edward Iles. Mr. Henry led the band, Mrs. Henry presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. T. B. Richardson conducted.

Calcutta.—A vocal and orchestral Concert was given by Mr. Ernest Slater, at the Town Hall, on March 10, when his Jubilee Anthem, composed for the Jubilee Service at St. Paul's Cathedral, was repeated with much success, the tenor solo being well rendered by Mr. L. E. Sanderson. Mr. Slater was assisted by several talented amateurs, and the Concer-giver's delicate touch and refined phrasing were advantageously displayed in Sterndale Bennett's Barcarole, from his Fourth Pianoforte Concerto, in which he was ably accompanied by the Viceroy's band.

Chelmsford.—The Musical Society gave an admirable performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, on March 29, at the Corn Exchange, the band and chorus numbering 100. The soloists were Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Coyte Turner, Mr. A. Kenningham, and Mr. T. Kempton. Mr. F. R. Frye, F.C.O., conducted.

Christchurch, N.Z.—A very successful Concert was given in the Lecture Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, on February 10, by Mr. F. M. Wallace, pupil of the renowned violinist, Ferdinand David, assisted by Madame Drew, Mrs. Westmacott, Mr. Frank Corbett, and Mr. Frederick Barkas, vocalists; and Mr. Arthur Towsey, pianist. Mr. Wallace, whose appearance was heartily welcomed, gave an Andante and Scherzo Capriccioso of his former master's, and at once secured the approval of the audience by his bold, masterly style, and the full, rich tones he produced from his instrument. His execution was perfect, not merely in simple passages requiring only rapid manipulation, but also in those involving complicated chords, which were produced with unfailing accuracy. Combined with this execution was a sympathetic expression which none but a true artist could give. The first part of the Concert concluded with Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 12, No. 2), played by Messrs. Wallace and Towsey. In this Mr. Wallace displayed exquisite delicacy of treatment combined with forcible expression, bringing out the beauties of each movement with consummate skill. The second part of the programme was opened by Mr. Wallace with a Sonata by Rust, a composition requiring more than ordinary skill, but the difficulties of which were most successfully overcome by the performer. Specially noteworthy were the pizzicato accompaniment to the air in the second movement, and the duet-like playing in the third. Mr. Wallace completed his triumph as a violinist by his clever execution of Vieuxtemps's "Fantaisie Caprice" (Op. 11), in which he evidenced his intimate knowledge of all the possibilities of his instrument. Mr. Towsey proved himself a most efficient accompanist, and the vocalists were received with the utmost enthusiasm in all their selections.

Cirencester.—On Tuesday evening, the 12th ult., the members of the Choral Society, assisted by full band and chorus, gave an admirable performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah at the Corn Hall. Mr. E. Brind ably conducted, Mr. E. G. Woodward, of Gloucester, was leader of the band, and the soloists were Madame Adeline Paget, Miss Eliza Thomas, Mr. Edwin J. Morgan, and Mr. Frank May. The Concert opened with Costa's arrangement of the National Anthem, and the interpretation of the oratorio which followed was in every way a marked success, reflecting great credit on the soloists, band, chorus, and Conductor.

Clackmannan, N.B.—The Tonic Sol-fa Association gave a very successful performance of Samson on Wednesday evening, March 30. The solos were rendered most satisfactorily by members of the Association. The accompaniments were well played by Miss Cummings (pianoforte) and Mr. A. Cowie (harmonium). Mr. W. H. Locker conducted.

Clare, Suffolk.—The new Choral Society, commenced in October last, under the direction of Mr. T. B. Richardson, of Bury St. Edmunds, gave its second and final Concert of the season, on the 22nd ult., in the Corn Exchange, where an excellent programme of glees, part-songs, and solos was performed, to the evident satisfaction of a large audience. A marked improvement was observable in the attention to light and shade in the various part-songs, testifying to the great care bestowed upon the practices. Songs were well sung by Miss Marler, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, and Mr. Pearson. Two pianoforte solos were contributed by Mr. W. T. Campion, and Haydn's humorous Serenade, "Maiden fair," created much amusement.

Clevedon, New Zealand.—On Wednesday, March 3, a most enjoyable Conversazione was given in the Colonial Museum to the members of the New Zealand University Senate, by the Chancellor, Dr. Hector. The musical portion was excellently rendered by Miss E. M. M'Lean and Mr. C. J. Long, vocalists; solo pianist and accompanist, Mr. Willeby Hawthorne.

Clitheroe.—The members of the Vocal Society gave a successful performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah, on the 14th ult., Miss Mitchell, Miss Zanetti, Miss Maud Yates, Mr. Turnor Grimshaw, and Mr. Hesketh Mead ably sustaining the principal parts. The choruses were rendered with much vigour and precision, all the effects of light and shade being duly observed. The orchestra was from Mr. Hallé's band, and Mr. W. H. Robinson conducted with skill and judgment.

Cupar, Fife.—A large audience assembled in the Corn Exchange, on Thursday evening, the 7th ult., when Mr. Stancliffe's choir gave selections from Handel, Hullah, Mendelssohn, Abt, &c. The choir, numbering thirty voices, was well balanced, and sang with much precision. The principal soloist was Miss Vinnie Beaumont, whose singing was greatly admired. Miss B. Brown accompanied, and also played Mendelssohn's Andante and Rondo Capriccioso. Mr. Stancliffe conducted and contributed a violin solo.

Dartford.—The last and best of the public Concerts of the Choral Association, for this season, was given at the Assembly Rooms on the 20th ult. The programme was varied and well selected, the vocal solos of Miss Ada Beck, Miss Blanche Murray, Mr. Musgrove Tufnail, and the humorous musical sketches of Mr. Sydney Spalding being warmly received. Mention must also be made of the excellent violin playing of Miss Charlotte Wilkes, and of the effective rendering of several part-songs. The Concert was ably conducted by Mr. C. Green.

Douglas, Isle of Man.—Arrangements are in progress for commencing the season at the ever-popular Derby Castle. The band will again be under the conductorship of Mr. Charles Reynolds, and several improvements are being carried out which will, it is anticipated, considerably increase the already excellent acoustic properties of the grand pavilion.

Droitwich.—On Easter Sunday a special Service was given in the Salters' Hall, in connection with the Parish Church. Mr. W. J. Wainwright sang several airs from Handel's Messiah, and organ solos, from the works of Haydn, Beethoven, and Handel, were well played by Mr. G. E. Bateman, Organist of the Parish Church, who also accompanied the vocal solos.

Dunster.—On Friday, the 1st ult., Mr. Warriner, L.Mus., &c., gave his last Organ Recital previous to his removal to London. The audience, which was a large one, seemed thoroughly to appreciate Mr. Warriner's excellent playing. The programme included Handel's Overture to Samson, Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Doric), and Guilmant's last Organ Sonata in C minor, as well as other interesting items, one of which was the slow movement (The Prison Scene) from Sterndale Bennett's Maid of Orleans Sonata.——On the 12th ult., Mr. Warriner's farewell Concert was given in the Assembly Room of the Luttrell Arms. There was an excellent choir, and an efficient string band, Mr. New (Assistant to Mr. Riseley, of Bristol), presiding at the organ. The first part of the programme was sacred, and the second secular. Handel's Organ Concerto in F, and excerpts from the standard Oratorios were given in the sacred selection, and the secular portion of the Concert contained several interesting items, including Beethoven's Overture to Prometheus, the same composer's "Sonata Appassionata," well played by Miss McCormick, and a Hungarian Dance, performed as a trio by the Messrs. Sadler (violin and cello), and Mrs. Sadler (pianoforte). Between the parts of the Concert a purse of money (representing the value of a study table, which will be purchased by the recipient in London), was presented to Mr. Warriner by the Rev. W. Hook, and acknowledged in a suitable speech.

Ealing.—An evening Concert of more than average excellence was given on Wednesday, the 20th ult., at the Lyric Hall, by Miss Lena Law and Mr. Harold Savery, assisted by Mrs. Dyke, Miss Agnes Larkcom, and Mr. Hirwen Jones (vocalists), Mr. Howard Reynolds (solo cornet), and Signor Tito Mattei (solo pianist). Mr. Charles Marshall conducted.

Eastbourne.—Mr. Henry Baillie, Organist and Choirmaster of All Souls' Church, gave two Organ Recitals in the above Church, on the 21st ult. The programme included Handel's Organ Concerto, No. 4 in F, Bach's "Giant" Fugue, and selections from the works of Batiste, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Silas, &c.

Enfield.—An excellent Concert was given by the Musical Society at the Bycullah Athenæum, on the 21st ult., the principal vocalists being Miss Agnes Larkcom, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Sidney Tower, and Mr. Franklin Clive. There was a praiseworthy attempt to give a national character to the programme by selecting works entirely from English composers of various dates. Amongst the most important items were a Jubilee "Te Deum," by Morton Latham; the Evening Hymn "O! Gladsome Light," from Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend"; Sterndale Bennett's "International Exhibition Ode" (1862); and "Song on the Victory of Agincourt," especially arranged for the occasion. The singing of the last-named work reflected the utmost credit upon all concerned, and it is to be hoped that this revival may lead to its repetition by other Choral Societies. Several solos were given during the evening by the vocalists mentioned above, which were highly appreciated. The Conductor was Mr. John C. Ward; Mr. Walter Blount presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. W. Lee Jones at the organ.

Fakenham, Norfolk.—Mr. Loraine Holloway, A.C.O., gave two Organ Recitals at the Parish Church, on Wednesday, the 13th ult. The programme, which included selections from Bach, Handel, Haydn, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Smart, Lemmens, Guilmant, Archer, and Bunnett, were ably rendered. At each Recital Mr. H. Wadsworth was the vocalist, and at the evening Recital selections from Dr. Stainer's Daughter of Jairus were well given by a choir of fifty voices.

Folkestone.—Haydn's Passion Music was sung at Holy Trinity Church, on the evenings of Thursday, March 31, and Tuesday, the 5th ult. The organ was supplemented by a string band, under the leadership of Mr. C. Gann. Mr. F. J. Dugard conducted.——On Wednesday evening, the 6th ult., Dr. Stainer's Crucifixion was given in the Parish Church with an augmented choir of upwards of eighty voices. The solos were taken by Mr. Kenningham, Mr. Kempton, and Mr. R. Sanders. The work was admirably rendered. The Rev. E. Lee presided with much efficiency at the organ, and Dr. Storer conducted in a most effective manner.——At St. Michael's Church, on Easter Sunday, there was an excellent Musical Service, and the Church was crowded in every part, the success being due to Rev. Edward Husband. In the morning the Mass was Schubert in G, accompanied by a full and most efficient band, and the organ. The evening service consisted of Husband in E (a service in every way suitable for a festival of this kind), Handel's Dettingen Te Deum, and Prout's March from Alfred.

The soloists were the Misses Bawtree, Mr. Horace Pope, and Mr. J. Consterdine. The Rev. Edward Husband and Mr. R. J. Pitt conducted, as usual, with much efficiency.——Mrs. A. Watts, Organist of St. John's Church, gave a Concert, on the 19th ult., assisted by the choir and a band of amateurs. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Dugard, Miss Greenwood, and Mr. Horace Pope. A violin duet by Weiss, played by Masters Norman and Howland, obtained a well-deserved encore. "Les Mandolines," the pizzicato Serenade for five stringed instruments, with piano, and Papini's charming "Cinderella" March, were well executed by the party of amateurs, and the part-songs equally so by the church choir.

Gainsborough.—An excellent Chamber Concert, organised by the Rev. William Wynne Robinson, was given in the Temperance Hall, on the 15th ult. The vocalists were Miss Jeanie Rosse, Miss Nellie Haas, and Mr. T. C. Royle. The great feature of the evening was the violin playing of Miss Winifred Robinson, who was ably assisted in the instrumental quartets and trios by Miss Kate Robinson, the Rev. W. W. Robinson, Mr. C. H. Allen Gill, and Mr. Arthur Godfrey. Violoncello solos were admirably rendered by Mr. Gill, and Mr. Godfrey's pianoforte solos were received with much applause.

Galashiels, N.B.—A capital rendering of The Messiah was given by the Galashiels and Selkirk Choral Unions, on March 30. Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Tomlinson, Mr. Fredericks, and Mr. Frank May were the soloists engaged, and they acquitted themselves to the entire satisfaction of the audience, Mr. May creating a special effect in "Why do the nations." The choruses were well sung by about 170 voices, and the orchestral parts were played by a good band of twenty-seven performers. Mr. Colledge, Organist of Selkirk, acted as accompanist, and Mr. Morris, Organist of St. Peter's Church, Galashiels, conducted.

Glasgow.—The second Concert of the Partick Musical Association was given in the Burgh Hall, on the 1st ult., the programme consisting of the first two parts of Haydn's Creation and a miscellaneous selection of solos and part-songs. The principal vocalists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Mr. Dunsmore, and Mr. Shirley, all of whom were well received. Miss Peters was the accompanist, Mr. G. Hopper the organist, and Mr. H. McNabb the Conductor.

Glossop.—On Tuesday, March 29, Mr. J. Buckley Thompson, Organist of Ashton-under-Lyne, gave an Organ Recital in Wesley Chapel, High Street, before a large congregation. A high class programme was rendered with marvellous skill, and received with the greatest appreciation. The vocalists were Miss Hallowell, R.A.M., and Miss Hall.

Hagley.—A Concert was given in the Hall Barn, on the 19th ult., by the Lower Hagley Glee Club, assisted by Miss Lillian Mills, Miss Melvina Field, Mr. George H. Newns, Mr. W. H. Smith (vocalists), and Mr. D. Poole (violin). An excellent programme was provided, the principal item being Anderton's Cantata The Wreck of the Hesperus, which was capitally rendered. Mr. James Harris, Organist of Hagley Church, conducted, and Mr. Ernest Harris, Organist of Clent, was an efficient accompanist.

Haughton-le-Skerne.—The members of the Choral Society, assisted by Miss Smith, Miss Spaven, Mr. F. Macey, and Mr. Percy Hutchinson, gave their second annual Concert in the Bewick Hall, on Monday, the 18th ult. The programme consisted of Cowen's Rose Maiden and a miscellaneous second part. The choir sang with taste and precision, and Mr. T. Henderson, of Darlington, their Conductor, is to be congratulated upon the excellent results of his careful training. The solos were ably rendered throughout, but special mention must be made of Miss Spaven's interpretation of the dramatic scena, "Ask of yon ruined castle"; the duet for soprano and tenor, "I know a rosebud shining"; and the baritone solo, "Where gloomy pine trees rustle." Mr. T. J. Hoggett, Organist of St. Ninian's, Whitley, presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. W. Pilkington, of Darlington, at the organ.

Hexham.—The fifth Concert of the Choral Society was given in the Town Hall, on March 31, before a crowded audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Rossini's Stabat Mater, and the second of a miscellaneous selection of songs, choruses, &c. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Tomsett, Miss Mimi Beers, Mr. C. H. Welch, and Mr. A. Lohmeyer, all of whom were highly efficient. The choruses were sung by a choir of nearly 200 voices with good effect, particularly "All we like sheep" and the "Hallelujah" from The Messiah. The band, which consisted of twenty-two performers, under the leadership of Messrs. J. H. Beers and W. Magall, was everything that could be desired. Mr. Richard Seaton admirably performed his duties as accompanist, and the Concert was conducted by Mr. James Kirkley, honorary Conductor of the Society.——The annual sacred Concert was held in the Congregational Church on Good Friday. There was a large audience. Farmer's Oratorio Christ and His Soldiers was given by a chorus of sixty voices, assisted by Miss E. Thompson, Mrs. Sutherland, Mr. E. J. Gibbon, and Mr. W. Lyall. The performance was a great success, and reflected much credit upon the able Conductor, Mr. Richard Seaton. Miss P. Hope (pianoforte) and Master N. W. Robson (organ) performed their duties in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

High Wycombe.—On Saturday afternoon, the 16th ult., Mr. J. G. Wrigley, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gave a Pianoforte Recital in the Town Hall. A well selected programme was admirably rendered.——The last Concert of the Choral Association was given in the Town Hall, on Monday evening, the 18th ult. There was a large audience, and the performance throughout was remarkably good. The principal part of the programme consisted of selections from Sullivan's Light of the World. The solo vocalists were Miss Catherine Penna, Miss Eliza Thomas, Mr. Walter Clinch, and Mr. Robert Grice; Conductor, Mr. J. G. Wrigley, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Oxon. The second part of the programme included Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, played by Mr. Wrigley, and songs, effectively rendered by Mr. Clinch and Mr. Grice.

Hurstpierpoint.—On Thursday, the 21st ult., the Choral Society gave its final Concert of the season in the Music Room. The work performed was Gaul's Holy City, under the conductorship of Mr. F. J. Karn, Mus. Bac., Cantab. The soloists were Mrs. Payne, Miss Campion, Miss Maud Chart, the Rev. E. E. Baker, and the Rev. J. H. Bebbington. All the numbers were well rendered, some being excellently given. Especially must be noticed the good quality of the voices in the more extended choruses, the parts coming in with great clearness and precision. Miss White and Mr. B. A. Cogswell, A.C.O., acted most efficiently at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively.

Jedburgh.—A performance of Farmer's Oratorio Christ and His Solaiers was given in the Corn Exchange, on Thursday evening, March 31. The accompaniments were efficiently played by a small orchestra. Mr. R. Hartley presided at the harmonium, and Mr. James A. Crapper, Organist of the Parish Church, conducted.

Keighley.—The Musical Union gave a very successful performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah, in the Mechanics' Institute, on March 29, with a band and chorus numbering 300 performers. The principal vocalists—Miss Adelaide Mullen, Miss Margaret Davis, Mr. Kendal Thompson, and Mr. Frank May—were highly efficient in the solo music, Mr. Frank May sustaining the part of the Prophet with marked ability. The choruses were magnificently sung by the choir, and the band, led by Mr. J. Harmer, of Manchester, played excellently. Very great credit is due to Mr. W. H. Summerscales for his admirable training of the choir and intelligent conducting of the performance.

Kendal.—A Concert was given in St. George's Hall, on Thursday, the 14th ult., in aid of the New Market Hall. The vocalists were Miss Alma Hallowell, Miss Florence Hallowell, Mr. C. Blagbro', and Mr. J. S. Metcalfe, all of whom were highly appreciated and warmly applauded. Mr. J. S. Winder played on the pianoforte Rubinstein's "Barcarole," "The Harmonious Blacksmith," and Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz," with much refinement and finish, and joined Mr. J. P. Johnson (concertina) in duets for the two instruments by Grieg and Gounod.

Kilmarnock, N.B.—A numerous audience assembled in Winton Place Church, on Monday evening, the 18th ult., to hear a miscellaneous Concert of sacred music by the choir, under the conductorship of Mr. W. Newsome, Organist and Choirmaster of the Church. The solo vocalists were Madame McKenzie and Mr. J. Gilchrist. Amongst other items by the choir deserving of special commendation may be mentioned, Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" and "Happy and blest," Spohr's "As pants the hart," and Mozart's "Ave Verum," all of which were rendered in a truly artistic manner. Mr. J. Wilson, who acted as Organist, gave a masterly and spirited performance of Mendelssohn's Organ Sonata, No. 2.

Kincardine-on-Forth, N.B.—The Clackmannan Tonic Sol-fa Association gave a Recital of Samson, in the Parish Church, on the 22nd ult. The solos and choruses were rendered in an excellent manner. Miss Cummings presided at the piano and Mr. A. Cowie at the harmonium. Mr. W. H. Locker conducted.

Lancaster.—On Tuesday evening, the 19th ult., the members of the Choral Society concluded their season with a performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah. The principal vocalists were Miss Bristow, Miss Wakefield, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Watkin Mills. The band was principally composed of members of Mr. Hallé's orchestra, and Mr. F. Dean conducted.

Leslie, Fife, N.B.—The Musical Association in connection with Trinity U. P. Church gave a performance of a selection from The Messiah, on the 21st ult. The soloists were Misses Aitken, Ogilvie, and Ritchie; Messrs. Kirk, Belford, Ogilvie, Smith, and Stewart. Mr. Birrell conducted, and the accompanists were Miss Henderson (pianoforte) and Miss Livingstone (harmonium).

Leytonstone.—On Wednesday, the 20th ult., a Concert was given by the Choral Society. The choir numbered about fifty members, and their singing evidenced not only careful training but much musical ability. The principal vocalists were Miss Clara Dowle and Mr. Sydney Herbert, and Miss Adela Duckham gave violin solos, which were received with rapturous applause. Mr. Riding, F.C.O., and Miss Dakin were the accompanists, and Mr. J. W. Ullyett conducted.

Llandovery.—On Tuesday and Thursday evening of Passion week, and on Good Friday evening, Stainer's Cantata The Crucifixion was very creditably rendered by the choir of the Parish Church.

Maidenhead.—The Philharmonic Society gave its final Concert of the season in the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 19th ult. The programme was miscellaneous, and included a selection from Sir Arthur Sullivan's Light of the World. The principal artists were Miss Catherine Penna, Miss Eliza Thomas, Mr. Walter Clinch, and Mr. Robert Grice; Conductor, Mr. J. G. Wrigley, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Malta.—A special service was held at St. Paul's Collegiate Church on the afternoon of Good Friday, at which Gaul's Passion Music was sung by the choir, augmented for the occasion, and trained by the Rev. C. J. Corfe, Chaplain of H.M.S. "Alexandra," and Mr. W. S. Robinson, B.A., the Organist of the Church. A very large congregation assembled to hear Gaul's fine music, which was rendered on the whole very satisfactorily, the instrumental parts being supplied by the string band of the Shropshire Light Infantry, supplemented by the organ.

Mansfield.—An excellent rendering of Handel's Samson was given by the Harmonic Society, on the 13th ult. The soloists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Mitchell, Mr. Dunkerton, and Mr. Bingley Shaw, and Mr. Bonser conducted.

Masham, Yorkshire.—Jensen's Feast of Adonis and a miscellaneous selection was sung by the members of the Musical Society, on the 14th ult. Miss Vinnie Beaumont and Mrs. Longbottom were the soloists; Mr. Watson conducted. The programme was well rendered.

Newport, Mon.—An Organ Recital was given at St. Mark's, on Friday evening, the 15th ult., by Dr. Warwick Jordan, Organist of St. Stephen's, Lewisham. There was a large congregation, and the Offertory produced a very satisfactory addition to the Building Fund of St. Mark's Schools, in aid of which the Recital had been arranged.

Northampton.—The members of the Choral Society gave their last Concert of the season, on the 14th ult., when Barnett's Cantata, The Ancient Mariner, was performed. The solo vocalists were Madame Adeline Paget, Miss Josephine Cravino, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. Henry Cross. Mr. A. W. Warren led the band, Mr. R. W. Strickland presided at the organ, and Mr. Brook Sampson, Mus. Bac., conducted. The Cantata was followed by a miscellaneous selection. The Concert was one of the most successful of the series.——There was a large audience at the Corn Exchange, on Sunday evening, the 17th ult. The band, under the conductorship of Mr. A. Owen, of Stalybridge, performed the Kyrie and Gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, and a Fantasia entitled "Lyric Garland" by H. Round, concluding with the "Hallelujah" Chorus. Cornet solos were played with much effect by Mr. Owen, vocal pieces were contributed by Miss Bates and the Rev. A. H. Cole-Hamilton, and Mr. Brook Sampson gave an organ solo.

Northfleet.—On Palm Sunday and Good Friday evenings, Stainer's Crucifixion was given in the Parish Church, under the direction of Mr. J. Carter Jenner, the Organist. The choir was supplemented by members of the Northfleet Choral Union, and numbered between fifty and sixty voices. The Cantata was rendered in a most efficient manner. The solos were effectively sung by Mr. Maxwell Tod, Dr. Tipple, the Vicar, and Mr. F. Farr. Large congregations assembled on each occasion. The services were concluded respectively by Guilmant's "Marche Funèbre et Chant Seraphique" and Chopin's "Marche Funèbre," both being performed by the Organist.——A performance of Mendelssohn's Athalie was given, on the 18th ult., by the Gravesend and Milton Choral Association, under the direction of Mr. C. R. Green. The solo vocalists were Miss Eleanor Farnol, Miss Edith Marriott, and Miss Josephine Cravino, all of whom rendered the music entrusted to them with much ability, the illustrative verses being declaimed with dramatic force by Mr. Charles Fry. The choruses were very efficiently sung by the choir, the balance of voices not being, however, so even as might have been desired, owing, it is believed, to the defection of some of the members at this Concert. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous, each of the artists named contributing songs, Miss Edith Marriott especially being warmly encored in "Were we lovers then," by Hope Temple. This lady also appeared in the capacity of a composer, and her Trio, "She is mine," proved her ability as a creative as well as executive musician. A hearty encore was given to Mr. Charles Fry for his recitation of Tennyson's Ballad, "The Revenge," and the reciter responded with a short humorous recitation. Very efficient aid was rendered throughout at the harmonium and pianoforte by Mr. A. W. Moss and Mr. Howard Moss. Mention should be made of Mr. Fearn Clarke, to whom the success of the general arrangements is due.

North Walsham.—On Wednesday, the 13th ult., the members of the Amateur Musical Society gave their annual Easter Concert in the Church Rooms. The programme commenced with a part-song, "Awake, O happy nation," followed by the song "The Changeling" (Mr. Harry Stubbs); song, "Alla Stella confidente" (Mrs. John Wilkinson), with violin accompaniment by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre; and aria "Roberto tu che adoro" (Miss Evelyn Yates). Macfarren's Cantata May Day was then given, the solo portion being effectively rendered by Miss Yates, and the choruses sung with much precision by the members of the Society. The second part opened with a part-song, "Off to Sea," by W. W. Pearson, written for the Society. This part-song, which is a bright and pleasing composition, was conducted by the composer, and was very well received by the audience. Songs were contributed by Mrs. John Wilkinson, Miss Yates, and Mr. Stubbs; a violin solo, by Mr. Noverre, and Mendelssohn's part-songs "Praise of Spring" and "Remembrance" were well given. The National Anthem, to Jubilee words, ended the Concert. Mr. Lain (Organist of St. Stephen's, Norwich) accompanied on the pianoforte, and Mr. Dixon on the harmonium. Dr. Horace Hill very efficiently performed the duties of Conductor.

Nottingham.—The members of the Sacred Harmonic Society closed a most successful season with a social re-union of members and their friends, at the Mechanics' Hall, on the 18th ult. A miscellaneous programme was excellently rendered. The artists were Miss Honeybone and Mr. Adcock (vocalists), Miss Cantelo, A.R.A.M. (pianist), Mr. Henry Farmer (violinist), Mr. T. L. Selby (violoncello), and Mr. Houseley (organ). The great feature of the evening was the pianoforte playing of Miss Cantelo, and Mr. Farmer's violin solos were received with hearty applause.

Oxford.—On the evening of Friday, the 1st ult., after the choir practice at St. Clement's, Mr. Bullard, addressing Dr. T. W. Dodds, Organist of Queen's College and St. Clement's Church, in the name of the choir, mentioned the great satisfaction they all felt at the successful recital of his Oratorio, Hezekiah, at the Sheldonian Theatre on March 2, and alluded to the uniform courtesy and kindness they had always received from him during the fourteen years he had been organist of St. Clement's Church and their choirmaster, and the friendly intercourse they had so long enjoyed. He then presented him with a Mus. Doc. silk gown, and placing it over his shoulders, expressed the great pleasure he had in doing so, and hoped he would live many years to wear it in the enjoyment of health and happiness. The present was acknowledged by the recipient in a graceful and appropriate speech.

Parramatta.—An Australian work of important character was produced at the Town Hall, on February 22. Mr. J. Churchill Fisher's Cantata, The Emigrants, the composition in question, has undoubted merit musically, but is wedded to a weak libretto, if we may credit the critiques of the local press. Both the solos and choruses are spoken of with warm words of praise, and the success of the work with the audience was most decisive. The principal vocalists were Miss M. A. Shipway, Miss Moss, Mr. J. M. Callaghan, Mr. L. J. Ferguson, and Mr. W. E. Davies. Miss Emma Fisher presided at the pianoforte and Mr. Arthur Massey at the organ.

Peebles, N.B.—A new organ, with two manuals and twenty-four stops, built by Mr. A. Gern, London, and presented to the new Parish Church by Messrs. Thorburn, was inaugurated by a Recital on the evening of March 24. Mr. Methuen, Greenock, presided at the instrument, and the church choir was conducted by Mr. J. Welsh Leith, Organist of the Church. Mendelssohn's Motett "Hear my Prayer," and various other pieces were rendered with credit to all concerned. Since the introduction of instrumental help in the services at the above church, it has become quite noted throughout the district, Mr. Leith having by earnest and painstaking work effectually solved the difficult problem of attaining really good congregational singing.——The members of the Choral Society gave Bennett's May Queen, on March 29, before a crowded audience. The solos were sung by Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Mr. Gledhill, and Mr. Steel, Mrs. Duthrie taking the small part of the Queen. The second part of the Concert, which was miscellaneous, included a violin solo, played by Mr. Dambmann. Mr. John Tait conducted.

Peel, Isle of Man.—On Good Friday Dr. Stainer's Cantata The Crucifixion was sung in the New Church by a choir of upwards of seventy voices, consisting of the New Church choir and members of the Douglas and Peel Choral Societies. The church was crowded, and the performance in every way a great success. The solos were taken by Mr. J. Bregazzi and Mr. J. Clucas. Great credit is due to the Organist, Miss Wood, for the able manner in which the work was rendered.

Pelton, Durham.—The Easter Day services at Holy Trinity Church were full choral. At 7.30 a.m. there was a choral Celebration, when the choir sang Douglas's Communion Service. At the Evening Service the anthem was Hopkins's "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" After the blessing carols were sung, followed by the "Hallelujah" Chorus. The choir, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. Wilkins, sang throughout with remarkable taste and enthusiasm. Mr. Harold Wilkins presided at the organ.

Portmadoc.—The Choral Society gave its annual Oratorio Concert on Friday evening, the 1st ult., in the Assembly Room. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, Miss H. Davies, Miss E. A. Jones, Miss A. J. Williams, Eos Morlais, and Mr. Bennett Williams. The work selected was Handel's Judas Maccabæus, and the performance was a success both musically and financially. Mr. Theodore Lawson led the band, and Mr. John Roberts conducted.

Reading.—On Wednesday, the 19th ult., the Orpheus Society presented a testimonial, consisting of a handsome Secretaire, Writing Table, and illuminated address, to the Conductor, Mr. F. J. Read, on the occasion of his appointment to the Organistship of Chichester Cathedral. Various other societies of the town joined in subscribing for the testimonial. A short programme of glees, &c., was executed by members of the Society.

Selkirk.—The Galashiels and Selkirk Choral Unions gave a performance of The Messiah on March 31 in the Volunteers' Hall. The solos were effectively sung by Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Tomlinson, Mr. C. Fredericks, and Mr. Frank May. The work was very creditably rendered. Mr. Morris, of Galashiels, conducted.

Shanklin, I.W.—The annual Concert of Mrs. Bishop took place at the Literary Institute on the 13th ult., before a large audience. Mrs. Bishop—whose pianoforte playing was much admired—was assisted by Miss Eliza Thomas, Miss Ada Paterson, Mr. Sidney Tower, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail. The Ventnor Volunteer Orchestral Band lent efficient aid during the Concert.

Shaw, near Oldham.—On Good Friday evening a performance of Dr. Stainer's new work, The Crucifixion, was given in the Church of the Holy Trinity. The solos were taken by Messrs. Stott, Coupe, Whitworth, Bickerstaff, Sladen, and Clegg, and the congregation heartily joined in the hymns. The whole performance reflected great credit on Mr. Bostock, the Organist and Choirmaster, who undertook the labour of training the choir at a very short notice, and also accompanied the singing with much skill.

Sheffield.—A lecture on "Liszt: as Man, Composer, and Virtuoso," was given on the 4th ult., in the Cutlers' Hall, by Mr. Alfred J. Parkes. The lecturer gave a short sketch of Liszt's youth, referred to his acquaintance with Chopin, spoke at length of his friendship with Wagner, of his visit in 1838 to the Hungarian gipsies. He referred also in terms of the highest praise to Mr. Walter Bache, whose influence has done so much to make Liszt's music popular in England. The illustrative music was rendered by the lecturer, assisted by Miss Parkes and Mr. D. Parkes, jun.

South Harting.—The annual Concert of the South Harting Church Glee Club was given in the School Room, on the 14th ult., and was well attended. The glees were excellently rendered, and solos were given by Madame Isabel George, Miss Muriel Rayson, Mr. Vivian Bennett, and Mr. Robert George. One of the principal items was the violin solo of Mr. Edward King. Mr. Robert George conducted.

Southsea.—On the 13th ult. the Ladies' String Band gave a Concert at Sandringham House, in aid of the funds of the South Coast Medical and Surgical Home; and, assisted by one or two vocalists, the entertainment proved in the highest degree interesting. Not only was there a perfect obedience to the bâton of Mr. C. Behr, the Conductor, but the works performed, including selections from Rossini, Haydn, Stanislaus, and other masters, were played in a style which showed that the fair executants had acquired a complete control over their instruments, and an accurate idea of the conceptions of the composers.——A Chamber Concert was given in the same building on the 15th ult., by Mr. Charles Behr (R.C.M., Leipzig), and proved one of the most successful attractions of the Easter week. In the first part the selections from Mozart's Twelfth Mass and Gounod's Messe Solennelle gave an admirable opportunity to the members of Mr. Behr's Choral Society to display the training to which they had been subjected. The soloists were Miss Jessie Royd, Mr. George Sylvester, and Mr. George Willoughby (pupil of Mr. Behr), all of whom were warmly received, several encores being awarded. Mr. Behr had a recall in a pianoforte solo by Mendelssohn, and also proved himself equally skilful in the violin and piano duet played with Miss Behr.

Stonehaven.—The members of the Choral Union gave their second Concert this season, on the 13th ult. The programme, which was miscellaneous, included Boieldieu's Caliph Overture, by the orchestra; Boccherini's Minuet for quintet strings and pianoforte, and a "Miniature" (Moszkowski) for the pianoforte. Miss Emilie Smith (of Aberdeen) was very successful in all her songs. The orchestra and chorus numbered about seventy. Mr. James Wood (of Aberdeen) conducted, and Mr. Herbert Westerby was accompanist and solo pianist.

Stroud.—Dr. Stainer's Crucifixion was given in Holy Trinity Church, on the evening of Good Friday, by a chorus of seventy voices. The principal vocalists were Mr. J. Wright and Mr. T. Brandon. Miss Ada E. Knee ably presided at the organ, and Mr. T. Hackwood, A.C.O., conducted. The work was excellently rendered, the unaccompanied chorus "God so loved the world" creating a marked effect.

Sutton-in-Ashfield.—On Easter Tuesday a fine performance of Handel's Samson was given in the National Schools by the combined Harmonic Societies of Sutton and Mansfield, under the patronage of the Duke of Portland. The principal vocalists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Mitchell, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. Bingley Shaw. The band and chorus of 170 performers was under the conductorship of Mr. A. H. Bonser.

Sutton, Notts.—The Harmonic Society gave Handel's Samson, on the 12th ult., with Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Mitchell, Mr. Dunkerton, and Mr. Bingley Shaw as solo vocalists. There was a good band and chorus of 150 performers, who were ably conducted by Mr. A. Bonser; and Mr. Pickerill was leader of the orchestra.

Teignmouth.—The members of the Choral Society gave their second Concert on Tuesday, the 19th ult., at the Assembly Rooms. Although the Society has only been in existence for six months, the Conductor, Mr. T. Roylands-Smith (Organist of St. Mary's Church, Torquay, and Diocesan Choirmaster), must be congratulated on the precision with which the choral works were given; whilst among the soloists Mr. Wills specially distinguished himself by his rendering of Handel's "Why do the nations?" But one of the principal features of the evening was the solo playing of Mr. T. H. Wright, the eminent harpist, whose delicate touch and clear tone were well displayed in two Rêveries of his own composition, and an arrangement by John Thomas of the Welsh melody "Come to battle." The programme included Handel's Zadok the Priest, and Dr. Stanford's Cantata The Revenge. Miss Bertha Langley presided at the piano, and Mr. J. Pridham at the organ. The band was composed of local amateurs, who played for the first time in connection with the Choral Society.

Thornbury, Gloucestershire.—On the 13th ult. Haydn's Creation was given in the church by the choir, assisted by a few friends. The chorus numbered about fifty voices. The Oratorio was conducted by Dr. Charles Chambers, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and his brother, Mr. John T. Chambers, of Thornbury, presided at the organ.

Wallingford.—An excellent Concert was given in the Corn Exchange, on the 13th ult., by the members of the Philharmonic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. J. S. Liddle, Mus. Bac. The solo vocalists were Miss Katherine James, Mr. J. C. Allen, and Major Carter. A well-selected programme was excellently rendered, Mr. Liddle's violin solos being the chief features of the evening. Mr. Eugene Dubrucq contributed a solo on the oboe, which was enthusiastically received. Mr. F. A. Clarke presided at the pianoforte.

Watlington, Oxon.—On Easter Day, the music selected for the eight o'clock Choral Celebration, was Woodward in E flat, the Rev. A. L. Pitman being the celebrant. At Matins the Te Deum was sung to a chant-service by Boyton Smith, and at Evensong the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis to a setting by Dr. Bunnett in A. Mr. F. Clark accompanied on the organ, and after Evensong played Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus. The result must have been gratifying to the Rev. Basil S. Carter, the vicar, who is doing a good work here.

Wellingborough.—An excellent rendering of Dr. Stainer's St. Mary Magdalen was given on Good Friday at the Congregational Church. The principal vocalists were Miss Katherine James, Miss Humphries, Mrs. Huckson, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, and Mr. Jos. Farey, all of whom were highly efficient, Miss James's voice (in the miscellaneous selection) being heard to much advantage in Gounod's "For ever with the Lord." The chorus was composed of the Congregational Church choirs. Mr. W. W. Starmer, Medalist R.A.M., accompanied on the organ, and Mr. Sampson Tipson was an efficient Conductor.

Westbury-on-Severn.—The last Concert for the season of the Choral Society took place at the village schoolroom, on March 31, before a numerous audience. The most important feature in the programme was a sacred Cantata, entitled Daniel, composed by Mr. Roland Mott, which was excellently rendered and warmly received. The solo vocalists were Miss H. McIlquham, Miss Spackman, and Mr. Denbigh Cooper, the Misses Jarvis and A. Cadle, and Mr. H. Cadle assisting in the concerted pieces. The work was conducted by the composer. The second part of the Concert, in which Mr. H. Cadle was Conductor, contained an excellent miscellaneous selection of sacred vocal music.

Wigan.—The Trinity College Local Choir, conducted by Mr. C. W. Mortimer, performed Judas Maccabæus in the Drill Hall, on the 18th ult. The work was well rendered by about 140 performers, the band having been augmented by members of Mr. Charles Hallé's orchestra from Manchester. Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Monks, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. McClure, were the soloists. Mr. Newell acted efficiently as Organist.

Wimborne.—On Easter Tuesday, the Wimborne Minster Orpheus Quartet gave its first evening Concert in the Corn Exchange, assisted by Mrs. Cecil Newling (vocalist), Mr. Bertoncini (violin and flute soloist), Mr. J. Pomeroy (violoncello soloist), Mr. J. Whitehead Smith, R.A.M. (Organist of Wimborne Minster), and Mr. H. J. Eaton (Organist of St. John's, Wimborne). The programme was well selected, and the Concert one of the most successful, from a musical point of view, that has been given in Wimborne for some time. The glees were admirably rendered, and Mrs. Newling's excellent voice was heard to great advantage in all her songs. Mr. Bertoncini and Mr. J. Pomeroy also won rapturous applause for their masterly performances on the flute and violoncello respectively. The most important and interesting item in the programme was Mozart's Quartet in G minor, which was admirably rendered by Messrs. Bertoncini, J. Whitehead Smith, J. Pomeroy, and H. J. Eaton.

Winchester.—The fourteenth season of the Choral Society was brought to a close on Tuesday evening, March 29, by a most successful performance, in the Guildhall, of the Hymn of Praise and Rossini's Stabat Mater. The solo vocalists were Miss Edith Stow, R.A.M., Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Chilley, and Mr. Tufnail. The band was led by Mr. Rowland; Mr. Searle, the energetic hon. sec., acted as accompanist, and Mr. Charles Gamblin conducted.

Woodford, Essex.—Dr. Stainer's Cantata The Crucifixion, was given in All Saints' Church, Wood Wells, by the members of the Choir, on Monday, Wednesday, and Good Friday evenings in Holy Week. The singing of the choir displayed much care and religious feeling for the sentiment of the text. The solos were well rendered by Mr. J. T. Page, and the vicar, Rev. N. R. Fitzpatrick. The music was under the direction of the Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. H. Bond.

Worcester.—An ornate musical Service was made a special feature at the Easter Sunday Festival, on the 10th ult., at the Church of St. Stephen, Barbourne. Beside the usual choir and organ, a band of sixteen instrumentalists was stationed in the chancel, to assist in giving a more effective rendering of the service. The early celebration of Holy Communion, at 8.30, was attended by a large body of communicants, the service used being the Rev. H. H. Woodward's in E flat. The usual morning service was opened by the processional hymn "Jesus lives!" the full band and organ being used in the last two verses; Te Deum and Jubilate, Sullivan in D; Anthem, "If we believe that Jesus died," Bunnett; Kyrie, Hiles in G; and the Communion Service, Woodward in E flat. At the evening service the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were Winchester in F; and the Anthem the same as in the morning. During the offertory in the morning, the first and third movements of the "Lobgesang" Symphony were given with full orchestra. After the Benediction at evening service, Sullivan's Te Deum was again rendered, and as a concluding voluntary the "Cornelius" March (Mendelssohn) was played, the whole of the large congregation remaining till the end. This was one of the most successful services ever given in Worcester. Mr. W. Box, A.C.O., presided at the organ during the day, and the Organist and Choirmaster of the Church (Mr. Stanley James) conducted.

Worksop.—At the Criterion Hall, on the 14th ult., the members of the Cricket Club gave their annual Concert which was, as usual, a great success. The principal vocalists were Mr. Bingley Shaw and Mr. Longmore, assisted by several ladies and gentlemen, and the Southwell Glee Union; solo pianoforte and accompanist, Miss Clark.

Yiewsley.—The Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Davies, gave a Concert on the 14th ult. The artists were Miss Tomlinson, Mrs. Andrews, Miss Amy Becket, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Willis, and Mr. Stromquist, vocalists; accompanist, Miss Becket. Violin solos were contributed by Miss Baudèt, and pianoforte solos by Mr. English.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. William H. Fenney, Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Middletown, Conn., U.S.—Mr. George J. Bennett, Organist and Choirmaster to Brompton Parish Church.—Mr. Edward J. K. Toms, Organist and Choirmaster to Christ Church, Ealing, W.—Mr. William G. West, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Stephen's, Haggerstone.—Mr. Douglas Redman, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Brixton.—Mr. James Edward Stack, Organist and Choirmaster to Woodgrange Wesleyan Chapel, Forest Gate, E.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. F. Winton, Choirmaster to St. John the Baptist, Kensington.—Mr. Broughton Black (Baritone), to St. Paul's Cathedral.—Mr. Frederick Barrass (Alto), to Hereford Cathedral.—Mr. Guest (Tenor), to St. Saviour's, Hans Place, Belgravia.

DEATHS.

On March 31, at Winchester, Eliza, the wife of Alfred Conduit, in her 64th year.

On the 7th ult., at his residence, Ladbroke Terrace, Notting Hill, Robert Cocks, in the 90th year of his age.

ELY CATHEDRAL.—LAY CLERK.—TENOR WANTED. Stipend, £80. Pension on retirement. One year of Probation. Apply to the Rev. The Precentor, The College, Ely.
Ely, April 26, 1887.

MR. JAMES SAUVAGE begs to announce that he is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Opera, Concerts, &c. All communications to be addressed, 21, Poplar Grove, West Kensington Park, W.

MR. VAUGHAN EDWARDES receives PUPILS (Singing), Tuesdays and Thursdays, and by arrangement, at 84, New Bond Street, W., where letters may be addressed for terms, &c.

CHORISTER.—WANTED, to PLACE a BOY with good voice in Choir, where he would receive education. Address, stating terms, to L. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

BARITONE.—Good Sight Reader (Ely Cathedral training) seeks a CHOIR APPOINTMENT in London or suburbs. Apply to Chorister, 29, Great George Street, Westminster.

SOLO BASS WANTED (£20), Christ Church, Lancaster Gate. Apply, James Bates, Choirmaster, Holy Trinity School, Paddington.

WANTED, CHOIRMASTER, to work with efficient Organist, Train Boys and Mixed Choir, &c. Church service in morning. Attendance twice Sundays and week-day evening. Address, stating experience, references, and terms, &c., Mr. C. A. Barrett, Stonard House, Stamford Hill, N.

DURING THE LAST MONTH

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

SCHUMANN.—"Woman's Love and Life" (Op. 42). A Cycle of Songs written by A. VON CHAMISSO. Edited and translated by LADY MACFARREN. 1s.

LLOYD, CHARLES H.—"The Longbeards' Saga." Chorus for Male Voices, with Pianoforte Obbligato. Words from Charles Kingsley's "Hypatia." 1s. 6d.

BRADFORD, JACOB, Mus.D., Oxon.—"The Song of Jubilee." A Thanksgiving Cantata. For Solo Voices, Chorus, Orchestra, and Organ. 2s.

JUBILEE.—A Service of Praise and Thanksgiving. Composed and arranged by J. STAINER, Mus. Doc. 1s. 6d.

ADLAM, FRANK.—(in F). A complete and easy musical setting of the Office of the Holy Communion. 6d.

BILL, C. MILTON, A.C.O.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Chant Service. 2d.

BROWN, ARTHUR HENRY.—"Missa Cœlestis." The Order of Holy Communion. 1s.

GREY, CHARLES J.—(in A flat). Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. 3d.

PRIOR, GEORGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.—Thanksgiving Te Deum, composed for the Services held during the celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee in St. George's Church, Ramsgate. 8vo. 6d.

ARMES, PHILIP, Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous." A Festival Anthem for Solo and Chorus. 8vo. 6d.

SMITH, THOMAS.—"He set the royal crown upon her head." Jubilee Anthem. 3d.

STAINER, J.—"Lord, Thou art my God." Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1887. 8vo. 8d.

BRIDGE, JOSEPH C., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"Great Britain's Sons and Daughters." Jubilee Part-Song. for S.A.T.B. Words by EDMUND M. SOUTHWELL. 3d.

GREIG, JOHN, M.A., Mus. Bac., F.C.O.—Three Part-songs for Four Voices (S.A.T.B.): No. 1, "Heralds of Spring"; No. 2, "The Month of May"; No. 3, "Merrily row we." 3d.

LÜTGEN, B.—"Ye spotted snakes." Fairy Song and Lullaby from Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." Two-part Song for Ladies' Voices. 8vo. 4d.

SAWYER, FRANK J., Mus. Doc., Oxon.—"Heather Bells." Two-part Song for Ladies' Voices. 8vo. 4d.

SOMERVILLE, REGINALD.—Bridal Serenade. Chorus for S.A.T.B. 3d.

WEST, C. T.—Choral March, "Advance, Britannia!" Composed for the Grand Colonial Procession in the Dome Entertainment of the Brighton Grammar School. 4d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"The Empire Flag." A Patriotic Song for Solo and Chorus. The Words written by STUART REID and W. ALEX. BARRETT. 2s.

OLGA.—"Yesterday." Song. The words written by the late Hon. Mrs. G. GIFFORD. 1s. 6d.

—— "The Dream of the Morning." Song. The Words by the late Hon. Mrs. G. GIFFORD. 1s. 6d.

SOMERSET, LORD HENRY.—"An Invocation." Song. In G and B flat. 1s. 6d. each.

MARIGOLD, MAGGIE.—"Iris." Valse, pour Piano. 2s.

NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 20, 21, and 22. 1s. each. One Volume. Cloth, 4s. Compositions by HERMANN GOETZ.

THACKWRAY, GEORGE BAYNE.—Romance. For Violin and Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

MARTIN, GEORGE C.—Arrangements for the Organ. Book VI. 1s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. MCNAUGHT.

No. 537. Love and Summer. A Four-part Song JOHN E. WEST 1½d.
542. Benedictus in F. Four Voices BERTHOLD TOURS 1½d.
543. Jubilate, Kyrie, &c., in F. Four Voices " " 1½d.
548. The Empire Flag. A Patriotic Four-part Song A. C. MACKENZIE 1½d.
549. Blessed be the Lord thy God. Anthem. Composed for the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Queen's Accession Dr. J. F. BRIDGE 2d.

NEW ANTHEM.—BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER, introducing the National Anthem. Composed by W. CLARK AINLEY, Mus. Bac. Price 6d. Post-free from the COMPOSER, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

JUBILEE FESTIVAL SERVICES.

THE RESPONSES

AND

PROPER PSALMS WITH CHANTS

FOR THE

ACCESSION SERVICE.

Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE.

IF YE LOVE ME

Very easy, short, and full. Suitable for Country Parish Church Choirs.

Price 2d.

By JAS. SMART.

Ready May 10.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.

Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGANIST (experienced) requires CHURCH APPOINTMENT. Anglican Service. Organum, 17, Rylett Crescent, Shepherd's Bush, W.

ACCOMPANIMENTS.—A Professional ACCOMPANIST (Lady) has a few hours disengaged. Practice or Concerts. London only. Ridge, Messrs. Wys, Muller and Co., 19a, Coleman Street, E.C.

TUNER (first-class) shortly DISENGAGED. 16 years' experience. Steady and reliable. Good address and gentlemanly appearance. First-class testimonials. P. A. E., 46, Islip Street, Kentish Town, N.W.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE TUNER. One to Play the Piano with Quadrille Band if required. Address, J. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN INDOOR APPRENTICE (for two or three years) WANTED, to the PIANOFORTE TUNING and MUSIC BUSINESS. Home comforts. Healthy country town. Premium required. Full particulars, apply, in the first place, to E. R., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A SET of PIANO PEDALS (full compass), by WILLIS, with action, to be SOLD cheap. Address, Music Studio, 57, Regent Street.

DR. SPARK'S New JUBILEE FANTASIA on NATIONAL AIRS.

"JUBILEE FANTASIA for the ORGAN on National Airs is another of the many excellent compositions which have been issued from the pen of Dr. Spark. . . . Its performance thoroughly charmed all who heard it, and no doubt it will attain great popularity."—Yorkshire Post.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Two Shillings. Or of the COMPOSER, Newton Park, Leeds.

IMMANUEL, a New Sacred Cantata, by Dr. SPARK, will be performed in the Town Hall, Leeds, on May 17. Published by JOHN HEYWOOD, Manchester. Price 3s. "Amen" Cards (3 Sets), One Penny each.

QUEEN'S JUBILEE MARCH, composed for the Pianoforte by Mr. JAMES BROWN, Tower House School, Courtenay Park, Newton Abbot, Devon. Price 2s. Copies obtained from the COMPOSER.

O NOBLE QUEEN of ENGLAND.—A JUBILEE PART SONG for S.A.T.B. Composed by T. SIMPSON. Price 4d. Choirs and Choral Classes should not fail obtaining this Part Song, which will be found tuneful and vigorous; it is also well adapted for a Brass Band. London: NOVELLO and Co.; or the COMPOSER, Burnley.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

RUMMENS'

ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT

FOR PIANOFORTES.

Price complete, £8 8s. Coll. Org. or any other pedal board, detachable—i.e., instantly removed and replaced, 5s. extra. Cheapest and best.

TESTIMONIALS FROM

DR. STAINER | DR. FROST
DR. STEGGALL | DR. MARTIN
DR. BRIDGE | AND MANY OTHERS.

Full particulars on application.
The Profession and Trade invited to apply for list.

ADDRESS—HENRY J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

CC ORGAN for SALE.—2 manuals and pedals (61 notes and 30), 16 stops. Can be seen and tried. Apply to St. Agatha's Mission House, 28, Sun Street, Finsbury, E.C.

TWO-MANUAL ORGANS for SALE. Church or Chapel. 26, 16, 10, and 8 stops. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Manchester, S.W.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists Post-free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

FOR SALE.—A G ORGAN, by WALKER, 10 ft. 6 in. by 8 ft. 6 in., in handsome Mahogany Case. 12 Stops; Pedals (18 notes); 4 Composition Pedals. Also Double Music Stool. Apply, by letter, to Mr. Peel, The Grange, Bournemouth.

ORGAN for SALE. Nearly new. 4 stops on great, all through; 6 stops on swell, four through; bourdon on pedals. All metal pipes made of spotted metal. Full particulars of W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

ORGAN (American) for SALE, with 2 manuals and pedals. Contains: 21 stops, including 16, 8, and 4 feet tone on great; 8 and 4 feet on swell; 16 feet on pedals, CCC to F. Octave coupler to both great and swell; coupler great to swell; pedal to great; pedal to swell; foot and side blower; wind indicator; has been in use for two years; is in first-rate order. Price £75. Maker, the Dominion Company. Agents, Forsyth Brothers. For further particulars apply to E. A. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

250 GUINEAS.—Two-manual and Pedal AMERICAN ORGAN, by CLOUGH and WARREN. Style 1,001. Combination of pipes and reeds in massive walnut case. Decorated pipe top, &c.; 15 sets of reeds, 25 draw stops, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers, &c. In perfect condition as new. Price 85 guineas. Apply Messrs. Stagg and Co., 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL REED ORGAN by GILBERT BAUER.—A very fine-toned and complete instrument, in perfect order as new. In massive walnut case, stool, &c. Cost £150. Price 45 guineas. Apply Messrs. Stagg and Co., 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

FOR SALE.—A beautiful toned CHAMBER ORGAN, in mahogany case, built by Hill and Sons, London. 12 stops, 2 manuals, and pedal organ. Blown by hydraulic engine. S. A. Pelly, Bodenham Road, Hereford.

AMERICAN ORGAN WANTED, suitable for a medium-sized Church. Must be a first class instrument in all respects, with imitation pipes on top. State price and all particulars to B., 26, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

"ALBANY" AMERICAN ORGANS. Cheapest and best. SNELL and CO., Manufacturers (removed to), 32, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W. Special terms to trade and profession.

FOR SALE.—MUSICAL LIBRARY.—MR. JULIAN ADAMS, the well-known Conductor, having been forbidden by his medical advisers to continue his professional duties, wishes to DISPOSE of his extensive LIBRARY, consisting of Selections for Full Orchestra, Military, or Brass Bands. Applications to be made to Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

THE UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY (established 1854) contains over 100,000 Musical Works. Subscription: £2 2s. per annum; £1 8s. per half-year, &c. Music can be selected at end of term, as Subscribers' property, to the extent of one-half of their subscription, at full price. For prospectus, and all information, apply to Charles Woolhouse, Proprietor, 81, Regent Street, London, W.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guis., 17 guis., 20 guis., &c.; Organs, 5 guis., 11 guis., 15 guis., 24 guis., &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement E.C.

SPEAKERS and SINGERS give unqualified praise to BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES. They clear the throat, and give tone and power to the vocal organs. (See Testimonials from Mrs. Scott Siddons, Mr. Farley Sinkins, &c.) In tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., of all Chemists. Post, 14 and 33 stamps, from Basker and Co., Chemists, Bridgwater.

VOICE.—JAMES'S "SINGER'S-FRIEND" LOZENGES. Their effect is simply marvellous on the vocal organs. Testimonials: "Invaluable aids to the voice."—Rev. Idrisyn Jones. "Most effectual for voice and throat."—Mr. Reginald Groome. Boxes, 7d. and 1s. 2d., stamps; sent by return post. Address, W. James, Chemist, Highgate Road, London, N.W.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, Post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

NEW HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

THE

THREE MERRY DWARFS

BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

PRICE FOURPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES

(Over 500 numbers now ready)

EDITED BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

New works by the most eminent composers are constantly being added, the following having recently been published: "Judas Maccabæus," "St. Paul," Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty," Gounod's "Mors et Vita" (Latin and English), Romberg's "Lay of the Bell," Benedict's "St. Cecilia," Dr. Bridge's "Rock of Ages," Gade's "Christmas Eve," "Spring's Message," Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," "The Messiah," Barnby's "Rebekah," Sullivan's "Golden Legend," Stanford's "Revenge," Corder's "The Bridal of Triermain," and Pergolesi's Stabat Mater (Female Voices).

These editions are uniform, words and music, with Novello's Staff Notation editions.

A new list (alphabetical and numerical) now ready, and may be had Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BERGER, H.—Andante Religioso. Op. 2. For Cello and Pianoforte or Harmonium	3	6
BERGER, W.—"Aquarels." Twelve Pianoforte Pieces:—
Book I. No. 1. Frohsinn; No. 2. Siciliano; No. 3. Romance; No. 4. Ländler	5	0
„ II. No. 5. Tanz der Kobolde; No. 6. Träumerei; No. 7. Walz; No. 8. Humoreske	6	0
„ III. No. 9. Scherzino; No. 10. Zwiegesang; No. 11. Alla Polacca; 12. Fantastic March	5	0
BIRD, A.—A Carnival Scene. For Orchestra. Op. 5:—
Full Score ... ... net	16	0
Orchestral Parts...	24	0
—— Ballet Music. Op. 13. For Pianoforte Duet	8	0
—— Eight Sketches. Op. 15. For Pianoforte:—
Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 8 ... ... each	2	0
No. 4	2	0
No. 3	3	0
—— Introduction and Fugue. Op. 16. For Pianoforte Duet ...	7	0
BRAHMS, J.—Second Sonata in F. For Pianoforte and Cello. Op. 99	16	0
—— Second Sonata in A. For Pianoforte and Violin. Op. 100	16	0
—— Trio in C minor. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 101	24	0
EBERHARDT, GOBY.—"Drei Tanzweisen." For Pianoforte and Violin. Op. 69. No. 1. Polka; No. 2. Waltz; No. 3. Mazurka	4	0
—— Small Suite. For Pianoforte and Violin:—
Book I. Op. 74. Im Walde, Die Kokette, Lied, Ländler, Polacca	6	0
„ II. Op. 75. Melody, Mazurck, Scherzo, Andante Cantabile, Tarantella	6	0
FAUCHEUX, A.—"Au Clair de la Lune." With Variations. For Two Violins and Pianoforte	6	0
FRUGATTA, G.—Albumleaf. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— Andalousienne. For Pianoforte	4	0
GLINKA, H. J.—Trio Fantastique. For Pianoforte, Clarinet, and Bassoon	10	0
GODARD, B.—Second Gavotte. For Pianoforte. Op. 81 ...	4	0
GRISON, J.—Offertoire. For Christmas. For the Organ ...	6	0
—— Two Offertoires for Easter. For the Organ... ... each	6	0
—— First Offertoire ("St. Cecilia"). For the Organ	6	0
—— Second „ „ „ „	6	0
—— Third „ „ „ „	6	0
HOLM, A.—Fantasia and Variations. For Flute and Pianoforte. Op. 4	5	0
—— Four Characteristic Pieces. For Pianoforte. No. 1. Croquis; No. 2. Scherzo; No. 3. Albumleaf; No. 4. Valse Noble ...	4	0
KOUSNETZOFF, A.—Lullaby. Op. 4. For Cello and Pianoforte	2	0
—— Un Récit. For Cello and Pianoforte	4	0
KREUTZER, R.—Forty-two Studies. For the Violin. Edited, with technical remarks and systematical fingering, by E. Kross ... ... net	5	0
LANGE, G.—"Leaves Murmuring." Op. 294. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Vive le Soldat." Op. 295. For Pianoforte...	4	0
—— "Sea Roses." Op. 296. For Pianoforte	4	0
—— "Flower's Confession." Op. 297. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Sweet Remembrance." Op. 302. For Pianoforte ...	3	0
MACHTS, C.—Easy Trio in C. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello	5	0
OBERTHÜR, CH.—"La Serenata" (by Braga). Arranged for the Harp	3	6
OELKLAUS, P.—Plainte. Op. 8. For Cello and Pianoforte	3	0
—— Berceuse. Op. 9. For Cello and Pianoforte	3	0
L'ORGUE DE L'EGLISE. Collection of Pieces by Ancient and Modern Organists ... ... net	6	0
PLOTÉNYI, F.—Twelve Studies and Three Cadenzas. For Beethoven's Violin Concerto	12	0
POPPER, D.—"Murmuring breeze." Song. By A. Jensen. Arranged for Cello and Pianoforte	3	0
SCHUMANN.—"Abendlied." Arranged for Violin and Orchestra by A. Wilhelmj:—
Score	2	0
For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
For Violin and Organ	3	0
WAGNER, R.—"Waldweben" (from "Siegfried"). Arranged for Pianoforte Duet by H. Rupp	6	0
WEBER, C.—Twelve Favourite Pieces. Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte:—
No. 1. Ascher: "Croyez moi"	3	0
„ 2. Bachmann: "Perles de Madrid"	4	0
„ 3. Goltermann: Nocturne	4	0
„ 4. „ Étude	4	0
„ 5. „ Berceuse	4	0
„ 6. „ Gavotte...	4	0
„ 7. Lemmens: Cantabile	4	6
„ 8. Merkel: Noël (Pastorale)	4	0
„ 9. Ravina: Andantino	4	0
„ 10. Robaudi: "Alla Stella confidente"	4	6
„ 11. Ascher: Mazurka des Traineaux	5	0
„ 12. Vieuxtemps: Andante du Concerto	4	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CONCONE'S LESSONS

NEW EDITION

WITH MARKS OF

EXPRESSION & PHRASING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

50 Lessons for the Medium part of the Voice.

40 Lessons for Contralto.

40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone.

The sterling value and great usefulness of Concone's Lessons have been so long recognised and so generally admitted, that their extensive adoption caused, as a natural consequence, the issue of numerous editions in almost every country where the study of the Art of Singing is cultivated. No edition, however, which has hitherto come under my notice, seems to me as correct, complete, and reliable as it should be.

I have endeavoured to rectify this deficiency by adding in the present edition signs of expression and phrasing, where I considered it expedient to do so, completing, and in some cases altering, the breathing marks, and altogether carefully revising the whole work.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HYMNS FOR THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE

FOURTEEN SPECIAL HYMNS, including THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, with two additional or alternative Verses. Price 2d.; or 14s. per 100. Words only, ½d.; or 3s. 6d. per 100. N.B.—The Royal Edition, complete words and music, crown 8vo, on thick paper, in elegant cloth binding, price 1s. Orders, with remittance, should kindly be sent early.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

THE WORDS BY

THE BISHOP OF EXETER.
S. BARING-GOULD.
W. CHATTERTON DIX.
JOHN ELLERTON.
JACKSON MASON.
THE BISHOP OF RIPON.
H. D. RAWNSLEY.
E. M. SOUTHWELL.
S. J. STONE.
GODFREY THRING.

NEW AND SPECIALLY COMPOSED MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.
DR. J. F. BRIDGE.
J. W. ELLIOTT.*
SIR GEORGE ELVEY.
F. A. J. HERVEY.
WALTER PARRATT.
M. S. SKEFFINGTON.
DR. JOHN STAINER.
BERTHOLD TOURS.

*Tune—"Day of Rest."

LONDON: SKEFFINGTON AND SON, 163, PICCADILLY, W.

God's blessing on our Sovereign rest.*

GRAND CHORAL MARCH

(Soli and Chorus, S.A.T.B.) 8vo, price 4d.

BY WILLIAM J. YOUNG,

Composer of Popular Part-Songs.

God's blessing on our Sovereign rest,
And on her subjects free;
May Queen and country both be blest
This year of Jubilee!

On history's page no fairer name,
No purer life appears,
What age can match in deeds or fame
Victoria's fifty years?

Not civil strife nor foreign foes
May vex her life with cares,
Whilst in her joys, as in her woes,
A grateful nation shares.

Look, Lord, in mercy on our land,
Pardon, and save, and heal;
Guide us by Thy sustaining hand,
And still Thy love reveal.

Her faithful people all rejoice:
Her broadened empire cries;
Till echoed by the great world's voice,
The pæan rends the skies.

T. B. LEIGH.

* Arranged by the Composer for the Organ and Piano, 2s. each net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Manchester: HIME and ADDISON; or COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

Now ready.

GREAT BRITAIN'S SONS & DAUGHTERS

NEW JUBILEE PART-SONG

(Introducing "Rule Britannia" and the National Anthem)

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VICTORIA

JUBILEE GLEE, FOR FOUR VOICES,

WRITTEN AND COMPOSED BY LADY BORTON.

Price 3d.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING Co. (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

In the Press, will shortly be ready.

JUBILEE ANTHEM

Composed for the State Thanksgiving Service, held in St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta, February 16, 1887.

All the kings of the earth shall praise Thee

BY ERNEST SLATER, F.C.O.

Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta.

Price Fourpence.

"The Anthem, which was specially composed for the Jubilee by Mr. Ernest Slater, the Organist of the Cathedral, was a composition worthy of the occasion and the assembly. . . . The effect of the whole composition was simply grand, reflecting the highest credit on the composer, instrumentalists, and the singers."—Englishman, Calcutta.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S GRAND CORONATION MARCH (by CZERNY). Arranged for the Organ by ALFRED M. COLCHESTER, A.C.O. 2s. net. by post, 31, Poet's Road, N., or AGATE and Co., Regent Street, W.—"This composition will compare favourably with many of the so-called Jubilee marches."

SONG OF JUBILEE

SACRED CANTATA

BY

DR. BRADFORD.

Composed in celebration of the Fiftieth Year of Her Majesty's Reign.

Vocal Score, Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT of the NATIONAL ANTHEM. See Dr. BRADFORD'S Cantata, "Song of Jubilee."

THE ORCHESTRAL PARTS of the SONG OF JUBILEE can be had on hire, of the COMPOSER, 50, Lewisham High Road, London, S.E.

Just published.

JUBILEE ANTHEM

BY

SIR GEORGE ELVEY.

Price One Shilling net.

London: ALPHONSE CARY, 95, Wardour Street, W.

"Is that brilliant arrangement of 'God save the Queen' published?"

This question has often been addressed to Mr. John Bull at the conclusion of a Concert or Entertainment. It is now offered, with other Settings, to a loyal musical public, with the hope that the result may be a better rendering than we generally get of our National Anthem.

THE JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT

OF

God save the Queen

BY JOHN BULL.

(COPYRIGHT.)

No. 1. FOR PIANOFORTE SOLO (BRILLIANT).
" 2. FOR PIANOFORTE SOLO (SIMPLE).
" 3. FOR PIANOFORTE DUET.
" 4. FOR HARMONIUM.
" 5. FOR CHORUS (VOCAL SCORE).

Two or more of these arrangements may be used at the same time, the performance of the five together giving a broad and full effect.

THESE ARRANGEMENTS ARE FULL SHEET MUSIC SIZE.

PRICE (PER COMPLETE SET):

ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE NET. (Published at 3s.)

May be obtained of any Musicseller in the United Kingdom.

ORDER THE "JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT."

 The Vocal Score is published on separate sheets, price 1s. per doz.

☞ Musical Conductors, Organists, Pianists, and Musicsellers may obtain a single Specimen Copy by forwarding 7d. in Stamps (enclosing their professional or business cards) to Mr. Bull, at his private address, 26, Hatfield Road, Hatcham Park, London, S.E.

FULL ORCHESTRAL PARTS, FIVE SHILLINGS NET.

LONDON: SPOTTISWOODE and CO., New Street Square, E.C.

FESTAL TE DEUM AND JUBILATE

COMPOSED FOR THE

JUBILEE SERVICE IN PRIORY CHURCH, MALVERN

BY

WILLIAM HAYNES,

Organist and Choirmaster.

Price Ninepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A JUBILEE HYMN

SET TO THE

NATIONAL ANTHEM

With the Music in both Notations (Arrangement from the Home Hymn Book).

Price 1s. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.
London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., 4, Stationers' Hall Court.

FOR MALE VOICE CHOIR.—THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, price 4d.; JUBILEE ODE, price 6d. net., by GEORGE RISELEY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE. 3d. net.

FIFTY YEARS' GLAD BLESSINGS BRINGING (Prize Poem). Written by Mrs. HOWARD S. WATSON; composed by W. T. BELCHER. Suitable for Celebration or Services.

London: WEEKES and Co. Birmingham: Dr. BELCHER.

SUITABLE FOR PARISH CHURCH CHOIRS.

THANKSGIVING TE DEUM.—Composed for the Services held during the Celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee, in St. George's Church, Ramsgate. By GEO. PRIOR, Mus.D., Oxon, &c. Price 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUBILEE ANTHEM. BY THOS. SMITH.

HE SET THE ROYAL CROWN UPON HER HEAD, AND MADE HER QUEEN. 3d.

ASCENSION and WHITSUNTIDE. "Lift up your heads" (2nd Ed.); "Sing we merrily" (4th Ed.); "If ye love Me" (5th Ed.); "O send out Thy light." 3d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

NEW ANTHEM.

BEHOLD, O GOD OUR DEFENDER, by F. W. HIRD. Composed expressly for the May Festival of the York Diocesan Choral Association, to be held in York Minster, in honour of the Queen's Jubilee. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JUBILEE

A SERVICE OF PRAISE AND THANKSGIVING FOR THE TIMES.

MUSIC COMPOSED AND ARRANGED BY

DR. STAINER

(Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral),

INCLUDING ANTHEMS BY

STAINER, HOPKINS, CLARKE-WHITFELD, BARNBY, MENDELSSOHN, AND ATTWOOD.

Large 8vo. 1s. 6d.

Sheet of Jubilee Hymns with Music.

Words and Music in Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa together. Demy 4to, 8 pp., price 6s. per 100.

London: SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

CHORAL MARCH.

ADVANCE, BRITANNIA! Words and music by C. T. WEST. Fourpence net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUBILEE

MUSICAL SILK HANDKERCHIEFS

FOR THE

TRADE OR PROFESSION.

The Design consists of a

GROUP OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS LAID ACROSS AN OPEN MUSIC BOOK

On which can be seen a part of the Music of the National Anthem, the whole being surmounted by an Imperial Crown, with or without the words "God save the Queen."

Price 2s. 6d., free by Post. Five per Cent. allowed on six and upwards. As supplied to Dr. Spark, Dr. Frost, and others.

P.O.O. and Cheques, crossed Parr's Bank, payable to SAMUEL MOSS, Macclesfield.

N.B.—Other Patterns always in stock, from 1s. 3d. each.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSIONTIDE.

Awake up, my Glory	M. Wise	3d.
Christ became obedient unto death	Dr. J. F. Bridge	1½d.
God is gone up	Croft	4d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	H. Lahee	1½d.
If He then be risen	J. Naylor	3d.
King all glorious	J. Barnby	6d.
Leave us not, neither forsake us	J. Stainer	1½d.
Lift up your heads	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
O God, the King of glory	H. Smart	4d.
O how amiable	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lord our Governor	H. Gadsby	3d.
O Lord our Governor	Marcello	1½d.
O risen Lord	J. Barnby	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
Rejoice in the Lord	Sir George Elvey	1½d.
The earth is the Lord's	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is King	H. Gadsby	6d.

WHITSUNTIDE.

And all the people saw	J. Stainer	6d.
As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
Come, Holy Ghost	T. Attwood	1½d.
Come, Holy Ghost	J. L. Hatton	3d.
Come, Holy Ghost	Sir George Elvey	4d.
God came from Teman	C. Steggall	4d.
God is a Spirit	W. S. Bennett	6d.
Grieve not the Holy Spirit	J. Stainer	3d.
Holy Spirit, come, O come (Ad Spiritum Sanctum)	G. C. Martin	1½d.
I was in the Spirit	Dr. Blow	6d.
If ye love Me	C. S. Heap	1½d.
If ye love Me	W. H. Monk	1½d.
If ye love Me	Tallis	1½d.
If ye love Me	Sir R. P. Stewart	1½d.
It shall come to pass	G. Garrett	6d.
Let not your heart be troubled	H. G. Trembath	3d.
O Holy Ghost, into our minds	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
Oh! for a closer walk with God	Myles B. Foster	1½d.
There is no condemnation	H. S. Irons	3d.

TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1½d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR WHITSUNTIDE OR GENERAL USE.

Third Thousand. Price 3d.

O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH

ANTHEM BY

F. R. GREENISH, MUS. BAC., OXON.

Easy and very effective. Containing melodious and expressive solo for treble or tenor. A great favourite wherever it has been heard.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SEND OUT THY LIGHT

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE

BY

J. T. FIELD.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL GREATLY REJOICE IN THE LORD. Anthem for Whitsuntide. By BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 3d.

Also, HYMN for ASCENSION: HAIL THE DAY THAT SEES HIM RISE. Set to Music. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WHITSUNTIDE ANTHEM.

I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU COMFORTLESS. By WM. JOHNSON (composer of "Ecce Homo," &c.), price 3d. (Second thousand.) "... which we can unhesitatingly recommend."—Orchestra. "A good, useful anthem."—Church Bells.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants. s. d.

No. 9. Limp cloth 4 0
„ 10. Cloth boards 5 0
„ 11. Small edition 3 0
„ 12. Tonic Sol-fa 3 0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C ... ... 9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A ... ... 6d.
Cantate and Deus misereatur in G ... ... 8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100) ... ... 1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE OFFICE for the HOLY COMMUNION. Set to music in the key of F by GEORGE KETT. Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW ANTHEM, WITH VIOLIN OBBLIGATO.

Suitable equally for Parish Choir, Cathedral, or Home Use.

TEACH ME THY WAY, O LORD

Psalm LXXXVI., Verse 11. By W. H. WILSON. "Simple, easy, and effective." Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

Easter Anthem—"If we believe" ... ... 4d.
Whitsuntide Anthem—"If ye love me" ... ... 3d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee" ... ... 3d.
Te Deum in E ... ... 3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E ... ... 3d.
Office of the Holy Communion ... ... 9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A ... ... 3d.
Cantate and Deus Misereatur in E ... ... 3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Tonic Sol-fa ... ... 1½d.

PART-SONGS.

Spring Four Voices ... ... 3d.
The Rhine Maiden. „ ... ... 3d.
Beware „ ... ... 1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and PARKER and Co.

Nineteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in D. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 6d. Suitable for Festal or general use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SMALLWOOD'S (WM.) FESTAL and GENERAL ANTHEMS.

No. 1. THE LORD REIGNETH. Easter, Whitsuntide, or General.
„ 2. THUS SAITH THE LORD, THE KING OF ISRAEL. Easter, Trinity, or General.
„ 3. PRAISED BE THE LORD DAILY. Harvest, Easter, or Whitsuntide.
„ 4. I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. Festival or General.
„ 5. IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Christmas.
„ 6. I WILL GIVE THANKS. Easter, Ascension, or General.

Price 2d. each.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

HYMN TUNE for FLOWER SERVICES. Easy and effective. Price 2s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SECOND and CHEAPER EDITION of the HOME HYMN BOOK is now ready. Price, with Music, 3s. 6d. Words only, 6d.; large type, 1s. (specially bound copies at various prices). Tunes have been written expressly for this edition by Dr. J. Abram, M. Ch. Gounod, Sir G. A. Macfarren, Dr. G. C. Martin, Dr. W. H. Monk, Dr. J. Stainer, Dr. C. Villiers Stanford, &c. Some reprints from "Hymns Ancient and Modern" are also included, all of which can be obtained for insertion in the first edition, price 6d. (inclusive).

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.
London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., 4, Stationers' Hall Court.

THE LOWESTOFT SUPPLEMENTAL TUNE-BOOK (dedicated, by permission, to the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Exeter) contains 56 Tunes, set to well-known Hymns, by J. DOWNING FARRER, including two favourite settings to "Jesu my Lord, my God, my all!" and to "Saviour, blessed Saviour"—recently sung as a Processional at St. Alban's Choral Festival. Price 1s. 6d.
London: SAMPSON LOW and Co., 188, Fleet Street.

BRADFORD CHURCH CHOIR BOOK, containing the Chants, Kyries, &c., used in the Parish and District Churches of Bradford. Third Edition. Price 2s. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Bradford: G. F. SEWELL, 9, Darley Street.

Second Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in A, by GEORGE GAFFE. Price 4d. Selected for use at the 25th Annual Festival of the Nantwich Choral Association, June 23, 1887.
Specimen copy Post-free for four stamps, from the COMPOSER, Church Crescent, St. Alban's.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PUBLICATIONS BY MR. FRANK AUSTIN, L.Mus.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in G. 6d.
Festival Organ March. 1s. Part-Song, "A Lover's Lament" (S.A.T.B.) 4d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

TEN KYRIES, with other Chants, 2d. Te Deum with five Quadruple Chants, 2d. Arranged to meet the great want of simple melody for Parish Choirs or Congregational Singing, by C. CLAPHAM. London: PITMAN, Paternoster Row.

Just published.

NEW EDITION, with Organ Introduction, of BLESSED ARE THE DEAD, a short, full Anthem, composed by ROBERT BROWN-BORTHWICK. Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Also, by the same Composer.

SAY, WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT. Hymn or Introit, as sung at St. Paul's Cathedral. Price Threepence net; or, per dozen, Half-a-crown.
London: HENRY FROWDE, Amen Corner, E.C.

Also, by the same Composer.

Now ready, in cloth boards, price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
HYMN-TUNES. Forty-two in number. With their Words. London: HAMILTON, ADAMS and Co. Scarborough: E. R. ROPER.

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. A new Anthem, Full, Four Voices (easy), sent Post-free for 3½d. stamps, by the Author, C. WARD, Speen, Princes Risboro'; also may be had, "The Sunday School Melodist," 9 Nos., 3d. each; "The Sacred Choir," 10 Nos., 3d. each; and "The Sacred Chorister," 14 Nos., 4d. each.

HYMN TO PEACE, from the Eirene of Aristophanes, for Soli, Trio, and Chorus. 1s. TWO SONNETS, by Sir PHILIP SIDNEY, for S.A.T.B. in the Madrigal style. 6d. By VYVYAN WALLIS POPHAM. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS WITH WELSH WORDS.

CENWCH GÂN O FAWL	... J. STAINER.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O PRAWF, A GWEL ...	Syr JOHN GOSS.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O ARGLWYDD, MOR LÏOSOG YW DY WEITHREDOEDD DI	J. BARNBY.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price Fourpence.
Inscribed to JOHN STAINER, Esq., M.A., Mus. Doc.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS IN G
COMPOSED BY GEORGE LEES.
"I think the Te Deum is very good indeed."—Dr. Stainer.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.
THE HYMN-TUNE
ADESTE FIDELES
Introduction, Variations, and Finale Fughetta for the Organ
BY ALFRED OAKE, A.C.O., L.R.A.M.
2s. 6d. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.
ORGAN MUSIC
TWELVE SHORT AND EASY PIECES
Intended for use between Offertory Sentences, Confirmations, &c.
COMPOSED BY
E. BUNNETT, Mus. D.
Price 2s. net.
Also, by same Composer, for Organ,
LARGO IN E FLAT
Price 1s. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.
ORIGINAL AIR WITH VARIATIONS FOR THE ORGAN
By J. G. PEARSON.
Price 1s. 6d. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY NEW ANTHEMS.
GOUNOD'S
THREE CELEBRATED COMPOSITIONS:
THE KING OF LOVE MY SHEPHERD IS—23RD PSALM.
GLORY TO THEE, MY GOD, THIS NIGHT.
FOR EVER WITH THE LORD.
Each of the above may be had as follows:—Anthem: Vocal Score, with Organ Accompaniment, 2s. net; separate Voice Parts, 2d. each; Song (4 keys), 2s. net; Vocal Duet for S. and C., 2s. net; for M.S. and Bar., 2s. net.
PHILLIPS and PAGE, 43, Kilburn High Road, N.W.

WANTED, to PURCHASE or BORROW, Copies of NOVELLO'S CATALOGUES issued previous to the year 1850. Persons possessing any of these are requested to communicate at once with Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PRODUCTION OF VOICE. (For Singers.) By FREDERIC PENNA. Price 6d.
"No singer, or would-be singer, can read it without profit."—J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Organist of Westminster Abbey.
"I have read your pamphlet with much interest."—Rt. Hon. W. E. GLADSTONE, M.P.
London: E. ASCHERBERG and Co., 211, Regent Street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S
PRIMERS
OF MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY
BY
JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY
HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI
CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

THE QUARTERLY MUSICAL REVIEW
FOR MAY 20.
EDITED BY DR. HILES.
Price One Shilling.
London and Manchester: JOHN HEYWOOD.

HARMONIES OF TONES AND COLOURS
DEVELOPED BY EVOLUTION.
BY F. J. HUGHES.
With Supplement, illustrated with coloured Diagrams. Imperial 4to, cloth, price 21s.
The supplement can be had in paper cover, price 2s. 6d.
MARCUS WARD and Co., Ltd., London, Belfast, and New York.

THE MODERN VIOLIN METHOD
BY
J. S. LIDDLE, Mus. Bac.
Seventy pages. Full music size.
In this work, which embodies the results of fifteen years' teaching experience, the wants of elementary pupils have been carefully kept in view throughout.
Price 4s. net.
ALPHONSE CARY, Newbury: 47 and 48, Northbrook Street; and London: 95, Wardour Street, W.

IMPORTANT TO ALL TEACHERS OF SINGING!!
THE SIMPLEST and EASIEST METHOD of Learning to SING AT SIGHT from the STAFF is the LETTER-NOTE SYSTEM.

COMBINING ALL THE FACILITIES OF THE NEW NOTATIONS WITH THE ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF THE STAFF.
Select List of Publications:—
ELEMENTARY SINGING MASTER, a complete course of Instruction on the Method. 80 pp., Cloth, 1s. 6d.; paper, 1s.
ELEMENTARY SINGING SCHOOL; being the Songs and Exercises of the above Work published separately for the use of Pupils. In two parts, price 3d. each, in wrapper. In this Work the letters are gradually withdrawn, training the Pupils to dispense with their aid.
THE INTERMEDIATE SIGHT-SINGER, and the ADVANCED SIGHT-SINGER, complete and systematic works of intermediate instruction. Price 3d. each, in wrapper.
FOR GOVERNMENT, NATIONAL, AND BOARD SCHOOLS. The Letter-Note Method has obtained Government recognition, and Letter-Note pupils are entitled to have the Sol-fa initials appended to the sight-singing test supplied by the School Inspector.
THE CODE SINGER, for the use of the different divisions in singing under the New Code.—1st and 2nd divisions, 3d. each, or in penny numbers; 3rd and 4th divisions, 4d. each, or in penny numbers.
The musical practice supplied is very copious. An abridged edition is published under the title of "Code Music," which contains everything absolutely essential for the work of the Code. Also a Teacher's Edition, containing the Code Singer, together with the directions as to examination by H.M. Inspector, model pointing and ear exercises, and hints on teaching. Div. I. & II., 8d.; Div. III. & IV., 10d.
CHORAL HARMONY, in penny numbers, each containing from 4 to 8 pages of Sacred or Secular Part-Music, printed either in Letter-Note or in ordinary Notation.
No. 159. Sing unto God.—R. A. Smith.
No. 178. 'Tis merry in the hall.—Marsh.
Easy Cantatas, "Pilgrims of Ocean," 4d.; "Maypole," 3d.
Liberal terms to the Profession. Complete Catalogue free on application.
London: J. ADLEY and Co., Letter-Note Publishers, 19, Sparsholt Road, N.
Wholesale Agents:—
COLVILLE and Co., 7, Red Lion Court, Fleet Street, E.C.

Just published.
J. BRAHMS.

	s.	d.
SECOND SONATA in F. Op. 99. For Pianoforte and Cello	16	0
SECOND SONATA in A. Op. 100. For Pianoforte and Cello	16	0
TRIO in C minor. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 101	24	0
ALBUM of SELECT PIECES for the PIANOFORTE. net	4	0

A. DVOŘÁK.

ALBUM of SELECT PIECES for the PIANOFORTE. net	4	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the Authority of the Committee of the Royal Academy of Music.
ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.
"In the space of some fifty pages the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals, and scales, rests, time, and abbreviations, and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.
ELEMENTS OF HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.
This work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.
London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

SECOND THOUSAND. CLOTH BOARDS, IMPERIAL 8vo. PRICE 3s.
HARMONY & THOROUGH-BASS
AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR USE IN CLASSES AND FOR THOSE PREPARING FOR MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS
BY
ALFRED R. GAUL
Composer of "The Holy City," "Ruth," "Passion Service," &c.
With fifty new exercises, written expressly for this work by T. Anderton, Dr. Bunnett, F. Cambridge, A. Deakin, A. R. Gaul, Dr. Gower, A. Page, H. Stonex, Dr. Wareing, and Dr. Winn; also examples by Albrechtsberger and Reicha.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Birmingham and Leicester: MIDLAND EDUCATIONAL Co., Limited.

CATECHISM on the RUDIMENTS of MUSIC and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL. Fourth and Revised Edition, price 1s. Also,
ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, as space is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.
PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY, comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises. Arranged by ELLICE E. JEWELL. Price 6s.
LAMBORN COCK, 25, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES. Price 1s.
"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.
"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.
LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

TO DR. STAINER.
ORGAN PEDAL SCALES & DAILY STUDIES, by GEO. ERNEST LAKE (including two Themes with varied Pedal Obbligati, containing many of the Passages met with in standard Organ Music). Price 1s. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS
FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO
COMPOSED BY CIRO PINSUTI.
BOOK I.
No. 1. After the rain.
" 2. Out in the sunshine.
" 3. I love all things.
No. 4. I sing because I love to sing.
" 5. Passing away.
" 6. The voice of the waterfall.
BOOK II.
No. 7. The mermaids.
" 8. False love, and true.
" 9. Under the stars.
No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back.
" 11. Love and friendship.
" 12. The Magicians.
Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NINE SACRED DUETS
FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO
COMPOSED BY HENRY SMART.
No. 1. There was joy in Heaven.
" 2. The Lord is my shepherd.
" 3. When brighter suns.
" 4. Faint not, fear not.
" 5. The Sabbath Bell.
No. 6. Where the weary are at rest.
" 7. Vox Matutina.
" 8. By Babylon's waters.
" 9. Evening.
Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fourth Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

	s.	d.
Parts I. and II. ... ... each	1	0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ... ... each	0	2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXENFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS by A. J. CALDICOTT.

Poor Little Tom-ee (just published)...	6d.
Where are you going to, my pretty maid? (just published) ...	6d.
Humpty Dumpty	6d.
Little Jack Horner, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
Jack and Gill	4d.
The House that Jack built, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
The Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The Haymakers. Part-song	4d.
Out on the Waters. Part-song	4d.
Yule. Part-song	4d.
Sleeping Leaves. Glee...	4d.

London: METZLER and Co., 42, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW POPULAR SONGS.

A GOLDEN PROMISE (with Violin and Organ Accompaniments). Key F. Compass C to D. By H. T. TILTMAN.

DAPHNE. Words by Walter Besant. By H. T. TILTMAN.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

New Edition.

COME, FILL, MY BOYS, EACH CUP TO THE BRIM. Part-Song for A.T.T.B. By J. BAPTISTE CALKIN. The second part rewritten in a higher key. Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs, For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.
Part-Song—"The sun has gone down" (S.A.T.B.) ... 2d.
" —"Little Jack Horner" ... ... 4d.
(Sung with great success in London and provinces.)
Two-part Songs (S.C.)—"The Robin" ... ... 2d.
" —"The Skylark" ... ... 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 2d.; by Post, 2½d.

GREAT VIOLIN MASTERS AND THEIR MUSIC.—Practical Papers for Amateurs, with examples. See Friday's issue of THE BAZAAR, which also contains many other interesting articles, and hundreds of announcements of all kinds of Property for Exchange, Wanted, or for Sale by Private Persons. Price 2d., at all Newsagents and Bookstalls.
Office, 170, Strand, London.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.
"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.
"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	Net. s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ... (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	2	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	2	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner...	2	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ... (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)	2	0
THE ZINGARA ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)	2	0
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	2	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)	2	0

PIANOFORTE, &c.
ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition	2	0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook	2	0
MY LADYE BARBARA'S GAVOTTE	2	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.
THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 8th Edition	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 12th Edition	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 8th Edition	0	2
THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 10th Edition ...	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 7th Edition	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.)	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee. By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.—COMPLETE LISTS of the MUSIC, arranged in numerical order, may now be had on application, Post-free.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EIGHTEEN SONGS

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE

Op. 17 and 31.

Complete, Cloth, 7s. 6d.; or, in Three Books, 2s. 6d. each.

BOOK I.

Phyllis the fair	Robert Burns.
It was the time of roses	Thomas Hood.
Light slumber is quitting the eyelids ..	Frederick Locker.
O, hush thee, my babie	Sir Walter Scott.
The earth below and the Heaven above	Charles Grant.
If love were what the rose is ..	Algernon Swinburne.

BOOK II.

What does little birdie say? (A) ..	Lord Tennyson.
What does little birdie say? (B) ..	Lord Tennyson.
Of all sweet birds..	Peire Vidal.
Lift my spirit up to thee..	Charles Grant.
Russian Love Song	J. Arthur Blaikie.
While my lady sleepeth (Op. 12, No. 2)	J. G. Lockhart.
The Song of Love and Death	Lord Tennyson.

BOOK III.

The first spring day (Op. 17, No. 1) ..	Christina Rossetti.
When I am dead (Op. 17, No. 2) ..	Christina Rossetti.
A Birthday (Op. 17, No. 3)	Christina Rossetti.
Up with the sail (Op. 16, No. 1)	J. Logie Robertson.
O roaming wind (Op. 16, No. 2)	J. Logie Robertson.
Something sad (Op. 16, No. 3)..	J. Logie Robertson.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

WORKS BY

JOHN FARMER,

ORGANIST AT BALLIOL COLLEGE, OXFORD, AND DIRECTOR OF THE HARROW MUSIC SCHOOL.

		s.	d.
HARROW SCHOOL SONGS	complete	3	0
HARROW GLEE BOOK		3	0
NURSERY RHYMES. 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Sets	each	1	0
CINDERELLA. Fairy Opera		3	0
CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS. Oratorio		3	0
Chorus parts		1	0
REQUIEM		2	0

JUST OUT.

A FROG HE WOULD A-WOOING GO		3	0
For Men's Voices, with Solos—for The Mouse (Alto), The Frog (Tenor), The Rat (Bass), with an Accompaniment for String Instruments and Piano or for Piano alone.
Chorus parts		1	0
String parts		0	6
The same for Mixed Voices		3	0
(With Accompaniment for String Instruments.)
And also for Female Voices, ditto		3	0

AND ALL OTHER WORKS ARE PUBLISHED BY

JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS STREET, W.

Now ready.

WOMAN'S LOVE AND LIFE

A CYCLE OF SONGS, WRITTEN BY
A. VON CHAMISSO.
COMPOSED BY ROBERT SCHUMANN
(Op. 42).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling.

MYRTHEN

(MYRTLES)

A CIRCLE OF SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT
COMPOSED BY
ROBERT SCHUMANN.

Edited and Translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

LIEDERKREIS

(TWELVE SONGS)

Poetry by J. VON EICHENDORFF, with Pianoforte Accompaniment
COMPOSED BY ROBERT SCHUMANN
(Op. 39).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY
BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.
VOLUMES I., II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., CLOTH, FOUR SHILLINGS EACH.

VOLUME I.
1. Compositions by Bach
2. Compositions by Bach
3. Compositions by Bach

VOLUME II.
4. Compositions by Handel
5. Compositions by Handel
6. Compositions by Handel

VOLUME III.
7. Marches
8. Marches
9. Marches

VOLUME IV.
10. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
11. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
12. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.

VOLUME V.
13. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
14. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
15. Compositions by Wollenhaupt

VOLUME VI.
17. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
18. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
19. Compositions by Fritz Spindler

VOLUME VII.
20. Compositions by H. Goetz
21. Compositions by H. Goetz
22. Compositions by H. Goetz

VOLUME VIII.
23. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
24. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
25. Compositions by J. Rheinberger

16. Scotch Airs (Duets).

List of Contents may be had gratis and Post-free.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S
ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

No. 5.

TWELVE SKETCHES
FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE
COMPOSED BY
BATTISON HAYNES.
Op. 15.

1. Thoughts.
2. Scherzino.
3. March.
4. Cradle Song.
5. Song without Words.
6. Mazurka.
7. Moto Perpetuo.
8. Rustic Dance.
9. Idyll.
10. Polonaise.
11. Arioso.
12. Intermezzo.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICES OF

OUSELEY AND MONK'S
POINTED PSALTER.

		s.	d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score		4	0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each	1	6
32mo Edition. Words only		0	9
Ditto. Ditto, with Proper Psalms		1	0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

THE PSALMS
BIBLE VERSION
POINTED FOR CHANTING
BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE in F.
Price 6d.

OFFICE OF THE HOLY COMMUNION IN F.
Price 6d.

ANTHEM, ALMIGHTY GOD, S.A.T.B.
Verse, Bass. Price 4d.
BY
F. H. CHEETHAM.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.
ALL HAIL, ADORED TRINITY
Full Anthem for Trinity Sunday. Fourpence.

TRULY GOD IS LOVING
Anthem for Bass Solo and Chorus. Fourpence.

KYRIE ELEISON IN C
One Penny.
COMPOSED BY
R. B. BATEMAN,
Organist and Choirmaster, Parish Church, Aylesbury, and of the Vale of Aylesbury Church Choral Association.
To be had of the COMPOSER, or of Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ANTHEMS, &c. By CALEB SIMPER.
"Easy, melodious, and effective."
WHITSUNTIDE—"The Day of Pentecost" ... ... 3d.
JUBILEE—"Give Glory unto the Lord" ... ... 3d.
JUBILEE—"Make a joyful noise" ... ... 3d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat and F... each 4d.
TE DEUM in F. 3d. EIGHT KYRIES ... ... 3d.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

CHURCH MUSIC
BY
DR. FRANK BATES.
TE DEUM, in B flat ... ... 6d.
JUBILATE „ ... ... 4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS ... ... 4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus) ... 3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs) ... ... 2d.
O LORD, CORRECT ME ... ... 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WHITSUNTIDE ANTHEM.
AND SUDDENLY THERE CAME A SOUND FROM HEAVEN
BY JOHN LAYLAND.
Full, easy, and effective. Suitable for Parish Choirs. Price: Old Notation, 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or of the COMPOSER, Charlesworth, Broadbottom, Manchester.
Specimen copy Post-free for published price.

PLAIN SETTING
OF THE
OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION
INCLUDING
BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE.
By E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Doc.
Price Fourpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OFFERTORY SENTENCES, complete, 4d.
Arranged in simple form for Parish Choirs, by C. CLAPHAM.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)
Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Saturday, April 30, 1887.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 532.—Vol. 28. Registered for transmission abroad. | JUNE 1, 1887. | Price 4*d.*; Post-free, 5*d.* Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5*s.*

REGENT HALL, LONDON.

[Established by Deed of Constitution (1886) for the Promotion of Artistic Excellence in the Design and Manufacture of Musical Instruments, and the Proficiency of Instrumental Tuners and Skilled Musical Mechanicians.]

I. PIANOFORTES & OTHER KEYBOARD INSTRUMENTS.

The Governors of Regent Hall are now prepared to conduct Examinations of the quality of Tone, Touch, and Workmanship of Keyboard Instruments, and to affix their HALL MARK to approved instruments.

II. EXAMINATION OF PIANOFORTE TUNERS.

Arrangements are now completed for the practical Examination of Pianoforte Tuners for the Hall Certificate of Qualification to Practise in such capacity.

The next Examination for Pianoforte Tuners will take place on June 22, 1887, the last day for receiving names being June 15.

The Examination Fee is Two Guineas.

III. REGISTER OF TUNERS.

Employers are informed that a Register of duly qualified Pianoforte Tuners is now kept, and is open to reference under Regulations from the Registrar.

The Regulations, with Lists of Examiners and other information, may be had of the undersigned.

CHARLES PETERS, Hon. Sec. to the Governors.

44, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.

ANNUAL CONSTABULARY CONCERT,

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE,

December 14, 1887.

Madame ALBANI.	Mr. CHARLES CHILLEY.
Madame PATEY.	Signor FOLI.

Seats can now be booked on application to Messrs. Hirschman and Co., 153, Pilgrim Street.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

TUESDAY, June 28, a Paper will be read by H. C. Banister, Esq., entitled "The Enjoyment of Music." July 12, 13, 14, Midsummer Examination; July 15, Distribution of Diplomas; July 26, Annual General Meeting.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

SCHOOL OF ORATORIO AND RECITATIVE,

BURLINGTON HALL, BURLINGTON ST., REGENT ST.

Established 1886, under the direction of ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., and W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon. (Lecturer). Instituted for the especial training of Vocalists in Oratorio, Cantata, Recitative and Concerted Music, Voice Production and Phrasing.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott, 57, Nevern Square, Earl's Court.

THE MENDELSSOHN QUARTETTE.—Messrs. HENRI RIVIERE (Alto), FREDERICK BAUHOFF (Tenor), GEO. W. CURTIS (Baritone), and CHARLES BERNARD (Bass). For Concerts, Bazaars, Garden Parties, &c., in town or country. For terms and open dates, apply to the Secretary, Lawrence R. Dicksee, 6, Fitzroy Square, W.

WALDEN'S "ALEXANDRA" MUSICAL and DRAMATIC AGENCY, Liverpool. List of Vocalists at liberty for Summer Concerts on application. Telegrams, "Drama, Liverpool."

MUSICAL TIMES.—WANTED, to PURCHASE, the following Nos. of The Musical Times, with letter-press: February, 1877 (No. 408); March, 1878 (No. 421); October, 1879 (No. 440); January and February, 1882 (Nos. 467 and 468); January and February, 1883 (Nos. 479 and 480). Apply to Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, to PURCHASE or BORROW, Copies of NOVELLO'S CATALOGUES issued previous to the year 1850. Persons possessing any of these are requested to communicate at once with Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS" (REG.)

Conductor—Mr. JOSEF CANTOR.

Engagements fulfilled, Season 1886-1887:—

Leeds	Coliseum	4 Concerts.
Manchester	Free Trade Hall and Y.M.C.A.	3 Concerts.
Preston	New Public Hall	3 Concerts.
Halifax	Subscription Concerts	2 Concerts.
Bradford	St. George's Hall	3 Concerts.
Bolton	Albert and Temperance Halls	3 Concerts.
Huddersfield	Subscription Concerts
Worcester	Subscription Concerts
Liverpool	Hengler's Cirque
Bury	Co-operative Hall
Stalybridge	Town Hall
Leeds	Literary Society	2 Concerts.
Blackburn	Town Hall

&c., &c.

The répertoire of this Concert Company embraces selections from thirty different Operas, including "Tannhäuser," "Mefistofele," "Nadeshda," "Esmeralda," "La Gioconda," "Irene," "Carmen," "Oberon," "Talismano," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "Lily of Killarney," &c., &c.

The personnel comprises twenty-two Artists, all of whom are thoroughly competent Soloists. Selections are also introduced from the lighter compositions of Balfe, Wallace, Clay, Offenbach, Suppé, Cellier, Audran, and the Gilbert-Sullivan series.

Mr. Cantor is now booking dates for the Autumn and Winter of 1887, and will be pleased to forward full particulars, specimen programmes, &c., on application.

Address, Church Street, Liverpool. Telegrams—"Cantor," Liverpool.

OXFORD (New College).—CHORISTERS WANTED.—TRIAL of BOYS' VOICES on Friday, June 24. For particulars, apply to The Precentor, New College, Oxford.

CONTRALTO WANTED, at the Unitarian Church, Upper Street, Islington. £10 per annum. Apply to T. R. Crozer, 114, Wood Street, Cheapside.

WANTED, for a Church close to Sydenham Hill Station (L. C. & D. R.), an ALTO SINGER. Sundays, 11 and 7, and Friday evening practice. £18 per annum. Apply, by letter only, with copies of testimonials as to voice and character, to Mr. Herbert Green, Wallington, Surrey.

WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road, at the end of June, a MALE ALTO VOICE. Salary to begin at £8 per annum. Apply, by letter, to the Rector, 27, John Street, Bedford Row, W.C.

TENOR WANTED, for St. German's Church, Blackheath. Must have good voice, able to take solos, and read well. Communicant. Salary, £15. Friday evening practice. Sunday services, morning and evening. Apply, by letter, to E. Cattermole, 85, Maryon Road, Old Charlton, S.E.

TENOR WANTED, for a Presbyterian Church in the W. district. Must be a good reader. Salary, £10. Apply, by letter only, B. B., 2, St. John's Wood Terrace, N.W.

BASS (not Baritone) WANTED, at the Catholic Church, Clapham, S.W. Service on Sunday morning and weekly rehearsal. £15 per annum. For Christmas Day, Good Friday, and seven other week-day morning services, 5s. for each service. Address to the Organist.

WANTED, at ST. MARY'S, Bourdon Street, W., a BASS (not Baritone). Two Services on Sundays and a Practice on Thursday evenings. Stipend, £10 per annum. Also, a Deputy-Organist and Choirmaster for three Sundays, commencing June 26. Apply at the Church, on Tuesday evenings, at 8.30.

ST. STEPHEN'S, South Kensington.—BASS WANTED, £20 to £25; TENOR, £20 to £25; and BOY, £10. Apply to Mr. Hamilton Robinson, 49, Tulse Hill, S.W.

AS BASS SOLOIST or CHOIRMASTER and SOLO BASS.—A Gentleman with excellent references, age 29, with twelve years' College, Cathedral, and Church experience in the above capacities, now holding a post as Principal in Paris, and studying under the best masters, will be at liberty, early in September, to accept an engagement as above. Address, Musicus, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. GEORGE J. BENNETT, having returned from Germany, is prepared to receive PUPILS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c. Address, 1, Berners Street, W., or 5, Hall Road, Maida Vale, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby).
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MADAME PALMIRA BONVINI (Soprano).
MADAME EMILIE YOUNG (Contralto).
At liberty for Summer Concerts. Agent, Walden, Liverpool.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield St., or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS CONWAY (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS HILDA COWARD (Soprano).
For Oratorios, &c., 4, Strafford Road, Twickenham.

MISS ELLA DALY (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., address, Mr. F. W. Holder, Music Warehouse, Hull.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS LEVINA FERRARI (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Music Warehouse, 15, Park Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MISS HATTIE HICKLING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. William Shakespeare).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 51, St. Mary's Road, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano),
3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS LILY MARSHALL-WARD (Soprano).
MISS JESSIE MARSHALL-WARD (Contralto).
Address, 80, Addison Street, Nottingham.

MISS ELLIOT RICHARDS (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 9, Oakley Street, Northampton.

MRS. STONELEIGH (Soprano)
(Advanced Honours Certificate, N.S.P.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 67, Barton Arcade, Manchester.
"One of our most promising local sopranî."—Musical Times (London), June, 1886.
"Possesses a voice of excellent quality and range."—Musical Standard (London).

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).
MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS KATHERINE JAMES (Mezzo or Soprano).
(Medalist and Certificate-holder of the Royal Academy of Music.)
33, Knowle Road, Brixton, S.W.

MISS MAY LAMBOURNE (Mezzo-Soprano).
St. George's Villa, St. James's Road, Upper Tooting, S.W.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby, and Assistant Professor in her Academy; also Professor in the Hyde Park Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS DEWS (Contralto),
Waterloo Road North, Wolverhampton.

MISS MARY EDYTHS (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., care of Mr. Alf. H. Day, Professor of Music, 2, Argyll Street, W.

MISS KATE E. FOUNTAIN (Contralto),
32, Formosa Street, Maida Vale, W.

MRS. GREENE (Contralto).
For Miscellaneous and Ballad Concerts. Exceptional lower register.
Address, 79, Norfolk Street, King's Lynn.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).
(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)
For Oratorios, Ballads, Pianoforte and Vocal Recitals, and Musical Lectures, 4, Valentine Street, Norwich. London Referees: Miss Selina Quick (Soprano, R.A.M.), 6, Brooklyn Road, Shepherd's Bush, W., and Mdme. Vinning O'Leary, 9, Notting Hill Square, London, W.
The Recitals consist of Sacred, Classical, Operatic, and Modern Selections, and the Lectures are on Mendelssohn, Mozart, Beethoven, &c., and are largely interspersed with appropriate Pianoforte and Vocal items rendered by Miss Poock.

MADAME OSBORNE WILLIAMS (Contralto),
50, Loudoun Road, N.W.

MADAME DE LISLE (Contralto).
(Pupil of T. A. Walworth, Esq., R.A.M., London.)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 6, Wood View Terrace, Archway Road, Highgate, London, N.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE (Contralto)
(Honours Certificate Royal Academy).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MR. JOSEPH HEALD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 33, Endlesham Road, Balham, London, S.W.

MR. MALDWYN HUMPHREYS (Tenor).
(Pupil of Signor Randegger.)
Holder of the "Evill" Prize, Royal Academy of Music. Address, 2, Russell Gardens, Kensington, London, W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
"Sang excellently throughout, with great power and genuine art."—Kentish Gazette, May 7, 1887.
Address, The Cathedral, Canterbury.

MR. S. THORNBOROUGH (Tenor).
Répertoire: "Andromeda," "Redemption," "Elijah," "Creation," "Messiah," "Judas Maccabæus," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," "Acis and Galatea," Masses, &c. Address, 125, Montague Street, Blackburn.

MR. W. J. INESON (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; Quartet also provided. Address, The Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. ARTHUR M. SHORE, R.C.M. (Baritone)
(Pupil of Signori Alberto Visetti and Franco Novara).
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. Has vacancies for pupils for Singing and Violin. 2, Salisbury Terrace, West Kensington Park.

MR. C. D. COLLET (Bass).
Teacher of Singing, 7, Coleridge Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MR. ALISON LISTER (Basso),
48, Garfield Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass)
And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. EDWARD MILLS.
Baritone and Bass Parts, &c., 35, Knowle Road, S.W.

MR. HENRY POPE (Bass).
At liberty for Oratorios, Concerts, Opera, &c., 20, Bishop's Road, W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass),
51, Pentonville Road, N.

MISS FRASER POOLE (Pianist).
(Pupil of Herr Ernst Pauer.)
For Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c., Oakhill, Beckenham, S.E.

MADAME GEORGE-FORTESCUE.
Solo and Orchestral Harpist, of St. James's Hall, Prince's Hall, London, and other London and Provincial Concerts.
H. T. GEORGE-FORTESCUE (Violoncellist).
Address, Raneleigh Street, Hereford.

MADAME ANNIE ALBU is open to accept Concert and Oratorio ENGAGEMENTS during the coming Season. For terms, address, 10, Albert Terrace, Blackpool; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, London, W.

MISS MARIE AMBROISE (Soprano), Pupil of Mr. John Stedman—"Gained an enthusiastic encore for her really fine rendering of 'Il Bacio.'"—The Independent, May 7, 1887. Letters, 12, Upper Spring Street, Portman Square, W.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 44, Alexandra Road, London, N.W., or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME WORRELL (Soprano), Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, begs to announce that she has REMOVED to 69, Wiltshire Road, Brixton, S.W., where all communications respecting engagements for Concerts, &c., should be addressed.

MISS EMILY CLARKE (Contralto) (Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby) has returned to Town, and can accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An artist in every sense of the word, and one of the purest and most charming contraltos that we have heard for some time."—Tunbridge Wells Gazette. Address, 14, Leinster Square, Hyde Park, W.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM (Tenor), of St. Paul's Cathedral, begs to state that he has booked the following engagements given in honour of the Queen's Jubilee: Festival at Aldgate Parish Church, City; performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" at King's College, Cambridge; also at a Grand Reception given by the Mayor and Corporation at the Spa, Scarborough; also at St. Dionis Church, Parsons Green; also at St. Saviour's Church, Croydon. He is engaged to sing at several banquets given by the City Companies in honour of the event. For vacant dates address, Grovedale, Parsons Green, S.W.

MR. HOLBERRY HAGYARD (Tenor) is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. References kindly permitted to Ebenezer Prout, Esq., 12, Greenwood Road, Dalston, N.; Dr. C. Swinnerton Heap (Conductor of the Wolverhampton Festival), Clarendon Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham; John North, Esq. (Conductor of the Huddersfield Festival); August Manns, Esq., Crystal Palace, Sydenham, &c. Engaged: Crystal Palace, May 23; Cambridge Choir Mutual Aid Festival, June 7; University Musical Society Concert, 9; Conversazione, 22; Dover, Miscellaneous, 25; Aylsham, July 5; Cheltenham, October 26; Nottingham Philharmonic Society, "Elijah," March 22, 1888. Others pending. For terms, vacant dates, address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS requests that all communications be addressed to 30, St. Stephen's Avenue, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MR. BARTON McGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming Season. Address, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W., or, 270, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

MR. HENRY CROSS, A.R.C.M. (Certificate of Proficiency for Public Singing, Royal College of Music, April, 1887), BARITONE, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, and Westminster Abbey. Address, Concordia, Manor Park Road, Harlesden, N.W.

MR. FREDERIC KING begs to announce his REMOVAL to St. Fillans, 19, Canfield Gardens, Finchley New Road, N.W., where communications respecting engagements may be addressed.

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY (Baritone Vocalist) requests that all communications concerning Engagements be addressed to N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, Bond Street, W.; or, for At Homes, &c., to Mitchell's, Old Bond Street, W.

MR. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone) can accept CONTINUOUS provincial engagements (seaside, &c.): June 17—23, July 27—Aug. 20, Sept. 9—15, Oct. 12—18. Permanent address, 35, Knowle Road, London, S.W.

"The programme provided for the immense audience which crowded the Corn Exchange was irreproachably excellent in every respect. It was a stroke of good policy to engage Mr. EDWARD MILLS, who made such a favourable impression here a few weeks ago. Mr. Mills has a voice of rich quality and exceptional strength, whilst his technique commands admiration."—Northampton Mercury, April 16.

MR. W. H. BURGON, late Principal Bass of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and also of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, Sacred Harmonic Society, &c., begs to give notice that he is now at liberty for Oratorios and Concerts. All communications to 21, Westbourne Park Crescent, W.

MR. LAWFORD HUXTABLE (Bass-Baritone), Pupil of Signor Alberto Randegger, is open to accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.; or, 14, Regent Street, Clifton.

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace, London, begs that all communications be addressed, 87, Malvern Road, N.W.

MISS CONSTANCE BERESFORD, Lyric Authoress, will gladly send Composers Lyrics in all styles, on approval. Words written or adapted to MS. Address, 23, Corrance Road, Brixton.

MISS BERTHA McBLAIN, L.R.A.M., gives LESSONS in PIANOFORTE. Pupils prepared for Examinations. 15, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

PROFESSORSHIP of SOLFEGGIO and VOICE PRODUCTION.—The Committee of the Cork School of Music desire to fill the VACANCY caused by the death of the late Professor, and are prepared to receive applications and testimonials on or before June 1, 1887. Particulars may be had on application, in writing, to the Hon. Secretary, Arthur Hill, M.R.I.A., Hon. Sec.

TUITION, by CORRESPONDENCE, for the Musical Examinations held by Trinity College, London, the Colleges of Organists, Preceptors, and the Universities. Single subjects taught. Full particulars from James Jennings and Co., Deptford, London.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON. (1885), and T.C.D. (1884), MUS. BAC., OXON. (1886); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., CANTAB.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (May, 1886), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1886), L.R.A.M. (1887); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1836), N.S.P.M. (1886); Toronto (1887, 1st Class in Final Examination), F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 250 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885, 1886, and 1887. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, &c., by post. 9, Avington Grove, Penge, S.E.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. JOHN GREIG, M.A., Mus. Bac., F.C.O., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and FUGUE by correspondence. Was successful in coaching for Final Mus. Bac., Oxon., 1886. Address, 7, Scotland Street, Edinburgh.

MR. W. HANNAFORD, Mus. Bac., Cantab., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by CORRESPONDENCE, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Terms moderate. Address, Stoke, Devonport.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by Post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: Trinity College, London, 1887; College of Organists, 1887; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1887; First, Second, and Final Examinations, with first on list in Final; A.R.C.M., 1887. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

DR. HULTON MIDDLETON, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares Candidates for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Glossop Road, Sheffield.

MR. REGINALD B. MOORE, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., gives LESSONS in COUNTERPOINT, HARMONY, &c., and prepares Candidates for Examinations by Correspondence. Address, Kenilworth, York Road, Exeter.

MR. HENRY PIGGOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS by Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and other branches of the THEORY of MUSIC. Candidates prepared for Musical Examinations. Terms moderate. Alton, Hants.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M. in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Latest successes: Mus. Bac., Final, Cantab., 1886; A.C.O. and L.R.A.M. in Composition, 1887. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

MR. HENRY J. WOOD is open to receive Pupils for Pianoforte and Organ. New Organs opened and Recitals given in town or country. Address, 185, Oxford Street, London, W.

A YOUNG GERMAN LADY is desirous of giving LESSONS in MUSIC (Piano, Theory, Duet-Playing). Has been Pupil at R.A. in Berlin and Pupil of Bülow. Address, 67, Blenheim Crescent, Notting Hill, W.

PIANO, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT.—LESSONS given Personally, or by Correspondence. Own or Pupil's Residence. Schools attended. Local Secretary, Musical International College. Miss Champion, A.Mus. T.C.L., 7, Weymouth St., W.

HARMONY, &c., by Post. MSS. examined and corrected on moderate terms. G. Minns, Ely.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c., blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

TO PARENTS and GUARDIANS.—ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED by an Organist of great experience (Mus. Bac., Cantab.). Comfortable home in a very healthy part of the country near London. Thorough training for an organist's profession. For terms, apply Mus. Bac. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—The Organist of Sevenoaks Parish Church has a VACANCY for above. Full Choral Service; three-manual organ; and every facility for a thorough musical education. Moderate terms. Address, Arthur W. Marchant, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., Sandrock, Sevenoaks.

THE Organist of Sevenoaks Parish Church can offer BOARD and RESIDENCE to a gentleman desiring a Country Home for the summer months. Lessons on the organ, piano, harmony and counterpoint (if required). Good service of trains if engaged during the day in the City. Late dinner. Tennis. Address, Arthur W. Marchant, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., Sandrock, Sevenoaks.

TO MUSICIANS and ARTISTS.—Comfortable ROOMS (Residential or otherwise) can be had at a moderate rent in a fine new building, in a central position, close to the Strand. Lighted throughout by Electric Light, and fitted with every convenience. Apply at the Collector's Office, in the Hall of 63 and 64, Chancery Lane, W.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for St. Peter's Church, Drogheda. Salary, £50. Send original testimonials at once, to Dillon Lawson, Hon. Sec., Select Vestry, Bank of Ireland, Drogheda.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Closeburn Church. Salary, £30. A few private pupils may be expected. Apply, Mrs. Brown, Closeburn Castle, Thornhill, Dumfriesshire.

ORGANIST WANTED (June 28), for Holy Trinity, Lambeth, S.E. Salary, £20. Apply to Vicar, not later than June 5, with testimonials.

ORGANIST WANTED. Communicant preferred. Good references essential. Must be able to train Choir. Anglican Music, Choral Services. Surpliced choir. Two-manual organ. Full compass pedals. Salary, £40. Address, Vicar, Holy Trinity, Ashby-de-la-Zouch.

THE Trustees of Barry Road Wesleyan Chapel will require an ORGANIST at Midsummer next. Salary, £30. Application, by letter only, to Mr. Benjamin Lamb, Fairfield, East Dulwich Green, S.E. (Wesleyan preferred).

CHOIRMASTER.—The Committee of the Chelsea Musical Society wishes to obtain the services of a Gentleman as HONORARY CHOIRMASTER. Applications for the appointment must be made in writing, and sent, on or before June 7, to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. Fred. Bailey, 5, Stadium Street, Chelsea, S.W., who will furnish any information desired.

ORGAN, CHOIR, required (Midsummer or later), by thoroughly experienced, efficient man—Gregorians or Anglicans—any service—with COUNTRY SCHOOL, wife being trained certificated Mistress, or with permanent employment as TUNER. Valuable testimonials of character and ability. Organist, Cleeve, Bristol.

MR. R. F. TYLER, F.C.O., L.Mus., is open to accept an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER in London or suburbs, S.E. district preferred; 15 years' experience. Apply to 2, Eglinton Terrace, Woolwich.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Cathedral training), communicant, will be open to an engagement next month in a town where there is a good opening for a Music and Singing Master (Violinist). Excellent testimonials and references. Address, Organist, care of Mrs. Lyon, Cricket St. Thomas, Chard, Somerset.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Accessible from Victoria. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

TO SEASIDE and COUNTRY ORGANISTS.—ORGANIST (F.C.O.), of City Church (London), would DEPUTISE, during August or September, in exchange for board and lodging. Address, Diapason, Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

TO SEASIDE ORGANISTS.—Advertiser (F.C.O. and Cathedral Organist) will be open to take duties during the month of August in return for use of rooms. Address, Zoë, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO SEASIDE ORGANISTS.—A London Organist (F.C.O., &c.) can accept an ENGAGEMENT as DEPUTY for two or three Sundays in August. Accustomed to Gregorian and Anglican Chants, Choral Celebrations, and Oratorio Selections. D. H., London Music Publishing Co., 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

TO Country and Seaside ORGANISTS requiring a Deputy during July. Address, Pro., 38, Great Dover Street, Borough, S.E.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS.—MR. ERNEST WINCHESTER, Organist and Choirmaster at Christ Church, Southwark, London, is open to EXCHANGE Church Duties, or to Deputise, at a Seaside Town, for the month of August. Exchange of Residence may also be negotiated. Address, 11, Granard Road, Wandsworth Common, London, S.W.

DEPUTY ORGANIST for Holidays, &c.—Professional Gentleman (late Deputy to Mr. Sidney Naylor) offers services. Moderate terms. J. Cowen, Standard, St. Bride St., E.C.

DEPUTY.—MR. W. H. TREFFRY, Organist, French Protestant Church, Bloomsbury Street, W., desires a DEPUTY for Sunday Afternoons. Use of good Organ offered in return for services. Address as above.

ORGANIST (late of large Parish Church, London) will take Sunday duty during June, July, and August, at any CHAPEL in Southsea, Eastbourne, or Hastings, in return for lodging only, or for a nominal salary. Will accept permanent post on the South Coast where there is a good Organ. First-class references and testimonials. Address, G. W. B., 8, Coningham Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TO CLERGYMEN.—Advertiser, at present Organist and Choirmaster of an important Church in a Northern Town, and possessing excellent testimonials as to character and musical ability, is desirous of meeting with a similar position in the Midland or Southern Counties, and where there is ample scope for a good Teaching Connection. Address, with full particulars, to Astral, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, by a Young Man, 24. Excellent testimonials; 10 years' experience, including one year abroad. J. Barfoot, 102, Surrey Lane, Battersea, S.W.

A YOUNG LADY offers her services as ASSISTANT ORGANIST at a church in the N.E. of London, in return for Organ Practice. No salary required. Address, Z. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, first-class TUNER, who also understands Regulating and Repairing. Apply, by letter only, to C. Bechstein, 445, Oxford Street, W.

TUNER.—WANTED, good sound TUNER; able also to tune American Organs and Harmoniums. First-class references required. Liberal salary and commission. Age not above 40. Apply (with photo) to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

WANTED.—Thoroughly good TUNER. Must be a steady respectable Man, with good address, not under thirty. Permanent and comfortable situation to an energetic man. Somerset, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER is required for Country. Must thoroughly understand Pianos, Harmoniums, and American Organs. State salary required and full particulars. Permanent engagement. W. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED, by a Country House, for Outdoor Work. Permanent Engagement for one who knows his business thoroughly, and is of good character and conduct. Address to O. U., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE REPAIRER.—WANTED, a First-class REPAIRER and REGULATOR of the Pianoforte, American Organ, and Harmonium. Regular employment offered to a suitable man. Wages required and references to F. H. Browne, 10A, High Street, Deal.

COLLARD TUNER requires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Outdoor preferred. Thorough knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums. Good appearance and address. Excellent character and testimonials. Married, age 31. Send full particulars to Trichord, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A YOUNG MAN, who is blind, seeks EMPLOYMENT as PIANOFORTE TUNER (in or out of doors). Is a first-class Tuner, understands Harmoniums and American Organs, and can play well. Can go about alone. Excellent testimonials and references. Address, R. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

AN experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER is open to Quarterly or Monthly ENGAGEMENTS. Town or country. J. S., 527, Fulham Road, Walham Green.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Reliable and steady. Harmoniums, American Organs, Repairs, &c. References good. Tuner F. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

LADY REQUIRED, for MUSIC and PIANOFORTE DEPARTMENTS of a Provincial Establishment. Must be an experienced saleswoman. Enclose stamped addressed envelope, with carte and fullest particulars; state age, nature of experience, and salary required. Address, No. 450, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MUSIC SALESMAN.—WANTED, for a Business in Lancashire doing a large counter trade, an intelligent SALESMAN, with a thorough knowledge of the Music Catalogues. Salary, £2 to £3 per week and a commission according to ability. Apply (with references and photo) to Semibreve, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, SLEEPING PARTNER in an old Established MUSIC and PIANOFORTE BUSINESS (Manchester), with capital, to extend the Hire System, or would arrange with a firm to push their instruments. Address, Hirer, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.
CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

REPAIRER and REGULATOR.—A Dealer can recommend an employé as a first-class workman. Fair Tuner. Factory experience. W. F., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

IMPROVER.—WANTED, to place a respectable Young Man as IMPROVER in a PIANOFORTE WAREHOUSE. Good performer on Piano and Organ. References. Small premium if indoor. Address, Improver, 1, West Parade, Scarborough.

YOUNG MAN requires SITUATION in MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Thoroughly acquainted with the Trade. Pianist. Town or country. Address, E. C., 102, Liverpool Road, N.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENT in MUSIC WAREHOUSE in London, Brighton, or Eastbourne, by Lady. Good Pianist and American Organist. Ethel, 4, Haredown Terrace, Babbacombe, S. Devon.

TRAVELLER.—An experienced Traveller, well-known throughout the Trade, and now representing a leading Firm of Pianoforte Makers, is open to taking a SECOND COMMISSION. Apply by letter to Viator, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

DISPOSAL.—Old-established MUSIC BUSINESS at Seaside, North Wales. Steady hiring trade, yielding upwards of £160 per annum. Good tuning connection. Opening for efficient Teacher. Rent (house and shop), £40. Price merely nominal. Executor, 1, Gladstone Road, Birmingham.

ESTABLISHED MUSIC BUSINESS, must be SOLD (through death); in a large musical Town. Suitable for a pushing Man, with knowledge of Tuning and Repairing. Position excellent, rent low. Stock: Pianos, Music, and Small Goods. Small capital required. Apply, 23, Arcade, Leeds.

SMALL MUSIC BUSINESS and TUNING CONNECTION for DISPOSAL, in a Town with 800 population. First-class opening for a young man. Nice Shop, with low rent. About £150 worth of instruments. Address, first place, Organist, G. Henstridge, Somerset.

FOR SALE, MUSIC BUSINESS (North), with STOCK of INSTRUMENTS, Small Goods, Sheet Music, and extensive Tuning Connection, including Pony and Trap. Satisfactory reasons. J. E. J., Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., Post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 14th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, Paris, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,
PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.
Catalogues and testimonials Post-free on application.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

VERY IMPORTANT NOTICE
REGARDING THE
Collin-Mézin Violins and Violoncellos.

The Profession, Trade, and the public generally are cautioned against accepting as my make any Instrument not bearing my signature. All persons seeing such Instruments offered as mine would oblige me very much by informing me, and whoever may possess any said to be of my manufacture, though unsigned, should send them to me, stating where bought and the price paid. My Instruments are all very distinctly signed by my own hand, on the inside of the back, near the sound-post, in addition to the printed label bearing my name and address, the year of make, and my Trade Mark (label and signature patented), and this independently of other marks, dates, and initials, the authenticity of which can only be ascertained upon opening the instruments. COLLIN-MEZIN.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogues on application. Parcels of music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. Peck, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

TRANSPOSITIONS legibly written at 6d. per folio manuscript page. Professional, 20, St. Michael's Road, Wallington, Surrey.

MUSIC neatly and accurately COPIED or TRANSPOSED at 6d. per page (inclusive). Address, Breve, 24, Hanover Street, Peckham, S.E.

THE UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY (Established 1854) is the largest in the world. Subscription £2 2s. per annum, £1 8s. per half year, &c. Music can be selected at end of term as subscribers' property equal to one-half of their subscription at full price. All music, English and foreign, &c., promptly supplied. For prospectuses apply to Charles Woolhouse, Proprietor, 81, Regent Street, London, W.

TO TUNERS.—ONE GUINEA REWARD for INFORMATION as to whereabouts of BLACK PIANETTE, by THOMAS OETZMANN, No. 12,069 (Stolen). Address, in confidence, J. G. Morley, 6, Sussex Place, South Kensington.

TO MUSIC PUBLISHERS and Others.—Excellent GROUND FLOOR Offices in best part of Berners Street, Oxford Circus, W., TO LET. Apply to Hopkins and Co., 27, Mortimer Steeet, W.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.
(Late of Coventry Street),
WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF MUSICAL STRINGS
FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.
NO OTHER ADDRESS.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent Post-free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

JUBILEE GIFTS. — Warranted infinite value, beauty, power, and durability. MAYSON'S VIOLINS, varnished by WOOD, are at once unique and unsurpassable. Wood, Artist, Blindley Heath, Redhill.

NICOLAS AMATI VIOLIN.—To Violinists, Collectors, and Connoisseurs.—A genuine CREMONA VIOLIN, in good condition, by this celebrated maker, for SALE, price 75 guineas; also, a splendid specimen (certified) of a Tourte Bow, gold mounted. Price 20 guineas, or offers. Both may be seen and tried by appointment. Address, Mr. Jewson, 34, Clarendon Gardens, W.

VIOLIN.—Fine tone, about 100 years old; perfect condition. Price 11 guineas. G. Gray, Fairseat, Anerley, S.E.

FOR SALE, the ORGAN now standing in the Midland Institution for the Blind, Nottingham, containing 2 manuals, 14 stops, and 3 composition pedals; in oak case, gilt front pipes; 2 octaves of German pedals. Sweet toned. Suitable for Church, Chapel, or Chamber. For price and particulars, apply to the Secretary.

MAGNIFICENT Chancel, Library, or Hall ORGAN, in oak case of elaborate design by Seddon, with panels by Westlake. 8 feet front, handsomely decorated; one-manual and pedal; seven stops. Small Church Organ, two manuals and pedal, pitch pine case, 8 feet decorated front. Ten stops, almost new. Also several second-hand Organs. Gray and Davison, 370, Euston Road, N.W.

CHAMBER ORGAN, nearly new, for SALE. Two manuals, 6 stops, delicately voiced; full compass pedal board. Bourdon could be easily added. Elegant case, diapered pipes. Bargain to immediate purchaser owing to probable removal of owner. S. T. P., Terry, Stoneman and Co., 6, Hatton Garden, E.C.

ORGAN (Chamber or small Church). Built for owner, 1885. Two manuals; 7 stops; coupler; Bourdon pedals. Spotted metal front. Price £80. Address, Organist, Church House, Salisbury.

ON SALE.—ORGAN.—Congregational Church, Cheadle, Hulme, Cheshire. To make room for larger instrument. Two manuals, 15 stops, pedals, &c. Address, Organist.

ORGAN (fine-toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

ORGAN.—WANTED, to PURCHASE a second-hand ORGAN. Two manuals, in good condition; about £150. Send particulars to Plant Coldrey, Narbro, Wood Green, N.

CLARABELLA ORGANS and PATENT REED ACTIONS. Worcester, Mass., U.S.A. Prices lower than any other first grade organs. New improvements and reed effects. Catalogues from Sole Wholesale Manager, 9, North Place, Cheltenham, England.

FOR SALE, AMERICAN ORGAN; 2 manuals and pedals, walnut case; nearly new. A. C., 80, King Street, Camden Town, N.W.

TWO-MANUAL Pedal HARMONIUM for SALE. Full compass; 14 stops; foot and side blowers. Price £42. X. Y. Z., 54, Lorne Terrace, Greenwich.

ORGAN PEDALS, for Pianoforte, for Sale. Concave; radiated. Nearly new. Stool, &c. Price £3. Apply to J. Nash, 3, Parade, Canterbury.

MESSRS. BEARE AND SON
MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,
STRINGS, FITTINGS, &c.,
34, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.
MERCHANTS, SHIPPERS, AND THE TRADE SUPPLIED.

BEARE and SON invite an inspection of their unrivalled Collection of OLD VIOLINS, TENORS, CELLOS, and DOUBLE-BASSES. All genuine examples of the celebrated OLD MASTERS, from £5 upwards.
Over Three Hundred Old Instruments from which to select.
Sole Wholesale Agents for JAMES TUBBS's celebrated BOWS.
The only Makers of the New Queen's Model PIANO and AMERICAN ORGAN CHAIRS (as exhibited at the International Exhibitions). Metal tube frames, gilt with the best gold bronze, shaped seats, upholstered to taste, from £1 11s. 6d.
TOY INSTRUMENTS and MUSIC, for the Performance of Toy Symphonies, from 18s. 6d. per set, including Music. Lists of Toy Symphony Music, and Instruments required, sent on application.
BRASS and WOOD INSTRUMENTS of every kind, at lowest possible prices.
HARPS bought, sold, or taken in exchange.
REPAIRS of every kind of Musical Instrument executed promptly by experienced Workmen.

NEWLY REVISED AND ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE JUST OUT.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.
Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.
Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

EUSTACE INGRAM
ORGAN BUILDER,
BURNARD PLACE, HOLLOWAY, LONDON, N.
Tone very sweet, characteristic, and sonorous; reeds smooth, even, and brilliant; action absolutely noiseless, light, and elastic, with most perfect repetition. Unrivalled for standing in tune and repair. Prices most reasonable.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

ALFRED MONK'S JUBILEE ORGANS.—Three manuals, 22 stops, the most valuable and effective selection of high-class stops. Full rich cathedral tone. The most serviceable and desirable Organ for modern requirements ever constructed for the remarkable price of £300. Unrivalled in quality of tone, mechanism, and workmanship. Four-manual Organs, 50 stops, £1,200. Several new and second-hand two-manual Organs, ready for sale or hire, or on the three years system. Organs built to any specification and dimensions. Highest class of stops, and most complete and perfect in scales. All Organs constructed of first-class materials and workmanship. Tuners sent to all parts of the kingdom. Estimates, price list, and fifty testimonials sent free. Organ Works and Show Rooms, 550, Holloway Road, London. Inspection invited. Organ Practice, 1s. per hour.

NORWICH.

VALUABLE ORCHESTRAL ORGAN, suitable for a Concert Room, Town Hall, or Church, recently built for Oak Lodge, Thorpe, Norwich.

MESSRS. SPELMAN have received instructions to Sell by Auction, with the Furniture and Effects, on THURSDAY, June 16 (after the Sale of the Estate),

THE MAGNIFICENT ORGAN,

Built under the immediate supervision of the Proprietor; comprising Pedal, Choir, Great, Swell, Echo, and Solo Organs, on 4 Manuals and Pedal; 45 sounding stops, 8 couplers, 9 pedal movements, and 15 pneumatic combinations. The key and pedal action and couplers are tubular pneumatic throughout. The wind is supplied by 4 feeders, with automatic gearing, and a half-horse power Otto gas engine. The Organ has been worked out and built during a period of several years, and no care and cost have been spared (either in the mechanism or tone) in producing an Instrument at once grand and unique.
Catalogues, with full description and specification, may be had of Messrs. SPELMAN, Norwich and Great Yarmouth.

WANTED, on HIRE, for about Two Years, a very powerful HARMONIUM (with pedals preferred), suitable for a large Church. Send terms to Ferris Tozer, 4, Eaton Place, Exeter.

FOR SALE or EXCHANGE, a PIANISTA (Thibouville-Lamy's patent). Quite new; perfect order. For particulars apply, A. B., 31, Park Road, Hull.

RUMMENS'
ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR PIANOFORTES.

FOR THE HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

ALWAYS READY FOR USE, AT ANY TIME, FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME. NO BLOWIST REQUIRED.

Price, complete, £8 8s. Coll. Org. or any other Pedal Board, detachable—i.e., instantly removed and replaced, 5s. extra.

These Pedals have been before the musical public for some years, and are always recommended by the entire musical profession as a perfect substitute for the Organ for practice. They are the best London make, and guaranteed to stand any amount of use. With Pedal Frame and Seat, French polished to match Piano, they are a positive ornament to any room.

Extracts from a few Testimonials.

DR. STAINER—"For those who wish to study Organ Music in their own homes I know of nothing more valuable than this Pedal Attachment."

DR. MARTIN—"It gives me much pleasure to be able to say that I think very highly of your clever mechanism for applying Organ Pedals to the Pianoforte."

DR. STEGGALL—"I have recommended these Pedals with great confidence, and they have in all cases given perfect satisfaction."

DR. BRIDGE—"A successful invention, and one which will give satisfaction to those who use it."

DR. FROST—"Every organ student who aspires to become a facile pedallist should have a set in the house."

E. H. TURPIN, Esq.—"In short, I can strongly recommend Mr. Rummens' pedal action and its application to the pianoforte."

ADDRESS—HENRY J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

TWO-MANUAL ORGANS for SALE. Church or Chapel. 26, 16, 10, and 8 stops. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Manchester, S.W.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists Post-free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

ORGAN for SALE. Nearly new. 4 stops on great, all through; 6 stops on swell, four through; bourdon on pedals. All metal pipes made of spotted metal. Full particulars of W. White, Music Warehouse, Grantham.

120-GUINEA BOUDOIR GRAND PIANO, by BRINSMEAD and SONS (new, October, 1883), in capital condition, for SALE. Price 65 Guineas net. Rosewood Case, Patent Perfect Check-repeater Action, Sostenente Sounding Board, Complete Metal Frame, Tone-sustaining Pedal, &c. May be viewed, by appointment with "Amateur," Wood View, Somerset Road, New Barnet (G.N.R. Main Line). No Dealers.

PIANOS.—An Amateur Musician, possessing an Erard Grand and a Broadwood Cottage, each in perfect condition, wishes to sell one at half-price. Write to Secretary, 13, New Bridge Street, E.C.

TO ORGANISTS in want of good VOLUNTARIES, &c.—Quantity of ORGAN MUSIC for SALE, very cheap. Names of pieces sent Post-free. Apply, D. R. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE, about 250 Copies of ANDERTON'S Cantata JOHN GILPIN, all in first-class condition. 1s. 3d. per copy, published at 3s. 6d. Apply Hy. Parker, 33, Brighton Road, Moseley, Birmingham.

AUTHORS' COMPOSITIONS, arranged for String or Military Band. MSS. revised for publication. Hermann Vanderline, 19, Canterbury Terrace, New Brompton, Kent.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guis., 17 guis., 20 guis., &c.; Organs, 5 guis., 11 guis., 15 guis., 24 guis., &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement E.C.

SPEAKERS and SINGERS give unqualified praise to BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES. They clear the throat, and give tone and power to the vocal organs. (See Testimonials from Mrs. Scott Siddons, Mr. Farley Sinkins, &c.) In tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., of all Chemists. Post, 14 and 33 stamps, from Basker and Co., Chemists, Bridgwater.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, Post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

NEW HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

THE THREE MERRY DWARFS
BY
A. C. MACKENZIE.

PRICE FOURPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S
TONIC SOL-FA SERIES

(Over 550 numbers now ready)

EDITED BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

New works by the most eminent composers are constantly being added, the following having recently been published: "Judas Maccabæus," "St. Paul," Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty," Gounod's "Mors et Vita" (Latin and English), Romberg's "Lay of the Bell," Benedict's "St. Cecilia," Dr. Bridge's "Rock of Ages," Gade's "Christmas Eve," "Spring's Message," Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," "The Messiah," Barnby's "Rebekah," Sullivan's "Golden Legend," Stanford's "Revenge," Corder's "The Bridal of Triermain," and Pergolesi's Stabat Mater (Female Voices).

These editions are uniform, words and music, with Novello's Staff Notation editions.

A new list (alphabetical and numerical) now ready, and may be had Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT: THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1886-7.

THE NEXT STUDENTS' ORCHESTRAL CONCERT will take place on Thursday, June 2, at Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, at 8 o'clock, when the programme will probably include: Overtures, "La Sirene" (Auber) and in C minor (Bradbury Turner); Movement from "Suite" (Frederick Corder); Largo (Frank Swinford); Movements from "Concertstucke" (Weber), and Concerto in E flat for Pianoforte (Beethoven); Concerto for Violin (Mendelssohn); Vocal Trio (Gordon Saunders), &c. Conductor, Mr. GEORGE MOUNT.

THE HALF-TERM COMMENCES JUNE 13,
When new Students are received.

MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS AND EXHIBITIONS.

The following Free Scholarships and Exhibitions will be competed for in July:—The Henry Smart and Queen Victoria Scholarships, the Benedict, the Reeves, the College Violin, the College Viola, the College Violoncello, and the College Double-Bass Exhibitions.

Tickets for the Concert, Prospectuses of the Department of Classes and Lectures, Regulations for the Scholarships, as well as for the Higher and Local Examinations of the College, can be had on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By order of the Academical Board.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITED
FOR

DRIVING ORGAN BELLOWS

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's " "
Lichfield "
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).
St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity "
Alnwick (Parish Church).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

COMPOSITIONS BY WALTER PORTER.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF E.

Price One Shilling.

TWO COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN

No. 1. Allegretto Grazioso in E flat. 1s. 6d. net.
" 2. Andantino in F. 1s. net.
Also, Three Short Andantes. Price, complete, 1s. 6d. net.

THREE PIECES FOR THE PIANOFORTE

No. 1. Gavotte in F. No. 2. Impromptu in B minor, each 1s. 6d. net.
No. 3. Impromptu in E flat, 2s. net.

ROMOLA. First Waltz for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS.

LET EVERY SOUL BE SUBJECT

COMPOSED FOR THE JUBILEE OF HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN
BY J. STAINER.
Price Three-halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.

THE TRIUMPH OF VICTORIA

MADRIGAL FOR S.S.A.T.B.
BY J. STAINER.
Price Sixpence. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

BLESSED BE THE LORD THY GOD

Dedicated by permission to Her Majesty the Queen, and, with Her Majesty's approval, appointed to be sung at the Royal Jubilee Service in Westminster Abbey, June 21, 1887.
COMPOSED BY
J. FREDERICK BRIDGE.
Price 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
This Anthem may be performed without further permission at any time on and after June 19.

JUBILEE FESTIVAL SERVICES.

THE RESPONSES
AND
PROPER PSALMS WITH CHANTS
FOR THE ACCESSION SERVICE.
Price 1½d.

THANKSGIVING TE DEUM
(In D).
COMPOSED BY SIR JOHN GOSS.
Vocal Score, folio, 2s.; ditto, 8vo, 6d.; Vocal parts, folio, 2s.

WILL BE PUBLISHED JUNE 20.

A JUBILEE ODE

FOR THE

FESTIVAL CONCERT

TO BE HELD AT THE

CRYSTAL PALACE,

JUNE 22, 1887.

WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

(OP. 36.)

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
JUNE 1, 1887.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

THE occurrence of Her Majesty's Jubilee naturally leads to a good deal of retrospect. It is, in the experience of thoughtful men, what gaining the top of an eminence is to a wayfarer. The pedestrian halts, turns, and surveys the road by which he has come, marking, from his point of 'vantage, all its features, and impressing them upon his memory before advancing further into the unknown. Nothing in life is more profitable than occupations analogous to this. True, the preachings of a different philosophy sometimes reach our ears. We are told that the dead past should be left to bury its dead and that, forgetting the things which are behind, we should press forward to those which are before. As a matter of fact, the past is only dead when it is forgotten. The remembered, or recorded, past is always alive, and the best preparation for reaping the harvest of the future is to study the experiences of those who lived in days gone by. We, therefore, propose joining the Jubilee retrospectors, and shall offer to our readers an outline of music in England during the reign of Queen Victoria, accompanied by such reflections as the matter seems to warrant.

Our task is, on the whole, a pleasant one. It would not at all suit a pessimist, for let him look at the musical period 1837-87 through any glasses he may he can see nothing to support his belief in degeneracy and retrogression. What if it be true that the art has at times seemed to go wrong and that its votaries have imagined a vain thing! These aberrations are only like eddies and back-waters on the margin of a noble stream which flows majestically on. The stream of music in England has, beyond question, so progressed. Between the state of things in our own day and that which obtained fifty years ago there can only be contrast, not comparison, for the advance has been one of steadily strengthening impetus till, at the present moment, it is more rapid and comprehensive than ever before.

Looking back over fifty years we seem to be contemplating the Middle Ages of music, as we now know it. The mightily prolific and most glorious period of German art had not come to end in 1837. Mendelssohn had just entered upon his best days—those lying between "St. Paul" (1836) and "Elijah" (1846). The masterpieces of Schumann were still some distance ahead; Spohr was flourishing like a green bay tree; Rossini had not perfected his "Stabat Mater"; Meyerbeer had just triumphed with the "Huguenots"; and Auber was writing the "Domino Noir." Many more than fifty years seem to separate these masters, as they were in 1837, from us who now look back upon them. Since then new men have come up, bringing new principles and new methods, so engrossing public attention that the heroes of only half-a-century back seem much farther off in the perspective of history. But this seeming distance appears greater still when we regard the state of music in England at the time of our Queen's accession. It is not necessary to exaggerate for the sake of contrast, nor, in order to make the present appear more roseate, are we justified in unduly decrying the past. No doubt there was a great deal of musical activity in England at the time to which we refer. Provincial festivals, for example, were even more numerous then than now—a state of things partly due to the comparative isolation of the country towns by the barrier of slow and costly travelling between them and the metropolis. Our chief provincial cities were, at that period, capitals of their respective districts in a sense and degree altogether unknown at present, and their festivals were largely an outcome of the position. There was activity, too, in the way of indiscriminate concert-giving, though not of the most enlightened order. London swarmed with singers and players, chiefly foreigners be it said, and artistic tours through the provincial districts were common enough. Moreover, the social cultivation of music went on in a manner and measure such as those who have not looked into the subject may hardly suspect. Given love for music—and no one will dare to say of the English that they do not possess that feeling—this was a very natural result. Life in 1837 was not what life is now. It had little in common, especially out of great towns, with present restlessness and strivings. Nervous excitement and headlong hurry were comparatively unknown, and men concerned themselves much more with matters just around them. There was time for placid gratifications, as well as for others not placid, and few villages in the land were without a musical section, the members of which did what in them lay to bend the divine art to their service, no doubt by imperfect means, and with zeal not according to knowledge, yet, at any rate, in the best manner they could contrive. We should remember these facts, and give the past generation credit for them—the more credit when it is considered against what difficulties amateurs of the period had to contend. They could not obtain great works, or even little ones, for a few pence, as can their children. Handel's "Messiah," in its least expensive form, cost a guinea, and when Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was first published by J. A. Novello, its price stood as high as thirty-two shillings. Other compositions were in the same proportion; no such thing as what we now very properly call "cheap" music being known. Save to men of somewhat easy means, therefore, new music was unattainable, and many were the shifts adopted by poorer amateurs to satisfy their wants. Even at a time later by some years than 1837, those shifts were still in practice, as the present writer very well remembers. The existence of a copy of an unfamiliar work was as well known in its neighbourhood as is now that of a Gainsborough or a Sir Joshua, and if it could be borrowed long enough to transcribe a number or two great was the rejoicing. In other cases a subscription would run till it reached the necessary figure, and the local bookseller received triumphant orders to procure the desired work. But dear copies were not the only obstacle to musical enjoyment and progress among the masses of the people. The prejudices of Puritanism still lingered in countless minds; a leaning towards the practice of music was often regarded as ominous of a descent to the bottomless pit, and in many cases where its indulgence was permitted to youth it embraced only music of the least valuable sort. Moreover, there was a disposition on the part of the "classes" to frown down any and every kind of culture among the "masses." Those who are old enough to remember the battles which popular education had to fight will understand this state of things perfectly well, and readily believe that, as regards music no less than the three R's, fears arose lest the poor should be made discontented with their lot, and spoiled for the exercise of a patient submission to the rule of their "betters." All things considered—the prohibitive price of musical literature, the existence of strong prejudices, and the utter absence of arrangements for, or stimulus to, popular musical education —it is a marvel that the condition of English music in 1837 was even so good as those who look back find it to have been.

In higher classes of society than those comprising the "people," the cause of our art had to encounter corresponding difficulties. Music there suffered terribly from the general conception of it as a feminine "accomplishment." A great deal of Chesterfieldism prevailed. The advice of the late Right Honourable Philip Dormer Stanhope to his son, never to play the fiddle himself, or consort with those who do, only expressed a common sentiment, which sometimes, as Spohr indignantly tells us, took the concrete form of a dividing rope—none the less a barrier because made of silk. Young ladies might play the piano or the guitar. For them such trifling was well enough. It added another gun to the battery of their charms. But the idea of an Englishman devoting himself to music, as to horse-racing, hunting, or cricket, could not be for a moment entertained. Any effort to carry it out would have involved merciless ridicule, and that form of contempt which the manhood of this nation can least bear. In olden days the carpet knight was presented with a distaff. The modern equivalent of that feminine weapon assuredly awaited the youth who, only fifty years ago, took to fiddling instead of killing something. What, in the name of wonder, do the old Etonians and Harrovians, the Oxonians and Cantabs of 1837, think of the change that has come over us in this respect? Do they exclaim, "O tempore! O mores!" as they hear of an actual, working music-master among the "boys," and discover that the "men" have their University Choral Societies without loss of caste? Great are all these changes, but they indicate a transformation more remarkable still—one affecting the very conception of music, in that the art no longer appears as a mere "accomplishment" for ladies and a means of living for professors, but as an essential of general culture and a factor in the sum of human life.

A consequence of the discredit thrown upon amateur cultivation of music (by the male sex, at all events) was the non-existence of choral societies, such as now play so great a part in the dissemination of knowledge and taste. Exceptions aside, there were no amateur choralists fifty years ago. Take London as an example. In 1832, five years before the Queen came to the throne, the only choral society existing in London, if a few half-private associations be disregarded, was the small one bearing the name of St. Cecilia. The same year witnessed the founding of the Sacred Harmonic Society, in a very unpretending way, at Gate Street Chapel, Lincoln's Inn Fields, and two years later came the Amateur Musical Festival, which marked the beginning of a mighty revolution, now completed with the happiest results. The Amateur Festival was a direct consequence of circumstances that themselves throw a flood of light upon the matter of which we now speak. When Sir George Smart was organising the Westminster Abbey Festival of 1834, certain amateur choralists offered their services only to have them declined with thanks. The very step which is now first taken in connection with Festival doings—namely, the organisation of an amateur chorus—was then unprecedented, and, being unprecedented, could not be thought of. Sir George Smart, therefore, provided himself with Cathedral choirs, supplemented by a body of professional choristers drawn from all parts of the country. Being highly indignant at this, the amateurs resolved upon a festival of their own, and held it in Exeter Hall with great success. It gave a wonderful impetus to choral singing, both in London and the provinces, and it rang the death-knell of the professional concert-chorister, who, however, lingered on a long time, and may not have quite vanished even now. Twenty years ago, the Philharmonic Society still employed the professional chorus, and, till very recently, it was the custom of many associations to engage a few as "leaders" of their respective parts. Matters had not much changed from the "form" of 1832-4 when the Victorian age began. Looking back upon them from our present position of advantage we get an impressive idea of the immense advance made in five decades. Advance! Why it is progress at a gallop! and very interesting will it be, presently, to look at the motive power that made such a movement possible.

In the department of musical literature the condition of things fifty years ago presents an equally striking contrast to their state now. It is not our wish unduly to disparage the musical critics and historians of 1837. But those who knew sufficient of their business to carry it on respectably were very few, while the people who should have been most concerned about their qualifications were often utterly careless. This means, of course, that the public were careless likewise. Musical literature, which has by no means a satisfactory sale at present, was then a drug in the market; absolutely no musical journal of any importance whatever (if, indeed, any at all) existing between the death of Mr. Ayrton's Harmonicon in 1830 and the birth of the Musical World in 1836. When the Queen ascended the throne in 1837, the last-named journal was all in literature that exclusively represented our art. It had sixteen small pages, and appears to have met with some difficulty in filling even them. The appearance of its early volumes now excites the interest of a far-off stage in the descent of man; we, who are accustomed to the fulness and completeness of THE MUSICAL TIMES and other contemporary journals, looking upon them with a natural wonder and curiosity. At the same time, newspaper criticism was of the most hap-hazard sort. The late Mr. Henry F. Chorley lifted up his voice in the Athenæum, it is true, but the "Dailies" handed over music almost to the first man that came along. At one period, the Times entrusted it to Mr. Oxenford, whose many acquirements did not include a knowledge of music, and even as late as the unveiling of the Beethoven monument at Bonn, the representative of the "leading journal" was Mr. Charles Lamb Kenney, who never pretended to qualifications for musical criticism. He accepted the work, but often handed it over to somebody else—as at Bonn, by the way, where Mr. Kenney had for companion a man of esprit, and a ready writer, with a head crammed full of knowledge—the late James William Davison. The subsequent engagement of Mr. Davison on the staff of the Times changed all this; that journal's contemporaries finding it necessary at once to treat musical criticism as an important function. That they lagged a long way behind the Times was a misfortune rather than a fault, for then, much more than now, a good musical critic was hard to obtain. Mr. Davison raised the standard of criticism immensely. He brought to it knowledge, and he made it literature.

The audiences of 1837 afford another contrast between that date and our own. We are not going, heaven knows, to claim perfection for the audiences of 1887. There is too much reason to believe that, in their case, things are not what a superficial observer might take them to be. But it is something gained when people recognise that they ought to admire good music, and proceed to act as though they did. Not only does the hypocrisy lean to virtue's side, but may be of the sort that in exercise wastes itself away. A man may so affect an excellence as at last to be enamoured of it and possess it. The audiences of 1837 made no pretence, if reports concerning them may be trusted. Opening at random the volume of the Musical World for the year just named, we light fortunately upon some proofs. Beethoven's Symphony in C minor was "beautifully played" at the Worcester Festival; "but," says the writer, "so far as the audience were concerned, it was of little consequence how the band performed this or any of the full-instrument compositions, for the indifference manifested by the audience was most uncomplimentary both to their own understandings—to say nothing of good education—and to the efforts of the performers." At another Concert on the same occasion, "Mozart's exquisite Symphony in E flat was played to the winds, or, rather, to the gabble and hub-bub," and, later on, Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony "was signalised by the same unworthy reception on the part of the audience which marked the instrumental performances of the previous evenings. In the slow movement their idle gossip was actually distinguished in the orchestra above the instruments." Then the critic waxed wroth and called the audience "mere Goths." There is no reason to believe that the Worcester audience was other than a representative one, as regards the attention then paid to music of a high class.

Passing from the foregoing survey, which will, of course, be understood as quite general, and admitting of much in the nature of exceptions, we will now give some particulars of what was doing in England at the time of the Queen's accession. On June 23, the editor of the Musical World published an address to her Majesty, written, or, at any rate, signed by himself. One passage in it struck a familiar note, the vibrations of which are being sustained even at the present day: "If, in this early stage of your Majesty's entrance upon the most arduous and deeply responsible charge that can fall to the lot of humanity, it would not be deemed impertinent to solicit the gracious attention of your Majesty to the condition of one class of your Majesty's subjects, I would venture, as the organ of that class, to request that your Majesty will condescend especially to protect and patronise the British musician, and, according to the well-advised judgment of your Majesty, to prompt and foster the cultivation of native musical science, the increase of which for a series of years has doubtless contributed in no minor degree to concentrate the social tendencies, and to soften the national character. . . . At some future time I hope to submit for your Majesty's consideration a few thoughts which, if acted upon, will, I conceive, extend the cultivation of this charming science in my native country, and add new lustre to the moral and poetical character of my brethren." It does not appear that the editor's benevolent designs for the moral and poetical character of his brethren were farther prosecuted in her Majesty's direction, but the extract given above is interesting proof of an existing jealousy for native art as against that of the foreigner. The Queen's tendencies on this matter seem to have been pretty closely watched. At one time in the early months of her reign she is credited with a leaning towards modern Italian music, but the organisation of her private band gave occasion for a positive manifestation of sympathy with native talent. It is recorded with great pride and satisfaction that of the twenty-four performers a majority were natives, while most of the foreigners, having served under preceding monarchs, had a claim to retention which could not well be ignored. At this time, also, the Society of British Musicians was in existence for the display of native talent and the assertion of native rights springing therefrom.

In June, 1837, London concerts were in full swing; the "unprecedented number of 135 being given during the season: four in private residences, six at the London Tavern, thirteen at Willis's Rooms, thirty-three at the Concert Room in the King's Theatre, and seventy-nine at the Hanover Square Rooms. Forty-three of these were given in the morning and ninety-two in the evening. It is scarcely necessary to say that many were of the order "benefit," and had very little significance. But some were important. There were Concerts of Classical Instrumental Music—forerunners of the "Pops"—sustained by the two Banisters, Dando, Hill, Lazarus, Westrop, and others. The Philharmonic Society was in full activity, and at the Concert given nearest to the Queen's accession had the support of such artists as Thalberg and Schroeder-Devrient, whose solos relieved a programme that included Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony, Spohr's Symphony in E flat, and the Overture to "Euryanthe." The Societa Armonica also gave Concerts of a miscellaneous description, with programmes ranging from Beethoven's C minor Symphony to Balfe's ballads. It is significant, with regard to observations already made, that the Directors were encouraged to form an efficient chorus of amateurs, it being anticipated that they would have little difficulty in doing so. Mr. Parry, the professor and historiographer of Welsh music, took his leave of the public this season. Mr. Neate gave a soirée, at which was introduced "an interesting seven-year-old child, Milanollo"—one of the afterwards famous sisters. The Sacred Harmonic Society put off a performance of Handel's "Israel in Egypt" on account of King William's death, and, while pausing a decent time, the "amateur choralists"—so they continue to be described—are advised by the True Sun not to charge such prices even for a charity. "We have nothing to say against the Sailors' Asylum," tersely remarked the editor, "but we have much to urge for the three shilling oratorios." Wherefore, O amateur choralists, "set your faces resolutely against all charity temptations to deviate from your own great charity of cheap music for the people." While the True Sun thus sounded the true note of cheapness, a Mr. T. Philipps went about trying to improve English Psalmody, describing the congregational singing of the period as "the most disgraceful public musical performance now to be heard throughout Europe." Mr. Philipps had his remedy ready, but a musical reporter asked: "Did it never occur to any of these dignitaries of the Church whom Mr. Philipps was proud to quote in support of his opinions, that a set of urchins taken from the streets, and one-half of whom are sent to the parish only to keep them out of the convict hulks, are not exactly the proper persons to be appointed to these lofty and sacred duties, and, moreover, that, if they are so employed, it would be at least as well to give them as much knowledge of music as would enable them to go through their task with decent correctness?" The reporter was hard upon the charity children, who then sustained the praise of God in our churches, but it would seem that the charity children were first of all hard upon the ears of the congregation. How vast the gulf in this respect between then and now!

Simultaneously with Mr. Philipps' campaign against incompetence in the "singing gallery," strenuous efforts were made to bring about a reform in the Royal Academy of Music—the only institution that, in the England of that day, even assumed to rival the Conservatoires of the Continent. The reformers spoke out very plainly. Here is an extract from a letter actually written from the Academy itself:—"Nothing, Sir, can be more ridiculous and contemptible than our system of management. We have a great man (the late Earl of Westmorland) who enacts the part of Manager Strut with a ten-horse power. He fancies himself a composer, and there are not wanting sycophants to play toady. They tell him he is a second Lord Mornington, and, behind his back, laugh at him. We have to sing stuff which he composes and calls Madrigals, nor is there one concert suffered to be made up without one or more of these delectable compositions. The whole thing, building, manager, teachers, &c., are under this great man's thumb. He is the real prototype (sic) of Shakespeare's Sir Oracle, for no dog dare bark in Tenterden Street without his leave!" This sort of writing is only tolerable as an indication of a demand for the improvement which has since been general in musical teaching. But it does not appear to have been directed against Mr. Cipriani Potter, the Principal of the Academy, to whom the professors and students presented a silver inkstand.

Beethoven was commemorated at Drury Lane—Choral Symphony in the programme—and the proceeds forwarded as a subscription to the monument at Bonn. "Monsieur Chopin, the celebrated composer," arrived in London to look around, not to play. The Purcell Club attended Divine service in Westminster Abbey on the anniversary of the composer's death. Her Majesty visited the Guildhall, and was presented with a splendidly bound copy of the English music there performed for her delectation by native artists. An English Opera House was carried on by Mr. Bunn, opening a month after the Queen's accession, with Balfe's opera "Catherine Grey," supported by Miss Romer, Mrs. Wood, Mr. Seguin, and the composer himself, who, by the way, brought out, at the same time, a national song, "Victoria and England for ever." What has become of it? "Mr. Mendelssohn" came to England to conduct a performance of "St. Paul" by the Sacred Harmonic Society, and there was a Purcell Commemoration in Westminster Abbey.

We have taken these records almost at random from the journals of the day as being typical of our musical life fifty years ago. Our next task will be to mark the rise of powerful agencies by which the entire aspect of things was changed.

(To be continued.)

"THE GOLDEN LEGEND" IN BERLIN.

REDEEMING the promise made to our readers last month, we now present some choice extracts from Berlin criticisms upon Sir Arthur Sullivan's latest work. They might almost be given without note or comment, so obvious is their hostile spirit and, in many cases, so manifest is their untruth. Of these qualities our readers can judge for themselves. Our first quotation is from the Fremdenblatt:—

"It must be confessed that the success of 'The Golden Legend' did not at all correspond with the means employed for its favourable representation, with the significance of the place where it was produced, and with the expectations entertained about it. The power of the composer is not up to the task. Only a few choruses, tunefully and simply written in the style of the old Italian church composers, were able to arouse the sympathy of the listeners. In most of the solos we were struck by the injudicious treatment of the voice, which received no aid from the orchestra, but was indeed made the fifth wheel to the waggon, in fact, a subsidiary to overwhelming orchestration, which ignored altogether the singer. The composition lacks hills and dales; the steady-going text is spun out in languid declamations; there is no elevation anywhere, only a dead level of yawning ennui, from which we are pleasantly aroused by those two or three pretty choruses mentioned before. If one wanted to enter into details, one might find several things to praise in the management of the orchestra, in quite skilful contrapuntal work; but an arm, a foot of a statue can be very beautiful, and yet the whole statue itself may not be worth much. The text, adapted from Longfellow's Epic 'The Golden Legend,' is an unsatisfactory adaptation of the German poem 'Poor Heinrich.' What has been made out of the old Minnesinger's touching and highly poetical story? The text contains a number of insipid passages, which are not to be laid to the charge of the translator, for the translation is altogether very good.

"The reception of the Cantata by the audience was lukewarm. It is to be hoped that Mr. Sullivan will soon cover this defect with another pretty operetta."

The critic of the Berliner Tageblatt is less severe and more amusing. His remarks about the rich and noble families in England, who judge sacred works by the depth of their piety, are exquisitely funny:—

"The first of the above-named scenes (Prologue) displays musically nothing but chromatic passages in the orchestra, tremolo, then bell play. These sounds are then sung by men's voices in Latin, after which follow on chromatic passages, wherein the Spirits declare that they are not in the position to fulfil the commands of the Prince of Hell. The scene ends with the organ and the bells sounding in unison, accompanied by the orchestra in thirds. Here follows a short monologue of Prince Henry, in which the orchestra is managed with skill and care.... The third scene, the journey to Salerno, brings a surprisingly beautiful and graceful bit of melody, a song almost Spanish in character, begun by Elsie and continued by the Prince. Here the composer is obviously in his own element; also the following duet in A major is full and fine. Hereupon bursts forth a Latin Pilgrims' chorus, which Lucifer, with his motif, joins as a pious pilgrim himself. The manner and method in which this is blended with the chorus, shows that the composer is well able to do excellent work if he sets about it with care and industry. After this point, the orchestral passages, the invocation of the Prince to the sea, &c., are written without earnest feeling, and are less carefully scored. The conception of the composer begins to be weary, and the work, the instrumentation and harmonisation, become doubtful. The composer had much better have left the fugue in the Epilogue unwritten; the public is not at all moved by it, and to the critic the peculiar introduction of the answer (a 'cobbler's patch' according to all forbidding rules), and the passages in thirds in the working out of the fugue, do not seem proofs of careful workmanship—and if not here, where will it show itself?

"Many readers, after seeing these statements of mine, may ask whether this 'Golden Legend' has not indeed been successful, for if not, the representation in Berlin, conducted with such great ceremony, would seem inexplicable. I answer that the Cantata would in any case have found an appreciative public in England; to the musically educated audience it will nowhere seem more full of merit than here, but in England there are more things to take into consideration with respect to all musical productions of a religious character than with us. A great number of rich and noble families go neither to theatres nor secular concerts, but only to representations of sacred music. At these concerts it is not the artistic worth which decides the success, but the pious character and the nature of the text. Criticism behaves indulgently on such occasions—particularly with respect to English composers—and such a composition can very well be heard in many towns before large audiences ere proper connoisseurs bestir themselves about its worth. Take 'The Redemption' as an example. All over Germany it was recognised to be a weak work, and indeed no Musical Committee had ever thought of expecting a great oratorio from the composer of 'Faust' and 'Romeo and Juliet.' But in England 'The Redemption' is written to order for a musical festival, paid for handsomely, and performed with much success. And 'The Golden Legend' is certainly much weaker, and has fewer claims to merit than this 'Redemption.' . . . The house was filled with a most refined and cultivated audience. The reception of the Cantata was in the beginning favourable, but cooled down more and more towards the close. As I left the house before the end it is not known to me to whom the colossal laurel wreaths were given, which, on entering, I had seen on the arms of two strong men."

The National Zeitung patronises Sir Arthur, pats him on the head, and says, in effect: "You are a good boy, considering your English surroundings, but would have been a better one had you stayed in Germany":—

"Sullivan understands how to make use of the tout ensemble of the orchestra, as well as its separate components; he writes vocally for the voices. Neither spoilt by too much art nor exaggerated, to him the 'modulationary' insatiableness of the new school is as unfamiliar as the delight in wild instrumental tumult. Skilful mastery of form is clearly displayed in the great fugue of the final chorus. If he had only been less sparing of that kind of contrapuntal structure. The separate songs, for the most part not melodious, but declamatory, are spread out beyond all becoming length. The composer has happy ideas, but weight, depth, individuality, are nowhere to be put to the credit of his conception. Although he despises what is altogether rough and commonplace, yet he borrows nearly the whole of his musical trade capital from the vastly piled up stores of the commonplace. The à capella Evening Hymn, certainly, only so far as its sound goes, and the little songs of the two on their pilgrimage to Salerno are, according to our taste, the most grateful numbers of the whole work. He who can write passages like these and like the chorus in the Epilogue, would have the means of attaining to one of the foremost places of honour amongst contemporary writers, if he placed before him a higher ideal and raised the claims on himself and on his audience. He received his artistic education at the Leipzig Conservatoire. There is, perhaps, cause for regret that he did not always remain in Germany. The intellectual atmosphere of his English home is not helpful to any activity more ideally musical than its surroundings."

On his part, the critic of the Post uses a bludgeon wherewith to chastise "The Golden Legend" and its author. Nothing is too bad for them:—

"The material of 'The Golden Legend' is entirely borrowed from the touching poem 'Poor Heinrich,' by Hartmann von der Aue. The English (sic) poet has tacked on all manner of 'transcendentalisms' to this German poem, which is purely human in character.

"The music did not come up to the lowest expectations. Not one of the personages, neither Lucifer nor Prince Henry, neither Elsie nor mother Ursula is a musical 'physiognomy'; there is scarcely a single subject in the whole work which is characteristically important; scarcely one melody which would impress itself on the memory as a happy hit. The whole character of the Cantata is poor; in form it somewhat resembles Schumann's 'Pilgerfahrt der Rose.' If one excepts a few short chorus passages, as, for instance, the Evening Hymn of the villagers in the second scene, or the final chorus of the third scene 'The night is clear and peaceful' (which, thanks to the excellent interpretation of Herr Stern's choir, fell on the ear with pleasant sound)—if one excepts these passages, the rest of the music, which occupied two hours, is one long yawn of ennui. The orchestration is without any charm of tone, the chorus is throughout the work 'homophonic,' so that any fairly trained little choir, such as may be found in every town in Germany, would be thoroughly up to the work. Only at the end, with the last few words of the Epilogue, does the musician take a leap to counterpoint, and finish up with a short and capital fugue. It was certainly no mark of friendship to the composer of 'The Mikado' that his work was received with so much favour when it was performed at the Royal Opera. In 'The Golden Legend,' where the composer has not the assistance of beautiful and peculiar scenery, and Asiatic dance melodies (!!), but where he is thrown entirely on music itself, the poverty of his invention and his inability to work up solo, chorus, and orchestra to a powerful climax, are mercilessly thrust upon the listener. The audience evinced complete indifference; only now and then, when a few hands wished to clap, ominous hisses were heard, which were speedily quelled."

The Börsen Courier is magisterial, and delivers judgment as though clothed with scarlet and ermine:—

"Mr. Sullivan, one of the most fertile composers of our time, and in England highly honoured, especially at Court, was as good as unknown in Germany. One work of his, 'The Mikado,' has made his name popular with us far and wide, and has brought him unmeasured expressions of praise.

"The capacity to write carefully, characteristically, and cleverly; the art above everything to orchestrate; the skill of perception—all these qualities Mr. Sullivan does not, of course, renounce in 'The Golden Legend.' But he lacks two qualities—emotion and passion absolutely, original conception entirely. In the operetta he did not need the one, and we overlooked the absence of the other with indifference under the circumstances. In a great oratorio, invention and emotion are the two vitals, without which the work must perish. And greatness he has not. He is always concerned with ingenious trifles and trifling ingenuities which are intended to dazzle one, and yet in the long run only weary one. As it is impossible to provide a long work with material on these lines, it is to be supposed naturally that the composition becomes weaker from number to number. . . But the style at times gives way to triviality. There is no doubt that the text offers favourable opportunities to the composer. But towards the end it becomes dull and uninteresting, and therefore requires twice as much power from the composer, which he has no longer to give.

"In the fourth scene, at Salerno, there is a pretty à capella chorus; in the fifth scene the prayer of Ursula begins with great promise, but then falls off completely; in the sixth scene there are some few very charming bits—but, taken as a whole, the last three scenes leave no impression. The Epilogue is much more significant, and, with its beautifully wrought passages in unison, followed by a very clever fourt-part fugue, is the best part of the whole composition."

With characteristic German self-conceit, the Vossische Zeitung winds up by intimating that Sullivan has talent which he would turn to best account by writing expressly for the Teutonic public :—

"The outlines to which the old legend has been reduced of necessity in the musical libretto are scarcely likely to please and satisfy a German public. We laugh at the maiden . . . we laugh at the singing bells, and most especially we laugh at Lucifer himself. . . . You must not misunderstand us ; myths like 'The Golden Legend' have always a certain poetic and ethic kernel ; but they must be more intellectually perfected than this one in order to satisfy us Germans. And as for the music, Sullivan will not be equally successful in Germany with 'The Golden Legend' as he has been with 'The Mikado.' Our judgment on the work will be more favourable if we confine ourselves entirely to its musical character.

"It is true that Sullivan does not appear to be a genius of great inventive power, but he shows himself to be thoroughly well up in the treatment of the orchestra and chorus ; and although we maintain that many parts of the Cantata make a less pleasing impression on account of their aridity of melody, yet we can say of several numbers that they are most effective by reason of their agreeable sound, their grace, and their tolerable individuality. The Prologue, although well sustained in expression, has not been able to interest us. In the second scene the Chorus of Villagers is very pleasing on account of its pious character, its simple and natural melody, and its well defined theme.

"The best and most ambitious part of the Cantata we take to be the final chorus, which begins with a simple melody, and in course of development arrives at contrapuntal form without suffering the slightest loss of its direct hold on the mind. In this passage Sullivan has given a beautiful example of how higher forms of art and musical naïveté may be combined. It does not seem to us at all impossible that if Sullivan were to become thoroughly acquainted with the demands of the German public, and were to write for it expressly, he would be able to produce something of more importance than he has done in this work."

In the Kreuz Zeitung, the same old tune is piped. It begins with an abstract of the text, and then continues :—

"Thus the legend offers special material for musical treatment ; and the great interest which was displayed after the first announcement of this performance will testify what beauty and sweetness were expected from Sullivan's music, owing, of course, to the impression which 'The Mikado' had created here and elsewhere. Sullivan's 'Mikado' must be very favourably distinguished from other operettas of the same class ; it is distinct in the refinement of its melodies, in the careful avoidance of all trivialities. With complete mastery of the means he has employed, the composer has musically illustrated an attractive and throughout interesting farce ; in doing so he has displayed much artistic taste, and has also shown himself to be inventive. But not so in 'The Golden Legend,' where it was needful to strike deeper, more earnest chords ; to seize the hearer, and tear him away from himself by the power of characteristic music. It is passion which is wanting ; not once does the music give utterance to pathos. That which worked so well in 'The Mikado' music—viz., the fresh, healthy breath of 'emotion'—is the very quality which we miss in 'The Golden Legend' in scenes where it ought to be. Thus the listener, step by step, keeps on losing the interest in music which certainly reveals to us an artistic tone poet, but which is artificial and stilted, and cannot go far towards increasing the fame of the English composer on the Continent. With the exception of Lucifer, who can pass as a characteristic personage, one misses any kind of individuality and any striking delineation ; instead of this, the composer has gone in for musical detail painting, which does not attract in this frame, because not suitable there.

"The Prologue is the most successful part of the Cantata, and yet it may not be said to have any close connection with the legend itself ; on the contrary, it is quite without an inner musical relationship to the remaining parts of the composition. The work contains two melodious numbers—an Evening Hymn of the villagers, and the Epilogue, which at least finishes the evening effectively.

"For the characters of the Prince, Elsie, and her mother, Ursula, the composer inserts here and there striking passages ; but only too soon his power leaves him, and he shows himself incapable of further delineation. His instrumentation is a stronger point, and so, in this respect at least, there are some few refreshing oases in the musical desert.

"We are decidedly impressed with the composer in his capacity as Conductor ; there was no mistaking his circumspection."

We take our last extract from the Börsen Zeitung, already once quoted. This, with all its assumption of impartiality, is positively savage :—

"Sullivan has not known how to breathe into his music the spirit of real religious feeling and belief, nor has he understood how to express musically the childlike piety of the mediæval poet, which comes forth in every strophe of the text ; and the ground note of deep sorrow which the poet has struck has not been hit off by the composer, or at any rate not held on firmly. We do not find in the music any trace of the healing power of prayer, or of the naïve simplicity of the German legend, which has certainly lost much of its poetic worth in this English version. . . . With regard to the 'bell peal' introduced by Sullivan in this work, it was originally used by Liszt in his 'Bells of the Strassburg Minster.'

"And, indeed, the way in which this new member is added to the original body of sound speaks well for the taste and skill of the composer. It is only a pity that Sullivan, in the further progress of his work, has so utterly and repeatedly renounced these and other precious virtues. Total absence of dramatic interest and life prevents the listener from deriving real enjoyment from the composition ; and then, too, Sullivan's 'tone language' is by far too unconvincing to make all the things which he tells us seem real. Only in divers choruses (particularly a few à capella choruses) does the composer show himself at his best ; a few pleasingly melodious passages and several beautiful effects of orchestration appeal to our fancy, but they are not able to cheat away from our minds the dulness of the composition, taken as a whole. But there is one thing for which one may praise the composer—viz., that in sovereign contempt for all good or bad models he has strictly avoided any help from foreign sources ; one great vast ennui of Sullivan's own yawns to us from the numerous 'points noirs' of the work."

Alas, poor "Golden Legend"! Alas, poor Sullivan! Alas, poor England! Will it, or he, or she, ever hold up head again ?

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XXIII.—GRÉTRY (continued from page 272).

GRÉTRY followed up "Zemire et Azor" with a three-act piece, "L'Ami de la Maison," which was played before the Court at Fontainebleau in October, 1771. Two years later he produced "Le Magnifique," with an overture described as "en action," and beginning with a "Marche de captifs." Without reference to the work itself, now not to be obtained, we can only guess at the nature of the overture, which may be taken as a piece of programme music. "Le Magnifique" was followed, in 1774, by "La Rosière de Salency," a four-act pastoral comedy in verse, first represented at Fontainebleau. This appears to have been less successful than the others, and was withdrawn by the authors after a few representations. The next piece, "La Fausse Magie," a two-act comedy, played at the Italiens in February, 1775, had scarcely a better fate. At one of the performances of this work, Grétry and Rousseau met for the first time, under circumstances which the musician has recorded in his Memoirs:—

"I heard some one say, 'M. Rousseau, here is Grétry, for whom you have just been asking.' I rushed up to him, and regarded him with tender emotion. 'I am glad to see you,' he said. 'For a long time I believed my heart to be closed against the soft sensations which you have made it feel. I desire to know you, sir; or, rather, knowing you already by your works, I wish to be your friend.' 'Ah! sir,' I answered, 'my sweetest recompense is to please you by my talents.' 'Are you married?' 'Yes.' 'Have you espoused what they call a femme d'ésprit?' 'No.' 'I thought so.' 'She is the daughter of an artist; she speaks only what she feels, and simple nature is her guide.' 'I thought so: Oh! I love artists; they are children of nature. I wish to know your wife, and I will come often to see you.' I did not leave Rousseau during the performance. We left together. I was far from thinking that that was the first time and the last I should speak to him. In passing through the Rue Française, he jumped over some stones left by paviours in the streets. I took his arm and said 'Take care, M. Rousseau!' He pulled himself away brusquely, remarking 'Let me use my own strength.' I was confounded by these words, the carriages separated us; he went his way, I went mine, and I have never since spoken to him."

The picture drawn in these words is complete and full of interest. We see the two men, one thirty-four, the other sixty-three years of age, passing along the stone-encumbered road; Rousseau, thinking himself not yet old, jumps the impediments, his companion, with the pity of the thirties for the sixties, remonstrates; the elder man takes offence at the implied doubt of his agility, and the two part for ever. Truly, Rousseau's vanity was no less all-embracing than powerful.

In his next work, "Céphale et Procris," Grétry took a higher flight. The book, a tragedy by Marmontel, invited more passionate treatment than the pastorals and comedies upon which the master had for some time been engaged, and Grétry did his best to satisfy the demand. Nevertheless, the opera, which was produced in Paris, May, 1775, turned out a failure, not unconnected, perhaps, with the fact that Gluck's first French work, "Iphigénie en Aulide," had been played in April of the year preceding, and exercised a marked influence upon public taste. One critic pointed this out, observing "Grétry was badly advised to oppose tragedies like the 'Iphigénie' and 'Alceste' of Gluck by a cold pastoral," a description, however, which Marmontel's piece hardly deserves. Grétry's next work was "Le Mariage Samnites," first represented at the Italiens in June, 1776. This also met with an indifferent reception, but the fault lay outside the work. "Le Mariage Samnites" was more fitted for the Académie than for the Italiens, where a company of comedians was called upon to play in a piece of serious import. The public, it is said, would not accustom themselves to see under a casque actors to whom they had been accustomed in comic rôles. But the piece lived on, as every student of musical history knows, and for fifty years was the delight of Parisian audiences, despite the stupidity of the libretto. It is historically associated with a brilliant episode in the career of Marie Antoinette, who, in 1776, was still a favourite of the capital. The Queen attended a performance of "Le Mariage Samnites," and, at one point, the entire audience rose to join the artists in singing a couplet, which may be thus paraphrased:—

The world entire is at thy feet,
Its devotion knows no measure,
When sovereign rank and beauty meet,
All is duty, all is pleasure.

There was no prevision of 1793 in 1776.

A small piece, "Les Filles pourvues," written for the Comédie-Italiens in 1777, was followed, in the same year, by "Amour pour Amour," "Momus sur la Terre," and a burlesque drama, "Matroco." Grétry afterwards reproached himself for the authorship of the last-named work, and wrote in his Essays: "The success of such a production will be always, to my mind, nearly impossible. I made that opera for the Court out of pure complaisance; it was played at Paris against my wish, and fire has destroyed that monstrous production in expiation of the attack I had made upon good taste." If it be asked why he thus contemned his own child, there is a sufficient answer in the fact that the overture resembled our own pantomime preludes, in being made up of well-known airs, having more or less bearing upon the character of the story. In April, 1778, Grétry wrote a piece for the Opéra—a pièce de circonstance—entitled "Les Trois Ages de l'Opéra," and designed to inaugurate the advent to power of a new director at the great Parisian house. This is so characteristic of a now forgotten form of entertainment that it deserves description. The curtain rises upon the Genius of Opéra, who invokes the aid of the Muses for the good of the art she represents, whereupon Polyhymnia enters, conducting Lully, who, dressed in the costume of his own time, is attended by the principal characters in his lyric dramas. Lully is modest, and admits that he has been superseded; nevertheless, he claims some credit:—

Vous voyez un chanteur antique,
Qui merita quelque succès,
J'ai fait connaitre la musique
Au peuple aimable des François:
Un art plus brillant me remplace:
Mais convenez de bonne foi
Que beaucoup d'autres à ma place,
N'en auraient pas fait plus que moi.

Terpsichore next enters, bringing on Rameau, with a retinue of his own characters. Him the Genius of Opéra addresses thus:—

Est-ce vous, immortel Rameau,
De la scène lyrique appui toujours durable?
Venez jouir d'un triumphe nouveau;
Vos chœurs savans, pompeux, et votre danse aimable,
Quels que soient les progrès dont l'art sera capable,
Vous placeront toujours dans le rang le plus beaux.

Some dances in the style of Rameau's day are then executed, after which, as a few bars of the Iphigénie overture are played, Melpomene introduces Gluck. The Genius demands whence comes harmony so superior to everything previously heard, and is answered by Melpomene, who points to Gluck, observing that doubtless he contemplates other tragic masterpieces. Upon this the palm is given to the German master, and the curtain descends to rise again upon Armide or Roland. In putting music to this prologue, Grétry had to imitate the style of the three masters, and is said to have done so with great success, so accommodating himself to the models set before him that the audience at once clearly recognised what they were expected to discern.

Grétry's next work was composed to a libretto by an English author, one Thomas Hales, who, we are told, enrolled himself, when very young, in the army of France. Why he left his native land and became a soldier in the pay of its "hereditary foe" does not appear, but in all probability the reason may be found in some family connection with the Jacobite rebellion of 1745. Hales assumed the name of Thomas d'Hèle, and is described as "ecuyer du Comte de Gloucester," whoever that nobleman may have been. But it is more to our purpose that the renegade Englishman possessed remarkable talent as a poetical dramatist. Hales, or d'Hèle, became so devotedly attached to Zanerini-Bianchi, an artist belonging to the Italiens company, that when the troupe was suppressed in 1780, and the lady returned to her own land, her lover died of grief, in his fortieth year. The work written by Hales for Grétry—a three-act piece, "Le Jugement de Midas"—had some trouble at first, owing to its partly English origin. It was refused at Versailles on that account, but the Duke of Orleans—Egalité Orleans—who was not without English sympathies, caused it to be performed at a theatre devoted to amateur representations. Fresh difficulties then arose. Hales had a sarcastic vein, and his libretto succeeded in offending two very different classes—procureurs' clerks and high society. The "swells" of the period were guarded in the expression of hostility, for Hales had powerful friends; but the clerks, more outspoken, organised an opposition, and sent round a circular couched as follows: "The procureurs' clerks invite you to attend to-morrow and hiss the second performance of the 'Judgment of Midas,' in which piece they are insulted." The result was a stormy evening, in which, however, Grétry's friends, that is to say, the general public, came off victorious. As for high society, Voltaire entered the lists on Grétry's behalf, and routed my lords and gentlemen with an epigram:—

La cour a dénigré tes chants,
Dont Paris dit des merveilles:
Grétry, les oreilles des grands
Sont souvent de grandes oreilles.

After this nobody was particularly anxious to pose as one of the long-eared party. The piece, notwithstanding its troubles, achieved a great success. Contemporary critics praised it, and the public flocked to hear it whenever they had a chance. In this, perhaps, they were influenced by a fact which the composer himself has pointed out:—"This opera was a most biting satire upon old-fashioned music, or, rather, upon the wearisome manner in which it was sung."

Encouraged by good fortune, Grétry and Thomas Hales collaborated upon another three-act piece, "L'Amant jaloux," produced at the Italiens in December, 1778. The lyrics were written by one Levasseur, an ex-captain of dragoons, and the tripartite conjunction proved most fortunate, the opera speedily making its way into immense favour. La Harpe wrote about "L'Amant jaloux" as below:—

"The prodigious and abiding success of this lyric comedy attests merit and perfection. Its music is truly dramatic and picturesque; its melody always agreeable, expressive, and varied. The new masterpiece of a fertile genius which has produced so many others pleases in concerts as well as theatres—an obvious proof that good music, like good verse, does not depend for all its charm upon scenic illusion.'

"L'Amant jaloux" has often been revived, and is esteemed to this day as one of Grétry's finest works. A year later (1779) Grétry and Thomas Hales laboured together for the last time, at a three-act lyric comedy, "Les Evénements Imprévus," brought out at the Court Theatre, Versailles, in November, 1779. This work failed, on account, it is said, of public preoccupation with the Gluck-Piccinni conflict, but the critics highly praised the music. We gather from their remarks that Grétry had profited by the advance in dramatic expression achieved by the composer of "Orfeo." This was particularly pointed out in the Journal des Débats during the revival of "Les Evénements Imprévus" in 1803:—

"Grétry has successfully done for comedy that which Gluck attempted for tragedy. He has known how happily to wed melody and dramatic poetry, and to produce from the alliance of the two arts a result possible to neither alone. His ensembles form situations of a new order; his solo pieces indicate character; there is almost nothing for the singer, all is for the actor and the scene. The airs have the rare, though little appreciated, merit of expressing the sentiments natural to the circumstances in which the characters are placed. For their proper performance, it is necessary to have feeling and taste even more than voice; one sings them badly when they are not well acted."

It is worthy of note in connection with "Les Evénements Imprévus," that the libretto was set to music in 1791 by Ferrari, who audaciously imagined that he could supplant Grétry. But the Parisians would not have him at any price, and the rash Italian quitted France in disgust. We read concerning this affair:—"It was only another triumph the more for Grétry. The first representation of the new 'Evénements Imprévus' showed that the old music was, so to speak, consecrated. Loud murmurs were heard during and at the end of each piece, and in the duet 'Serviteur à Monsieur La Fleur,' M. Ferrari's theme appeared so completely ridiculous that the public, to punish audacity, stopped the performance at once."

In 1780 our composer received a distinguished honour. By that time his native city, Liège, had learned to be proud of him, and, in January of the year just named, the Communal Council decided that his bust should be placed on the avant-scène of the theatre, facing the Prince-Bishop's box. The decision was expressed in the following words: "The council of the city, always careful to encourage our compatriots who distinguish themselves by their talents, and wishing to pay public and permanent homage to the celebrated Grétry, who has enriched the French Theatre with so many masterpieces of music, is of opinion that his bust should be placed on the avant-scène of the city theatre, to the end that by it the memory of this celebrated composer, who does honour to the people of Liège, may be handed down to the most distant posterity. It is therefore ordered that the bust be executed, in white marble." The "unveiling" of the bust was quite a solemn and important function. After it had been brought on the stage concealed by a group of Muses, and the damsels had exposed it by retiring, an actor, representing Apollo, spoke the following lines:

Muses, je ouis content,
Grétry, je jure à ta patrie
Un amour éternel;
Je t'élève un autel
Où je soumets le noir envie;
Dans ces climats heureux,
L'aimable poésie
Trouvera l'harmonie
Toute augré de ses vœux.

The bust was then solemnly crowned amid the plaudits of a crowded house.

Though thus provided with an abundance of laurels, our composer was not disposed to rest upon them. He calmly went on with his work, and, almost while the Liège people were paying him homage, produced "Aucassin et Nicolette" at the Court of Versailles; poem by Sedaine. In this piece Grétry sought to combine ancient and modern forms of music, but the result was not encouraging to a further venture of the kind. The rehearsal at Versailles before the royal family had the effect of a parody, and Grétry himself says that the audience were convulsed with laughter at the very moment when he and Sedaine imagined themselves to be most pathetic. The master was soon ready with another opera, "Andromaque," first played at the Opéra in June, 1780. Here, also, Grétry opened what was to him fresh ground. That is to say, he produced a lyric tragedy, somewhat in the manner of Gluck; labouring at it so earnestly that the score, in which recitatives and choruses preponderate, was completed within a fortnight, during the whole of which time the author of the words, Pitra, was at the musician's elbow. Grétry says: "It was, I believe, the first time that the idea was carried out of accompanying all the recitatives of a personage by the same instruments, so as thus to distinguish him. When Andromaque recites, she is nearly always attended by three flutes in harmony." The same device is met with in Sullivan's "Light of the World," where the words of the Saviour are accompanied by a certain set of wind instruments; but it may not have been the case that our English composer knew of what Grétry had done before him. The music of "Andromaque" was severely mauled by the critics, who were not pleased by its composer's experiments in style and method. They condemned his approach to Gluck and Piccinni, saying that he had neither the energy of the one nor the gracious melody of the other. Grétry's next works were "La Fête de Mirza" (1781), a ballet in four acts; "Collinette à la Cour," a lyric comedy in three acts (1782); "L'Embarras des Richesses," also a three act comedy (1782); and "La Caravane du Caire" (1784). All these were produced at the Opéra, with a view to afford the public relief from the continuous tragedies of that establishment. We read in the master's Memoirs:—"When I put lyric comedy on the stage of the Opéra I was looked upon as an objectionable innovator. But I saw the public wearied with tragedy and unable to help themselves. I heard many lovers of the dance murmur because it was reduced to play as an accessory and often useless part in tragedy. At length these three works ('Andromaque,' 'Collinette à la Cour,' and 'La Caravane'), above all 'La Caravane,' produced quickly one after another, fixed public opinion as to the necessity of establishing lyric comedy on the Opéra stage." "La Caravane" had a great success, the measure of which may be estimated from two facts:—First, it was burlesqued; second, the adherents of Piccinni got up a cabal against it. We may add, with regard to this work, that it was republished in 1880 as part of a collection, "Œuvres de l'Ancien Répertoire de l'Opéra Français," edited by Mr. Gevaert.

A one-act piece, "Thalie au Nouveau Théâtre," produced at the Italiens in 1783, may be passed over with simple mention as an absolute failure, but the indomitable composer returned to the charge the same year, at the same theatre, with another three-act comedy, "Theodore et Paulin." This failed likewise. When played at the Court, Marie Antoinette received it coldly, and "society," of course, followed suit. At the Italiens, the house audibly murmured, and Grétry's best friends in the press could do no more than let him down easily. The Mercure de France said: "We shall say nothing about M. Grétry's music. One tumultuous performance cannot give a satisfactory idea of a musical work, and when, in such a case, the composer is a distinguished man like M. Grétry, prudent critics keep silence." Grétry was not daunted by all this. He knew there was good music in the opera, and, getting hold of his poet, he persuaded him to remodel the story, striking out all the titled characters and reducing it to a two-act idyl, entitled "L'Epreuve Villageoise."

Even in this form the piece did not succeed; it was withdrawn by Grétry himself after one representation, although some of the airs were loudly applauded and—a circumstance which pleased the composer much—whistled in the streets of Paris. The master's next work was his chef d'œuvre, "Richard Cœur de Lion," produced at the Comédie Italienne, October 21, 1784, the poem being by Sedaine. This opera originally had three acts only, but another act was added, and first played at the thirty-fifth performance. According to the Journal de Paris, the enlargement of "Richard" arose from the attacks of the critics upon the third act. Sedaine was not one of those who haughtily reject counsel, and, in considering the matter, it appeared that the opera as a whole would benefit by enlargement towards the end. So, in fact, it did. The renovated third act and the new fourth were received with enthusiasm, and the entire work was accepted as a perfect thing. Sedaine's communication to the journals àpropos to this matter is worth presenting:—

"Only a desire to satisfy the public has caused me to take the poem of 'Richard' again in hand. After thirty-five representations it might have remained as it was, and I do not hide from myself that a third and fourth act, after the second, which so fully succeeded, was a very difficult task to discharge. . . . To thank the critics for having been honest and decent in their remarks would be to insult them; therefore, gentlemen, I do not thank you, but I am very grateful."

Sedaine had reason for thankfulness, as much on account of adverse criticism as of praise, though the latter was certainly very strong. The final result appears in the Gazette Nationale:—"It is impossible, perhaps, to cite another opera which has had a success so brilliant, general, and sustained as 'Richard.' In Paris a hundred performances were given to crowded houses. Called for in the provinces with unexampled eagerness, it has been translated and played with equal success in all the theatres of Europe." It was certainly translated into English and played at Drury Lane, October 20, 1786, the part of Richard being taken by John Kemble, who, although he had no voice to speak of, did his work, we are told, passably well.

The masterpiece was followed by "Panurge dans l'île des Lanternes," a comedy in three acts, produced at the Opéra in January, 1785. According to Grétry himself, this was the first work of a purely comic character which appeared with success on the greatest lyric stage of France. But the apparition disgusted many people, who thought the Opéra degraded by it. M. Fétis says: "The appearance of 'Panurge' at the Opéra, caused even more noise and scandal than that of 'La Caravane.' Lyric comedy may pass, but the genus Burlesque at the Royal Academy of Music! This was hardihood without example. But again the proverb was shown to be right, and fortune smiled on audacity." The overture to "Panurge" was published in Paris, arranged for the clavecin soon after its first performance, and drew from Grétry a letter to the journals which explains itself:—

"Gentlemen,—I owe thanks to the honest musician who has been good enough to arrange the overture to 'Panurge' from my score, and has had the goodness not to change an essential note. I do not know how he obtained an overture entrusted to my copyist and my engraver, who are honest men, but I see quite clearly that the art of profiting by the labours of others has reached perfection in these days. On Tuesday next may be obtained at the usual places, the overture and four dance measures in 'Panurge,' arranged also for the clavecin or piano, with accompaniment, at the same price as the overture announced by honest M. ————. M. Hulmandel and myself have taken the liberty to make some changes in the work of that musician, but he will pardon us, no doubt."

Grétry was no bad hand at sarcasm it is clear.

(To be continued.)

BEETHOVEN.

AN important addition has just been made to the Beethoven literature in a stout volume, entitled "Zweite Beethoveniana,"* which has very recently issued from the press of Messrs. Rieter-Biedermann. The volume contains the last researches of the well-known Herr Gustav Nottebohm in the contents of Beethoven's sketch-books, and their relation to his life and his published music. A volume of "Beethoveniana" was published by this veteran explorer in 1872. He then began a further set of papers in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt, which were terminated by his death in 1882. These have now been collected, with many extensions, and with the addition of many articles not before printed, the whole being edited by Herr Mandyczewski, a musician of Vienna, who is taking a prominent part in the new complete edition of Schubert.

The volume contains no less than sixty-five separate articles, some of them of great length, quoting Beethoven's sketches for his various works, and thus showing, under Beethoven's own hand, how these wonderful compositions grew gradually and slowly to their perfect and permanent shape. Of the Symphonies, we have thus the detailed history of the Choral, of Nos. 8, 7, 6, and 5; many new and interesting particulars of the music for the "Weihe des Hauses" (Op. 124); of the Overture, Op. 115; of "Fidelio" (an article of fifty pages); of the Pianoforte Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 4, and 5, with an unfinished Concerto in D; of the Choral Fantasia; of many Sonatas, and many Quartets; of the "Liederkreis"; of an opera on the subject of Macbeth; of a third Mass, in C sharp minor, and many other matters. These notices are collected from sketch-books scattered through the Libraries of Europe, including the British Museum.

No other artist or author has afforded the same opportunity of tracing the course of his mind, and laid all the processes of his method of working so completely bare, as Beethoven has done in these precious and unique sketch-books. The old idea with regard to Beethoven is that he was rapid and headstrong, that he set rules at defiance, and did everything, as it were, in a flash and cloud of genius. This was the notion even of so expert a man as Fétis, and to some extent of Berlioz, and is still held by many; but Nottebohm's labours ought to put an end to it for ever. They have shown that he was in reality gradual and tentative to a most extraordinary degree; that years might elapse between the inception and the completion of a work; that a subject or a passage only occurred to him for the purpose of being written down, and then almost at once crossed out in favour of an alteration—often slight, but generally pertinent; and that it was only after repeated alterations of this kind that his works attained their permanent form. Gradually, as the altered sketches succeed one another, the piquant feature or rhythm, which is now the most characteristic thing in the passage, steals in; and at last, after three or four more attempts, assumes its well-known place. Here we see too the remarkable habit of this marvellous composer of elaborating two, three, and even four works at the same time, and thus showing the bursting fertility of his mind. All this and a great deal more is to be learned from these crowded and pregnant pages.

The ultimate destination of some of the movements is very interesting. One of the most prominent subjects in the last Pianoforte Sonata (1821) originally appears in a sketch-book of 1802; the slow movement of No. 7 Symphony was invented for the C major Quartet six years earlier; a portion of the Prisoners' Chorus in "Fidelio" becomes the Finale of the Pianoforte Concerto in G; and so on. Nor is it only his mode of composition that is thus illustrated. He seems to have written down everything—memoranda of the most cursory sort; allusions to the beauty of the country; to the effect of his own pianoforte music on himself; his requirements for a house; a tailor's name; and then, how striking to come on the following entry: "Dona nobis pacem darstellend den innern u. äussern Frieden," the first mention of that affecting indication in the Mass in D!

Before we close these brief remarks, we must notice one or two points in which even this excellent volume might be improved. It is an instance of the steady way in which our German friends persist in making their books difficult to read and to use. There is not only no index, where an index would be invaluable, but there are no head-lines; not even the chapters are indicated, save at the beginning of each; and the old repulsive plan of solid pages, with but few paragraphs, is adhered to. It is also most inconvenient—in days when so much of one's reading has to be done in the train—to handle a heavy book of 600 pages in a thin paper cover. The difficulties thus thrown in the way of the reader are very great, but, notwithstanding them, we shall be surprised if anyone who takes up this volume can easily lay it down.

AFTER the provincial reporter, the novelist must be admitted to rank as a good second in the perpetration of musical solecisms. The banjo, as we all know, is the favoured instrument of the aristocracy in real life; but it has not yet been introduced to enhance the pathos of a romantic situation in any work of fiction that we are acquainted with. It has been reserved for a titled authoress, however, to assign this rôle to the piano-organ. If any of our readers are inclined to doubt this assertion, let them turn to the pages of "Waiting for the Prince," by Lady Constance Howard (F. V. White and Co.). In it they will read how Guy, the sculptor-hero, while suffering from profound dejection, was "strangely comforted" by the strains of a passing piano-organ, which struck up "Wait till the clouds roll by" outside his studio. Guy joins in, in his mellow baritone or rich tenor—we forget for the moment which—and performs the whole song, the words of which are carefully set down. Under the middle of the last line the word "chorus" is added, which is a stroke of genius on the part of the author. In the words of the musical critic, "comment is needless." Our experience of recent fiction has perhaps yielded nothing so divinely fatuous as the foregoing scene, but the following extracts will serve to show that a frothy effusion still continues to be the distinctive characteristic of the method in which workers in the field of sentimental romance deal with music. Thus, in "Love and Liking," a three-volume novel quite recently published by Messrs. F. V. White and Co., the hero has a "rich tenor" (if novelists only knew how maddening those conventional epithets are to the reader!), while the heroine "sang like a young thrush, with a trill that in the feathered songster's melody tells that its mate is nigh." Another personage in the same novel is called Cremona, "the fanciful baptismal name given Mrs. Beaumorris by her violin-loving father." The comparison of the heroine's voice to that of a thrush occurs in another recent work of fiction, entitled "Poor Laurette." "I'll go bang," remarks one of the characters, "she sings like a thrush." Brought out under the auspices of her singing-master, Signor Doria, "Poor Laurette" receives a hundred pounds for singing in a duet with that worthy, at the Albert Hall, before a "small gathering of grandees." A little further on it is incidentally mentioned that she was habitually paid at the rate of a guinea a note. Where George Eliot blundered and Thackeray erred, it is not likely that tenth-rate littérateurs should succeed. There is an infallible remedy—that of total abstinence on the part of these writers from all reference to that which they know nothing about; but this implies a restraint which it is hopeless to expect from "the ignoble army of irresponsible scribblers," as the author of "Love and Liking" very happily dubs them. One great secret of Turgenieff's success in treating music in his novels lay in his reticence. He knew exactly how much to say about it, hitting the happy mean between cold precision and extravagant rhapsody, and the exceptional opportunities he had enjoyed for so many years as a member of the Viardot household never tempted him to make any ostentatious parade of his knowledge. Inasmuch as the duty of a critic should be quite as much concerned with the recognition of good points as the exposure of bad, it behoves us to mention that in an unpretending paper-bound volume of stories published last spring, under the title of "A Summer Day Dream," by Julian Ord, we have encountered a method of dealing with matters musical wholly removed from the silly gush illustrated by the foregoing extracts, and approaching in its essentials to the ideal mode adopted by Turgenieff.

* "Zweite Beethoveniana," Nachgelassene Aufsätze von Gustav Nottebohm. Leipzig: Rieter-Biedermann, 1887.

In P. G. Hamerton's "Life of Turner," we are told that he was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral, and when the coffin was taken into the building "the choristers chanted the Dead March in Saul." Mrs. Alexander's clever and well-known novel, "The wooing o't," has the following passage: "Maggie was opposite to him at table, between Mr. Fitzalan and one of the nameless Philharmonics, who talked thorough bass across her during the greater part of the evening." Such mistakes as these, by eminent authors, may be multiplied ad infinitum; but when we read in a newspaper of wide circulation a paragraph inviting amateurs to join a class "for the performance of Sir Michael Costa's Oratorio of 'Elijah';" and, in an analytical programme, that Haydn was called "'Papa Haydn' because he invented the String Quartet," we cannot but wonder how good music can ever struggle through such inartistic surroundings, and make itself felt by the many. But this is only the preface to a more remarkable instance of ignorance than any we have yet called attention to, and the truth of which is vouched for by a constant correspondent. At an amateur sacred concert in a chapel, the solo "'Tis Liberty," from "Judas Maccabæus," was down in the programme; and the chairman in announcing the vocalist said "Mr. — will now sing 'Tis Liberty,' by Mr. Judas Maccabæus." This slip of the chairman being afterwards discussed by members of the choir and their friends, one remarked, in all seriousness, "Why, of course, he might have known that 'Judas Maccabæus' was one of the twelve apostles." This was capped by a second, who said, without hesitation, "Everybody knows that 'Judas Maccabæus' was a German composer." A few days after this, a member of the community to whom the affair had been related was arranging a programme for another concert in the same chapel, and was requested to insert as one of the songs "Pious orgies," from Judas Maccabæus. With a knowing smile, however, he shook his head and said "Oh no, my dear sir, I really cannot put that down; you see, I have heard the story." He thought he was being imposed upon, and it was not until a copy of Judas was produced that he was convinced there really was such an Oratorio. Here indeed is sufficiently decisive proof that ample work could still be found for musical missionaries.

We have, on more than one occasion, contended, in opposition to views expressed elsewhere, that the attainment of a high level of executive excellence by amateurs should be regarded rather in the light of a valuable stimulus to professional talent, than in that of an unjustifiable and dangerous rivalry. Serious competition is out of the question, or, if it ever should arise, could only be due to the remissness and incompetence of professionals. On the other hand, it may, and does, often happen that amateurs have enjoyed special facilities which enable them to read salutary lessons to their professional brethren. We allude in particular to the matter of accent, not only in the vernacular, but in other tongues, notably French. To descend from generalities to a particular instance, such a performance as that which was given in Prince's Hall by the combined forces of the Magpie and Wandering Minstrels, under the bâton of Mr. Lionel Benson, on the night of the 20th ult., should be taken as a very welcome sign of the high level of amateur proficiency in this country. The name borne by the vocal contingent is hardly suggestive of classical music; and yet, with scarcely an exception, their contributions to the entertainment consisted of 16th century madrigals, and part-songs by the best ancient and modern masters. Nor was the orchestral selection inferior in quality to that furnished by the choir. Beethoven's "Prometheus" Overture, that of Weber to "Euryanthe," a "Slavische Tanz" of Dvorák's, and movements from Haydn's "Military" Symphony, and Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto—the solo being played by Mr. Louis d'Egville with plenty of dash and excellent intonation—testified to the sound and catholic taste of the Conductor, who, as a soloist, charmed his hearers by the refinement and feeling with which he rendered songs by Maude V. White and Gounod, proving himself the fortunate possessor of a French accent which falls to the lot of few Englishmen to acquire. The orchestra, even in the wood-wind and brass, was entirely composed of amateurs, and their execution of the pieces already named was, on the whole, highly creditable. A couple of Mr. Scott Gatty's "Plantation" songs represented the humorous element, and proved far more to the taste of the fashionable audience than the Madrigals of Palestrina or the Overtures of Beethoven and Weber. But in saying this we mean to put no slight upon the genial author of these diverting ditties, who showed on this, as on former occasions, that between genuine comedy and music-hall buffoonery there is a wide gulf fixed.

Our columns have from time to time borne testimony of the increase of a cultivated musical taste in New Zealand; yet that those who labour in the good cause in this Colony do not always meet with the encouragement they deserve is proved by an extract from a local paper recently forwarded to us. It seems that Mr. Robert Parker, a resident musician, gave a lecture in which he incidentally referred to a type of "musical evening"—a combination of dancing, talking, and music—which is becoming fashionable in Wellington, and a leading journal in commenting upon his discourse, has the following: "We, or some of us, at any rate, are sheer barbarians, and absolutely have evening parties with a little music to vary the entertainment; and after the music, and even while the music is going on, somebody, oh! horror, dares to talk, and then it is not music at all but horrid barbarism, and we have no right to mix up music and conversation, and ought to be ashamed of ourselves for so insulting Melpomene and her sister Euterpe. This, it seems, is the dictum of that enthusiastic and uncompromising classical musician, Parker of Thorndon. He will not allow people to enjoy themselves, but insists upon them not only singing and playing classically, but, worse than all, listening to classical music also." And afterwards the writer metaphorically pats the lecturer on the back thus: "See, dear boy, if there is one thing more than another that the working people—I am one of 'em—crave for, it is amusement. . . . We don't understand Beethoven and Mozart much, nor even Wagner, and, in short, we are essentially melodious, and not harmoniously classical." Now we should imagine that so unflinching an upholder of the union of music with conversation would desire his theory to be thoroughly carried out; but when he says "we would rather listen to operatic gems, ballads, and songs than to sonatas, or even fugues, and those dreadfully dreary compositions called classical productions," it appears to us that he shifts his ground, for it is the necessity of listening at all that he begins by complaining of. We should decidedly advise him to advocate talking straight through all the music, for if he were accidentally to hear any of it, who knows but that he might be delighted with, or even applaud, a classical work without knowing it?

THE Dean and Chapter of Rochester, in the handsomest manner possible, have agreed to the request of the friends and relations of the late Joseph Maas to erect a memorial tablet in the Cathedral to him who received his first musical education as a chorister in that ancient fane. The approved design includes a replica of the portrait medallion of the late singer, copied from his monument in West Hampstead Cemetery. The Dean and Chapter have kindly consented, in consideration of the honour achieved by their late chorister, to forego certain of the fees, but the labour of erecting the memorial cannot be done without expense; this will be about £40. A portion of this sum is already promised, and it is believed that the past and present choristers of England would like to have the opportunity of contributing small sums to what is intended to be a Choristers' monument. Mr. W. A. Barrett, of 39, Angell Road, Brixton, London, a member of the Memorial Committee, and one of the trustees, will be glad to receive any contributions towards the end in view.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

THE above heading appears at the top of another notice in the present number, and it becomes rather difficult, without the use of unwieldy titles, to distinguish between the various operatic enterprises of this extraordinary season. Let us hasten to say that we now refer to Mr. Lago's Royal Italian Opera, which began with a performance of "La Favorita," in Covent Garden Theatre, on Tuesday, the 24th ult. The manager is evidently desirous of doing his work well, and emulating the best of the days during which Mr. Gye reigned in the same place. He has secured the efficient services of Mr. Bevignani as Conductor; there is a capital chorus, including many fine male voices, and the orchestra of seventy-two performers includes the pick of our best native and resident foreign artists. The list of principals, moreover, is a good one as times go, being headed by Madame Albani, and continued by various names admittedly representative of high excellence. We see no reason, therefore, why Mr. Lago should fail to offer a series of representations well worthy of public support, provided he does not attempt too much, and insists upon producing nothing till it has first been properly prepared.

The performance of "La Favorita" can hardly be taken as a criterion for the rest of the season. There are always plenty of shortcomings on an opening night, the fate of which managers and artists are content to leave in the hands of providence, for no reason, we are sure, which can justify the act. So at Covent Garden, where the requisite smoothness of running was by no means noticeable. Even the stage management showed lack of care, the principals in the marriage procession going off on the wrong side, while the well accustomed bridesmaids started for the proper route, and were only brought up by the voice of authority. Mr. Lago on this occasion introduced a new Leonora in the person of Miss Medie-Mei, who comes from we know not where. The lady is not in her first youth, nor does experience of the stage atone for the defects of a worn voice and a tremulous, laboured delivery. We are sorry to say it, but Miss Medie-Mei won't do. Even her "O mio Fernando" failed to move the audience into a favourable mood. The remaining principal characters were sustained by Mr. D'Andrade (King), Mr. Gayarré (Fernando), and, if the bills may be credited, Mr. Campello (Baldassare), the last named being a new comer. Mr. D'Andrade sang out of tune at times, but was generally efficient, and Mr. Gayarré played and vocalised with all his old propriety and vigour. The male voice chorus in the third act has rarely been better sung, while at times the orchestra was superb.

"Rigoletto," with Miss Ella Russell, was to be played on Thursday, the 26th ult., and "Faust," with Madame Albani, on the Saturday following.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

MR. MAPLESON closed his short campaign at Covent Garden on the 6th ult., and, consequently, very little work comes within the ken of our present notice. Gounod's "Mirella" is the principal item, the opera having been revived, after a sleep of more than twenty years, in the penultimate week of the season. We are hardly called upon to acquaint our readers with the character and claims of the French master's pastoral, or tell them its history from the appearance of the first ill-fated version to the definite shaping of the work as we now have it. All this information has long been common property, and if we had space to spare, there would be more interest and amusement, possibly more profit, in speculating as to the reasons which brought about its revival. Mayhap Miss Nevada wanted to figure as the interesting heroine, or, perhaps, Mr. Mapleson succeeded in persuading himself that the time has come for reviving pastoral opera. As a matter of fact, "Mirella" stood no chance from the first, idyllic though the story be and pretty as is the music. Public taste runs in favour of very different works and public taste rules. The audience on the first night of "Mirella" was neither large nor enthusiastic; but all the same, the artists engaged played and sang their best. They were Miss Nevada, Mirella; Miss Engle, Shepherd; Madame Lablache, Tamena; Mr. Caylus, Vicenzo; and Mr. De Anna, Irias. The performance ran with tolerable smoothness, and there were occasions when the music, worthily presented, seemed to touch those who heard it. Unhappily, mischief was done to the representation by the loose principles upon which Italian opera is usually conducted—the prima donna being allowed to drag in a show song from another work by another composer, just to give herself an opportunity for display. In condemnation of such a course, no words can be too strong. After "Mirella," Mr. Mapleson contented himself with repetitions; taking a "benefit" on the last night, when the programme was an olla podrida, meaning nothing but diversion.

CARL ROSA OPERA.

OUR readers will not be very angry if we spare them details concerning what may be called the routine work of Mr. Rosa's Drury Lane season, which began on the last day of April with a representation of "Carmen," sustained for the most part in a familiar manner, but made of some special interest by additions to the mise-en-scène of the last act, and by the first appearance of Miss Fanny Moody as Michaela. The scene of the bull-ring is now animated, splendid, and truthful, while, in Miss Moody, the manager has a young artist qualified to make much of a very sympathetic part. The performance generally, with Madame Roze as Carmen, and Mr. McGuckin as José, showed that Mr. Rosa had returned to town with a complete equipment of band, chorus, and principals, qualified to strengthen the repute of his enterprise. Since the opening night we have had our old friends the "Bohemian Girl," "Faust," "Mignon," "Esmeralda" (100th performance), "Il Trovatore," &c., played in the usual fashion, and accepted with customary good will. These are the representations that may be passed to reach the production of Mr. Corder's "Nordisa," which took place on Wednesday, the 4th ult., in presence of a full house. When "Nordisa" was brought out at Liverpool, in January last, our special correspondent described the work and estimated its pretensions in sufficient detail. We are, therefore, now spared the necessity of discussion upon points which appear to have excited a good deal of feeling. The fact is obvious that "Nordisa" pleased far less in London than in Liverpool, both the public and the critics of the two places being at variance upon its merits. We shall make no pretensions to decide between them. THE MUSICAL TIMES has spoken once and that is enough for us. We would, however, point out that some reason for dissatisfaction may, perhaps, arise from Mr. Corder's well-meant efforts to prepare a work which should acquire popularity and pave the way for better things. No one who knows him can suppose that the music of "Nordisa" represents the sum of his ability, and he is therefore open only to the charge of having made an error in judgment. The principal characters were sustained by Madame Gaylord (Nordisa), Madame Burns, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. James Sauvage, Mr. Aynsley Cook, and Mr. Max Eugene; all these artists acquitting themselves to the satisfaction of the house. The mise-en-scène was adequate, though the avalanche may have caused some disappointment. On the 25th ult. Mr. Rosa produced "Lohengrin," with very fine spectacular effects, the dresses and stage appointments generally being magnificent. Madame Roze (Elsa), Madame Tremelli (Ortrud), Mr. McGuckin (Lohengrin), Mr. Sauvage (Herald), Mr. Eugene (Telramond), and Mr. Pope (Emperor) sustained their parts with dramatic propriety, and the orchestra was excellent, but not much can be said for the singing, the demands of which were ineffectively met. Nevertheless, "Lohengrin" is likely to prove a "draw."

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

So familiar are Albert Hall renderings of Berlioz's "Faust," that the one given on April 30 might be passed with a mere record of the fact that it took place; that Mr. Barnby conducted, as usual, and that the solos were sung in their well-known manner by Madame Albani, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Henry Pyatt, and Mr. Watkin Mills. It would be superfluous to dwell upon the exertions of these artists, or to give reasons why Madame Albani and Mr. Lloyd ran each other hard for first honours. Enough that the eminent vocalists never did themselves or their sympathetic music greater justice. The chorus was, as heretofore, nearly faultless. It is a treat of the highest order to hear this fine body of amateurs in "Faust." It exemplifies a union of the greatest force with unsurpassed delicacy. For intelligible reasons, the audience expressed themselves best pleased with the orchestra. The "Hungarian March" and the "Dance of Sylphs" are irresistible, even when indifferently played; how much more when the executants are such as those over whom Mr. Barnby presides?

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE enterprise and energy of the management of the Crystal Palace resulted, on the 7th ult., in the most effective rejoinder to the attitude of the cognoscenti of Berlin that can be conceived. By their resolve to produce "The Golden Legend" on Handel Festival scale, they not only offered a unique compliment to Sir Arthur Sullivan (no other composer that we are aware of ever having witnessed a similar presentation of one of his works), but they furnished the English music-loving public with an opportunity of which they, in their turn, were not slow to avail themselves, of assembling literally "in their thousands"—to borrow the phraseology of political handbills—in order to endorse in overwhelming fashion the verdict originally passed at Leeds, and confirmed at every subsequent performance of this fine work. Mr. Manns had bestowed on the preparation of "The Golden Legend" that happy mixture of enthusiasm and conscientiousness which thirty odd years of hard work in the land of his adoption have been unable to abate, and to him above all others concerned is the credit due for what, in many respects, was the most impressive rendering which Sir Arthur Sullivan's masterpiece has yet received. The vast choir, drilled to perfection by Mr. Manns himself, went through its work with a fire, a precision, and a delicacy that could hardly have been surpassed. The only loophole left for adverse criticism was to be found in the Prologue, the striking upward swell in which, on the words "O, we cannot," has never been properly given except by the Yorkshire chorus. The Evening Hymn, the chorus "O pure in heart," and the Epilogue, were all splendidly sung, and created a deep impression on the large audience, which stretched back without a vacant seat to the stage of the pantomime theatre. Of the principals engaged, Madame Albani, Madame Patey, and Mr. Lloyd, who were all in excellent voice, repeated the now familiar impersonations of their respective rôles, Madame Albani's voice travelling with the greatest effect throughout the vast auditorium. Mr. Foli, who undertook the part of Lucifer for the first time, was well fitted by his previous experience of Mephistophelean parts, and by his exceptional vocal resources, for a great deal of the music which fell to his share. On the other hand, Mr. Foli was not quite note-perfect in his part, and the high range of certain passages proved a stumbling-block in the way of correct intonation. The orchestration undoubtedly suffered chiefly from the method of presentation adopted on this occasion, a great many of the most delicate effects being lost or spoilt by the process of multiplication. A word of praise is due to Mr. A. J. Eyre for his judicious rendering of the passages for organ. Sir Arthur Sullivan was twice recalled at the close of the Concert, and Mr. Manns was also accorded the enthusiastic greeting that he had so richly deserved.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

ALTHOUGH containing no novelty, the programme of the Concert on the 5th ult. was of the highest interest, the two most important works—Dvorák's masterly Overture, "Husitzká," and Hermann Goetz's strangely neglected Symphony in F—presenting attraction to the lovers of classical music which fully compensated for the absence of compositions submitted for the first time to critical judgment. When Dvorák conducted his "Husitzká" Overture on its production at these Concerts in 1884, its extraordinary dramatic power was at once recognised; and a second hearing confirms the impression that, great as have been the composer's triumphs since that time, it must ever be considered one of the best of his works. Not only, indeed, is it an inspiration from beginning to end, but this inspiration is prompted by the noble feelings of a true patriot who is desirous of glorifying in music that great Bohemian struggle for independence known as the "Hussite war." The manner in which this design is carried out need not be again enlarged upon. Suffice it to say that the Overture created so powerful an impression upon the audience as to elicit a perfect storm of applause, a considerable share of which was undoubtedly due to Sir Arthur Sullivan, who conducted a perfectly ideal performance of the work. Goetz's Symphony, played for the first time at these Concerts, has been happily acknowledged elsewhere in this country as one of the greatest works of its gifted composer. After its excellent rendering on this occasion by the Philharmonic orchestra, we can scarcely imagine that, even by this conservative Society, it can be ignored in the future, received as it was with a cordiality which showed that the originality of its themes, the beauty of their treatment, and the exquisite orchestration throughout were thoroughly appreciated by an audience numbering many to whom the Symphony was a positive novelty. Mr. Schönberger's performance of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor was marked by all the good qualities of his playing, and fewer of the bad ones than we have heard in his many interpretations of the classical works, and he was warmly and deservedly applauded. The vocalist was Madame Patey, who was highly successful in Gluck's "Che farò," and the programme included Wagner's "Walkürenritt." The Concert on the 19th ult. commenced with Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, which was played with all that precision and delicacy to which the orchestra, under Sir Arthur Sullivan's conductorship, has now accustomed us. Familiar as the Philharmonic audience is with Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat (the "Emperor") the exceptionally good rendering of the work by Miss Clotilde Kleeberg aroused the audience to positive enthusiasm, the applause indeed being continued long after the performer had retired for the second time from the platform. The second part of the programme began with Mr. F. Corder's "Roumanian Suite" for orchestra, composed expressly for the Society. As Mr. Corder tells us that he uses the term Suite in its modern sense, and that in his work there is "only a slight assimilation to the modern Symphony," the hearers knew precisely what they had to expect. Whether many experienced a sense of disappointment on finding that the attraction of the composition was chiefly confined to the presentation of Roumanian melodies in all their native barbarity we cannot say; but certainly whatever is attempted is done well. The "Suite" consists of four movements — "A Rhapsody," "A Dance," "A Romance," and "Zingaresca." The first movement, having for its principal subject a Lento, in C minor, with an excellent contrasting Allegro, is avowedly designed to represent "an exiled Roumanian pining for the sights and sounds of his native land"; the second movement, one of the best in the work, is a pleasing Dance, bright and joyous, with a Trio, and return to the original theme; the third is a genuine Romance, exquisitely scored, and containing a quaint passage for wind instruments; and the finale, "Zingaresca," a real Roumanian melody, followed by a dashing Allegro, forms a most effective climax to the work. Apart from the clever manner in which these fragments are woven into a continuous composition, the instrumentation must strike every musical ear both by its appropriateness with the theme under treatment and the richness and variety of colour. Mr. Corder, who conducted, was most warmly greeted at the conclusion, and has every right to congratulate himself upon the success of a work which, with so critical an audience, might certainly be considered experimental. Mr. Santley, the only vocalist of the evening, gave Purcell's "Let the dreadful engines," and Mozart's air "Per questa bella mano," with double bass obbligato by Bottesini (an ineffective composition); Mr. Bottesini played his own Concerto in F sharp minor, and the Concert concluded with Wagner's Overture "Die Meistersinger."

RICHTER CONCERTS.

A NEW season of these popular Concerts began on the 2nd ult., under the sole management of Mr. N. Vert, who, not without some trouble and litigation, has made the enterprise, with all its profit (or loss) and its responsibility, his own. Mr. Vert is the right man for the place he now fills, proof of which may be seen in the fact that he gave Mr. Richter carte blanche as to the orchestra, and enabled the Conductor both to strengthen and improve its resources. By this measure the strings, at one time a weak point, have been made nearly all that fastidiousness can desire. Nothing in the opening programme called for extended remark. It comprised Beethoven's A major Symphony, the Introductions to "Die Meistersinger" and "Parsifal," Brahms's Variations on Theme by Haydn, and Liszt's Third Hungarian Rhapsody. These selections belong to the stock repertory of the Richter Concerts, and a simple record of their performance is enough. There was no vocal music in the scheme, and nobody seemed to miss it.

The second Concert (9th ult.) put forward a novelty in the shape of an Introduction to Goldmark's new opera "Merlin," which appears to have made a success in Germany. Regarding the work as a whole, we are not now called upon to speak, and we would not say a word by way of pre-judgment. The Introduction is enough for present consideration, if, indeed, consideration be called for by a piece of music which is weak Wagner. Mr. Goldmark has shown in previous compositions that he can write naturally and pleasantly; why, then, did he go out of his way to imitate a man in comparison with whom the best imitator only reveals his incompetence. The "Merlin" prelude is no worse and no better than scores of other things framed upon the same model; the only cause for wonder and regret is that Goldmark should have gone out of his way to write it. The piece was very coldly received and, probably, will not be heard of again in this country. Precisely an opposite result followed a performance of the graceful intermezzo from Dr. Mackenzie's "Jason." Here was charmingly descriptive music, that gave pleasure alike to ear and mind—that appealed alike to imagination and a sense of beauty. The audience received it most cordially—they could do nothing less without forfeiting character—and we should say that "On the Waters" is now on the active repertory of these Concerts. Berlioz's Symphony, "Harold en Italie," occupied a great deal of the evening, and was beautifully played; but we doubt whether, in the opinion of a majority, it tended to edification or pleasure. "Harold" is the weakest of all Berlioz's Symphonies; perhaps because its basis is the most artificial, and its situations the most strained. The composer may, however, have been hampered by the necessity, which Paganini imposed upon him, of writing for a solo viola. This has no logical connection with the main idea, nor is it justified by musical results. "Harold en Italie" excited no enthusiasm. Mr. Santley was the vocalist, and sang "Wotan's Farewell" with the precise effect of former efforts.

The third Concert (16th ult.) introduced a novelty much more important than that put forward at the second. We refer to a set of Symphonic Variations, composed for orchestra, on an original theme, by Mr. Antonín Dvorák. This work made a great and legitimate effect. The melody is simple, but striking, and admirably adapted for the treatment it has received, while the variations, twenty-four in number, are variations in so real and masterly a sense that they seem to exhaust the possibilities of the form. A critic has truly said of them: "We may stay a moment to point out how forcibly sentiment, feeling, and passion are expressed by the several movements. Love and hate, hope and despair, joy and sorrow, all seem to be represented, and to find appropriate utterance in the ever-differing treatment of a single theme. This vital quality it is which lifts the entire work far above the ordinary exhibitions of mechanical dexterity and places it amongst the products of true art." We trust that Mr. Richter will announce the Dvorák Variations for speedy repetition. Other selections in this programme were familiar. They included Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas," the prelude to Act III. of "Die Meistersinger," the prelude and closing scene from "Tristan," and Beethoven's "Little Symphony," No. 8.

At the fourth Concert (23rd ult.) Mr. Richter satisfied the long-standing curiosity of amateurs about Anton Bruckner's Seventh Symphony—a work that has gone the round of applauding Germany, and was promised in London last year, but, for some reason or other, then withheld. We confess to sore disappointment of hopes not unnaturally raised by reports from abroad. It was, we regret to say, outside our cognisance that Bruckner is the protégé of a particular school. We thought that his work had been judged on its merits, whereas it now appears that personal sympathy had more to do with the verdict. There is reason for unfeigned regret at the failure of the much-vaunted Symphony, since every man with a heart in him must desire success for a composer of sixty-three, who has vainly struggled after fame all his life. Yet fail it did, at any rate for the time, the audience listening with unmistakable coldness, or else going away. Reasons for this may be found in extreme length — a fault substantially aggravated by lack of proportionate interest; in an exaggerated and spasmodic manner only allowable when the composer follows the changing and contrasted sentiments of a poetic text, and in an extraordinary mixture of scholasticism with the freedom of the Wagnerian school. Listening to this Symphony one might suppose that the orchestral part of a Wagner opera is being played by itself; yet each movement closely follows established form, and the melodies in each movement are largely made by the process known as "inversion by contrary motion." We do not say that the last-named feature is of great consequence as affecting the popularity of the work, because the bulk of an average audience would not recognise the inversions, but it shows the curious state of Bruckner's mind as that of a man brought up on the dry bones of counterpoint, and endeavouring to pose as one who can reconcile Wagnerian methods with those of a past age. There are some fine passages in the slow movement —a sort of elegy for Wagner—and the trio of the Scherzo is pleasing. Each movement, indeed, contains something for admiration, but it is swamped by the abounding product of strivings to reconcile varying things, and by the results of pretentious endeavour. Mr. Richter may not accept the verdict of a first audience. In that case we shall be ready to hear the work again, and to modify our opinion should there be reason.

LONDON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

A HIGHLY interesting programme was put forward by this Society on the 24th inst. The first item in the programme was a veritable curiosity—no less than a Cantata of Beethoven, which had probably never been performed in public, and certainly never in England. It dates between the years 1790 and 1792, when the greatest of all masters was still a mere student at Bonn, and the subject is a lament over the death of the Austrian Emperor, Joseph II. The scores of this and a companion work seem to have disappeared until three years ago, when copies turned up in the stock of a Leipzig bookseller. A good deal might be said concerning the history of these Cantatas, but at the present moment it is impossible to enter into many details. The "Joseph" Cantata is in five movements. The opening chorus is calculated to surprise the hearer who looks for Haydn-Mozartian influences in Beethoven's early work. It is surprisingly unconventional, and at times the true Beethoven shines forth in unmistakable fashion. In the succeeding bass solo, somewhat uncomfortably written for the voice, the florid passages are slightly suggestive of Handel. Mozart, however, evidently inspired the third and fourth movements, for soprano solo and chorus, which are extremely charming. A reprise of the fine opening chorus brings this extremely interesting Cantata to an end. The performance was as good as Dr. Mackenzie could make it with the somewhat indifferent material at his disposal. In the second part the Italian pianist, Mr. Buonamici, who occupies a very distinguished position in his own country, created an extremely favourable impression in Beethoven's Choral Fantasia, thanks to his sound technical facility and intelligent style. We shall be glad to hear him again in some stronger test of a pianist's ability. Mr. Prout's Oxford Symphony went well under the composer's direction, and the scheme was completed by Cherubini's melodious and charming Mass (No. 4). The principal soloists of the evening were Miss Carlotta Elliot, Miss Lena Little, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. W. H. Brereton.

SATURDAY EVENING CONCERTS.

MR. W. HOUSTON COLLISSON, who is, we believe, a Dublin professor, having succeeded with Saturday evening Concerts in Ireland, has thought fit to try his luck in London, and began a series of entertainments in St. James's Hall on the 14th ult. He is a brave man—brave in the sense that he defies the warnings of the past. Several times within easy recollection have Saturday evening Concerts been given in London, and always without success. Herein is no mystery, to those, at least, who have observed metropolitan habits, but hope "springs eternal in the human breast," and Mr. Collisson trusts that the rule will give way to an exception in his favour. We sincerely desire for his venture all the good luck it needs, the more because good music is discoursed at the Concerts by excellent artists. On the opening night the programme contained Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Trio in D minor, Rust's Sonata in D for violin, a Duet for violin and double-bass, by Bottesini, and a number of smaller instrumental pieces contributed by Miss Agnes Zimmermann and Mr. Bottesini, with whom were associated in the larger works, Messrs. Papini and Albert. The character of the music and the repute of the performers give a sufficient assurance for good results, both as regards the enjoyment of the audience and their culture. In addition, a number of choice songs were sung by Madame Valleria, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Santley. We regret to say that the attendance was depressingly small—a mere handful of people, who were almost lost amid the empty spaces.

Matters looked somewhat more promising on the 21st., when, also, a slight change appeared in the programme; instrumental works giving way somewhat in favour of vocal pieces. We cannot say whether this was done with a purpose, and signified a trimming of sails to catch the wind. If so, we doubt its wisdom. It is a simple fact that the most successful Concerts in London just now are the most classical. Let Mr. Collisson note the fact, and reflect also that songs and songsters during the London season are as plentiful as blackberries in autumn. Two concerted instrumental works had a place in the selection. They were Grieg's Sonata in F, for piano and violin, played by Miss Lang and Mr. Houston Collisson, and Haydn's Pianoforte Trio in G, with the same executants, the third performer being Mr. Albert. Miss Lang played two short solos, but otherwise the programme was filled with songs unnecessary to particularise. We may dismiss them with a word in praise of the good judgment shown in their selection, and another for their excellent rendering by Miss Adelaide Mullen, Mrs. Scott-Ffennel, Miss Trebelli, and Mr. Edward Lloyd.

A third Concert took place on the 28th ult., too late for notice here.

THE BACH CHOIR.

THE third and last Concert for the present season of this energetic body of amateurs took place at St. James's Hall, on the 17th ult., and may with justice be termed one of the most interesting performances of the year. The Society has placed all classes of music lovers under a heavy obligation during the eleven years of its existence, and the debt has been considerably increased this season by the production, in concert-room form, of Schumann's "Genoveva" and the performance of Berlioz's grand Te Deum. The last-named work had only been given once before in this country—namely, at the Crystal Palace, in April, 1885. The composer placed difficulties in the way of the performance of his larger works by the magnitude of the forces he requires. For example, in the Te Deum, there should be an orchestra of 134 executants and a double choir of 200 voices at one end of the building, and a large organ and a choir of 600 children at the other. However, he is gracious enough to add that in concert-room performances, the third choir may be dispensed with, and the organ replaced by a harmonium. Fortunately there is an organ in St. James's Hall, though not a very good one, and a choir of boys was obtained. Berlioz was nothing if not dramatic, and the whole plan of the work is more suggestive of the theatre than the church. Still, a great deal of the music is immensely powerful, and in the final movement, "Judex crederis," the writing is distinguished by enormous breadth and colossal effects. The composer spoke of this Finale as "without doubt my grandest creation." Too much praise could not be given to Dr. Stanford and his forces for the admirable performance. It was an achievement of which the Bach Choir may be justly proud, and we shall be surprised if the Te Deum is not repeated at no distant date. Another interesting feature of the Concert was the first performance of a new setting, for eight voices, of Milton's Ode "At a solemn music," by Dr. Hubert Parry. This is a fine and scholarly piece of writing, full of excellent counterpoint, but always clear, broad, and dignified. As usual with this composer, the general style of the music reflects that of Brahms; but in this instance it is Brahms in his more genial mood. The Ode was rendered with enthusiasm, the call for the composer being more than usually hearty. Bach was represented by his familiar Orchestral Suite in D and the lovely tenor air with chorus, "With Jesus I will watch and pray," from the "St. Matthew Passion Music." Mr. Lloyd rendered full justice to this, and also to the tenor solo in the Te Deum.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

To speak frankly on a disagreeable point is sometimes a duty, and after the Concert of the above-named organisation on April 27, at St. James's Hall, there seems to have been a general concensus of opinion that the time had arrived for drawing attention in plain terms to the deterioration of a once justly-famed body of singers. For some time past we have gently hinted at the advisability of reforms, but our warnings have passed unheeded. The public, however, is now taking the matter up in an unpleasant way, for despite the attractiveness of such artists as Madame Albani, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Schönberger, there was by no means a full room at the second Concert this season. A few years ago such a programme would have drawn an immense audience. The choir was heard in some of the most popular items of its repertory, including Wesley's fine Motett for double choir, "In exitu Israel," Pearsall's clever Ballad in ten real parts, "Sir Patrick Spens"; Gounod's "Ave Verum," and Mr. Leslie's beautiful prize Madrigal, "Thine eyes so bright." That the public is not tiring of this class of music was evinced by the applause and encores. But it was impossible to close one's ears to the fact that the tone was thin and harsh, the pitch constantly drooping, and even the attack less certain than it used to be. The weeding out of veterans, and the infusion of a hundred or so fresh and youthful voices would soon mend matters, and restore popular confidence. Why this should not be done at once it is hard to say. Concerning the efforts of the solo performers at this Concert little need be said. Mr. Schönberger gave a characteristic rendering of Schumann's Fantasia in C (Op. 17), and various smaller pieces, and the vocalists were heard in a number of familiar selections.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.

VAULTING ambition, if it does not o'erleap itself, is generally to be commended. It is certainly not for us to blame the company of the above-named theatre for endeavouring to accomplish something in a higher sphere of art than comic opera, though whether the public would ever be induced to attend Concerts in theatres, as they do abroad, is open to question. Again, if the object of starting musical afternoons be to present "English works which might otherwise not obtain a hearing," why did the first choice fall upon Mr. Alfred Cellier's Leeds Cantata "Gray's Elegy"? Though inadequate to its subject, the work is so easy and melodious, that it is exactly suited to the needs of small choral societies, and is not likely to be neglected by them. For its performance on the 11th ult., the theatre orchestra was slightly increased, but no additions were made to the chorus, and the balance of parts was therefore extremely odd at times. The choristers sang with a good deal of earnestness, but the lack of refinement was not surprising. With the exception of Miss Marian Ellis, an efficient contralto, the principals—Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Hayden Coffin—were members of the "Dorothy" Company, and they acquitted themselves very well. Mr. Cellier conducted, and the performance was warmly received by a fair audience. A lengthy and heterogeneous second part followed, in which Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto, played by Mr. Cor de Las, was associated with some shop ballads and other trivialities.

MR. SAINT-SAËNS'S PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

WHILE Concerts of chamber music have been more numerous than ever during the past month, we have not had the usual invasion of foreign pianists. In fact, the only performer of note who has condescended to visit us is Mr. Saint-Saëns, who gave the first of two Recitals at St. James's Hall, on the 21st ult. The French musician is a composer, an organist, and a pianist, and his capacity in each of these departments of his art is far above the average. This cannot be denied, but the English public is somewhat capricious, and, for some reason hard to determine, Mr. Saint-Saëns has failed as yet to ingratiate himself in its favour. There was but a small audience on the above occasion, though the programme was interesting, nearly every item being either new or at least unfamiliar. The pianist's own compositions formed a large portion of the scheme and included a remarkable effective Sonata in D minor, for piano and violin, which was first played at one of Mr. Peiniger's Concerts last year, a Hymn to Victor Hugo, and smaller pieces and transcriptions. The Hymn was originally composed for choir and orchestra, and in this form we should think it would be highly impressive. Another French composer, Mr. Gabriel Fauré, whose name is scarcely as yet familiar in this country, was represented by a Sonata in A for piano and violin. Of the four movements we preferred the Scherzo, but in all the themes have a pleasing freshness though the general style is rather laboured and turgid. The violinist was Mr. Diaz Albertini, an able performer. At his next Recital, on the 4th inst., Mr. Saint-Saëns will be assisted by three Parisian wind instrument players, who are said to be artists of rare calibre.

MADAME NÉRUDA'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

THE most accomplished of lady violinists is doing something to atone for the gap caused by the absence this season of Mr. Sarasate. She limits her scheme, however, to two Concerts, the first of which took place at St. James's Hall, on the 14th ult. Mr. Charles Hallé conducted, and the programme had features of interest, apart from the performances of Madame Néruda herself. It commenced with a Symphony in D minor by Haydn, for the first time in London. The work is mentioned in the catalogue in Pohl's biography, but it is not published, and we do not know whence Mr. Hallé obtained the score. That it is a genuine Haydn Symphony, however, admits of no doubt. It brims over with the old master's grace and humour, the Minuet and Finale being especially winning. Why conductors are so chary of performing Haydn at the present time, it is impossible to say. There was certainly no lack of encouragement on the part of the audience on the present occasion. Two of Dvorák's Orchestral Legendes (Nos. 9 and 10) also pleased greatly. They are characteristic little gems, full of the national colour the composer knows so well how to employ. Madame Néruda's most important solo was Beethoven's Concerto, of which she gave a magnificent interpretation, including a very clever Cadenza from her own pen. She also played Mozart's recently published Adagio in E, a transcription of Bach's Prelude in the same key, and the second and third movements of Vieuxtemps's Concerto, also in E. If we remember rightly, it was in these last named excerpts that Madame Néruda made her first appearance in London, at a Philharmonic Concert, eighteen years ago.

CHAMBER CONCERTS.

ONE of the most remarkable features in our musical life at present is the development of taste for classical chamber music. A generation ago no one would have dreamt of seeking popular support for Concerts of this description. The Sonatas, Trios, and Quartets of the great masters were then the heritage of a cultured few; they are now the property of the people, and are to be heard in thousands of homes as well as in concert-rooms. For convenience we propose to group together some of the more noteworthy performances of the past month, taking them in chronological order. The first to claim attention was that of Mr. Kwast at the Prince's Hall, on April 30, the event being rendered interesting by the first performance of Brahms's new Trio in C minor (Op. 101). In this, as in the other chamber works the German composer has recently given to the world, we note more clearness, conciseness, and simplicity of outline than are usually looked for in Brahms's instrumental music. The slow movement is as unpretentious as it is pleasing, and the brief Scherzo is also very attractive. The first and last movements did not at a first hearing impress the hearer so favourably. As a whole, however, the new Trio must be pronounced worthy of the composer. It was well rendered by the Concert-giver, and Messrs. Deichmann and Fuchs. As a pupil of Ferdinand Hiller, Mr. Kwast naturally exhibits more sympathy with the classical than the romantic school. He was not heard to advantage in some of Chopin's excerpts, but he gave an excellent rendering of Mendelssohn's Variations Sérieuses. A feature of the Concert was the Recital, by Madame Kwast-Hiller, of Geibel's Ballad "The page and the king's daughter," with piano accompaniment by Hiller.

The three Concerts given by Mr. Charles Wade at the Grosvenor Gallery, on the 4th, 11th, and 18th ult., were well attended, and another series will take place during the present month. Some portion of their success may be attributed to the locale in which they were given, for the enjoyment of good music is heightened when the eye can rest on beautiful objects. At the first Concert a Quintet in B flat, by Goldmark, was announced as "for the first time in England," but we believe this is an error. Unfortunately, the work was placed at the end of a lengthy programme, and the performance came to a premature conclusion from want of time. For this reason any opinions concerning the merits of the Quintet had best be deferred. Mendelssohn's Quartet in D was fairly well played, and Mr. Schönberger gave his sensational rendering of Schubert's Fantasia in C (Op. 15). Mr. Wade displayed his pleasing tenor voice in songs by Grieg and Schumann, and Miss Carlotta Elliot also appeared as a vocalist. At the second Concert, the concerted works were Grieg's Sonata in F, for piano and violin, and Beethoven's Trio in B flat (Op. 97). The violinist on this occasion was Mr. Gustav Hollaender, from Cologne—not to be mistaken for Mr. Hollander, our able resident viola player. He made a fairly favourable impression, but we have many English violinists of at least equal merit. There was nothing else in the programme to call for mention. The third performance may be dismissed with equal brevity, as there was nothing done but what is familiar to amateurs. Beethoven's Sonata in A for piano and violoncello (Op. 69), played by Messrs. Schönberger and Hegyesi, headed the programme, and Saint-Saëns's Trio in F concluded it, the rest being vocal and instrumental solos of minor importance. Mr. Wade may be complimented on his agreeable entertainments, but we fail to see why they should commence at such an unreasonably late hour as nine o'clock.

Another series which amateurs are now accustomed to look forward to annually is that of Madame Frickenhaus and Mr. Joseph Ludwig. Two of these have been already given at the Prince's Hall, on the 7th and 21st ult. As an English pianist, Madame Frickenhaus can hold her own against any foreign importations, save, of course, those very few artists whose commanding genius places them on a pedestal apart from the others. Again, the programmes of these Concerts are always framed in a spirit of eclecticism, which renders them interesting to those who seek after things new and strange in the hope of discovering fresh art treasures. At the first Concert a Quintet in E, by Kiel (Op. 44), and a Suite for piano and violin, by Bargiel, were brought forward. We cannot say that either of these works created a profound impression, but they were at least worth a hearing. Beethoven's Quartet in F minor (Op. 95) was also included, and solos were admirably played by the Concert-givers. Miss Bertha Moore's songs call for no remark. The second programme was of more genuine importance, and was decidedly more enjoyable. It was doubtless somewhat of a disappointment that Mr. Charles Hallé was first in the field by twenty-four hours in presenting Brahms's new Piano and Violin Sonata in A (Op. 100) to a London audience, but a second hearing of the work was very welcome. Another novelty was a work called "The Strolling Musicians," for pianoforte duet, violin, and violoncello, by Arnold Krug. This has been well described as "feebly pretty," and not another word need be said regarding it. Madame Frickenhaus gave a most artistic and intelligent rendering of Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 31, No. 3), and Schubert's magnificent Quintet in C (Op. 163) was included in this admirable Concert. The artists who assisted were Miss Eleanor Rees and Messrs. Oliver King, Collins, Gibson, Whitehouse, and Koopman.

Of late years Mr. Charles Hallé's summer series of performances have been framed more and more on the Monday Popular pattern, thus departing from their original form as simple Pianoforte Recitals, relieved by vocal music. After trying the Grosvenor Gallery and the Prince's Hall for a few seasons, Mr. Hallé has now returned to St. James's Hall, where the first two of the usual series of eight Concerts were given on the 13th and 20th ult. The resemblance to the "Pops" on these occasions was heightened by the list of artists, which included Madame Néruda, and Messrs. Ries, Straus, and Piatti. The first programme included Brahms's new and genial Trio in C minor (Op. 101), about which we have spoken above; Beethoven's last Quartet in F (Op. 135), and Schubert's grand Sonata in C minor, famous for its beautiful slow movement. Mr. Hallé played this last-named work in his very best manner. The same remark will apply to Mr. Lloyd's rendering of Beethoven's "Adelaide" and two of Dvorák's Gipsy Lieder. At the second Concert Brahms's new Sonata in A, for violin and piano (Op. 100), was performed for the first time in England, and created a remarkably favourable impression. The earlier Sonata in G (Op. 78) ranks high among the master's utterances, but the new work is more winning and attractive, though less pretentious, the three movements occupying less than twenty minutes in performance. The opening section is singularly melodious for Brahms, and the second, a most ingenious combination of slow movement and Scherzo, is almost bewitching. At a first hearing the Finale did not seem on a level with the companion movements, but with closer acquaintance this view may be modified. The remaining concerted works were Haydn's Quartet in E flat (Op. 50, No. 2) and Dvorák's in D (Op. 23). Mr. Hallé gave a very fine rendering of Beethoven's last Sonata in C minor (Op. 111), and Miss Emily Winant gave songs by Schumann and Brahms in an artistic manner.

Mr. Gustav Ernest gave the first of two Concerts at the Prince's Hall, on the 17th ult., the programme containing a strong infusion of his own compositions. Prominent among these was a vocal work called "Love's Conquest," and described as a village Idyl, for soprano and tenor solo and chorus. It is a pretty little Cantata, not very original, perhaps, but nicely written and certainly pleasing. In the absence of Miss Annie Marriott, through serious illness, her sister, Miss Edith Marriott, took the soprano part, and Mr. Hirwen Jones that for tenor, the choruses being sung by Mr. Ernest's Choir. Rubinstein's Trio in G minor (Op. 15), an early but far more attractive work than some of the composer's more pretentious utterances, opened the Concert, and Mr. Nachéz and Mr. Hegyesi played some violin and violoncello solos. The so-called Violin Recital given by Mr. Peiniger, in St. James's Hall, on Tuesday, the 24th ult., was virtually a Chamber Concert, as it included two important works for piano and violin, and piano solos. A Sonata in E flat, by H. von Herzogenberg (Op. 54, No. 2), did not create a strong desire for more from the same pen. Some of the themes are pleasing; but, as a whole, the work is patchy and laboured. The ever-welcome "Kreutzer" was brilliantly played by Mr. Peiniger and Miss Kleeberg, and among the solo items was a Violin Sonata by Joseph Gibbs, one of those old English composers whose violin music Mr. Peiniger has busied himself in rescuing from oblivion.

WIND INSTRUMENT CONCERTS.

THOUGH the entertainments given recently on Friday evenings, in the Concert Room of the Royal Academy of Music, by a committee of amateur wind instrument players, might be classed with other chamber concerts, they deserve a separate notice on account of their distinctive features. It is a fact that the great masters have left a quantity of valuable and interesting works for wind instruments, and it is equally a fact that such works have, with few exceptions, suffered complete neglect in this country. There is an obvious explanation of this state of things; the violin is immensely popular at present, and not a few amateurs essay the violoncello; but it requires more than ordinary enthusiasm to make oneself proficient on the oboe, the bassoon, or the French horn. Consequently it is quite out of the question to suppose that the compositions revived on the above-named occasions will ever attain the popularity now possessed by trios and quartets for piano and strings. Nevertheless, the enterprise appeared to be warmly taken up, for the three Concerts have been attended by overflowing and enthusiastic audiences. At present we can only speak of the programmes at the first and second. On the former occasion (April 22) the most important works were Beethoven's lively Quintet in E flat (Op. 16), for piano, oboe, clarinet, bassoon, and horn, sometimes heard at the Popular Concerts; and a charming Quintet, entirely for wind instruments, by Reicha. At the second Concert, on the 6th ult., we heard a very effective Quintet by Onslow (Op. 81), another by Spohr (Op. 52), with a very showy pianoforte part written for the composer's wife; a Trio Pathétique for piano, clarinet, and bassoon, by Glinka, and other smaller items. With the exception of Mr. Beddome, the executants were all professors and students of the Royal Academy, and included Messrs. Svendsen, Horton, Lazarus, Mann, and Wotton, and Miss Dora Bright. The third Concert took place on the 28th ult., just too late for notice in this number.

VOCAL CONCERTS.

Mr. J. B. Welch, the esteemed preceptor of singing, gave a miscellaneous Concert in the Prince's Hall, on the 20th ult. The programme was, of course, intended to display the budding talents of a number of young vocalists, and from this point of view it was successful. It seems almost invidious to particularise, but we must especially commend Miss Maude Hare for her facile delivery of Costa's air "I will extol thee," and Miss Bella Reed, who gave an expressive rendering of Cowen's ballad "Because." Distinct promise was shown by Mr. James Gawthrop (tenor) and Mr. Douglas Lott, who possesses a genuine bass voice.

Miss Emily Oldham gave an invitation Concert at Collard and Collard's rooms, on the afternoon of the 20th ult. The entertainment was chiefly interesting on account of the new songs, five in number, from the Concert-giver's own pen. Without showing much originality, these lyrics are written in a pleasing manner. We can specially commend an Italian song, "Guardami," sung with much taste by Miss Alice Roselli, and "Fair as the dawn," to which Mr. Mhanes rendered ample justice. The singing of Miss Adelaide Mullen also deserves a word of praise.

A very agreeable Concert, or Vocal Recital, as it was termed, was given by Miss Marguerite Hall and Mr. William Nicholl, at the Portman Rooms, on the 25th ult. We have often spoken of Mr. Nicholl's pleasing light tenor voice and refined method of singing, and Miss Hall would seem to have been trained in the same excellent school, as her vocalisation is singularly pure. The programme was admirable of its kind, trashy ballads being conspicuous by their absence. Its general character may be gathered from the fact that it included airs and duets by Scarlatti, Handel, Spohr, Salvator Rosa, Schubert, Brahms, Mackenzie, and Goring Thomas. Miss Lucy Riley merits a special note of commendation for her finished rendering of Handel's Violin Sonata in A.

MR. OSCAR BERINGER'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL.

On the 18th ult. St. James's Hall was well filled on the occasion of Mr. Beringer's annual Pianoforte Recital, in which his high reputation was worthily sustained throughout a long and representative programme, which began with Beethoven's Thirty-two Variations in C minor, and included much characteristic music by Liszt, Chopin, Rubinstein, Tausig, Jensen, Saint-Saëns, and other lesser lights. Mr. Beringer was heard, perhaps, at his best in Chopin's Sonata in B minor (Op. 58), in which the lucidity and force of the executant's style were admirably illustrated. A special feature of the afternoon was the performance of Liszt's "Les Préludes," in its setting for two pianos, the second instrument being admirably played by Mr. Luigi Arditi.

MR. AGUILAR'S RECITAL.

Mr. Aguilar, who is well-known as a teacher of the pianoforte, played a second selection of his own compositions for that instrument before a fairly large audience, in St. James's Hall, on the afternoon of the 16th ult. The programme, though noticeable for the variety of its contents, occupied less than two hours in its execution, and the efforts of the performer met with appreciative attention from his hearers. Mr. Aguilar is a finished and correct player, and his compositions display a considerable amount of inventive skill. The list of works performed included two Sonatas, a Nocturne in F sharp, a Caprice in D flat, as well as several fanciful trifles, the titles of some of which border on eccentricity. Such a name as "Compound Cylinders," for example, opens up a new and not wholly desirable field of musical nomenclature.

HAMPSTEAD CHORAL SOCIETY.

An evening Concert was given by this Society at the New Vestry Hall, Haverstock Hill, on the 2nd ult., before a large audience. The programme was in the highest degree interesting, comprising, in addition to Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" and Dr. Stanford's Cantata "The Revenge," a new sacred work, "Lead, kindly light," by the Conductor, Mr. Willem Coenen. The singing of the choir in Beethoven's Oratorio was remarkable for precision, and a due observance of gradation of tone, the principal vocalists too, Mrs. A. C. Walker, Mr. Price, and Mr. Gill (although all amateurs), demanding very warm praise. Mr. Coenen's setting of the lines which have so often employed the talents of composers for the Church, is worthy of more than a few conventional words of commendation. We can, however, only here say that it contains some broad and highly effective choral writing, an expressive soprano solo (charmingly sung by Mrs. Gill), and a final fugue, to all of which ample justice was done by the choir, every member of which seemed animated by the desire to ensure success to an artist who had so long devoted his energies to the well-being of the Society under his direction. The applause with which Mr. Coenen was greeted at the conclusion of the work was sufficient evidence of the impression created upon the audience; and we have little doubt that when the composition is published, choral societies will be glad to add it to their répertoire. Dr. Stanford's "Revenge," which, in a comparatively brief space of time, has sprung into popularity, was well sung and cordially received. Mr. Coenen was, as usual, an efficient Conductor.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

A disparity between the excellence of the instrumental and vocal performances at these Concerts has been hitherto so frequently observable that we are glad to record a decided levelling up on that of the 12th ult. Miss Anna Russell gave, with considerable charm of expression and admirably clear enunciation, two songs (MS.) by Mr. Charles Wood, a scholar of the College, in which the composer has wedded Miss Rossetti's "Does the road wind up hill?" and Moore's "At the mid hour of night," to music of a distinct and pleasing individuality. The difficulty—encountered in the former poem—of conveying the impression of a dialogue when only one voice is employed is considerable, but Mr. Wood has succeeded very well. Miss Nunn is also to be commended for her very refined rendering of the exquisite but melancholy air from Purcell's "Dido and Æneas" "When I am laid in earth." Brahms's Quartet in A, for piano and strings (Op. 26), recently heard at these Concerts, was repeated to the great satisfaction of the audience, the executants—Miss Kellett and Messrs. Sutcliffe, Kreuz, and Squire—displaying a confidence and familiarity with the work productive of the best results. The instrumental soloists were Mr. Kreuz, who gave on the viola, with excellent effect, Vieuxtemps's clever transcription of the beautiful tenor air "La nuit," from F. David's "Le Désert"; Mr. Sutcliffe, who showed a finished technique and remarkable purity of tone in the Sarabande and Doubles from Bach's Viola Sonata in B minor; and Mr. Sewell, whose command of the organ was exhibited in a very careful rendering of Mozart's Fantasia in F minor. The Concert, which had scarcely any fault save that of length, wound up with a performance of Schubert's String Quartet in A minor (Op. 29).

LONDON CHURCH CHOIR ASSOCIATION.

The fourteenth Annual Festival of this steadily growing Association, was held in St. Paul's Cathedral, on Thursday evening, April 28. The Society was founded in 1870, and until 1885 it flourished mainly through the zeal and energy of its first Conductor, Mr. J. R. Murray. After that gentleman's death, Dr. G. C. Martin took his place, and, under his skilful guidance, it continues to progress in the most satisfactory manner. Its objects are admirable, among them being to secure the benefits of combination in the practice of church music, to afford assistance to parish choirs at local festival services, and to afford opportunities for conference upon matters relating to church music. In the matter of numbers the meeting above mentioned was the most successful yet held, there being present 900 choir members and over seventy of the clergy. Considering the distinct aims kept in view, the addition of an orchestra for the occasion would have been unsuitable; but it was a happy thought to supplement the organ accompaniment by trumpets, both for the sake of effect and as a means of keeping the large and heterogeneous force together. The effect in the Processional and Recessional Hymns was very imposing, as the vast body of sound rolled through the dimly lighted Cathedral. Tallis's immortal setting of the Responses, the special Psalms 84, 135, and 150, and Dr. Martin's fine and spirited Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G, specially composed for this Festival, were all excellently rendered; but there was some unsteadiness in the execution of Boyce's magnificent Anthem "O where shall wisdom be found?" The singing of Handel's chorus "How excellent," from "Saul," was also not free from flaw; but, on the whole, the Festival must be accounted a success, and as there was an immense congregation, we trust the offertory in aid of the general objects of the Association yielded a satisfactory sum.

"ALCESTIS" AT OXFORD.

Although the representation of a Greek play has now become rather a rule than a rarity, there was yet some special features of interest in the recent performances—commencing on the 18th ult. and extending to the 24th—of the "Alcestis" at Oxford. Unlike the "Agamemnon" or the "Eumenides," the drama is essentially human—we had almost said "modern"—in its spirit, and it affords opportunities, both of character and situation, by which a skilful actor can appeal very directly to his audience. And the interest was heightened when it became known that the title rôle was to be played by a lady whose name and presence were already familiar to the more scholarly side of University life.

Miss Harrison's Alcestis was a distinct creation; and though the strain evidently told upon her as the days went on—though the later representations showed less spontaneity and more of conscious effort—yet her presentation of the death scene was marked by a great power of pathos and a keen sense of the dramatic value of sacrifice. Perhaps in this, as in one or two other instances, the treatment was a little more realistic than is generally thought compatible with the statuesque sedateness of Greek tragedy; but the impress of emotion was never strong enough to destroy that gracefulness which is the first and most important requisite. Mr. Grahame's Admetus was a little tame at first, notably in the great scene of recognition with which the play terminates, but it showed a very noticeable improvement in the later representations. Mr. Bourchier was a very "grimly" Death; Mr. Mackinnon a graceful and dignified Apollo; and a special word of praise should be given to the scene, played with great humour by Mr. Mason and Mr. Coningsby Disraeli, in which the broad jollity of Heracles makes an effective contrast to the senile irritation of Admetus's servant. Mr. Marriott showed considerable histrionic power in his vigorous reading of the part of Pheres, and the stage arrangements, as a whole, gave evidence of much care and ability.

The chorus was well drilled and grouped, and the singing—if we except an occasional weakness among the tenors—was good throughout. Mr. Phillips was an excellent Coryphæus and sustained his part with much gaiety of demeanour. Mr. Lloyd's music, as one might naturally expect, was refined and melodious. The composer was, of course, a little restricted by the narrow limits of his orchestra, which consisted of one flute, one clarinet, and two harps; but the scoring, especially in the Funeral March and the introduction to the last chorus, showed how much could be done with slight materials; of the others the canon "Oh! king Pæan," and the sweet and tuneful flow of "On song's pinions soaring," deserves particular commendation. The English version has made the work accessible to choral societies, and we look forward to hearing it again before long.

It only remains to say that the reception was markedly favourable. Every night the theatre was filled with a crowded audience, ready to admire Professor Herkomer's drop curtain, and to smile at the ingenuity of its signature; while there was no point in the play which passed without adequate recognition and applause. The ovation accorded to actors and composer on the last night sufficiently testified that the University Dramatic Club are to be congratulated on a genuine success. There were undoubtedly some hitches and inequalities, but they were not enough to mar the general excellence of the rendering, or to diminish the good impression which it made upon a very catholic body of auditors.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

May is not generally a very busy month with musicians here, but the backwardness of the season seems to have had a stimulating effect upon local musical enterprise, and several meritorious Concerts and musical performances have helped to atone for the absence of the usual outdoor attractions of the "merrie month." The most important of these was the performance of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend," by the members of the Festival Choral Society, which was originally fixed for a much earlier date, but had to be postponed until the 3rd ult., owing to the Town Hall being required for the purposes of the Queen's visit. This was the first performance in Birmingham of Sir Arthur Sullivan's popular work, and the Society concerned was evidently determined that the fullest justice should be done to its merits; but the orchestral parts apparently had not been so well rehearsed as the choral portions, and the general effect was scarcely to be compared with that produced on the occasion of the first performance of the work at the Leeds Festival of 1886. Nevertheless, the dramatic interest of the libretto, the melodious charm of the music, and the picturesqueness of the instrumental scoring, obviously produced a deep impression upon the audience, who testified their appreciation by frequent and enthusiastic applause, and there is hardly room to doubt that "The Golden Legend" is destined to take its place among the most successful works in the modern choral repertory. Miss Annie Marriott as Elsie was conspicuously successful, both musically and dramatically, especially delighting the audience by her finished and fervid rendering of the beautiful reverie "The night is calm and cloudless," and the impassioned music of the scene which witnesses Elsie's heroic self-sacrifice. In the part of Ursula, Miss Eleanor Rees acquitted herself very creditably, her best effects being produced in the song "Slowly, slowly up the wall," the highly dramatic scene in which she endeavours to dissuade Elsie from her contemplated sacrifice, and the touching invocation "O bring me to her, for mine eyes are hungry to behold her face." The part of Lucifer found a powerful exponent in Mr. Bridson. As Prince Henry, Mr. Gawthrop sang with much sweetness and general good taste, though he is occasionally given to forcing his voice. The part of the Forester was fairly filled by Mr. H. A. Simms. The chorus singing generally was excellent, and the two unaccompanied numbers, "O gladsome light" and "O pure in heart," were charmingly given. A selection from "Judas Maccabæus" formed the second part of the Concert.

The second annual Concert of the Midland Institute School of Music brought together a large and demonstrative audience on the 5th ult. Since the establishment of the School, two years ago, it has made enormous strides, the number of students in the different classes, practical and theoretical, being about 1,600. All the classes have been well attended through the winter, and so great is the eagerness shown by the pupils to pursue their studies that it has been decided to continue the teaching during a special summer term until the middle of July. The Concert on this occasion consisted for the most part of selections which had been studied in the classes, and included performances by the brass instrument class, the advanced and intermediate violin classes, the clarinet class, the orchestral class, and the choral and pianoforte classes. The several performances, which included a certain number of part-songs, were rendered in a manner which reflected much credit both upon the teachers and students, and evoked frequent and hearty applause.

At the fourth ordinary meeting of the Birmingham Musical Guild, on Saturday, the 7th ult., Mr. Stephen S. Stratton in the chair, it was resolved to establish a musical lectureship in connection with the Guild, and to invite a musician of note to deliver the inaugural lecture. A discussion subsequently took place on the subject of instrumental Chamber music, with especial reference to the failure of recent attempts to establish performances of this class of music in Birmingham. It was ultimately decided to invite to the next meeting of the Society all persons interested in Chamber music, with a view to obtain their co-operation with the Guild in establishing, upon a popular basis, an annual series of Chamber Concerts.

An attractive Concert, in which instrumental music played a prominent part, was given in the Masonic Hall on the 17th, by Mrs. Richardson, a local pianist, who has lately been coming to the front as an exponent of Liszt and Chopin, assisted by Miss Lilian Dixon, violinist; Mesdames Barton Edmonds and Oscar Pollack, and Mr. Gordon Heller, vocalists; and Mr. Pollack, accompanist. Mrs. Richardson, who combines an excellent technique with sound musical judgment and artistic sensibility, especially delighted the audience by the grace and finish of her performance in a charming Frühlingslied by Kjerulf and a Saltarello by Nicodé, and gave with rare spirit and brilliancy the Chopin Polonaise, preceded by an Andante Spianato, and Liszt's difficult bravura on airs from "Rigoletto." Miss Lilian Dixon joined Mrs. Richardson in Beethoven's early Sonata in D for violin and pianoforte, and played with much grace and refinement an Arioso by Reinecke, and Ries's Molto vivace. Of the vocal items, the most noteworthy were Mrs. Barton Edmonds's singing of the Page's song from "Les Huguenots." Mrs. Pollack pleased the audience greatly in Randegger's "Lullaby," and Mr. Gordon Heller was successful in Haydn's "Spirit song" and Gounod's "There is a green hill."

A further step has been taken this month in the preparations for the Birmingham Musical Festival of 1888, by the commissioning of a secular Cantata for one of the evening Concerts from Dr. J. F. Bridge, of Westminster Abbey. The work, it is understood, has been in progress for some time past. The only other new works commissioned by the Festival Committee are an Oratorio from Dr. Mackenzie and a Cantata from Mr. Goring Thomas.

"Ruddigore" was introduced to the Birmingham public by one of Mr. D'Oyley Carte's touring companies in the early part of the month, and met with a favourable reception.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The month of May usually brings with it the termination of the musical season in Liverpool. The chief events of interest which remain during the summer months will be the varied programmes at the Royal Jubilee Exhibition, opened here on the 16th ult. by H.R.H. the Princess Louise. The season, however, has seen in its exodus a musical morceau of interest at the Aughton Parish Church, where the Aughton Musical Society, under the direction of Mr. Fred. Burstall, F.C.O., Organist of Liverpool Cathedral, made its first appearance in Dr. F. E. Gladstone's Oratorio "Philippi," a work with which the Liverpool musical public has had but a small acquaintance, but which will no doubt become a general favourite when better known. The Oratorio, which is directly associated with the sixteenth chapter of Acts, is composed of a Prologue and seven scenes illustrative of the following scriptural incidents:—First, The call to Macedonia; second, The conversion of Lydia; third, Casting out the Spirit of Divination; fourth, The fury of the people; fifth, In the prison; sixth, The keeper of the prison; and seventh, Sweet counsel with the brethren. From the opening chorus "How beautiful upon the mountains" to the final double fugue "Now unto God," this admirable work is full of most able counterpoint and melody; notably may be mentioned the somewhat dramatic points of the fourth, fifth, and sixth parts, in the last named of which is conspicuously noticeable the chorus "In this was manifest," containing some charming passages of cantabile part-writing. With regard to the performance on this occasion, though one or two minor points of weakness were manifest, yet, on the whole, the rendering was executed in a manner which reflected great credit on the vocalists, and in a no less degree on the care and tact bestowed on the training by Mr. Burstall. Mr. Charles Collins was all that could be desired as organist, and rendered invaluable services in making this musical event a complete success.

The Royal Jubilee Exhibition is now in full progress, and the lovers of music of the lighter kind can be hourly regaled with the strains of the bands of the Coldstream and Scots Guards. So far as the opening ceremony was concerned, there was some room for disappointment. The organ, by Gray and Davison, proved much too weak for the immense building in which it is erected, and though Mr. W. H. Jude expended upon it his well-known masterly powers, yet the feebleness of the softer passages in the solos was a feature painfully marked. Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus, in which some 600 voices took part, was very well rendered, and the National Anthem, arranged by Costa, was given in a style and spirit that must have been cheering to the Royal spectator, and have betokened a marked assurance of the loyalty of the people of Liverpool. Twice daily there are really capital performances by the permanent orchestra of fifty players, under the able conductorship of Mr. E. A. Bartle, of Southport. There are also open air Concerts by the bands above-mentioned, relieved at times by fresh importations. Despite the pigmy organ and the huge size of the building in which it is erected, Mr. Jude's performance on the instrument at his two Recitals daily, continues to draw most appreciative and delighted audiences. Other gentlemen noted for their skill on the "king of instruments" are to follow Mr. Jude, but it is to be hoped that soon something will be done, such as removing the organ into what last year was the hall used for Concerts, so that the people can hear and enjoy the music.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

During the past month the directors of the Gentlemen's Concerts have been winding up a season in which some efforts have been made to give increased vitality to an institution which, for years, had suffered through the supineness of careless management, and was fast losing whatever interest the public continued to feel for our oldest musical association. The difficulties now besetting the society known as the Gentlemen's Concerts are very understandable, and are, indeed, shadowed forth by the name assumed. Originally a confederation of enthusiastic amateurs, meeting together under professional guidance for the practice of orchestral music—somewhat after the fashion of the Philharmonic Society, London—an effort was, nearly forty years ago, made to give a more professional tone to the performances. To a certain extent, not only the aims of the reformers, but also the first steps they took in the way of progress were judicious. But a blind confidence in the success of their scheme, and that easy-going laissez-faire, which seems to cloud the intellects of all committees meddling with musical affairs, subjected the institution to a passive, unwatchful neglect, from which it has ever since been suffering, and to a lingering decline from which it will be most difficult to rescue it. It is so much easier to go into the market and engage ready help, than it is patiently and persistently to labour for the development and improvement of the resources around, that after the fashion of committees generally, all trouble about the future was thrown off, or soothed by a feeling of present relief and comfort. And so, instead of being the spring of our musical activity, the fosterer of our artistic life, a Love and Summer.

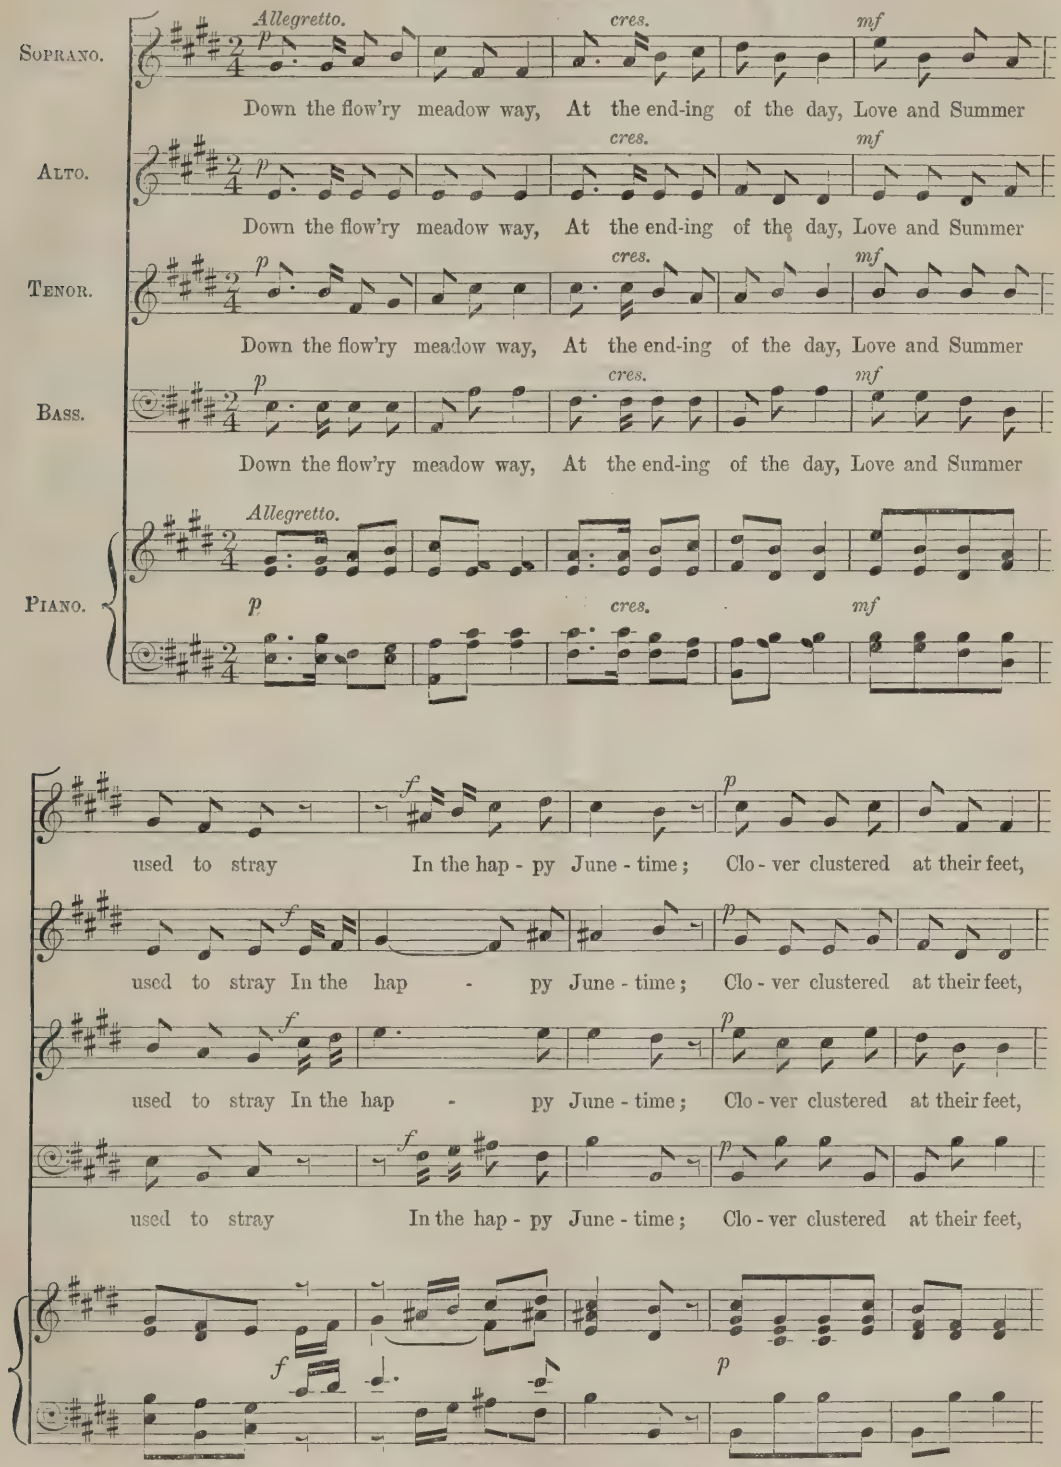
A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by Mary Rowles.* Composed by John E. West.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



Soprano.
Allegretto.
p
cres.
mf
Down the flow'ry meadow way, At the end-ing of the day, Love and Summer
Alto.
Down the flow'ry meadow way, At the end-ing of the day, Love and Summer
Tenor.
Down the flow'ry meadow way, At the end-ing of the day, Love and Summer
Bass.
Down the flow'ry meadow way, At the end-ing of the day, Love and Summer
Piano.
Allegretto.
used to stray In the hap - py June - time; Clo - ver clustered at their feet,
used to stray In the hap - py June - time; Clo - ver clustered at their feet,
used to stray In the hap - py June - time; Clo - ver clustered at their feet,
used to stray In the hap - py June - time; Clo - ver clustered at their feet,

* By kind permission of the Editor of the Girls' Own Paper.

cres.
p
Twi - light sha- dowed their re-treat; Oh! the thros- tles' songs were sweet, Sweet-er than at Twi - light sha- dowed their re-treat; Oh! the thros- tles' songs were sweet, Sweet - -
Twi - light sha- dowed their re-treat; Oh! the thros- tles' songs were sweet, Sweet - er,
Twi - light sha- dowed their re - treat; Oh! the thros- tles' songs were sweet, Sweet - er, noon - time, . . sweet - - er than at noon - - time.
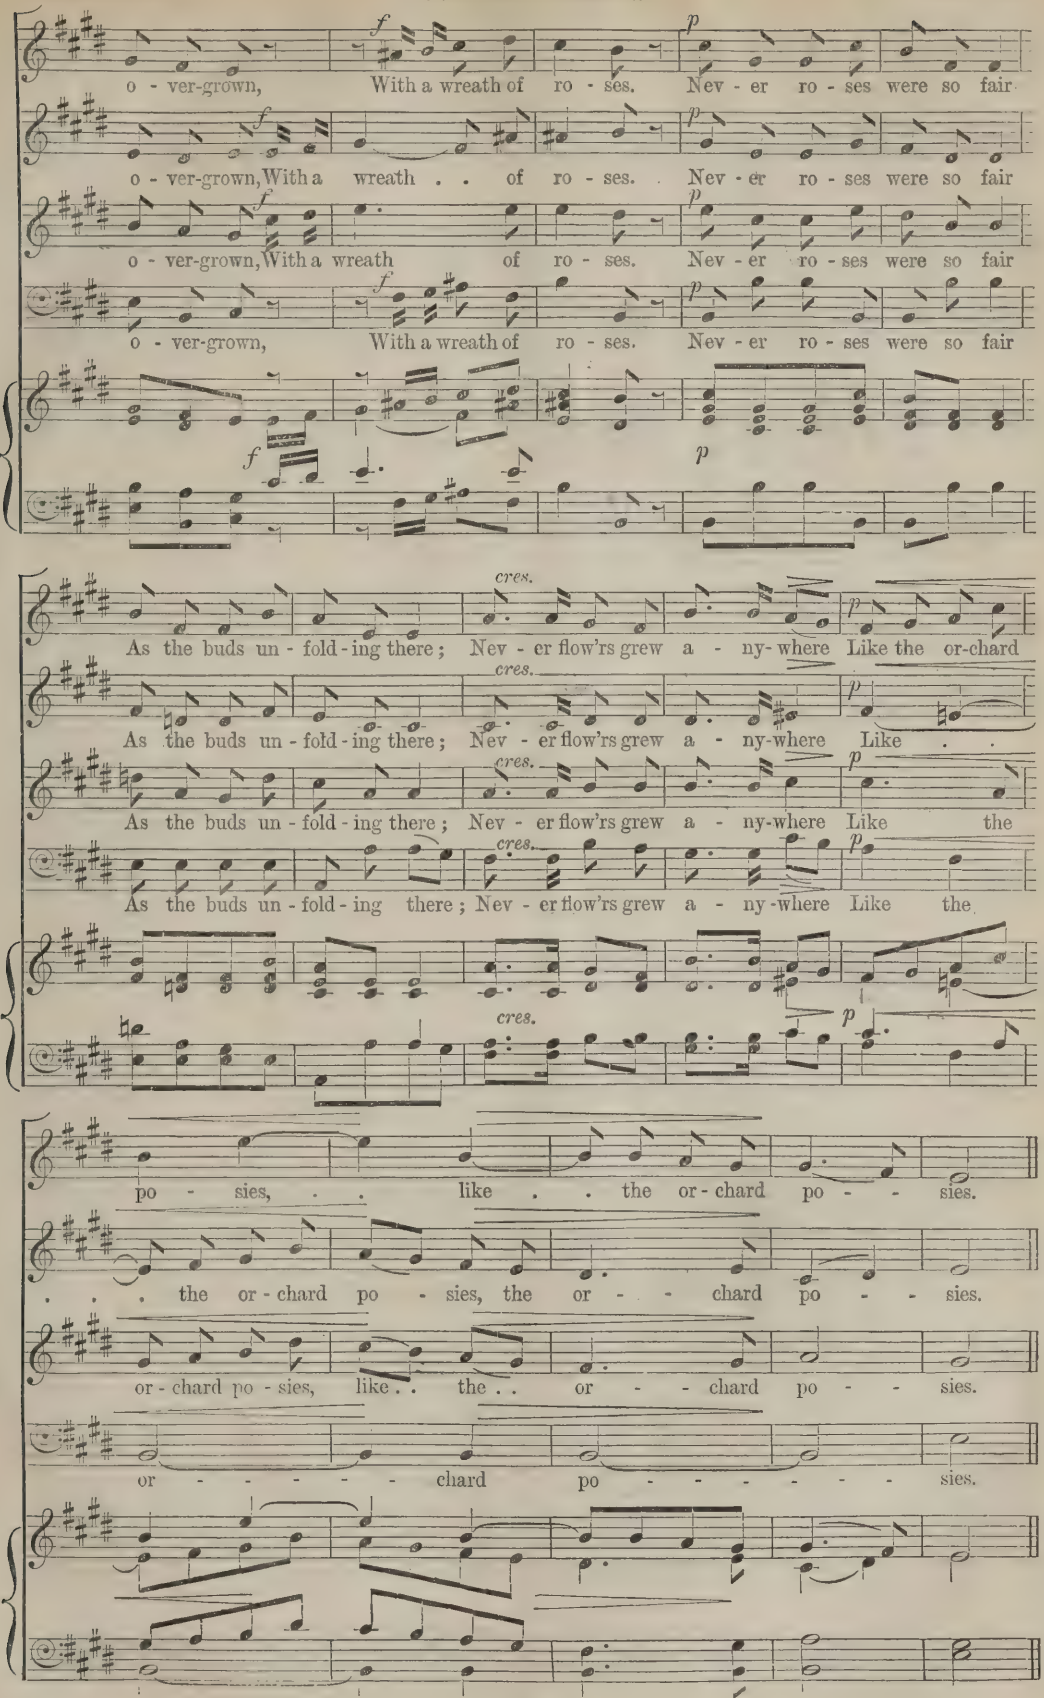
- - er than at noon - time, than at noon - - time.
sweet - er than at noon - time, than at noon - - time.
sweet - - - - er than at noon - - time.
mf
Ap - ple blos-soms flut - tered down, Wood-bine wove its fra-grant crown, On the hedge-row
Ap - ple blos-soms flut - tered down, Wood-bine wove its fra-grant crown, On the hedge-row
Ap - ple blos-soms flut - tered down, Wood-bine wove its fra-grant crown, On the hedge-row
Ap - ple blos-soms flut - tered down, Wood-bine wove its fra-grant crown, On the hedge-row



o - ver-grown, With a wreath of ro - ses. Nev - er ro - ses were so fair
o - ver-grown, With a wreath . . of ro - ses. Nev - er ro - ses were so fair
o - ver-grown, With a wreath of ro - ses. Nev - er ro - ses were so fair
o - ver-grown, With a wreath of ro - ses. Nev - er ro - ses were so fair
As the buds un - fold - ing there; Nev - er flow'rs grew a - ny - where Like the or-chard
As the buds un - fold - ing there; Nev - er flow'rs grew a - ny-where Like . .
As the buds un - fold - ing there; Nev - er flow'rs grew a - ny-where Like the
As the buds un - fold - ing there; Nev - er flow'rs grew a - ny-where Like the po - sies, . . like . . the or - chard po - - sies.
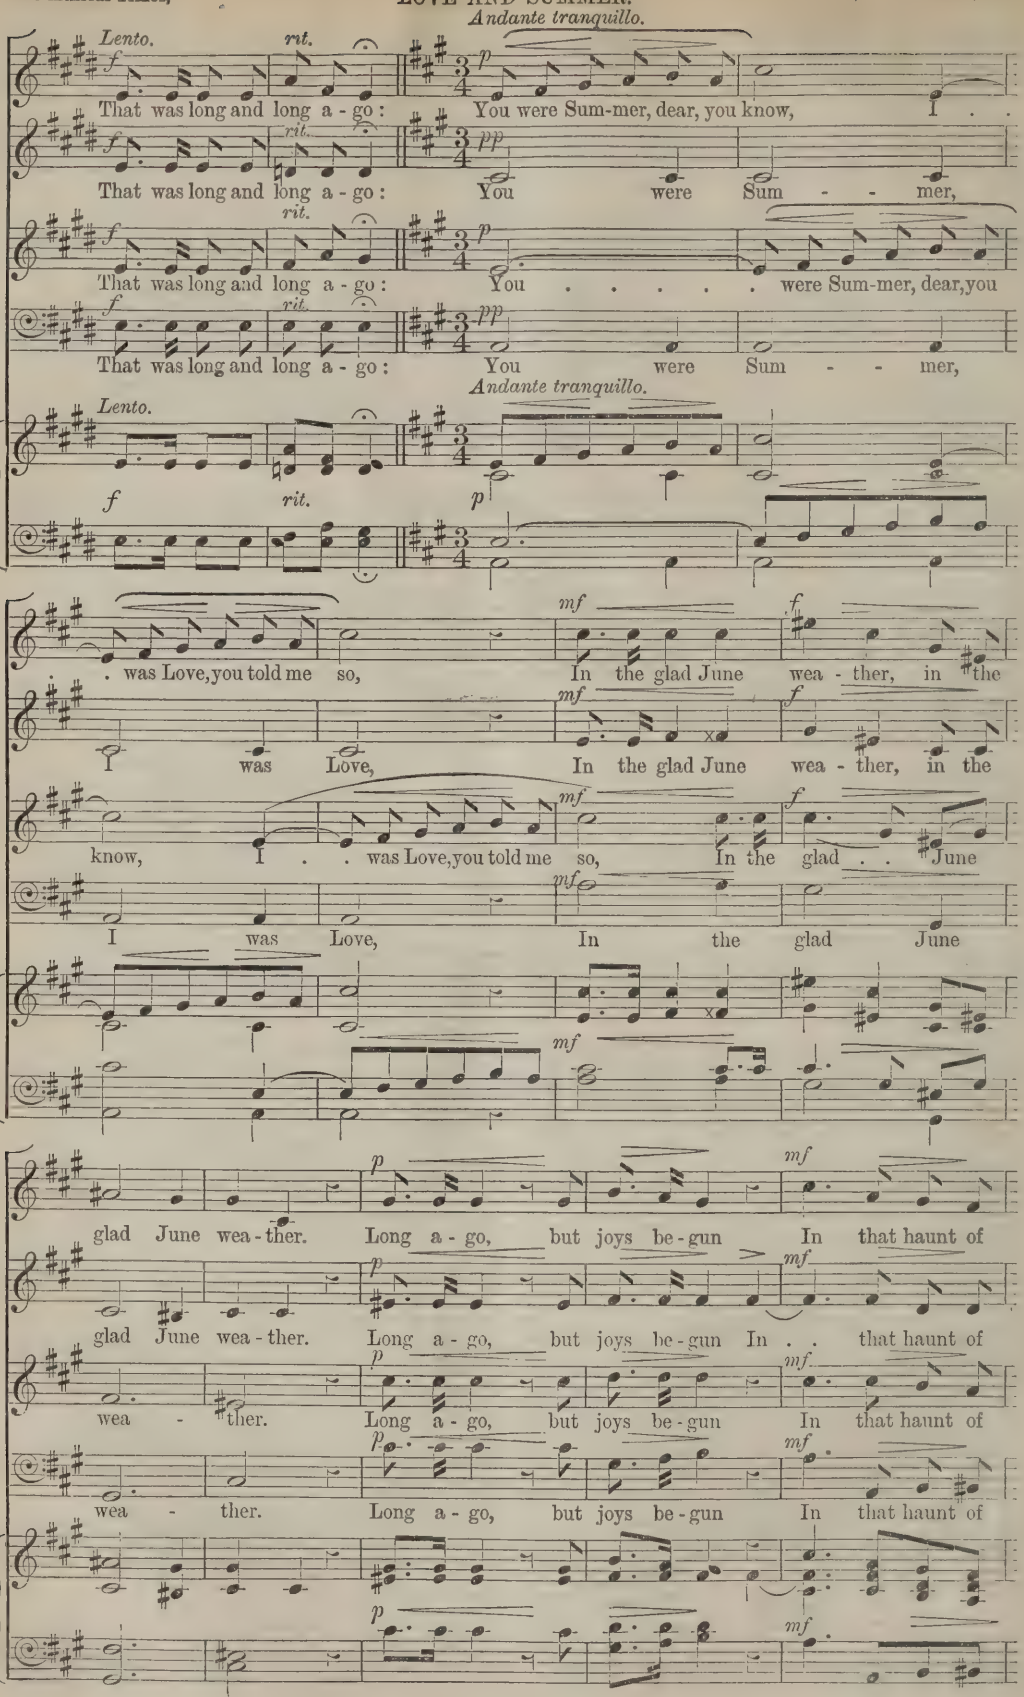
. . . the or - chard po - sies, the or - - chard po - - sies.
or - chard po - sies, like . . the . . or - - chard po - - sies.
or - - - - - chard po - - - - - - - sies.



Andante tranquillo.
Lento.
rit.
That was long and long a - go:
You were Sum-mer, dear, you know, I . .
You were Sum - - mer,
You . . . . . were Sum-mer, dear, you
was Love, you told me so,
In the glad June wea - ther, in the know, I . . was Love, you told me so,
In the glad . . June
I was Love,
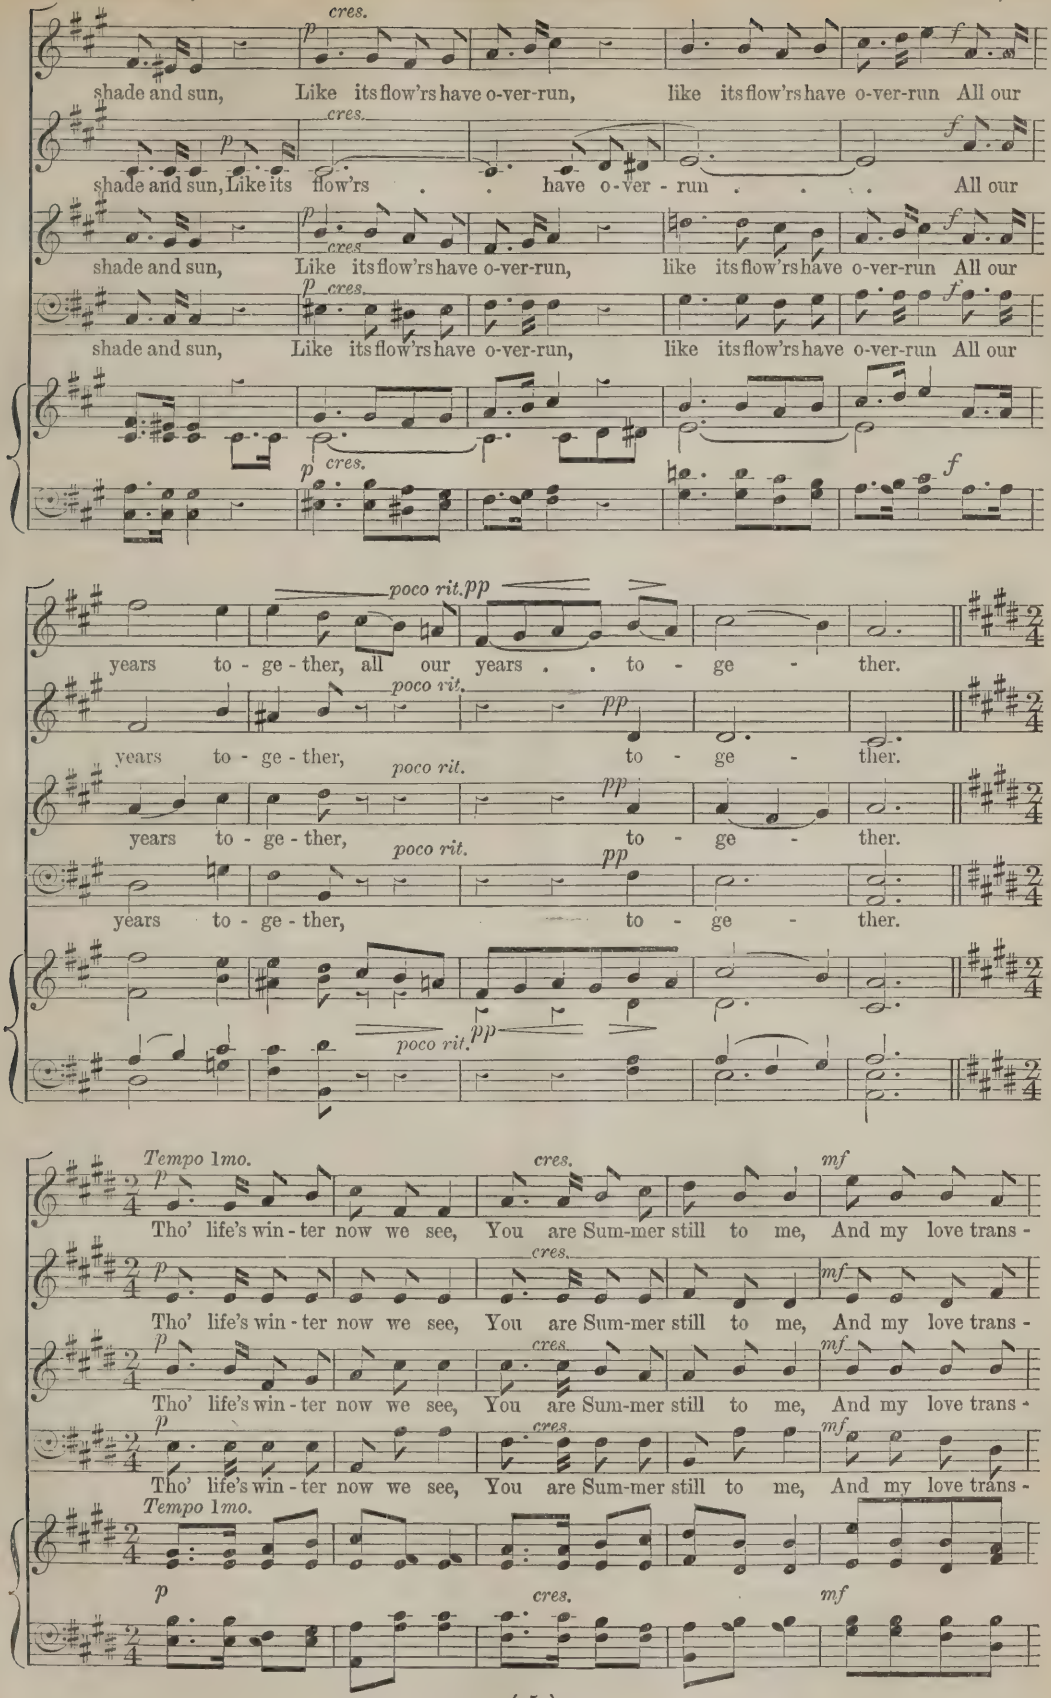
In the glad June glad June wea - ther. Long a - go, but joys be - gun In that haunt of wea - ther. Long a - go, but joys be - gun In . . that haunt of



cres.
shade and sun, Like its flow'rs have o-ver-run, like its flow'rs have o-ver-run All our shade and sun, Like its flow'rs . . have o-ver - run . . . All our shade and sun, Like its flow'rs have o-ver-run, like its flow'rs have o-ver-run All our shade and sun, Like its flow'rs have o-ver-run, like its flow'rs have o-ver-run All our poco rit. pp
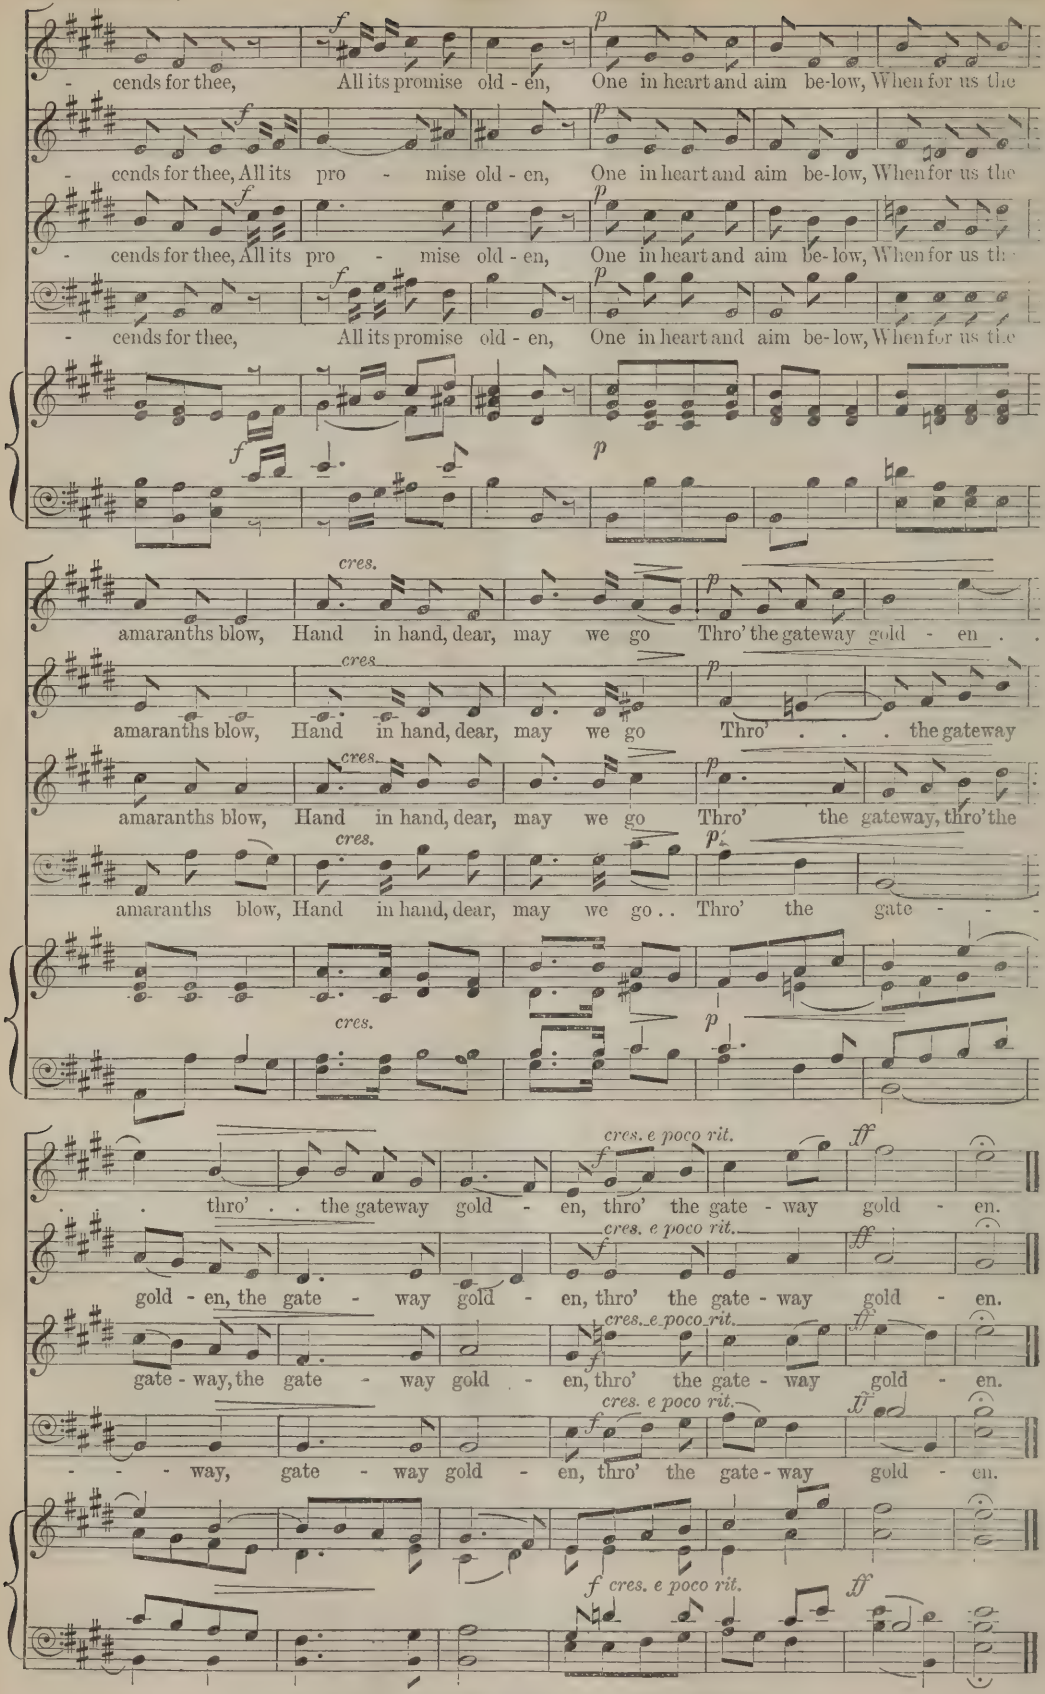
years to - ge - ther, all our years . . to - ge - ther.
poco rit.
years to - ge - ther, to - ge - ther.
years to - ge - ther, to - ge - ther.
years to - ge - ther, to - ge - ther.
Tempo 1mo.
Tho' life's win - ter now we see, You are Sum-mer still to me, And my love trans -
Tho' life's win - ter now we see, You are Sum-mer still to me, And my love trans -
Tho' life's win - ter now we see, You are Sum-mer still to me, And my love trans -
Tempo 1mo.



- cends for thee, All its promise old - en, One in heart and aim be-low, When for us the
- cends for thee, All its pro - mise old - en, One in heart and aim be-low, When for us the
- cends for thee, All its pro - mise old - en, One in heart and aim be-low, When for us th-
- cends for thee, All its promise old - en, One in heart and aim be-low, When for us the amaranths blow, Hand in hand, dear, may we go Thro' the gateway gold - en . .
amaranths blow, Hand in hand, dear, may we go Thro' . . . the gateway amaranths blow, Hand in hand, dear, may we go Thro' the gateway, thro' the amaranths blow, Hand in hand, dear, may we go . . Thro' the gate - - -
. . thro' . . the gateway gold - en, thro' the gate - way gold - en.
gold - en, the gate - way gold - en, thro' the gate - way gold - en.
gate - way, the gate - way gold - en, thro' the gate - way gold - en.
- - - way, gate - way gold - en, thro' the gate - way gold - en.

veritable school of song in the midst of a populous district, the Concert Hall has subsided to a very subordinate position amongst us, and a great opportunity has been missed.

Among the efforts made to carry on the Gentlemen's Concerts, the Pianoforte Recitals given on many winter afternoons have been the wisest and most attractive. It is to be hoped that the directors may persevere in this part of their project. The Concert Hall is far better adapted for chamber than for orchestral music; and a powerful educational influence may be exercised, as well as keen pleasure afforded, by encouraging there a branch of the art which appeals to the student and the enthusiastic amateur rather than to the large majority of ordinary evening Concert attenders. On the 16th ult., the last Recital of the season was given by Mr. Schönberger, who displayed an astonishing executive power, and an essentially modern contrast of exaggerations of style; but scarcely that devotion to the master whose works he professed to be interpreting which may come with experience, but without which all the rest is mere vain display. It follows, necessarily, that Mr. Schönberger's renderings of Jensen, Rubinstein, and Chopin were more acceptable than his readings of the older and greater masters.

The announcement that the "St. Cecilia" Society is to be disbanded was not unexpected. For some time it has declined from the excellence which culminated in a performance, several years ago, of Mozart's "Requiem"—certainly the best effort of the choir. The difficulties of retaining members for, and interest in, amateur meetings in the centre of the town, now that each suburb has its well-established choral association; and, perhaps, a too rigid persistence in the selection of unsympathetic music, had somewhat undermined the constitution of the Society, and so increased the difficulty of worthily continuing its career that, not unwisely, the members felt the untimely death of their Conductor as a blow which the choir could scarcely survive.

For the next few months we must turn for our music to the Botanical Gardens and the military bands provided to amuse the visitors to the splendid Exhibition held there. For the opening, on the 3rd ult., Mr. Hallé undertook the superintendence of an orchestra and choir of some five hundred performers, whose energies were devoted to a tolerable rendering of the second half of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise"—without the symphonic portion of the work—to a struggle with Stanford's Anthem, and to an uncomfortable arrangement of four verses of the Hundredth Psalm. Who was responsible for the harmonies of the last, I do not know, but they displayed more ambition than contrapuntal ingenuity; and if, as I suppose, the Psalm was given for the purpose of coaxing the thousands of the assembly into joining with the choir in one supreme effort of praise, the effect was lamentably, but naturally, inadequate. Everybody seemed relieved when the preliminaries had been cleared away and the majestic strains of the first chorus of the "Lobgesang" were heard. Since that opening day, pictorial art has been splendidly represented, and scientific invention, with its wonderful development of engineering progress, has been strikingly portrayed; but of music, we have had simply the selections of popular airs familiar to frequenters of public gardens and out-of-door gatherings. No announcement of anything of higher class has been vouchsafed, but the committee may have some treat in store. Of course the organ is unfinished, so that Mr. Pyne and the promised distinguished visitors have not yet had an opportunity of lifting us to higher enjoyment. But, probably, our townsman is quite as well pleased to gratify his admirers every Saturday evening at the Town Hall, on the instrument with which he is now so familiar.

In the Exhibition itself very little is to be found of special interest; no educational effect appears to have been aimed at, either for the ear or eye of the musician. A few pianos and other musical instruments are sprinkled about, and occasionally some bold amateur attempts some well-worn dance phrases or brilliantly-designed arpeggio flourishes on the household instrument. But apparently the great undertaking will not do much for our art. Among the handicrafts, I find no attempt to illustrate the manufacture of musical instruments, except of those whose strains regale the ear in the gardens. Mr. Higham, in addition to a handsome collection of all military instruments, has some workmen engaged in making different portions of those brass instruments for which his factory here is so celebrated.

Some years ago, when Mr. Alfred Cellier was Conductor of the band at the Prince's Theatre, in this city, a light semi-comic operetta from his pen—entitled "Nell Gwynne"—was produced. The enlarged and amended version of that work—"Dorothy," so successful in London—has had a week's attractive run at the same house, under the immediate superintendence of the composer.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

By way of celebrating the Jubilee year the Leeds Philharmonic Society gave a Concert, on the 11th ult., at which was produced Sir Arthur Sullivan's Cantata "The Golden Legend," Handel's Coronation Anthem, a new Madrigal by Dr. Stainer, and other works of importance. Sir Arthur Sullivan conducted his own work—which was, of course, the chief attraction of the evening—and he received a warm welcome. The audience was much larger than that which assembled to hear the work when it was first produced at the Leeds Festival, and the hearty cheering which arose on all sides at its conclusion must have been reassuring to the popular composer after his recent experience in Berlin. The performance was a great artistic success, and it was obviously a labour of love on the part of all concerned. The Philharmonic Society's chorus, which, up to within a year or two of his death, was assiduously cultivated by the late Mr. James Broughton, has a reputation for refinement which it fully sustained on this occasion. The two unaccompanied numbers for chorus, the hymn "O gladsome light" and the chorus "O pure in heart," gave the choir an opportunity of displaying purity and sweetness of tone, and an excellent degree of expression. The principals were Madame Albani, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Miss Damian, Mr. Watkin Mills, and Mr. William Riley. In the parts of Elsie and Prince Henry, Madame Albani and Mr. Lloyd sang with their accustomed skill and gracefulness of expression. Mr. Watkin Mills sang the music of Mephistopheles, for which his full manly voice was well suited. The part of Ursula, which Madame Patey sang at the Leeds Festival performance, was, on this occasion, taken by Miss Damian, who gave the whole of her music, especially the one beautiful air which it includes "Virgin, who lovest," with great power. Mr. Carrodus led an efficient orchestra, which did justice to the elaborate instrumental score. The peal of bells cast for the Musical Festival performance was brought into use. Generally the work made a great impression. Of the rest of the Concert, Dr. Stainer's Madrigal "The Triumph of Victoria" was most interesting, and was well received. Madame Albani sang the vocal waltz from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and Mr. Lloyd gave Gounod's "Lend me your aid." The Coronation Anthem and Weber's Jubilee Overture completed the programme. Mr. Alfred Broughton, the Conductor of the Society, conducted during the second half of the Concert. Mr. S. Liddle presided with much efficiency at the organ.

At the Leeds Town Hall, on the 17th ult., a new sacred Cantata called "Immanuel," by Dr. Spark, was produced for the first time. The words of the Cantata are by the Rev. Dr. Conder. The work is a modest one, as may be gathered from the original intention of the composer to name it "An oratorio for young persons." The portion which was produced on the 17th ult., treats of the childhood of Christ, and is to be followed by a second part, which is intended to embrace the Saviour's ministry down to the entry into Jerusalem, making together a complete Oratorio. Thus far the accompaniments are confined to the organ; but Dr. Spark announces his intention of adding parts for a full band if this instalment should meet with approval. One feature of the work is the introduction of three favourite hymns to well known tunes, portions being designed for singing by the audience in conjunction with the chorus. The subject of one of the numbers is taken from a former work by Dr. Spark, and the Pastoral Symphony is founded on the theme of an old "drone-bass" piece played in the streets of Rome at Christmastide. The Cantata was well received by a fairly large audience. The principals were Miss Fanny Bristowe, Miss Lottie Sweeney, Mr. William Ash, Mr. H. Gilbert Jackson, and Mr. Dan Billington. The chorus was made up of members of the Leeds Select Choir and other choral organisations in the town. Dr. Spark presided at the organ, and the performance was conducted by Mr. Alfred Benton. The second half of the Concert was miscellaneous.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On April 30 the powers of the Colston Hall were taxed to the utmost to accommodate the large audience which assembled to hear the last Concert of the winter series given by the Bristol Musical Association. As an example of the enjoyment the Society has afforded, principally to the artisan classes, it may be mentioned that altogether 150,000 persons have been present at these gatherings. That they have been a success, as far as thorough appreciation of them is concerned, is evident, but the financial aspect is not so bright, and it is anticipated that an appeal to the generosity of the public will be necessary, in order to clear the debt, the existence of which is easily accounted for by the exceptionally low prices of the tickets. An alteration was made in the musical forces at this Concert, the band of the Rifle Volunteers supplying the place of Mr. Riseley and the great organ, and playing, together with the orchestral band, several descriptive and other pieces in the second part of the programme. The first part was occupied by the performance of Sir Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen," a very familiar and ever popular work, at least in Bristol. The principal vocalists were Miss Eleanor Falkner (May Queen), Miss Viola Brooke (Queen), Mr. E. T. Morgan (Lover), and Mr. Lawford Huxtable (Robin Hood), all of whom were successful, and Miss Falkner especially so. The second part consisted of popular vocal and instrumental pieces, many of which were vociferously applauded. An extra Concert was given by the Society on the 23rd ult., in aid of the funds of the Sunday afternoon Lectures for the people, particulars of which will appear in our next letter.

In spite of the dismally wet state of the weather on the evening of the 2nd ult., a very fair audience assembled in the smaller of the Victoria Rooms to hear the last of the Subscription Chamber Concerts of the present season. The instrumentalists were, as usual, pianoforte, Miss Mary Lock; violin, Mr. Arthur Hudson; violoncello, Mr. E. Pavey. The vocalists were Mr. E. D. Harrison, and a local lady who kindly took the place of Miss Marion Wardroper, indisposed; and the accompanist was Mr. Fred. Rootham, who fulfilled his task with taste and feeling, though with his usual fault of not letting us hear enough of him. The programme opened with Beethoven's Trio for piano, violin, and cello; the Septet in E flat (Op. 20), which was only fairly well given; but Miss Lock's pianoforte solo, Mendelssohn's Variations in E flat (Op. 82), gave genuine pleasure; and some interest was shown in a Sonata for piano and violin, written by Mr. Arthur Hudson, which opened the second part of the Concert. It consists of two movements and is a work of some merit, containing some really clever and melodious passages; but there is a good deal of "padding," and the interest is not well sustained to the end. The vocalists each gave a couple of songs, Mr. Pavey a violoncello solo, and the Concert concluded with some of Brahms's Hungarian Dances for piano (four hands), violin, and violoncello, which were given in rather a spiritless fashion. We fancy that another careful rehearsal would make all the difference to these Concerts, and ensure the lacking unity and promptitude.

On the 4th ult. Mrs. Viner Pomeroy gave her fourth and last Concert for the present season at the Victoria Rooms, on which occasion the original custom of having the Concert in the smaller room was returned to, with very satisfactory results, so far as the effect of the chamber music was concerned. The executants were Mr. Henry Holmes (first violin), Mr. E. G. Woodward (second violin), Mr. Ellis Roberts (viola), and Mr. J. Pomeroy (violoncello); Mrs. Pomeroy presided at the grand pianoforte. The Concert opened with fragments of a Quartet for two violins, viola, and cello, by Mendelssohn, the beauty of which made us sadly wish that it could be completed, especially when given with true artistic feeling, as it was on this occasion. Then came Schumann's beautiful Trio in A minor for violin, violoncello, and piano, which was a great treat, and one which was offered us for the first time at these evenings. The Duet for pianoforte and violin, by Heller and Ernst, the next item, was well rendered by Mrs. Pomeroy and Mr. Holmes, and the Concert concluded with Haydn's Quartet in G major for strings, perhaps the least interesting feature of the evening, but it was well played. There was a good audience, and Mrs. Pomeroy is to be congratulated on the musical success of the Concerts she has given during this season, and also on the correct and careful manner in which she performs the often severe tasks allotted to her.

Mr. George Riseley has given Organ Recitals at the Colston Hall more or less regularly during the past two months, which would doubtless be more fully attended were they more frequently advertised. The present month will also bring these to a close until after the summer holidays.

On April 28 the Bath Choral Union gave a very creditable rendering of Handel's Oratorio "Samson," which evidenced good steady work and consequently decided advance on the part of the chorus, while the solos received ample justice at the hands of Miss Thudichum, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Henry Piercy, and Mr. Bridson. The leader of the band was Mr. von Praag, and the Conductor Mr. Sondermann.

On the 17th ult. the Exeter Oratorio Society performed Handel's "Acis and Galatea," and subsequently a miscellaneous selection, before a large audience, in the Victoria Hall, Exeter. The band and chorus comprised one hundred performers, Mr. Bell acting as leader, Mr. Vinnicombe presiding at the organ, and Mr. G. W. Lyon conducting. The soloists were as follows: Miss Catherine Penna (Galatea), Mr. E. T. Morgan (Acis), Mr. Ferris Tozer (Damon), and Mr. Theodore France (Polyphemus). Miss Penna deserves a word of warm praise for her singing of the part of Galatea, while Mr. Morgan did fairly as Acis, and both Mr. Tozer and Mr. France were heartily applauded for their efforts. The Concert, as a whole, was successful, and was a credit to the Society and to their honorary and most energetic and hard-working Conductor.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

There has been no apparent evidence that the season was drawing to a close, judging by the number and character of the Concerts which have been given during the past month. First in point of time, and also in point of interest, was the production, on the 2nd ult., at the Albert Hall, of Sir Arthur Sullivan's Cantata "The Golden Legend." To the Sheffield Tonic Sol-fa Association belongs the credit of giving us the first opportunity of hearing the feature of the last Leeds Festival, and no expense has been spared to give completeness to the production, with a result that was, from a musical standpoint, highly satisfactory. The "bells" which play so prominent a part in the Cantata were secured, a band complete in every detail, embracing the best talent of the town and district, occupied the base of the orchestra; the choruses were sung by the Tonic Sol-fa Association, Mr. A. W. Speed presided at the organ, and the performance was under the direction of Mr. Henry Coward, who conducted with commendable skill. Miss Owen, R.A.M., as Elsie, created a very favourable impression, her rendering of "The night is calm and cloudless," and the duets with Prince Henry, were much admired. Miss Morgan, R.A.M., as Ursula, gave an artistic interpretation of her music, "Slowly, slowly up the wall," and "My child" being especially good. Mr. Bridson, as Lucifer, sang with much effect, and Mr. Harper Kearton, as Prince Henry, thoroughly grasped the ideas and conceptions of the author. The second part consisted of songs by the principals, Handel's Organ Concerto (No. 9) in B flat, with orchestral accompaniments; Dudley Buck's "Hymn to Music," and Rossini's Overture "William Tell," by the band.

On the 9th ult. the newly formed Wesleyan Choral Society made its first appearance in public, when A. R. Gaul's Cantata "The Holy City" was performed at the Albert Hall. The services of Miss Hamlin and Miss A. L. Morton were secured to interpret the soprano and contralto solos, the other portions being taken by members of the choir. The chorus was large and well balanced, and the instrumentalists fully up to what was required of them. Mr. J. D. Foxon presided at the organ, Mr. A. W. Speed at the pianoforte, and Mr. S. Johnson conducted.

On the 10th ult. Dr. Stainer's Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" was given in Garden Street Congregational Chapel, by the advanced section of the Tonic Sol-fa Association, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry Coward, supported by Mr. Speed as organist. The choruses were sung with expression, and the light and shade admirably preserved. The solos were effectively rendered by Miss Emily Moxon, Mr. R. Longbottom, and Mr. G. A. Tomlin. After the Cantata a miscellaneous selection was given. Mr. Speed especially distinguished himself by his clever performance of two of Guilmant's compositions and Lux's Concert Fantasia on "O Sanctissima." On the same date a miscellaneous Concert was given in the Albert Hall, in aid of the funds of the Jessop Hospital for women. The programme was attractive and well arranged, opening with a March and Overture by the Upperthorpe brass and reed band, assisted by several members of the York and Lancaster Regimental band, under the conductorship of Mr. W. A. Guest, R.A.M. Glees and songs were given by a number of ladies and gentlemen, and several instrumental solos by members of the band. Much praise is due to Mr. Moody, by whose efforts the Concert has proved so successful, both musically and financially.

A very successful Concert was given on the 13th ult., in the Lower Montgomery Hall, by Mr. Coward's Elementary Class, in aid of the Teachers' Orphanage for Girls, at Pitsmoor. The principals were Miss Moxon, Miss Gadie, Mr. Brook, and Mr. Riden. The first part of the programme consisted of Roeckel's Cantata "The Victorian Age," and the second was miscellaneous. As a result of the Concert, Mr. Johnson, the secretary, will have a handsome sum to hand over to the charity.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A PERFORMANCE of Sir Arthur Sullivan's Cantata "The Golden Legend" was given on the evening of April 21 (Fast Day), in the Music Hall, by the Edinburgh Select Choir, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry Hartley. The soloists were Miss Mackay, Miss Wright, Messrs. Ballingal, Ives, and Wood; Mr. T. Craig (pianist) and Mr. J. Hartley (organist).

On the evening of the 11th ult. a Recital of Sacred Music was given in St. Vincent's Church. The principal vocalists were Madame Rothfeld (who gave a good rendering of the solo in Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer") and Mr. Arthur Edmunds. Mr. Harrison was Organist.

The fourth annual private Concert of Mr. Otto Schweizer's pupils took place on the evening of the 17th ult., in the Freemasons' Hall, before a crowded audience. As on former occasions, the tasks allotted to the several pupils were somewhat severe, the programme comprising, among other pieces, Handel's D minor Suite (Prélude, Air, and Variations); Bach's Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue; Chopin's Etude (C sharp minor), Op. 25; Schumann's Novelette, No. 2, D major; Beethoven's Sonata (E major), Op. 109 (excellently played by Miss Charlotte Gibson); Fugue and "La Chasse," from Rheinberger's Op. 5; and Liszt's "Soirée de Vienne" (No. 6), played by Mr. Theodore Hoeck. All these were executed from memory. Madame Annie Grey and Mr. Arthur Edmunds contributed songs by Meyerbeer, Rubinstein, and Otto Schweizer, and greatly added to the success of the evening.

A Society of Musicians has been established in Edinburgh for the purpose of promoting the art of music in all its branches, and encouraging social intercourse among musicians. At the last meeting the total membership (comprising professional musicians only) amounted to sixty-seven. The committee (elected on the starting of the Society) consists of the following gentlemen:—President, Mr. Edmund Edmunds; vice-presidents, Messrs. George Lichtenstein and Otto Schweizer; treasurer, Mr. Arthur Edmunds; and secretary, Mr. J. C. Dibdin; besides Messrs. T. H. Collinson, Mus. Bac., W. Daly, Carl Hamilton, A. G. Jamieson, L. Rothfeld, and W. Waddel. It has been agreed that the regular meetings should commence in November, that three should be held monthly—the members to meet by themselves on the first and third Thursdays of each month, and the last Saturday of each month to be a meeting open to the associates of the Society. A sub-committee was also appointed to arrange with members as to lectures, discussions, concerts, &c., in connection with these meetings.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

IN connection with the opening of a new Established Church at Hyndlands, in the Western district of Glasgow, a Concert of sacred music was given on April 26, by the voluntary choir of the church, and an Anthem was sung, the composition of Mr. J. H. Hinton, the Organist. The Anthem is a setting of Psalm 130 to the Latin text "De profundis," and the music shows considerable ability. Dr. Peace exhibited the quality of the new organ (by Messrs. Willis) in his usual masterly manner.

The annual Concert by the choir of the Christian Institute Branch of the Glasgow Foundry Boys' Religious Society, took place on the 5th ult. Selections from Rossini's "Stabat Mater" (to the English words of Mr. Ball) and Mendelssohn's Cantata "Athalie" constituted the programme—an honourably ambitious one, when the comparatively humble position of the choristers in social life is remembered. Excepting that there was a want of maturity of tone in the male section of the choir, from its average youthfulness, the choral singing was really nearly all that could be desired. The soloists and the reader of the spoken text in the Cantata (friends of the Society) acquitted themselves worthily. Mr. A. Myles, of the Glasgow Choral Union, who has for some years trained this choir, conducted. Mr. Allan Macbeth and Mr. W. T. Hoeck were the accompanists on piano and harmonium respectively.

On the 6th ult. took place what is usually the last principal Concert of the season, the annual demonstration by the choir of the Glasgow Academy. Roeckel's melodious, if light, Cantata "The Gitana" was the choice of the choir, and it was performed, as a whole, with a marked degree of success. The merits of the juvenile choir were fully maintained, their clear enunciation being, as usual, one of the leading excellences of their singing. The following madrigals were also sung:—"Come, live with me" (Sterndale Bennett), "Take heed, ye shepherd swains" (Pearsall), "Matona, lovely maiden" (Lassus), and Macirone's "Ride a cock-horse," not to name others. Mention of these will serve to indicate the good musical pabulum on which the boys are fed. Several of the old pupils, now grown to manhood, assisted in the tenor and bass parts of the usual four-part music. A Toy Symphony by Mr. Desmond L. Ryan was played, several of the boys in the Academy Violin Classes taking part. Mr. J. Maclaren conducted, and deserves much credit for the state of efficiency to which he has brought his youthful band of singers. Mrs. Maclaren accompanied on the piano, and Mr. Woolnoth did the like service on the harmonium. A charge for admission, it may be mentioned, was made for the first time at these Concerts, and the proceeds, which amounted to £50, were handed to the Western Infirmary.

A meeting of guarantors in connection with the Glasgow Choral and Orchestral scheme of Concerts was held on the 17th ult. The report submitted showed the following financial facts:—the balance at the close of season 1885-86 was £1,866 17s. 8d.; the income for season 1886-87 amounted to £7,628 4s., and the expenditure to £8,474 8d., showing a deficit of £845 16s. 8d., and reducing the surplus to £1,021 1s. The committee regretted that the scheme had not received sufficient support during the past season, but believed the result to be due to the long continued commercial and industrial depression. They recommended that no call be made on the present guarantors for last year's deficit, and that repayment of a remaining 5s. per £1 be made to the former guarantors, thus absorbing the balance derived from the profits of previous years, and it was decided to proceed with the arrangements for next season's Concerts on a new guarantee fund of £2,000. Mr. Campbell, of Tullichewan, chairman of the Festival Executive Committee, with whose assistance and counsel the Choral Union act, was in the chair, and in a hopeful and earnest speech proposed a motion embodying the foregoing suggestions. The history of the scheme, he said, was one on which he was sure they could all look back with considerable satisfaction and gratification. There had unquestionably been a large amount of musical education given to the city, and the growth of good music had been very great. He (Mr. Campbell) hoped that this fresh appeal to the public would not fail. He considered it would be a disgrace to the city if it did, but that result was not anticipated. Mr. Campbell took occasion to call attention to an article in the Spectator, of the 14th ult., on the merits of Mr. Manns as a conductor, in order to bring it under the consideration of those critics who had spoken of the Concerts in a way they ought not to have done. The motion was carried. The gratifying fact was mentioned that the lower prices of admission formed a much higher proportion of the whole receipts than formerly, while the kind of music which drew the popular audiences was of the highest type. It is intended, I gather, to make the next season two weeks shorter than it has been of late years; also, probably, to make the orchestra nearer the original number of sixty or seventy, in place of eighty-five, which it has stood at, unnecessarily, as I think, for two or three years back.

The Choral Union is studying "Elijah" this season, with the view, no doubt, of including it in next year's choral performances. The Society is to take part in a service in the Cathedral, on the occasion of the Royal Jubilee.

A successful performance of Mr. J. M. Smieton's Cantata "Ariadne" was given at Paisley, on the 23rd ult., under the direction of Mr. R. L. Reid. The chorus numbered 270 voices. The work was exceedingly well received.

MUSIC IN SOUTH WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The adjudications at Pontypool and Abergavenny have been very much discussed during the past month in certain circles, and in the columns of the local newspapers. The controversy has, indeed, become somewhat acrimonious, and the friends of rival choirs have manifested great partizanship. There is no proof that the adjudicators or any of them made a mistake in their awards, and there is no reason to suppose the adjudicators—all men, I believe, of experience in choral affairs—were in any way unfit for the duties they were engaged to discharge.

Certain criticisms directed by Caradog (Mr. Jones, Cardiff)—whose word would naturally have some weight—against the performances of the Dowlais Choir on Easter Monday, have been productive of a storm of complicated comment, and I regret to hear it stated that one result of the squabble thus originated will be that no Eisteddfod will be held at Pontypool in the autumn. Another outcome of the dispute will be that the chief competition at the National Eisteddfod in August, at the Albert Hall, London, which embraces the same test piece, will not only be very determined as between Wesh and English choirs, but that, by implication, the fiercest contests of all will be between the rival Welsh choirs. In fact, it is just possible that the desirability of beating the Saxons in their own metropolis will be quite lost sight of in the intense interest that will be taken in the performances of the Celtic choirs.

Regarding the Dowlais Choir, I think I am right in saying they have won during the past few years money prizes of the value of £700. The Conductor, Mr. Dan Davies, acting under the advice of Dr. Dyke, is taking a rest from his duties temporarily; and it is, indeed, possible that, in consequence of this and other circumstances, the Dowlais Choir will not attend the Albert Hall.

There is a probability of the female members of the Abercarn Choir appearing at the London Eistedfodd in old Welsh costumes. The Pontypool Choir (of which the energetic Mr. Gus Bevan is president), with their friends, will proceed to the Metropolis by special express, at the President's expense. A room has been engaged near the Albert Hall for rehearsal purposes. The Welsh element will be exceptionally strong among the vocalists at the Concerts, which are to follow the competitive meetings in the evenings. It appears that the following singers have already received engagements:—Madame Edith Wynne, Miss Mary Davies, Miss Eleanor Rees, Miss Marian Price, Miss Mary Owen, Miss H. M. Jones (Swansea), Miss Martha Davies (Newport), Madame Annie Williams (Cardiff), Madame Lizzie Evans, Miss Beata Lloyd Francis, Eos Morlais (well known Welsh tenor), Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. Dyfed Lewis, Mr. Hirwen Jones, Mr. M. Humphreys (Machynlleth), Mr. Lucas Williams, Mr. James Sauvage, Mr. Dan Price (Dowlais), Mr. David Hughes (Swansea), Mr. Edward Owen (North Wales), and Mr. R. W. Jones (North Wales). There will be therefore a representative display of Welsh talent, which the London public will have an exceptionally good opportunity to judge of for themselves.

A very large audience assembled on the evening of the 11th ult., at the Park Hall, Cardiff, to hear more particularly, a rendering by Madame Clara N. Davies's Choir of Roeckel's Cantata "The Gitana." Madame Davies is the daughter of Mr. Jacob Davies, the Conductor of the Cardiff Prize Choir, which has lately given some popular performances at Bristol, Newcastle, Leeds, Bradford, and other towns. The choir consisted of seventy ladies, and the accompaniments were furnished by a band of eight pianofortes, Mr. Aylward presiding at the grand organ. The performances, conducted by Madame Davies, gave great satisfaction. The leading soloists were: Misses Alice Craber, Agnes Mary Astle, Maggie Purvis, Lucy Clarke, Janet Morgan, Mary, Annie, and Maggie Davies. The second part of the Concert consisted of a miscellaneous and effective programme, in which Miss Anna Lang obtained special applause for her fine violin playing. Miss Mary Davies gave the vocal waltz "Il Bacio," Miss Lucy Clarke sang "Angus Macdonald"; Miss Maggie Purvis and Miss Clarke also contributed excellent songs, and the Misses Winifred Evans and Isabella H. Speir performed a pianoforte duet, "Guillaume Tell" (Rene Favarger). The proceeds will go towards the founding of scholarships for candidates in singing and pianoforte playing in Cardiff and the district.

A Jubilee Eisteddfod at Carmarthen, on the 19th ult., attracted a fair share of public notice. It was managed by a committee, of which Mr. Jacob Thomas was chairman; Mr. J. Morgan, vice-chairman; and Mr. R. F. Graham and Mr. C. J. Davies were the honorary secretaries; Conductor, Rev. T. Miles Evans; musical adjudicator, Dr. Parry, Swansea. For a prize of £20 and a gold jubilee medal for the Conductor, three choirs competed. The Priory United (Carmarthen), led by Mr. J. Thomas, was successful. There were several other interesting musical contests. Alderman Rowlands mentioned that forty years ago Carmarthenshire was not renowned for its music. At that time, however, an estimable gentleman (Dr. Wastfield) came to Carmarthen, and got together instruments and voices. Now there was not a town, village, or chapel in which music was not sweetly discoursed; and musical knowledge developed in the county till the late Rev. Latimer Jones managed to get the National Eisteddfod to Carmarthen.

An Eisteddfod was held towards the end of April, at Abercanaid (Merthyr), Mr. T. Price was the adjudicator. The Aberaman Choir took a prize of £5 (with a pitch pipe for the Conductor) for the best rendering of Dr. Parry's "Pebyll yr Arglwydd." The principal event was the competition between choirs for a prize of £18, and £2 to the Conductor, the test piece being the "Hallelujah" Chorus ("Messiah"). The Blaencwm Choir, from the Rhondda, took the honours. The chairman was Mr. W. Dyer, in the absence of Mr. Joseph Owen.

The Cardiff Orchestral Society's Concert, on the 4th ult., at the Park Hall, was well attended. Eos Morlais and Madame Williams-Penn were in very good voice; Mr. Jas. Livsey on the cornet, and Mr. H. Davies as clarinet player were cordially applauded. Mr. Fifoot was the Conductor, and Mr. Deacon the accompanist. On this occasion, during the interval in the programme, the members of the Society presented their hon. secretary with a handsome oak writing cabinet, in recognition of his services.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, May 10, 1887.

MADAME PATTI, in the progress of her "farewelling" through America, wound up the opera season with six representations at the Metropolitan Opera House, between the 11th and 14th days of last month. A foreign note in THE MUSICAL TIMES of the current month conveyed information to English readers of the public interest excited by the event, but the real measure is better given in this financial fact — the receipts for the six representations reached £14,000 sterling. Such a result was rather startling in view of the fact that opera patrons had previously paid no less than £80,000 into the treasuries of the German and National Companies, besides supporting all the other numerous musical entertainments offered, and several writers who have a fatal quickness in generalisation at once jumped to the conclusion that Madame Patti's success was proof of the popularity of Italian opera. There was very little wisdom in such talk, for nothing was plainer to real observers than that Madame Patti's success was purely a success of curiosity. Her performances, all things considered, were the most uninteresting that she ever gave in New York, and her supporting company was inferior to that which, under the management of Signor Angelo, made a dismal fiasco early in the fall. Madame Patti herself, estimating by the standard which she herself set up in former days, did not always meet expectation, and her essay in "Carmen" was thoroughly disappointing. Except in the mad scene in "Lucia" and in "Martha," her singing was received without enthusiasm, and no one cared for the performance at all when she was not on the stage. Finally, it remains to be said that for the two additional representations on Wednesday and Friday, May 11 and 13, the ticket sales have been out of all proportion small. The public, though deceived a thousand times before in the cases of foreign singers and actors who have achieved phenomenal greatness, believed that Patti was actually making her farewell tour (she made one two years ago!) and flocked to see her in order that reminiscences of so notable an occasion might be duly handed down to posterity.

Only one occurrence beside Madame Patti's appearance in New York since my last letter deserves to be discussed. It is the first performance of Rubinstein's Sixth Symphony in A minor, at the last of Mr. Van der Stucken's Concerts, on April 24. The Symphony, which was heard in London at one of Mr. Henschel's Concerts, had strange vicissitudes before it came to a hearing; vicissitudes which attracted more attention to it than it would have received under ordinary circumstances. In these days of eager search after new works by composers who have made their mark, it deserves to be noted that this Symphony, composed for and inscribed to the Society of the Gewandhaus in Leipzig, a Society which it has long been the custom to look up to as the exemplar of the highest things in instrumental music, was, after examination, declined by two conductors before it got a hearing in New York. Mr. Thomas, before it could be known whether the work was good or bad, put it in the prospective scheme of the Philharmonic Society. When the score came he declined to perform it, and gave the same composer's "Dramatic" Symphony instead. Then Herr Seidl took up the Symphony, and announced it as the opening number of the last "Symphonic Soirée," which he was to give on the eve of his departure for Europe. Herr Seidl went so far as to devote one rehearsal of his band to the Symphony, but then he substituted the "Eroica" of Beethoven, "by request." It is not for me to question Herr Seidl's reasons for making the sudden change; I am bound to accept that which he gave to inquisitive friends—namely, that the work, in his opinion, and that of the orchestral musicians, did not warrant performance. After this second rebuff it was thought that New York would not hear the work, this season at least, but Mr. Van der Stucken had still one of his Symphonic Concerts in Chickering Hall to give, for which he had not announced the programme. He took up the stone which the builders had rejected, and made it to be the head of the corner in his last musical structure. The Symphony was not consorted with complete happiness, and the exigencies of programme-making forced it to the bottom of the scheme; but it was listened to with real interest, and though the most careful critics did not attempt to hide the fact that it contained grievous defects, the general judgment was that it was a work that richly deserved the attention that Mr. Van der Stucken had devoted to it.

Mr. Dudley Buck's "Light of Asia" had its first performance in America, at Washington, on the evening of May 6. It has also been put in rehearsal by a Choral Society at Nyack-on-Hudson. Unfortunately the Choral Society which gave the work in Washington did not feel itself able to engage the services of an orchestra, but relied on a pianoforte and organ for the accompaniment, a proceeding which cost Mr. Buck's beautiful music a considerable portion of its charm, and against which he protested with considerable vigour.

On Sunday evening, May 8, Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend" was performed, for the first time in the United States, by the Boston Oratorio Society, an organisation largely composed of the members of Catholic Church choirs, and conducted by Frederick Archer. The solo parts were in the hands of Mrs. Gertrude Luther, Miss Gertrude Edmands, Mr. Jules Jordan, Mr. J. F. Botume, and Mr. J. H. Wilson. The organist was E. J. MacGoldrick, the chorus numbered 300 voices, and a fairly efficient orchestra interpreted the instrumental parts. Local circumstances conspired to prevent a large attendance, a fact which prompted the Evening Traveller to discourse as follows:—"The audience last night proved two things: first, that the patrons of the Society in the Catholic Church are not sufficiently numerous to permit the giving, with profit, of new works of ambitious character, with orchestra and competent soloists; second, that the number of people in cultivated musical circles who take interest enough in the production of a new work to pay to hear it is ridiculously small, and no factor of worth to a manager or society without a personal, social, or historic following. This state of things is to be regretted; it is not only provincial but un-Christian." The work was well received.

The National Opera Company is enjoying a fair share of success in San Francisco, though it still suffers from financial embarrassments. Undismayed by these, however, the promoters of the enterprise announce that preparations are already making for a continuance next year on a more economical basis. Rubinstein's "Nero" has been the most profitable opera in the Company's list.

"THE REDEMPTION" IN ADELAIDE.

THE production of Gounod's sacred Trilogy by the Adelaide Musical Association is an event which had long been looked forward to with the utmost interest by the music lovers of the city, and so enthusiastic has been the reception of the work that there can be little doubt of its speedy repetition. The South Australian Register says:—"Long before eight o'clock the spacious Town Hall was completely filled, and the management was reluctantly compelled to close the sale of tickets. After the gallery and floor of the hall had been filled the organ galleries were made use of, and still there were many more seeking admission who had to be turned away. Such an unusual state of things speaks volumes for the popularity of the Association, and specially of the high estimate which had been formed of the work which was to be performed. It was announced that 185 persons would take part in the Concert, and probably there were on the platform quite that number. As the success of this work depends principally upon the orchestra, special efforts were made to obtain the services of the best instrumentalists that were procurable." The soloists were Mrs. J. James, Miss McDermott, Mr. J. T. Cook, Mr. J. J. Virgo, and Mr. H. G. Nash, all of whom were thoroughly satisfactory, the recitatives of the Saviour, by the last-named vocalist, producing a marked effect. The choruses were admirably rendered; and respecting the instrumentalists we read, in the journal quoted above:—"The 'Calvary March,' and notably that sublime illustration of the 'Darkness,' were specimens of instrumentation which have rarely been produced before an Adelaide audience. In the former the alternating fortissimo and pianissimo bars were played with absolute precision, and in the latter the weird effect intended by the composer was most skilfully brought out. It must have been the unanimous opinion that never before have we had presented in Adelaide so masterly an interpretation of such music, and, as before stated, the lion's share of the credit is due to those who were included in the orchestra." The work was conducted with much ability by Mr. Stevens.

OBITUARY.

CARL FERDINAND POHL, the musical historiographer, died on April 28, at Vienna, after a painful and protracted illness. Pohl came of a family of musicians, his father having been a valued member of the grand ducal orchestra at Darmstadt, and his grandfather's name being associated with the invention of the Glass Harmonika, a once popular instrument, upon the history of which the grandson subsequently published an interesting monography. He was born in 1819 at Darmstadt, where he was educated as a musician, completing his training under Simon Sechter's guidance at the Austrian capital, where he eventually obtained the post of organist at the Protestant church in the suburb of Gumpendorf. It was after a three years' residence in London (from 1863 to 1866) that he published his first important book, entitled "Mozart and Haydn in London," a work full of accurate and interesting detail concerning the visits of the two masters to this country, and the state of music in England during that period. The work attracted the attention of Otto Jahn, the Mozart biographer, and it was partly owing to the exertions of the latter that Pohl obtained the important position of librarian to the Gesellschaft der Musik Freunde of Vienna, an office which he held with much honour to himself, and greatly to the benefit of that institution, until his death. At the instigation also of Jahn, and assisted by much valuable material collected by the latter in connection with the subject, Pohl then undertook what proved to be the most important labour of his life—viz., the compilation of a biography of Joseph Haydn, the first volume whereof appeared in 1875, followed by a second in 1882. This most valuable and painstaking work remains unfortunately incomplete, but the final volume contemplated by its author is, we believe, in a sufficiently advanced state to admit of its being edited by some other competent hand. With Pohl has passed away one of the few remaining adherents of what may be called the old school of German musical biographers, to whom any detail in connection with their subject, however apparently insignificant, is a matter worth ascertaining, and who, if their works are occasionally unnecessarily encumbered thereby, have, at any rate, the inestimable recommendation on their side of being absolutely reliable authorities. The deceased artist and biographer was distinguished by a remarkable simplicity of manner, and an amiability of character which endeared him to all whose privilege it was to be acquainted with him.

ON Wednesday, the 18th ult., Mr. J. T. Hutchinson gave his Annual Concert at the Holborn Town Hall, when Professor Macfarren's Cantata "The Lady of the Lake," was successfully performed by the Holborn Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Windeyer Clark. The choir, numbering about eighty, sang the choruses with much effect, especially "Soldier, rest," the "Boat Song," and the "Coronach." The solos were admirably given by Miss Chapuy, Miss Damian, Mr. Henry Taylor, Mr. Distin, and Mr. J. T. Hutchinson. Miss Chapuy elicited much applause by her appreciative rendering of "Ave Maria," and Miss Damian gained a well merited encore in the "Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman." Mr. Hutchinson was also heard to much advantage in the "Anathema" and "This fertile plain." The accompaniments were ably played throughout, on the pianoforte, by Mr. Albert H. Fox. At the conclusion, the composer, who was present, was enthusiastically called, and upon responding was presented with a bouquet of choice flowers by the ladies of the choir.

ON the 6th ult., the members of the St. George's Glee Union gave their 219th consecutive Monthly Concert in the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street, the choir on this occasion outnumbering that at any preceding Concert, and the room being densely crowded. The first part of the programme was miscellaneous, and included songs by Miss Hilda Coward, Miss Clara Myers, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, Mr. R. F. Roberts, and Mr. Thurley Beale; a duet (pianoforte and Mustel organ), by Mr. F. R. Kinkee and Mr. J. Munro Coward, a solo (Mustel organ) by Mr. J. Munro Coward, and several part-songs by the choir. Before the commencement of the second part, Mr. W. Vincent, the Society's honorary secretary, in an appropriate speech, spoke of the development of the Society since its formation in 1869, of its flourishing condition at the present time, and attributed that success to the ability and indomitable energy of its honorary Conductor, Mr. Joseph Monday. In the name of the members and their friends, he then presented Mr. Monday with a splendid pianoforte by Kirkman, music stool, escritoire, jewel for watch chain, and an album containing the names of the subscribers. Mr. Monday, in returning thanks, spoke of his conductorship as being a labour of love, and expressed a hope that the future career of the St. George's Glee Union might be one of continuous prosperity. The national song and chorus, "Awake, O happy nation" (Coward), was then sung, after which "The May Queen" (Bennett) was excellently rendered, the solo parts being taken by Miss Hilda Coward, Miss Clara Myers, Mr. Holberry Hagyard, and Mr. Thurley Beale. Mrs. Edmonds and Mr. F. R. Kinkee presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. J. Munro Coward at the Mustel organ, Mr. Monday most ably conducting.

DURING the season of the Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society, which has just closed, two Concerts have been devoted to new works of interest and importance. Early in the season Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend" was presented. Very ample orchestral resources were employed, including the bells cast for the Leeds Festival, and the principal vocalists were Miss Annie Lea, Miss Daws, Mr. Henry Piercy, and Mr. Frederic King. Much care was bestowed by the Conductor, Dr. Heap, in the preparation of the work, and the performance was extremely good. On the 28th ult., Dr. Swinnerton Heap's Wolverhampton Cantata, "The Maid of Astolat," was performed with much success. Two of its original exponents, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mr. Robert Grice, took part, the other vocalists being Miss Emilie Lloyd and Mr. Iver McKay. The choruses were admirably sung, and the Processional March and the Tournament Music were amongst the successes of the band. The second Concert of the season was miscellaneous, Madame Valleria and Mr. Foli being amongst the solo vocalists, and Mr. Bisaccia (pianoforte) and Mr. J. Hollman (cello) contributing instrumental solos. On Good Friday, Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," and a suitable selection from "The Messiah," was performed.

WE are informed that the fourth volume of "The Boston Musical Year-Book," hereafter to be known as "The Musical Year-Book," will contain a record of the music performed in Boston during the season of 1886-7 as complete and arranged in the same manner as its predecessors. The usefulness of the Year-Book as a transcript of the musical events throughout the United States will be extended; the beginning made in Vol. III. will be considerably developed, and with reasonable fulness the new book will represent the music of the whole country. The price of the book, made necessary by increased cost of printing, will be one dollar. The volume was announced to be issued during the past month.

MR. B. B. BARRETT gave an evening Concert at Foresters' Hall, Clerkenwell, on Monday, the 16th ult., assisted by the following artists:—Miss Rosa Lonsdale, Madame Annie Williams, Miss T. Cervante, Mr. Selwyn Davies, Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Conrad Formes, vocalists; Mr. Behm (cello), and Miss Annie Greebe (violin); Mr. Ferdinand Schumer shared the duties of pianist with the Concert-giver. Special mention should be made of Madame Annie Williams, Mr. Conrad Formes, and Miss Rosa Lonsdale, whose solos and concerted pieces were warmly and deservedly applauded.

MR. JOSEPH HEMING, an accomplished and enthusiastic amateur, the founder of the band of singers which became the nucleus of Henry Leslie's Choir more than thirty years ago, gave a Lecture at the International College, Finchley Road, on April 25, on "Church Music and Congregational Singing," in aid of the North London Hospital for Consumption, Hampstead. The Lecture, which exhibited considerable research, and a thorough appreciation of the labours of the somewhat neglected masters of the Old English School of Cathedral writers, was listened to with much interest and warmly applauded. The illustrations, which included selections from the compositions of Thomas Tallis, Richard Farrant, Orlando Gibbons, John Blow, Michael Wise, Henry Purcell, Dr. W. Boyce, Dr. W. Croft, Sir John Goss, and others, were well sung with the help, as soloists, of Mesdames Helen Horne and Gilardoni; Masters Allen, Millard, Smith, and Spencer; Messrs. Collins, Lester, Kenningham, Forington, Taylor, Distin, and Hilton; an admirably trained choir of sixty voices, and Mr. Ward as accompanist. Thanks were voted to the performers, to the lecturer, and to the chairman at the close of this excellent Lecture.

THANKS to the assistance of Mr. Henry Leslie and his choir, and the co-operation of several distinguished artists, the patrons of the Church of England Institute were enabled to offer such a varied and attractive programme on the afternoon of the 11th ult. as drew a large and appreciative audience to Grosvenor House. Madame Antoinette Sterling and Mdlle. Antoinette Trebelli delighted their hearers in their different ways; Mr. Barrington Foote read a lesson to all amateurs by his admirably clear enunciation in Pinsuti's "Bedouin Love Song"; Mr. Guerini substituted for the two movements of Mendelssohn's Concerto which he was announced to play a familiar Sonata by Handel, in which he showed considerable refinement of style and purity of tone; Mr. Ralph Livings contributed pieces by Mendelssohn and Moszkowski; Mrs. Kendal was down for a recitation; and Mr. Grossmith for his diverting musical sketch "Homburg." Though compelled to leave before the last two items, we heard and saw enough to convince us that the promoters of the Concert had every reason to be satisfied with the results of their laudable efforts.

ON Tuesday, the 10th ult., the Richmond Choral Society gave Hofmann's "Cinderella" and a miscellaneous selection. The manner in which the rather difficult music of this Cantata was performed—so perfect in intonation, with admirable precision, and due attention to light and shade—gave unmistakable evidence of the thorough and finished training the choir had received under the able direction of Mr. J. Maude Crament, Mus. Bac., Oxon., the founder and Conductor of the Society. The soprano and contralto solos were sung most creditably by members of the Society, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail, who secured the very enthusiastic applause of a large and critical audience, delivered in a really splendid manner the very trying music allotted to the King. Mr. Charles T. Cooke acted most efficiently as accompanist. In the interval between the parts, Mrs. Weller-Poley, on behalf of the Society, begged Mr. Crament's acceptance of a silver sugar bowl and tongs, cream ewer, and case of spoons, as a mark of the appreciation of his efforts during the past five years. The recipient having duly responded, the remainder of the programme was proceeded with.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "St. Paul" in St. Saviour's Church, Poplar, on April 27. The soloists were Mrs. Stanesby, Miss Ellen Cooper, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Jabez West. On the 11th ult. the choir performed "Jephtha" in St. Luke's Church, Kilburn. The soloists were Mrs. Stanesby, Mrs. Dean, Mr. Vivian Bennett, and Mr. C. Beaumont Barr. A second performance of the Oratorio was given on the 12th ult., in St. Jude's Church, South Kensington. The principal vocalists were Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Marguerite Hale, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. The "Creation" was sung by the Choir in Berkley Road Chapel, N.W., on the 18th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Stanesby, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ at the four performances.

A VERY successful performance of Costa's Oratorio "Eli" was given by the Clapham Amateur Orchestral Society, at their Hall, on Tuesday, the 10th ult., in aid of the Clapham Dispensary. The work was excellently rendered, and Mr. Ammon Winterbottom, the Hon. Conductor, deserves the highest praise for the careful training of the forces under his control. The music assigned to Hannah was sung to perfection by Mrs. A. J. Sutton (of Birmingham), whose pure and sympathetic rendering of the part called forth unfeigned admiration. This lady was also successful in the air "I will extol Thee, O Lord," and the duet with the tenor "Wherefore is thy soul cast down." Miss Mackay Robinson was deservedly applauded for the finished style in which she delivered the music of Samuel, the Morning and Evening Prayers being particularly impressive. Mr. W. Braxton Smith and Mr. W. H. Wing were very efficient in their respective parts. The choruses were sung with steadiness and precision.

THE Regent's Park Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. J. C. Ward, gave a Concert in aid of the Christ Church Endowment Fund, on the 5th ult., when the chief feature was Mendelssohn's "Athalie." The solo parts were carefully rendered by members of the choir, and both these and the choruses indicated the careful training of the Conductor, the illustrative verses being declaimed with dramatic power by Mr. Charles Fry. The "Athalie" music was followed by the Coronation Anthem. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous, and included Gade's "Spring's Message," a trio by Haydn, songs by Miss Christine Ward, Mr. J. Hall, Mr. Abbey Yorke, and Mr. J. C. Ward, the last named, on being encored, substituting Dr. Mackenzie's new song "The Empire Flag," which was received with much applause. We must not omit to mention that the pianoforte accompaniments throughout were very efficiently played by Miss Addison.

AT the Gresham Hall, Brixton, on the 3rd and 10th ult., the members of the South London Musical Club gave their fifty-second Smoking Concert and twenty-sixth Musical Evening respectively. On the former occasion, Mr. Victor Buziau (violinist), and on the latter, Miss Mary Beare (soprano) and Mr. G. T. Miles (harpist) rendered very valuable assistance. The programmes included an excellent selection of male voice part-music, the chief items being "The night is cloudless" (Schubert), "There is a paradise" (Pearsall), and "Love reigneth over all" (Elsasser). The soli parts were sustained by Messrs. Champion and Garratt, and Masters Richardson and Wilton. Mr. Edward Branscombe sang "The Requital" (Blumenthal) and "When Delia sings" (Hobbs) with great taste and expression. Mr. Charles Stevens conducted, and Mr. E. W. Brewster accompanied on the pianoforte.

THE East Southwark Choral Association gave a very successful Concert on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult., at the Manor Road Lecture Hall, Bermondsey. The early part of the programme was devoted to a performance of Gaul's "Holy City." The choruses were rendered with a precision which proved that Mr. Vinero, as Conductor, had been at great pains to have the work thoroughly rehearsed. The solos were sung by Miss Laura Brown, Madame Whitfield Rose, Miss Annie Buckland, Miss Pridmore, and Messrs. J. H. Müllerhausen, Charles Koch, and Herbert Bridge, all of whom were very efficient. Mr. Douglas Redman accompanied on the pianoforte, assisted by Messrs. Bartlett and Langton (cornets). A miscellaneous second part included a new tenor song by Mr. Vinero, "At sunset glow," which was excellently sung by Mr. Müllerhausen, and received with great applause.

THE St. John's Choral Society concluded its present season on the 12th ult., when "The Messiah" was given with full orchestral accompaniment, the combined executants numbering nearly 200. The principals were Madame Worrell, Miss Meredyth Elliott, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. W. H. Burgon; solo trumpet, Mr. W. Morrow; Conductor, Mr. R. J. Hennings. The solos were excellently rendered, and the orchestra, aided by a large American organ, was highly efficient. The choir was exceedingly good, especially in "He shall purify," "His yoke is easy," and "He trusted in God," and evidenced the painstaking care which the Conductor must have bestowed upon these choruses at rehearsals.

THE Crouch End Choral Society brought its thirteenth season to a close by an excellent performance of Gounod's sacred trilogy "The Redemption," on Tuesday, April 26. The choruses were rendered with due attention to light and shade and accurate intonation, and a small stringed orchestra, supplemented by trumpets, harp, piano, and harmonium, gave excellent effect to the charming instrumentation. The soloists were Miss Mary Beare, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Percy Palmer, and Mr. Bridson. The latter gentleman gave a fine rendering of the bass part, and Miss Mary Beare created a most favourable impression by her finished singing of "From Thy love as a Father." Mr. E. Halfpenny led the band, Miss Preston presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. J. G. Callcott at the harmonium. Mr. Alfred J. Dye, A.Mus., officiated as Conductor.

MR. ERNEST FOWLES gave his first Concert on the 17th ult., at Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, assisted by Miss Rees, Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Miss Dinelli, and Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys. Among the principal features of the programme were the "Kreutzer" Sonata, played by Mr. Fowles and Miss Dinelli; an Impromptu for two pianofortes on a Theme of Schumann's (Reinecke), rendered to perfection by Miss Zimmermann and the Concert-giver; various solos, including Bach's Organ Fugue (arranged by Liszt), Sterndale Bennett's Rondo Piacevole, a Nocturne of his own composition, and Arthur O'Leary's Toccata in F major. In all these pieces Mr. Fowles exhibited true expression, a sympathetic touch, and good powers of execution. The room was well filled.

ON Tuesday evening, April 26, the Waldegrave Musical Society gave a performance of Haydn's "Creation" in the Waldegrave Road Church, Upper Norwood, before a large audience. The soloists were Madame Lillian Barrett and Messrs. Reginald Groome and Stanley Smith. Several of the numbers received well deserved applause—notably, "With verdure clad" and "In native worth." The orchestra and chorus were efficient, and Miss Marie Brooke conducted with great spirit and ability. Mr. Jesse Minns at the pianoforte, and Mr. Porter at the organ, fulfilled their duties in an admirable manner. It says much for the Conductor that a young society should be able to produce so difficult a work in such a satisfactory manner.

THE twenty-ninth evening Concert given by the Chelsea Musical Society took place on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult., at the Onslow Hall, Neville Street, Fulham Road. The principal item in the programme was Macfarren's Cantata "May Day." The choir, under Mr. Fagge's able direction, acquitted itself most creditably, and sang the choruses with excellent effect. The miscellaneous portion of the programme included songs by Mr. Richard Green, Mr. Collwyn Thomas, Miss Bernard, and Miss N. Pettican. Mr. Thomas Cronchey's violin solos were well played, and the orchestra, which is always so prominent a feature at these Concerts, performed the numbers allotted to it in a manner which left little to be desired. Mr. Joseph Somes conducted.

THE Members of the Grosvenor Choral Society held their 182nd Monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall, Buckingham Palace Road, on Friday, April 29. The programme consisted of a miscellaneous selection from the operas of Donizetti, Balfe, Wagner, Weber, Gounod, Bellini, &c. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Flynn, Miss Jessie King, Mrs. David Woodhouse, Mr. A. J. Reynolds, Mr. Edward Mogford, and Mr. Stewart Taylor. Miss Jessie Davies gave two pianoforte solos. Mrs. T. P. Frame accompanied, and Mr. David Woodhouse conducted. In place of the May Concert, Canon Fleming, B.D., gave a selection of Readings on the 20th ult., interspersed with vocal pieces by the choir.

ON Sunday, the 15th ult., Mr. G. Augustus Holmes, Organist of St. George's, Camberwell, gave his final Organ Recital of this season's series. His selections consisted of Smart's Festive March, Andante from Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn), Offertoire in E flat (Batiste), and Hesse's Grand Variations on "God save the Queen." The vocal portion was well rendered by Miss Meredyth Elliott, Miss Marion Holmes, and Mr. Joseph Heald. The church was crowded.

THE Barnes Habitation of the Primrose League gave a grand Jubilee Concert, under the direction of Mr. H. Scott, at the Institute, on Wednesday, the 18th ult., before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Theodora Wilson, Mr. Arthur Vitton, and Mr. W. J. Dyer rendered some high-class songs in excellent style, but the chief honours of the evening were fairly won by Miss Jessie Hudson (Gold Medalist, L.A.M.), who received an ovation for her violin solos. Valuable assistance was also rendered by Mrs. J. Douglas, Mr. H. J. Hawley, Mr. J. Williams, and Mr. W. J. Dixon, M.A.; and some patriotic part-songs by Messrs. Cooke-Yarborough, Bristowe, Scott, and Watson were much applauded.

AT Clapton Wesleyan Schoolroom, Downs Road, on Friday, April 29, Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was given, the choruses being well rendered by an efficient choir. The solos were taken by Miss Laura Brown, G.S.M., and Mr. Sinclair Dunn, who also contributed songs later in the evening, encores being obtained by each. The choir also gave Schumann's "Gipsy Life" and Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings." Messrs. H. L. Lacock and L. Goodwin were the accompanists at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively, assisted by a few strings, ably led by Mr. James Watson. Mr. W. Bolton, Organist of Clapton Wesleyan Chapel, conducted.

A CONCERT was given in Bolingbroke Hall, on April 27, by the St. Mark's (Battersea Rise) Choral Society. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" and Van Bree's "St. Cecilia's Day." The rendering of the choruses was highly creditable and elicited frequent applause. The solos were undertaken by Miss Kate Condy (who won encores in both works), Miss K. Milner, Mr. C. Lockwood, and Mr. E. F. Conolly. The second part commenced with two duets for piano and organ by Miss Grace Smith and Mr. E. P. Atkins, the second of which, "Sérénade de Gounod" (A. Lebeau) was encored. Mr. Bray conducted.

MR. W. G. WOOD, Professor and Associate of the Royal Academy, gave an Organ Recital on the 18th ult., at St. Mary's, Hornsey Rise, of which church he is Choirmaster. The programme was an interesting one and comprised Air with Variations from Symphony in D (Haydn), Offertoire in C (Wély), Serenade (Schubert), Introduction and Allegro by Mr. Wood, and Merkel's Sonata in D minor as an organ duet, in the performance of which Mr. Wood was joined by his brother, Mr. C. Wood. The choir of the Church sang Anthems by Greene and Barnby and "Lift thine eyes," "He watching," and "Judge me, O God" (Mendelssohn) with good effect.

THE fourth and last Concert of the second season of the Woodside Park Musical Society, took place at the Woodside Hall, North Finchley, on the 9th ult. The programme contained Dr. Stanford's "The Revenge," Gade's "Spring's Message," and madrigals and part-songs by Henry Leslie, Bennett, Stewart, &c., all of which were well rendered by the choir. Vocal solos were contributed by Miss Ada Rowe, Miss E. M. Johnson, and Messrs. J. E. Collister and T. R. Johnson, and violoncello solos by Mr. J. Carrodus, jun. The accompaniments consisted of a String Quintet led by Mr. Henry Gibson. Mrs. Williams presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Alfred J. Dye, A.Mus., conducted.

THE Annual Festival of the Sons of the Clergy Corporation was held in St. Paul's Cathedral. There was a choir of 300 voices and a full orchestra, conducted by Dr. Stainer. Before the service Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture was played. The Canticles were sung to Dr. Martin's fine setting in C, and the Anthem, composed expressly for the Festival, was Dr. Stainer's "Lord, Thou art God," which was noticed in our last number. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. E. C. Welldon, Master of Harrow. At the conclusion of the service, Handel's Coronation Anthem "Zadok the Priest" was sung.

THE Service on Easter Day in Emmanuel Church, Brooklyn, U.S.A., consisted almost entirely of works by English composers. It included a new Anthem "Christ our Passover," by Berthold Tours, and the same composer's Communion Service in C and Te Deum in F. Hymns by Dr. Dykes, J. B. Calkin, &c., also formed part of the service, which was under the direction of Mr. Lasar.

AN Evening Concert was given, on the 3rd ult., by Miss Rose Dafforne, R.A.M., at the Morley Hall, Hackney, assisted by the following vocalists :—Miss Fusselle, Miss L. Dafforne, Mr. Charles Chilley, and Mr. W. G. Forington. Mr. Arthur Payne contributed violin solos, and Mr. Fountain Meen presided with much efficiency at the pianoforte. Miss Rose Dafforne was most enthusiastically received in all her songs, eliciting a spontaneous encore for "Unless," by Miss E. J. Troup (accompanied by the composer), and the pianoforte playing of Mr. Alfred Hollins (Normal Academy of Music for the Blind) was rewarded by warm and well-deserved applause.

ON Monday, the 9th ult., a Concert was given at the Mission Hall, St. Andrew's, Battersea, under the direction of Mr. F. E. Choveaux, in aid of the Choir Fund. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Hardy, Miss Barwell, Miss Lizzie Collin, Miss Eva Bird, Mr. William Moore, and Mr. Choveaux. Some choruses were sung with good effect, and pianoforte solos and duets were contributed by Miss Heutsch and Mr. Choveaux, who also acted as accompanist. An effective song by Mr. Krohn, entitled "Old as the hills," was sung by Mr. Choveaux and encored.

THE Sunday evening (monthly) Organ Recitals, given with so much success at St. Anne's Church, Wandsworth, by the Organist (Mr. Frederick W. Doe), were resumed on the 1st ult. The programme consisted of works by Mendelssohn, Bach, and Guilmant. Mr. Montagu Shepherd, R.A.M., and Mr. Malcolm Harding were the vocalists, the former contributing recitative and air, "If with all your hearts" (which he sang with much taste and expression), and the latter "It is enough," both from "Elijah." The offertories were devoted to the fund which is being raised for the rebuilding of the organ.

THE first season of the St. Peter's Choral Society was brought to a termination by a Concert held on the 3rd ult., when Sir Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen" was very creditably rendered, under the conductorship of Mr. A. A. Yeatman, F.C O. The soloists were Mrs. Albert Rayment, Miss Florence Lee, Mr. Fred. Cundy, and Mr. Albert Rayment. The second part of the programme consisted of a miscellaneous selection of solos by the above vocalists, interspersed with glees by the Society. Miss Selina Mackness, R.A.M., was the solo pianist, and Mr. F. J. Yeatman presided at the American organ.

A DRAMATIC Recital, interspersed with music, was given by Mr. Charles Fry at St. Thomas's Schools, Camden Road, on the 20th ult., when a varied programme exhibited the versatile powers of the reciter. Mr. Fry's histrionic ability was shown to good effect in scenes from "Henry V.," "Much ado about Nothing," a Bab Ballad, and "The Charity Dinner," but his best effort was undoubtedly Macaulay's "Virginia," which was received with very hearty applause. The Recital was interspersed with songs effectively rendered by Miss Dudley Day and Mr. Taylor, and by pianoforte solos played by Miss Kent Thomas.

A CONCERT was given on the 7th ult., by Mr. Legren Harrison, in the Whitehall Room of the Hotel Métropole. Mr. Harrison was assisted by Miss Hope-Glenn, Miss Emily Langley, Mr. William Shakespeare, and Mr. Gustav Garcia, vocalists, and Mr. Papini, violinist. Mr. Harrison received much applause for his pianoforte playing, which included a Study by Chopin and some of his own compositions. Miss Glenn sang three songs by Mendelssohn, and Miss Langley a song by Tosti. Mr. Shakespeare and Mr. Garcia met with their usual warm reception.

THE Choir of the College Chapel, Richmond Hill, gave Barnby's "Rebekah" and a miscellaneous selection, on Friday, the 20th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Clara West, Mr. W. Poupart, and Mr. E. Alston; pianoforte, Miss Kate Vaughan; organ, Mr. F. Figg; Conductor, Mr. Sanderson. Mrs. West gave an excellent rendering of the part of Rebekah.

A NEW organ, built by Bryceson and Sons, was opened at St. Andrew's Church, Streatham, by Mr. Geo. Shinn, Mus. Bac., Cantab., on Ascension Day, the occasion being the consecration of the church by the Bishop of Rochester.

MR. F. A. BRIDGE gave a very successful Evening Concert at the New Cross Public Hall, on Thursday, the 12th ult. The vocalists were Mrs. Clara Samuell, Miss Fanny Perfitt, Mrs. Poole, Mr. Albert James, Mr, Arthur Thomas, and Mr. F. A. Bridge; violin, Miss Adelina Dinelli; flute, Mr. Luigi Carozzi; pianoforte, Miss Esther Parsons and Miss L. Pyne. Some members of Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir contributed part-songs, madrigals, &c., which were excellently rendered. The Concert was under the direction of Mr. J. G. Callcott and Mr. F. A. Bridge.

AN excellent Concert was given by Miss Julia Jones at the Manor Rooms, Hackney, on the 3rd ult. An attractive programme was well rendered, the bénéficiaire being assisted by Miss Agnes Wilson, Miss Hilda Wilson, Miss Emily Dones, Mr. T. W. Page, Mr. Ralph Dawes, Mr. Musgrove Tufnail, and Mr. Thomas Kempton, all of whom were well received, the solos of the concert-giver, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Tufnail, and Mr. Kempton being most warmly applauded. Several instrumental pieces were also given, all of which were thoroughly appreciated.

AT Miss Florence May's second Pianoforte Recital in Berlin, some Waltzes of her own composition were included in the programme, which obtained a special success. The artist, who has on several occasions accompanied Joachim in private circles in his solos, including his own and Brahms's Concertos, &c., has been presented by the great violinist with copies of his Hungarian Concerto, and Variations for violin and orchestra, with the following inscription :—"To Miss Florence May, in grateful remembrance of her excellent accompaniment.—Joseph Joachim."

THE Association of Tonic Sol-fa Choirs will hold its fourth annual Festival at the Crystal Palace on the 11th inst. A Choral Competition between choirs of forty to sixty voices will take place during the morning, with Mr. Henry Leslie as adjudicator; and a great Choral Concert will be given at four o'clock on the Handel Orchestra, with full orchestral accompaniments by the Crystal Palace band (greatly augmented by members of the Association); Conductor, Mr. L. C. Venables; Organist, Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O.

MISS LEVINA FERRARI gave her annual Concert at the Portman Rooms, Baker Street, on the 17th ult., before a large audience. The vocal solos of the bénéficiaire were thoroughly appreciated, Meyerbeer's "Vanne disse," and Benedict's song "The bird that came in Spring," being enthusiastically encored. Miss Ferrari was assisted by Miss José Sherrington, Miss Francis Hipwell, and Mr. Albert Reakes, vocalists; Miss Nellie Chaplin and Mr. Carlo Ducci, jun., pianoforte; and Miss Kate Chaplin, violin. Miss Lewis was an excellent accompanist.

MR. W. J. YOUNG, of Barton Arcade, Manchester, having sent a copy of "The Royal Choral March," "God's blessing on our Sovereign rest," composed by him, to the Queen, has received the following acknowledgment: "General Sir Henry F. Ponsonby is commanded by the Queen to thank Mr. W. J. Young for his letter of the 2nd inst. with its enclosures.—Buckingham Palace, 4th May, 1887." The March was performed with much success on the 9th ult. by the Holy Innocents Choral Society, Fallowfield, the solos being well rendered by Miss Liebert.

MR. HERBERT CLAXTON gave a successful Concert on the 17th ult., at the Parochial Hall, for the benefit of the Building Fund of St. Simon's Church, West Kensington Park, when the following ladies and gentlemen kindly assisted, viz. :—Mesdames Minnie Gwynne, Agnes Liddell, Ellis Cameron; Messrs. Campbell-Pope, Scudamore, and Percy Webster (violin). Mr. T. Barrow Dowling, Organist of St. Philip's, Regent Street, was an able Conductor and accompanist, and also gave two of his own pianoforte compositions in an artistic manner.

THE last of the series of People's Pastime Ballad Concerts, given by Mr. T. Harriot, was held in the Westminster Town Hall, on Saturday, the 21st ult. A good programme was provided. Miss Montague-Conyers, Miss L. Trowbridge, Mr. Ager Grove, and Mr. E. Norton Wright contributed vocal pieces with much success. These entertainments have taken place weekly, extending over a period of eight months, and have been much appreciated.

THE last three of the series of forty Organ Recitals at St. Barnabas' Church, Kentish Town, for the present season, will be given on the following Saturday evenings: the 4th inst., Mr. Fountain Meen; vocalist, Miss Edith Stow; the 11th inst., Mr. James Hallet; and the 18th inst., Mr. H. C. Tonking. After this some important additions and improvements will be made to the organ by the builder, Mr. Alfred Monk; a second swell will be added, and an Echo stop placed on the window-sill in the chancel, away from the organ.

THE choir of the East Hill Baptist Chapel, Wandsworth, gave its annual Concert on Thursday evening, the 12th ult. Selections were given from the principal Oratorios, which were rendered in an efficient manner; the choir numbered fifty voices. The solos were taken by Miss Winifred Parker, Miss Laurie Stacey, Miss Maude Hayter, Mr. Maskell Hardy, and Mr. Edward Bowles. Mr. Howlett presided at the harmonium, and Mrs. Beattie West ably accompanied at the pianoforte. Mr. John Ulrich, Choirmaster of the Chapel conducted.

THE Dedication Festival of the Church of the Ascension, Balham, took place on the 19th and 22nd ult., the Anthems —Dr. Bridge's "The Lord hath chosen Zion"; Dr. Hopkins's "Lift up your heads"; Mozart's "Glorious is Thy Name"; and Beethoven's "Hallelujah"—being well rendered by the choir. The selection of organ music, performed by Mr. Adolphus Antoine, comprised Meyerbeer's "Schiller" March, Berens's Fantasia in C minor, and Hesse's Variations on an Original Theme, &c.

THE Jubilee Gold Medal offered by the committee of the Bath Philharmonic Society, for the best Cantata for solo and orchestra, was, on Saturday last, awarded to Mr. Charlton T. Speer, Associate and Professor in the Royal Academy of Music. There were twenty-three candidates, and the adjudicators were Mr. Eaton Faning, Dr. Mackenzie, and Sir Arthur Sullivan (chairman). The Cantata is entitled "The Day Dream" (words by Lord Tennyson), and will be performed at Bath on the 20th inst.

THE Strolling Players' Amateur Orchestral Society gave its last Concert for the present season in St. James's Hall, on April 30. The rendering of Gade's Symphony in B flat left something to desire in the way of delicacy and expression, but Mr. Norfolk Megone's players did a large measure of justice to Svendsen's Rhapsodie Norwegienne. Another important item in the programme was Mendelssohn's Serenade and Allegro giojoso, the solo part of which was well rendered by Madame Frickenhaus.

THE musical arrangements for the Royal Jubilee service in Westminster Abbey, on the 22nd inst., are now complete. The choir will number about 230, and will be divided as usual into Decani and Cantoris. Brass instruments, with tympani, including side drum and grand caisse, will supplement the organ in most of the music sung. We are asked to say it has been impossible for the Precentor and Organist to reply to the numerous offers received from gentlemen anxious to help.

THE first of a series of popular Concerts was given on the Grand Orchestra of the Alexandra Palace, on Saturday evening, the 14th ult. A select choir of well trained voices, numbering about 100, sang some well known part-songs in a most satisfactory manner. The soloists were Mrs. Minnie Gwynne, Miss Annie Layton, Mr. Alfred Rudland, and Mr. Alfred J. Layton, who sang a selection of popular songs, quartets, trios, and duets, each artist receiving hearty applause.

THE Free Scholarships at the Music School, under Miss Macirone, in Baker Street, were awarded by Professor Sir G. A. Macfarren, on the 20th ult., as follows:—The Senior Scholarship to Miss Gertrude Emily Pittman; the Junior Scholarship to Miss Elsie Margaret Eastes; and the Extern Scholarship to Miss Mary Elizabeth Pittman. The examination for the Harmony Scholarship was announced to take place on the 31st ult.

BY kind permission of the Dean and Chapter, the Epping Forest Church Choir Association (composed of choirs in the Archdeaconries of Barking and Chigwell) will hold its seventh annual Festival Service in Ely Cathedral on July 16 next.

A SUCCESSFUL Concert and Conversazione was given at the Vestry Hall, Hampstead, on the 11th ult., by the Pitt Habitation of the Primrose League. The Concert included songs by Mrs. Edith Wynne, Mrs. Frances Brooke, Mr. A. J. Fischel, and Mr. Frank Connery; violin solos very effectively rendered by Signor Luigi Meo; a reading entitled "A Non-musical interpretation of Music," by Mr. Armytage Bakewell; and recitations contributed with much humour by Mr. Charles Fry.

THE St. Peter's Choral Society gave a Concert at the Horbury Rooms, Ladbroke Road, on the 25th ult. Barnby's "Rebekah" and Macfarren's "May Day" formed the programme, the vocalists being Mrs. Oliver Clare, Mr. E. Bryant, and Mr. Patrick, all of whom acquitted themselves well, Mr. Bryant being especially successful in the tenor part. Miss Kate Kingdon and Mr. Sydney R. Cross presided at the piano and harmonium respectively, and Mr. W. S. Vinning conducted.

THE third Organ Recital of the season was given at St. Andrew's Church, Stoke Newington, on Wednesday evening, the 11th ult., by Mr. W. T. Best, and consisted of selections from the works of Handel, Bach, Mendelssohn, Dubois, and W. T. Best. The Recital was interspersed with some effective Anthems by the choir, which were well rendered. The soloists were Messrs. C. J. Barrett and Miles Mole; accompanist, Mr. C. J. C. Boddington.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. Julian Adams, which took place at Eastbourne, on the 7th ult. As a conductor and composer, Mr. Adams has for many years been known, and his excellently arranged Classical and Orchestral Concerts at Buxton, &c., and more recently at Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, have done much towards spreading a love for high-class music. The deceased was in his sixty-third year.

ON Friday, April 29, a Concert in aid of the North London Nursing Association was given at the Athenæum, Camden Road, under the direction of Mr. G. W. Pye. The vocalists were Mrs. Ellen Lamb, Mrs. Isabel Fassett, Mr. W. Nicholl, and Mr. Bridson. Solos on the violin and pianoforte were contributed respectively by Mr. G. H. and Mr. Gilbert R. Betjemann. The conductors were Miss Mary Carmichael and Mr. Twyford Taylor.

MISS ADELA DUCKHAM (13 years of age), a student at the Guildhall School of Music, was the violinist at the dinner of the Officers and Clerks' Committee of the Common Council, on the 13th ult., under the presidency of Mr. J. E. Sly. At the close of the proceedings, at the request of the Lord Mayor, Miss Duckham was presented to him by the chairman, when his lordship highly complimented her on her playing and the talent she had shown.

THE Stratford Congregational Church Choral Society gave Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and a miscellaneous selection, on Wednesday evening, the 18th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Clara West, Miss Lawrence, and Mr. H. Clinch. There was a small band. The pianist was Miss Harris, R.A.M., and the organist, Mr. E. J. Scrine; Conductor, Mr. J. W. Hale. The performance was very successful.

A SPECIAL Service of sacred, vocal, organ, and orchestral music was given on Tuesday, the 10th ult., at St. Andrew's, Undershaft, E.C., under the direction of Mr. W. M. Wait (Organist and Choirmaster). Both the choir of St. Andrew's and the orchestra, with organ, were highly efficient. Mr. Henry J. Wood, R.A.M., presided at the organ, and also played two solos.

AT Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn Road, on Ascension Day, after the Evening Service, Dr. Stainer's Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" was performed. The solos were sung by Miss Effie Chapuy, Mr. Walter Woodroof, and Mr. C. Hale. Mr. J. T. Hutchinson conducted, and Mr. R. F. Tyler presided at the organ.

ON Hospital Sunday a selection, consisting of the greater part of Haydn's "Creation," will be sung at Brompton Parish Church, Brompton Road, commencing at 3.30 p.m. The soloists will be Miss Hilda Coward, Mr. Percy Palmer, and Mr. Thurley Beale. Mr. George J. Bennett will preside at the organ.

A LITTLE volume on Musical Art and Study, by Mr. H. C. Banister, consisting of three papers recently read respectively before the National Society of Professional Musicians, the North-East London Society of Musicians, and the College of Organists, will be issued immediately by Messrs. George Bell and Sons.

THE last Organ Recital of the season at the Bow and Bromley Institute, was given on Saturday, April 30, by Mr. W. M. Wait (Organist and Choirmaster of St. Andrew, Undershaft, E.C.); solo violin, Mr. H. C. Tonking; vocalists, "The Lothbury Male Voice Choir"; Conductor, Mr. T. B. Evison.

THE Misses Nellie and Kate Chaplin gave their annual Concert at the Athenæum, Camden Road, on the 5th ult. They were assisted by Miss Margaret Hoare, Miss Fanny Moody, Mr. Orlando Harley, Mr. Pelham Rooff, and Mr. E. J. Margetson (vocalists); and Miss Mabel Chaplin (cello).

BY the death of Mr. Charles Clarke, which took place on the 1st ult., the parish of St. John, Devizes, has lost one of the oldest organists in the Diocese of Salisbury. He had held the above mentioned appointment for upwards of forty years, and was highly esteemed, both as an artist and a genial kind-hearted man.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S Cantata "The Golden Legend" will be performed at the Worcester Festival in September; at Norwich, Nottingham, Bristol, Cheltenham, and Bradford during October; at Huddersfield in November; and at Exeter in December.

MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT had the honour of singing before the Queen, at a private performance of Dr. C. Villiers Stanford's "Jubilee Ode," given at Buckingham Palace, on the 11th ult., by command of Her Majesty. The work is for soprano solo and chorus.

WE are informed that H.R.H. Prince Christian has accepted the office of President of the Kensington School of Music, and that H.R.H. Princess Christian, H.R.H. Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, and H.S.H. the Duke of Teck, have become patrons of the Institution.

MR. FRED. G. SHINN, A.C.O., gave an Organ Recital at Brixton Hall, on the 18th ult. The programme, which was miscellaneous, included Fantasia on Vesper Hymn (E. H. Turpin), Grand Chorus in D (Guilmant), and Fantasia in C (Tours).

MR. HENRY CROSS, Baritone of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, and Westminster Abbey, has been awarded the certificate of proficiency in Public Singing at the Royal College of Music, and has also been made an Associate.

MADAME LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON, now a Professor of Singing at the Brussels Conservatoire, has contributed a useful article on "Learning to Sing" to the June number of the Girls' Own Paper.

THE new two-manual organ, built by Alfred Monk, London, for Havant Congregational Chapel, was opened on the 1st ult.

REVIEWS.

Richard Wagner jugé en France : par Georges Servières. [Paris : Librairie illustrée.]

M. SERVIÈRES' work, though laying no claim to originality, and being in its essence rather a book designed for casual reference than for continuous reading, is nevertheless a valuable contribution to Wagnerian literature, and a monument of that particular sort of patient research which is more common in Germans than Frenchmen. In the space of little more than 300 pages, the author has contrived to give a very complete digest of all the criticisms favourable or—as is more frequently the case—inimical, which have been passed upon Wagner in France from the date of his first visit to Paris up to last year, by all sorts and conditions of critics, professional and unprofessional, musical and literary, male and female. And here we may remark that, on the whole, Wagner has certainly secured the suffrages of a remarkable number of distinguished literary men, amongst whom it will suffice to mention Gérard de Nerval—the first French translator of "Faust."—Théophile Gautier, and amongst eminent writers of the day, Alphonse Daudet, who cannot however, appreciate Wagner's poems. On the other hand, it is only fair to mention that Prosper Mérimée and Edmond About were of a very different way of thinking. Of the regular critics, few come well out of the ordeal. They stand in most cases self-convicted of incompetence, of inconsistency, or of prejudice. Berlioz's attitude towards Wagner in the last years of his life, as revealed by his own letters, was wholly unworthy of him. M. Reyer and M. Saint-Säens fare best in this record, while some writers, notably the notorious M. Albert Wolff, hardly deserve the trouble which the author has taken in exposing their elephantine buffooneries. But if severe on the ignorant or prejudiced opponents of Wagner, M. Servières is equally hard on the extravagant and eccentric adherents of that master. The vagaries of the Revue Wagnérienne are fair game for an impartial critic, and M. Servières, though evidently an enthusiastic admirer of Wagner's music, fully appreciates the irritation aroused by the fantastical absurdities of such exclusive coteries. He quotes, for example, from this review a passage in which the writer announces the discovery of "unconscious Wagnerites" in other arts, amongst whom we find Mr. Whistler included, and gives the two wonderful sonnets in honour of Wagner, which gained the first and second prizes in a competition recently held under the auspices of the paper in question. This impartiality on the part of M. Servières, in which he resembles his friend, M. Adolphe Jullien—to whose admirable study of Wagner the present volume forms a most useful supplement—will doubtless offend the susceptibilities of those touchy folks who regard any fault-finding with their hero in the light of a sacrilege, and are unrestrained in their extravagances by that most salutary check—a sense of humour. A good point in the author's method is that he generally tells us briefly, but comprehensively, what was going on in other non-musical circles at the various epochs of which he treats, a practice which enables the reader to take his bearings far better than he can from a mere date. The early chapters are very interesting, and bring home very pointedly the irksome nature of the work Wagner had to perform, and the mortification and rebuffs to which he was so frequently forced to submit. But M. Servières most judiciously remarks in this connection, "The retrospective indignation which seizes some of his admirers in regard to the injustice of fate towards him during his first visit to Paris, strikes me as somewhat childish," for, as he goes on to prove, there was no reason why the Parisians of the day should treat him better than a prix de Rome. Bizet, twenty years later, had to perform equally menial duties. It cannot be denied that some of the hostile criticisms passed on Wagner were exceedingly amusing, and M. Servières never fails to appreciate the point of a joke, even at the expense of his own side. When the "Tannhäuser" Overture was given for the first time in Paris, in 1850, one critic pronounces it to be "the very noisy accompaniment of an absent melody," and when "Tannhäuser" was hissed and whistled down by the Jockey Club eleven years later, Berlioz declared that "to understand the music of Wagner one must be endowed with the gift of second hearing." The causes of the failure of "Tannhäuser" in 1861 are very carefully gone into by M. Servières. The displacement of the ballet, and the consequent irritation of the members of the Jockey Club, no doubt, went for something; but the patronage of the Princess Metternich, and the intervention of the Emperor; Wagner's own temper; the indiscretion of his partizans; and the publication of his "Letter on Music," were more serious obstacles in the way of success. Perhaps, he adds, the best explanation of all is that given by M. Lindau, who says, "the true cause of the failure was the transplantation of a German plant on to Gallic soil." Apropos of the Emperor's patronage of Wagner, M. Servières very happily remarks: "By a strange freak of fate, it was reserved for this revolutionary to be protected, thanks to the caprice of a great lady, by the author of the Coup d'État of 1851; for the most complicated melodic genius to be patronised by a sovereign whose whole nature rebelled against music." A strange fact, on which M.

Servières lays great stress, is that whereas Wagner's vulgar and pitiful farce, "Une Capitulation," should have excited such boundless animosity, his notorious brochure "German art and German politics," in which ten times severer things are said of the French, passed so entirely unnoticed as not to be made the ground of any hostile demonstration against "Rienzi," which was produced soon after its publication. But then the French and Germans had not been at war, as they were when "Une Capitulation" was written. Not the least interesting part of the book is the preface, which contains a great many shrewd remarks on the present opposition to Wagner. He sums up the motives by which many of his fellow-countrymen are actuated, as the pseudo-patriotic, the commercial, and the motive of anxiety or dread of detection—adroitly drawing a parallel between the composers of to-day and the dramatists who would not listen to Shakespeare as interpreted by Henrietta Smithson. We close our account of M. Servières' excellent book with the following spirited passage:—"If French composers were to succeed in keeping in check the invasion of German music, they would stand alone in hindering that intellectual reciprocity which prevails now-a-days between the races of Europe. Is the merit of our savants lessened because they have profited by the chemical or physiological discoveries due to the investigations of English science? Are our painters less admired because the annual salon opens its doors to many Italian, Spanish, Swedish, or American artists who live in Paris?"

Choral March; Advance, Britannia! Composed for the Grand Colonial Procession in the Dome Entertainment of the Brighton Grammar School, by C. T. West.

Heather Bells. Two-part Song for ladies' voices. Words and music by Frank J. Sawyer, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Ye Spotted Snakes. Fairy Song and Lullaby, from Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." Composed by B. Lütgen.

[Novello, Ewer and Co. Brighton: J. and W. Chester.]

MR. WEST'S Choral March is in every respect excellently suited for its intended purpose. Easy to sing, extremely melodious, and unaffectedly harmonised, we can imagine that it will linger in the memory of the school-boys long after the occasion for which it was written has passed away. "Heather Bells" is a charming little Spring song, with a graceful arpeggio accompaniment. So unpretentious and attractive a composition can scarcely fail to find favour with vocalists who can appreciate simple melody and pure part-writing. It is difficult to avoid reminiscences of the many settings of "Ye spotted snakes"; but the composer of the one before us has not only accomplished this task, but has given a remarkably fresh and sympathetic colouring to Shakespeare's beautiful lines. Commencing with a placid and tuneful solo, the Lullaby is written in two parts, to be sung as a duet or chorus, the accompaniment being aided, when it can be procured, by the toy instrument in imitation of the nightingale. The song will, however, be almost equally effective with the trill upon the pianoforte.

The Song of Jubilee. A Thanksgiving Cantata, for solo voices, chorus, orchestra, and organ. By Jacob Bradford, Mus.D., Oxon. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE multiplication of musical pieces composed to celebrate the fiftieth year of her Majesty's reign may be accepted as a convincing proof of the acknowledged eloquence of the art to express the popular feeling; and it is gratifying to find amongst the names of those who have employed their talents in the cause so many long identified with music of the highest class. Our reviewing pages have for some time given ample evidence of this fact, and an addition to the list is now made by a Doctor of Music already known as the composer, not only of an oratorio, but of numerous cantatas, anthems, and other important works. The music of the Cantata before us is in every respect sympathetic with the subject it illustrates. Commencing with a soprano recitative, followed (after a short instrumental Introduction) by a Te Deum and Choral, to the tune "Gotha," composed by H.R.H. the late Prince Consort, we have a well written and melodious soprano solo "Grant the Queen a long life," the stately movement of which, in 6-4 rhythm, expresses the words with becoming dignity. In the chorus which succeeds this the National Anthem is effectively used, the theme being treated in fugue form, with some admirable contrapuntal writing. A brief choral recitative, for tenors and basses, is followed by a duet, for soprano and tenor, with quartet "The Queen shall rejoice," which may also be commended for the easy flow of the vocal parts; and the final chorus and fugue, "All praise and thanks to God," forms a worthy climax to a work which shows the result of good training, and an intimate knowledge of the best school of sacred composition. The Cantata is scored for a full orchestra, and a special organ part is used with the instrumental accompaniments.

Liederkreis. Twelve Songs. Poetry by J. von Eichendorff. With pianoforte accompaniment.

Woman's Love and Life. A Cycle of Songs. Written by A. von Chamisso; for voice and pianoforte. Edited and translated by Natalia Macfarren. Composed by Robert Schumann. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IN the year 1840 Schumann says, in a letter to a friend, "I am now writing nothing but songs, great and small. I can hardly tell you how delightful it is to write for the voice as compared with instrumental composition, and what a stir and tumult I feel within me when I sit down to it. I have brought forth quite new things in this line." This is the period when the charming vocal pieces contained in these volumes were composed, and all singers should welcome them as in the highest degree reflecting the individuality of their author. In the "Liederkreis" it would be difficult indeed to name any song which deserves to rank above its companions, so earnestly and lovingly has the composer set the many beautiful verses which he has evidently selected as representing his own state of feeling at the time. That we may especially linger over "The Loreley," "The silent one," "Moonlight," "Far from home," "Twilight," "In the wood," and "Night in Spring," is no proof that we do not derive exquisite pleasure from the many other perfect musical pieces comprised in the volume. The Cycle of Songs is indeed a little story, the subject of which is sufficiently indicated by its title. How the various phases of this passionate love-poem are illustrated by the composer need scarcely be enlarged upon, but we may say that a sympathetic pianist as well as a sympathetic vocalist are absolutely essential for the due rendering of these eloquent pieces. Lady Macfarren has shown much poetical and musical feeling in her translation of the words, which certainly have all the effect of being those which originally inspired the composer.

Through murm'rous leaves. On the land afar extending. German words by George Scheurlin.

Morning sweet Cuckoos greet. German words by A. von Wentzel.

True life to live. German words by Gries.

Trios for Female Voices. The English translation of the words by Dr. Troutbeck. Composed by G. Bartel. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ALL these Trios are highly favourable specimens of Mr. Bartel's power of writing clearly and melodiously for female voices. No. 1 is a well harmonised and attractive song, with some points of imitation which materially aid its effect; No. 2 is a tranquil and appropriate melody, flowing onward without break; No. 3, with an independent accompaniment, well expresses the words, the temptation to imitate the song of the cuckoo and quail, when these suggestive birds are mentioned, being happily resisted; and No. 4 is a well written and effective song, with an occasional alto solo. All these Trios may be conscientiously recommended to the attention of vocalists in search of novelty in this class of music.

Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Pianoforte Albums. Edited by Berthold Tours. Vol. 7. Compositions by Hermann Goetz. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WE are glad to find that the contents of these excellent Pianoforte Albums are not limited to those works which have already been stamped with public approval. The desire to create a taste for compositions but little known, as well as to supply those constantly in demand, should earn the thanks of all who would further the spread of good music; and we cordially welcome, therefore, this volume of pianoforte works by Goetz, who, although holding the highest rank as composer of "The Taming of the Shrew," the Symphony in F, and many other important works, has yet to make his way in this country as a pianoforte writer. Such charming Sketches as are to be found in this collection will, however, speedily effect this object. Nine of the pieces have the title "Lose Blätter," and six that of "Genrebilder." From the first of these groups we may select for special praise—No. 1, "Through Field and Forest"; No. 3, "Solitude"; No. 4, "Love's Jests," a most attractive, playful little trifle; No. 6, "Ye fleeting winds, whither, whither"? a highly dramatic composition in G minor; No. 7, "Sounds of Home," an expressive Andante in B major, with a vivacious movement in E flat minor; and No. 9, "Au Revoir." All those under the title "Genrebilder" have a poetical quotation at the commencement, the spirit of which is faithfully reflected in the music, Nos. 2, 4, and 6 being our particular favourites. Let it be thoroughly understood, however, that in going through the book, we have but named a few which most took our own fancy, and that, as all are so good, many persons might be equally struck with those which we have omitted. The volume is excellently got up, and will no doubt command an extensive sale.

Christ our Passover. Easter Anthem.
Peace on the Deep. Part-song.
Two Bards. Duet for tenor and baritone. By J. W. Parson Price. [New York: W. A. Pond and Co.]

JUDGING by the examples of church music by American composers which have reached us, the influence of the modern English school, which originated with Goss and Wesley, and has since made such enormous strides, is not as yet very much felt across the Atlantic. The services and anthems by native musicians are more in the style which prevailed two or three generations ago, that is to say, the period of Clarke-Whitfeld, Beckwith, and Jackson of Exeter. Mr. Price's setting of the Easter Canticle is made up of no fewer than twelve short sections or movements, consisting of plain-sailing diatonic phrases, decidedly insipid, but otherwise unobjectionable. The secular pieces are more varied and freer in manner, as if the composer deemed it necessary to repress his ideas when writing service music. Both pieces are prize compositions of the New York Eisteddfodau, and have English and Welsh words. The Part-song is very pretty in its unpretending way, and the close, where the bass descends by easy stages to D below the staff, is quite unconventional. The words of the duet are intensely patriotic, and the music is bold, spirited, and tuneful. One can scarcely realise that it proceeded from the same pen as the mild and watery Easter Anthem.

The Modern Violin Method. By J. S. Liddle. [Alphonse Cary.]

THE author of this full sized volume declares that it owes its existence to the fact of the rapidly increasing study of the violin. Its distinctive features are—"(1) Commencement in the easiest position of all—the third; (2) exposition of theoretical matters, especially playing by interval at a sufficiently early stage; (3) fairly equal use of all the keys, as all are equal in point of importance and difficulty." He adds that it is surprising that nothing has as yet been done to dispel the illusion that some keys in themselves are easy and some difficult. This "illusion" is certainly widespread, and in spite of Mr. Liddle it will probably continue to exist. The author does not pre-suppose any knowledge of the rudiments of music on the part of those he addresses, but he proceeds with theory and practice simultaneously. This method has its advantages, as the violin is now so much placed in the hands of young children. The exercises are in all keys, and the directions concerning the method of playing them are so copious, that if it were possible to learn the instrument without a teacher, Mr. Liddle's book might be recommended for the purpose. The author, however, makes no pretence in this matter, and in effect discourages the idea, for the whole of the studies are written as duets, presumably for master and pupil. There is no special reason why this "Violin Method" should supersede other favourite Tutors, but it may take a recognised place among them.

The Musician. A Guide for Pianoforte Students. By Ridley Prentice. [W. Swan-Sonnenschein and Co.]

WE have purposely avoided passing judgment upon this work as the parts were from time to time forwarded for notice; but now that the Six Grades, completing the design of the publication, are before us, we can conscientiously say that the author has thoroughly fulfilled his object, which, as stated in the preface, was to place in the hands of a pupil "a Guide and Companion during his course of study, helping him to understand music better, and consequently to enjoy it more." We could not here give a list of all the pieces analysed, but may say that the selection includes most of the popular works of the classical writers, as well as many which ought to be better known. "When we read a book," Mr. Prentice truly remarks, "we do not consciously read the letters separately and afterwards form them into words; we seem to see at a glance not merely the words, but the sentences into which they group themselves. Just so in reading music our aim must be to gain the power not only of knowing what the parts are, but of seeing and understanding at once the chords, which are the words of music, and the phrases and periods, which are the sentences of music." The Grades are exceedingly well arranged, the compositions analysed growing in difficulty with the pupil's capacity to comprehend them; and the explanations are so simple that any intelligent child can understand the plan of each piece, and how this plan is worked out, thus realising Schumann's often quoted direction to students—"You must not be content until you succeed in reading music without playing it."

Voice, Song, and Speech. A Practical Guide for Singers and Speakers. By Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S., and Emil Behnke. [Sampson Low, Marston, Searle and Rivington.]

THIS, the sixth (popular) edition of one of the most useful books on the voice ever published, will doubtless secure an extensive sale. In 1884 we drew attention to the merits of the work, and have now only to say that the contents of its issue in a popular form are precisely the same as before, except that the photographs of the vocal organs are omitted. We may mention that the "Voice Training Exercises," founded on the teachings of the volume before us, have now reached the 25th thousand, a convincing proof that the doctrines advocated in the work are universally approved, both by the profession and the public.

Sonata in E flat. For the Pianoforte. By Wm. Arthur Blakeley. [Weekes and Co.]

MR. BLAKELEY shows us throughout this Sonata that he can write correctly, and occasionally effectively; but the semiquaver passages for both hands with which he commences, mixed with fragments of what we imagine to be the second subject, make up one of the most remarkable specimens of a first movement we have ever seen. The "Andante Cantabile," although somewhat conventional, is pleasing and melodious; but the likeness of the last movement to Weber's well known Rondo "La Gaieté" is not even disguised by being composed in another key—a want of resemblance which we once heard a student assign as a proof that his piece could not have been copied from one almost note for note what he had written.

In our Boat. Trio for female voices. Words by the author of "John Halifax." Music by Frederic H. Cowen. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ANYTHING more simply charming than this Trio can scarcely be imagined. Both melody and accompaniment have that refinement, and are instinct with that artistic feeling, which distinguish even the most unpretentious of this popular composer's works. Of its speedy popularity there can be no doubt, as it is easy to sing, and cannot fail to delight the most impassive listener.

The Lord is great. Anthem. By S. Sydney Smith. [J. Curwen and Sons.]

STUDIOUSLY simple, this anthem is nevertheless bright and pleasing. It opens with a broad and vigorous chorus, after which there is a duet for tenor and bass, well contrasted in style; and another chorus, with a well-written fugato, brings the composition to an effective conclusion.

FOREIGN NOTES.

AFTER repeated postponements, chiefly dictated by political considerations, M. Lamoureux's version of "Lohengrin" was produced at the Eden Theatre of Paris on the 3rd ult., before a crowded audience, consisting, for the greater part, of those already acquainted with the musical portion of Wagner's chef d'œuvre, and prepared to give it an enthusiastic reception. There was, in fact, no opposition offered to any part of the performance inside the house, the disturbing element, such as it was, being strictly confined to the exterior thereof and the street adjoining it. The performance is admitted on all sides to have been a model one, the orchestra, especially in the important brass effects of the score, being exceptionally fine, and the choruses leaving nothing to be desired. M. Lamoureux, with characteristic thoroughness, gave the opera in its entirety—i.e., without any of the cuts in vogue at even some of the leading opera houses of Germany. The following were the principal artists engaged in this memorable representation:—Mesdames Fidés Devries (Elsa) and Duvivier (Ortrud); MM. Van Dyck (Lohengrin) and Blauwaert (Telramund). The French version of the text had been furnished by M. Charles Nuitter, to whom Frenchmen also owe a translation of the book of "Tannhäuser." The critical voices in the Paris press have been, on the whole, favourable to the performance, and fairly impartial in their estimate of the work itself. There is no need here to quote their remarks upon a subject upon which the rest of the world have long since been agreed. We may, however, be permitted to extract a few characteristic passages by which Le Monde Artiste has improved the occasion. "L'Ecole Française," says the journal referred to in its leading article upon "Lohengrin," "is now the first, nay, we may say, the only one in the world. Italy, it is true, has her Verdi, and then? . . . . Germany has no one since the death of Wagner. As for ourselves, is it needful to enumerate our living masters, from Gounod and Thomas, down to the youngest generation of them? At what other period has a single country had to offer so many musicians of the first order? French works occupy at present, even in Germany, the first position; our artists are everywhere most flatteringly received. Musical France, in short, is queen of the nations." The writer having thus established his premises to his own satisfaction, the article proceeds with the review of the work of the last of Teutonic composers so designated. In consequence of the disturbances above alluded to, "Lohengrin" having been publicly performed only once, has been withdrawn from the boards of the Eden Theatre, to the sincere regret of a majority of French amateurs, and to the serious pecuniary detriment, be it added also, of M. Lamoureux, the spirited organiser of a truly artistic undertaking. We cannot do better than conclude these remarks by a translation of the letter addressed by M. Lamoureux to the French journals on this subject, which, as illustrating most clearly the circumstances of the case, and reflecting much honour upon the zealous Conductor himself, certainly deserves to be here recorded. Its tenour is as follows:—"I have the honour to inform you that I definitely renounce my attempt to bring out 'Lohengrin' at the Eden Theatre. I will not say what I think of the manifestations against it after the reception which the press and public have given to a work that, in the interests of art, I caused at my own risk to be produced on a French stage. It is for reasons of a superior order that I abstain. I have the consciousness of having altogether acted as an artist, and feel certain that I shall meet the approval of all honest people."

We hear from Paris that M. Altés, the Conductor of the Grand Opéra, has resigned his post, and that Signor Vianesi will probably be his successor.

A very successful performance of Gounod's sacred trilogy "Mors et Vita" is reported to us from Geneva. The executants were the members of the Société de Chant Sacré, and the Journal de Genève has nothing but praise to bestow both upon the work itself and its execution on this occasion.

The remains of Rossini, which had been removed from their original resting place at the Père La Chaise Cemetery, of Paris, on April 30, to be transferred to Florence, were re-interred, on the 3rd ult., in the Church of Santa Croce of that city, amidst appropriate ceremonies. There were present deputations from about a hundred associations representing Italy and other countries. The streets through which the procession passed were strewn with flowers, while flags and drapery were hung from the windows. A choir of 600 performers awaited the remains on the steps of the church, and sang the prayer from "Mosé," after which the coffin, which was covered with flowers, was lowered into the tomb. A commemorative performance on a grand scale of the immortal master's "Stabat Mater" was held at the Palazzo Vecchio, in the presence of a most distinguished audience, including the directors of all the conservatories of Italy.

A hitherto unknown Concert Aria by Beethoven has just been discovered by Professor Ferdinand Bischoff, in the archives of the Musical Association of Graz, being a copy made from the original of the composer by a deceased musician of note, named Steiermark. The good-sized volume bears the inscription: "Rondo, primo Amore, Aria amor piacer del ciel, per il Soprano composta dal L. v. Beethoven," and the accompaniment is scored for two violins, viola, flute, two oboes, two bassoons, two A horns, violoncello, and double bass. The aria, which probably emanates from the master's best period, is mentioned by Thayer, the Beethoven biographer, who, however, was only acquainted with a few initial bars of the now revealed composition. Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, will, it is said, undertake the publication.

A posthumous comic opera, by Flotow, entitled "Die Musikanten," in which the youthful Mozart is the hero (the libretto from the pen of Richard Genée), will shortly be produced for the first time at the Hof-Theater of Mannheim.

It is stated in German papers that Herr Angelo Neumann (the well-known whilom impresario of the self-styled Wagner-Theater) has recently obtained, at a Berlin antiquarian bookshop, the original score of a posthumous opera by Lortzing entitled "Mozart," which has never been engraved, and is, in fact, quite unknown.

At the Josephstadt Theatre of Vienna, last month, a three-act operetta, or "biographical picture," entitled "Joseph Haydn," was brought out with much success. The libretto (from the pen of F. von Radler) deals with some leading episodes in the composer's career—his early wooing and subsequent domestic infelicity, his artist life as "chamber-virtuoso" to Prince Esterhazy at Eisenach, and, finally, the honoured old age of the world-famed master. The music to the piece is by Herr Suppé, who has largely availed himself of motivi from Haydn's works, the last movement of the well-known "Farewell" Symphony being introduced on the stage as a touchingly humorous conclusion of the second act. The performance is said to have been excellent, and the interesting novelty is likely to have a long run.

Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's Operetta "Patience" was produced for the first time at Berlin on April 30, at the Krollsche Theater, by the same company which so successfully introduced the same author's "Mikado" to the German capital last season. The large audience which crowded the theatre in every part gave the most cordial reception to this peculiarly English piece; almost all the songs had to be repeated, so that the performance lasted more than three hours. On the other hand, there is less unanimity in the critical opinions of the press organs of the fatherland, some of whom are distinctly adverse to the work, both as regards the book and the musical treatment thereof, while others are as lavish in their praise, more especially of the latter. Thus, in a remarkable article devoted to the subject in the Kölnische Zeitung, the writer says, inter alia: "There is much in the music which is characteristic of the home of the composer, and besides many other parts, some of the choruses alone would ensure Sir Arthur Sullivan a place among the very first of our composers. . . . The chorus . . . is beyond all praise, and its treatment in an English operetta, which we hailed for the first time in 'The Mikado,' arouses even greater admiration in 'Patience,' and is a perfect revelation to us." And much more to an equally laudatory effect.

Goldmark's new opera "Merlin" met with a highly favourable reception upon its recent first performance at the Dresden Hof-Theater.

Max Bruch's Opera "Loreley," with some alterations both in the score and the libretto, will be produced in the coming autumn at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater.

Another Opera founded upon Goethe's "Faust," and bearing that title, the music composed by Herr Heinrich Zöllner, is to be first brought out in October next at the Munich Hof-Theater, where the première is looked forward to with some interest.

A street in Weimar, formerly known as Süd-Strasse, has been re-named Liszt-Strasse, in honour of the deceased pianist-composer.

The first Finnish Opera, composed by the septuagenarian Professor Friedrich Pacius, has just been produced, with extraordinary success, at the Alexander Theatre of Helsingfors.

The operatic season at the De la Monnaie Theatre of Brussels closed last month with the twenty-third performance of "Die Walküre," before a numerous audience. The unequivocal success which attended the performance of both "Die Meistersinger" and "Die Walküre" has encouraged the directors to bring out the third part of the Nibelungen tetralogy—viz., "Siegfried"—during next season.

The new opera house at Odessa, which is being built at an estimated expense of some £200,000, and which is described as one of the finest in existence, will, it is hoped, be inaugurated during the coming winter season.

The sum of 50,000 roubles has already been subscribed towards the realisation of Anton Rubinstein's recently propounded scheme of a Russian National Opera, to be founded at St. Petersburg.

We read in the Athenæum: "Under the title 'La Théorie de Rameau sur la Musique,' Mr. Charles Henry has published a pamphlet (Paris: Hermann), giving within a few pages a very clear account of Rameau's system of harmony. Students are aware that the old French composer was the first to endeavour to apply practically the theory of harmonics, and to deduce from these the construction of scales and the relationship of keys; and though many of his ideas are now out of date, the examination of his theory is of great interest to the musical historian."

The Paris Opéra Comique, the historical home, since the days of Boieldieu and Auber, of national French comic opera, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 25th ult. The conflagration broke out during a performance of Ambroise Thomas's opera "Mignon," and, bursting suddenly upon the audience, it is feared that during the panic which ensued a number of lives may have been lost. Up to the time of our going to press no further particulars have, however, come to hand.

The fastidious paragraph announcing the death, "dans un accés de fièvre chaude," of M. Maurice Kufferath, of Brussels, published some weeks ago in Le Ménestrel, having not unnaturally misled several of our contemporaries, we are glad to be able to state that the worthy contributor to Le Guide Musical continues in the enjoyment of excellent health. Nor is the vigour of his pen, which happens to be antagonistic to the art principles represented by the above leading musical journal of France, at all likely to be impaired by a practical joke indulged at his expense, and dictated, to say the least of it, by very questionable taste.

Death has been unusually busy in the ranks of musicians and others connected with the art during the last few weeks. We record the following among the more noteworthy instances:—On April 21, at Munich, Ludwig Mayer, an esteemed professor at the Royal Musikschule at that town. On April 28, at Weimar, the Baron August von Loën, General Intendant of the Hof-Theater, and successor of Franz Liszt in the honorary chairmanship of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikverein, aged fifty-nine. On April 29, at Danzig, Friedrich Wilhelm Markull, pupil of Schneider at Dessau, a composer of numerous choral works and a skilful organist, aged seventy-one. On the 1st ult., at Wiesbaden, Ferdinand Möhring, a composer of merit, chiefly known by his excellent male quartets, aged seventy-one. At Asnières, near Paris, last month, Costard de Mezeray, since the year 1843 the highly meritorious Conductor of the Bordeaux Opera, aged seventy-six.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"ON MELODY IN SPEECH."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The letter on "Melody in Speech," signed F.R.C., is so interesting that I am tempted to forward you, by way of an appendix to it, the following extracts from my note book, reproduced as nearly as possible in the keys used.

Residents in Hammersmith will readily recognise the following—and Londoners generally will be familiar with the well-known—

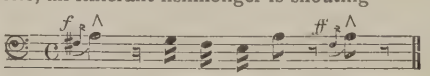
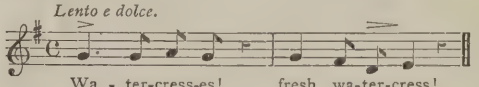
and—

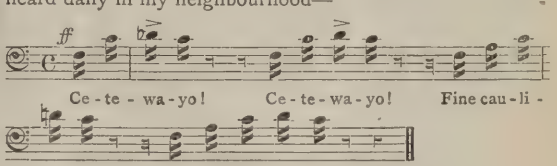
As I write, an itinerant fishmonger is shouting—



Here is a charming cry, which I heard some years ago in a small country town. Lovers of Gregorian tones will no doubt appreciate it—



But by far the most amusing street call I have noted was that of a costermonger who, a short time since, could be heard daily in my neighbourhood—



The "Cetewayo" was most successful, and attracted notice at once. This subject was not unfrequently answered by his donkey somewhat as follows—

Yours faithfully,

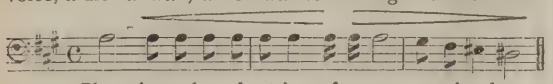
EDMUND ROGERS.

58, The Grove, Hammersmith, W.

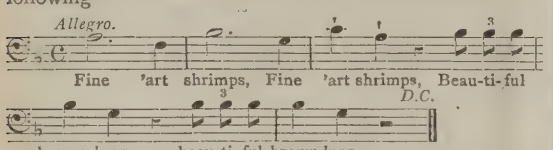
ON MELODY IN SPEECH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—As I have lived all my life in London, and in a neighbourhood, too, where itinerant vendors most do congregate, I have had many opportunities of studying the musical efforts of such people. As a rule, they always use vocal inflexions and intervals of some kind, producing variations of sound which may form a melody or, what is more often the case, something little better than discordant noise. I remember a mendicant who used to stump along on crutches, crying out, with a strong nasal twang in his voice, a dismal wail, which was something like this:—



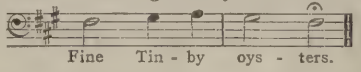
Such an example can only be rightly imitated on a violin where "quarter tones" can be sounded. The pathetic inflexions on the last three words were wonderful! I fear the cries of the ordinary costers of the present day would be more accurately described as noisy shouting rather than anything else. But, as your correspondent F.R.C. points out, we do now and then hear something worthy of attention, some fragment of melody which lives in our recollection, and makes us wonder how the poor, uneducated singer acquired it. Some years ago I regularly heard, every Sunday during a long period, a man melodiously declaiming the merits of certain shrimps. There were no inflexions, no quarter tones, but firm and true diatonic intervals. He carried a basket on his head and walked rapidly, keeping time with his footsteps to the following—



The second word is a favourite coster's adjective indicating "good condition," which I need not explain further now. I think the above are respectively the most painful and the most melodious examples of their kind that I have ever heard; but as I do not want to overburden your columns I forbear further comment upon them. The study of London cries, from a musical point of view, is an interesting subject, and though I fear that I have not brought any new light to bear upon it, yet the instances I have given may perhaps be of interest. Chas. Hine.

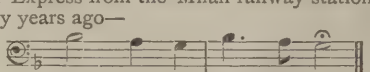
TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—May I take leave, as a pendant to the very interesting letter of F.R.C. in your last issue upon musical street cries, to note the two following, both curiously suggesting old ecclesiastical chants. The first I remember when a boy at Clifton, some fifty years ago, to have often lain awake and heard, sounding weirdly on winter evenings:—



Whether the second word meant "Tenby," and whether there were then oysterbeds at that watering-place, I do not know, but the cry remains impressed as strongly on my memory as if I had heard it yesterday.

The other, an announcement of the departure of the Southern Express from the Milan railway station, I heard also many years ago—



It began as here written, and was taken up and repeated in two or three different keys by porters of different registers of voice. Whether the chant is a regular railway tradition still handed down I cannot tell. I have passed the station several times since, but never chanced to hear it again.

Your obedient Servant,

May 13, 1887. An Ancient.

BEETHOVEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Allow me, in justice to the memory of this great composer, to enter a protest against the liberties taken very often with his music and fair fame by speculative music publishers, both here and abroad. Some of these wide-awake persons seem to stick at nothing calculated to impede the onward march of the main chance. Only this morning I received by post a copy of a cheap musical publication, on the front page of which is printed an "Impromptu, composed at the dinner table, by Beethoven." The same unconsidered trifle had already done duty as the "Dernière Pensée Musicale" of Beethoven, both in solo and duet dress. The true history of the piece is simply this: It appeared originally as a musical supplement to the issue of the Berliner Musikalische Zeitung (now lying before me) of December 8, 1824, with this subscription—"Auf Aufforderung geschrieben, Nachmittags am 14ten August, 1818, von Beethoven." How the ingenious editor of the aforesaid cheap musical publication has contrived to construe "Nachmittags" into "at a dinner table," and another equally ingenious editor the year 1818 (nine years before Beethoven's death) into the period of the Maestro's "dernière pensée musicale," others must determine; but I must protest against a vandalism which is as ruthless as it is remarkable.—Yours, &c. John Towers.

182, Oxford Street, Manchester, May 19, 1887.

A QUESTION OF AUTHORSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—With regard to Mr. Padel's letter, "A Question of Authorship," concerning a Mazurka published likewise under the name of F. Chopin and that of Charles Mayer, it may be remarked that the Musical Record, July 1, 1882, contains an exhaustive explanation of the whole matter. The Mazurka "Souvenir de la Pologne" is by Charles Mayer (Op. 112), and was published by Pietro Mechetti (later C. A. Spina), Vienna. It had never anything to do with Chopin. The same will somewhat later be found to be the case with a Valse in E minor (posthumous Valse), which, although written in Chopin's style, bears many traces of belonging either to Chopin's compatriot, Edward Wolff, or again to Charles Mayer, who possessed the talent to write in the style of John Field, Hummel, Chopin, and others. The fact of Benedict having looked over the proofs of a reprint goes for nothing.

May 18, 1887. E. P.

"R.A.M." and "R.C.M."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I notice advertisements of singers in your valuable paper with the initials "R.A.M." and "R.C.M." after their names, and wish to know what is signified thereby. Will you, or any of your readers, kindly tell me if these letters represent legitimate diplomas, recognised by the authorities of the two great institutions, and, if so, what examination has to be passed in order to acquire the right use of them? I am, Sir,

Yours obediently,

May 14, 1887. Anxious.

BRISTOL MADRIGAL SOCIETY'S PRIZE COMPETITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Among the Compositions sent in for competition for the three prizes offered by the Bristol Madrigal Society, in 1866, were some two or three which, though they did not obtain prizes, were much admired by the Members of the Society; one in particular, entitled "Golden slumbers kiss your eyes," in the key of A major. Should the composer of this be among the number of your readers, I should be extremely obliged if he would allow me the use of his score; the parts are copied into the Society's books, but we cannot sing this "Lullaby," as I have no score of it.

D. W. Rootham,

Conductor of the Bristol Madrigal Society.

6, Ashgrove Road, Redland, Bristol.

May 7, 1887.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

JOHN TAMWORTH.—1. John Amott was Organist of Gloucester Cathedral from 1832 to 1865. 2. The Organist always conducted the Festival of the Three Choirs. 3. Probably twelve men and twenty boys.

REX, BIRMINGHAM.—In accompanying hymn tunes it is usual to play the bass on the pedals, but an experienced organist frequently finds occasion for allowing the pedals to be silent in order to re-introduce them with special effect. The pedal part should be played as written when the composer or arranger has given it a separate stave. The first example is decidedly not good. The second is quite correct. The pedal bass should always be grammatical and consistent with the harmonies. Of course performers on organs, with a limited compass of pedals, an octave, for instance, were obliged to exercise their ingenuity, and could not be held responsible for faulty progressions, any more than a man could be blamed for eating with a knife if he had no fork at his disposal.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—The annual meeting of the Tonic Sol-fa Institute of Aberdeen was held in the Music Hall Buildings, on Tuesday evening, April 26. It was reported that the members of the Society had increased during last year from 168 to 220, and that the accounts showed a surplus of £109 6s. 11d., a result due to a legacy of £150 bequeathed by the late Mrs. Marr, Cliff House, Cults. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the members on the prosperous state of the Institute. Mr. Litster (Conductor), in addressing the meeting, remarked that the Institute had now been eleven years in existence, and that its history (which he expressed his intention of writing) would form a very interesting episode in the life of musical associations in Aberdeen.——The Aberdeen centre local examinations in music, in connection with Trinity College, have been arranged to take place in the Girls' High School, Aberdeen, on the 10th inst. About thirty pupils, representing the junior and senior divisions, are expected to come forward. For the greater encouragement of candidates a local prize fund has been started, and prizes in the form of gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded to the most successful candidates in each of the subjects.——The Madrigal Choir, under Mr. John Kirby, gave a Concert, in the Music Hall Buildings, on Saturday evening, the 7th ult., in the presence of a large audience. Amongst the pieces sung were Webbe's glee "When winds breathe soft" and Festa's "Down in a flow'ry vale." The soloists were Misses Grassick, Machray, and Duffus; Messrs. James Smith, James Davidson, Lorimer, and Esslemont, all of whom were warmly applauded. Leslie's part-song "Homeward" brought the Concert to an effective termination.——On the same afternoon a performance of sacred music was given in St. Mary's Cathedral, in aid of the Jubilee Fund of the Royal Infirmary. There was a large attendance. The first part of the programme was devoted to Haydn's Imperial Mass, the effect of which was much enhanced by the beautiful and suggestive surroundings in the Cathedral. Three solos—viz., "Unto Thee, O Lord" (Costa), by Miss Raeburn; "I know that my Redeemer liveth," by Miss Norah Thomson; and "Why do the nations," by Mr. James Keenan (Conductor), with a chorus and Te Deum (Dr. Reid) completed the programme. Interspersed were organ solos by Mr. John Hall, of Dundee, which were much admired.——A large audience assembled in the Music Hall, on Saturday evening, the 21st ult., on the occasion of a Concert by Mr. Hay's Select Choir. The programme was well rendered, showing that Mr. Hay is a Conductor of a high order. Miss Duthie, Miss Anderson, Miss Cameron, Miss Clark, Mr. Moir, Mr. Ross, and Mr. Cameron contributed solos, and Miss Hadden accompanied.

ABERFELDY, N.B.—The Choral Union gave a successful performance of Romberg's Lay of the Bell, on April 29, under the direction of Mr. Jesse Timson.

ASHBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.—The crowded attendance at the Town Hall, on Wednesday, the 4th ult., proved that the establishment of an Orchestral Society in Ashbourne is appreciated by the musical public. Great credit is due to the Conductor, Mr. W. H. Tutt, Mus. Bac., for his efforts to reach a high standard of performance, and the rendering of all the pieces by the band testified to the care with which they had been prepared. The programme comprised Overtures Prometheus (Beethoven) and Rosamunde (Schubert), the "Military" Symphony of Haydn, Mendelssohn's "War March" from Athalie, a clever and well scored "Air with variations" by the Conductor, and Mozart's Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra, in F (No. 19), played by Mr. Windeyer Clark, who introduced his own cadenzas. Mr. Kenningham was the vocalist, and materially added to the success of the Concert by his artistic rendering of modern songs and old ballads. Mr. John Peck, of Sheffield, the leader of the orchestra, played De Bériot's "Scène de ballet," and in response to a unanimous recall, delighted the audience by performing Spohr's Barcarole in G. A noteworthy feature of the Concert was a well written analytical and historical programme.

AYLSHAM.—The members of the Musical Society gave two evening Concerts in the Town Hall, on April 26 and 27. The first Concert was miscellaneous, and at the second Anderton's John Gilpin, with a selection of secular music, was performed with great success. The principal artists were Miss Blanche Atkinson, Miss Meredyth Elliott, Mr. Holberry Hagyard and Mr. J. H. Brooksbank, vocalists; Miss Blanche Atkinson, solo violin; and accompanists, Mrs. Prangley, pianoforte, and Mr. Walter Lain (Organist of St. Stephen's, Norwich), harmonium. The Rev. R. E. Gaye, Rector of Skeyton, was the Conductor. A chorus, composed by him expressly for the Society, Through Flood and Field, a very bright and spirited composition, was well received and redemanded.

BASINGSTOKE.—The second Concert of the Mechanics' Institute Choral Society was given on Thursday, April 28, and proved a great success. A. R. Gaul's Sacred Cantata The Holy City and a miscellaneous selection were performed, the principal vocalists being Miss Blanche Powell, Miss Marion Ellis, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. B. H. Grove. Mr. C. S. Macpherson presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. H. E. Powell conducted.

BERWICK-ON-TWEED.—On Tuesday, April 26, the Choral Union gave its annual Concert in the Corn Exchange, the works performed being Mendelssohn's Lobgesang and Handel's Acis and Galatea. The choir, numbering about ninety voices, gave an excellent rendering of the choral music, and the principal singers, Miss Sneath, Mr. Macdonald, and Mr. Nutton, were highly efficient in all the solos allotted to them. A small band played the overtures and accompaniments in excellent style. Miss Barker presided at the organ, and Mr. Barker was Conductor.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Mr. Duncan Hume gave an excellent performance of Mackenzie's Story of Sayid, on the 12th ult. The vocalists were Mrs. Newling, Mr. M. E. Townsend, and Mr. William Bradford. The solo "Where sets the sun," the song for Ilmas, the Funeral March, and the Invocation to Vishnu created a great sensation The singing of the chorus throughout was very fine and dramatic. Mr. Hume conducted with much vigour and judgment.

BRISTOL.—A performance of Mr. Ebenezer Prout's Cantata Alfred was given at the Colston Hall, by the St. Andrew's, Montpelier, Musical Society, on April 26. The solos were sung by Mrs. Probert Goodwin, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. W. Thomas. The accompaniments were efficiently given on the piano and harmonium by Mrs. Brockbank Young and Mr. Wallace Greenham. The second part of the Concert was a miscellaneous selection, in which solos were given by Mrs. Rosa Bailey, Mr. S. Boyce Creak, and Mr. J. Brindley (flute). Mr. A. Brookes, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Andrew's Parish Church, conducted.

CAMBRIDGE.—An evening Concert was given at the Corn Exchange on Thursday, April 28, under the conductorship of Mr. A. D. Holloway. The solo vocalists were Miss Paget, Miss Fusselle, Mr. H. Wadsworth, and Mr. Frank May; Miss A. Holloway, solo violin. Master Holloway contributed a pianoforte solo, and the Misses Holloway were highly successful in the duet for two pianos, Weber's Polacca in E, arranged by Liszt. The programme was miscellaneous, and included selections by the band, and choruses, well sung by children. The accompanists were Mrs. and Miss Holloway.

CANTERBURY.—Mozart's Twelfth Mass and Gade's Crusaders were well rendered by the members of the Philharmonic Society, on the 5th ult., at the Music Hall. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, Master Hudson, Mr. Charles Kenningham, and Mr. Thomas Kempton. Mr. C. M. Gunn led the band, Mr. H. Fricker presided at the harmonium, and Dr. Longhurst conducted.

CARNARVON.—A performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul was given on the 5th ult. by the Choral Society. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, A.R.A.M., Miss Annie Hope, Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys, and Mr. Lucas Williams. The choir numbered 176 voices; leader of orchestra, Mr. J. W. Collinson; Conductor, Mr. J. Williams, Organist, Christ Church.

CHELTENHAM.—An excellent Concert was given, on the 4th ult., by Mr. J. A. Matthews' Choral and Orchestral Society, on behalf of the Great Western Railway Servants' Widows' and Orphans' Fund. The soloists were Miss Julia Jones, Mrs. Daubeney, Mr. D'Arcy Ferris, Mr. W. S. Brown, Mr. T. Brandon, and several members of the Society. The choral numbers were excellently rendered, and much appreciated by the vast audience. The instrumental soloists were Mr. A. von Holst, piano; Mr. J. E. Teague, violin; and Mr. J. A. Matthews, harmonium. The accompaniments were shared by the former gentlemen, Mr. G. A. West, and Mr. J. Sebastian Matthews. A resolution was passed by the Concert Committee of the Fund thanking Mr. Matthews and the members of his Choral Society for their help, and stating that the amount of £71 7s. 3d. (being the net profit of the Concert) had been paid to the funds.——Mr. August Lortzing's Ladies' Choir gave an "At Home" on Monday, the 10th ult., at the Montpellier Rotunda. Wilfred Bendall's Lady of Shalott and several part-songs were successfully performed, and Mr. Lortzing gave a very refined rendering of "The Message," which was much applauded. There was a large attendance.——Mr. J. A. Matthews' Choral and Orchestral Society are making important preparations for a Musical Festival, to be held in the Winter Gardens, on October 24, 25, and 26. The following artists are already engaged:—Madame Nordica, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Julia Jones, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. Holberry-Hagyard, Mr. Robert Grice, and Mr. Watkin Mills. The band will be selected from the principal provincial orchestras, with several London performers. The Elijah and Sir Arthur Sullivan's Golden Legend will form portions of the programme.

CHEPSTOW.—On April 27 an Organ Recital and Service of Praise were given in the Parish Church. The choir was supplemented by members of the congregation, numbering about seventy voices. The programme included selections from The Messiah and the Anthem "What are these" (Stainer), which were effectively rendered. Mr. A. E. Kingsford, the Organist, played the Andante movement from Mozart's Organ Fantasia in F minor; during the Offertory, "Festive March" (Smart), and as a concluding Voluntary "The March of the Israelites" (Costa).

CLEVEDON.—The usual spring Concert was given at the Public Hall, by the members of the Choral Society, on the 17th ult. The works chosen for performance were "Spring" and "Summer," from Haydn's Seasons, and The Revenge (Villiers Stanford). The last was rather a bold undertaking for a small Society, but the result fully justified the attempt. Mr. Haydn Cox, L.R.A.M., of Bristol, conducted.

COVENTRY.—The Bablake Boys' annual Concert was given in the Corn Exchange on April 29. The programme was headed "An Evening with Longfellow," and the principal feature of it was Henry Lahee's setting of The Building of the Ship. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Sharpe, Mr. Mason, and Mr. F. H. Smith, the choir, numbering about sixty, consisting chiefly of old and present scholars. After a miscellaneous first part, in which the efforts of the vocalists were much applauded, the Mayor (Alderman Tomson) distributed the prizes, Lahee's Cantata occupying the whole of the second part. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Hanson on the pianoforte and Mrs. Sharpe on the American organ; Mr. Humberstone, to whose excellent training of the choir much of the success of the Concert was due, conducting with care and judgment.——A very fine performance of The Messiah was given by the members of the Musical Society, in the newly restored Church of St. Michael's, on the 2nd ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Probert, and Mr. Sunman. The trumpet obbligato was well played by Mr. Johnson; Mr. C. Harford Lloyd presided at the organ, and Mr. A. H. Brewer conducted.

DARLINGTON.—On Wednesday, the 4th ult., a Violin Recital was given in the Mechanics' Hall by Mr. Heinrich Dittmar, assisted by Miss Buckle, solo pianist, and Master T. Blackett, violinist. The programme was calculated to test Mr. Dittmar's powers to the utmost, but he proved himself more than equal to the task. Bach's Chaconne, for violin alone, was finely rendered, but the audience seemed most to appreciate a Muzurka by Zarzyki, which, with a Fantaisie Caprice by Vieuxtemps, gave the performer an opportunity of displaying his excellent staccato bowing. Master Blackett and Miss Buckle also played with much taste and brilliancy. Mr. T. Henderson made a judicious accompanist.

DOVER.—An excellent performance of Mozart's Twelfth Mass and Smart's Cantata The Bride of Dunkerron was given by the Harmonic Society, in the Town Hall, on the 12th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Norman, A.R.A.M., Mrs. Massey, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Frank May. The orchestra was led by Mr. Cecil Gann, Mr. Albert Hill, honorary secretary, accompanied, and Mr. J. W. Howells conducted.

EASTBOURNE.—On the 8th ult., at St. Anne's Church, a series of twenty-five Organ Recitals was commenced by Mr. Frederick Winkley, A.C.O., the Organist of the Church. Each Recital consists of a selection from the works of one composer. Those at present given comprise Corelli, Bach, and Handel.——A Ballad Concert was given at the Town Hall, by Mrs. Herbert Mundy, on the 11th ult., when the following artists appeared:—Miss Kate Flinn, Miss Meredyth Elliot, Mr. Percy Palmer, and Mr. Albert Rayment (vocalists); Miss Clara Fisher, R.A.M. (violin), and Mrs. Herbert Mundy (piano).

ENNISKILLEN.—A new organ was opened in Irvinestown Church, on the 8th ult., by Mr. Charles Haydn Arnold. A Football Club Concert was given in the Town Hall, on the 13th ult. Mr. Matthew Arnold conducted.

GREENOCK.—Mr. D. Middleton, Organist of the Mid Parish Church, with the assistance of the choir and friends, gave a Musical Recital in the church on Monday evening, the 15th ult., in aid of the church repairs fund. There was a fair attendance. The organ solos, which included selections from the works of Mozart, Rossini, Molique, and arrangements by Mr. Middleton of the Allegretto from Haydn's Symphony in G, and Berceuse (Delbruck), were very cleverly rendered. A performance of Frost's March in G, by a pupil of the organist, was very cordially appreciated by the audience, as were a number of vocal pieces rendered by pupils and friends.

HAILSHAM.—On the 11th ult., the Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. S. G. R. Coles, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., gave an excellent rendering of Haydn's Spring at the Corn Exchange. The solos were taken by local amateurs, who acquitted themselves thoroughly well, and the choruses were rendered in a very praiseworthy manner. A small but well balanced orchestra lent valuable assistance in the overture and accompaniments. The second part consisted of a miscellaneous selection of vocal and instrumental solos, part-songs, &c.

HARROGATE.—St. Paul was performed by the Philharmonic Society before a crowded audience, on the 17th ult. The band and chorus of 150 performers rendered the work most effectively under the Conductor, Mr. John Shaw. The principal artists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Miss Metcalfe, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. A. McCall, who were thoroughly efficient. Mr. A. Benson presided at the organ, and Mr. Bowling, of Mr. Hallé's orchestra, led the band.

HULL.—The third and last Concert of the Vocal Society for the present season was given on April 28, in the Public Rooms, Jarratt Street. The National Anthem, which opened the programme, was followed by Barnett's Cantata Paradise and the Peri, the solo parts by Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss E. Dones, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Oswald. The choruses were excellently sung, and in every respect the work received a thoroughly satisfactory rendering. In the second part Dr. Stainer's Madrigal "The Triumph of Victoria" was a prominent feature, the singing of the well-trained choir again being heard to much advantage. Mr. G. F. Jackman, to whom the Society is largely indebted for its present high position, conducted with his usual skill and care.

HUNTINGDON.—At a meeting of the Hunts Church Association of School Managers and Teachers, held in the Higher Grade School, Princes Street, on April 30, a Lecture on Gregorian music was given by the Rev. J. W. Doran. The lecturer, who is one of the principal authorities on Gregorian music, endeavoured, with much eloquence, to prove that the notes of the diatonic scale "supplied the foundation of Gregorian modality, and therefore that the principles of harmony and of Gregorian music were really identical. There were in the unaltered diatonic scale just seven characteristic notes. Each of these was the basis, final note, or tonic of a pair of modes, in one of which the fifth, and in the other the third, had a strongly prominent place, and was accordingly called the dominant. People commonly spoke of eight Gregorian modes, but here were fourteen. That came from the fact that if they so altered the scale of the first six as to make B always flat, they could write the last six respectively in them. That was often done, and melodies belonging to modes nine, ten, thirteen, and fourteen were freely attributed to one, two, five, and six respectively. In the examples given it was shown that the principle which underlay the structure of all the modes was precisely that which was the basis of all harmony—the close relationship of every note with its third, and, in all cases except one, with its fifth." He then said that as each note had a close harmonic relation with certain other notes, so each mode had a certain harmonic relation with certain other modes. The modes that were thus in close relationship were those between the dominants and the finals, of which there existed the interval either of a third, or of a fifth, or of an octave, so that the dominants made together a dominant chord, and the finals a final chord. This harmonic relation to one another of the various modes was a very practical fact, for it suggested in large measure easy and effective ways for harmonising them. When once the principles of the modes were grasped, to harmonise thus was not difficult, and he would venture to assert that those who made a study of the work would find themselves well rewarded. The Lecture was listened to by a large audience, with much attention.

ILFORD.—The members of the Vocal Union gave their fifth Concert in the Reading Room, on the 4th ult., the chief item being Mendelssohn's Ninety-fifth Psalm. The principal vocalists were Miss Annie Patrick, Miss Minnie Edmonds, and Mr. T. T. S. de Jastrzebski who, with Mr. Alex Tucker, also contributed songs in the miscellaneous part with much effect. The Misses Haynes played the Scherzo and Finale from a Quartet for Pianoforte and Strings, by E. Prout, and the Vocal Union contributed Smart's "Ave Maria," Stewart and Knyvett's "Bells of St. Michael's Tower" (which was persistently redemanded), and Hatton's "England." The accompaniment to the Psalm included the usual strings, pianoforte, and harmonium. Mr. A Storr conducted.

IPSWICH.—A Jubilee Concert, in aid of the Mayor's Fund, was given by the Choral Society in the Public Hall, on the 4th ult., before a large audience. Cowen's Rose Maiden, which formed the first part of the programme, was excellently rendered, the soprano part, by Miss Vinnie Beaumont, being especially worthy of notice. The other soloists were Miss Bertha Alden, Mr. C. W. Fredericks, and Mr. D. Harrison, all of whom were well received. The band and chorus of 250 performers proved most effective. Mr. Charles Cooke conducted. The second part of the Concert consisted of miscellaneous items, in which the above-named soloists and Mr. Barker (harp) took prominent parts. Mr. F. J. Lewis presided at the pianoforte, Miss Clara Prentice at the organ, and Mr. F. Smythes led the band.

IRTON, WHITEHAVEN.—On Sunday evening, the 8th ult., a most successful Organ Recital was given upon the fine two-manual organ in Irton Church, by Mr. W. H. Bates, Organist and Choirmaster of Holy Trinity Church, Whitehaven. There was a large congregation. The programme consisted of Handel's Fourth Concerto, Dr. Spark's "Jerusalem the Golden," Batiste's Andantes in G major and E minor, Rink's Flute Concerto, and Wély's Offertoire in C. Mr. Bates's playing was much appreciated, the whole of the Recital being listened to with marked attention. About £8 was collected on behalf of the Whitehaven Infirmary.

KETTERING.—On the 9th ult., the Choral Society brought its season to a conclusion with an excellent performance of Costa's Eli. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Griffin, Master Bruster (Peterboro' Cathedral), Mr. Holberry Hagyard, Mr. Jas. Palmer (a member of the Society), and Mr. W. Winn. The tenor air "Philistines, hark!" that for soprano, "I will extol Thee," and the unaccompanied quartet, were especially well received by a most enthusiastic audience. Mr. H. G. Gotch conducted.

LEWES.—The Church Society, which numbers about eighty voices, gave an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, on Wednesday, the 4th ult., at the St. Anne's Concert Hall, which was filled by a large audience. The principal soprano was Miss Hopper, a local amateur, who especially distinguished herself in the arioso "I will sing of Thy great mercies," which was encored, the contralto solos being satisfactorily rendered by Miss Annie Perfect. The vocalists engaged were Mr. Ralph Dawes (tenor) and Mr. W. Winn (bass). Mr. B. C. Scammell conducted, and Mr. Percy J. Starnes and Mr. Horace Jackson presided at the pianoforte and organ respectively.

LONDONDERRY.—The St. Columb's Choral Union gave its second Concert of the season, on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult., in the Opera House. The first part consisted of Smart's Cantata The Bride of Dunkerron, and the second was miscellaneous. The soloists were Miss Mary Russell, of Dublin; Mr. G. H. Welch, of Durham Cathedral; and Mr. John Hemingway, of Londonderry Cathedral. The accompaniments were supplied by Mr. Raffles (pianoforte) and the Rev. James Armstrong (harmonium). Mr. D. C. Jones, Mus. Bac., F.C.O. (the Conductor of the Society), conducted.——On Tuesday evening, the 17th ult., Mr. D. C. Jones gave before a large congregation the first Organ Recital on the four-manual instrument recently erected in the Cathedral. His programme was selected from the works of Bach, Mendelssohn, Guilmant, Fumagalli, Liszt, &c. During the Recital, Mr. Hemingway, the principal bass of the Cathedral Choir, sang "It is enough" (Elijah), and Rossini's "Pro peccatis."

LYMINGTON.—The members of the Musical Society gave their fifth Concert on Thursday, April 28, at the Assembly Rooms, before a large and appreciative audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Cowen's Cantata The Rose Maiden, which was well rendered. The solos were taken by Miss Jeffery, Miss Helsby, Miss Leete, Mrs. Garrett, Mr. Yates, and Mr. Green. The second part, which was miscellaneous, introduced the Swedish violinist, Mdlle. Anna Lang, who was enthusiastically received, and Miss Amy Weldon, who sang several songs with charming effect. The accompanists were Miss Weldon (pianoforte) and Mr. J. Gleeson White (American organ).

MANCHESTER.—The Manchester Vocal Society gave the last Concert of the season on April 30. There was a very fair audience, and the singing of the Society showed commendably careful preparation, notably in Mendelssohn's "When Israel," Handel's "Hallelujah," Jackson's "Sisters of the Sea," and Pinsuti's "Good night." The soloists (all members of the choir) were Miss Mary Melvern, Miss Armitt, Miss Williams, Mr. A. Hewitt, Mr. Plant, Mr. Nathan Whittaker, and Mr. Byron Dewhurst. Miss Clara Hughes played Raff's Caprice "La Reine," and Mr. John Towers conducted.

MELBOURNE.—A special service, in aid of the Bishop of Melbourne's Fund, under the conductorship of Dr. Bromby, was given at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral on April 6. At the conclusion of the Service, Gaul's Passion music was sung, the principal vocalists being Mrs. E. Bethell, Miss Vera Goad, Mr. E. Bethell, and Mr. S. Moyle. Mrs. W. J. Turner presided at the organ, and Mr. W. J. Turner conducted.

MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.—On Tuesday, April 26, the Glee and Madrigal Society, aided by members of the Orchestral Society, gave an excellent performance of Handel's Oratorio Joshua. The cast was as follows:—Achsah, Miss Wadham; Othniel, Miss Haimes; Caleb, Mr. Warren; and Joshua, Mr. Slack. A noticeable feature was the introduction of the "Battle" Symphony from the opera of Riccardo I., which is a manifest improvement, being a most stirring and descriptive number, and written for the usual Handel orchestra, with the addition of three trumpets. Soon after the first performance of Joshua, Handel introduced the Symphony to the place it now occupies in the conducting score. At the recent performance the Oratorio was well received by a large audience, and was repeated on the 9th ult., with Mr. A. D. Coleridge as Joshua; free admission. The work was again enthusiastically received. Mr. Wilson, as usual, conducted.

MONMOUTH.—The members of the Choral Society gave their final Concert in the Borough Court, on the 3rd ult., assisted by Miss Helen Dew and the Orchestral Society, under the leadership of Mr. E. G. R. Richards. Schubert's Song of Miriam was rendered in a manner reflecting the highest credit on the Conductor, Mr. W. H. Webb, Organist and Choirmaster of the Parish Church. Miss Skinner was the solo pianist, and Mr. Richards, solo violinist. The principal vocalists were Misses Dew and Williams, and Messrs. C. Gibbons (Llandaff Cathedral), E. G. R. Richards, and W. H. Webb, all of whom were received with the warmest applause.

NEATH.—An excellent performance of Spohr's Oratorio The Fall of Babylon, was given by the members of the Harmonic Society, at St. David's Church, on the 12th ult. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Mason, Miss Marian Price, R.A.M., Eos Morlais, and Mr. David Hughes, R.A.M. Mrs. R. P. Morgan accompanied with much ability on the organ, and Mr. J. L. Matthews conducted.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—At the Conversazione (in connection with the Exhibition) given to H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge by the Mayor, a programme of vocal music was excellently rendered by the members of Mr. T. Albion Alderson's Private Amateur Choir. Mackenzie's Patriotic Song, "The Empire Flag," sung for the first time, created immense enthusiasm.

NEW SOUTHGATE.—On Thursday, April 28, the Friern Barnet Choral Association gave its second Concert, in the Lecture Hall, Holly Park. The programme consisted of Barnett's Ancient Mariner and a miscellaneous selection. The choir, seventy in number, under the conductorship of Mr. Plant Coldrey, sang in a very satisfactory manner. The orchestra, led by Mr. H. G. Elphick, did good service, giving great effect to the more dramatic parts of the work. The soloists were Miss Jessie Dimsdale, Miss Kate Coldrey, Miss Minnie Kerton, Mr. George Micklewood, and Mr. James Bayne.

NORWICH.—The Harmonic Society gave its final Concert of the season at Noverre's Rooms, on Thursday, the 5th ult. The choral work was Macfarren's May Day, in which the soprano recitative and solo was very effectively sung by Miss Luckett. The chief interest of the evening centred in the pianoforte playing of Miss Eleanor Rix, A.R.A.M., whose selections from memory were Intermezzo and Finale from Schumann's "Faschingsschwank" and Rubinstein's Etude in C (Op. 23), after each of which she received a most enthusiastic recall. The other items deserving of mention were Miss Luckett's charming singing of Schira's "Sognai" (violoncello accompaniment, Mr. Ernest Harcourt), Mr. Walter Tuddenham's excellent violin playing in Beethoven's Duet for violin and pianoforte, in D (in which he was ably supported by the Conductor, Mr. J. Arthur Harcourt), and Mr. E. Harcourt's tasteful rendering of a violoncello solo by F. Thomè. Mr. Harcourt was a most efficient Conductor and accompanist.——The members of the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Union gave the concluding Concert of the season at St. Andrew's Hall, on Thursday evening, the 12th ult. The programme consisted of Weber's "Jubilee" Cantata, a soprano solo and chorus "Victoria," composed expressly for the occasion by Dr. Bunnett, and a short miscellaneous selection. The solo vocalists were Miss Madeline Hardy, R.A.M., Mr. Ralph Dawes, and Mr. Brockbank, all of whom were well received; Miss Hardy's charming singing being a feature of the evening. Mr. F. W. B. Noverre led the band, Mr. Walter Lain presided at the organ, and Dr. Bunnett conducted.

NOTTINGHAM.—The fourth annual Concert of the Amateur Orchestral Society was held in the Albert Hall, on April 26, before a large audience. A well selected miscellaneous programme was excellently rendered. The band, which included a large number of ladies, was led by Miss Aline Starey. A feature of the evening was the pianoforte playing of Miss Goldschmidt. Miss Gomes sang several songs with charming effect. Mr. W. Wright presided at the organ, and Mr. Henry Farmer conducted.

OXFORD.—A Concert was given by the Cowley St. John Choral Society, in the Schoolroom, Cowley Road, on April 27, before a large audience. Amongst the principal items in the programme were Schubert's 23*rd Psalm*, specially scored by Dr. Dodds for strings, harp (which he played himself), flute, and oboe; the second act of Gluck's Orpheus (Mrs. Frank Cooper and Miss Julia Seary being the soloists), and Dr. C. V. Stanford's Choral Ballad The Revenge, the rendering of which was in the highest degree satisfactory. Father Wyon, as usual, conducted, Dr. Dodds presiding at the harmonium during the performance of The Revenge.

PERTH.—The second annual Festival of the Perthshire Church Choir Union was held on Saturday, April 30, when seventeen choirs, numbering over three hundred voices, rendered the music at the afternoon service in the East Parish Church in a highly efficient manner. The selection included J. T. Field's Evening Service in D, Barnby's "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works," and several well known festal hymns. The hymn, "The Son of God goes forth to war," was sung to a tune composed for the festival by a member of the Union. The Very Rev. Principal Cunningham, of St. Andrew's, preached the sermon. The church, which was beautifully decorated, was crowded. Mr. Wylie, Organist of the Church, accompanied, and Mr. Frank Graves conducted. In the evening, a most successful Concert was given in the City Hall, before a large audience. The soloists were all members of the various choirs. Mr. Graves again conducted.

PORLOCK, SOMERSET.—Sterndale Bennett's May Queen was performed on the 4th ult., with a capital orchestra of twenty-four instruments, led by Mr. Saddler. The soloists were Misses L. A. Hook and Thristle, and Messrs. Davis and H. Davis. The choruses were redered with precision and taste. As a second part, a miscellaneous selection was given, which included two movements of Beethoven's Symphony (No. 1), and a portion of the Grand Septet. The Rev. W. Hook and Mr. W. A. Hook conducted.

PULBOROUGH.—Two excellent performances of the Hymnal Oratorio and selections from The Messiah, &c., were given in the Parish Church on the 18th ult., under the direction of Mr. Seymour Kelly, of Chichester Cathedral. The soloists were Mrs. Seymour Kelly, Miss Wailes, The Hon. and Rev. G. W. Bourke, the Revs. H. Dry and R. W. Beresford, and Mr. Seymour Kelly. Miss Rutherford presided at the organ with marked ability.

RETFORD.—A Concert, which excited considerable interest and attracted a large audience, was given by Mr. Hamilton White's Vocal Class, on April 27, when Dr. Stainer's Daughter of Jairus and Mendelssohn's Loreley were performed with an efficient band and chorus. Both works were rendered very effectively. The solo vocalists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont and Messrs. Hopkinson and Mackie. Mr. Denman presided at the pianoforte, and the band was led by Mr. Ellis.

RHYL, NORTH WALES.—On Tuesday evening, the 3rd ult., a special service was held in St. Thomas's Church, when Handel's Messiah was excellently rendered by the Philharmonic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Felix C. Watkins, of St. Asaph. The principal vocalists were Madame Clara West, Miss Griffiths, Mr. C. W. Fredericks, and Mr. D. Harrison. Organist, Dr. Joseph C. Bridge, M.A. The proceeds were in aid of the building fund of St. John's Church.

RYDE, I.W.—On Tuesday evening, the 3rd ult., a very successful performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah was given by the members of the Ryde Choral Union, the band and chorus numbering about 150. The soloists were Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Marian Ellis, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. J. Ward; efficient aid being given in the double quartet by Mrs. Stainer, Miss Fairall, Mr. Fowles, and Mr. Burt; Mr. F. H. Simms acted as organist, and Miss Margaret Fowles conducted SHERBORNE.—On Ascension Day a special musical service, consisting of hymns, organ voluntaries, and selections from Handel's Messiah, was held in the Abbey. Mr. G. E. Lyle, Organist of the Abbey, presided.

SLIGO.—On the 3rd ult. the fifth annual Choir Festival for the district was held in St. John's Church. Seven choirs, numbering 150 voices, took part. The anthem was "Behold, now, praise the Lord" (G. J. Bennett). The service was fully choral.——The Musical Society brought its fifth season to a conclusion on the 4th ult., with a performance of Mozart's Requiem and Romberg's Lay of the Bell. With one exception, the soloists were local amateurs. The accompaniments were played on the pianoforte and harmonium. Mr. Froggatt conducted.

SOUTHAMPTON.—The annual celebration of the incoming of May was performed, on the 1st ult., by the choir of gentlemen now known as the "May Choir," which consists of twenty picked vocalists, who ascend to the battlements of the ancient Bargate, and sing choral music appropriate to the occasion. May Day this year falling on Sunday, six choir boys of Holy Trinity Church were added. Though a bitter north-east wind was blowing, there were at six o'clock some two thousand persons present, who enjoyed from a distance the treat provided, especially Handel's chorus "Lift up your heads" and Mozart's Gloria, from the Twelfth Mass. Mr. J. F. Sharp was the Conductor, to whom much praise has been given by the local press and public generally.

SPRINGHEAD.—The members of the singing class connected with the Congregational Sunday School, gave a most successful Soirée Musicale, on Tuesday evening, the 17th ult. The artists were Miss Mercer and Mr. Fenton, of Oldham, vocalists; solo violin, Mr. J. Kershaw; accompanist, Mr. J. H. Lees; Conductor, Mr. Thomas Birkenshaw.

STOKE-UPON-TRENT.—A very successful performance of Dr. Swinnerton Heap's Cantata The Maid of Astolat, written for the Wolverhampton Festival, was given in the Town Hall by the Philharmonic Society, on Tuesday, the 17th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Emilie Harris, Mr. Orlando Harley, and Mr. Robert Grice. The band was selected from the Birmingham orchestras, and the chorus numbered 120. The composer conducted.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON.—The last Concert of the Choral Society took place in the Memorial Theatre before a large audience, the point of interest being the performance of a new Operetta entitled The Legend of Clopton, by Mr. J. H. Caseley, the Conductor of the Society and Organist of the Parish Church. The choir, numbering upwards of sixty voices, was ably assisted by an excellent orchestra. The solos were sustained by Miss Effie Clements, R.A.M., Mr. A. Castings, Hereford Cathedral, and Mr. C. Copland, R.A.M., all of whom were highly efficient. The choruses were given with marked precision and effect, and the applause which followed the various solos and choruses must have convinced Mr. Caseley of the success of his work. The second part was miscellaneous, the chief features being Miss Clements's rendering of "The Jewel Song," Faust, Mr. Casting's "Gwendoline" (Parker), and Mr. Copland's "Come, only come" (Pinsuti). Mr. A. H. Callaway, R.A.M., presided at the pianoforte, and played the accompaniments with taste and ability. The National Anthem brought the most successful Concert of the Society to a close.

THIRSK.—An Organ Recital was given in the Parish Church on Tuesday evening, the 12th ult., by the Organist, Mr. T. H. Fall, Mus. Bac., assisted by Miss Pollock, and members of the church choir. The programme was well selected, and excellently rendered. Miss Pollock's singing was much appreciated.

TOWCESTER.—On April 28 the members of the Choral Society gave a miscellaneous Concert, under distinguished patronage, on behalf of the Church Organ Fund. The artists were Miss Vinnie Beaumont, Madame Osborne Williams, Mr. J. B. Smith, vocalists; and Mr. J. Skinner, solo cornet. Mr. E. Hunt conducted.

TREHERBERT, RHONDDA VALLEY.—On the 5th and 7th ult. performances of Judas Maccabæus were given by the Choral Union, under the Conductorship of Mr. M. O. Jones. The choruses were well rendered, supported by an orchestra of twenty-eight performers, derived from the Libanus String Band and other sources. The soloists, Miss Mary Owen, R.A.M., Miss Marian Price, R.A.M., Mr. Dan Price, R.A.M., and Mr. David Davies, gave great satisfaction. Dr. A. Warburton presided at the harmonium. The leader of the orchestra was Mr. E. T. Roberts, of Cardiff.

WARRINGTON.—An Organ Recital was given, on the 13th ult., by Dr. Spark, of Leeds, in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Leigh Street, on the new instrument built by Messrs. Alex. Young and Sons, of Manchester. Vocal solos were well rendered by Miss Riley.

WATERBURY, CONN., U.S.A.—On the evening of Good Friday, at the First Congregational Church, the United Choirs of the two Congregational Churches, assisted by a few friends, sang Gaul's Passion Music. Mr. Alex. S. Gibson, Organist of the First Church, presided at the organ, and Mr. A. J. Blakesley, Organist of the Second Church, acted as Director. The solos were taken by Mrs. E. le Frisbie, Mrs. Dr. C. S. Rodman, and Messrs. Boyd, Sandland, and Blakesley.—— Easter Sunday Evening, after a brief service, the choir of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, numbering thirty voices, under the direction of the Organist, Mr. Edward Witherspoon, sang Farmer's Christ and His Soldiers. The soloists were Miss Jessie Wadhams, Mrs. Edward Witherspoon, Messrs. Frank D. Hotchkiss and Frank Tripp. The increasing interest in sacred music was evidenced by the fact that at both these services the large churches in which they were held were crowded with interested listeners; and the hope was very generally expressed that many similar services might be held in the future.

WEM, SALOP.—On Wednesday, the 4th ult., Mr. Prendergast gave an Organ Recital in the church, when a high class programme was well rendered, and much appreciated by a large congregation. The vocalist was Madame Dora Hope Lockley, who gave an admirable rendering of "Angels ever bright and fair." Mr. Prendergast proved himself an excellent accompanist. In the evening, Mr. Prendergast gave a Concert, Madame Lockley being the principal vocalist. The members of the Choral Society contributed several glees, part-songs, &c.

WHITCHURCH. HANTS.—The third Concert of the Choral Society was given on Wednesday, the 4th ult., when Sir G. A. Macfarren's Cantata May Day (the solo being sung hy Miss Blanche Powell), a portion of Van Bree's Cantata St. Cecilia's Day, and a miscellaneous selection formed the programme. The accompaniments were played by Mr. H. Shepherd, and Mr. H. E. Powell conducted.

WINCHESTER.—Pianoforte Recitals were given on the afternoon and evening of the 5th ult., by Miss Southcott (daughter of Mr. W. V. Southcott), at St. John's Rooms. Miss Southcott (who is a pupil of Mr. Roeckel) exhibited a correct touch and facile execution, and her capabilities as an executant of no mean order were fully tested in a varied programme, comprising Weber's Sonata in A flat major (Op. 39); Giga con varia from Suite in D minor (Op. 91), Raff; Bach's Fantasia and Fugue in D minor; Hummel's Concerto in B minor; and Beethoven's Sonata in C major. The programme was varied by songs sung by Mr. W. V. Southcott, and the reciter was also assisted in Schubert's Rondo Brillant and Dussek's Sonata in B flat (both for violin and pianoforte) by Mr. Gamblin.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. E. Ellen, A.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Accrington.—Mr. R. H. Whall, A.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish and Holy Trinity Churches, Great Marlow.—Mr. T. Austin Blake, Organist to Holy Trinity, Woodford.—Mr. William Irving Lyon, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church of St. James's, New London, Conn., U.S.A.—Mr. Henry St. J. Bigg-Wither, Organist to St. Margaret's Church, Brighton.—Mr. George Dixon, Organist and Choirmaster to Arkley Church, near High Barnet.—Mr. Frank Austin, L.Mus. T.C.L., Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Brentwood.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Burton Yaldwyn (Bass), to St. Margaret's Parish Church, Lee.—Mr. T. W. Kingston (Baritone), à la Chappelle de l'Annonçiaçion et St. Louis de France (Chappelle Française), George Street, W.—Mr. William Cook (Alto), to St. Augustine and St. Faith, Old Change, E.C.—Mr. Stretton Swann, Choirmaster to St. Mark's, Coburg Road, S.E.—Mr. H. V. Miniken (Solo Alto), to St. Saviour's Church, Hans Place, S.W.—Mr. Charles W. Coleman (Tenor), to Brompton Church.—Mr. Walter Woodroof, (Counter-Tenor), to St. Peter-le-Poor, Old Broad Street, E.C.

MARRIAGE.

At the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, by the Rev. Charles A. Cox, EDWARD FRANK BUELS, eldest son of the late JOHN BUELS, to MARY WILCOCKE, second daughter of the late HENRY RAY WILCOCKE. (No cards.)

DEATHS.

On April 28, at Vienna, CARL FERDINAND POHL, aged 63.

On the 1st ult., CHARLES CLARKE, forty years Organist of St. John's, Devizes.

On the 2nd ult., HANNAH RAMPTON BINFIELD, of Friar Street, Reading, Professor of Music, aged 77 years.

On the 7th ult., at his residence, 2, Wilmington Terrace, Eastbourne, THOMAS JULIAN ADAMS, Professor of Music and Member of the Senate of Trinity College, London, in his 63rd year.

On the 9th ult., from the effects of an accident, THOMAS AUGUSTUS OETZMANN, aged 26, eldest son of THOMAS OETZMANN, Baker Street, London.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.

Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELTY THEATRE.

CABAL; OR, INVISIBILITY

AN ENTIRELY NEW AND ORIGINAL

COMIC OPERA, IN TWO ACTS,

Written by T. MURRAY FORD.

MUSIC BY

JOHN STORER, Mus. Doc.,

WILL BE PRODUCED ON

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 18, 1887, at Three o'clock.

Full Band and powerful Chorus, conducted by the Composer.

MR. CHARLES GARDNER'S ANNUAL MATINÉE MUSICALE will take place at Willis's Rooms, on SATURDAY, June 4, 1887, at three o'clock, when the following artists will appear:—Vocalists: Miss Mary Davies, Miss Agnes Larkcom, and Mr. Arthur Thompson. Instrumentalists: Miss Mary Travers, Herr Josef Ludwig, Mons. Albert, Herr Francesco Berger, and Mr. Charles Gardner. Stalls, Half-a-Guinea; or, to admit Three, One Guinea. May be obtained at the usual agents, and of Mr. Charles Gardner, 3, Chilworth Street, Westbourne Terrace, W.

MR. GREGORY HAST
(Principal Tenor, St. Peter's, Eaton Square).
MADAME GREGORY HAST
(Pianist).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., 9, Shipka Road, Balham, S.W.

MR. ARTHUR FOX, A.R.A.M. (Tenor).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 20, St. Charles' Square, North Kensington, W.

ALTO and BASS WANTED, All Saints', Devonshire Road, South Lambeth. Stipend, £8. Apply at the Church, Tuesdays, at 8 o'clock.

WANTED, TENOR and BASS. Salary, £5 per annum. Choral service. Anthem. Apply, Christ Church, Endell Street, Long Acre, Friday evenings, 7.30.

ORGANIST.—A Young Lady, who has had much experience in playing a three-manual Organ at a Wesleyan Chapel and Sunday School, desires an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST, for Sunday and one Week-day Service. Certificated. References if required. Apply, A., 6, Bailey Street, Bedford Square, W.

ORGANIST.—Pupil of a Mus. Bac. is open for an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST. W. or N.W. district preferred. Nonconformist Chapel. T. B. N., 11, Mortimer Street, W.

AN Organist's Son desires an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST or ASSISTANT ORGANIST, in or near London. Some years' experience; choral services highest references. Address, R. J., 39, Smith Square, Westminster, S.W.

DURING THE LAST MONTH
Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

STANFORD, C. VILLIERS.—"Carmen Sæculare." An Ode for the Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Written by ALFRED, Lord TENNYSON (Poet Laureate). Op. 26. 1s. 6d.

OAKELEY, SIR HERBERT.—Selection from A Jubilee Lyric, "The Love that lasts for ever." Words by the Earl of ROSSLYN. For Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus. With Introduction, by Her Majesty's gracious permission, of a Choral by H.R.H. the Prince Consort. 1s.

HEALE, HÉLÈNE.—"Jubilee Ode." The words by JULIETTE HEALE. 1s. 6d.

LLOYD, CHARLES H., M.A., Mus. Bac.—The Music to the "Alcestis" of Euripides. As performed at Oxford in May, 1887. 3s.

GOETZ, HERMANN.—Eighteen Songs. Op. 4, 12, 19. English version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D. 2s. 6d.

BARRAUD, F. ALBAN—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

FITTON, WALTER.—Six Responses to the Commandments. 3d.

HAYNES, WILLIAM.—(in D). Festal Te Deum and Jubilate. Composed for the Jubilee Service in the Priory Church, Malvern. 9d.

MANDERS, BENJAMIN—(in F). Benedicite, omnia opera. 2d.

PRENDERGAST, A. H. D.—(in C). The Office of the Holy Communion. Composed and arranged with special regard to Parochial use (Credo in unison), 9d.; Kyrie, Doxology, and Credo (unison), 3d.

STOCKS, W. H.—The Suffrages. Appointed to be used in all Churches and Chapels on Her Majesty's Accession Day. 1d.

THORNE, GEO.—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

PROPER PSALMS WITH CHANTS (Cathedral Psalter), with the Versicles and Responses for the Queen's Accession, June 20. 1½d.

CHIPP, E. T.—"As I live, saith the Lord." Anthem for Soli and Chorus. (Octavo Anthems, No. 311.) 3d.

—— "The Lord hath been mindful of us." Anthem for Four Voices. (Octavo Anthems, No. 312.) 3d.

HALL, REV. E. V., M.A.—"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Anthem for Harvest Thanksgiving or any Festival Service. (Octavo Anthems, No. 316.) 4d.

LOARING, JAMES.—"Awake up, my glory." Full Anthem. 3d.

ROBERTS, J. V.—"I will sing unto the Lord." Anthem for the Jubilee Festival, at Magdalen College, Oxford. 8d.

SLATER, ERNEST.—"All the Kings of the earth shall praise Thee." Anthem. Composed for the State Service in St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta, in celebration of the Jubilee of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. 4d.

SMART, JAMES.—"If ye love Me." Anthem for Four Voices. For Whitsuntide. 2d.

STARNES, PERCY J.—"The Lord spake." Festival Anthem for Soli and Chorus. 8d.

WOOD, W. G.—"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Anthem for Festival or General use. 4d.

BILL, C. MILTON.—Two Hymn-tunes. 3d.

COBB, GERARD F.—"If doughty deeds." Glee for Two Tenors and Two Basses. (The Orpheus, No. 203.) 4d.

DOUGLAS, H. A.—"Longest and shortest." Words by F. G. W. Choral Song. 3d.

HAM. A.—"The Sun has gone down" ("Good Night"). A Four-part Song. 2d.

LÖHR, HARVEY.—"Britain's Glory." Patriotic Chorus. Four Voices. 2d.

BENNETT, WENTWORTH.—"The Sculptor." Song. With Violoncello Obbligato. The Words by LONGFELLOW. 2s. Violoncello Part, 6d.

CLARKE, FREDERIC W.—Caprice in D flat major (posthumous). 2s.

—— Polonaise in A major (posthumous). 2s. 6d.

—— Rêverie in B major (posthumous). 1s. 6d.

GRAY, ALAN.—Capriccio. For Stringed Orchestra. Pianoforte Solo, 2s. String Parts, 2s.

JACOBY, SIEGFRIED.—Hungarian Dances. (No. 6 of "Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums.") For Violin and Pianoforte, 2s. 6d. Also for Violoncello and Pianoforte, 2s. 6d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

SPEER, CHARLTON T.—Valse Caprice. For the Pianoforte. 2s.

BOYSE, ARTHUR, F.C.O.—Transcriptions for the Organ. "Le Rêve" (Goltermann), 1s.; "Schlummerlied" (Otto Booth), 6d.; "Wiegenlied" (Hauser), 6d.; Canon, 6d.; "Mourning," 9d.; A Round, 6d.; "Traumerei" (Schumann), 6d.

HAYNES, WILLIAM.—"Victoria." Jubilee March. For the Organ. 1s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. MCNAUGHT.

No. 550. Sleep! the bird is in its nest. Part-song. For Five Voices ... ... J. BARNBY 1½d.
551. Let not your heart be troubled. Anthem. For Four Voices. Whitsuntide ... ... H. G. TREMBATH 1d.
552. Zadok the Priest ... ... HANDEL 1½d.
Great is the Lord. Festival Anthem ... E. A. SYDENHAM 1½d.

Just published.

THE LONGBEARD'S SAGA

CHORUS FOR MALE VOICES.

Words from CHARLES KINGSLEY'S "Hypatia."

MUSIC BY

CHAS. H. LLOYD.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EMPIRE FLAG

A PATRIOTIC SONG FOR SOLO AND CHORUS

The Words written by

STUART REID AND W. ALEX. BARRETT.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Two Shillings net.

Arranged as a Part-Song, S.A.T.B., 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

FESTIVAL TE DEUM

For Soprano Solo, Chorus, Orchestra, Organ, and Military Band, ad lib.

COMPOSED BY

ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

Vocal Score, 8vo, paper cover, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth gilt, 2s. 6d.

Vocal parts, 4s.; String parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind parts, 10s.; Military Band parts, 5s. Full Score, MS.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

ARRANGED FOR CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA BY

SIR MICHAEL COSTA.

Full Score, Folio, 2s. 6d.; Vocal Score, 8vo, 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.; Vocal Parts, 6d.; Orchestral Parts, 5s. 8d.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

ARRANGED BY

VINCENT NOVELLO.

Vocal Score, Folio, 1s.; ditto, 8vo, 3d.; Vocal Parts, 6d.; Orchestral Parts, 3s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass Vocalist) has VACANCY for Young Lady with good voice as RESIDENT PUPIL. Thorough musical education. Public introductions guaranteed. Terms moderate. Willow Grove Lodge, Leeds.

GOOD Out-door Country TUNER WANTED. Salary and commission. Permanent situation for a reliable man. Dale, Forty and Co., Musicsellers, Cheltenham.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS to be SOLD in the Midland Counties. First-class position and good premises. Address, E. T. L., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

FOR SALE, in London (larger instrument building), SALOON ORGAN; also suitable for Church or Chapel. Good scale, compact, well built, excellent tone; two manuals, CC to G, 19 stops (two stops on pedals), £180. Case not for sale. For particulars, letter to Mr. W., care of Mrs. Wilcox, Stationer, 60, Downs Park Road, Hackney, E.

AMERICAN ORGAN WANTED, suitable for a medium-sized Church. Must be a first class instrument in all respects, with imitation pipes on top. State price and all particulars to B., 26, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

Price One Shilling.

SELECTION FROM "A JUBILEE LYRIC"

THE LOVE THAT LASTS FOR EVER

WRITTEN BY THE EARL OF ROSSLYN,
AND PUBLISHED BY COMMAND.

Set to Music for Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus

(With introduction, by Her Majesty's gracious permission, of a Choral by H.R.H. THE PRINCE CONSORT),

BY

SIR HERBERT OAKELEY,
LL.D., Mus. Doc., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONG OF JUBILEE

SACRED CANTATA

BY

DR. BRADFORD.

Composed in celebration of the Fiftieth Year of Her Majesty's Reign.
Vocal Score, Two Shillings.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT

OF THE

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

See Dr. BRADFORD'S Cantata, "Song of Jubilee."

THE ORCHESTRAL PARTS of the SONG OF JUBILEE can be had on hire, of the COMPOSER, 50, Lewisham High Road, London, S.E.

RECEIVED AND ACKNOWLEDGED BY HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

GRAND CHORAL MARCH

"GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST"

(Soli and Chorus, S.A.T.B., 8vo, 4d.; Piano, 2s.; Organ, 2s. each net),

BY

WILLIAM J. YOUNG

Composer of Popular Part-songs.

I love the merry Springtime	26th thousand	...	net 2d.
Gaily through the greenwood	50th "	...	" 2d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes...	9th "	...	" 3d.
Fairy Revels	12th "	...	" 3d.
Forest Echoes	9th "	...	" 3d.
The Streamlet and Coming of Spring	5th "	... each	" 3d.
England's glory	7th "	...	" 3d.
O Anglia, land of the brave	2nd "	...	" 3d.
Where are you roaming?	2nd "	...	" 3d.
Who is Sylvia?	2nd "	...	" 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.
Manchester: HIME and ADDISON, or COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

NEW NATIONAL ANTHEM.

THE QUEEN! GOD BLESS HER

WRITTEN AND COMPOSED BY

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

As Ruler, Wife, and Mother,
Her reign has spotless been;
And glad the land, ruled by the hand
Of such a noble Queen.
So now, as then, in bygone years,
The Nation doth rejoice;
Two generations bless her name
And sing, with heart and voice,
The Queen! the Queen! God bless her.

Arrangements: S.A.T.B., 3d. net; A.T.T.B., 3d. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. net; Solo and Chorus, 2s. net.

J. and J. HOPKINSON, 95, New Bond Street, W.

10th Thousand, Vocal Score, 3d.

JUBILEE ANTHEM

BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER

COMPOSED BY

Dr. WILLIAM SPARK, Organist, Town Hall, Leeds.

Universally pronounced by the Press to be remarkably "melodious, easy, vigorous, and effective."

Performed at the Great Stockport Sunday School Festival by 400 voices and rapturously encored.

JOHN HEYWOOD, Manchester and London.

HER MAJESTY'S JUBILEE.

BLEST BE THY JUBILEE

WORDS BY

WILLIAM HENDERSON.

Graciously accepted by Her Majesty the Queen.

Set to the National Anthem, newly arranged and harmonised by DR. E. J. HOPKINS.

This Setting also includes the words of the National Anthem.
Price 2d.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 1d. Leaflets, 1s. 6d. per 100, or 9s. per 1,000.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JUBILEE

A SERVICE OF PRAISE AND THANKSGIVING FOR THE TIMES.

MUSIC COMPOSED AND ARRANGED BY

DR. STAINER

(Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral),

INCLUDING ANTHEMS BY

STAINER, HOPKINS, CLARKE-WHITFELD, BARNBY, MENDELSSOHN, AND ATTWOOD.

Large 8vo. 1s. 6d.

Sheet of Jubilee Hymns with Music.

Words and Music in Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa together. Demy 4to, 8 pp., price 6s. per 100.

London: SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

FESTAL TE DEUM AND JUBILATE

COMPOSED FOR THE

JUBILEE SERVICE IN PRIORY CHURCH, MALVERN

BY

WILLIAM HAYNES,

Organist and Choirmaster.
Price Ninepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUITABLE FOR PARISH CHURCH CHOIRS.

THANKSGIVING TE DEUM

Composed for the Services held during the Celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee, in St. George's Church, Ramsgate.

By GEO. PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HEAR, O GOD, HEAR MY CRY

(Psalm lxi.)

HEBREW AND ENGLISH BIBLE (REVISED) VERSION.

COMPOSED BY

A. M. FRIEDLANDER.

Octavo, 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price One Penny.

THE SUFFRAGES appointed to be used in all Churches and Chapels on Her Majesty's Accession Day. Arranged by W. H. STOCKS, A.C.O., L.R.A.M.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUBILEE ANTHEM. By THOS. SMITH.

HE SET THE ROYAL CROWN UPON HER HEAD, AND MADE HER QUEEN. 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

JUBILEE ANTHEMS. By CALEB SIMPER.

GIVE GLORY UNTO THE LORD. 4th Edition ... 3d.
MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE. 6th 1,000 ... ... 3d.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE. 3d. net.

FIFTY YEARS' GLAD BLESSINGS BRINGING (Prize Poem). Written by Mrs. HOWARD S. WATSON; composed by W. T. BELCHER. Suitable for Celebration or Services.
London: WEEKES and Co. Birmingham: Dr. BELCHER.

FOR MALE VOICE CHOIR.—THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, price 4d.; JUBILEE ODE, price 6d. net., by GEORGE RISELEY.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now Ready. Small 4to, price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal Parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE

CANTICLES AND HYMNS

OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE

TOGETHER WITH

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

THE PSALMS

BIBLE VERSION

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FESTIVAL ANTHEM.

O GIVE THANKS. Composed by E. A. SYDENHAM. To be sung at the Festival of the London Sunday School Choirs, at the Crystal Palace, on June 15, by

5,000 VOICES.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM.—Dedicated to H.R.H. Princess CHRISTIAN OF SCHLESWIG HOLSTEIN, I WILL SING UNTO THE LORD. Composed by J. VARLEY ROBERTS, and to be sung in Magdalen College Chapel, Oxford, on the occasion of the Queen's Jubilee. Price 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ANTHEM.

BEHOLD, O GOD OUR DEFENDER, by F. W. HIRD. Composed expressly for the Festival of the York Diocesan Choral Association, to be held in York Minster, in honour of the Queen's Jubilee. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VICTORIA JUBILEE MARCH. Composed for the Organ, with pedal obbligato, by WILLIAM HAYNES, Organist of the Priory Church, Malvern. Price 1s. 6d. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TRIUMPHAL MARCH, arranged for the Organ (with Pedal obbligato), from the Oratorio GIDEON. Composed by J. CHRISTOPHER MARKS, Mus. D., Oxon. Price 2s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the COMPOSER, 16, South Mall, Cork.

EVERY MUSICIAN should use the "JUBILEE MUSICAL SILK HANDKERCHIEFS."

Full particulars on page 314 May number of Musical Times.

All colours, 2s. 6d. each by Post.

Please order early.

SAMUEL MOSS, Macclesfield.

JUBILEE ODE

FOR CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA

Dedicated, by permission, to Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen

Words written by JULIETTE HEALE.

The Music composed by HÉLÈNE HEALE.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT

OF

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

By JOHN BULL.

Two Settings now published—No. 1, in G; No. 2, in B flat.

Each Setting contains Arrangements for Pianoforte Solo, Pianoforte Duet, Harmonium, and Chorus; capable of being used singly or together. No. 2 also contains Full Orchestral Score.

Price of each Setting, 1s. 6d.; published at 3s.

Organists, Conductors, and Musicsellers will receive Specimen copies of the two settings on receipt of Postal Order for 1s.

Leaflets for Schools, containing the words and air (Old and New Notations), 1s. 6d. per 100.

The Vocal Score is published on separate Sheets, price 1s. per doz., Post-free. Full Orchestral Parts, 5s. net.

Mr. John Bull wishes it to be clearly understood that there is nothing florid or elaborate in this Arrangement of the National Anthem. It is a plain Setting for voices and instruments, and will be invaluable to Concert-givers, as any combination of instruments can take part. All parts are full sheet music size, and are very clearly printed on good toned paper.

26, Hatfield Road, Hatcham Park, London, S.E.

DR. SPARK'S JUBILEE FANTASIA on National Airs:—"Come, if you dare," "Rule, Britannia," and "God save the Queen." The Graphic of May 14 says:—"This is certainly one of the best ebullitions of loyalty that the present festival year has brought forth; it will doubtless be heard on more than one public occasion, and at all gatherings where an organ, good, bad, or indifferent, is to be found." 2s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
„ 10.	Cloth boards	5	0
„ 11.	Small edition	3	0
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices. These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	6d.
Cantate and Deus misereatur in G	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE OFFICE for the HOLY COMMUNION. Set to music in the key of F by GEORGE KETT. Price Fourpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW ANTHEM, WITH VIOLIN OBBLIGATO.

Suitable equally for Parish Choir, Cathedral, or Home Use.

TEACH ME THY WAY, O LORD

Psalm LXXXVI., Versé 11. By W. H. WILSON. "Simple, easy, and effective." Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY E. BUNNETT, MUS.D.

Easter Anthem—"If we believe"	4d.
Whitsuntide Anthem—"If ye love me"	3d.
Anthem—"I will magnify Thee"	3d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	3d.
Cantate and Deus Misereatur in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.

PART-SONGS.

Spring	Four Voices	3d.
The Rhine Maiden.	„	3d.
Beware	„	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and PARKER and Co.

Twentieth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. Composed and inscribed to JOHN STAINER, Esq., M.A., Mus. Doc., by GEORGE LEES. Price 4d.

Dr. Stainer says: "I think the Te Deum is very good indeed."
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in D. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 6d. Suitable for Festal or general use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SMALLWOOD'S (WM.) FESTAL and GENERAL ANTHEMS.

No. 1. THE LORD REIGNETH. Easter, Whitsuntide, or General.
„ 2. THUS SAITH THE LORD, THE KING OF ISRAEL. Easter, Trinity, or General.
„ 3. PRAISED BE THE LORD DAILY. Harvest, Easter, or Whitsuntide.
„ 4. I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. Festival or General.
„ 5. IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Christmas.
„ 6. I WILL GIVE THANKS. Easter, Ascension, or General.

Price 2d. each.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

HYMN and TUNE for FLOWER SERVICES. Easy and effective. Price 2s. 6d. per 100. By F. G. FITCH.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO PEACE, from the Eirene of Aristophanes, for Soli, Trio, and Chorus. 1s. TWO SONNETS, by Sir PHILIP SIDNEY, for S.A.T.B. in the Madrigal style. 6d. By VYVYAN WALLIS POPHAM. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1½d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS WITH WELSH WORDS.

CENWCH GÂN O FAWL	J. STAINER.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O PRAWF, A GWEL	Syr JOHN GOSS.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O ARGLWYDD, MOR LIOSOG YW DY WEITHREDOEDD DI	J. BARNBY.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM, in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE „	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	2d.
O LORD, CORRECT ME	2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE in F.

Price 6d.

OFFICE OF THE HOLY COMMUNION IN F.

Price 6d.

ANTHEM, ALMIGHTY GOD, S.A.T.B.

Verse, Bass. Price 4d.

BY

F. H. CHEETHAM.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHOOL CANTATAS, &c. (Secular), by GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac., containing moderately easy Solos, Duets, and Choruses, for Soprano and Alto. Suitable for the use of Private and Public Schools.

THE FOUR SEASONS. Staff Notation, 1s. 6d.; Sol-fa, 6d. "We cordially recommend this Cantata."—School Guardian.

THE BELL TOWER. Most of the pieces in this Cantata may be used separately. Staff Notation, 1s.; Sol-fa, 4d.

SELECT SCHOOL SONGS. Mostly original, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Staff Notation, 8d.; Sol-fa, 3d.

HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.

NEW COMPOSITIONS BY

T. MEE PATTISON.

MAY DAY (Cantata) 1s. 6d.
A bright and melodious work, strong in choruses, and containing some charming numbers for Soprano and Tenor voices.

THIRTEEN OFFERTORY SENTENCES 4d.

SIX KYRIES 2d.
All these Sentences and Kyries will be found useable, and, although easy, they are written in a refined and graceful style.

Popular Works (published also by Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.)

THE ANCIENT MARINER	2s. 6d.
THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL	2s. 6d.
FIFTEEN INTRODUCTORY and CONCLUDING VOLUNTARIES	3s. 6d.

London: STANNIER and Co., Vigo Chambers, 113, Regent Street, W.

Now ready.

ORGAN MUSIC

TWELVE SHORT AND EASY PIECES

Intended for use between Offertory Sentences, Confirmations, &c.

COMPOSED BY

E. BUNNETT, Mus. D.

Price 2s. net.

Also, by same Composer, for Organ,

LARGO IN E FLAT

Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY NEW ANTHEMS.

GOUNOD'S

THREE CELEBRATED COMPOSITIONS:

THE KING OF LOVE MY SHEPHERD IS—23RD PSALM.
GLORY TO THEE, MY GOD, THIS NIGHT.
FOR EVER WITH THE LORD.

Each of the above may be had as follows:—Anthem: Vocal Score, with Organ Accompaniment, 2s. net; separate Voice Parts, 2d. each; Song (4 keys), 2s. net; Vocal Duet for s. and c., 2s. net; for M.S. and Bar., 2s. net.

PHILLIPS and PAGE, 43, Kilburn High Road, N.W.

THE CREEDS.—First Series: The APOSTLES' CREED and the NICENE CREED, each set to harmonies in two forms (voices monotone), and the ATHANASIAN CREED in chant form. Price 1s. net. Second Series: The Apostles' Creed, the Nicene Creed, in two forms (voices principally in unison), with free Organ Accompaniment, and the Athanasian Creed in chant form. Price 1s. 6d. net. W. METCALFE, Chiswick Street, Carlisle.

PARR'S PSALMODY contains 402 Tunes, 301 Chants, Responses, &c., with Memoirs of the Composers, affording Historical and Bibliographical information nowhere else to be found. The only collection preserving the old proper Tunes to our standard Hymns, giving them free from alteration. Price 7s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

CANTATA ON THE

Death of the Emperor Joseph the Second

BY

L. VAN BEETHOVEN.

Full score	net 8s. 6d.
Orchestral parts	„ 7s. 0d.
Vocal score, with English words	„ 4s. 0d.

PASSION OF ST. LUKE

BY

J. S. BACH.

Vocal score, with German words net 3s. 0d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

J. BRAHMS.

	s.	d.
SECOND SONATA in F. Op. 99. For Pianoforte and Cello	16	0
SECOND SONATA in A. Op. 100. For Pianoforte and Cello	16	0
TRIO in C minor. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 101	24	0
ALBUM of SELECT PIECES for the PIANOFORTE. net	4	0

A. DVOŘÁK.

ALBUM of SELECT PIECES for the PIANOFORTE. net 4 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

CIRO PINSUTI.

BOOK I.

No. 1. After the rain.
„ 2. Out in the sunshine.
„ 3. I love all things.
No. 4. I sing because I love to sing.
„ 5. Passing away.
„ 6. The voice of the waterfall.

BOOK II.

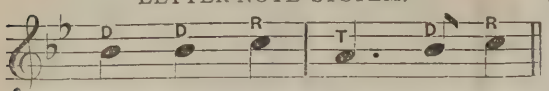
No. 7. The mermaids.
„ 8. False love, and true.
„ 9. Under the stars.
No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back.
„ 11. Love and friendship.
„ 12. The Magicians.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IMPORTANT TO ALL TEACHERS OF SINGING!!

THE SIMPLEST and EASIEST METHOD of Learning to SING AT SIGHT from the STAFF is the LETTER-NOTE SYSTEM.



COMBINING ALL THE FACILITIES OF THE NEW NOTATIONS WITH THE ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF THE STAFF.

Select List of Publications:—

ELEMENTARY SINGING MASTER, a complete course of Instruction on the Method. 80 pp., Cloth, 1s. 6d.; paper, 1s.

ELEMENTARY SINGING SCHOOL; being the Songs and Exercises of the above Work published separately for the use of Pupils. In two parts, price 3d. each, in wrapper. In this Work the letters are gradually withdrawn, training the Pupils to dispense with their aid.

THE INTERMEDIATE SIGHT-SINGER, and the ADVANCED SIGHT-SINGER, complete and systematic works of intermediate instruction. Price 3d. each, in wrapper.

FOR GOVERNMENT, NATIONAL, AND BOARD SCHOOLS. The Letter-Note Method has obtained Government recognition, and Letter-Note pupils are entitled to have the Sol-fa initials appended to the sight-singing test supplied by the School Inspector.

THE CODE SINGER, for the use of the different divisions in singing under the New Code.—1st and 2nd divisions, 3d. each, or in penny numbers; 3rd and 4th divisions, 4d. each, or in penny numbers.

The musical practice supplied is very copious. An abridged edition is published under the title of "Code Music," which contains everything absolutely essential for the work of the Code. Also a Teacher's Edition, containing the Code Singer, together with the directions as to examination by H.M. Inspector, model pointing and ear exercises, and hints on teaching. Div. I. & II., 8d.; Div. III. & IV., 10d.

CHORAL HARMONY, in penny numbers, each containing from 4 to 8 pages of Sacred or Secular Part-Music, printed either in Letter-Note or in ordinary Notation.

No. 159. Sing unto God.—R. A. Smith.
No. 178. 'Tis merry in the hall.—Marsh.
Easy Cantatas, "Pilgrims of Ocean," 4d.; "Maypole," 3d.

Liberal terms to the Profession. Complete Catalogue free on application.

London: J. ADLEY and Co., Letter-Note Publishers, 19, Sparsholt Road, N.
Wholesale Agents:—
COLVILLE and Co., 7, Red Lion Court, Fleet Street, E.C.

QUARTERLY MUSICAL REVIEW

FOR MAY 20.

EDITED BY DR. HILES.

CONTENTS.

Absurdities of Notation	THE EDITOR.
Prince Louis Ferdinand	G. SCHELLING.
The Critic	A. WATSON.
Harmony Teaching	A. PAGE.
A Stranger's Visit	M. L. ARMITT.

JOHN HEYWOOD, 11, Paternoster Buildings; and all Booksellers.

TO DR. STAINER.

ORGAN PEDAL SCALES & DAILY STUDIES, by GEO. ERNEST LAKE (including two Themes with varied Pedal Obbligati, containing many of the Passages met with in standard Organ Music). Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO WELL, 4th Ed., 1s. "The Art of Playing at Sight," 1s., 4th Ed. "Little Difficulties in Playing Explained," 1s. "Rules of Simple Harmony," 3rd Ed., 1s. "Harmonium, and How to Play it," 1s. "How to Form and Train a Choir," 1s. "How to Tune your own Piano," 1s. THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat).....	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G)	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A)	4d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat)	6d.
Faning, Eaton (in C)	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)...	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C)	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C)	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F)	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E)	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D).....	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.	Williams, C. L. (in F major)	4d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the Authority of the Committee of the Royal Academy of Music.

ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.

"In the space of some fifty pages the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals, and scales, rests, time, and abbreviations, and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.

ELEMENTS OF HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.

This work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

OXFORD, CAMBRRIDGE, & EDINBURGH EXAMS.

Just published. Price One Shilling, cloth.

370 EXERCISES AND QUESTIONS ON HARMONY, MUSICAL FORM, AND HISTORY, including a Selection of more than 200 Questions from Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh Papers, Senior and Junior (inserted by permission of the authorities)

BY

I. L. JOPLING, L.R.A.M.

Third Edition. Price 6d.

150 EXERCISES AND QUESTIONS ON THE ELEMENTS OF MUSIC, arranged in Chapters to be used with "Davenport's Manual for the Royal Academy and similar Examinations."

"Most thorough and searching Test Questions, systematically and exhaustively treated. Will prove of great help in preparing for the elementary examinations of the various colleges and academies."—Girl's Own Paper.

Sent by return of Post on receipt of published price by Miss I. JOPLING, L.R.A.M., Thirsk, Yorkshire.
London Agents: WEEKES and Co.

Now ready, Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d.

LECTURES ON MUSICAL ANALYSIS

EMBRACING SONATA-FORM, FUGUE, &c.,

Illustrated by the works of the Classical Masters, delivered before the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind.

BY

HENRY C. BANISTER,

Professor of Harmony, Counterpoint, and Composition (and of the Pianoforte) in that Institution, in the Guildhall School of Music, and in the Royal Academy of Music.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

MUSICAL ART AND STUDY: PAPERS FOR MUSICIANS.

Printed on hand-made paper, foolscap 8vo, cloth, 2s.

London: GEORGE BELL and SONS, York Street, Covent Garden.

SECOND THOUSAND. CLOTH BOARDS, IMPERIAL 8vo. PRICE 3s.

HARMONY & THOROUGH-BASS

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR USE IN CLASSES AND FOR THOSE PREPARING FOR MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

Composer of "The Holy City," "Ruth," "Passion Service," &c.

With fifty new exercises, written expressly for this work by T. Anderton, Dr. Bunnett, F. Cambridge, A. Deakin, A. R. Gaul, Dr. Gower, A. Page, H. Stonex, Dr. Wareing, and Dr. Winn; also examples by Albrechtsberger and Reicha.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Birmingham and Leicester: MIDLAND EDUCATIONAL Co., Limited.

CATECHISM on the RUDIMENTS of MUSIC and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL. Fourth and Revised Edition, price 1s. Also,

ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, as space is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.

PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY, comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises. Arranged by ELLICE E. JEWELL. Price 6s.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES. Price 1s.

"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.

"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

WORKS BY

JOHN FARMER,

ORGANIST AT BALLIOL COLLEGE, OXFORD, AND DIRECTOR OF THE HARROW MUSIC SCHOOL.

	s.	d.
HARROW SCHOOL SONGS ... ... complete	3	0
HARROW GLEE BOOK	3	0
NURSERY RHYMES. 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Sets ... ... each	1	0
CINDERELLA. Fairy Opera	3	0
CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS. Oratorio	3	0
Chorus parts	1	0
REQUIEM	2	0

JUST OUT.

A FROG HE WOULD A-WOOING GO	3	0

For Men's Voices, with Solos—for The Mouse (Alto), The Frog (Tenor), The Rat (Bass), with an Accompaniment for String Instruments and Piano or for Piano alone.

Chorus parts	1	0
String parts	0	6
The same for Mixed Voices	3	0

(With Accompaniment for String Instruments.)

And also for Female Voices, ditto	3	0

AND ALL OTHER WORKS ARE PUBLISHED BY

JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS STREET, W.

Now ready.

WOMAN'S LOVE AND LIFE

A CYCLE OF SONGS, WRITTEN BY
A. VON CHAMISSO.
COMPOSED BY ROBERT SCHUMANN
(Op. 42).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling.

MYRTHEN
(MYRTLES)
A CIRCLE OF SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT
COMPOSED BY
ROBERT SCHUMANN.

Edited and Translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

LIEDERKREIS
(TWELVE SONGS)

Poetry by J. VON EICHENDORFF, with Pianoforte Accompaniment
COMPOSED BY ROBERT SCHUMANN
(Op. 39).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.
Price One Shilling.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY
BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.
VOLUMES I., II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., CLOTH, FOUR SHILLINGS EACH.

VOLUME I.
1. Compositions by Bach
2. Compositions by Bach
3. Compositions by Bach

VOLUME II.
4. Compositions by Handel
5. Compositions by Handel
6. Compositions by Handel

VOLUME III.
7. Marches
8. Marches
9. Marches

VOLUME IV.
10. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
11. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.
12. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.

VOLUME V.
13. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
14. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
15. Compositions by Wollenhaupt

VOLUME VI.
17. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
18. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
19. Compositions by Fritz Spindler

VOLUME VII.
20. Compositions by H. Goetz
21. Compositions by H. Goetz
22. Compositions by H. Goetz

VOLUME VIII.
23. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
24. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
25. Compositions by J. Rheinberger

16. Scotch Airs (Duets).

List of Contents may be had gratis and Post-free.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S
ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

No. 5.
TWELVE SKETCHES
FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE
COMPOSED BY
BATTISON HAYNES.
Op. 15.

1. Thoughts.
2. Scherzino.
3. March.
4. Cradle Song.
5. Song without Words.
6. Mazurka.
7. Moto Perpetuo.
8. Rustic Dance.
9. Idyll.
10. Polonaise.
11. Arioso.
12. Intermezzo.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
ASHTON, ALGERNON.—March and Tarentella. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 30	10	0
BACH.—Passion of St. Luke. Vocal Score, German words. net	3	0
—— Kyrie, No. 1, Christe Eleison, and Kyrie, No. 2, from the B minor Mass. Arranged as Piano Duet by S. Jadassohn. each	3	0
BECKER, A.—Cantata for the 90th Birthday of the German Emperor. Op. 50:—
Full Score (German words) ... ... net	14	0
Orchestral Parts	24	0
Vocal Score ... ... net	4	6
BEETHOVEN.—Cantata on the Death of the Emperor Joseph II.:—
Full Score ... ... net	8	6
Orchestral Parts ... ... „	7	0
Vocal Score, with English words ... ... „	4	0
BEHR, FR.—Two Small Pieces. Violin and Piano. Op. 379. each	3	0
EBERHARDT, GOBY.—Small Suite. Violin and Piano:—
Book I., Op. 74, "In the Forest," "Die Kokette," Lied, Ländler, Polacca	6	0
Book II., Op. 75, Melody, Mazurek, Scherzo, Andante cantabile, Tarentelle	6	0
EIBENSCHÜTZ, A.—Walzer. Op. 3. For Pianoforte ...	3	0
—— Pieces for Pianoforte Duet. Op. 4:—
Book I., 5s ; Book II.	6	0
FIALA, J.—Three Lyrical Pianoforte Pieces:—
No. 1. "Evening," 3s.; No. 2. "Under the palm trees," 3s.; No. 3. "Sounds of the harp"	3	0
—— Three Polka Mazurkas. For Pianoforte ... ... each	2	0
FORCHHAMMER, TH.—Eight Chorals. Arranged for the Organ. Op. 11:—
Book I., 4s.; Book II.	4	0
FUCHS, R.—"Autumn Leaves." Twelve Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 43. Two books ... ... each	8	0
—— "Miniaturen." Twenty-four Small Pieces. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 44. Two books ... ... each	8	0
GIGOUT, E.—Six Pieces. For the Organ:—
No. 1. Prelude and Fugue	6	0
„ 2. Andante and Allegretto con moto	6	0
„ 3. Fantasia	6	0
„ 4. Andantino in E minor	5	0
„ 5. Larghetto in D minor...	5	0
„ 6. Andante sostenuto	5	0
GLUCK.—Dance of the Spirits (from "Orpheus"). Arranged for Flute and Pianoforte, or String Quartet, by W. Barge...	3	0
HANDEL.—Concerto in G minor. For Organ and Orchestra. Arranged for Organ Solo by S. de Lange	4	0
—— Ditto. Concerto in F	6	0
HOCHSTETTER, C.—"Dorfröschen." Five Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 4...	7	0
HOFMANN, H.—Ballet Music from the Opera "Donna Diana." For Pianoforte Duet...	9	0
—— Waltz from the same. Separately	6	0
—— Gavotte from the same. As Pianoforte Solo...	2	0
KIRCHNER, TH.—"Album Leaves." Op. 80. Nine Small Pianoforte Pieces	6	0
KLENGEL, P.—Six Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 10	6	0
KRUG, D.—Nine Celebrated Songs of Schumann. Easily arranged for Pianoforte ... ... each	2	0
LANGE, S. DE.—Andante, No. 2, in C minor. For the Organ	3	0
LISZT, F.—Technical Studies. For the Pianoforte. Five books ... ... each, net	3	0
LITZAU, J. B.—Sonata in A minor. Op. 19. For the Organ	10	0
MOZART.—Complete Works. Série XXIV.:—
Nos. 21*a* and 27*a*. Containing Pianoforte Solos, and with Accompaniments ... ... net	6	6
Nos. 28 and 48*a*. Containing Sacred and Secular Vocal Music ... ... net	2	6
NOSKOWSKI, S.—Dumka, Trepak, and Polonaise. For Pianoforte, Op. 22	4	0
ŒLSCHLAGEL, A.—"Vielliebchen." Idylle. Op. 81. For Pianoforte	3	0
PALESTRINA.—Complete Works. Vol. XXVI. Containing Litanies, Motetts, and Psalms ... ... net	20	0
POPPER, D.—Spanish Dances. Op. 54:—
No. 4. "L'Andalouse." For Cello and Pianoforte ...	5	0
„ 5. "Vito." For Cello and Pianoforte	6	0
—— Two Concert Studies. Op. 55. For Cello and Pianoforte:—
No. 1. Spinning Song. 8s.; No. 2. Hunting Song ...	6	0
—— "Murmuring breeze." Song. By A. Jensen. Arranged for Cello and Pianoforte	3	0
RATEZ, E.—First Easy Trio. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 6 ... ... net	4	0
—— Second Easy Trio in E flat. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 10... ... ... net	4	6
REINECKE, C.—Overture to "Zenobia." Op. 193:—
Full Score	15	0
Orchestral Parts...	18	0
Arranged for two Pianofortes (four hands)	6	0
—— Dramatic Fantasia "Zenobia." For Piano Duet. Op. 194	10	0
SARASATE, P. DE.—"Muineira." Theme and Variations. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 32	6	0
SCHARWENKA, PH.—For Young People. Six Small Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 71. Two books ... ... each	4	0
STAEGER, A.—"From summer time." Four Pieces. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 5. Two books ... ... each	5	0
WILM, N. VON.—Introduction and Gavotte. Op. 60. For two Pianofortes (four hands)	6	0
WOHLFAHRT, R.—"In summer and in autumn." Twelve Easy Characteristic Pianoforte Pieces ... ... each	2	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CONCONE'S LESSONS

NEW EDITION

WITH MARKS OF

EXPRESSION & PHRASING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

50 Lessons for the Medium part of the Voice.

40 Lessons for Contralto.

40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone.

The sterling value and great usefulness of Concone's Lessons have been so long recognised and so generally admitted, that their extensive adoption caused, as a natural consequence, the issue of numerous editions in almost every country where the study of the Art of Singing is cultivated. No edition, however, which has hitherto come under my notice, seems to me as correct, complete, and reliable as it should be.

I have endeavoured to rectify this deficiency by adding in the present edition signs of expression and phrasing, where I considered it expedient to do so, completing, and in some cases altering, the breathing marks, and altogether carefully revising the whole work.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Fourth Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

	s.	d.
Parts I. and II. ... ... each	1	0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ... ... each	0	2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUNG BY MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

GO, LOVELY ROSE

PART-SONG FOR FOUR VOICES

BY

J. CLIPPINGDALE.

Price 3d.

THE LONDON MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

FOUR-PART SONGS by S. S. STRATTON.—"Monarch Winter," words by W. S. PASSMORE, 3d.; "Summer is but fleeting," words by E. OXENFORD, 3d.; "Merrily every bosom boundeth," words by THOMAS MOORE, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS by A. J. CALDICOTT.

Poor Little Tom-ee (just published)...	6d.
Where are you going to, my pretty maid? (just published) ...	6d.
Humpty Dumpty	6d.
Little Jack Horner, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
Jack and Gill	4d.
The House that Jack built, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
The Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The Haymakers. Part-song	4d.
Out on the Waters. Part-song	4d.
Yule. Part-song	4d.
Sleeping Leaves. Glee...	4d.

London: METZLER and Co., 42, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW POPULAR SONGS.

A GOLDEN PROMISE (with Violin and Organ Accompaniments). Key F. Compass C to D. By H. T. TILTMAN.

DAPHNE. Words by Walter Besant. By H. T. TILTMAN.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.

STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

New Edition.

COME, FILL, MY BOYS, EACH CUP TO THE BRIM. Part-Song for A.T.T.B. By J. BAPTISTE CALKIN. The second part rewritten in a higher key. Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs, For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.

Part-Song—"The sun has gone down" (S.A.T.B.) ... 2d.
" —"Little Jack Horner" ... ... 4d.
(Sung with great success in London and provinces.)
Two-part Songs (S.C.)—"The Robin" ... ... 2d.
" —"The Skylark" ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	Net. s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ... (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	2	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	2	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner...	2	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ... (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)	2	0
THE ZINGARA ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)	2	0
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	2	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)	2	0

PIANOFORTE, &c.
ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition	2	0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook	2	0
MY LADYE BARBARA'S GAVOTTE	2	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.
THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 8th Edition	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 12th Edition	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 8th Edition	0	2
THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 10th Edition ...	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 7th Edition	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.)	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee. By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.—COMPLETE LISTS of the MUSIC, arranged in numerical order, may now be had on application, Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price 2s. net.

WILD WINDS.—For the Pianoforte. By POWIS HOULT.

"Graceful variations."—Dramatic Review.

"A clever set of variations on an original air."—Music Trades Review.

"To say that there is brilliancy and picturesqueness in it is to do it scant justice. It is really a fine piece of writing, demanding bold firm digitation, and certainly a soul as well as fingers."—Manchester Weekly Post.

"The piece opens with a spirited introduction, then follows the air, which is quiet and pleasantly harmonised, with three variations. The whole composition may be characterised as simple, unaffected, and graceful, and it will be gladly welcomed in the drawing-room."—Irish Times.

"Anything but languid is this other piece for the same instrument, Powis Hoult's 'Wild Winds,' which, after a florid introduction, brings in a very expressive air as a theme, and takes it through a series of three brilliant variations, which afford good scope for the talent of the virtuoso."—Scotsman.

"Professors of music will find it good exercise for their pupils, as it contains three distinct styles of playing, viz.: very full chorus, arpeggio chorus, and triplets with cross-hand passages."—Perthshire Advertiser.

London: MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, and of all Musicsellers.

THREE S.A.T.B. PART-SONGS

"HERALDS OF SPRING," "THE MONTH OF MAY," "MERRILY ROW WE,"

BY

JOHN GREIG, M.A., MUS. BAC., F.C.O.

Price of the Set, Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALL NATURE NOW IS SMILING. Part-song. By BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 1½d.

"This piece is a thoroughly meritorious production."—Sunday Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NINE SACRED DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

HENRY SMART.

No. 1. There was joy in Heaven.	No. 6. Where the weary are at rest.
" 2. The Lord is my shepherd.	" 7. Vox Matutina.
" 3. When brighter suns.	" 8. By Babylon's waters.
" 4. Faint not, fear not.	" 9. Evening.
" 5. The Sabbath Bell.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Standard Works for Choral Societies.

NEW EDITION OF

FAUST

A Dramatic Legend, by HECTOR BERLIOZ. A new Edition of this celebrated work at a greatly reduced price. Paper, 3s. 6d.; cloth, 5s. net.

GRAY'S ELEGY

A Cantata, by ALFRED CELLIER. Paper, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s.

THE MARTYR OF ANTIOCH

Sacred Musical Drama. Words selected from Milman's Poems. The Music composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Price, in paper cover, 5s. net; cloth, 8s. net.

GOD IS LOVE

A new Edition of this popular Cantata. Words selected from the Sacred Poets.

Music composed by MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON. Price 3s. net; separate Voice Parts, 6d. net. Harmonium Part, 1s. 6d. net.

THE JACKDAW OF RHEIMS

Cantata written by THOMAS INGOLDSBY.

Music composed by GEORGE FOX. Price 2s. 6d. net; Separate Voice Parts, 6d. net.

FRIDOLIN; OR, THE MESSAGE TO THE FORGE

Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Paper, 5s.; cloth, 7s. 6d.

MESSE SOLENNELLE—ROSSINI

A new Edition of this beautiful work at a reduced price. Paper, 4s.; cloth, 6s.

ISAIAS

Oratorio. Words by ALBINI (Translation by J. BENNETT)

The Music composed by MANCINELLI

Written expressly for the Norwich Festival of 1887 (will shortly be published in a cheap form).

Orchestral and Chorus Parts of all the above may be had on Hire of

CHAPPELL & CO.,

50, NEW BOND STREET, W., AND 15, POULTRY, E.C.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Wednesday, June 1, 1887.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 533.—Vol. 28. Registered for transmission abroad. JULY 1, 1887. Price 4*d.*; Post-free, 5*d.* Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5*s.*

ANNUAL CONSTABULARY CONCERT,

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE,

December 14, 1887.

Madame ALBANI. | Mr. CHARLES CHILLEY.
Madame PATEY. | Signor FOLI.

Seats can now be booked on application to Messrs. Hirschman and Co., 153, Pilgrim Street.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer Examinations at the College of Organists for A.C.O. and F.C.O. Diplomas will be held on 12th, 13th, and 14th inst., at ten o'clock each day. Candidates' names must be sent in on or before the 7th inst.

July 15, Diploma Distribution at 11, by Sir George Grove, D.C.L., LL.D., and a Vice-President of the College.

The College Library is open for reference on Tuesday evenings from seven to ten.

The Annual General Meeting will be held at eight o'clock on the 26th inst.

The "Wesley Prize" of 5 guineas, for the best Slow Movement for the Organ, has been awarded to Mr. C. Hancock, Mus. Bac., of Leicester. The other Prize Competitions will be decided and announced as soon as possible.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

GUILD OF ORGANISTS,

35, WELLINGTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Patron: The Right Rev. THE LORD BISHOP OF LONDON.
President: Sir HERBERT OAKELEY, Mus. Doc., LL.D.

Established to advance the cause of Church Music, and the interests of its professors. Annual Subscription: Professional Organists, 10s. 6d.; Amateur ditto, 15s.; Life Membership, Five Guineas.

A Public Meeting of Organists will be held after the coming vacation.

Applications for copies of the Laws of the Guild, or for Membership, to be addressed to the Hon. Sec.,

J. H. LEWIS, Esq., Ph.D., F.G.Os., Staines, Middlesex.

SCHOOL OF
ORATORIO AND RECITATIVE,

BURLINGTON HALL, BURLINGTON ST., REGENT ST.

Established 1886, under the direction of ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., and W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon. (Lecturer).

Instituted for the especial training of Vocalists in Oratorio, Cantata, Recitative and Concerted Music, Voice Production and Phrasing.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott, 57, Nevern Square, Earl's Court.

NORTH OF ENGLAND
CONCERT AGENCY

Musical Director: Mr. JOHN TOWERS.
182, Oxford Street, Manchester.

"HOW TO SING."—Mr. JOHN TOWERS is now booking dates for the delivery of this address, which has everywhere been received with marked favour. Address, as above.

GLASGOW CHORAL UNION.—The CONDUCTORSHIP of the above Society being VACANT, applications for the office will be received up to July 11, 1887. Terms of engagement and all further particulars may be learned from the Subscriber, to whom all applications are to be addressed.

CHAS. M. RAMSAY, Secretary, 34, St. Enoch Square, Glasgow.

SOLO BOY REQUIRED, for a Church in the North of London, for two Sunday services, one weekly rehearsal, and about six other services during the year. Terms not restricted for a competent candidate. Address, M. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside, E.C.

LEADING BOY WANTED, for the Surpliced Choir of Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley Street, W. Two Sunday services, two weekly practices, Christmas Day, Good Friday, &c. Stipend, from £15 to £20 to a suitable candidate. Write, or apply to Frederick J. Crowest, at the Chapel, as above.

TENORS (PARIS).—There are VACANCIES for TWO TENORS in the American Church of the Holy Trinity, Paris. Good singing and experience required; liberal salary. Apply, Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS" (REG.)

Conductor—Mr. JOSEF CANTOR.

Engagements fulfilled, Season 1886-1887:—

Leeds	Coliseum		4 Concerts.
Manchester	Free Trade Hall and Y.M.C.A.		3 Concerts.
Preston	New Public Hall		3 Concerts.
Halifax	Subscription Concerts		2 Concerts.
Bradford	St. George's Hall		3 Concerts.
Bolton	Albert and Temperance Halls		3 Concerts.
Huddersfield	Subscription Concerts
Worcester	Subscription Concerts
Liverpool	Hengler's Cirque
Bury	Co-operative Hall
Stalybridge	Town Hall
Leeds	Literary Society		2 Concerts.
Blackburn	Town Hall

&c., &c.

The répertoire of this Concert Company embraces selections from thirty different Operas, including "Tannhäuser," "Mefistofele," "Nadeshda," "Esmeralda," "La Gioconda," "Irene," "Carmen," "Oberon," "Talismano," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "Lily of Killarney," &c., &c.

The personnel comprises twenty-two Artists, all of whom are thoroughly competent Soloists. Selections are also introduced from the lighter compositions of Balfe, Wallace, Clay, Offenbach, Suppé, Cellier, Audran, and the Gilbert-Sullivan series.

Mr. Cantor is now booking dates for the Autumn and Winter of 1887, and will be pleased to forward full particulars, specimen programmes, &c., on application.

Address, Church Street, Liverpool. Telegrams—"Cantor," Liverpool.

MR. GEORGE J. BENNETT, having returned from Germany, is prepared to receive PUPILS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c. Address, 1, Berners Street, W., or 36, Stanford Road, Kensington, W.

OXFORD.—NEW COLLEGE.—LAY CLERK (Alto) WANTED. For particulars, apply to the Precentor, New College, Oxford.

WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Gray's Inn Road, a BASS VOICE. Salary, £8 per annum to begin. Apply, Rector, 27, John Street, Bedford Row.

BASS seeks permanency in a Cathedral Choir. Several years leading Bass in Provincial Church. Communicant. Long range, Soloist. Excellent testimonials. Address, Decani, care of Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

SURPLICES (12 Men's, 16 Boys'). £8. Will divide. Surplice, General Agency, Bank Buildings, Victoria Street, S.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for the Parish Church of Bishop's Stortford. Full Choral Service. Salary, £50. Apply, with references, to T. C. L., Bishop's Stortford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for a Roman Catholic College in Ireland. One qualified to teach the piano, violin, cornet, and flute. State salary required, copies of testimonials, age, and experience to R. J. Lamb, 33, Church Road, Lytham, Lancashire.

ORGANIST, DEPUTY (efficient), WANTED, for Church in neighbourhood of Streatham, during part of August and September, in exchange for Lessons and Practice. Anglican. Good Organ and Choir. O.C.C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, at once, for St. Paul's Church, Bedford, an experienced ORGANIST. Large church, fine organ, surpliced choir; choral services. Salary, £55. Apply, Rev. L. Woodard, Bedford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Seven years Articled Pupil to W. Done, Esq., Worcester Cathedral, is open for an ENGAGEMENT at once. Excellent testimonials as to ability. Apply, W. C. H., Cathedral, or Yarbro' House, Boughton Street, Worcester.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Cathedral training), Communicant, is open to an ENGAGEMENT in a town where there is a good opening for a Music and Singing Master (Violinist). Excellent testimonials and references. Address, Organist, care of Mrs. Lyon, Cricket St. Thomas, Chard, Somerset.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Cathedral training) requires Church APPOINTMENT. Anglican services. Organum, 17, Rylett Crescent, Shepherd's Bush, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS MARIAN BATES (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Mr. Brook Sampson, Mus. Bac., Beethoven House, Northampton.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby).
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield St., or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS CONWAY (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS HILDA COWARD (Soprano).
For Oratorios, &c., 4, Strafford Road, Twickenham.

MISS ELLA DALY (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., address, Mr. F. W. Holder, Music Warehouse, Hull.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MISS HATTIE HICKLING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. William Shakespeare).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 51, St. Mary's Road, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano),
3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS ELLIOT RICHARDS (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 9, Oakley Street, Northampton.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MRS. STONELEIGH (Soprano)
(Advanced Honours Certificate, N.S.P.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 67, Barton Arcade, Manchester.
"One of our most promising local sopranı."—Musical Times (London), June, 1886.
"Possesses a voice of excellent quality and range."—Musical Standard (London).

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).
MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby, and Assistant Professor in her Academy; also Professor in the Hyde Park Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS MARY EDYTHS (Contralto)
(Of the Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 2, Argyll Street, W.

MADAME MARIAN McKENZIE (Contralto).
Concert and Oratorio. Business Agent, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE (Contralto)
(Honours Certificate Royal Academy).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).
(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)
For Oratorios, Ballads, Pianoforte and Vocal Recitals, and Musical Lectures, 4, Valentine Street, Norwich. London Referees: Miss Selina Quick (Soprano, R.A.M.), 6, Brooklyn Road. Shepherd's Bush, W., and Mdme. Vinning O'Leary, 9, Notting Hill Square, London, W.
The Recitals consist of Sacred, Classical, Operatic, and Modern Selections, and the Lectures are on Mendelssohn, Mozart, Beethoven, &c., and are largely interspersed with appropriate Pianoforte and Vocal items rendered by Miss Poock.

MISS LAVINIA TALBOT (Contralto).
(Pupil of Herr Fogelberg and J. B. Welch, Esq.)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Matinées, &c.
"I wish to announce two approaching concerts, one to be given by the charming songstress, Miss Lavinia Talbot, on Tuesday, the 22nd inst., at 46, Powis Square, Westbourne Park."—The Ladies' Pictorial, Feb. 19, 1887. Address, 21, Dorchester Place, Blandford Square, London, N.W.

MADAME OSBORNE WILLIAMS (Contralto),
50, Loudoun Road, N.W.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor).
(Royal Academy Honours Certificate.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Moss Bridge, Darwen, Lancashire. At liberty for Seaside Engagements. Moderate terms.

MR. ARTHUR FOX, A.R.A.M. (Tenor).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 20, St. Charles' Square, North Kensington, W.

MR. JOSEPH HEALD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 33, Endlesham Road, Balham, London, S.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
"Sang excellently throughout, with great power and genuine art."—Kentish Gazette, May 7, 1887.
Address, The Cathedral, Canterbury.

MR. WM. CLARK, L.R.A.M. (Artist, Baritone),
20, Victoria Place, Camp Road, Leeds.

MR. W. J. INESON (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; Quartet also provided. Address, The Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. ARTHUR M. SHORE, R.C.M. (Baritone)
(Pupil of Signori Alberto Visetti and Franco Novara).
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. Has vacancies for pupils for Singing and Violin. 2, Salisbury Terrace, West Kensington Park.

MR. C. D. COLLET (Bass).
Teacher of Singing, 7, Coleridge Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass)
And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. EDWARD MILLS.
Baritone and Bass Parts, &c., 35, Knowle Road, S.W.

MR. HENRY POPE (Bass).
At liberty for Oratorios, Concerts, Opera, &c., 20, Bishop's Road, W.

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Huddersfield.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass),
51, Pentonville Road, N.

MISS VINNIE BEAUMONT (Soprano) is now booking Engagements for the ensuing Season for Oratorio, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, Festival Services, &c. Address, Point House, Brigg, Lincolnshire, and Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MADAME GEORGINA BURNS requests that all communications respecting Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88 may be addressed to Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, London, W.

MISS ELLEN ELTON (Soprano). For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Has removed to 27, Dancer Road, Fulham, S.W.

MISS MADELINE HARDY (Soprano) has REMOVED to 27, Loughborough Road, Brixton, where all communications respecting Concerts, &c., should be addressed.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 44, Alexandra Road, London, N.W., or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME FLORENCE WINN begs to announce her REMOVAL from 1, Hyde Park Mansions to Winnstay, Chapter Road, Willesden Park, N.W.

MISS MARION BURTON can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88. All communications to be addressed to her business agent, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, London, W.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS requests that all communications for Oratorio, Concerts, &c., be addressed to 30, St. Stephen's Avenue, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MR. BARTON McGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming Season. Address, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W., or, 270, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

MR. HERBERT ALDRIDGE (Baritone) is open to accept Oratorio and Concert Engagements for the coming season. Address, South Street, Romford, Essex; or Melcombe House, Twickenham.

MR. LESLIE CROTTY requests that all communications respecting Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88 may be addressed to Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W.

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY (Baritone Vocalist) requests that all communications concerning Engagements be addressed to N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, Bond Street, W.; or, for At Homes, &c., to Mitchell's, Old Bond Street, W.

MR. FREDERIC W. PARTRIDGE, A.R.C.M. (Baritone vocalist), can accept engagements for Oratorios and Concerts. Address, 2, St. George's Villas, Beckenham; or N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. W. H. BURGON, late Principal Bass of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and also of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, Sacred Harmonic Society, &c., begs to give notice that he is now at liberty for Oratorios and Concerts. All communications to 21, Westbourne Park Crescent, W.

MR. LAWFORD HUXTABLE (Bass-Baritone), Pupil of Signor Alberto Randegger, is open to accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.; or, 14, Regent Street, Clifton.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass) begs to announce that he is now open to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Ballad, and other Concerts during the season 1887-88. Reprints of his unprecedented Press notices obtained during the recent season will shortly be in the Press, and may be had on application to him at 14, Hanover Street, W. Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapels Royal, St. James's Palace, London, begs that all communications be addressed, 87, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. WALLIS A. WALLIS (Bass Vocalist) has a VACANCY for Lady with good voice to train for Concert Vocalist. References to pupils introduced. Advantageous terms. Home comforts. Willow Grove Lodge, Leeds.

MISS MARGARET GYDE, A.R.A.M. (Pianist), begs to announce her CHANGE of RESIDENCE. All communications respecting Lessons and Engagements should be addressed to her at 168, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

MR. A. VINTER, Accompanist for Concerts, Soirées, &c. Pupils taken. 19, East Street, Red Lion Square, Holborn, W.C.

BASSOON—Mr. A. KNIGHT (Leeds, Chester, and Worcester Festivals, &c.), having seceded from Mr. Charles Hallé's Orchestra, can arrange dates for next season's Concerts. Principal Bassoon or Contra Fagotto, or for solos. Press notices on application.

MUSICAL AGENCY.—Mr. Knight supplies any number of Instrumentalists for Concerts, &c. Estimates given for Bands. Address, 64, Higher Temple Street, Ardwick Green, Manchester.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Accessible from Victoria. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. NORMAN ADAMS, the Organist of the American Church, Paris, will be enabled to accept an APPOINTMENT in England, September next. Address, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, or Deputy, by Young Gentleman, 22½. Excellent testimonials. Moderate salary required. Address, B. G. F., Ranquel, 27, Ravensbourne Road, Bromley, Kent.

SCOTLAND.—A Young Lady desires the office of ORGANIST in Scotland. Is a good Organist and Pianoforte Player. Unexceptionable references can be given. Address, P. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY ORGANIST.—Post as above in London or the suburbs WANTED, by a Young Lady, in October. Experienced and accustomed to full choral services. A. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO MUSICIANS and ARTISTS.—Comfortable Rooms (Residential or otherwise) can be had at a moderate rent, in a fine new building, in a central position, close to the Strand. Lighted throughout by electric light and fitted with every convenience. Apply at the Collector's Office in the Hall, of 63 and 64, Chancery Lane, W.C.

TO MUSICSELLERS and Others.—WANTED, the MUSIC to SONGS and BALLADS. Words by JAMES BRUTON. By various composers: J. N. Sporle, Alexander Lee, James Lee Summers, &c. Address, D. Yeo Bruton, 12, Crane Court, Fleet Street.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TUITION, by CORRESPONDENCE, for the Musical Examinations held by Trinity College, London, the Colleges of Organists, Preceptors, and the Universities. Single subjects taught. Full particulars from James Jennings and Co., Deptford, London.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON. (1885), and T.C.D. (1884), MUS. BAC., OXON. (1886); MUS. BAC. T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., CANTAB.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (1st Class, June, 1887), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.R.A.M. (1887); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1886), N.S.P.M. (1887); Toronto (1887, 1st Class in Final Examination), F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 260 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by DR. ALLISON'S Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885, 1886, and 1887. Harmony, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, &c., by post. 9, Avington Grove, Penge, S.E.

DR. H. COY gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Candidates prepared for all Musical Examinations. Address, Sale, near Manchester.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by Post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: Trinity College, London, 1887; College of Organists, 1887; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1887; First, Second, and Final Examinations, with first on list in Final; A.R.C.M., 1887. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

DR. HULTON MIDDLETON, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares Candidates for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Glossop Road, Sheffield.

MR. REGINALD B. MOORE, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., gives LESSONS in COUNTERPOINT, HARMONY, &c., and prepares Candidates for Examinations by Correspondence. Address, Kenilworth, York Road, Exeter.

MR. HENRY PIGGOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS by Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and other branches of the THEORY of MUSIC. Candidates prepared for Musical Examinations. Terms moderate. Alton, Hants.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street, Mayfair, W.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M. in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Latest successes: Mus. Bac., Final, Cantab., 1886; A.C.O. and L.R.A.M. in Composition, 1887. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

MR. HENRY J. WOOD (Organist of St. John's, Fulham) is open to receive Pupils for Pianoforte and Organ. New Organs opened and Recitals given in town or country. Address, 185, Oxford Street, London, W.

TO SINGERS (Professional and Amateur).—Mr. FRANK AUSTIN, L.Mus.T.C.L., attends at 10, Ellington Street, Barnsbury, N., every Thursday, from eleven o'clock to six o'clock, for Concert-Coaching, &c., &c., Lessons. Terms (moderate) on application. Lectures on "Vocalisation," arranged for Institutes, &c.

PIANO, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT.—LESSONS personally or by Correspondence. Local Secretary, Musical International College. Own or Pupils' Residence. Miss Champion, A.Mus.T.C.L., 7, Weymouth Street, London, W.

ASSISTANT-PUPIL REQUIRED by the Professor of Music of a large Public School. Must be able to play services well. Age about 19. For particulars as to salary, &c., apply, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—Mr. G. ERNEST LAKE, Author of "Pedal Scales and Daily Studies" (Novello), Organist and Mus. Dir. All Saints', Kensington, has a VACANCY for above. Large Organ. Full choral services. Professional experience; moderate premium. 57, Burlington Road, Bayswater, W.

MUSIC ASSISTANT.—WANTED, a thoroughly competent ASSISTANT for Trade Department of Publishing House. State previous experience and salary required to B., 62, King William Street, City.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c., blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

GOOD TUNER WANTED. First-class references. Seaside town. Apply Marbe, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—WANTED, good sound TUNER; able also to tune American Organs and Harmoniums. First-class references required. Liberal salary and commission. Age not above 40. Apply (with photo) to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

PIANOFORTE TUNING.—APPRENTICE WANTED. Premium required (outdoor). Morland Bros., County Music Saloon, Lancaster.

SITUATION WANTED, as PIANOFORTE TUNER. Steady and reliable. X., Miss Osmond's, Westgate Street, Bath.

EXPERIENCED TUNER wishes RE-ENGAGEMENT. Understands Harmoniums, &c. Excellent Pianist. Apply, G., care of Rumbold, Southill Park, Hampstead, N.W.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Very steady and reliable. Knowledge of Repairs, &c. Good references. Tuner, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

IMPROVER.—The friends of a respectable Young Man desire to place him as IMPROVER in a good ESTABLISHMENT, where he would acquire a knowledge of Tuning, and of the Pianoforte Business generally. Excellent performer, both on piano and organ. Address, stating terms, Improver, 1, West Parade, Scarborough.

MUSIC TRADE.—A Young Man (aged 29, married) will shortly be disengaged, and wishes a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a first-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Is thoroughly well up in all the Catalogues, is a pushing Salesman, can play at sight, and make himself useful both in Warerooms and at Counter. England preferred, but would go to America or Australia if expenses are allowed. Please reply, stating salary, to Musician, 10, Victoria Terrace, Terenure Road, County Dublin, Ireland.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, Paris, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,
PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials Post-free on application.

PIANO.—WANTED, a Young Man to act as ASSISTANT and ORGANIST, and to accompany on the Piano. Must be able to read at sight. Must be single, and between the age of 25 and 30. Salary to commence at £40 a year, with board, lodging, uniform, and washing. Apply to the Superintendent, the County Asylum, Melton, Woodbridge, Suffolk.

WANTED, experienced PIANO and MUSIC SALESMAN. Must be energetic. Highest references required. South Coast. Apply to Elmo, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, ASSISTANT, who thoroughly understands the Sheet Music Department, and who can try over Pianos well. R. Morley and Co., 63, High Road, Lee, S.E.

NOTICE to MUSIC PUBLISHERS, SMALL GOODS MERCHANTS, &c.—W. WHITTINGHAM (over twenty years country representative for Hutchings and Romer) begs respectfully to intimate that he will be open to an engagement (commission or otherwise) on and after September 1 next, or earlier. Address, 36, Lilleshall Road, Clapham, S.W.

REQUIRED, ENGAGEMENT in MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by a Young Lady. Good Organist and Pianist. Comfortable home. Seaside preferred. R., 1, Townsend Road, Lansdowne Road, Tottenham, N.

ORGAN BUILDERS.—WANTED, a thoroughly competent FOREMAN. Provincial firm, about 30 hands. References from a good firm indispensable. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO ORGAN BUILDERS.—WANTED, immediately. Good inside hands. Apply to Nicholson and Co., Palace Yard, Worcester.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogues on application. Parcels of music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. Peck, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

MUSIC carefully and neatly COPIED or TRANSPOSED at 5d. per MS. page. Minim, Farnborough Street, Farnborough, Hants.

THE UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY (Established 1854) is the largest in the world. Subscription £2 2s. per annum, £1 8s. per half year, &c. Music can be selected at end of term as subscribers' property equal to one-half of their subscription at full price. All music, English and foreign, &c., promptly supplied. For prospectuses apply to Charles Woolhouse, Proprietor, 81, Regent Street, London, W.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., Post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 14th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.
(Late of Coventry Street),
WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF MUSICAL STRINGS
FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.
NO OTHER ADDRESS.

BUSINESS for SALE.—An old-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, well situated in a main road, W. district, is for SALE, owing to retirement of the Proprietor. Principals only treated with. Apply A. V., 3 Bond Court, Walbrook, E.C.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE.—One of the best Businesses in the Midland Counties. A certain fortune for a practical man. Ill-health cause of sale. Cash required about £1,000, which would include Stock, Fixtures, Goodwill, Furniture, Horse, Van, &c. Address, B. M. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ESTABLISHED MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE (through death) in a large Town. Suitable for a pushing man with knowledge of Tuning and Repairing. Excellent position. Rent low. Stock: Pianos, Music, and Small Goods. Inspection invited. Fair offer accepted. Must be sold. Apply, 23, Arcade, Leeds.

ORGAN (fine-toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

TWO-MANUAL ORGANS for SALE. Church or Chapel. 26, 16, 10, and 8 stops. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Manchester, S.W.

FOR SALE.—A handsome CHAMBER ORGAN, in solid mahogany case, illuminated pipe front, carved and gilt brackets and frets. Height, 9 ft. 7 in.; depth, 2 ft. 9 in.; width, 4 ft. 4½ in. 4½ octaves manual, 1½ octaves pedals, foot or handblower; 7 stops, fifteenth, principal, and stopt diapason in bass; flute, fifteenth, principal, and open diapason in treble. Can be seen at C. E. Godfrey's Pianoforte Stores, Stanley Lane, Southsea.

FOR SALE, the GRAND ORGAN in the Royal Yorkshire Jubilee Exhibition, Saltaire, suitable for a Concert Hall or large Church, containing four manuals and 44 stops. For full particulars apply to P. Conacher and Co., Organ Builders, Huddersfield.

A LARGE STOCK of SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS and AMERICAN ORGANS always for SALE at Reduced Prices. No charge for packing or carriage. Descriptive Price Lists Post-free. Haynes and Co., Importers of Musical Instruments, Cecilia Hall, Malvern.

"ALBANY" AMERICAN ORGANS. Cheapest and best. SNELL and CO., Manufacturers (removed to), 32, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W. Special terms to trade and profession.

PLEYEL HORIZONTAL GRAND PEDALIER for SALE. Length, 7 ft. 9 in.; suitable for Boudoir or Concert Grands. Reduced price. Apply at 170, New Bond Street.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.
Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.
A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.
Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.
The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

MESSRS. BEARE AND SON
MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,
STRINGS, FITTINGS, &c.,
34, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.
MERCHANTS, SHIPPERS, AND THE TRADE SUPPLIED.

BEARE and SON invite an inspection of their unrivalled Collection of OLD VIOLINS, TENORS, CELLOS, and DOUBLE-BASSES. All genuine examples of the celebrated OLD MASTERS, from £5 upwards.
Over Three Hundred Old Instruments from which to select.
Sole Wholesale Agents for JAMES TUBBS's celebrated BOWS.
The only Makers of the New Queen's Model PIANO and AMERICAN ORGAN CHAIRS (as exhibited at the International Exhibitions). Metal tube frames, gilt with the best gold bronze, shaped seats, upholstered to taste, from £1 11s. 6d.
TOY INSTRUMENTS and MUSIC, for the Performance of Toy Symphonies, from 18s. 6d. per set, including Music. Lists of Toy Symphony Music, and Instruments required, sent on application.
BRASS and WOOD INSTRUMENTS of every kind, at lowest possible prices.
HARPS bought, sold, or taken in exchange.
REPAIRS of every kind of Musical Instrument executed promptly by experienced Workmen.

NEWLY REVISED AND ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE JUST OUT.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.
Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.
Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

EUSTACE INGRAM
ORGAN BUILDER,
BURNARD PLACE, HOLLOWAY, LONDON, N.
Tone very sweet, characteristic, and sonorous; reeds smooth, even, and brilliant; action absolutely noiseless, light, and elastic, with most perfect repetition. Unrivalled for standing in tune and repair. Prices most reasonable.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent Post-free for 13 stamps. PRENZEL'S PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, Post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps. Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

PIANOS.—860 Pianos, 350 American Organs.—IMMEDIATE SALE.—In consequence of the retirement of the Senior Partner of the Firm of T. D'ALMAINE and CO. (established 100 years), the whole of the above Stock is now offered at an enormous Reduction in Price, to effect a speedy Sale. Easy terms arranged, and ten years' warranty given with every Instrument. Pianos, 12 guineas, 15 guis., 17 guis., 20 guis., &c.; Organs, 5 guis., 11 guis., 15 guis., 24 guis., &c. T. D'Almaine and Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement E.C.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

SPEAKERS and SINGERS give unqualified praise to BASKER'S UNIVERSAL LOZENGES. They clear the throat, and give tone and power to the vocal organs. (See Testimonials from Mrs. Scott Siddons, Mr. Farley Sinkins, &c.) In tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., of all Chemists. Post, 14 and 33 stamps, from Basker and Co., Chemists, Bridgwater.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, Post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

COMPOSITIONS BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

THE SPECTRE'S BRIDE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

Op. 69.

The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D., from the Poem by K. J. ERBEN.
Composed expressly for the Birmingham Festival, 1885.

Paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth gilt, 5s.; full score, 63s.; string parts, 17s. 6d.; wind parts, £1 10s. 3d.; vocal parts, 1s. each.

THE TIMES.

"His instrumentation more especially is full of the most startling surprises, which defy description. . . . The first of these songs, dealing with the Maiden's thought of her long-lost lover, is extremely charming. In its quaint rhythms and graceful fioriture, the Bohemian element, so important in Dvorák's music, will be easily recognised. The second solo, embodying the Maiden's prayer in her highest need, rises to a fine climax of religious fervour."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Antonin Dvorák is now more destined than ever to be the composer who combines in himself the highest qualities of his art. What his symphonies and his 'Stabat Mater' proclaimed, 'The Spectre's Bride' affirms and proves beyond possibility of cavil. . . . The music to the narrative is mighty in its picturesqueness and force. It swoops down irresistibly, so to speak, upon the hearer, and carries him helplessly away on its tide. Nor does the current ever slacken. By device after device interest is kindled anew. Now melody, now harmony, how rhythm give stimulus, and both mind and ear lend themselves gratefully to the task imposed upon them. The power of music increases as the climax is approached, the scene in the hut where the Maiden takes refuge being of enthralling power, a fact the more to be observed because nothing is due to mere sensationalism."

STANDARD.

"Enthusiasm such as was bestowed upon 'The Spectre's Bride' has seldom been heard at Birmingham; and the composer, who conducted, received a greeting at the close that will still ring in his ears when he returns home to Prague. He was twice recalled by the acclamations."

ATHENÆUM.

"Of the music it is quite impossible in words to convey any adequate idea. Whatever we may say will appear weak to those who have heard the work, and exaggerated to those who have not. . . . A well-known musician remarked during the performance, 'The man is a magician!' and we heartily endorse the statement."

A PATRIOTIC HYMN

From the Bohemian Poem, "The Heirs of the White Mountain," written by VÍTĚSLAW HÁLEK.

The music composed for Chorus and Orchestra, and dedicated with feelings of deep gratitude to the English people.
The English Version by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Price 1s. 6d.; full score, 21s.; string parts, 4s. 6d.; wind parts, MS.

STABAT MATER

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

Op. 58.

Paper cover, 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s.; cloth gilt, 4s.; full score, 45s.; orchestral parts, 30s.; vocal parts, 9d. each.

THE TIMES.

"To sum up, Dvorák's 'Stabat Mater' is undoubtedly an original effort of great power, all the more worthy of notice at a time when the clever repetition of musical platitudes is too frequently mistaken for genuine inspiration."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"Their verdict can only be one of strengthened approval—more complete recognition of the fact that here we have music absolutely original and absolutely great! Let the reader pause to grasp the full significance of words which prudent criticism uses very rarely indeed, and then only under extreme provocation. I am ready to justify them if they be called in question. There is not a passage in the 'Stabat Mater' upon which a man can place his finger, saying, 'That is in letter or in idea a borrowed thing.' Neither is there a passage justly open to the charge of falling below the dignity or failing in expression of the pathos of the subject."

MORNING POST.

"Dvorák, with less experience, but greater musical genius, than Rossini, treats his 'Stabat Mater' as absolute music; and, probably without a thought at first of its ever being brought to a hearing, began his work out of the depth of his heart, and 'heart to heart speaketh herein.'"

STANDARD.

"The whole work is a production of very great merit, and will assuredly be heard again and again."

WEEKLY DISPATCH.

"I have described it in detail on previous occasions, and therefore shall only say now that no choral work since Beethoven conveys to my mind a stronger sense of sustained grandeur, pathos, and melodic inventiveness."

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee	E. H. Thorne	3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	H. Gadsby	1½d.
Blessed be thou	Dr. Bunnett	3d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	Sir J. Goss	6d.
Fear not, O land	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	J. F. Bridge	4d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	G. A. Macfarren	6d.
Great is the Lord	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	E. J. Hopkins	6d.
I will give Thanks unto Thee	J. Barnby	4d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	Sir J. Goss	3d.
Make melody within your hearts	Rev. F. A. J. Hervey	3d.
O give thanks	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	T. M. Pattison	3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	J. Barnby	1½d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works ...	Sir G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
O praise the Lord	Sir Herbert Oakeley	4d.
O praise the Lord of Heaven	Sir J. Goss	6d.
O that men would praise the Lord	J. C. Bridge	4d.
Our God is Lord of the harvest	Emma Mundella	3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Rev. E. V. Hall	4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Dr. W. Hayes	4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	W. G. Wood	4d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul...	H. Lahee	1½d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	G. Garrett	1½d.
Praised be the Lord	C. Steggall	1/-
Sing praises to God	H. W. Wareing	1½d.
The earth is the Lord's	Dr. C. S. Heap	4d.
The earth is the Lord's	A. Lowe	3d.
The earth is the Lord's	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The fost'ring earth, the genial showers... ...	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
The harvest-tide thanksgiving	J. Barnby	1½d.
The Lord hath done great things...	H. Smart	4d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	G. Garrett	3d.
This is the day	Sir Herbert Oakeley	4d.
Thou visitest the earth and blessest it	W. H. Callcott	2d.
Thou visitest the earth	Dr. Greene	1½d.
Thou visitest the earth	J. Baptiste Calkin	4d.
While the earth remaineth...	C. Swinnerton Heap	4d.
While the earth remaineth...	B. Tours	1½d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	J. Stainer	1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES
FOR HARVEST
SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	J. Barnby.
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	Sir F. Ouseley.
Father, blessing every seed-time	Dr. Dykes.
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead...	W. Metcalf.
The wintry time hath ended	Dr. Gauntlett.
Come, ye thankful people, come	Sir George Elvey.
God, the Father, Whose creation...	H. Smart.
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail...	Anonymous.
Lo, summer comes again	Rev. E. B. Whyley.
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	German.
Summer ended, harvest o'er	J. Adcock.
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	Dr. Wesley.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST
THANKSGIVING MARCH
FOR THE ORGAN
BY
J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.
One Shilling and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA
(HARVEST CANTATA)
FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
COMPOSED BY
C. M. VON WEBER.
Op. 58.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The words translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Octavo, 1s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.

O GIVE THANKS. Composed by E. A. SYDENHAM. As sung at the Festival of the London Sunday School Choirs, at the Crystal Palace, on June 15, by

5,000 VOICES.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.
GREAT IS THE LORD

Festival Anthem for Harvest or General use, by E. A. SYDENHAM.

"A jubilant composition, full of spirit, and a most successful treatment of the words."—Church Times.

"An excellent specimen of a Choral Festival Anthem, is bright and jubilant in style, very melodious and easy throughout. It well deserves the attention of Choirmasters."—Leeds Mercury.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.
TO BE SUNG AT THE
CARMARTHEN CHURCH CHORAL UNION FESTIVAL.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUR GOD IS LORD OF THE HARVEST
ANTHEM FOR HARVEST
COMPOSED BY EMMA MUNDELLA.
Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM
ANTHEM FOR HARVEST THANKSGIVING OR ANY SPECIAL SERVICE
BY
REV. E. V. HALL.
Price Fourpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Thousand.
NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.
THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE
"Easy, melodious, and effective."
COMPOSED BY EDWYN A. CLARE.
Old Notation, price 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, price 2d.
To be sung this year by about 1,500 voices at Newcastle-on-Tyne.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL FEED MY FLOCK. NEW HARVEST ANTHEM. Price 4d. By CALEB SIMPER, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Worcester (Composer of Ten Prize Tunes to Favourite Hymns, also the First Prize Tune in the Manchester Sunday School Competition, 1887). "Exceedingly pretty, and not difficult."

Also the following popular, easy, melodious, and effective Anthems, &c.

And God said, Let the earth. 23rd Edition	3d.
O Lord, how manifold. 6th 1,000	4d.
Fear not, O land. 6th 1,000	3d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul. 4th 1,000...	3d.
They that sow in tears. 6th Edition	3d.
Make a joyful noise. 6th 1,000	3d.
Te Deum in F. 6th Edition	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. 10th Edition	4d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. 2nd Edition ...	4d.
Communion Service in F. New...	6d.

TONIC SOL-FA.—The first five Anthems (including the new one) may be had in Tonic Sol-fa. Price of each, 1d. less than Old Notation.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.—BY THOS. SMITH. 3d. each.

THOU CROWNEST THE YEAR. 26th Ed. "O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O Land." 2nd Ed. "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "It is a good thing." London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmund's.

HYMN for FESTIVAL SERVICES.—SAVIOUR, BLESSED SAVIOUR. Tune by C. HAWKINS, Macclesfield. Price 2d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SMALLWOOD'S (WM.) FESTAL and GENERAL ANTHEMS.

No. 1. THE LORD REIGNETH. Easter, Whitsuntide, or General.
„ 2. THUS SAITH THE LORD, THE KING OF ISRAEL. Easter, Trinity, or General.
„ 3. PRAISED BE THE LORD DAILY. Harvest, Easter, or Whitsuntide.
„ 4. I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. Festival or General.
„ 5. IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Christmas.
„ 6. I WILL GIVE THANKS. Easter, Ascension, or General.
Price 2d. each.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE SIR MICHAEL COSTA PRIZE.

ADJUDICATOR:
SIR HERBERT S. OAKELEY, M.A., MUS.D., LL.D.

The Academical Board will award in December, 1887, a Prize of TEN GUINEAS and the Gold Medal of the College for the best Overture for Orchestra.

All Students and Members of the College (excepting only Members of the Council) are eligible for the Competition. No Competitor shall be considered eligible who has previously taken the first or only prize at these Competitions.

No Competitor is allowed to send in more than one Composition.

All Compositions must be sent to the College addressed to the Secretary, on or before November 30, 1887.

THE MAYBRICK PRIZE.

The Academical Board will also award in January next the Maybrick Prize of FIVE GUINEAS to the Candidate who shows the most conspicuous merit in Ballad Singing.

All present and past Students of the College are eligible to compete.

Copies of the Regulations, containing full particulars, may be had on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By order.

WILL BE READY IN A FEW DAYS.

A SHORT HISTORY

OF

CHEAP MUSIC

AS EXEMPLIFIED IN THE RECORDS OF THE HOUSE

OF

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE FIRST FIFTY YEARS OF THE REIGN OF

HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY

QUEEN VICTORIA

WITH A

PREFACE BY SIR GEORGE GROVE, D.C.L., &c., &c.

AND PORTRAITS OF

VINCENT NOVELLO, J. ALFRED NOVELLO,

AND

HENRY LITTLETON.

ETCHED BY H. R. ROBERTSON.

	s.	d.
Small 8vo .. .. price	2	0
Ditto, on hand-made paper (only 1,000 copies printed), with proofs of Portraits	5	0
Large paper Edition, limited to 250 copies	10	6

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITED

FOR

DRIVING ORGAN BELLOWS

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's " "
Lichfield "
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).
St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity "
Alnwick (Parish Church).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

COMPOSITIONS BY WALTER PORTER.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF E.

Price One Shilling.

TWO COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN

No. 1. Allegretto Grazioso in E flat. 1s. 6d. net.
" 2. Andantino in F. 1s. net.
Also, Three Short Andantes. Price, complete, 1s. 6d. net.

THREE PIECES FOR THE PIANOFORTE

No. 1. Gavotte in F. No. 2. Impromptu in B minor, each 1s. 6d. net.
No. 3. Impromptu in E flat, 2s. net.

ROMOLA. First Waltz for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED FOR THE

FESTIVAL CONCERT

HELD AT THE

CRYSTAL PALACE,

JUNE 22, 1887.

WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

(OP. 36.)

"An unaccompanied choral prayer, 'Lord of life, and light, and glory,' rises to a still higher plane. Solidly written, and laden with rich yet not recondite harmonies, this number is likely long to survive the occasion that gave it birth. It shows how well Mr. Mackenzie can write in the broadest style for a mass of voices. The lead-up to the National Anthem belongs to a still higher order of things. Constructed with rare art, it answers to the ideal of preparation for a climax, and works upon the feelings with immense power till 'God save the Queen' comes in as an ultimate expression."—Daily Telegraph.

"The reception of the Jubilee Ode proved unmistakably that it had thoroughly taken hold of public favour, and this is a fact agreeable to note seeing that the work was entirely of home growth."—Standard.

"The work is short and occupies only about three-quarters of an hour in performance, but it is full of interest from the first note to the last, and in its every line displays the thoughtful and the experienced musician."—Morning Post.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
JULY 1, 1887.

A FORGOTTEN BOOK.

AMONGST the few amateurs for whom a niche has been found in Sir George Grove's Pantheon, an important rank must be assigned to Richard, second Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, of whose "Musical Reminiscences," published anonymously in 1824, and expanded in the course of the succeeding ten years to twice its original bulk, we purpose to give our readers some account in the present paper. This work, long out of print, must be regarded as an authority of first-rate importance upon the history of vocal and, in particular, of operatic music during the period which it covers. The author, it is true, modestly owns that he had no better ground on which to form a critical judgment than "a tolerable ear and long experience of hearing the best music while it was in its highest perfection." But the internal evidence contained in his pages prove him to have been possessed of excellent taste and discrimination, and the fact that Banti, the greatest prima donna of the last decade of the eighteenth century, consented to appear in an opera of his composition, points to greater technical proficiency than we should have credited him with on his own modest assurances. In these days, when the screen of anonymity is too often made use of for the reckless indulgence in malevolent personalities, or the raking up vulgar gossip, it is pleasant to encounter a book in which courtesy and frankness are so happily blended. The "old amateur" writes with warmth on many subjects, but he never forgets what is expected of a chivalrous controversialist or inserts a single "good" story for the sole motive of raising a laugh. To the few details to be found in the notice in Grove's Dictionary we may add the following, for which we are indebted to the present head of the family. Besides "Zenobia," the opera alluded to above, he wrote another, entitled "Il Re Pastorale," as well as several long oratorios or cantatas—"Isaaco," "Giuditta," "Le Cinesi"—the autograph MSS. of which are to be seen in the library at Mount Edgcumbe. Further evidence of his devotion to music is to be found in the organ, a sweet-toned instrument by Elliot, erected in 1812, and on which he was a skilled performer. He also composed a good deal of Church music, some of his Services being until quite recently in use at Exeter Cathedral. Turning to his book, we learn that it grew out of a correspondence with a friend on music and its recent changes, as illustrated by the former state of the opera, criticisms upon its most celebrated performers, and consists of "as correct an account as my memory, naturally very retentive, could enable me to write of all the musical events that have occurred during the long period to which my remembrance extends, and particularly of the Italian Opera in this country." These reminiscences are written confessedly from the standpoint of the laudator temporis acti, one "who was passionately fond of music while music was really good," and who regrets that the good old style has been supplanted by the "fantastical and trifling frippery" of the modern school—i.e., that of Rossini and Meyerbeer, as the sequel proves. He anticipates that his criticisms, which to his contemporaries must appear very old-fashioned, will, if read fifty years hence, be probably "considered to be founded in truth and justice." This prediction is likely enough to be fulfilled, though occasionally in rather a different way from that which the writer anticipated, the chief interest attaching to his pointed criticisms often consisting in the singular accuracy with which he has forestalled, sometimes totidem verbis, the objections raised against the successive innovations and fresh departures which have occurred in the last fifty years. To him the human voice is the first and finest of all instruments, yet he has no sympathy with artists who subordinate dramatic conception and sacrifice all sense of proportion and fitness to mere vocal display. He deprecates the advance in complexity of instrumentation and the decadence of fine voices, while, at the same time, he passes the severest strictures on Catalani for "outrageous displays of execution," for singing variations written for the violin, for "spoiling every simple air" by ornament, and for the "luxuriance and redundancy" with which she indulged in ad libitum passages. As we have noted above, his interest in music centred all his life in the opera, "for," as he says, "I was carried thither in my childhood; as I advanced in years my taste for it increased, and for the best portion of my life I was one of its most constant frequenters."

Of the many great prime donne whom he heard during half-a-century of opera-going, Gabrielli, more renowned on the Continent than in England, was one of the first; but his chief recollection of her performance in the opera of "Didone," in or about the year 1775, was of the ease with which she tucked up her great hoop and sidled into the flames of Carthage. She was succeeded by Pozzi, who in turn gave place to Miss Cecilia Davies—known in Italy as L'Inglesina, "the first Englishwoman who had yet sustained the part of prima donna. . . . Her elder sister played on the harmonica, an improved kind of musical glasses, and in the last edition of Metastasio's works is a cantata written for the one sister to sing, the other to accompany on that instrument." Of Galli, a contralto, who in her prime had sung in Handel's oratorios, conducted by himself, and who, by virtue of her voice and physique, often filled the part of secondo uomo, he tells the following pathetic story. "Galli . . fell into extreme poverty, and at the age of seventy was induced to come forward to sing again at the oratorios. I had the curiosity to go, and heard her sing 'He was despised and rejected of men,' in 'The Messiah.' Of course, her voice was cracked and trembling, but it was easy to see her school was good, and it was pleasing to observe the kindness with which she was received and listened to, and to mark the animation and delight with which she seemed to hear again the music in which she had formerly been a distinguished performer. The poor old woman had been in the habit of coming to me annually for a trifling present, and she told me on that occasion that nothing but the severest distress should have compelled her so to expose herself, which, after all, did not answer its end, as she was not paid according to her agreement. She died shortly after." Of Danzi, a German, who had never even visited Italy, he says, that though an excellent musician, endowed with a voice of "uncommon clearness and compass," and capable of the most astonishing execution, "her performance was unsatisfactory, being too much alla Tedescha, and more like that of an instrument than of a human voice," a criticism forecasting the familiar charge so often levelled in modern times against German singers and composers in regard to their treatment of the voice. Another singer of phenomenal agility was Aguijari, whom, however, the writer never heard, as she sang only in concerts, and was succeeded at the Pantheon by Giorgi, a young singer of promise, known afterwards under the name of Madame Banti, as perhaps the most delightful singer of her age. The year 1778 was remarkable for the arrival of Pacchierotti, the famous male soprano—"the most perfect singer it ever fell to my lot to hear. . . . His voice was an extensive soprano, full and sweet. . . . His powers of execution were great; but he had far too good taste and too good sense to make a display of them where it would have been misapplied, confining it to one bravura song (Aria d'agilita) in each opera, conscious that the chief delight of singing and his own supreme excellence lay in touching expression and exquisite pathos." He was an excellent musician, able to read anything with spirit and intelligence at first sight, who "could not sing a song twice in exactly the same way, yet never . . . introduced an ornament that was not judicious and appropriate to the composition." This latter sentence, which conveys to a modern reader rather a curious impression of the attitude adopted by singers towards composers, needs the explanation which is given on page 130 (4th edition): "Many songs of the old masters would be very indifferently sung by modern performers, not on account of their difficulty, but their apparent facility. Composers when writing for a first-rate singer noted down merely a simple tema with the slightest possible accompaniment, which, if sung as written, would be cold, bald, and insipid. It was left to the singer to fill up the outline, to give it the light and shade, and all its grace and expression, which requires not only a thorough knowledge of music, but the greatest taste and judgment. No one ever worked on such a canvas like Pacchierotti." As an actor, in spite of personal disadvantages, he was forcible and impressive, but it was in the concert-room, and in private society most of all, where he shone, "giving way to his fancy," when amid a small circle of friends, "and seeming almost inspired. . . . I have often seen his auditors, even the least musical, moved to tears while he was singing." Lord Mount Edgcumbe also mentions that he had more than once the good luck to hear him sing "A cantata of Haydn's, called 'Ariane à Naxos,' composed for a single voice with only a pianoforte accompaniment, and that played by Haydn himself: it is needless to say the performance was perfect." The season of 1780 was one of the finest our author ever remembers. Pacchierotti returned, and Madame Lebrun [née Danzi], Ansani, a fine tenor, and Pozzi constituted a most capital company. Still, the brunt of the work was borne by Pacchierotti, and in subsequent seasons the lack of great female Italian singers began to be seriously felt. Pozzi returned no more to England, and Banti's star had not yet fully risen. The operas most admired at this era were, according to Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "the 'Rinaldo' of Sacchini, 'L'Olimpiade,' and 'Ezio,' pasticcios; Quinto Fabio,' by Bertoni, master of the Conservatorio dei Mendicanti at Venice and 'L'Eroe Cinese,' by Rauzzini." The predilection for classical subjects evinced by composers of this epoch is truly remarkable. Every second opera mentioned is a "Didone" or a "Giunio Bruto." At this point the writer digresses for awhile, in order to give some account of comic opera from his earliest recollections. In this line he remembers Sestini, a lively singer with a "gritty voice," and a favourite with the gros public, but who gradually sank from prima to secunda buffa, and, after condescending to accept any engagement to keep herself from starving, finally died in England in abject poverty. He also remembers Todi, Bernasconi, Pozzi, and, finally, Allegranti, whose voice, though thin, was extraordinarily sweet, high, and agile. Such a combination of qualities seems to have been common at this epoch, and perhaps reached its culminating point in Aguijari, mentioned above, who is known to have sung in Mozart's presence passages extending over three octaves and reaching to C in altissimo! Allegranti excelled in the florid style and was a good actress, but the public found a sameness in her efforts, and "with more than our usual fickleness, she was less liked in every subsequent opera, and was so disregarded by the end of the second season that she went away." The favourite operas in this department were "La buona figliuola," of Piccini, in which Lovattini, a famous tenor, had formerly shone; Paisiello's "Frascatana," the music of which our author calls "de tout âge"—it was often revived by Storace and Catalani—and the "Viaggiatori Felici," of Anfossi. The next section of these "Reminiscences" extends over the years 1783-1785, during which the author was making the "grand tour" customary in the case of all young noblemen of that period. He mentions that at Spa, where he heard Pacchierotti almost daily in private, the latter gave one public concert, the comparative ill success of which he attributes to the fact that "a great part of the audience was French, who then would like no music but their own." If our neighbours have succeeded in removing this stigma, it has not proved altogether an unalloyed advantage to native composers of merit, as Mr. Saint-Saëns and others have pointed out in reference to Berlioz and Bizet. At Berlin, where there was a good Italian Opera company, he mentions that Todi, so little thought of in England, was there "so much admired that, as the good Germans are more steady and less given to change than we islanders, she never quitted the country." He also heard comic operas at Dresden, Prague, and Vienna. At the last-named city, Storace and Kelly were both performing, and here also he heard Bernasconi in Gluck's "Alceste" and "Iphigénie en Tauride." At Venice, where he went for the Fair of the Ascension in 1784, the opera was poor, but he heard good performances of oratorios in the chapel of the Conservatorio dei Mendicanti on Sundays and holy days. "Not only all the vocal, but the instrumental parts were executed by women concealed from view in a grated gallery." He speaks in particular of one morning concert, when he enjoyed "the almost incredible sight of an entire orchestra of female performers," proving the truth of the old adage that there is nothing new under the sun, and that the Viennese Lady Orchestra, and other similar organisations, have no claim to be regarded as representatives of a hitherto unheard-of development of female proficiency. We may also remind our readers that the interesting letter on the style and practice of the violin, written by Tartini, and recently quoted in the Appendix to Ole Bull's Memoir, was addressed to a lady amateur of that instrument. At Padua Lord Mount Edgcumbe heard an Anthem sung by Guadagni, at the Church of St. Antonio. Guadagni had performed in opera in England, in 1771, as a soprano, but now, late in life, he sang as a contralto. From thence he went to Paris for the summer, "when, as there was then no Italian Opera, music could give me little pleasure. Though some of their lighter pieces pleased me, the grand opéra to all ears but French can only give pain." He heard their principal singer, Mdlle. Saint Huberti, at Lyons, "a fine actress, and in her singing a little less violent and extravagant than the generality of French singers, but still too much in their style." She was known afterwards in England as émigrée, where she was murdered in her house at Barnes along with her husband, the Comte d'Entragues, by an Italian servant, who immediately committed suicide, the motive of his crime being personal hatred and not love of plunder. At Paris our author heard the famous Madame Mara sing for the first time at a Concert spirituel, in the old theatre of the Tuileries. Inter alia, she sang "I know that my Redeemer liveth," which was announced in the bills as "Musique de Handel, paroles de Milton!!" and he adds, briefly, "the French had not the taste to like it." Returning to Italy in the Autumn he spent the carnival at Rome, where, in alluding to performances he mentions a fact which may be novel to some of our readers. "At that time no female was permitted to appear on the stage at Rome in any character whatever, operatic, dramatic, or dancing. In the singing parts, therefore (male), sopranos were employed as their substitutes, generally the youngest, and, consequently, not the best, being chosen for their looks rather than their ability. Martini, however, known from his birthplace as "il Senesino" (not to be confounded with the famous Senesino), was an exception to the rule, and a very fine singer. At Naples, at the San Carlo, Lord Mount Edgcumbe heard a good performance of Paisiello's "Antigone," with Pozzi, Rubinelli (primo uomo), and David (tenor) in the cast. Comic operas were acted at the theatre Dei Fiorentini, where Coltellini was a great favourite, a very pretty woman, a clever actress, and an admirable dancer, who, wise in her generation, "adapted herself to Neapolitan taste by singing popular airs and frequently whole operas in their jargon." Though not a success elsewhere, "she was nevertheless an enchanting performer." Returning through Rome, he attended all the ceremonies of the holy week, and was much impressed by the music at the office of Le Tenebre, in the Sistine Chapel. Spring being the time for fairs, during which there was always an opera in any town of importance, he heard several on his journey northward. Thus, at Mantua, he heard Marchesi and Pozzi, of whom, in taking leave, he says that though she had risen to the head of her profession, and had a voice of uncommon clearness and brilliancy, "yet its tones were so birdlike, and there was such a want of feeling in her manner, both of singing and acting, that she was, on the whole, a cold and uninteresting performer." The opera was "Arminio," by Tarchi. At Reggio he heard, for the first time, "that first of singers, Banti . . . in Sarti's 'Medonte.'" This, he adds, was his bonne bouche, and the last music he heard in Italy, the theatres of Milan and Turin being shut as he passed through. On the whole, he was disappointed with the music in Italy. "The passion for music cannot be so great in that land of song as we are apt to suppose; for on inquiring in any town if the opera was good, I was uniformly answered, 'Oh! sì; bellissimi balli!' and indeed, in general, the dancers are more thought of, and attended to in greater silence than the opera itself. . . Yet the ballets are long and wearisome, absolute tragedies in pantomime—I saw 'Romeo and Juliet' danced." Opera in England seems to have fallen during the year of his absence into an unsatisfactory condition. Rauzzini's re-appearance did not save the manager from bankruptcy and the theatre was prematurely closed. Lord Mount Edgcumbe returned to England at the end of the summer of 1785, missing the second of the festivals in Westminster Abbey. Of these performances he remarks: "On the whole, it was acknowledged, even by foreigners, that no performance was ever heard so perfect or so surprising." New instruments were invented and made for the occasion, and nothing omitted to lend completeness to the whole. The theatre was re-opened in 1786, though the company was not fully made up till the middle of the season. Mara was the prima donna, and the following extract throws an interesting light upon the musical taste of the time. The first opera in which she appeared was "Didone," a pasticcio "for which Mara had made a very judicious selection of songs, introducing four of very different character, by Sacchini, Piccini, and other composers." Mara, though a poor actress, and lacking a good presence, was a first-rate artist, unrivalled in the bravura style. Her voice was clear, sweet, distinct, and powerful enough, though rather thin. She was also very successful in some of Handel's most solemn airs, "Still there appeared to be a want of that feeling in herself, which, nevertheless, she could communicate to her hearers." In the spring of 1787 Rubinelli made his first appearance, a male contralto of fine quality, but limited compass. "His style was the true cantabile, in which few could excel him: his taste was admirable, and his science great." In the following year, besides the production of several new operas, Handel's "Giulio Cesare" was revived with the view of inducing the King to re-visit the theatre called his own. Nominally one opera, this was in reality a medley from Handel's Italian works. "Little of the original music was retained, and many of his most favourite songs from other operas were introduced—'Verdi prati,' 'Dove sei,' 'Rendi sereno il ciglio,'" &c. This "ancient music" suited Rubinelli and Mara admirably, but the minor parts were indifferently filled. However, the king came two or three times, and the general public were pleased; "at least it filled the house by attracting the exclusive lovers of the old style who held cheap all other operatical performances." Meantime, the comic opera had begun to re-assert its attractiveness with such singers as Benini, a finished artist, and really better suited for the opera seria, and Mengozzi, a good tenor, who, however, suffered severely from the climate. Both were replaced early in 1787 by Storace, who had been the original representative of Susanna in the "Nozze di Figaro," and Morelli. Of the latter we read that he "had a bass voice of great power and good quality, and he was a very good actor. Having been running footman to Lord Cowper at Florence, he could not be a great musician." The inference to be drawn from this comment is hardly complimentary to the sister art! Storace was English on her mother's side, but went early to Italy, and was not heard in England until she was admittedly the first buffa of her time. "She had," says Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "a harshness in her countenance, a clumsiness of figure, a coarseness in her voice, and a vulgarity of manner that totally unfitted her for the serious opera which she never attempted. But her knowledge of music was equal to anything, and she could sing well in every style, as was proved by her success in Westminster Abbey, when the great space made her voice sound less harsh." Storace, who was an excellent actress, settled entirely in England, and, quitting the Italian, made the fortunes of the English opera at Drury Lane for awhile, aided by Mrs. Crouch, Mrs. Bland, Kelly—the Irish tenor who, like Storace, had assisted in the first performance of the "Nozze di Figaro"—and others. In 1788 the season opened with comic opera only, but after the Italian carnival Marchesi made his début in opera seria, an event which was awaited with immense excitement. He excelled more in bravura than cantabile, and shone particularly in recitative, and by the energy and passion of his declamation, but wanted Pacchierotti's pathos, and his good taste in ornamentation. At the comic opera the good performers had been exchanged for an execrable set of new ones. The dancers, too, were "insufferably bad," and, to crown all, the unfortunate

King's Theatre was burnt down. Next winter comic and serious opera were carried on, on a smaller scale, at "the little theatre in the Haymarket," with Storace and Sestini in the former, Marchesi and Mara in the latter. There were also some excellent concerts at the Pantheon, for which Pacchierotti returned, and once he and Marchesi both sang at a private concert given by Lord Buckingham, Marchesi of his own will yielding precedence to his senior—i.e., by singing before him and allowing him to sing the last song. The King's Theatre was rebuilt, but had the wind taken out of its sails by a rival establishment, that of the Pantheon, which had been transformed into a theatre by Wyatt, the original architect. Here the regular opera—serious and comic—was carried on with two first-rate companies and ballets. "On the whole," says Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "I never enjoyed the opera so well as at this theatre," Pacchierotti's "Duettos," with Mara, being the most perfect pieces of execution he ever heard. Meantime, the proprietors of the Haymarket Theatre got together a company—before they had secured a license. They had only one good singer, David, a tenor of great repute, and a good set of dancers, and at last succeeded in getting leave to open the theatre with music and dancing! The performances consisted only of vocal concerts with ballet, and were only kept alive by party feeling, which ran high against the Lord Chamberlain and the "Pantheonites." David consequently had not a fair chance for displaying his very great talents. In the season of 1792 the Pantheon was burnt down, and opera again took refuge in "the little theatre in the Haymarket." The chapter closes with some remarks on the three famous male singers that lived within the writer's memory, "the last of their line of any note or distinguished merit that Italy ever produced . . . The style of the first (Rubinelli) was chaste and dignified; that of the second (Marchesi), florid and spirited; while the third (Pacchierotti), combining all styles, and joining to exuberance of fancy the purest taste and most correct judgment, united every excellence."

(To be continued.)

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

(Continued from page 332.)

LAST month we gave an outline sketch of the condition of music in England when Her Majesty came to the throne. Our business is now to point out the agencies by which has been effected a change from a state of things most unsatisfactory to one of much realised good and immense expectations.

One of the earliest and most important movements was in the direction of cheap music, consequent upon the rise of the house of Novello and Co., at the head of which was Mr. J. Alfred Novello, a man of singular prescience, who combined with the instinct of an artist the capacity of a man of business. To him and his successor in the management, Mr. Henry Littleton, the world of English music owes far more than it has ever acknowledged. We need not stop to show reasonable men the nature of the debt. It must be clear that when an art is dependent for its exercise and diffusion upon books, he who provides the books at a cheap rate is its benefactor, and the friend of all who follow it. This was, and is, a claim to grateful recognition, and it is a claim none the less strong because the revolution achieved proceeded step by step over many years, in the face of abundant difficulties. From a "Short History of Cheap Music" just about to be published by the firm best qualified to speak on such a subject, we take the following extract as showing the beginning of progress during the early years of the Queen's reign:—

"The history of the house during the ten years which began with the publication of 'St. Paul' embraced many important events affecting the cause of music. Besides the works already spoken of as having been published by the firm, then represented by Alfred Novello, the Masses of Haydn and Mozart, other music for the Roman Catholic Church, the splendid edition of Purcell, and Boyce's collection of Cathedral Music—organ part and vocal parts (1842)—for the use of the Anglican Church, appeared, and were followed by publications for the use of choirs of all denominations. The publication of some of the Psalms in 1837-40, and the 'Lobgesang' in 1841-42, by Mendelssohn, the latter with English words adapted by Alfred Novello, and the first English edition of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater,' was also a most important step in the history of art. There were then few small works available for the use of choral societies, and these were most eagerly welcomed. Novello's Choral Hand Book, which contained a few simple anthems in use in the Cathedral service, brought these works within the reach of other choirs. They were published in separate parts at threepence per page. Nothing cheaper had ever appeared before. A large number of other anthems was issued in like fashion, in obedience to the demand created by the revival of Church feeling in and about the year 1840."

The foregoing words record the beginning of a movement which has continued to this day, when beautifully-printed copies of "The Messiah" can be obtained for a shilling, and all other great classical works upon a proportionate scale. Those who look over the intervening space see many stages, each one of which had its obstacles, to be conquered only by untiring perseverance and undaunted courage. We regret that the limits of this article do not permit a reference to them one by one. For such minute detail the reader must look to the "Short History" aforesaid; but we cannot omit mention of the appearance, in July, 1846, of what was officially announced as "The cheapest musical publication ever offered to the public in respect both of quality and quantity"—namely, "The Messiah," in twelve sixpenny monthly parts. Nor should the fact be overlooked that, with the growing influence of Mr. Littleton in the councils of the firm, came further concessions to public requirements, and especially the issue of the now world-famous octavo editions of sacred musical classics. We are all so accustomed to cheap music in these days, that there is reason to believe we do not adequately appreciate the boon. Let the reader try to conceive a state of things in which a working man has to sacrifice most of his week's wages in order to procure an oratorio. Let him try to fancy what our condition would be without the power of buying everything good in popular music for a few pence, or, at most, two or three shillings; and then let him estimate the public benefits conferred by those who risked much to secure for us our present happy condition. Where the house of Novello led, other firms, British and foreign, have followed, even pressing forward in keen rivalry with their exemplar. We honour their achievements, but we do not forget the pioneer. The true heroes of the American "far West" are the men who went in and subdued the Wilderness.

There can be no doubt that the provision of cheap music by Novello and Co., and their imitators, had an immense effect in the promotion of musical culture, which began to take popular form in the early "forties." Nothing is more remarkable in the history of English music than the sudden rush to know something about the art when Mainzer and Hullah—wise men both, in their generation—afforded an opportunity. It seems clear to us now that the fields were ripe for harvest years before the labourers came to work, but when they did show themselves the results were astonishing. There was something novel in the teaching of a public class, and much fascination in earnest assurances that "singing for the million" was not only practicable, but easy. With curiosity excited everywhere, and hopes flattered on all hands, the desire to study music spread like a wave over the country, affecting secluded hamlets, as well as conspicuous cities. Few were exempt from its influence. Young and old went solfaing, and even the prejudices of class were in many cases broken down by a common desire to sing with the understanding. Thousands in every part of the country persevered along the course laid out for them, backed by a musical instinct and a genuine amateurism, thus laying a foundation for the astonishing development which has now secured for England the first place as a singing nation and given her the best choristers in the world. Presently a similar movement to the same great end began at the instance of a dissenting minister in the East of London, the Rev. John Curwen, who came forward with a notation improved from that of a Norwich lady, who had herself obtained ideas in a crude form from a foreign source. The obstacles before him might have appalled the stoutest heart. His new and strange notation, his unfamiliar terminology, the limited field within which, as it seemed, his method could effect any good, and a natural prejudice in favour of a system consecrated by the traditions of genius and the influence of usage—all these things were against him. May we not add that injudicious supporters in their blind zeal did more harm than good during the early days of Mr. Curwen's educational movement? Many of these, being indebted to their method for all they knew of music, affected to look with contempt upon every other as to which they were more or less ignorant. The "old notation"—the one universal written language of the art—was spoken of as cumbersome and effete, and as destined to be superseded by a system at once more simple and more philosophical. It is no part of our purpose to inquire whether they were right; but talk of this sort could not fail to alienate many whose influence might have well served a cause which only needed examination in order to win sympathy and approval. Anyhow, the musical classes held aloof from the strangely-named "Tonic Sol-fa" movement, the necessity for which they failed to recognise, and with the pretensions of which they were offended. Mr. Curwen, therefore, had to work through agencies which he had himself created out of such humble materials as the then teachers of elementary schools. So he learned to labour and to wait, helped by an increasing band of men who, if their names do not shine in high musical circles, worked with perseverance and enthusiam beyond praise. Mr. Curwen lived long enough to see the fruit of his bravery and hopefulness, and since his death the movement has made astonishing strides.

We have now set forth the great organisations by which popular musical education in the Victorian era has been carried on. But our review must not end here. With regard to higher musical education, it must be said that the advance which has undoubtedly been made during the Queen's reign began much later than that we have just considered. While the masses of the people were bestirring themselves and working wonders by combined and organised action, the training of aspirants for professional life, and of amateurs among the wealthy classes, was carried on in a most unsatisfactory way. Private lessons were not always given by the most qualified persons, and public schools—of which there were very few—so did their work as that, till within a comparatively recent period, we had no musical academy worthy of comparison with a second-rate Continental conservatoire. For this, the institutions themselves were, no doubt, blameworthy in some measure; but then, much more than now, the idea of obtaining a satisfactory musical education within the walls of an English academy was not entertained without serious misgiving. Young people of promise were sent to Germany, and even when some lovers of Mendelssohn desired to found a scholarship in his honour the chosen place of education was not London, but Leipzig. We are not censuring this by any means; because the reasons upon which apparently unpatriotic people acted had a justification in facts. It is, however, important to note the real condition of things, seeing that it reacted upon its own cause to strengthen it. People were sent out of the country for a first-class training, and each one as he went helped, by going, to perpetuate the circumstances which made his departure advisable. A more lamentable condition than that of higher musical education in England twenty-five or thirty years ago cannot be conceived. It was a reproach and a shame to a country for which many serious persons claimed the credit of being musical. Matters have improved of late years. Academies that had become almost effete are now working with energy, and as much success as the nature of the raw material admits; new academies have been established, while all over the country there is a tendency to abolish the private teacher in favour of organised educational bodies. The private teacher is having a hard time of it just now in his struggle against the "colleges" and "conservatories" that spring up on every hand. Whether that which has partially supplanted him amounts to a uniform improvement we shall not pretend to say, but that it is, generally speaking, a change for the better we quite believe. A teacher on the staff of an "academy" works in the light, and his deficiencies are more easily seen than those of his brother who labours in the darkness of private houses. But while the higher education of music in the "eighties" presents an enormous advance upon what it was in the "forties," there still remains much to be done. How much? and of what character? are questions outside the scope of this article. We only point a significant finger to them.

From musical education to the resources it supplies is a logical, natural, and easy step. Here we are on excellent and every way satisfactory ground. Last month our review of early Victorian music took in the first appearance of amateur performers in a public capacity. We saw the non-professional choralists of London—those who had been trained in the St. Cecilia Society or its younger rival, the Sacred Harmonic—breaking out into open rebellion against the course pursued by that respectable fossil, Sir George Smart, in excluding them from the Handel Commemoration in Westminster Abbey. The reader will recollect that they organised a Festival of their own in Exeter Hall; so successfully carrying it through that, thereafter, no serious question arose as to their fitness for taking part on public occasions. At that time, however, English amateur choralists must have been a small body, commanding very little trust. Though the Sacred Harmonic Society gave performances year after year, reliance was chiefly placed in professional singers, such as those who, till within a recent period, were employed at the "Philharmonic" on special occasions, and not till after the Mainzer-Hullah movement did amateurs begin to take the place which they now hold as one of the glories of English musical development. Vocal music has always been the Englishman's preference and pride. He excelled in it centuries ago, at a time when he wrote madrigals that challenge the best of those produced in the Flemish and Italian schools; and he has excelled in it down to the present day, when every impartial critic admits that he stands facile princeps among the peoples of the world. As a matter of fact, next after the astonishing development of popular musical education within the last thirty years, nothing is more remarkable than the rise of the amateur choralist. There is now no question of the professional of that ilk. In the Concert-room he is an extinct genus. He has been crushed out of life by the competition of his unpaid brother, just as plants are sometimes annihilated in a struggle for existence between them and their stronger fellows. Now the amateur choralist represents an inexhaustible reserve for executive purposes. Rarely do entrepreneurs call upon him in vain. He is ready to present himself in sufficient numbers, whether the occasion be a Handel Festival, that asks him to come in his thousands, or a petty affair that is satisfied with him in his tens. The extent and importance of this development are, we fear, not comprehended as they should be by people who have been familiar with the phenomenon all their lives. Even the wonderful ensemble of a Handel Festival at the Crystal Palace is taken as a matter of course; exciting no astonishment and little remark. But were the stolid Briton, who, failing comparison, sees nothing wonderful, to put the choral form of English executive proficiency alongside that of any other nation, he would straightway assume the attitude which, in him, corresponds to the spread-eagleism of his American cousin. We say this in full recollection of German, French, and American experience, and we contend that the English amateur in chorus has no serious rival. The position he holds has been honestly gained within the fifty years of our Queen's sovereignty, and it marks an advance second to none of its kind in the entire history of music.

Looking at Victorian music from another standpoint, we see a remarkable advance in taste, and general appreciation of good music, consequent upon the increasingly frequent exhibition of works of the best class. The audiences who, fifty years ago, made symphonies inaudible by their chatter, are gone never to return. Such conduct as theirs is simply impossible now, when even a solitary talker at a concert is admonished in unmistakable fashion to hold his tongue. We do not say that all the people who quietly listen, also comprehend and really enjoy. Many of them, no doubt, sit in respectful placidity, while the music slips by them, leaving no more impression than the proverbial water on a duck's back. But even this is far better than the active indifference, which interferes with the pleasure of others; it observes an outward homage to the majesty of music, and marks a condition nearer to grace and light than that which ostentatiously ignores what the mind cannot understand, or the heart feel. To this, anyhow, our public have come, and it is now the fashion to hear good music, and show towards it friendly intentions. With this we naturally have a vast improvement in concert-programmes. It is absolutely painful to examine the selections of the early Victorian days and note the utter want of artistic principle that characterised their making up. Concert-givers then appeared to assume that their audiences would endure nothing but a lot of miscellaneous pieces, good and bad—plenty of them, and all sorts mixed up together, with no more design than was necessary to show off the largest number of popular performers, and give the occasion as much personal interest as possible. The public, in short, were to be entertained, and kept in good humour, by means scarcely more worthy than those which Bully Bottom's clowns adopted to avoid frightening the court of Duke Theseus. Not even Handel's "Israel" could be performed in its integrity. So many choruses needed an interlarding of solos, and the voice of the popular charmer to give the whole a spice. The growth of public taste necessarily changed all this, till now there is never a question of coddling an audience to keep them in temper. Even those of us whose memory goes back only a little way can see amazing changes. What has become of monster benefit concerts such as were once identified with the name of Julius Benedict?—Concerts that began at noon, ended at night, and filled up the time with a fearful and wonderful sequence of unconnected and jarring pieces. Where are the so-called operatic concerts not long since attractive? and what has become of the innumerable concert-givers whose operations a lax condition of musical morality made easy? We do not say that these things have no survival. It is hard to make a thorough reform when the evil to be amended receives a constant accession of strength through the uprising of fresh masses of uneducated humanity. The task resembles an attempt to bale out a boat with a bucket holding very little more water than that which the leak admits. It is true that there are survivals. The "grand" concert, olla podrida, is still amongst us, and the "grand" concert-giver with his long programmes still finds work, but they trouble us very little. They are exceptions where once they appeared as the rule, and are dying out like many another nuisance. For proof of a great change, compare the "benefit" concert of to-day with that of thirty years ago. This class of entertainment supplies a fair criterion, because the entrepreneur knows his audience and is under special obligation to please them. We ask the reader whether it is not true that "benefit" concerts now are often enjoyable and instructive to persons of taste? Classical music is rarely absent from their programmes, the general character and arrangement of which, moreover, point to a higher ideal. No doubt much remains to be done, but it is equally true that much has been accomplished.

Having thus, in merest outline, sketched the agencies which have operated upon Victorian music, we shall, in a final article, deal with some special and interesting features connected with the vast upheaval now lifting our country to its old place among artistic nations.

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XXII—GRÉTRY (continued from page 338.)

GRÉTRY followed up his "Panurge" with the three act Opera, "Les Méprises par ressemblance," produced at the Italiens, November 16, 1786, after having been previously played before the Court at Versailles. This work made a success, and was shortly followed (February, 1787) by "Le Comte Albert," described as the weakest of all the master's productions. The famous Mdme. Dugazon appeared in it, and lent the aid of her talents to ward off an absolute fiasco. Afterwards came in quick succession from Grétry's untiring pen, "Le Prisonnier Anglais" (1787), "Amphytrion" (1788), "Raoul Barbe-Bleu" (1788), and "Aspasiè" (1789), of which a critic professed inability to decide whether the words were worse than the music, or the music was more objectionable than the words. The public, or some of them, appear to have entertained a different opinion, and so strong was the desire to make acquaintance with "Raoul Barbe-Bleu," that copies were surreptitiously obtained and used even in provincial cities. Grétry took notice of this in his quietly sarcastic way, and published the following letter:—

"I beg the directors of the said theatres to correct, by help of the printed score, the manuscript score of 'Raoul Barbe-Bleu,' which faithless hands have given to them. This is the only amend I ask of them for having played my pieces without my sanction. The hope that soon we shall have laws to enforce respect for artistic property enables me patiently to bear this last injustice."

On the same vexed and vexing subject, and about the same time, Grétry wrote an interesting letter to Beaumarchais, in which he contended for the right of artistic property now so fully recognised in France, but then altogether ignored. Anger against pirates did not, however, hinder the master from providing more plunder, the year 1791 being, indeed, one of the most prolific in Grétry's entire career. It is said that he was moved to increased activity by the apparition of Méhul, who, in 1790, made such a "hit" at the Opéra Comique with "Euphrosine et Coradin" that the elder master took alarm. However that may have been, it is certain that between 1791 and 1803 he worked very hard, producing opera after opera with feverish haste, and endeavouring to maintain his position by imitating the style and mannerisms of his younger rivals. This, of course, was a mistake, as to which Fétis makes some very sensible remarks, worthy of being kept in mind by all composers:—

"At the height of the success which crowned so many of Grétry's productions, a new style of music, created by Méhul and Cherubini, became manifest at the Opéra Comique. That music, stronger in point of harmony, more richly scored, and much more energetic than Grétry's, became suddenly the fashion at the beginning of the Revolution, and caused 'Le Tableau Parlant,' 'L'Amant Jaloux,' and 'La Fausse Magie' to be forgotten during several years. No author accepts obscurity with a good grace, and Grétry was particularly sensitive on the point, not being in any way prepared for it. He did not like the new music, but he regretted that more earnest study had not qualified him to struggle with his new adversaries. However, as a man never does himself justice on a question that concerns his amour propre, he did not consider himself beaten, and he would re-commence his career by imitating as best he could the music he disdained from the bottom of his heart. It is to these efforts that we owe 'Pierre le Grand,' 'Lisbeth,' 'Guillaume Tell,' and 'Elisca.' Although we can see in these works traces of his old manner, it is easy to detect the pains with which he sought to be other than what nature had made him. The melodies of these productions have not the freedom, naturalness, and 'go' which distinguish the works of Grétry's youth; in a word, they reveal a timid imitator in place of an inventor."

Grétry's eclipse by the newer lights of Méhul and Cherubini was, however, not final. To a certain extent, at any rate, French taste came back to his less sensational music, and then it was, no doubt, that the master regretted ever having been tempted to measure himself against his rivals on their own ground.

At this time Grétry had some trouble with the poor relations who generally cluster round a self-made man. Some of his detractors have charged him with neglecting them, and Fétis goes so far as to charge him with being too much wrapped up in himself to take any care of others. Fortunately, M. Gregoir has been able, in his exhaustive biography, to publish a letter which tells a different tale. It was written by Grétry to a government official, under date March 21, 1791.

"Monsieur,—My eldest brother has lost a bureau de tabac, situated on the Place de la Comedié Italienne, which brought him in about 4,000 livres. This was his only resource. He is the father of eight living children; he is an excellent man, and M. de la Voussier recognises him as such. Deign, Monsieur, to give him a place of the same kind under the new arrangements for the sale of tobacco; deign to prefer him to many others better recommended than he, no doubt, but who merit less your justice and goodness. You are an amateur of art, Monsieur; dare I hope that an artist who, perhaps, has sometimes contributed to your relaxation, may find in you a protection of which he has the greatest need.—I am, with respect, Monsieur, your very humble and obedient servant, GRÉTRY."

It is very certain that this letter was written by a good brother, and we shall see by and by what sort of man Grétry was in his family at home, finding there ample reason to conclude that the "milk of human kindness" had a large share in his nature.

During the awful days of the Terror, Grétry went quietly on with his work, keeping well out of the revolutionary vortex. He appears, however, to have been in sympathy to some extent with the universal French passion for liberty and reform, though it is said that he was opposed to the destruction of the monarchy. Had he been ill-advised enough to join any particular party under the Republic, we should now, perhaps, have to speak of him as a Girondist, and as having suffered with the heroic men and women who made the Republic and were devoured by it. Taking his works as an indication of sympathies, there is significance in the fact that "Guillaume Tell" (1791) is filled with patriotic songs and allusions to the love of liberty, "La Rosière Republicaine" or "La Fête de la Raison" carries its story in its title. Grétry, moreover, set to music (1793) a one-act piece, "Joseph Barra," in honour of a revolutionary hero; and a year later brought out an opera, "Dénis le Tyran," in which Louis XVI. figured under a very thin disguise. The master has been soundly rated for the composition of this work. He is charged with black ingratitude to his former royal patron, at whose Court his operas were invariably produced. We should be the last to sympathise with such an act, but, perhaps, all the particulars have not come to light. Those were difficult days for a man who desired, as most men do, to keep his head on his shoulders, especially while holding aloof from conspicuous partisanship. Any request made by the government at that period was a command not to be trifled with, and it is charitable to assume that Grétry did not turn upon his old patron without some such cause. It would, no doubt, have been much more heroic on the master's part had he defied sentiments and measures which his conscience did not approve, and then taken the consequences. But we cannot all be heroes. Courage is often a question of bodily organisation, and the weak, sickly composer of "Richard Cœur de Lion" did as much as could be expected of him when he refrained from entering into rivalry with Gossec as the favourite musician of the National Convention.

It would be tedious to name here all the operas which our indefatigable master continued to pour out, and it is much more pleasant to see him in the enjoyment of the profits resulting from his labours.

In 1797 Grétry purchased the Ermitage—a house at Montmorency in which Jean Jacques Rousseau had lived for many years. He was immensely proud of the acquisition, and seemed to think it cheap at 10,000 francs. He was no less proud of his succession in proprietorship to the author of the "Devin du Village," and of the Rousseau relics which the house contained. These were a bedstead, a table upon which the philosopher had partly written his "Heloïse," two cheffoniers, a bookcase, four glass globes, and two pictures. Of these treasures Grétry proclaimed himself a careful trustee rather than an owner, considering that, as property, they belonged to all the world. But the master's Rousseau fever did not end here. Living in the philosopher's house among his lares and penates, he began to act as a philosopher himself, and pose as a social reformer. He actually published a treatise called "The Truth as to what we were, what we are, and what we shall be." He used to talk, also, of a work in six volumes, entitled, "Reflections of a Solitary," but this was never published, and some say was never written. On retiring to the Ermitage, it was Grétry's intention to give up composition, and spend the rest of his days in ease; but this idea he never carried out. The ruling passion was too strong for him, and at least three operas were in a short time ready for performance. Then an event which sadly deranged him happened at Montmorency. One of his neighbours, a miller, was found assassinated in his bed, and the tragic event had such an effect upon the composer's nerves that he could no longer stay in a place which might find a second victim in himself. The pretty house and gardens, the flowers and woods, the memory and treasures of Rousseau were as nothing against his morbid dread. Indeed, he flew at once to Paris, declaring that he would never again return. Time, of course, wore down this unreasoning terror, but Grétry kept his word for two years. We must not judge the composer too severely for this evidence of weakness. Never a man of strong nerves, his frame had been grievously shattered by a series of domestic afflictions, most painful and distressing to a loving father's heart. The story has been told before by the present writer, but is worth re-telling in this place.

Grétry had three daughters—Jenny, Lucille, and Antoinette; all of whom lived with their parents at the house in the Rue Poissonière, which the father quitted for the Ermitage. The girls were all most loveable. Jenny, whose face, in its purity and refinement, resembled that of a youthful Madonna, had no force of character, but simply lived to enjoy life. She sang, it is said, more like an angel than an artist, singing being to her the natural expression of feeling, improved by a strong imitative faculty. Grétry doted upon this beautiful child of nature. He was wont to say, "She will be the prop of my old age. Like Antigone, she will lead her father into the sunlight that warmth may rekindle the fires of life." The prophecy, alas! was never fulfilled. She who fluttered about the house like a joyous butterfly, followed by the loving eyes of her parent, had received from him a fatal weakness, and soon after her sixteenth year the signs of consumption became too obvious. The disease, as usual, was deceptive. Sometimes the patient rallied, and Grétry hoped in the face of his fears. So did the patient herself. On the last occasion it really seemed as though youth and medicine had triumphed. The forces of life made a final rally; Jenny's voice regained its strength, her breathing became easier, and when an invitation to a dance arrived, the maiden exclaimed, "Father, write and excuse me now, but promise that I will certainly attend the next." That very night she died, and the doting parent experienced a grief which some of us may imagine, but none describe.

The second daughter, Lucille, was of a nature in some respects very different. Her natural atmosphere was that of the study, and the acquisition of knowledge her great delight. "To prevent her from working," said Grétry, "was to kill her. Her brain was always precocious, and her features were ever in movement." At the age of thirteen she composed music to an opera written by Sedaine, the librettist of "Richard Cœur de Lion." She worked at "La Mariage d'Antonio" with characteristic ardour and impetuosity. Her father's testimony is: "She is just the same (impetuous) when she composes. She touches her harp with anger, and is irritated at finding nothing. I cry out to her: 'So much the better! it is a proof that you will not produce mediocrity.' When she has found that which she seeks she runs to me: 'Look,' she says, 'I have finished that diabolical piece!' 'All is diabolical in art,' I answer, 'when one feels the truth and wishes to express it. The lightest air is as difficult as the grandest scena.' She trembles while I examine her work, but I take care not to point out all the faults at once, and risk extinguishing the sacred fire. On the morrow, I say 'I have thought over that piece; it is better, perhaps, to change here or add there. What do you think? Let us try both ways at the piano.' 'Yes,' she responds, 'you are right. How happy you are in finding all at once what is best.' 'That is true,' I answer, 'but I have been searching for thirty years.'" "Le Mariage d'Antonio" was produced in 1786, ran for nineteen nights, and had the honour of a revival in 1787. It was scored for the orchestra by Grétry himself, who prudently wrote to the papers setting forth all the facts connected with the authorship, so as frankly to avoid anything like deception. Lucille subsequently composed another work, "Toinette et Louis," which was performed in March, 1787, with complete success. The public were charmed with the child-composer's music, and loudly applauded the subjoined lines:—

Jeunes rosiers, jeunes talens,
Ont besoin du secours du maitre,
Un petit auteur de treize ans
Est un rosier qui vient de naitre.
Il n'offre qu'un bouton nouveau,
Si vous voulez des fleurs écloses,
Daignez etager l'arbrisseau,
Quelques jours vous aurez des roses.

But in Lucille's case the roses never came. Her young life was blighted by a man who had made her the object of his passion rather than his love. He was one Marin, the son of a wealthy banker, who could offer just the alliance which the vanity and miserable ambition of Grétry's wife desired. She, therefore, supported the fellow's suit, and the pair were, as was thought, happily married. Happiness, unfortunately, did not survive the husband's satiety. Marin tyrannised over his wife; became openly faithless, and presently so neglected poor Lucille that she began to pine away with grief and shame. Not even the sight of her in this condition touched the wretched Marin, and at last Lucille took to a bed from which she was never to rise. Her death was an affecting scene. Turning to her mother, she said: "You thought that wealth would suffice for my happiness. Oh! how you deceived yourself! For two years I have done nothing but sigh, and my sorrow was the greater because I felt that it was useless to complain. I would preserve my dear Antoinette from the cruel and unsupportable torment to which the neglected wife is condemned. Promise not to make my sister a second victim. She loves; she is loved; her choice would have been mine. Promise me to sanction it." Mdme. Grétry, just then in a bitterly repentant mood, gave the desired assurance, the dying girl receiving it with a smile of happiness. A few hours later, Lucille passed away; thinking of the sister who had preceded her, and murmuring "Ah! my poor Jenny!"

Only one child was now left where three had gladdened their father's heart. The gracious and beautiful Antoinette was, as we have seen, in love, her young affections being bestowed upon a worthy object —M. Bouilly, a literary colleague of Grétry. The couple were formally betrothed before Antoinette and her parents went on a visit to Lyons. That visit was the beginning of trouble. By some mischance, the young girl fell into the flooded stream of the Saone, and though Grétry plunged in and brought her safely to land, he but delayed the end. Shock and exposure developed the seeds of consumption, and when she returned to Paris her affianced husband noted a change. "Her voice, so sweet to my ear," he wrote, "seemed veiled; her respiration short. I put it down to emotion at our meeting. But her blue eyes were less brilliant, and her complexion, of an incomparable freshness, seemed paler, as though with the fatigue of travel. More than all it distressed me to see in this angelic creature a forced gaiety which her whole appearance denied. She strove to hide her suffering state." This amiable deception was continued almost to the end. After a time she kept her bed, at the side of which Grétry had a spinet placed, that he might, when composing, be near his last loved one. The death was heart-breaking. Antoinette fancied she saw her departed sisters in the room—perhaps they were really there, who knows?—and addressed them in the most endearing terms, going through with them the happy episodes of their common childhood and pleading that they and she might never again be parted. Just before expiring she took the hands of her parents and said, "I am going, but I do not fear death. What will become of you?" A minute or two later, and the poor father had no child. The light had gone out of his life and the smiles that once played around his lips returned there no more. Even the joy of professional success was abated. When they congratulated him upon a fresh triumph, he would answer, "That for which I formerly desired success, exists no longer." Then in the deeply tragic spirit of a Lear, he would point to three small portraits on his desk and say, "Behold three ingrates who have left me." What wonder if the whole nature of the man was broken down by such affliction?

Grétry was left absolutely alone in March, 1807, when his wife, with whom he had lived in constant affection, went to join her daughters. Madame Grétry may have been a vain and ambitious woman, but she was a good wife, and her character is, perhaps, quite truthfully sketched by her husband's nephew, Flamand-Grétry, who lived till 1843, and left behind him his Mémoires, in which occurs the following passage:—

"That admirable man, for whom all that contributes to the happiness of a man such as he ought never to have changed, gave me a great proof of his confidence and tender attachment at one of the most unhappy periods of his life, March 16, 1807, when he experienced the cruel sorrow of losing his most devoted friend, who had become indispensable to him; that faithful companion, who never ceased to foresee and prevent all that might affect the sensitive spirit of her illustrious husband, and who was able, by vigilant care, to prolong his too feeble existence."

Grétry's many sorrows, and the petty troubles which weakness magnifies into great ones, sadly embittered his closing years. But there were some moments of compensation, and what has been called the greatest day of his life came on February 5, 1809, when the famous Académie des Enfants d'Apollon made him an honorary member, and gave him a solemn reception. A laurel-crowned bust of Grétry was placed before a glass on which the rays of a painted sun formed an aureole inscribed with the names of the master's fifty-five operatic works. On the pedestal an inscription, written by Berton, ran as follows:—

Les fils d'Euterpe un Dieu de la lumière
Dès longtemps pour leur art demandent un Molière,
Apollon en ce jour par leur plainte attendrie
Il vient de le nommer, le voilà c'est Grétry!

The new member was received by the President, who said:—"Monsieur,—Long accustomed to minister to the delights of sensitive and delicate souls, you are doubtless not astonished at the enthusiasm with which the Enfants d'Apollon attend your entry into this place. The fire of genius which inspires you continually, should be in sympathy with the union of the children of the god of arts. Come, then, dear son of the god of harmony, receive the accolade which I have to give you in the name of the assembly over which I have the honour to preside." M. Bouilly then pronounced a formal discourse, from which the following passage may be extracted:—

"Do we celebrate the return of some long-absent member of the family? Has one of our brothers obtained fresh titles to immortality? No, it is that at once the Molière and Anacreon of French music visits his contemporaries, his friends, his brothers, his pupils. In a word, it is Grétry, so long celebrated, who has not allowed a year to pass without adding a new flower to his crown; the fertile, the untiring composer of fifty operas, which form still, and will long continue to form, the finest repertory of our lyric stage; the faithful depictor of passions and pleasures of the finesse and gallantry of France. Grétry, in short, who taught us to respect him from our infancy, comes before us with assured step, his complexion seemingly sown with the roses of spring, his eye, lively and lustrous, flashes still all the fire of genius, and the numerous laurels that shade his venerable head have prevented the wrinkles from furrowing his brow."

This is high-flown enough for the strongest taste in that line, but, no doubt, it expressed the feeling of the moment, and one likes to hear the echoes of true emotion, even across a gulf of eighty years. A concert and a banquet followed the reception, and Grétry returned home encumbered with praises and blessings. He could set this against the coldness with which, for some recondite reason, he was treated by the Emperor Napoleon. It may have been that the homme terrible, whose jealousy of his marshals was notorious, was jealous also of his musicians; but be this as it may, some of Grétry's works were proscribed by the police. "Pierre le Grand" could not be performed, and the "Tableau Parlant" was forbidden on account of lines like these:—

You will be that which you are no longer,
You will not be that which you are.

Did the great Corsican see here the handwriting on the wall? A third opera was condemned for no other reason than that the persons represented were English, and so on with other works equally harmless. It appears that Grétry and the Emperor met only once—on the occasion of a deputation to the Tuileries. Few words passed between them. Said Napoleon: "What do you call yourself?" The ready answer was, "Always Grétry, Sire." "What is your country?" "I am from Liège, Sire." "Ah! I did not know that the country of Mathieu Laensberg had given birth to so great a musician." Grétry bowed low, the Emperor passed on, and there was an end of the interview.

(To be continued.)

MUSICAL PORTRAITS.

I.—THE FAILURE.

WHY was he a failure? He had talent, capacity, and industry. From the first fortune seemed to favour him; it cannot be said that he was disparaged or ignored by his countrymen; yet he was a failure. Let us, in a spirit of dispassionate inquiry, investigate his case.

Cyrus Fraser was, like most eminent musicians, of lower middle-class parentage. His remarkable taste for music caused him to be sent, like many another, to the Royal London Training College for the Higher Development of Composers, where he at once gained a free Scholarship which enabled him to devote himself to study without the distraction of having, at the same time, to work for his living. Honours here fell thick upon him; chiefly prizes of the really useful sort, such as emblazoned certificates, laurel wreaths, pewter and ormolu medals, and the like (I am writing of a period now happily past), the climax of glory being reached by his being allowed to teach a large class of his junior fellow-students for nothing. Next he gained the National Prize, that noble Scholarship of £120 a year founded by the British Government,* which enables the fortunate holder to travel on the Continent, complete his education, and develop his love for his own country by observing the inferiority of Art in other countries. He passed three years at Leipzig, winning more emblazoned certificates, wreaths, and medals; on his return thence he was fêted by the Conservatorium, and speeches were made in which he was compared as a pianist to Liszt, as a violinist to Spohr, and as a composer to Beethoven, besides having qualities of his own which rendered him, in some respects, superior to all of those great men. After this he returned to England, when his career, instead of continuing its triumphal aspect, commenced gradually to "decline and fall off." It is true that his Symphony in C flat minor was performed at the Crystal Palace with the usual success, and received the usual encouraging criticisms, well padded with complacent, not to say boastful, remarks on the progress of English art; true, also, that his Oratorio "Methusaleh" gained the prize of two guineas offered by the Society for the Encouragement of English Music, but neither of these successes seemed to place him in that condition of affluence which a man of his merits deserved. About once a year his name figured in a Concert programme, he was seen occasionally in musical society, but gradually he dropped out of notice, and, needless to say, no one ever enquired what became of him.

A few years later I met him accidentally in that remote region of South London called New Cross. He greeted me with, I thought, painfully-affected cheerfulness, asked me vaguely to "look him up," but gave no details as to his place of abode, or as to his career since I had last seen him. I observed with pain that he looked fagged and prematurely aged (he was only thirty), that his coat was shiny, and his boots on their last legs, as one may say. He told me he had "plenty of work," and when I enquired its nature he looked surprised, and said, "teaching, of course!" and soon hurried away to some school where he was due. Another five years passed without any sign of his existence, and again I met him in the same district, looking more worn and still more shabby than before. This time he greeted me still more warmly, which caused me to suspect, I hardly know why, that friends had grown scarce with him. He insisted on my accompanying him home and sharing his early dinner. He conducted me to his abode, which was called Beethoven Villa, in order to show that a musician lived there. He confessed, however, that the name caused him much trouble, as none of the natives could pronounce it properly, not even his wife. This was the first intimation I had received of the existence of such a person, and before I could enquire into the subject we had entered the villainous little "villa"—one of a thousand exactly similar, like a house in a nightmare dream—and I was immediately introduced to the lady in question. Mrs. Fraser was a meek, washed-out, helpless-looking woman, who seemed to have lost whatever personality she originally possessed in the efforts of producing, rearing, and providing for seven large and fleshly children who pervaded the tiny house, and seemed to strain it to bursting point. It would be unkind to dwell on the horrors of that household. I remember we had a bullock's heart for dinner, and the table was only large enough to hold half the family at a time. The walls were adorned, I noticed, with poor Fraser's certificates, framed like pictures, and his medals in their blue velvet cases formed the chief ornaments of the drawing-room. There was an album containing—I knew without looking—every scrap of newspaper notice his compositions had elicited, and all the programmes in which his name had figured. I had not the heart to ask him if he ever wrote anything now, and the only time that the conversation touched upon music was when he said, with a half laugh, that he didn't care for concerts now, that he was hearing music all day long. I asked, just out of politeness, whether any of the children were musical, and he answered with feeling, "None of them, thank God!" I don't know why he was so emphatic, but my own heart seemed to echo the thanksgiving too. Fraser told me, without any expression of pleasure or pain, that he was out teaching from eight in the morning till nine at night, that a third part of this time was taken up in going from one pupil's house to another's, and that his earnings were at the rate of three and sixpence an hour. But why did his talents command no better price than this? Why was he buried in an obscure suburb? There are those who teach the children of the bloated plutocracy for a guinea an hour—why was not Fraser one of these? Alas! this is a mystery which I have never succeeded in solving; perhaps he lacked aristocratic connections, perhaps (though this is a fanciful reason) the creative musician, who has been carefully educated to become a composer, is not in himself capable of becoming a successful teacher; whatever the reason may be, the fact remains that Cyrus Fraser, instead of earning £2,000 a-year, and calling his West-end mansion the Mayfair Conservatorium, was now living a life which I shrink from dwelling on in Beethoven Villa, New Cross, S.E. What he himself thought of his career I did not dare enquire, so piteous was the tale told by his surroundings, his dress, and his haggard face.

Fifteen years elapsed and more stirring thoughts and incidents had quite obliterated the memory of poor Fraser from my mind. Once more chance led me to the neighbourhood wherein he had—I dared not think still—dwelt. I turned down his road just to see what had become of Beethoven Villa. Mirabile dictu! it was still standing, though tottering from old age (for the British villa of this generation is ingeniously built to last exactly twenty-one years), and the name was yet legible through the green fungoid growth which stucco engenders. It happened to be Sunday so Fraser was at home. He was now a man of about fifty, but he looked nearer seventy; his scanty hair was almost white, and in his wrinkled and worn face there was an expression approaching senility. He positively shed tears on greeting me, told me that I was the only friend he had in the world, and much more too sad to repeat. His wife was recently dead; it seems she had quietly faded out of life from mere inability to exist; but his children were all alive and out in the world. His sons were all cheap clerks, his daughters dressmakers, the two utterly hopeless branches of industry which I should have expected children of such parents to select—or be driven into. Fraser talked to me without restraint and without regret of the glories of his early days, they were so long past that they seemed to have belonged to another state of existence; he expressed a misgiving that he should not be able to go on teaching much longer, as he sometimes woke up in the middle of a lesson and found that he had fainted, which lost him a good many pupils. However, he looked forward to ending his days in the workhouse with great calmness, seeming indeed resigned to any fate, however terrible. Poor wretch! I have often wondered what he really thought about the career of such bright promise which had faded into such utter nothingness. But how was it? Throughout his life he worked like a very slave; he had all the talent, all the ability a man could wish to have; he had no particular misfortune; can anybody say, after reading the history of his life—Why was he a failure?

* We think there must be some mistake here. The Scholarship in question was not founded till the year 2000.—ED.

II.—JOHN WENHAM, MUS. DOC.

If the failure of the brilliant Cyrus Fraser perplexes the enquiring mind, how far more unaccountable is the successful career of that eminent man Wenham! John Wenham first started in life as errand boy at a small music-shop in a provincial town. Being of a practical turn of mind he quickly saw the way to improve his position and prospects. Accordingly, in his few hours of leisure, he taught himself—by the aid of the books and instruments left in his charge—to play the violin in a rough sort of fashion, so that by the time he arrived at the dignity of shopman he was adding to his income by giving cheap lessons. Very soon he abandoned the shop altogether, and took a smart house in the best part of the town; his pupils increased, and so did his terms; he began to be spoken of in the local papers as "one of our leading professors." Knowing his own deficiencies he secretly took lessons whenever he could of an eminent London violinist, and then commenced to study harmony and counterpoint under a fellow-townsman, who had had the advantage of a musical education. The local choral society being on the point of dissolution, through lack of an energetic conductor, Wenham took it in hand and, though knowing little or nothing of singing, quickly restored it to a flourishing condition. This giving him increased importance in the town, he perceived that it would be of great advantage to him to take a University degree. Accordingly he studied hard, and though he was incapable of original composition in its most rudimentary form, yet such is the power of technical training that he succeeded by main force in hammering out one of those frightful abortions known as "Degree Cantatas," armed with which he proceeded to Oxford, and returned in triumph with the coveted "Mus. Doc." to his name. After this his efforts in composition were confined to editing new editions of classical works, which labour, it may be as well to inform the ignorant reader, consists in putting your name on the title page, and neglecting to correct the proofs. This is very remunerative work, as you refuse to let your pupils use any other edition, and claim a royalty on every copy sold. Wenham made plenty of money in this way and soon found his native town too small for his ambition—he yearned to conquer wider worlds. People thought it a very unwise thing in him to abandon the place where he reigned without a rival for the doubtful struggle of a London career. But "Dr." Wenham knew his own powers—none better; he gave up his residence and nearly all his immense teaching connection, but still retained a slight hold on the town in case of accidents. Amongst other things he was, though this was not generally known, the actual proprietor of the music shop in which he had begun life, and which was now, thanks to his efforts, the leading establishment in the town.

Wenham's London career was marked by the same steady upward progress as his provincial one. Whatever enterprise he put his hand to yielded him golden returns, wherever he turned success smiled upon him. He took care never to appear in public as a soloist, but only in some capacity in which his shortcomings, if he had any, should not court espial. And no post was so suitable in this respect as that of a conductor. The conductor of a Grand Concert manages the whole affair; for this no musical talent whatever is needed, only a good head for business. He hands the artists on to the platform, bows his acknowledgments to the grateful audience at the end of the evening, and "trousers the dollars," to use a delicate American phrase. Dr. Wenham's success, then, as a concert entrepreneur (what a pity we cannot translate this term into "musical undertaker"!) was unbounded. The Wenham Concerts have, indeed, been a household word for so many years past that it seems unnecessary to do more than mention them in passing. Every newspaper notice of a Wenham Concert always concludes with an almost fulsome panegyric upon the "services rendered to the cause of art by this spirited and indefatigable musician," and so highly are these services esteemed by the generous British nation that it is rumoured that as soon as he attains his seventy-fifth year, Dr. Wenham will receive from his Sovereign the dazzling distinction of knighthood.

But how came John Wenham to attain to such a pinnacle of greatness? Though he has never produced one original composition with the exception of his Degree Cantata, there are few Englishmen who will deny him the title of Our Leading Musician. Look in all the music shops, you will see Wenham's editions of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Chopin (the "Wenham" printed very large and the rest of the title very small); Wenham's editions of all the standard works, in short, theoretical as well as musical. He married an eminent singer who brought him a fortune, and has since earned another; he has an only daughter who, backed by the reputation and purse of her parents, is—without any talents of her own—rapidly gaining position as a vocalist; he lives in a perfect palace at South Kensington. All these great gifts has Fortune showered upon the industrious apprentice, yet not surely because he was industrious, else why did Cyrus Fraser fail? No, there must be some deeper cause to account for a man rising, not from obscurity to independence, not from poverty to wealth, but from the very bottom of the ladder to the very top. John Wenham is no mere toy of capricious fortune; he has fought his way up, with what toil and possible anguish none can tell, for he is very reticent on that point. He has deserved well, but so have others; he has laboured well, but so have most; he has won not a single reward, but every prize which he chose to seek, and this without any of the qualities which we call brilliant, any exceptional talents, and in spite of the great disadvantages of birth and education. Then can anybody say exactly, after reading this sketch of his life—Why is he such a success?—F. C.

THE Festival Service in celebration of the completion of the fiftieth year of the reign of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen was celebrated in Westminster Abbey with the greatest magnificence. It is not within the province of a publication devoted to music and musical events to describe in detail the preparations made for the reception of the Queen and the European and Indian potentates and Princes who, by their presence, graced the occasion. Those are matters with which the Court newsman and the picturesque reporter can best deal. A few words concerning the music and the choir are all that will be considered necessary. The choral body was composed of the Abbey Choir, including a selection from the members of the Sunday evening contingent, the choirs of St. Paul's Cathedral, of the Chapels Royal, St. James's, the Savoy, Whitehall, St. George's, Windsor; All Saints', Margaret Street; St. Andrew's, Wells Street; St. Peter's, Eaton Square; and other famous London churches. The soli portions were sung by members of the Abbey Choir, and there were a few brass instruments besides the State trumpeters, with drums to augment the effects produced from the organ, which was played by Dr. Bridge, who wore his robes as Doctor of Music in the University of Oxford. The choral force, divided, according to customary Cathedral use, into Decani and Cantoris, was ranged in high galleries built in the bays on either side of the organ, comprising about 220 singers in all. The first arrivals, the Indian Princes, marched from the west door to their seats in the choir to the sounds of Silas's Grand March in B flat, played on the organ. The second procession was accompanied by the March in "Lohengrin," at the express desire of the Prince of Wales, and the "Marche Pontificale" by Lemmens. Then the trumpeters, blowing the ancient fanfare employed on all ceremonial occasions since the reign of Henry VII., who was a liberal benefactor to the Abbey, announced the arrival of the Queen, and then organ, kettle-drum, and trumpet brayed out the triumphant strains of the National Anthem, followed by Benedict's "Marche des Templiers," and the March from Handel's "Occasional Overture," selected by Princess Beatrice, and played by command of the Queen. The Versicles which commenced the service were intoned by the Rev. S. Flood Jones, and responded to by the choir, with organ accompaniment. The Prince Consort's Te Deum, simple in design and devotional in character, followed, and the Proper Psalm, "Exaudiat te, Dominus," was chanted to the fifth Gregorian Tone, second ending, after the special prayers. In the Gloria Patri the organ was reinforced by brass and drums. Another evidence of the Prince Consort's musicianship, the choral tune "Gotha," ingeniously interwoven into the Anthem written by Dr. Bridge, to words beginning "Blessed be the Lord thy God," had a fine effect. The Anthem, which is cleverly written, emphasises the words in the most expressive manner. The text, "Because thy God loved Israel," most happily fits the Choral, and the broad part writing of the whole is creditable alike to the musical powers and the good taste of the composer. Dr. Stainer's "Amen" ended this impressive service. As the Royal cortêge passed down the aisle, the March in "Athalie" was played, this was followed by a second composition by Silas, and a special Jubilee March, by C. S. Jekyll, Organist of the Chapel Royal, and thus ended the music, the arrangement and selection of which was marked by that simplicity which is closely allied to dignity.

THE mechanical powers of endurance have led men to do strange things at times. To walk a thousand miles in a thousand hours, to eat three legs of mutton with concomitants at a sitting, to fast for thirty days, and so forth. Commonplace people have been accustomed to look upon these feats as so many varieties of folly incident to human nature. Latterly they have found scientific defenders, who, in answer to the oft repeated question Cui bono? have said that they are of value as showing the various forms of human toleration, and that they may produce a series of data upon which may be formulated a set of rules for the use and guidance of those who are called upon in real life to do the like things of necessity. A new consideration is offered to musicians to show their scientific knowledge in a recent event which took place at Stockport. On the evening of the 8th ult. Mr. N. Bird entered upon the extraordinary task of performing a selection of music on the pianoforte, twenty-five hours in duration. A committee was formed, and judges were appointed on behalf of the player, and as referees for time. It is not stated whether Mr. N. Bird was moved to undertake this task for a money consideration or for mere glory and honour. The only condition agreed upon was that he should play without rest or any intermission for the time mentioned, and he entered upon the business by playing the National Anthem. The large hall in which he was at work was freely visited, and during the night by way of cheering him on, and enlivening the proceedings, some informal dancing and singing figured in the programme. The difficulty of taking food with the hands busily engaged on the keyboard was thought by many to be of almost an insuperable character, but Mrs. Bird was constantly in attendance to supply her husband with ice and light food, with occasional sips of weak brandy and water. The interest of the public in the event increased towards Wednesday evening, as at 10 p.m. the task was announced to conclude. Some two hours before the hour mentioned the player's hands were somewhat swollen, and for about half-an-hour or so he intimated that he found his task very exacting, but the weary feeling appeared to be of only a temporary character, as at nine o'clock he was playing briskly amidst the plaudits of a rapidly increasing audience. At 9.30 the hall was crowded to excess, and a large number of persons had gathered outside the building, where the playing could be heard. For half-an-hour or so Mr. Bird rendered familiar airs and popular songs, which drew forth the vocal powers of many present, and "rattling choruses" were very heartily joined in. As the timepiece in use by the judges pointed to the hour of ten, the excitement found vent in rounds of cheering. Mr. Bird was minus coat, and, as one critic present observed, was "fairly going it," with a touch which was very sensitive and telling, considering the long task he was within a few minutes of having accomplished. The player ended as he began with loyal aspirations, giving the National Anthem, amid prolonged cheering. Everything had been done, it was observed, "fair and square." The player himself told his audience that he had read of things of this kind being done in India, and he thought what could be done there could be done by an Englishman. He then told the audience how greatly he admired the qualities of the piano he had used, and ended by giving a "puff direct" on behalf of the makers or sellers of the instrument. Herein was found one reason for the absurd undertaking, and as at the present day boldness and originality guide or influence many of the forms of advertisement, perhaps some of the great houses in London might be induced to follow the lead shown by this enterprising performer, who, on account of his stature and of his feat combined, was called at the time "the longest shortest pianist in the world." The local triumph he has won will justify him in making a slight alteration in his name, and so Mr. N. Bird may in future be known by a more masculine appellation, in consideration of his courageous achievement. It is related that there were several medical men present during the course of the performance, in which they seemed to be extremely interested. Perhaps they will inform the world of the scientific value of the experiment, for the benefit of musicians in general and mechanical pianists in particular, in order that they may at least stand on common ground with those who desire to "beat the record" in athletic eccentricity.

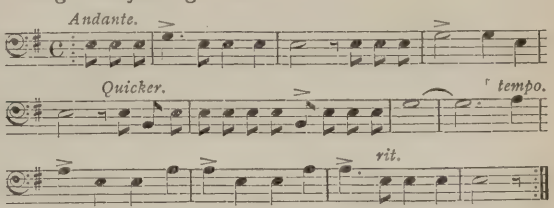
"SAVE me from my friends" is an adage the truth of which is so constantly enforced in our daily experience that few will be found to doubt it; but the many verbal and written utterances in advocacy of the healthy advance of music in the present day prove to us that, on this subject, at least, it is only from those "friends" who are totally ignorant of the art that we desire to be "saved." From lecture platforms, and even pulpits, we have recently listened to the most eloquent discourses upon the true mission of music in the world; and especially has the sermon preached by the Dean of Gloucester at the opening of the last Three Choirs Festival sunk deeply into the hearts of the people, and already produced tangible results. Such able and intelligent pioneers in the cause deserve and command attention from an audience. But our opening remarks are particularly directed towards persons of position who, on the occasion of "introducing" a lecturer or instrumentalist and bespeaking a patient hearing for him, think it necessary to add a little of their own upon the effects of an art of which they evidently know nothing. An instance of this is now before us. At an organ recital, immediately before the performance, the chairman said, "When at the tea-table that evening the question was asked, What victories has music really achieved? It was thereupon remarked that the walls of Jericho fell at the sound of the trumpets in the olden time—(laughter)—and the organist reminded them that, but for the intervention of the bagpipes and their powerful music, Lucknow would have been lost, and the whole Indian empire might have been taken out of our hands." (Laughter.) No doubt this is perfectly true, and highly satisfactory; but do these observations—which were received with "laughter"—form a fitting prelude to a programme comprising a selection from the works of Bach, Handel, and Gounod?

THOSE who credit the assertion that there are persons in existence who really dislike music, must remember that many imagine it a decisive mark of intellect to differ entirely from what the world generally believes. We recollect an instance of a man who never could be made to understand what people can find to admire in the works of Shakespeare; and after confessing that, under persuasion, he had attempted to read one of his plays, declared that by suddenly closing the book at the end of the third act he had saved himself from a fit of illness. This was, of course, a smart thing to say; but there was about as much truth in his remark as in the act of the self-styled music-hater, who always ostentatiously left the room when the pianoforte was opened, but unfortunately was once detected in creeping back when nobody was looking. The fact is that the appreciation of high-class musical works is as much the result of education as the appreciation of high-class works in any other art; but our own experience proves that every individual is sensibly affected by music, if only appealed to in the right manner. We are led to make these remarks by seeing recently in a periodical a list of distinguished men who, it was said, could not endure music; and being struck with the circumstance of not a single proof being adduced in support of such statement. Witty men will of course say witty things upon music as upon everything else; but when we affirm that one of the most earnest and enraptured listeners to a slow movement of Beethoven (charmingly rendered certainly) was a man of general culture who always declared that he hated "classical music," we may fairly assume that there are many others who may be converted to the true faith by an equally eloquent missionary. Even the well-known sarcastic definition of music, that it is "the least disagreeable of noises," was uttered by one who was evidently as desirous of protecting himself from musical, as from literary, bores.

WE are indebted to a Lerwick correspondent for the following communication on the subject of the music of "Ultima Thule." "An Esquimaux," he writes, "Urio Etawaujò by name, being in Lerwick (Shetland Isles) lately—he having been in Britain with Captain Adams of the whaler 'Maud' since last summer—was induced to give a performance in the Town Hall, recently, consisting of songs and dances. Unfortunately I was not present, but on the following day I went on board the vessel and succeeded in noting down the following song, called a 'Song of Rejoicing':—



Urio's voice is very thick and guttural, although soft and seemingly of small compass. He belongs to Acatook's tribe, and lives in Derban, near Cape Searle, in lat. 70 N. As the Esquimaux have no written language, it was impossible to get the words of the songs. Captain Adams could give no English equivalent of the words that Urio sang. I have given the pitch as near as I could decide it. Perhaps some of your numerous readers may be able to throw some light on the music of this interesting race." It is noticeable that the above specimen of Eskimo music, though entitled a "Song of Rejoicing," is entirely confined within the limits of four notes of the minor scale. But as the subdominant or fourth degree occurs, it is not reducible to the category of the five-note scale, in which that interval is conspicuously absent. Adopting the phraseology of Mr. Rowbotham, to the first volume of whose "History of Music" we would refer our correspondent, this air, both in rhythm and melodic character, would seem to belong to the division of tunes based upon the chant or story as opposed to that founded on the dance.

THE author of the words of the song "Home, sweet home," John Howard Payne, is said to have given the original manuscript to a lady, Miss Mary Harden, the daughter of General Harden, of Savannah, to whom he was engaged, but whom the Fates ordained he was never to marry. She kept the precious manuscript, as a memory of her early love, and would never show it to any one. It was therefore assumed, though she never denied, nor ever admitted it, that the poem contained a number of additional lines of a personal character. The lady, who is said to have cherished a constant affection for the poem and its author, though reduced in circumstances, persistently refused every offer to sell it, or to show it, until after her death. On the 8th ult. she was buried in a cemetery near to New York City, and gave instructions in her last sickness that the poem should be buried with her body, fearing that it might fall into unfriendly hands, and "a love that was once sacred and tender to her, might become a sport and jest with the world."

THE "Victoria Concert Hall Company (Limited)," with Viscount Folkestone, Mr. Seton-Karr, M.P., Mr. F. H. Cowen, Mr. Sutherland Edwards, and Mr. John Hollingshead as directors, have issued a prospectus inviting the assistance of the public to enable them to build on the Crown lands a large Concert Hall on the site of the Portland Bazaar, opposite the Langham Hotel. They propose at the same time to acquire St. George's Hall. The intended building will seat 2,000 persons, and the galleries are arranged to accommodate 1,500 more, while the orchestra will be large enough for 700 performers. There is unquestionably a need for a large Concert Hall in London, and the situation of the proposed building is likely to command attention from Concert-givers and the public.

THE Daily Telegraph, in its musical column, states that:—"Arrangements are in progress with a view to the performance in Geneva, next winter, of Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' and Mackenzie's 'Story of Sayid.' The idea originated with Mr. Samuel Aitken, a prominent member of the English community, and is cordially supported by the English Consul, Mr. Barton, whose liberality makes it practicable. Both composers will be invited to attend, and, we believe, will have carte blanche as to choice of soloists, &c. It is proposed to make a special French translation of the libretti. Should the affair come off, it will be eminently satisfactory to those who are jealous for the good name of English music on the Continent."

A SHORT History of Cheap Music, as exemplified in the records of the house of Novello, Ewer and Co., with especial reference to the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, will be issued in a few days. Sir George Grove has written a preface to the work, and it will be further adorned by three etched portraits of Vincent and Alfred Novello, and Henry Littleton.

IN America, female composers are coming to the front. On May 27, at the First Methodist Church, Chicago, a "Recital of Songs" was given, the programme containing no fewer than nine of the compositions of Miss Eleanor Smith, all of which were highly spoken of.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

DOWN to the time of writing, Mr. Lago has drawn exclusively upon the familiar repertory of his house, and we have, therefore, nothing to say, as was hoped and expected, about the promised "Life for the Czar." "Faust," on May 28, served for the début of a new Mephistopheles in Mr. Lorrain, a gentleman of fine presence, a singer powerful as to voice, and an actor of considerable capacity. With Madame Albani as Marguerite, Madame Schalchi as Siebel, Mr. Gayarré as Faust, and Mr. Devoyod as Valentine, supported by the usual chorus and orchestra, a fine performance of Gounod's masterpiece was assured. The theatre presented a brilliant appearance, suggestive of its best days. "Dinorah" and "Lucrezia Borgia" were played in the first week of June, Meyerbeer's pastoral opera having Miss Ella Russell as representative of the heroine. The lady sang well, as she always does, but cannot be congratulated upon her conception of the character from a dramatic point of view. Miss Russell's representation of dementia was ridiculously conventional—almost as absurd, in point of fact, as her attire, which no Breton maiden, sane or insane, ever yet wore. When shall we have a prima donna who will think more of her part than her appearance, and who will break through the silly traditions handed down by her predecessors? A Mr. Stagi failed as Correntino, but Madame Scalchi as the singing Goatherd, and Mr. D'Andrade as singing and acting Hoël, contributed greatly to the strength of the representation. "Lucrezia Borgia" served for the re-entry of Madame Cepeda, who in it well sustained her repute as a dramatic soprano of high attainments. This lady is the legitimate successor of the great artists of the past, and whatever she undertakes is done with power. Mr. Gayarré repeated a familiar success as the hero of the story. "Lucia" followed, with Madame Albani in the title-rôle, Mr. Gayarré as Edgardo, and Mr. D'Andrade as Enrico. This was a fine performance, and appeared, notwithstanding the familiarity of the work, to be much enjoyed by a large and distinguished company. "Un Ballo in Maschera" filled the house on the 9th ult., when, to the solid attraction of Madame Cepeda's Amelia, was added the lighter charm of Madame Giulia Valda's Oscar. We may congratulate the American lady upon her singing, which was true and brilliant, but not upon her acting, which lacked purpose, owing, we should say, to overweening self-consciousness. Madame Valda gives the impression of an artist who is always wondering what the audience think of her. If this be really the case, the sooner she learns to become absorbed in her part the better. Mr. D'Andrade's "Eri tu" was a masterpiece of vocal skill and profound expression, nor did Mr. Gayarré, that untiring tenor, fail to make a "hit." Nothing better than the Amelia of Madame Cepeda can now-a-days be expected.

The series of productions continued with "Ernani" and "La Traviata," the first-named being given for the sake of Madame Valda, the second to afford Madame Albani an opportunity of making a familiar success. Since then "Lohengrin" has been added to the repertory of the season, with a more than usually excellent "cast," comprising Madame Albani (Elsa), Madame Cepeda (Ortrud), and Mr. Gayarré (Lohengrin). So far, this performance stands out as the chief event of Mr. Lago's campaign. It attracted a very large audience, and, having unusual merit, was received with uncommon enthusiasm. On Saturday, the 25th ult., a representation of "Les Huguenots" was given, with a débutante from Russia, Miss Sandra, whose qualifications for such an exacting part as Valentina were somewhat hindered in their exhibition by nervousness, so that she scarcely did herself justice. Miss Ella Russell (Marguerite), Madame Scalchi (Urbano), Mr. Gayarré (Raoul), Mr. Lorrain (St. Bris), and Mr. Campello (Marcello) were at their best. Mr. Bevignani conducted with his customary ability.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

MR. MAPLESON was not disposed to stand apart from the operatic orgie of the present London season. Where so much money was certain to be lost he felt in honour bound, as a veteran at the game, to go and lose more. Hence, no sooner was Covent Garden Theatre evacuated to let Mr. Lago in, than arrangements were made to take possession of "Her Majesty's," which the old operatic hand opened on the 4th ult., with a performance of "Lucia," given to a miserably small house. The representation had some good features, notably the Lucia of Miss Jenny Broch, a promising pupil of Madame Marchesi, and an artist who, with care and pains, will make her name better known than it now is. At present the young lady lacks experience, and her work suffered to some extent therefrom, but the ripest fruit was once green, and we must make allowance for early stages. Mr. Caylus played Edgardo, and Mr. de Anna was an excellent Ashton. The chorus and orchestra, conducted by Mr. Logheder, were tolerably efficient. "Faust" and "Carmen," with Miss Fohstrom as the heroine of the first, and Madame Trebelli as, dramatically, a very weak representative of the Gipsy in the second, followed Donizetti's hackneyed opera. It would serve no good purpose to enter into details. The performances were all of an average kind, and offered nothing for instructive contemplation. Moreover, they utterly failed to attract the public, and, as a consequence, the manager felt compelled to close his doors in a rather precipitous manner.

Let us hope that Mr. Mapleson drew back only to leap forward the better. He re-opened Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday, the 25th ult., with "Fidelio" as an attraction for lovers of classical music. The result was artistically good as a whole. Miss Lilli Lehmann, as the faithful wife, was not only merely effective in her singing (her reading of the "Invocation to hope" deserves especial mention), but her acting was much above the expected operatic effort. Madame Sinico (Marcellina), Mr. Rinaldini (Jacquino), Mr. Novara (Rocco), Mr. Caylus (Florestan), and Mr. de Anna (Pizarro) completed the cast. Mr. Arditi, who was received with much applause, conducted. The band and chorus were at their best. The famous "Leonora" Overture was performed in a manner which elicited general approval. The house was fairly attended, so that we may answer for public sympathy with the renewed effort of a man who does not seem to know when he is beaten. The gallant veteran's course has not been quite the wisest throughout his long career, but his indomitable pluck deserves success.

ITALIAN OPERA, DRURY LANE.

MR. AUGUSTUS HARRIS opened the "National Theatre," on the 13th ult., with a sumptuous representation of "Aïda," that work, doubtless, being chosen, not only for the beauty of its music, but for the opportunity it gave the impresario to make an effect with a splendid mise-en-scène. In this he entirely succeeded. Rarely has Verdi's Egyptian opera been put upon the stage with such splendour, the two great scenes of the temple and the procession being especially noticeable as pictures of the highest order. Several new artists appeared, among them being Madame Kupfer-Berger, a dramatic soprano of great repute on the Continent, and an impressive artist, whose chances are, however, spoiled for England by a vibrato of the most pronounced kind. The audience treated her with the greatest indifference, in spite of merits which one defect, however serious, should not have been allowed to obscure. Better fortune rewarded the efforts of Miss Fabbri as Amneris. She also has the vibrato, but in her case a certain sympathetic manner touched the audience, and largely supported her appeal to popular favour. Mr. Jean de Reszke, the baritone of former seasons, at once made his mark in the part of the hero. Gifted with a fine presence and a liberal allowance of every artistic quality, both as actor and singer, Mr. de Reszke easily excited the enthusiasm of the house, which recognised that no such tenor has recently appealed to an English audience. Mr. Battistini repeated, as Amonasro, a success gained here some years ago, and the other characters were sustained with efficiency enough to make the representation good all round. In fine, Mr. Harris opened so that none could refuse him regard and admiration.

Close upon the opening night, "La Traviata" and "Rigoletto" were played, the first-named work serving to introduce a light tenor, Mr. de Lucia, who made an impression which, we regret to say, subsequent appearances have failed to sustain. Miss Nordica sang the music of Violetta well, and Mr. del Puente, over whose possession Messrs. Mapleson and the singer were then fighting, did his best as the elder Germont. The mise-en-scène benefitted much by the common sense and liberality of the manager, who happily keeps that department in his own hands.

"Rigoletto" brought forward another débutante in the person of Miss Toresella, whose efforts with those of Mr. Battistini carried the performance through successfully. Miss Toresella is not likely to make a pronounced sensation among the most blasé public in Europe, but she is a good artist all the same. Unfortunately the vibrato, so repugnant to English taste, is much indulged in by her, to the serious detriment of her prospects in this country.

"Norma" followed "Rigoletto," introducing another of Mr. Harris's dramatic soprani, Madame Borelli. "Don Giovanni" drew a large audience, not because Madame Borelli played Donna Anna, but because our public love the opera, especially when an artist like Mr. Maurel plays the leading part, with Miss Nordica as Donna Elvira and Madame Minnie Hauk as Zerlina. These three people were all that even a fastidious taste could desire, Mr. Maurel singing and acting so as to bring up memories of Mr. Faure, while Madame Hauk presented an ideal of the Spanish peasant girl. All her pretty airs were encored. Mr. de Lucia was a poor Don Ottavio, Mr. Ciampi a demonstrative Masetto, and Mr. Navarrini a Leporello of the dullest and most common-place character. The ball scene gave Mr. Harris an opportunity which he so used as to score another hit in stage management.

On the 20th ult. appeared a Swedish lady, Miss Sigrid Arnoldson, as a new Rosina in "Il Barbiere." Young, pretty, and of engaging manner, with a good voice and method, and considerable talent as an actress, this débutante won public favour with the greatest ease. The audience were delighted with a girl who reminded them of past beginners that are present favourites, and Miss Arnoldson found herself at once a heroine. Beyond acknowledging the general charm of her impersonation, and expressing a strong hope that the youthful lady is destined to make a considerable figure on the operatic stage, we prefer to reserve a definite opinion till more experience of her quality has been afforded. Enough now that so promising a beginner has not appeared for a long time past. Mr. de Lucia failed as Almavira, and if Mr. Ciampi also failed as Dr. Bartolo, it was not for lack of making a noise. A prominent feature of this performance was the re-entry of Mr. Edouard de Reszke as Don Basilio, a part which his great ability lifted into the highest importance possible.

Continuing his very active operations, Mr. Harris brought out "Lohengrin," on the 22nd ult., with the splendid mise-en-scène that gave so much importance to Mr. Carl Rosa's recent production of Wagner's opera on the same stage. The performance had some notable features, especially the embodiment of the hero by Mr. Jean de Reszke—a fine and impressive effort not likely soon to be forgotten. But a still more effective representation of "Faust," on the 25th, achieved the greatest success yet attained under Mr. Harris's management. We attach little importance to the first production in this country of the Walpurgis Night scene. Mr. Harris mounted it splendidly, but, in our opinion, "Faust" is better without it, above all, when artists like Nordica, Fabbri, Jean de Reszke, Edouard de Reszke, and Maurel are playing the principal parts. The gentlemen just named were splendidly efficient, no such a Faust, Mephistopheles, and Valentine having appeared together within our recollection. The ladies made a weaker impression, but were not without merit. There was a very large audience, and Mr. Harris may find it advantageous to repeat this singularly fine performance again and again.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE Jubilee Musical Festival held at the Crystal Palace on the 22nd ult. was inaugurated by the first performance of the Ode, written by Joseph Bennett, and set to music by Dr. A. C. Mackenzie, at the request of the Crystal Palace Company. Mr. Bennett has couched his language in tones of honest patriotism rather than of courtier-like flattery; but his chief purpose, that of supplying words which should fit the requirements of music, has been fully carried out. The music which Dr. Mackenzie has supplied not only bears evidence of his scholarship and experience, but there is a tone of manly vigour and honesty of purpose which sorts well with the character of the poem, and bears testimony to the sincerity with which the work has been undertaken and fulfilled. The various sentiments expressed in the words are well represented in the music, loyalty to the Sovereign, congratulations upon the prosperity of the vast Empire over which she rules, and a tender reference to the domestic virtues and affections of the Sovereign as a wife, as a friend, as a mother, and as a Queen. The Ode, though short, is a splendid specimen of musical effort, cleverly constructed, and creditable alike to the hand and the heart of the composer. The opening chorus, "For fifty years our Queen," begins with a passage in unison, as though to show that there is but one accord in the offering of congratulation; the joyous phrase "Wild clanging bells and thund'rous cannon" is expressed in jubilant strains which make the chorus dramatically emphatic. The tenor solo "O Queen, the people of thine home lands greet thee," is designed to offer a quiet placid contrast to the grandeur of the choral invocation which it follows. As it was sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd, no point of its significance was lost, and the fine declamation of the singer and the resonance of the high notes of his voice, beautifully clear and telling, had an exciting effect upon the audience.

After this comes the picturesque chorus, "Now let the long procession pass," in which the colonies in various parts of the globe are represented in characteristic musical phrases. Sleigh bells accompany the reference to the "Sons of the Dominion"; semi-barbaric melodies speak of the land of the "hill and plain neath Afric's burning sun." When the soprano solo appears, the reference to "India's dusky sons" gives ground for effective local colour, and in the other part of the poem, which has for its chief subject the domestic life of the Queen, the composer has made his best endeavour to impart beauty and life as an under-current of instrumental tone. His sympathies being fully aroused, some of the happiest and most inspired portions of his labour are to be found in the number. Madame Albani sang the solo with all the sweetness, pathetic expression, and earnest enunciation which the theme demanded, and the audience received her efforts with the greatest enthusiasm. A fine chorus, with a broad melodic theme, prepares the way for the introduction of the National Anthem, newly and vigorously harmonised, and on this occasion accompanied by a discharge of cannon outside the building, booming in rhythmical cadence with fine effect, and thus ends the Ode, which is among the most successful pieces of descriptive writing as yet produced by the composer. Although the occasion for which it was written will pass into history, the impression created will take long to obliterate. Mr. Manns, who conducted, made every endeavour to secure a good performance, and, considering the difficulty of obtaining perfect unanimity in a large body of performers, he was successful.

Dr. Mackenzie was present and received a most cordial call at the conclusion.

It only remains to add that in the "Hymn of Praise," which concluded the day's music, Miss Annie Marriott was the third chief vocalist, and that the band and chorus, numbering nearly 3,000 executants, were well selected as regards the balance of tone produced.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The sixth Concert, on the 9th ult., drew one of the largest audiences of the season. If somewhat lengthy, the programme was, at any rate, diversified and interesting. It opened with the third of Spohr's nine Symphonies (C minor, Op. 78), a work of considerable beauty and merit, but not to be compared for breadth of design and power of development with the famous "Weihe der Tone," or so-called "Power of Sound," which comes next in order of composition. On the other hand, this Symphony was well calculated to bring into prominence the superb quality of the strings in the Philharmonic orchestra, especially the Larghetto, which was exquisitely played, and made a really striking effect. The performance was much applauded, as was the subsequent execution, under Sir Arthur Sullivan's direction, of Beethoven's "Leonora" Overture (No. 3) and Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe." There were two instrumental soloists—both gifted young ladies. Miss Fanny Davies played Sterndale Bennett's charming Caprice in E, for piano and orchestra, displaying therein her accustomed perfection of technique and refinement of style. Later on she was heard alone in one of the "Lieder ohne Worte," and Schumann's Novellette in D (No. 2). For each of her efforts, the young English pianist won cordial recognition. The other fair executant was Miss Marianne Eissler, who made her first appearance at these Concerts, and exhibited an admirable talent in Vieuxtemps's "Fantasia Appassionata," for violin. Included among the vocal items was the sole novelty of the Concert, a setting for tenor voice and orchestra of Byron's "Prayer of Nature," written expressly for the Philharmonic Society by Mr. A. Randegger. The whole of Byron's stanzas have not been set to music; the seven verses after the first two being omitted. The composition is in the form of a scena, without the final selection, or cabaletto; the opening recitative dealing impressively with the bitter plaint, "Father of Light! great God of Heaven!" while the second portion, an Andante religioso, takes up the prayer, "Thou who canst guide the wand'ring star," in a more subdued but not less impassioned strain. To say that Mr. Randegger has risen to the full height of his theme might be to say too much, but he has, at least, provided it with a melodious and musicianly setting, effectively written for the voice and admirably scored for orchestra. Conducted by himself, and sung with wonderful fervour and expression by Mr. Edward Lloyd, the piece met with a decidedly favourable reception. Miss Ella Russell also sang at this Concert.

The first of the two morning Concerts announced to take place during the current season—originally to have been given on May 7—was held on the 15th ult., and numerously attended. Again no novelty of importance was brought forward. The only addition to the Society's repertory was an Overture to an Italian opera on the subject of "Kenilworth," composed many years ago by Professor Macfarren, but never produced in public. It is a spirited, brightly-scored piece, reflecting at every point the early style of its composer. It was well played by the band and warmly applauded. The other orchestral works of the afternoon were Haydn's Symphony in C (No. 1, Salomon set), Schumann's Overture, Scherzo, and Finale, the Overture to "Oberon," and Mozart's characteristic Pianoforte Concerto in E flat (No. 6). In the last named the solo was delightfully interpreted by Mr. Camille Saint-Saëns, who played with notable grace and refinement, introducing in each of the Allegros a charmingly-improvised and appropriate cadenza. At the end, the gifted French pianist was cordially recalled. In the second part of the Concert Miss Nettie Carpenter made her début before a Philharmonic audience, and gave a remarkably neat and facile rendering of Vieuxtemps's Introduction and Rondo for violin, earning hearty applause. The vocalist was Miss Lillian Nordica, who sang with success a rather uninteresting air, "Questi affetti," from Spohr's "Faust," and "Giunse alfin" from "Le Nozze." Sir Arthur Sullivan conducted throughout with his accustomed tact and skill.

The final Concert of the season—the second of the morning Concerts—was given on Saturday, the 25th ult. St. James's Hall was filled to overflowing, many being contented to stand during the whole performance. Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony was very finely played by the band, under Sir Arthur Sullivan's direction, as was also the "Jubilee" Overture of Weber, in which the English National Anthem is introduced with fine effect. Not less excellent was the interpretation of the "Ouvertura di Ballo" of the Conductor, the brightness and piquancy of the themes and the orchestral colouring being brought out with splendid artistic effect. The vocalists were Madame Albani, Miss Nevada, and Mr. Edward Lloyd, and their efforts were duly appreciated by the audience. The chief point of attraction was undoubtedly centred in the performance of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C, played by the gifted boy Josef Hofmann. It was not the mere mechanical execution of a difficult work by one so young (he has only just completed his tenth year) which gratified and delighted the critical audience, but the taste and expression infused into his reading. It raised him above the position of the ordinary infant phenomenon, and placed him on a level with those who have earned the right to be classed as true artists. There was a depth of feeling and expression in his performance which could only belong to genius of the highest order. It is a distinct honour for an artist to have the opportunity of exhibiting his abilities before a Philharmonic audience, and the directors were fully justified in bringing the boy forward before their subscribers, for such talents as he possesses are not often to be found in a mere child. The enthusiasm he excited was as genuine as it was rare.

RICHTER CONCERTS.

THE fifth programme of the season was performed on the 6th ult., and derived no small interest from its inclusion of a Symphony in F, by Dr. Hubert Parry—the amended version of a work composed some time ago for the Cambridge University Musical Society, but never heard in London. Dr. Parry is a musician who makes progress, in the sense that time and experience are modifying whatever was once crude in his music. We can heartily praise much of the new Symphony, including the Scherzo, the slow movement, and a good deal of the first Allegro. But, indeed, the whole work shows fertility of idea, uncommon mastery of orchestral detail—which, perhaps, tempts the composer to put more into his score sometimes than is good for it—and a knowledge of how to obtain noble effects of figure and colour. The Symphony shows a tendency towards diffuseness, for which Dr. Parry should be hereafter on the watch, and we are the more concerned to impress this upon him because of a conviction that he may soon be capable of the highest achievements as a symphonic writer. Dr. Parry is on the move upwards and decidedly worth reasoning with. With the new work were given Liszt's "Hungaria," Dvorák's Symphonic Variations (second time), the Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," and some selections from Wagner, in which Mr. Santley took part.

The sixth Concert (13th ult.) derived its chief interest from a performance of Mr. Cowen's Symphony in F (No. 5), composed for, and, only a few days before, produced by the Cambridge University Musical Society. In this work Mr. Cowen has broken new ground, if a composer may be said to do so when he deepens the depth of his feeling and heightens the force of his expression. The work has the usual number of movements, all of which are in customary form, varied a little by the recurrence of a particular theme in view of greater homogeneity and closer relationship. It is superfluous to say that the Symphony contains an abundance of melody, is scored with great skill, and affords quite a study in constructive device. Mr. Cowen has taught us to expect these qualities; what we did not look for was an ideality, profundity of feeling, and sympathetic character of utterance such as are found only in the productions of genius. It may be that the tone of the work as a whole is too sombre, and calls for more relief than a bright and dainty little Scherzo affords; but to determine this question, and others, the music must be heard again. Suffice it that now we hail the Symphony as a genuine triumph of native art. Mr. Cowen was called by the audience and greatly applauded. With it were presented a wonderful "Scherzo capriccioso," by Dvorák, which will always be welcome; Liszt's second Hungarian Rhapsody, Haydn's "Military" Symphony, and the Good Friday music in "Parsifal."

The seventh Concert (on the 20th ult.) presented no novelty, and may be dismissed in few words. Its principal features were Weber's "Jubilee" Overture, Beethoven's "Leonora," Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Symphony, and Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll." At the eighth Concert, on Monday, the 27th ult., Dr. Stanford's new "Irish" Symphony was produced, but our notice of that must, perforce, be reserved.

JOSEF HOFMANN.

LONDON has just had its musical sensation, as well as its Jubilee. On the one hand, the great city celebrated a reign of fifty years; on the other, she extended a welcome to a little hero who has lived only one-fifth of the time. Josef Hofmann, the child-pianist of Warsaw, is undoubtedly, as such wonders go, worth making a fuss about, even in an age when precocity seems on the increase, and poor children are "forced" like plants in a hot-house. We have no manner of sympathy with the forcing process, and we hold that those who make gifted boys or girls submit to it at a time when they should be building up body and mind by natural means incur a very heavy responsibility. But there is a great difference in these cases, and sometimes the general censure should be sparingly applied. Of this Josef Hofmann affords an illustration. The little fellow would unquestionably be better off at home, away from the glare and excitement of public life, and in a position allowing the fullest cultivation of his gifts. He, however, looks so well and sturdy, preserves, under all circumstances, such perfect calmness, and seems so much at ease with his audiences that mischief seems to be at a minimum, and one can approve and applaud with no more than the slightest twinge of conscience. Young Hofmann has given three Recitals down to the time at which we write, and he appeared at last Saturday's Philharmonic to play Beethoven's first Concerto; in each instance exciting the wonder of his audience, who heard a small boy produce a tone, and execute passages in a fashion which would well become a grown up artist of acknowledged powers. The lad has obviously been well trained by his father, a professor at the Warsaw Conservatoire, and himself a capable pianist. But the marvel lies not so much in the results of teaching as in the evidence of great natural endowment. Hofmann has the spirit of music in him, and his reading of the works given at his Recitals was marked by extraordinary perception of their nuances and expression of their meaning. Herein lies the true wonder, though we are fully entitled to treat as a great rarity the fulness of tone produced by such small fingers, and the manner in which passages of difficulty are brought within reach of the tiny hands. The boy's selections are, very properly, not of an exhausting kind. They chiefly consist of short pieces by Chopin, Rubinstein, and other composers of the romantic school, whose effusions Josef himself seeks to imitate in his own Polonaises and such like—pretty little things, devoid of originality, of course, but giving large promise as to the future. The lad has also improvised in public on several occasions with more or less success.

We hear that Mr. Hofmann, père, is delighted with the reception given to his son in this country, and has arranged for two more visits, next autumn and next spring.

CHAMBER CONCERTS.

IT is said that the most remunerative Concerts in London at present are the most classical. There is ample evidence in support of this assertion, the old-fashioned heterogeneous entertainments having well-nigh disappeared, their place being taken, to a great extent, by performances based, more or less, on the Monday Popular pattern. Taking up the record from last month, we must first devote a few lines to the last of the Wind Instrument Concerts at the Royal Academy of Music, on May 27. The programme included two important works—namely, Mozart's Serenade in C minor, for oboes, clarinets, horns, and bassoons; and Onslow's Sextet, for piano, flute, clarinet, horn, bassoon, and contra-bass (Op. 30). The former is better known to amateurs as a Quintet for strings, in which form it has been heard occasionally at the Popular Concerts, but it is far more effective in its original shape. Onslow's Sextet is a fine work in the composer's best manner. We may also mention Beethoven's bright little Trio for oboes and English horn, a very early work, though it was published as Op. 87; a Fantasia for clarinet, entitled "Traditions of Shakespeare," by Sir G. A. Macfarren, introducing a number of the original melodies of Shakespeare's songs; and Cherubini's beautiful "Ave Maria," with English horn obbligato, the vocal part of which was tastefully sung by Miss Lilly Crabtree. Among the other executants were Messrs. Svendsen, Horton, Malsch, Lazarus, Beddome, Mann, Keevil, Wotton, and White. These interesting Concerts should be resumed next season in a more convenient locale than the Royal Academy Concert-room.

At the second of Mr. Gustav Ernest's Concerts, on May 31, at the Prince's Hall, a Cantata for female voices, entitled "The Convent Bells," from the Concert-giver's pen, was performed. Without being pretentious, the work is tasteful, musicianly, and extremely pleasing. As there is a strong and increasing demand for music of this nature, "The Convent Bells" is likely to be in request. The Cantata was well performed by Mr. Gustav Ernest's choir, with Miss Pauline Cramer, Miss Hilda Wilson, and Miss Lucille Saunders as the soloists. Mr. Ernest showed himself a good pianist in Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata, but there was nothing else worthy of remark.

A few lines will suffice to do justice to the third and fourth Concerts of Madame Frickenhaus and Herr Ludwig, at the Prince's Hall, on the 11th and 25th ult. On the former occasion the programme was headed by Dr. Villiers Stanford's Piano Quintet in D minor (Op. 25), which has been heard several times in the course of the season. The gem of the work is the slow movement, the theme of which suggests a Celtic origin. Raff's Sonata in D, for piano and violin (Op. 128), is a clear, straightforward, and effective work, if not remarkable for originality. Madame Frickenhaus gave a refined performance of Mendelssohn's Prelude in E minor, and Haydn's Quartet in B flat (Op. 64, No. 3) concluded the Concert. Miss Clara Samuell contributed airs by Handel and Kjerulf.

At the final Concert Dittersdorff's Quartet in E flat was performed "by desire." There is no accounting for tastes, but we cannot find much to interest in this rococco work. Dr. Hubert Parry's Partita in D minor, for piano and violin, which was first heard at one of Mr. Dannreuther's Concerts last season, is a capital imitation of the style of Bach, the composer having for once entirely shaken off the influence of Brahms. The rest of the programme does not call for remark.

We can only record in the fewest words the Concert given by Messrs. Harvey Löhr and Frank Arnold, at the Prince's Hall, on the 8th ult. A correct and conscientious rendering of Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata for violin and piano, by the Concert-givers, and Gade's pleasing Trio in F (Op. 42), in which Mr. Leo Stern assisted them in the violoncello part, were the most noteworthy features of a carefully arranged programme. Madame Marian McKenzie and Mr. Ben Davies were the vocalists.

Mr. Charles Hallé's Friday afternoon Concerts have pursued the even tenour of their way, and have attracted satisfactory audiences, notwithstanding all rival undertakings. No important novelties have been produced since last month, so a very brief summary of what has been done will suffice. At the third Concert, on the 3rd ult., Karl Nawratil's Quintet in D (Op. 16) was performed for the second time. It is a somewhat weak work, with little or no trace of individuality. The Finale is the best movement. Included in the programme were Schumann's Quartet in F and Brahms's new Sonata in F, for piano and violoncello (Op. 99). We have already noticed this work to which we should assign a middle place among the recently published compositions—superior, that is, to the Trio, but inferior to the Piano and Violin Sonata.

At the Concert of the 10th this last-named work was repeated, and Dr. Villiers Stanford's Quintet in D minor (Op. 25), about which we have written frequently of late, was performed for the first time at these Concerts. Haydn's Quartet in G (Op. 33, No. 5) was also given for the first time, and Mr. Hallé played Schumann's early and not very satisfactory Sonata in F sharp minor (Op. 11). On the following Friday a manuscript Sonata for piano and violin, by Gade, was performed. The work is in the Danish composer's customary elegant and fanciful style, and reveals no new phase of his genius. The second and third movements are better than the first and fourth, the best being a Romanze, than which Gade has written nothing more charming. Brahms's new Trio was repeated "by desire," Mr. Hallé played Beethoven's Sonata "Les Adieux" in his very best manner, and Mozart's Quartet in D minor concluded the Concert. On the 24th Schubert's Octet was by far the greatest attraction, and it was performed by a fine body of executants—namely, Madame Néruda (who has been the leader throughout), and Messrs. Ries, Straus, Franz Néruda, Lazarus, Paersch, Wotton, and Reynolds. Brahms's Trio in E flat, for piano, violin, and horn (Op. 40), and Schumann's "Kinderscenen" (Op. 15) were included in the programme.

PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

MR. PACHMANN having come to London for a holiday was immediately called upon to give a Recital. He could scarcely refuse without seeming ungracious to his many admirers, and he was rewarded for his consent by seeing St. James's Hall well filled on the afternoon of the 2nd ult. The programme selected for the occasion was well diversified, though the honoured name of Beethoven was conspicuous by its absence. It commenced with Weber's Sonata in E minor (Op. 70), a great favourite with Mr. Pachmann, and which he plays delightfully, especially the slow movement. Schumann's "Faschingschwank aus Wien" does not suit him quite so well, though he was admirable in the delicate and piquant second and third movements. So far as we are aware, Grieg's "Ballade en forme de Variations" (Op. 24) was a novelty. It is a highly interesting piece, very characteristic of the Norwegian composer. Some of the variations are beautiful and original, but the work suffers somewhat from its general sombreness of tone. We expect the audience was pleased when the Chopin selection was reached. This consisted of five items, in all of which the pianist was thoroughly at home. If it is necessary to particularise, we may mention his rendering of the Nocturne in E as being as near perfection as anything of its kind can be.

The Prince's Hall was well attended on the 10th and 17th ult., when Miss Kleeberg gave two Recitals. The young French pianist renders everything she attempts with charming refinement and finish, and her popularity affords welcome evidence that the public can appreciate executive efforts in which the element of sensationalism is conspicuous by its absence. Like other players, however, Miss Kleeberg is more acceptable in some kinds of music than in others. At her first Recital she played two of Beethoven's Sonatas, "Les Adieux" (Op. 81) and the one in E (Op. 109), with perfect manipulative skill, and with sufficient intellectual expression to satisfy the most hypercritical disciples of the master. She also gave Schumann's Fantasiestücke (Op. 12), now as popular as Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte," and smaller pieces by various composers. The principal feature of her second Recital was Weber's Sonata in C, with its famous il moto continuo, which she played with marvellous clearness and unerring precision. The rest of the programme consisted of minor compositions, about which it is unnecessary to speak, except to record that every effort of the accomplished artist was heartily applauded by a large audience.

Strictly speaking, the second Recital of Mr. Saint-Saëns at St. James's Hall, on the 4th ult., was a Chamber Concert, as there were no fewer than four performers. The highly talented French executant and composer was assisted by three wind instrument players from Paris—namely, Mr. Taffanel, flute; Mr. Gillet, oboe, and Mr. Turban, clarinet. These artists hold the highest rank in their own city and after hearing them we cannot say that their reputation is undeserved. Each player is a perfect master of his instrument, and their united performances gave the liveliest satisfaction to those who were present. We may especially mention Weber's Grand Duet for piano and clarinet, Handel's Sonata for oboe, Bach's Sonata for piano and flute, and a Quartet Caprice on Danish and Russian airs by the Concert-giver, as exemplifying the extraordinary skill of these Parisian artists. The programme was far too long, but it was highly interesting, and every item was received with much enthusiasm.

A notice of Mr. Saint-Saëns's Orchestral Concert, on the 18th ult., may be fitly included among Recitals, since, with the exception of the Overture to "Der Freischütz," the programme consisted wholly of Pianoforte Concertos by the Concert-giver. The works are four in number, and the composer played them in the order in which they were written. Here was a herculean task, exhausting alike to executant and audience, though it cannot be said that either showed any sense of fatigue. Very few remarks are required with regard to the merits of the Concertos, as they have all been heard here before, and two of them several times. No. 1, in D (Op. 17), is an early work, and has some of the defects of immaturity. It contains many ingenious ideas, but its construction is crude and patchy. The second Concerto, in G minor (Op. 22), is the most popular, thanks to the irresistible prettiness of the Allegro scherzando, in E flat, a movement which is sometimes heard apart from the rest of the work. In the third Concerto, in E flat (Op. 29), the composer departs entirely from customary form, and purists may object to the work on this account. But no one can deny the charm and beauty of the Andante, nor the skill shown in the orchestration throughout. The fourth and last Concerto, in C minor (Op. 44), is, by some, considered the best of the series. It is certainly full of brilliant and telling devices, and the broad sweeping melody which forms the basis of the last movement is a happy inspiration. All four works were played to perfection, and, judging by the applause, the audience must have thoroughly enjoyed the performances.

A line or two of record must suffice concerning Mr. Charlton Speer's sixth annual Recital, which took place on May 27, at the Prince's Hall. The performer, who is perhaps better known as a teacher than as an executant, offered a very varied programme, in which he had the assistance of the Misses Hallett and Miss Dora Bright. The only item calling for mention was a new Suite by Mr. Walter Macfarren. The work is in three movements, and, like the Suites of Raff, is modern in character. It is bright and effective, and, we should think, rather difficult.

MADAME NORMAN-NÉRUDA'S CONCERTS.

NOTWITHSTANDING the countless attractions and distractions of the present season, there was a large attendance on the 10th ult., in St. James's Hall, when the most accomplished female violinist of the time gave her second orchestral Concert. Her own share in the programme was considerable, consisting of Mendelssohn's ever welcome Concerto, Viotti's in A minor, and one of Raff's "Volker." How Madame Néruda rendered these compositions need not be described in detail. Enough that Mendelssohn's work has never been heard to greater advantage, and that she imparted new interest to Viotti's old fashioned Concerto, the only one of twenty-nine which still survives. Haydn's little known Symphony in D minor, which pleased so greatly at the previous Concert, was repeated "by general desire." Out of the 118 symphonies composed by the cheery old master, there are many more quite unknown to audiences of the present day, the revival of which would be most welcome. Mr. Hallé's fine orchestra was also heard in Svendsen's Rhapsodie Norvégienne (No. 3, in C) and one of Dvorák's remarkably picturesque Légendes.

MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

THE third and last Concert of this body, given on May 26, just too late for notice in our last number, was, on the whole, the best of the season. The singing of the choir was certainly better in tone and quality, though as regards the latter there was still something left to desire. Again the attendance was more satisfactory, and altogether it seemed evident that a little labour in the right direction would serve to restore the Leslie Choir to the high position it once held among musical associations. There was nothing in the programme to call for lengthy notice, almost every item being more or less familiar. A part-song entitled "Moonlight," by Mr. Eaton Faning, was announced as "first time of performance," but we believe it has been heard frequently at suburban Concerts for some time past. It is a remarkably pleasing, fanciful piece, and, being excellently rendered, it was warmly encored. The principal attraction of the evening was unquestionably Mendelssohn's truly inspired Psalm "Hear my prayer," the solo part of which was exquisitely delivered by Madame Albani. Among other choral numbers were Sir R. Stewart's humorous "Bells of St. Michael's Tower," Mr. Gerard Cobb's well-written motett "Surge illuminare," Sterndale Bennett's "Come, live with me," and Gaul's "The silent land." Miss Trebelli and Mr. Santley appeared as soloists, and the masterly rendering of Beethoven's Sonata in G (Op. 30, No. 3), for piano and violin, by Madame Néruda and Mr. Hallé, was as much appreciated as anything in the programme.

THE "SHINNER QUARTET" CONCERT.

MISS EMILY SHINNER is well known to amateurs of the violin as one of Dr. Joachim's best English pupils. On the evening of the 13th ult. she inaugurated an enterprise which, if not absolutely novel, offers the attractions of unfamiliarity. The programme consisted of chamber music, alternating with songs, performed by a quartet of ladies led by Miss Shinner, the second violin being played by Miss Lucy Riley—another pupil of Dr. Joachim's—the viola by Miss Cecilia Gates, and the cello by Miss Florence Hemmings. Although the hour chosen happened to coincide with a Richter Concert, the Portman Rooms were fairly well filled by an appreciative audience, amongst whom we observed M. Sainton. The quartets played were Beethoven's in A major (Op. 18), Mendelssohn's in E flat (Op. 44), and that by Haydn in G (Op. 77), in all of which a highly creditable ensemble was exhibited. A little levelling up to their leader—whose superiority at all points at present rather impairs the balance of the quartet—will doubtless be obtained by practice and experience. But the scheme promises excellently and deserves cordial support. Mrs. Hutchinson contributed two lieder by Brahms—of which one, "Vergebliches Ständchen," is irresistibly fresh and melodious—Goring Thomas's "Winds in the trees," and Massenet's "Crépuscule," being especially successful in the last named song.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

THREE Pupils' Concerts—one orchestral—a performance of the "Freischütz," and a Concert at Windsor make up the imposing record of the public work done by the students at the Royal College in the month of June. Of these events it is impossible for us to mention more than two of the Pupils' Concerts, owing to the date of our going to press. The fiftieth Concert was noticeable for the first appearance of a youthful violinist in the person of Master Stephenson, who gave a Sonata of Veracini's in very good style. The encouragement afforded to players of wind instruments being one of the special features of this institution, it is pleasant to be able to record the progress which the performance of Spohr's "Nonett" proved to have been made in this department. Mr. Godfrey has made distinct progress as a clarinettist since his last appearance at these Concerts. Mr. Smith affords every promise of becoming a fine horn-player, and Mr. Hall is an efficient recruit to the ranks presided over by Mr. W. Wotton. Miss Hallet's rendering of the "Appassionata" Sonata proved disappointing to those who, like ourselves, looked for something much above the average. A constant tendency to hurry was observable, and robbed the work of its dignity. Mr. Fischer gave Schumann's splendid Ballad of the Harper in a style, the disconcerting inequalities of which are now only too-well known to frequenters of these Concerts. We have seldom heard a passion more effectually torn to tatters. Songs by Miss Himing and Mr. Curran, whose pleasing manner is in advance of his resources, and two of Schumann's Märchenerzählungen for clarinet, viola, and piano, completed the programme. Passing over the Concert on the 9th ult., that on the 16th served to introduce a young pianist, so youthful and so gifted as almost to deserve the title of a prodigy. From the dangerous consequences of such an indiscreet salutation, Master Spencer is fortunately likely to be guarded by the judicious restraint of his teachers. Mr. Sutcliffe played Tartini's familiar "Trillo del diavolo" in excellent style, and his brother, Mr. Wallace Sutcliffe, recently elected a scholar, made a first appearance at these Concerts, taking the second violin in Mozart's Quartet in D minor. Miss Rose Price sang two songs with viola accompaniment, by Brahms, while Miss Russell introduced two compositions by Mr. Barton, a scholar of the College. Miss Kellett and Miss Donkersley were heard to advantage in Bach's Sonata (No. 2, in A) for piano and violin. Schumann's Trio for piano and strings, in G minor (Op. 110), concluded the programme.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY MUSICAL SOCIETY.

THE Concert given by the Cambridge University Musical Society at the Guildhall, Cambridge, on the 9th ult., included a new Symphony by Mr. F. H. Cowen, one of the foremost of our living musicians, and one who by his previous efforts in the same direction has earned the right to be heard with respect. Unlike the "Scandinavian" or the "Welsh" Symphonies, its predecessors, the Cambridge Symphony has no distinctive title. Neither was there any programme or descriptive account furnished as a clue to the composer's intention. It may therefore be judged entirely upon its own merits. These, in spite of a not over perfect performance by the band, arising from uncorrected copies, are many, and were distinctly apparent. It is perhaps not so great a work as either of the two above named, but it certainly bears graceful and pleasing evidence of a lofty purpose, and of an earnest effort to maintain the standard which the composer has set up for himself in all his works of like kind. The Introduction, Molto sostenuto e maestoso, leading to Allegro vivace, is one of the most important portions of the work. It contains themes of which the greatest use is made in certain of the other movements, including what may be called the chief or characteristic phrase, which is a passage which at the outset seems to belong to B flat minor rather than to the key of F, the nominal tonality of the Symphony. The second movement, Allegretto quasi Allegro, in B flat, is most charming for the grace of its melodies and the delicacy of its scoring. The third, or slow movement, Lento espressivo, in the key of D, has an ably designed theme beautifully treated, in which the characteristic phrase is introduced with fine effect near to the close; and the Finale, Allegro con fuoco ma deciso, opens boldly, and among other matters treated with the utmost skill is a second subject, which is dealt with fugally for a short time and then is superseded by the original phrase transposed to G minor. In the "working out" a number of ingenious contrivances of a contrapuntal character are introduced, among others, the dux of the fugue is made the subject of a canon in the unison at a bar's distance, upon a pedal, and an animated though short Coda ends a work which is, under all considerations, one of the most interesting and thoughtful of Mr. Cowen's orchestral works. It deserves to be heard again and again. It is certain to bring increased admiration with increased knowledge. Mr. Cowen, who conducted, was enthusiastically received, as he well deserved to be. The programme of the Concert also contained Dr. A. C. Mackenzie's finely conceived, artistically wrought out, and nobly written Violin Concerto, conducted by the composer, which was played with mechanical accuracy by Mr. Gompertz, but not with an overwhelming amount of taste and expression. Dr. Bridge conducted his setting of the Latin version of the hymn "Rock of Ages," the solo in which was sung by Mr. Blandford, of Trinity College, at a short notice; Dr. Stanford conducted his ballad "The Revenge," in both of which works the choir lent valuable assistance, and the Concert ended with a most melodious "Suite de Ballet," written in the "French taste" by Mr. A. Goring Thomas.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

A THANKSGIVING Service was held in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 23rd ult., at which the Lord Mayor, the aldermen, and other city dignitaries attended in state. A special form of service had been compiled by Dr. Liddon, comprising short thanksgiving prayers, the Te Deum, a special lesson, and an Anthem, which was set to music by Dr. Stainer, who conducted the musical portion of the service. The Te Deum selected was Handel's setting for the Victory of Dettingen, a full band of about sixty instruments, with the organ (Dr. Martin) accompanying the large choir, augmented to 300 voices for the occasion. The solos were sung by Messrs. Kempton and De Lacy. Dr. Stainer's Anthem, "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers," is one of the best efforts of his skill. The words are powerfully and expressively set, and the manner in which the climax is brought about is masterly in the extreme. The culminating point is the National Anthem, and this is brought in so cleverly and with so much musicianly grace that no other Finale seems possible. The scoring is full of picturesque colour, and the whole work certainly stands among the most successful efforts of a successful writer of Church music. The congregation was invited to join in singing "God save the Queen," and this they did with a heartiness and fervour that it was impossible to hear unmoved.

CHOIR BENEVOLENT FUND.

A JUBILEE Festival Service in aid of this Fund was held at Harrow Parish Church, on Saturday evening, the 25th ult. The chief feature of interest on this occasion was the repetition of the music sung in Westminster Abbey on the preceding Tuesday by a large section of the same choir, and to this was added other music of an appropriate character. The service opened with a Processional Psalm, "I was glad when they said unto me," to which the choir, consisting of over sixty voices, selected from the Chapels Royal, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, Eton College, and St. George's Chapel, Windsor, entered the church. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were Stainer in A. Dr. Bridge's Jubilee Anthem, "Blessed be the Lord thy God," followed the third of the special prayers, the solo being sung by Mr. W. H. Brereton, and a very fine effect was made with the brass and drums at the introduction of the few bars of the National Anthem. After the remaining special prayers, Gibbons's "Hosanna" was sung unaccompanied; and, immediately after the sermon, Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair" was given by Master Crook (Westminster) with great purity of expression, the words being enunciated with remarkable clearness. This was followed by the Prince Consort's Te Deum (the verses being sung by Messrs. W. A. Frost, Kenningham, and Sutton Shepley), and Handel's Coronation Anthem, the service terminating with the National Anthem, the quartet in which was sung by Master Crook, Messrs. Stilliard, Gawthrop, and W. Bell Kempton. Appropriate lessons were read by the Vicar, the Rev. F. Hayward Joyce, and the Headmaster of Harrow, the Rev. Dr. Welldon; the sermon being preached by the Rev. W. Done Bushell. The service had the advantage of being accompanied throughout by Dr. Bridge, a selection of music being also played for about half-an-hour before the commencement of the service by Mr. Eaton Faning. In addition to the organ, the following accompaniments were used: trumpets, Mr. Bosworth and Mr. R. de Lacy; trombones, Mr. Langshaw and Mr. Harris; drums, Mr. White; side drums and cymbals, Mr. Haydn Parry. The proceeds of the offertory are to be divided between the Choir Benevolent Fund and Harrow Parish Church Organ Fund. Mention should be made of Mr. Calkin Lewis, of Pinner, by whose initiation the service was held.

A PRIVATE JUBILEE.

ON the 17th ult. a large meeting was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, in Great Queen Street, for the purpose of offering to Mr. Henry Littleton, so long identified with the labours of the firm, a testimonial from those employed by him in the business of Novello, Ewer and Co., of which he was until recently the head. The thought of offering Mr. Littleton a small tribute of regard to mark the occasion of his retirement occurred, a committee was formed, a small subscription was proposed, in order to allow every one to contribute who desired, and the design of honouring the private Jubilee was carried to a successful issue.

The advice of Mr. J. R. Clayton, of the well-known firm of Clayton and Bell, was sought, and a work of art was purchased in the form of a beautiful reduction in bronze of a fine statue entitled "La Musique," the production of the French sculptor Delaplanche, the original of which was exhibited in the Salon of Paris about four years ago.

In addition to the statue, an illuminated address was also presented, and having been read by Mr. Charles Fry, the Chairman of the Committee, was handed to Mr. Littleton. The following is a copy:—

"TO MR. HENRY LITTLETON.

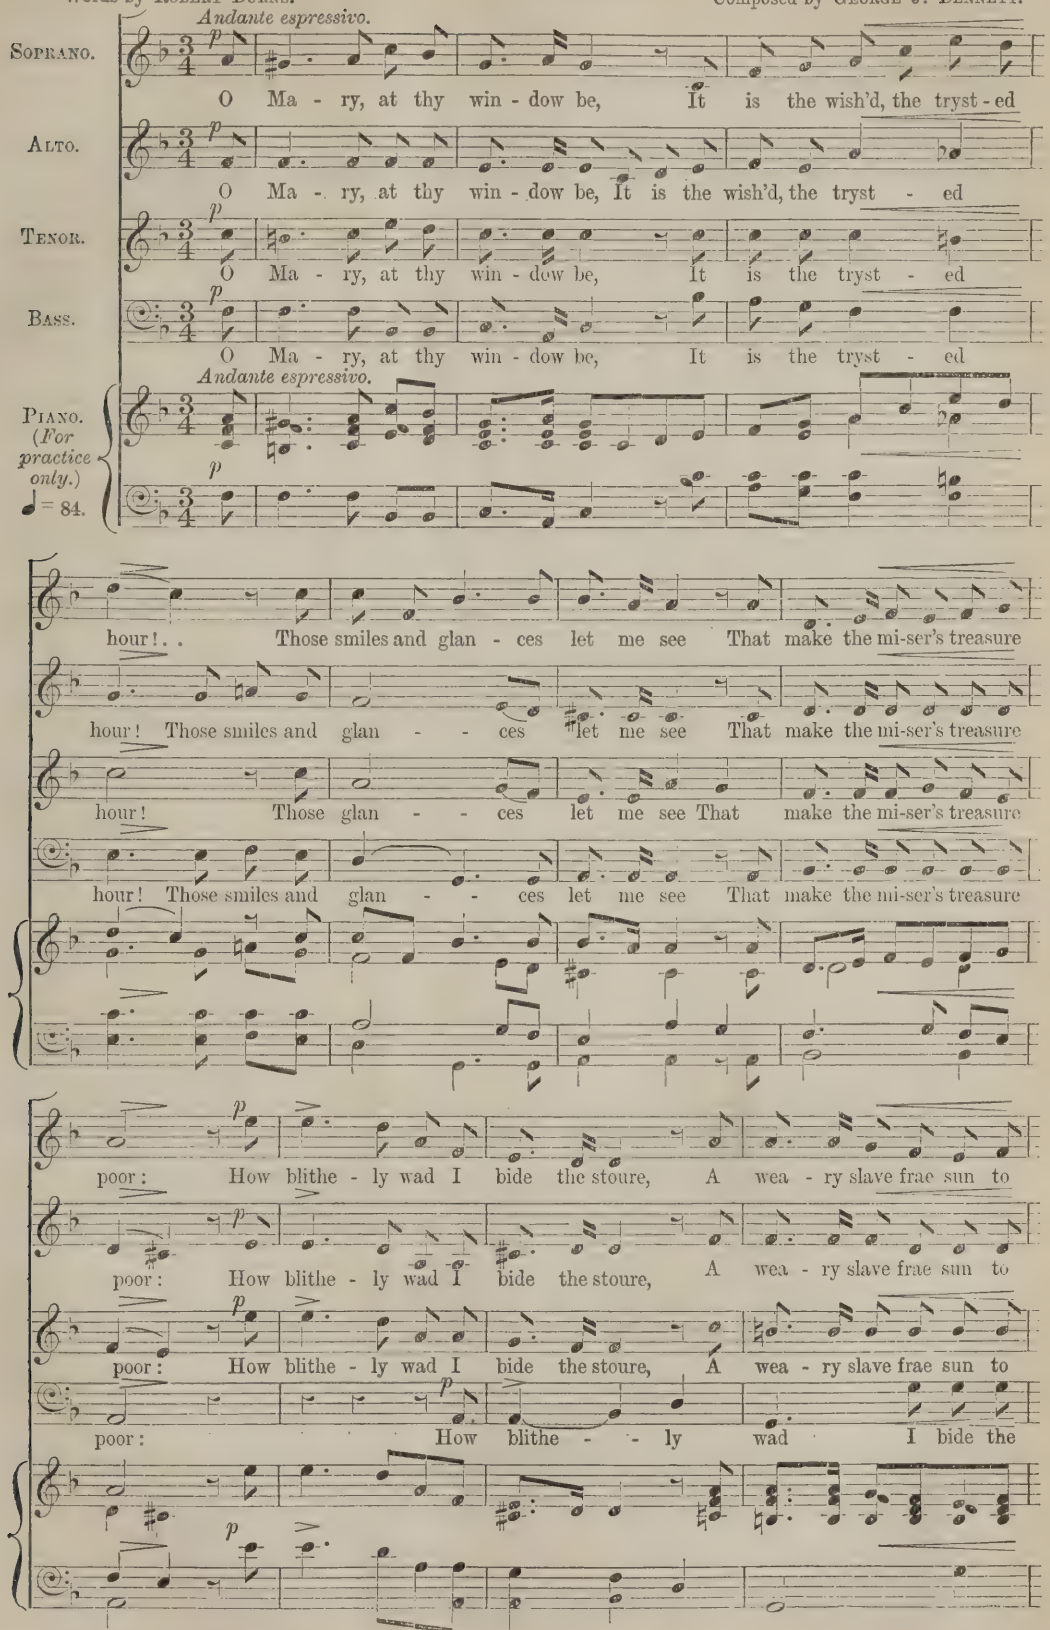
"We, the undersigned, a Committee chosen from the various branches of the firm, of which for so many years you have been the head, and representing the entire staff of that vast establishment, desire to offer to you our most sincere and hearty congratulations upon the completion of your fiftieth year in connection with music publishing. Starting as you did in a humble position in life, you have shown to the world what energy and integrity, directed by steadfastness of purpose, can achieve, and have created for yourself and family a name and position more honourable than that to which any right of birth could entitle you. It is not for us, in your presence, to enter now into an eulogistic account of your career, such as it deserves, but we, your followers and sometime fellow-workers, may point to it with pride as an illustrious example of that spirit of commercial enterprise and independence which has justly placed our country foremost among the nations of the world.

TO A. J. HIPKINS, ESQ.

Mary Morison.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by ROBERT BURNS. Composed by GEORGE J. BENNETT.



Andante espressivo.
SOPRANO.
O Ma - ry, at thy win - dow be, It is the wish'd, the tryst - ed
ALTO.
O Ma - ry, at thy win - dow be, It is the wish'd, the tryst - ed
TENOR.
O Ma - ry, at thy win - dow be, It is the tryst - ed
BASS.
O Ma - ry, at thy win - dow be, It is the tryst - ed
Andante espressivo.
PIANO. (For practice only.)
♩ = 84.
hour! . . Those smiles and glan - ces let me see That make the mi-ser's treasure hour! Those smiles and glan - - ces let me see That make the mi-ser's treasure hour! Those glan - - ces let me see That make the mi-ser's treasure hour! Those smiles and glan - - ces let me see That make the mi-ser's treasure poor: How blithe - ly wad I bide the stoure, A wea - ry slave frae sun to poor: How blithe - ly wad I bide the stoure, A wea - ry slave frae sun to poor: How blithe - ly wad I bide the stoure, A wea - ry slave frae sun to poor: How blithe - - ly wad I bide the sun ; Could I . . the sun ; . . Could I se - cure . . The love - - -

sun ; Could I se - cure . . . . . The love - - stoure, Could I the rich re - ward se - cure, The love - - - - rich re - ward se - cure, The love - ly Ma - ry Mo - ri - son,
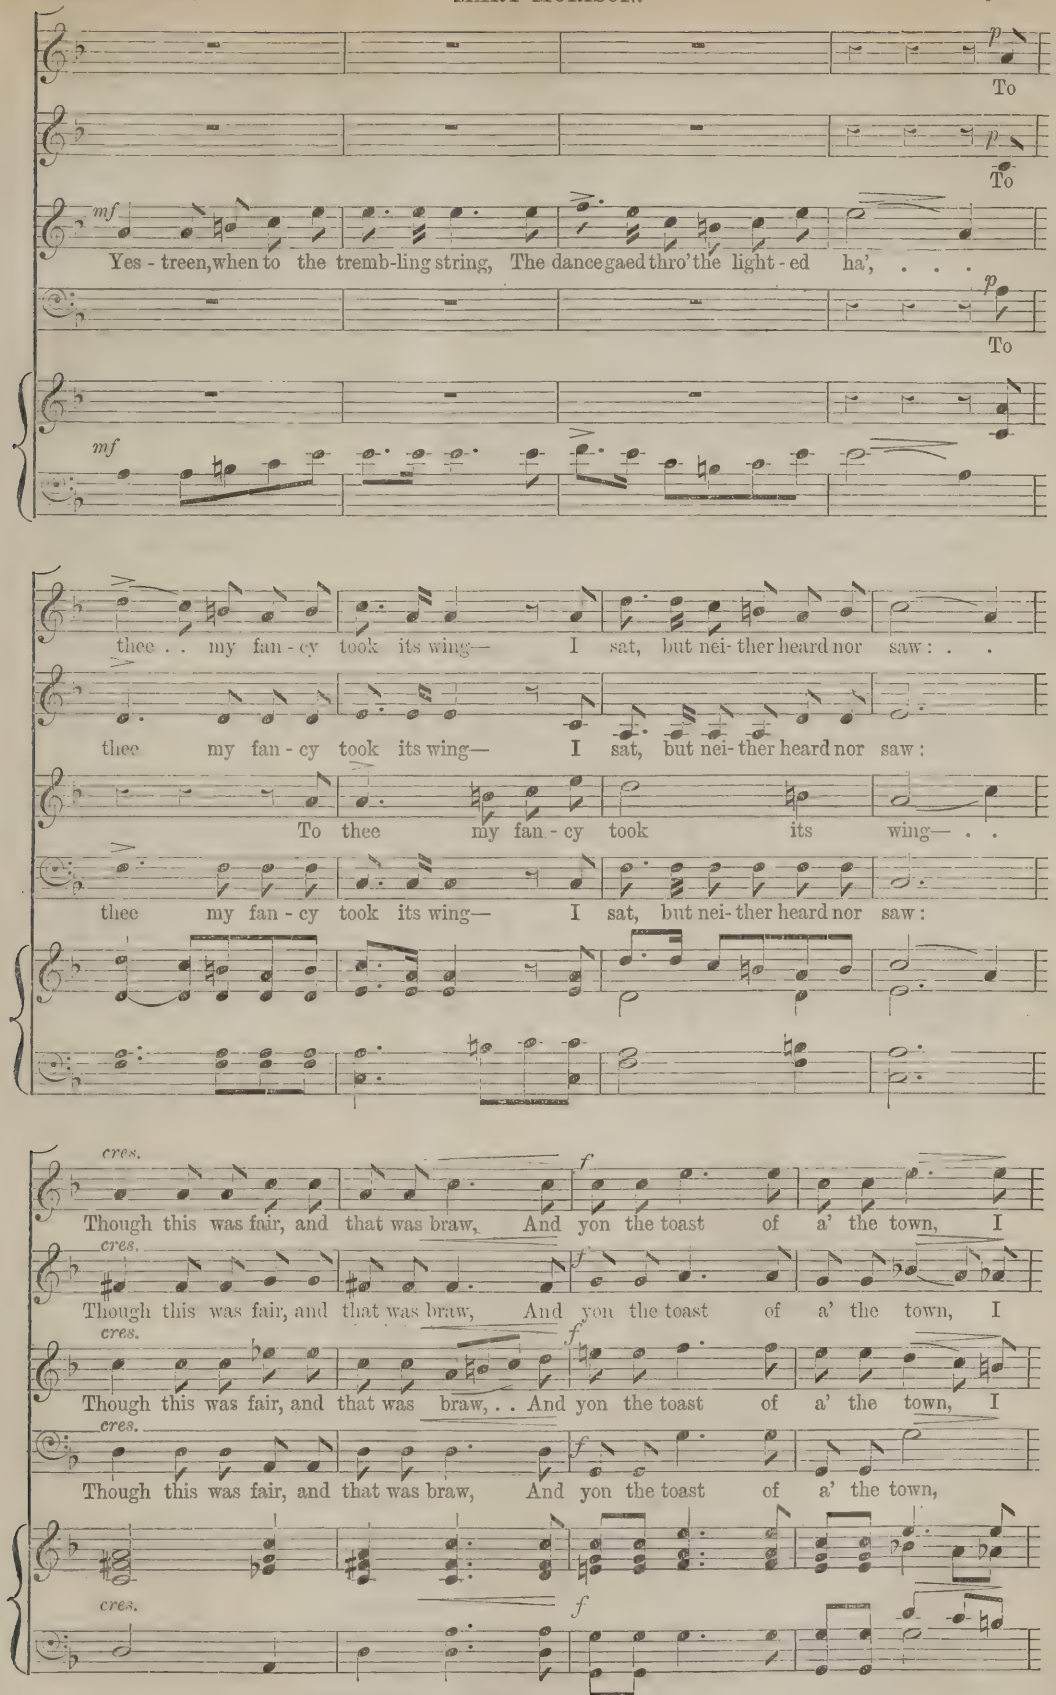
- - ly, love - - - - - - ly . . Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, . .
- - - - - - - - ly, love - ly . . Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, . .
- - - - - - - - - - - ly Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, . .
Ma - - - ry . . Mo - - - ri - son. . . . . .
Ma - - - ry Mo - - - - - - - - ri - son.
Ma - - - ry Mo - - - - - - - - ri - son.



p
To p
To
mf
Yes - treen, when to the tremb-ling string, The dance gaed thro' the light - ed ha',
p
To
mf
thee . . my fan - cy took its wing— I sat, but nei- ther heard nor saw: . .
thee my fan - cy took its wing— I sat, but nei- ther heard nor saw:
To thee my fan - cy took its wing— . .
thee my fan - cy took its wing— I sat, but nei- ther heard nor saw:
cres.
f
Though this was fair, and that was braw, And yon the toast of a' the town, I cres.
f
Though this was fair, and that was braw, And yon the toast of a' the town, I cres.
f
Though this was fair, and that was braw, . . And yon the toast of a' the town, I cres.
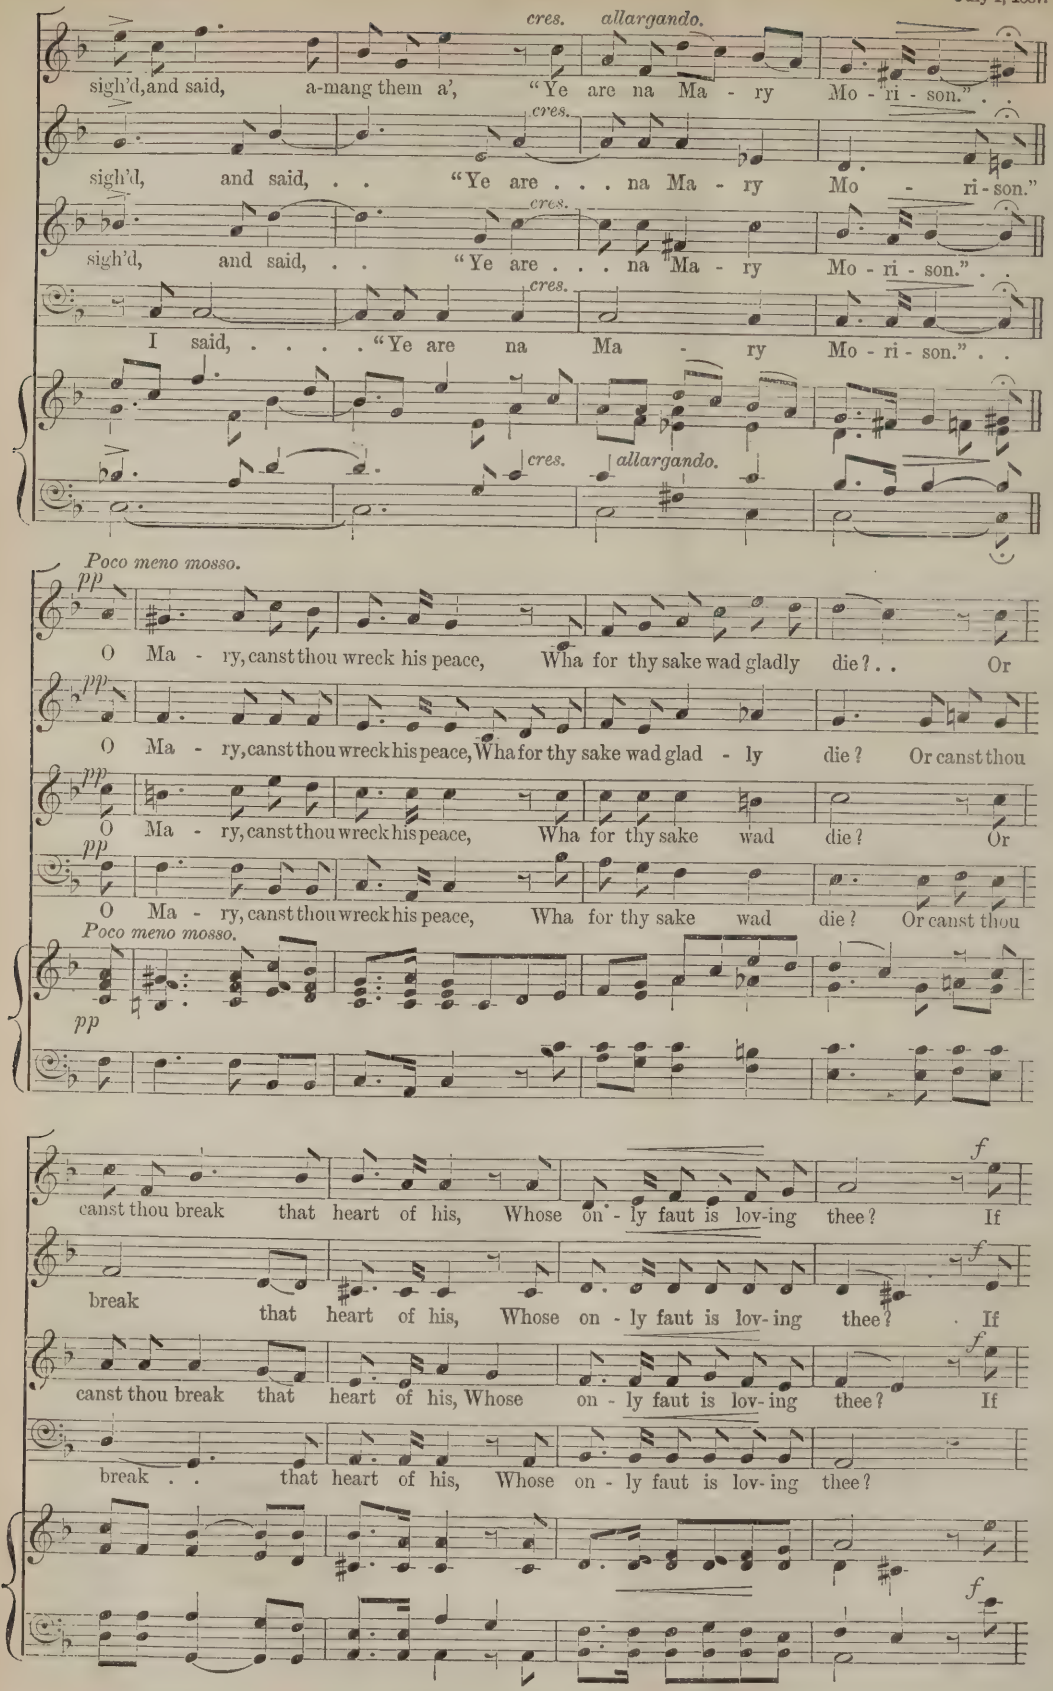
f
Though this was fair, and that was braw, And yon the toast of a' the town,
cres.
f



cres. allargando.
sigh'd, and said, a-mang them a', "Ye are na Ma - ry Mo - ri - son."
cres.
sigh'd, and said, . . "Ye are . . . na Ma - ry Mo - ri - son."
cres.
sigh'd, and said, . . "Ye are . . . na Ma - ry Mo - ri - son."
cres.
I said, ... "Ye are na Ma - ry Mo - ri - son."
cres. allargando.
Poco meno mosso.
pp
O Ma - ry, canst thou wreck his peace, Wha for thy sake wad gladly die? . . Or O Ma - ry, canst thou wreck his peace, Wha for thy sake wad glad - ly die? Or canst thou
O Ma - ry, canst thou wreck his peace, Wha for thy sake wad die? Or O Ma - ry, canst thou wreck his peace, Wha for thy sake wad die? Or canst thou Poco meno mosso.
pp
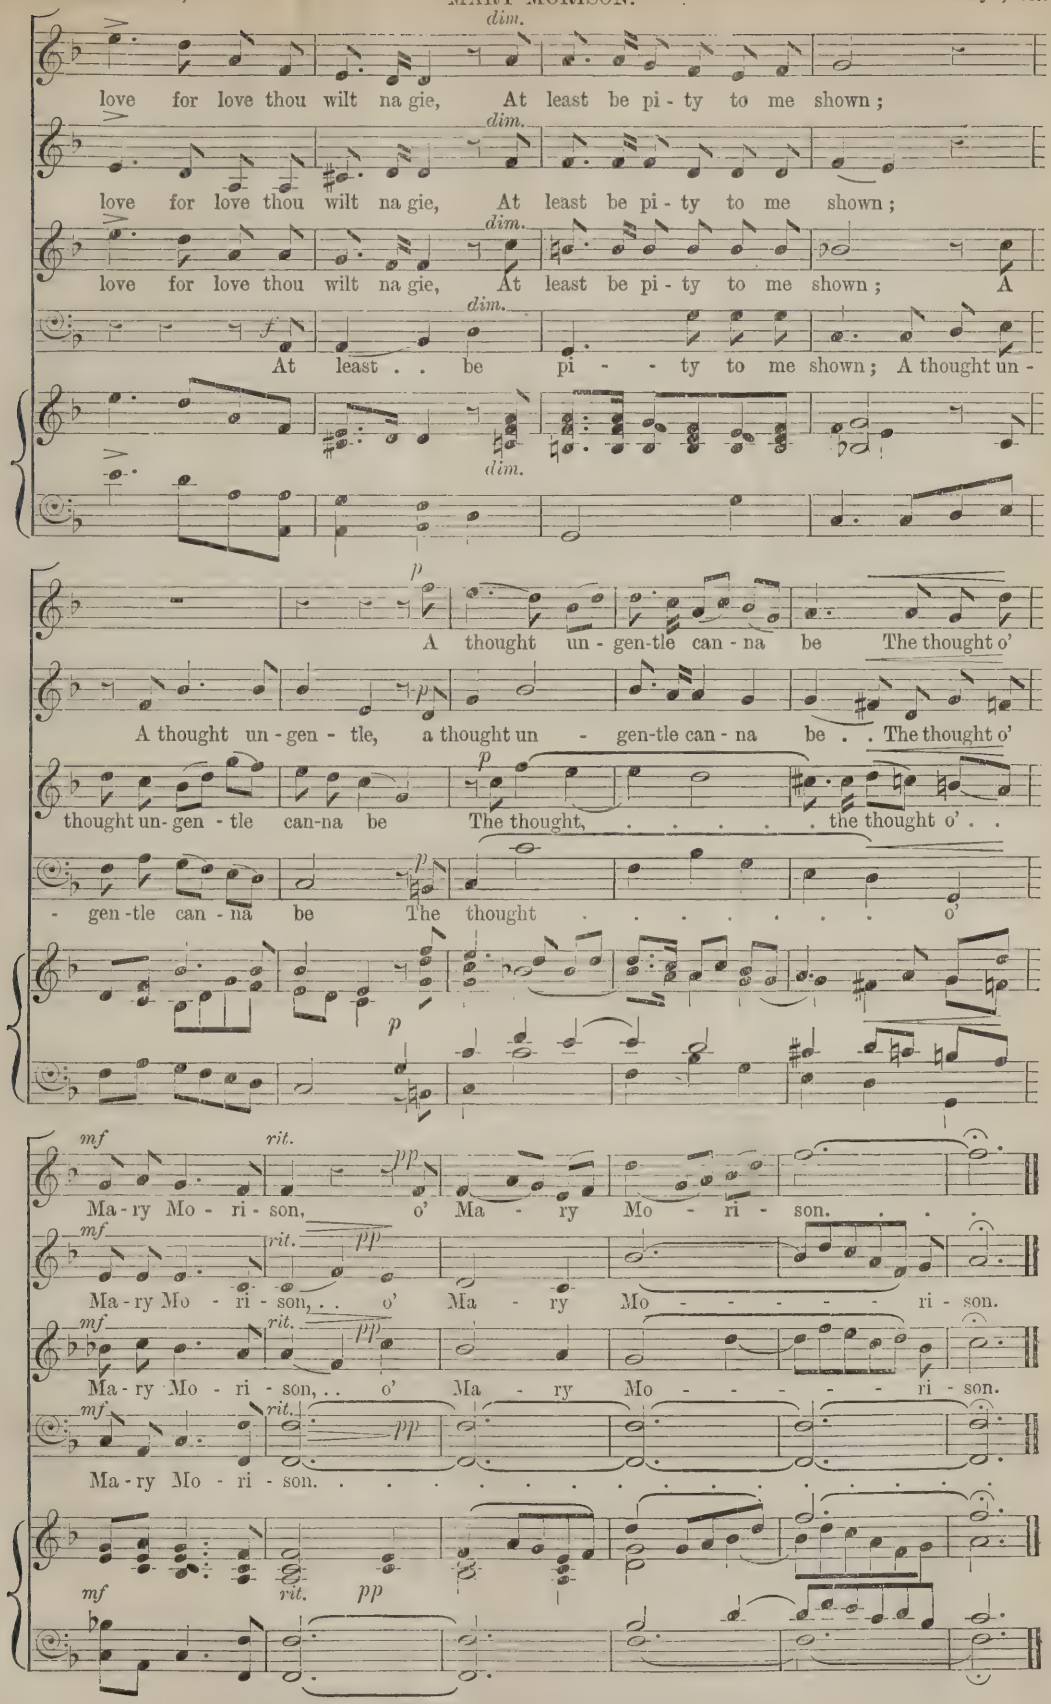
f canst thou break that heart of his, Whose on - ly faut is lov-ing thee? If break that heart of his, Whose on - ly faut is lov-ing thee? If canst thou break that heart of his, Whose on - ly faut is lov-ing thee? If break . . that heart of his, Whose on - ly faut is lov-ing thee?
f



dim.
love for love thou wilt na gie, At least be pi - ty to me shown;
love for love thou wilt na gie, At least be pi - ty to me shown;
love for love thou wilt na gie, At least be pi - ty to me shown; A
At least . . be pi - - ty to me shown; A thought un -
A thought un - gen-tle can - na be The thought o'
A thought un - gen - tle, a thought un - gen-tle can - na be . The thought o' thought un-gen - tle can-na be The thought, ... the thought o' . .
- gen-tle can - na be The thought . . . . . o'
Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, o' Ma - ry Mo - ri - son. . . .
Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, . . o' Ma - ry Mo - - - - - ri - son.
Ma - ry Mo - ri - son, . . o' Ma - ry Mo - - - - - ri - son.
Ma - ry Mo - ri - son. . . . . .

PRODUCED AT THE LEEDS FESTIVAL, 1886.

THE GOLDEN LEGEND

ADAPTED FROM THE POEM OF LONGFELLOW

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

AND SET TO MUSIC BY

ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

		s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover		3	6
,, ,, paper boards		4	0
,, ,, cloth, gilt		5	0

THE TIMES.

"The Golden Legend" roused genuine enthusiasm. It is pleasant for the critic to be for once in full accord with the vox populi.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

A greater, more legitimate, and more undoubted triumph than that of the new Cantata has not been achieved within my experience.

STANDARD.

In speaking of the music which Sir Arthur Sullivan has added to Mr. Bennett's admirable libretto, I have nothing but praise—and praise the most emphatic—to offer. From first to last the hand of the master is apparent; and the united musical forces, instrumental and vocal, have been turned to a proper account.

ATHENÆUM.

Not one of his earlier Cantatas can compare with "The Golden Legend" in abstract beauty or even in finish of workmanship. This is high praise, but we bestow it without the slightest hesitation.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED AT THE LEEDS FESTIVAL, 1886.

THE

STORY OF SAYID

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

THE LIBRETTO WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

		s.	d
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover		3	0
,, ,, paper boards		3	6
,, ,, cloth, gilt		4	6

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

In point of dramatic force and suggestiveness few examples of modern art are stronger than "The Story of Sayid."

STANDARD.

"The Story of Sayid" takes immediate rank as an art work of the very highest class.

MORNING POST.

The duet for the tenor and soprano, "Noble maiden," as sung by the above-named artists [Madame Albani and Mr. Barton McGuckin], is one of the gems of a work which is set with many jewels.

ATHENÆUM.

As Sayid does not return, the Princess, who has offered herself as his hostage, has to prepare for death, and this gives occasion for a solemn march, which is one of the best things of its kind we have met with for some time. It is no easy matter to write an original march, joyous or funereal; but Mr. Mackenzie has succeeded in the task, and he has scored it in a masterly way.

THE GLOBE.

"The Story of Sayid" not merely adds to the already high reputation of its composer, but does honour to native art.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED AT THE LEEDS FESTIVAL, 1886.

THE REVENGE

SET TO THE POEM OF

ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON

BY

C. VILLIERS STANFORD.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	1	6

THE TIMES.

If "The Revenge" does not become widely popular among choral societies it will be to the loss of those societies.

DAILY CHRONICLE.

A work for which there is a widespread popularity in store.

DAILY NEWS.

In a word, Mr. Stanford has written a vivid, powerful, patriotic, and masterly work of its class, which has commenced what must prove a long career of popularity.

THE GLOBE.

The work is full of beauties from beginning to end, and will greatly enhance the reputation of the composer, who directed this performance, and at its conclusion was twice called for, and greeted with enthusiastic and fully merited cheers.

ATHENÆUM.

That the work will be immensely popular with choral societies and the public there cannot be a shadow of a doubt.

YORKSHIRE POST.

We think it may safely be predicted that this choral ballad will become a favourite study with provincial musical societies.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED AT THE LEEDS FESTIVAL, 1886.

SAINT LUDMILA

AN ORATORIO

WRITTEN BY

JAROSLAV VRCHLICKÝ

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

(OP. 71.)

		s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover		5	0
,, ,, paper boards		6	0
,, ,, cloth, gilt		7	6

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"St. Ludmila" became a popular favourite immediately. It was a case, as between the audience and the music, of love at first sight. Number after number elicited enthusiastic applause, and the composer-conductor, received with cheers on taking his place, left it the hero of a triumph.

DAILY NEWS.

The applause at the end was as great as that showered down when the first part concluded; and after acknowledging the plaudits, Dvorák had again to return, led on this time by Sir Arthur Sullivan. Clearly then, no work could have had a more flattering verdict passed upon it at a first hearing.

LEEDS MERCURY.

During the course of the work, Mr. Dvorák was several times fain to acknowledge the applause of the audience, but at the close he was congratulated with extraordinary vehemence, and called back to be cheered again. The people liked "Ludmila."

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

"It is, perhaps, a remarkable circumstance that the completion of your fifty years of honourable labour is coincident with the fiftieth year of our Sovereign's beneficent reign; but it is less remarkable that it is also coincident with the extraordinary spread of music throughout the Empire, inasmuch as that marvellous increase of knowledge has been fostered, and, in a measure, created by the industry and enterprise of yourself and your respected predecessor. Without being a trained musician yourself, you have been foremost to champion the divine art, and the inestimable benefits you have conferred on all lovers of music entitle you to the warmest claims on their gratitude. Therefore, it seemed to us most appropriate that any gift which we might offer to you should take the form of an ideal representation of that glorious art.

"We cannot conclude this expression of feeling without an allusion to the very sterling though unostentatious help you have received throughout your career from your esteemed partner in life, Mrs. Littleton, who we rejoice to see by your side to-day, and our hope is that you may both be long spared to enjoy that leisure to which your labours have so justly entitled you.

"We desire now respectfully to offer you this statue, 'La Musique,' by Delaplanche, and beg that you will accept it as a spontaneous and voluntary tribute of regard from the entire staff under your direction, remembering the words of our great poet:—

> That never anything can be amiss
> When simpleness and duty tender it."

Mr. Littleton, who was received with enthusiastic cheering, made a suitable reply, and referred to his success as being due to his "obstinate perseverance" in carrying out ideas he had formed for the advancement of the business and the promotion of art.

Mr. Secker, on behalf of the Committee, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Clayton for his valuable assistance, and also a vote of thanks to all the artists who had kindly met the wishes of the Committee by giving their estimable services for the Concert which preceded, and followed the presentation. In this Concert Madame Patey, Mr. Edwin Bryant, and Mr. H. Cross were the chief vocalists.

An admirable orchestra, formed by Mr. T. E. Gatehouse, Miss Titterton, Mr. F. Ries, Miss Clarissa Munday, first violins; Mr. H. E. Button, Miss Wood, Mr. G. Munro, second violins; Mr. H. Grossheim, Mr. P. A. Hawkins, violas; Mr. H. Trust, Mr. H. Ries, Mr. J. E. Robinson, violoncellos; Mr. A. M. Bles, double bass; Mr. John E. West, Mr. Battison Haynes, pianoforte; with Mr. Berthold Tours as Conductor, played an excellent selection of music. Mr. Gatehouse performed a portion of Mendelssohn's Concerto for violin most acceptably, Mr. Coenen's solo on the pianoforte was rapturously received, and a few old English glees were expressively sung by a capital male voice choir, composed of Messrs. Sidney Barnby, Hawkins, Bryant, Price, Peskett, Burgess, and Cross.

Every department of the house was fully represented, and a large number of distinguished musicians and others were present in honour of the event, including Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Patey, Mr. Santley, Mr. E. Prout, Dr. E. G. Monk, Mrs. Stainer, Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Mackinlay, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, Dr. A. C. Mackenzie, &c. Many who were unable to be present sent congratulations and good wishes. As was truly said by one of the speakers present, the name of Novello is known throughout the world; but as "the world knows nothing of its greatest men," the name and character of Henry Littleton, whose enterprise secured that enviable position for the house, is best known to his friends, not a few of whom are in his own employ. The occasion was, therefore, more like a family meeting than a ceremonial gathering.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

To the close of springtide usually succeeds that of the musical season in Liverpool, and this year is no exception to the rule, for, apart from the musical programmes at the Royal Jubilee Exhibition here, there is nothing whatever to note. Notwithstanding the diversified and antagonistic opinions concerning this place of entertainment as an Exhibition, and it does not lie within the province of THE MUSICAL TIMES to discuss that, yet as a place of musical entertainment all must agree that our Exhibition is decidedly disappointing so far. The military bands that have appeared call for no mention, but a few words of unstinted praise must be bestowed, and that well-deservedly, on the permanent orchestra casually mentioned in the last letter. Its composition is as follows:—ten first violins, eight second violins, four violas, four violoncellos, four double basses, two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, four horns, two cornets, three trombones, one euphonium, and two drums. The performers are selected from Hallé's, De Jong's, Glasgow Choral Union, and Crystal Palace Concerts. The orchestra gives two performances daily, each of two hours' duration, and the music discoursed is of the highest order, including symphonies, rhapsodies, and overtures by all the old and best modern composers. The success of these entertainments is undoubtedly, in a great measure, due to the energy, perseverance, and ability of the Conductor, Mr. A. E. Bartle, who pays every attention to all the various nuances and gives every cue to the players under his bâton. Two organ recitals are given daily by local organists. There is satisfaction in being able to state the fact that there are some first class bands engaged, including, among others, the famous band of the Belgian Guides which created such a favourable impression here last year.

The coming season of the Liverpool Philharmonic Subscription Concerts, judging by the as yet unfinished synopsis, bids fair to be, musically, one of the finest ever known. The usual twelve Concerts extend from October 4 to April 10, 1888. The following are among the choral works to be rendered:—"The Golden Legend" (Sullivan), "Revenge" (Stanford), "The Messiah" (Handel), "Moses in Egypt" (Rossini), and "The Fall of Babylon" (Spohr). The principals already engaged are Mesdames Albani, Nordica, Pauline Cramer, Anna Williams, Mary Davies, Thudichum, Marianne Fenna, Trebelli, Patey, Marian McKenzie, Hope Glenn, Hilda Wilson, Eleanor Rees, and Emily Winant; Messrs. Edward Lloyd, Henry Piercy, Harper Kearton, Santley, Bridson, and Watkin Mills. Madame Norman-Néruda has, of course, been engaged as solo violinist. We are to have as pianists Miss Fanny Davies and Messrs. Schönberger and Charles Hallé, the last-named gentleman, as usual, occupying the Conductor's desk for the season.

The musical public are looking forward with pleasurable anxiety to the performance at the Alexandra Theatre in this city, for a week, commencing the first Monday in August, of the Opera "Blodwen," for the first time on any English stage. Fragmentary portions of the work have been frequently heard in Wales, but with the principals and chorus already engaged a treat of high order may be expected. The work is of peculiar interest to Liverpool, as its composer, Dr. Joseph Parry, has become identified of late with the Liverpool Organ School and College of Music, where active rehearsals of the Opera are now going on, under the joint direction of Dr. Parry and Mr. W. H. Jude, principal of the Organ School and College of Music. It is to be earnestly hoped that the performance will be in every way a success.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

As our public musical celebrations are now confined to the Jubilee Exhibition, there is but little to record as having taken place during the past month, and, with the exception of the Organ Recitals by Mr. Pyne, the performances at Old Trafford have comparatively small interest for musicians. The large instrument supplied by Messrs. Bishop and Sons has been played upon twice daily by our skilful Cathedral organist, and has excited some discussion. Its tone is admirable, that of most of the reeds being really splendid, while the diapasons are full and sonorous. But whether the speech of the pedal-registers is sluggish, or (as may well be) the acoustic properties of the building faulty, it is certain that Mr. Pyne does not appear to enjoy his seat at the Exhibition so entirely as his duties at the Town Hall on the Saturday evenings of the winter months. I believe that engagements have been offered to many of our most distinguished metropolitan and provincial players, as well as to some continental celebrities, so that we may, at any rate, look for an adequate display of the resources of the king of instruments, whatever else we may be denied.

What is termed the "Blue Hungarian Band" has, during the last three weeks, proved very attractive to those wearied of the noisier out-of-door semi-military performances. Some piquant effects are obtained by the little corps of executants; but the novelty having worn off, the programme soon becomes tiresome. There is too much appearance of trickery about the whole style, and the tricks soon grow stale.

In the Gardens we have had of late the much-lauded band of the Belgian Guides, alternately with the permanent Exhibition band under Mr. de Jong's direction. The latter has improved greatly in brightness and finish, and is now sufficiently well organised to encourage the hope with which its establishment was regarded. The Belgian band was, at first, a little disappointing; probably the (literary) flourish of trumpets which heralded its appearance raised unfair expectations. Unquestionably it is a good band; and the tone of some of the instruments—notably the clarinets—is unsurpassed. But a little more finish and character must be gained before its reputation may be quite endorsed. As military bands are to be chiefly exhibited, it is greatly to be desired that Gilmore's Coney Island corps—without the anvils and guns—may pay us a visit. Nothing comparable to its performances has been afforded yet.

It is very gratifying to notice that during the first five weeks the attendance at the Royal Jubilee Exhibition has attested in the best possible manner the confidence of the public, having exceeded the recorded gatherings at any of the similar festivals of late years, and having more than tripled the attendance at the Art Treasures Exhibition held on the same ground in 1857.

MUSIC IN THE WEST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The mind of the community has necessarily been occupied during the past month with the Queen's Jubilee, and all the festivities connected therewith. Before dealing, however, with the special Musical Commemoration held in Bristol Cathedral in honour of the great event, we must just notice the last effort of the Bristol Musical Association for the present season, which was to give a Concert in aid of the fund for the Sunday Afternoon Lectures for the people, and although the prices were not so "popular" as usual, a good audience was present. The chief works given were Weber's Jubilee Overture and Jubilee Cantata. The latter work had been previously given by the Society, and the choruses were very creditably rendered. The soloists were Miss Gane, Miss Brooke, Mr. Morgan, and Mr. Harrison, all of Bristol, and all of whom acquitted themselves successfully. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous, and embraced overtures by the band, songs from the principal vocalists, and Neukomm's "Storm," finely played on the organ by Mr. George Riseley, who kindly gave his services. Thanks are due to Mr. Gordon, the Conductor, for the readiness with which he took upon himself the trouble of organising this Concert, which we believe was a success financially as well as musically.

The musical celebration of the 23rd ult. will long be remembered in our city as an encouraging evidence of what steady hard work, combined with adequate resources, will do towards securing a triumphant result. The whole affair was arranged on a much larger scale than has ever before been attempted in our Cathedral, but we hope that it will not be the only instance of our hearing the finest of music admirably rendered there on the same broad lines. The choir on this occasion numbered over 500, and was divided as follows: sopranos, 160; altos, 135; tenors, 95; basses, 120. The band numbered 87, and was led by Mr. T. Carrington, and the whole force was under the inspiriting bâton of Mr. George Riseley. The works selected were, for the morning service, Handel's Dettingen Te Deum and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and for the evening the "Elijah." The soloists were Miss Anna Williams, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Harper Kearton, Mr. Montague Worlock, and Mr. Santley, while Miss Gane and other local vocalists rendered good service in the quartets. The opening chorus of the Te Deum did not, perhaps, quite realise our expectations, as the singers seemed to hang fire a little, and to be not quite at home; but they speedily got accustomed to the building and responded unanimously to the bâton. There is not much scope in the work for the finer shades of chorus singing, it being more of a solid and majestic character than conspicuous for delicacy; but the "attack" was splendid, and the leads, with perhaps two exceptions, were well taken up. The soloists acquitted themselves very satisfactorily, and Mr. Worlock deserves a special word of commendation for his singing of the bass solo "Vouchsafe, O Lord." The Te Deum was almost immediately followed by the "Hymn of Praise," and with the performance of this great work it is almost impossible to find a fault. It is true that Bristol choralists have sung it very often, and one is therefore led to expect a fine rendering—and this we certainly had. Of the soloists also we must speak in the highest terms. Miss Williams sang "Praise ye the Lord," in a most inspiring way, and the duet "I waited for the Lord," in which she was joined by Miss Gane, she gave with the greatest sweetness; while Mr. Kearton threw more than ordinary dramatic force and feeling into the music allotted to the tenor soloist. In the performance of "Elijah" the balance of the choir was very good. The soloists were Miss Williams, Miss Wilson, Mr. Kearton, and Mr. Santley. The band played most excellently on the whole, and Mr. Riseley may be congratulated on the result of his efforts. The Cathedral was crowded at each service.

The Bath Philharmonic Society gave a Jubilee Concert on the 20th ult., in the Theatre Royal, Bath, before a large and interested audience. The works performed were the Jubilee Anthem, by Dr. Bridge; Dr. Stanford's dramatic Cantata "The Revenge," conducted by the composer; and a prize Cantata "The Day Dream," by Charlton Speer, R.A.M.; besides the Overture to "Tannhäuser" and the "Farewell Song" from "Lohengrin." Principal vocalists, Miss May Hallam and Mr. Barton McGuckin; orchestra and chorus of 300; Conductors, Mr. Albert Visetti and Dr. Villiers Stanford. The chorus had evidently been carefully trained, and sang with spirit and zest. Miss Hallam and Mr. McGuckin appeared to advantage, and drew forth warm applause. Great enthusiasm was shown at the end of Mr. Speer's Cantata, which undoubtedly is a meritorious production, and the young composer was recalled twice and received quite an ovation.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Summer Term has, as usual, been a time of great musical activity in Oxford, and I am beset with the old difficulty of chronicling much in a short space. To take first what may be dealt with most briefly, we had the pleasure of a visit from Dr. Richter and his orchestra, who gave a Concert in the Sheldonian Theatre on the 14th ult. Both programme and performance were of the stamp with which the musical world is familiar, and need no comment. Another Concert, on which no remark is necessary, was a performance of chamber music in Christ Church Hall, on May 10, by Messrs. Gompertz, Klein, Jung, and Ould.

Coming to the music which is especially characteristic of Oxford — namely, the College Concerts — we find more matter for remark. Only one new work has been produced at these Concerts this season, a sort of comic Cantata, by Mr. Farmer, called "Froggy would a wooing go," which was brought to a first hearing at Balliol on May 21. The work, though often happy, did not somehow catch the public fancy, and it is questionable whether the parody of a hymn tune at the end is in good taste. If this were altered the likelihood of the work being successful would be greater.

But if there has been little actual novelty there has been no lack of music which is, at any rate, little known here. At Worcester College, on May 25, Goetz's "Water Lily" was adequately performed. Two days later, on May 27, Concerts were given at Exeter and Queen's. At the former College Dr. J. F. Bridge's "Boadicea," conducted by the composer, was capitally rendered, and at the latter, Mr. Henry Gadsby conducted his Cantata "Columbus." In the miscellaneous parts of the programmes Beethoven's Violin Concerto and Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G were included. Both Concerts were very successful, that at Queen's being probably the best ever given in the College Hall. Pembroke Concert, on the 16th ult., calls for no special remark.

Dr. Stanford's ballad "The Revenge" is, no doubt, a fine work, but it is possible to have too much of a good thing, and four performances in a place the size of Oxford in two months is rather too many. Nor can it be said that any of the performances were perfectly satisfactory. At Cowley, on April 27, there was no wood-wind in the orchestra, and at Keble College, on the 16th ult., no band at all. The best renderings were given by the Philharmonic Society, on the 20th ult., and at Merton College, on May 26, but at the former Concert the chorus was painfully inadequate and incorrect, and at the latter, a spirited performance was quite spoiled by an unfortunate mistake in the horns just at the end. Amongst the other works brought to a hearing at the Concerts just mentioned were Mendelssohn's "Reformation" Symphony (Merton), Goetz's "Nœnia" (Keble), and Weber's "Jubilee" Cantata (Philharmonic.)

As the music to the "Alcestis" of Euripides has already been noticed in these columns, the only events that still require notice are the performance of Locke's music to "Macbeth" by the Glee and Madrigal Society on May 6, and "The Creation" given by the Choral Society on May 12. Both were very successful. Shakespeare's play was recited by Mr. Brandram with even more than his usual success, and the quaint music went admirably. The Choral Society possesses, undoubtedly, the finest chorus we have now in Oxford, and it fairly excelled itself in "The Creation." Mrs. Hutchinson, who sang the soprano solos, was in extraordinarily good voice, and the Concert was one of the best we have had of late in Oxford.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

QUITE unlike former years, in which our musical seasons practically came to an end with the month of May, this year proves to be an exception, for at the head of this month's programme stood no less a work than Dr. A. C. Mackenzie's "Story of Sayid," which was performed for the first time in Edinburgh on the 1st ult., by Mr. Waddel's choir, in the Freemasons' Hall, before a very large audience. That this interesting and in many ways beautiful new work of our talented townsman has had the disadvantage of being performed without proper orchestral accompaniments—string quintet, pianoforte, and harmonium ad libitum being substituted for the orchestra—and yet to know that either in this way or in no way at all were we to make acquaintance with the "Story of Sayid" is in itself disappointing enough, but to have to record that even what we had of the work (the two Marches being omitted and some of the vocal numbers curtailed) was not always so satisfactorily performed as it might have been, is worse still. Some of the choruses and songs showed a more careful training and were sung with considerable vigour and precision; but on the whole, there seemed to have been a great want of sound and earnest ensemble rehearsals, so that Mr. Waddel's well-meant and very praiseworthy intentions came sadly into conflict with the result of the performance. The vocalists were Miss Charlotte Clark (Ilmas), Mr. J. Sinclair (Sayid), and Mr. Millar Craig (Sâwa). The second part of the programme was Bach's "Magnificat," which was very much better rendered. Mr. Waddel conducted.

The formal inauguration of the Edinburgh Society of Musicians took place on the evening of the 16th ult. The proceedings commenced with the adoption of an address to Her Majesty, in which reference was made to the interest the Royal Family have always taken in music. The President, Mr. Edmunds, delivered the inaugural address, which was followed by speeches—Mr. Hately's on the Glasgow Musical Society and others, Mr. Robertson on Musical Culture in Scotland, and Mr. Schweizer on the raising of a Benevolent Fund for the Society. During the evening a String Quartet (Schubert's D minor), by Mr. Daly (violin), Mr. Dambmann (second violin), Mr. Laubach (viola), and Mr. Carl Hamilton (cello), was very satisfactorily performed. Mr. Waddel played a violin solo (Handel's A major Sonata), accompanied by Mr. T. Craig; and Mr. Orosz a pianoforte solo (Liszt's "Mignon"). Mr. Arthur Edmunds and Mr. Millar Craig contributed songs.

On the afternoon of Saturday, the 18th ult., a Jubilee Service was held in the Cathedral of St. Mary. "God save the Queen," specially arranged, was sung in procession, and Handel's Dettingen Te Deum followed. Mr. Collinson conducted.

The Jubilee Service was held in St. Giles's Cathedral on the 21st ult. The musical part consisted of the Prince Consort's setting of the Te Deum, Handel's Anthem "Zadok the Priest," and various hymns suited to the occasion.

On the evening of the 21st ult., during the Jubilee reception at the Conservative Club, at which over 1,500 ladies and gentlemen were present, a Concert, organised by Mr. James Syme, was given in the large smoking room. Madame Annie Grey, Mr. Arthur Edmunds, and Mr. Tom Walker were vocalists; Mr. Colin Mackenzie (violinist), Mr. Gallrein (cellist), Messrs. Rothfeld and Schweizer (pianists), the latter contributing a Jubilee March he composed for the occasion. Mr. Harrison accompanied.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh Choral Union, on the 24th ult., it was resolved not to have any Orchestral Concerts as hitherto, during the next winter's season, the last season's Concerts not having proved a financial success.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Guarantee Fund of £2,000, which the Choral Union required for future operations, has, I am glad to say, been fully subscribed, and that without any solicitation or effort beyond the issue of circulars to leading citizens. Arrangements for next season will therefore be started, and with all the more vigour and confidence from the fact that there is this sum and more between the managers and possible, though not probable, loss. They begin with a clear balance sheet, and are in debt to no one, having, as the result of their labours hitherto, done much for the cause of music in Glasgow, and given something, too, to charities.

As I mentioned before, and as will doubtless be announced in your advertising columns, the post of Conductor (or chorus-trainer) of the Choral Union is now vacant. To a musician of ability and promise this is a first-rate opening. The appointment is looked upon, too, as one of considerable position and distinction, and as furnishing a guarantee of high musical attainment, whether as performer or tutor.

The Choral Union had its annual pic-nic on Saturday, the 4th ult. Again taking sea, the members went this year to Colintraive, a beautiful spot in the Kyles of Bute. The weather was at least dry, if not brilliant, and all seemed thoroughly to enjoy themselves on board and on shore. The Rhyming Itinerary, supplied on every occasion for some years back by one of the members, took this time the form of a parody on "The Golden Legend," its title being "The Golden Log: a Choral Union Cantata, being an authentic account of the adventurous voyage of the steamer Shandon from Glasgow to Colintraive and back." There was, first, the Prologue; then "the Log itself," in lengths or parts; and the Epilogue, all in happy imitation of the book of Sir Arthur's beautiful Cantata. The Latin was very amusingly parodied—as, for instance, at departure—

The Bell.

Tintinabulum secundum
In fir taris inoak nonis
Allaboardis in Shandonis.

at arrival—

Choir.

Colintraivus urbs delicti
De longinquo, te saluto
Te saluto, te suspiro,
Te affecto, te requiro.

The Queen's Jubilee was celebrated here on the 16th ult., and one of the leading "functions" of the day was the Sacred Service in the Cathedral, at which the Glasgow Choral Union performed the music. The Te Deum laudamus, to a setting by Dr. A. L. Peace; the Coronation Anthem, "Zadok the Priest," by Handel; and the "Hallelujah" Chorus from "The Messiah" were the chief pieces of music rendered. The National Anthem was sung, the audience joining heartily in it as well as in other congregational selections. Dr. A. L. Peace, organist of the Cathedral, conducted, and Mr. E. J. Wareham accompanied on the organ. Prayers were read by ministers of different denominations, and Dr. Burns, of the Cathedral, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The musical part of the programme was repeated, with some additions, on the 21st ult.

A musical demonstration, under the Paisley Musical Education Scheme, was given in the George A. Clark Town Hall, on the 6th ult., in presence of a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. R. L. Reid's students; the prize choir, conducted by Mr. Allan Craig; the Grammar School pupils, trained by Mr. Gilmour; and the successful students in violin competition took part in the proceedings. A rather difficult ear-test was given by Mr. J. Pattinson, and successfully answered by Mr. Reid's class. The scheme has worked very well in nearly all its branches during the season now concluded.

Two open-air Concerts were given by the Tannahill Choir, under Mr. J. Roy Fraser, on the 4th and 18th ult. respectively. From various causes this annual demonstration was not nearly so largely attended as hitherto.

Jubilee services have been pretty general in the Glasgow churches. The school examinations usual at this time have, as formerly, included many and promising exhibitions of vocal and instrumental music. In addition to the usual instrumental performances in the parks, there have been given several Concerts of choral music by selected voices from the public schools, with a considerable measure of success.

MUSIC IN SOUTH WALES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

IN connection with the Jubilee there has been a great deal of singing throughout the district, and amongst miscellaneous events we may chronicle the Concert of the Cardiff Blue Ribbon Choir, on the 15th ult., and the Congregational Festival at Cardiff on Whit Monday, at which the choirs included about 500 voices.

Among Jubilee items may be mentioned the Eisteddfod held at Bridgend on the 20th ult. The Earl of Dunraven presided in the morning. He referred to the Eisteddfod, which, he said, had shown the Welsh people to be essentially a music-loving people. While various societies in England were striving to do their best to foster and cultivate a love of music, Wales needed no such incentives, as music flowed direct from the hearts of the people. The chair was subsequently assumed by Mr. A. J. Williams, M.P. Leading results of the musical competitions: "Valiant Warriors," prize £10, Rhondda Glee Society, Mr. T. Stephens, Conductor. Seventeen choirs competed for £20, and a guinea each to unsuccessful Conductors, for the best rendering of "Then round about the starry throne." Morriston Choir—Mr. W. P. Rowlands, leader—won. The chief choral competition was that between choirs of at least 150 voices each, for £70 and a gold medal, besides two guineas each for unsuccessful Conductors, for the best rendering of "Come with torches." Eight choirs competed. The adjudicators—Messrs. Turpin and Jenkins—gave the palm to Llanelly (Mr. R. G. Jenkins, Conductor). On the same day a Jubilee Festival of Welsh choirs was held at Llandaff Cathedral. The arrangements were carried out under the auspices of the Llandaff Diocesan Church Choral Association. There were 2,000 vocalists present, and these, in addition to a large congregation, sang the National Anthem. The soloists in the service were: Miss Olive Grey, Mr. Robert Davies, Mr. Lewis, Dowlais. Mr. H. Brooksbank, the organist, accompanied, and Mr. T. Williams, Pontypridd, conducted. In the evening, at the Cardiff Park Hall, a choir of 150 performed a portion of "The Messiah" and a selection of Welsh airs. Madame Williams-Fenn, Miss Grey, Eos Morlais, and Mr. Lucas Williams were chief soloists. The accompaniments were furnished by a band of harps, led by Mr. Frost. The South Wales Choral Union of 500 voices, under the bâton of Caradog, gave their promised performance of the Oratorio "St. Paul," at the Park Hall, Cardiff, on the 23rd ult. The singing, generally speaking, was very fine, and the tone rich. The soloists, Miss Mary Davies, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Miss Polly Jenkins, and Signor Foli, met with enthusiastic receptions. Mr. T. E. Aylward presided at the organ. The Mayor's Garden Party at the Sophia Gardens, Cardiff, on the same day, might almost be described as a musical event. Three bands were present—viz., that of the Volunteer Artillery, the Hungarian band, and the Police band.

Mr. Gladstone's recent visit to South Wales has not been devoid of musical interest. He was serenaded by a choir of 300 voices, led by Eos Morlais (Robert Rees), the well-known tenor, at Singleton House, Swansea, when several characteristic Welsh choruses were given, as well as the "Hallelujah" Chorus from "The Messiah." Mr. Gladstone afterwards stood up in the rostrum which had been occupied by the Conductor, and returned thanks for the compliment which had been paid himself and Mrs. Gladstone. The ex-Premier, several days subsequently, performed the ceremony of opening the free library at Swansea, and he again took occasion to speak about music and its cultivation.

The forthcoming Eisteddfod in London is awakening many thoughts and suggestions in local musical minds. Dr. Parry, of Swansea, is now engaged in producing a series of articles on Welsh musicians and their art, and I find him saying the Principality has not been behind or inferior to other countries in its natural talent, so far as vocalists are concerned, "and in this path of art alone have we shown the best results, voice being a natural gift, and easier of manipulation than that of the pianoforte, organ, or any other orchestral instrument. In singing, more can be accomplished by self tuition than it is possible to do with any instrument, and this explains why Wales has produced more vocalists than she has of any other class of artists." He says he should be proud "had we equal results and successes in all the other high branches of our art." He notes that in the instrumental and orchestral world, Wales has as yet hardly entered. Mr. Turpin's advice several years ago to South Walians, in respect of the desirability of developing band music, will not perhaps fail to bear fruit. Dr. Parry makes various suggestions in view of the Eisteddfod. He says: "I wish it had been possible in this our great national gathering to have a still fuller exhibition of our musical abilities, from a creative as well as an executive point. It would be glorious if a grand demonstration could be made at one of the Eisteddfod Concerts, if arrangements could be made between the committee and all the competing Welsh choirs for the latter to learn and perform together, in one grand national chorus, choruses, glees, and part-songs composed by Welsh composers, so as to represent our leading past and recent native productions as the result of the Eisteddfod. Each work should be conducted by its composer, his deputy, or the Eisteddfod conductor. I would be hopeful of the grandest and highest results from such a performance. It would act as a healthy impetus to the future activity and growth of Welsh music and of Welsh musicians. In our national gathering, more especially as it is to be this time in the great metropolis of the world, Welsh music, through its native composers and performers, should be broadly and fairly represented, so that we may appear at our best. The general effect of such a national chorus, aided by the acoustic excellence of such a building as the Albert Hall, would display to advantage the general characteristics of Welsh music, and of Welsh choral singing. My suggestion is that each living composer should be consulted as to the particular work he would select for representation, and I would offer a similar suggestion to Welsh male parties competing. A large number of highly-trained male voices from Wales would be a rare treat even to Londoners. . . . Arrangements might also be made in London for having all the competing choirs to sing the three test-pieces after the competition, and under the bâton of the successful leader. This would be a great honour to him, and he might be made the champion leader for the year. Here comes another suggestion—that a Champion Conductor's Cup be procured, and competed for and held every year by the conductor of the winning choir, and he should be called the champion conductor of Wales for the year." The Eisteddfod choir will embrace 350 voices, and the Conductor will be Mr. John Thomas, the well-known and justly famed harpist. Everything, it will be understood, is being done to do justice to the musical abilities of the thousands who will flock hither to the Albert Hall, and, as it has been said, to "give Londoners a treat." Certainly the Celtic yearnings of various gentlemen will not go for nothing, if a still nearer approach to perfection be induced among our local choralists.

RELIGIOUS services in all the British churches in Paris formed part of the solemnities by which loyal subjects from all parts of the Empire manifested their devotion to the Queen. The principal of these was that held on the 21st ult., at the church in the Rue d'Aguesseau, which merits the title of Embassy Church by the attendance of the British Ambassador. The service consisted of the form of thanksgiving and prayer fixed by Royal authority to be used in all churches and chapels on the occasion, comprising the "Te deum laudamus," and the Psalm "Exaudiat te, Dominus," with full choir of about eighty voices. The organ was played by Mr. Vincent. The church was thronged. On the previous evening an English Concert was held in the Salle des Fêtes at the Hôtel Continental, and a large audience assembled. A chorus numbering over 120 voices, all English residents, gave good effect to the part music, especially Stewart's arrangement of "The Bells of St. Michael's." The solos were sung by Miss Laura Moore, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Gould, and Mr. Ebsworth. Mr. Sydney B. Arnold recited an Ode written for the occasion, Mr. McMaster performed a Jubilee March of his own composition, and Mr. Gesling conducted with considerable energy and zeal.

ON Thursday, the 9th ult., Madame Jessie Morison gave a Pianoforte Recital at the Assembly Rooms, Defoe Road, Stoke Newington. The programme included works by Beethoven, Handel, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Liszt, Chopin, Scharwenka, and the Concert-giver, all played from memory. Amongst the most notable pieces were Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte," Schumann's "Carnival Scenes," a Waltz in E flat by Liszt, and the latter composer's "Fantasie Hongroise," written for piano and orchestra. Bülow's transcription of the orchestral score was played upon a second piano by Mr. Alfred Smither, and the performance was very heartily applauded. Madame Morison played her own Fantasia on Welsh airs, and a very pretty "Scène de Ballet," also of her own composition. During the evening several songs were admirably sung by Mr. Miles Mole, who was particularly successful in his rendering of Schubert's "Serenade."

MR. WINDEYER CLARK gave an Organ Recital at Westbourne Grove Chapel on the evening of May 31. He performed Mendelssohn's Sonata in F, Henry Smart's Postlude in D, a graceful Allegretto by Mr. C. H. Lloyd, a highly effective and clever March by Dr. C. S. Heap, and several recent compositions by foreign authors. The entertainment was varied by the singing of Mrs. Wilson-Osman, who rendered Spohr's "Rose softly blooming," Sterndale Bennett's "May dew," and the "Ave Maria" from the Cantata of "The Lady of the Lake," the last being redemanded. The violin playing of Mdlle. Gabrielle Vaillant was shown to advantage in movements from one of Bach's unaccompanied Sonatas, and in the Adagio of Spohr's Concerto in D minor. An Andante and Rondo, written for the occasion by Professor Macfarren, to which the organist, as well as the violinist, did ample justice, was also included in the programme.

WITH reference to the appeal made on behalf of the erection of a small memorial to the late Joseph Maas in Rochester Cathedral, in the last number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, Mr. W. A. Barrett writes to say that the whole of the money required for the purpose has been furnished from a private source, and that, therefore, no subscriptions are needed. Those who sent money anonymously will have their contributions returned by post, with many thanks for their kindly offered help, if proper names and addresses, which can lead to the identification of the donors, are sent to Mr. Barrett, at his residence, 39, Angell Road, Brixton, S.W.

AT the Christ Church (Oxford) Concert which took place on Monday, the 20th ult., Miss Violet Liddell, Mr. Angel Smith, and Mr. Macan all sang admiraby, Mr. Cary-Elwes played Svensden's Romance in G with great taste, and the chorus was one of the best that we have heard in a College Hall. The two principal works were "Salamis" by Gernsheim, and "The Longbeard's Saga" by Mr. C. H. Lloyd, both performed for the first time in Oxford. The former has a good deal of vigour, while the latter is marked throughout by the grace and delicacy which Mr. Lloyd's writing always exhibit. The monotony of the rhythm is veiled with considerable skill, the form is clear, and the subjects are well defined and melodious. The two madrigals, "Sir Patrick Spens" and the "Triumph of Victoria," were well and carefully sung, and a spirited performance of "Rule, Britannia!" acted as a final connecting link between Art and Patriotism.

THE "Jubilee Ode," written by W. Bellyse Baildon, B.A., Cantab., and set to music by W. Harrison, of Edinburgh, is one of the many offerings to the Queen on the completion of the fiftieth year of her reign which deserves a word of especial commendation. The words are quaint, scholarly, and original, qualities which are reflected and intensified in the music. This Ode, which is arranged for a baritone solo and chorus, is admirably written, and has all the effect of earnestness produced by music which is the outcome of the labour of love. There are some elegant designs in the preliminary pages, and the printing is as artistic as the literary and musical portion of the work. It is presented to the Queen by the Pen and Pencil Club of Edinburgh, and the combined efforts of all concerned make it a worthy illustration àpropos of an interesting event.

AT one of the weekly Organ Recitals at the Church of St. Barnabas, Kentish Town, given on the 18th ult., Mr. Henry J. Wood, Organist of St. John's, Fulham, S.W., played works by Freyer, Margaret Gyde, Mendelssohn, Handel, Henry J. Wood, Bach, and Guilmant, all being rendered in a masterly manner. An interesting feature in the Recital was the performance (for the first time) of a clever Prelude and Fugue in G minor, by Margaret Gyde. The vocalist was Miss Frances Rogers, and her rendering of Mendelssohn's "Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets," from "St. Paul," was highly commendable. The violin solo, a Romance in C, by Henry J. Wood, was given by the Rev. A. E. Whish (Vicar of St. Barnabas').

THE Association of Tonic Sol-fa Choirs held its fourth Annual Festival at the Crystal Palace, on Saturday, the 11th ult. In the choir contest, for choirs of forty to sixty voices, Mr. Henry Leslie adjudged the West London Choir the first place. At four o'clock a great Choral Concert was given in the Handel Orchestra by a chorus of 3,000 voices, accompanied by the Crystal Palace band (augmented to 300 players), and the great organ. Mr. L. C. Venables conducted, Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O., gave valuable assistance at the organ, and the band performed its part in capital style. During the evening a Costume Concert was given in the Concert Room by the Old English Glee and Madrigal Choir.

ON Thursday evening, the 2nd ult., the Guild of the Holy Standard held its annual Festival in St. Paul's Cathedral. The choir of about 200 voices was supplied by the London Gregorian Choral Association, and Dr. Warwick Jordan, of St. Stephen's, Lewisham, presided at the organ. The Festival attracted an immense congregation, notwithstanding the unfavourable character of the weather. Many parts of the service were accompanied by a military band, and produced a magnificent effect, the alternation of reeds and brass and the roll of the military side drums being most impressive in the vast building. The offertory was in aid of the funds of the Guild.

THE organ at Latimer Congregational Church, Bridge Street, Mile End, having undergone entire reconstruction and enlargement, was opened on Sunday, May 29, and gave unqualified satisfaction to the large congregation assembled. At the close of the evening service, Mr. Percy Jackman (late Organist of Stepney Parish Church) gave a Recital, and fully brought out all the qualities of this excellent instrument. Mr. H. J. Elder (the Organist of the Church) accompanied the service.

ON Thursday, the 16th ult., Keble College, Oxford, gave its usual summer Concert, under the conductorship of Mr. Lloyd. The programme included Goetz's "Nœnia" and Dr. Stanford's "The Revenge," both of which, in spite of their great difficulty, were adequately and successfully interpreted. The miscellaneous selection was wholly vocal, with the exception of Schumann's Violin Romance in A, well played by Mr. H. R. Campion. The singing was good throughout, the vocalists being the Hon. Mr. A. Lyttelton and the Hon. Mr. Talbot, Mr. G. R. Wood, and Mr. N. P. Tower. Dr. Stainer's clever madrigal "The Triumph of Victoria," brought the Concert to an appropriate conclusion.

THE annual festival Service of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament was held on Corpus Christi Day, at the Church of the Ascension, Lavender Hill, the choir being assisted by gentlemen from various well known London churches. The Processional Hymn was J. Baden Powell's arrangement of "Hail, festal day"; the Introit and Gradual were admirably sung to arrangements of Gregorian tones, and the Sequence was G. F. Cobb's Lauda Sion. The remainder of the Service was Monk in C. The singing throughout was excellent, and reflected great credit upon Mr. Moreton Hand, F.S.Sc., the Organist and Choirmaster of the church.

ON the 17th inst. Centenary Services will be held in the Church of St. John the Baptist, St. John's Square, Clerkenwell, in aid of the funds of the Finsbury Dispensary. The music for the Services will be selected from Haydn and Beethoven. The hymns will be by the Wesleys. The paper of the Services will contain biographical sketches of the above-named, besides notices of Rowland Hill and Romaine, written by Mr. R. Moreland, Hon. Sec. to the Dispensary. Sermons will be delivered on behalf of the Charity, and the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs will attend in state.

THE members of the Grosvenor Choral Society gave their 184th monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall, on Friday, the 17th ult., when Barnett's Cantata "The building of the ship" was given for the first time by the Society. A most successful result both by choir and soloists was attained, which the large audience present fully recognised. The soloists were Miss Ada Beck, Miss Alice Kelly, Mr. William Nichol, and Mr. Fred. Bevan. The Cantata was preceded by a miscellaneous selection. Mrs. T. P. Frame accompanied, and Mr. C. M. Gibson presided at the Mustel organ. Mr. David Woodhouse conducted.

THE North-East London Choral Society gave its third and last Concert of the season at Morley Hall, on May 25. The soloists were Madame Clara West, Miss Coyte Turner, Mr. Albert James, and Mr. Sackville Evans. Pianoforte, Mr. Fountain Meen; harmonium, Mr. Louis B. Prout; Conductor, Mr. John E. West. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm, "As the hart pants"; a new MS. Psalm, "The Lord reigneth," by Louis B. Prout (who received quite an ovation at its close), and Bennett's "May Queen."

ON Ascension Day and the following Sunday, special musical evening Services were held at St. Peter's Church, Clapham, under the direction of Mr. Walter Mackway, A.R.A.M. The church choir was greatly augmented for this Festival, and Smart's Service in F (Magnificat, Nunc dimittis, and Te Deum), and Anthems "O clap your hands" (Stainer), "King all glorious" (Barnby), formed respectively part of the Services, which were in every way most successful. Mr. E. Watson Brewster presided at the organ.

WILLIS'S Rooms were the scene of a Morning Concert, given by Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, on the afternoon of the 20th ult., at which the efforts of the bénéficiaire were ably supported by Madame Clara Samuell, Madame Isabel George, Miss Meredyth Elliott, Mr. Charles Chilley, and Mr. Maybrick. Not the least interesting feature in the programme was Mr. Frank Arnold's refined violin playing.

MR. SNAZELLE, the baritone and reciter, late of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, has been selected to give his entertainment, "Music, Song, and Story," pictorially illustrated, in all the towns in Australia and New Zealand, in the place of Mr. H. M. Stanley, whose engagements had to be given up on account of the Emin Pacha expedition.

THE Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave performances of "Samson" in Holy Trinity Church, Canning Town, on the 1st ult., and of the "Creation," in Burdett Road Congregational Church, on the 8th ult. At the first performance the soloists were Miss Annie Daymond, Miss Ellen Cooper, Mr. Ager Grover, and Mr. James Blackney. At the second, Miss Marianna Rea, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ at both performances.

MR. H. W. WESTON, of Balham, gave a Recital at St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey, E.C., on May 24, when the programme included an excellent Organ Overture by the late T. Adams, Mendelssohn's Fourth Organ Sonata, Bach's Prelude and Fugue in C minor, and works by Handel and Beethoven. Another Organ Recital was given at the same church, on the 1st ult., by Mr. Henry J. Wood (Organist of St. John's, Fulham), the programme of which included works by Muffat, Widor, Bach, and Rheinberger.

AT a Congregation held on the 9th ult., in the Senate House, Cambridge, the degree of Doctor of Music was conferred upon Charles Chambers, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The exercise for the degree was a Cantata, entitled "The Redeemer," scored for full orchestra, chorus, and organ. It consisted of an overture, in classical form; solos and concerted pieces; a fugue in eight parts; another chorus in eight parts, containing a canon, 8 in 4; and a chorus entirely in canon, 3 in 1.

A GREAT congregation assembled in the Collegiate Church of St. Paul, Malta, on the 21st ult., for the special Service held to commemorate the Jubilee of Her Majesty. The music was the same as that of the Westminster Service, and was admirably sung by the special choir, under the direction of the Organist, Mr. W. S. Robinson, B.A. The occasion was particularly notable as one on which all the different denominations of English Protestants in the island combined for common worship.

ON Speech Day, at Rugby, on the 25th ult., music—we believe for the first time—was made a feature in the proceedings, by a performance of Sir Herbert Oakeley's setting of Lord Rosslyn's Jubilee Lyric "Love that lasts for ever"; the tenor and soprano soloists and the chorus all being present members of the school. The music had been carefully prepared by Mr. Basil Johnson, Organist and Director of Music at the Rugby School, and was conducted by the composer, who is an old Rugbeian.

MR. WALTER CLIFFORD, of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, gave a Concert, on Thursday evening, the 2nd ult., at Brixton Hall. Mr. Clifford, whose contributions were warmly received, was ably assisted by Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Hilda Coward, Miss Eleanor Rees, Miss Susetta Fenn, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Henry Piercy, Mr. W. H. Burgon, Miss Florence Waud (pianoforte), Mr. Howard Reynolds (cornet), Mr. Hankins' choir, and Messrs. F. Lewis Thomas, F. H. Hankins, and Alfred Izard (accompanists).

MR. G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES gave an Organ Recital, on the 12th ult., at All Souls' Church, Camberwell. The programme included Grand Processional March "The Colonial and Indian" (G. A. Holmes), variations on "God save the Queen" (Hesse), Offertoire in E flat (Batiste), Cantilène and Grand Chœur (Salomè); Andante, varied (J. Baptiste Calkin), and Smart's Festive March in D, all of which were rendered in good style. The vocalists were Miss Ethel Bevan and Mr. J. B. Wilks.

WE understand that Mr. Barton McGuckin has finally decided to leave the Carl Rosa Opera Company. He has declined tempting offers to sing in America and Australia, and will devote himself to Concert and Oratorio engagements altogether this season. He is engaged for both the Worcester and Norwich Festivals in September and October, and will at the latter Festival create the tenor part in Mancinelli's new Oratorio, which will be conducted by the composer.

ASSISTED by a large number of distinguished artists, Miss Victoria de Bunsen gave her annual Morning Concert at the Portman Rooms on the afternoon of the 11th ult. It is true that some of the performers announced failed to put in an appearance, but others took their places without any prejudice to the success of the entertainment.

A NATIONAL Jubilee Concert took place in the Albert Palace on the 20th ult., the programme containing several compositions by the late Prince Consort, and a new setting of the Jubilate by the Rev. F. K. Harford. The latter shows some knowledge of effect, though it is crudely written. Another feature of the Concert was the rendering of the National Anthem in five Indian languages. The executants were chiefly amateurs, and a portion of the proceeds were given to the Stanley Westminster Nursery.

THE Rev. J. P. Knight, celebrated as a composer of popular song music during the last half century, died at his residence, Great Yarmouth, on the 2nd ult., at the age of 75 years. He was a pupil of the late J. D. Corfe, of Bristol, and for some time resided in America, where he published several songs. His most notable efforts were "She wore a wreath of roses," "Rocked in the cradle of the deep," and "The Veteran."

AN Inter-University Concert was given at Dublin, on the 29th ult., by the Choral Society of the University, when works by the Professors of Music at Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh were selected; and on the following day the Degree of Mus. Doc., honoris causâ, was conferred on Professors Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., Sir Herbert Oakeley, and Sir George Macfarren.

MR. A. E. TOZER has obtained the Diploma of Associate in Theory at the Royal College of Music. He has also passed first in First Class of Final Examination for Degree of Mus. B., Trinity College, Toronto.

DR. BRIDGE'S Anthem "Blessed be the Lord thy God," and three numbers of Mackenzie's Jubilee Ode, were to be sung in the Metropolitan Cathedral, Toronto, at a Special Jubilee Service, on the 30th ult.

MR. ALFRED PHYSICK gave an Organ Recital at Holy Trinity Church, Upper Tooting, on Wednesday evening, the 8th ult., the programme containing works by Mozart, Spohr, Rink, Lemmens, Tours, and Cowen.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S "Golden Legend" and Dr. Mackenzie's Jubilee Ode complete, will be performed at the first Concert of the season of the Philharmonic Society of Toronto, under the direction of Mr. Torrington.

THE new edition of the "Congregational Church Hymnal" has been forwarded to us. Want of space renders us unable to notice the work in our present number.

THE Queen has accepted a copy of H. M. Friedländer's Jubilee Anthem, "Hear, O God, hear my cry" (Psalm lxi). The Anthem has both Hebrew and English words.

MR. ARTHUR FAGGE having resigned the appointment of hon. conductor of the Chelsea Musical Society, Mr. Joseph Somes has been elected to succeed him.

MR. JOSEPH BARNBY has been elected an honorary member of the Tonic Sol-fa College.

REVIEWS.

Musical Services at St. Paul's Cathedral. A Report to the Dean and Chapter by the Succentor, the Rev. W. Russell. [London, 1887.]

THE Report to the Dean and Chapter of the music and other matters connected with the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral is always an interesting document. The present Report contains the record from Easter, 1885, to Easter, 1887. It would appear, therefore, that it is two years since a similar account was issued, and in the meantime several changes of importance have been effected. The former Succentor, Dr. W. Sparrow Simpson has retired, and the Rev. W. Russell has been appointed in his place. The Precentor, the Rev. Charles Almeric Belli, has died at a very advanced age, and the Rev. H. Scott Holland, one of the Canons of the Cathedral, has succeeded him. Each of the gentlemen holding these offices at present has strong musical inclinations. The Rev. W. Russell, in particular, possesses no small amount of musical culture, for in addition to his degree as Master of Arts at Cambridge, he also holds that of Bachelor of Music in Oxford University. It is therefore with some degree of pleasure that the outside world contemplates the fact of these appointments, believing that the cause of music in the Cathedral will be advanced, and the prosperity of the good work already done within the building is likely to be continued and perhaps improved.

The new Precentor being a Canon breaks through the precedent of the independence of the office, but it is perhaps an advantage to have it filled by one whose sympathies are in accordance with the character of the work to be achieved. The new Succentor pays a high tribute of admiration to his predecessor in office, and in a like spirit refers to the late Precentor.

As a musician, the Succentor is enabled to judge of the value of the continuous stream of new compositions poured in upon him by those who hope to do something towards supplying a series of representative compositions. Many of these are rejected for reasons stated at length in the Report. Others are retained. It may be imagined that the difficulty of selection is somewhat embarrassing. An apology is offered for the disuse of some of the works of the older writers, on the ground of the peculiarity of the acoustical character of the building; many pieces are offered whose contrapuntal character only produces confusion of sound in so vast a building.

The Succentor asks for additional settings of words suitable for introits, and for music for men's voices fitted to the morning canticles. The men's voice service on Thursday afternoons has been arranged to allow the boys to enjoy a well-earned holiday each week. It is one of the most interesting of all the functions in the Cathedral, but the introduction of Gregorian chants, sung in unison only, brings the harmonised portion of this service into undesirable contrast. One of the reasons for the use of this form of chanting, is stated to be "because St. Paul's having of late made it an object to give to the diocese, so far as possible, an example of all the various kinds of music and of musical services ordinarily recognised —i.e., from the highest and most elaborate type down to that which is simplest and most congregational—it did not seem fitting that Gregorian music, with its ancient pedigree, and employed, as it is, in so large a number of churches, should be left altogether unrepresented." As it is pointed out further, that anthems for saints' days, besides introits, are still wanted, would it not be possible for the authorities of the Cathedral to invite the several prominent English composers to supply this need, and to pay them for their work? It would be better to do this, if it is desirable that the répertoire should be swelled by such additions, rather than it should depend upon the voluntary contributions of those who are ever ready to supply "music which is in itself considered insufficiently meritorious." These, however, are matters which may be safely left to be dealt with by the two new and doubtless earnest officers of the church.

The Choir School is apparently doing good work, and the special and orchestral services held in the Cathedral are well spoken of; and the Succentor pays a high eulogium to the organists, and to the high tone and good feeling which seem generally to prevail in the choir. This is as it should be, for St. Paul's, any defects in organisation and arrangement notwithstanding, should be a model for the whole Christian world to follow.

Jubilee Ode. The words by Juliette Heale. Music by Hélène Heale. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WE opened this work with natural misgiving, for, with one or two salient exceptions, Jubilee compositions have proved of little or no value from the standpoint of pure art. But a perusal of Miss Heale's Ode gave rise to a pleasant feeling of surprise, for it proves the composer to possess more than ordinary ability—far more, indeed, than the majority of lady musicians. We believe she studied at the National Training School, which, during its brief existence, was the means of developing a very large amount of talent. Miss Juliette Heale's poem is an address of congratulation to Queen and people, and may be commended for its sound vigorous diction and freedom from all suggestion of fulsomeness. Musically, the work may be described as one extended choral movement in 3-4 time, with a subsection, which occurs twice, in B flat. The principal theme, a broad Handelian figure, is eventually made the basis of a fugue which is developed at considerable length, and which, as a mere display of science, would do credit to any living composer. The peroration is extremely effective, and although the Jubilee is over, its echoes will doubtless linger among choral societies next season, and among them Miss Heale's Ode deserves to find a place.

Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. Anthem by W. G. Wood. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS Anthem is stated to be for festival or general use. It is chiefly remarkable for the admirable way in which ecclesiastical dignity is combined with melodic beauty. It opens in a flowing yet vigorous style in F, 3-4 time, the key changing to A, with a very attractive theme, at the words "He maketh peace." Next comes an equally winning soprano solo with a charming accompaniment. The original matter then recurs in a modified form, and the whole concludes with an old-fashioned measure much like Gounod's "The Word is flesh become" in "The Redemption." Mr. Wood's Anthem is certain to please choirs and congregations alike.

Rêverie, pour Piano et Violon, ou Violoncelle, sur le 1er Prélude de Sebastien Bach. Par Ethel Harraden. [Enoch and Sons.]

WE do not wonder that Gounod's beautiful "Ave Maria," which seems to grow so spontaneously from Bach's First Prelude, should tempt others to "meditate" upon some well-known piece, in humble imitation of the French composer; but we do wonder that the same groundwork should be taken for a melody, so that a comparison shall be forced upon all hearers, to the detriment, we need scarcely say, of the later work. Beyond this objection, we have nothing to urge against the Rêverie before us. The theme, although somewhat commonplace, fits in well with Bach's Arpeggios, and the piece may find favour with amateur performers on the instruments named in the title-page.

The Distant Home. Song. Words by the Rev. H. F. Lyte. Composed by Edwin Mark Flavell. [Henry Klein.]

DESPITE a restless tonality in this song, there is much feeling both for melody and harmony displayed throughout the composition, which might be made extremely attractive by a competent tenor singer. A good effect is gained by the return to the subject, with a placid accompaniment, after the passionate recitative. The accentuation of the words, however, especially in bars 16 and 19 of the voice part, seems scarcely to have been sufficiently considered.

The Four Seasons. A Cantata for Female Voices. Composed for the use of Schools. Words by James Shepherd. Music by Geo. Shinn, Mus. Bac., Cantab. [J. Curwen and Sons.]

COMPOSITIONS for female voices, especially designed for the use of schools, should find much favour with teachers, as they not only stimulate the desire for singing in parts, but fix the attention upon a work the performance of which at a school concert is something to look forward to during a whole term. "The Four Seasons" is written throughout with appropriate simplicity, but bears the evidence of artistic workmanship in every bar. It is scored for soprano and contralto, and contains solos, duets, and choruses, with a pianoforte accompaniment thoroughly within the reach of the most moderate performer. Some of the soprano solos will delight the prima donna of any "establishment" where the Cantata is placed in rehearsal.

The Musical Year Book of the United States. By S. H. Wilson. [Boston: Alfred Mudge and Son.]

THIS is the fourth volume of a work which gives a record of music performed in the United States, with special details concerning the music at Boston. It shows in a brief and comprehensive form, without comment or remark, what is being done to advance the cause of music in America by means of operatic, orchestral, choral, and other performances. The lists of the names and works of native composers point to a condition of activity which may lead in the future to the most valuable results. As a series of convenient memoranda, valuable to the historian and others interested in the progress of art, Mr. Wilson's little book will be found to be most useful.

Young men and maidens. Full Anthem by J. P. Harding. [Wesleyan Methodist Sunday School Union.]

THIS anthem is intended in all probability for use in Wesleyan places of worship, and we are glad to welcome it as another proof of a growing liberal spirit in Nonconformist circles as regards the service of song. As a composition it merits hearty approval, being exceedingly bold and spirited, yet churchlike and full of musicianly feeling. The phrases, moreover, are strongly rhythmical as well as melodious.

Te Deum Laudamus, Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. By G. H. Gregory. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

MR. GREGORY'S settings of the canticles deserve to rank high among those which have recently appeared for ordinary church use. The Te Deum is especially meritorious though by no means pretentious, being full throughout, with the exception of nine bars for soprano solo. There are many effective points, perhaps the most striking being the introduction of the Ter Sanctus on a 6-4 chord in D flat, following the diminished seventh in D minor. The evening service is less remarkable, but still commendable.

Hope thou in the Lord. Anthem by Allen Allen. [J. Curwen and Sons.]

THERE are some good points in this brief full anthem, particularly the portion commencing "I myself have seen the ungodly," which is very graphic, and also the peroration. The initial exhortation, however, is repeated to the verge of monotony, and the composer may be counselled to avoid this defect in future efforts.

The Organ Library. Book VII. [Wood and Co.]

IT would be no exaggeration to assert that more original organ music by English composers is published in a year at the present time than in ten years a generation ago. The present work, edited by Walter Spinney, is one of several serial publications which are doubtless found useful by organists. The instalment now before us contains five pieces in various styles, of which by far the best is a Concluding Voluntary by D. J. Wood, written in sonata form, with unceasing energy, and providing plenty of work for hands and feet.

Favourite Airs for the Organ. Arranged by Dr. W. J. Westbrook. Books I and II. [London Music Publishing Company.]

MUSICIANLY transcriptions for the organ will, of course, always be in request, notwithstanding the increasing supply of original music, and Dr. Westbrook is well experienced in this department of musical industry. In the present publication, beside familiar airs from "The Messiah," "Israel," "St. Paul," &c., he has included less known but interesting examples by Cherubini, Horne, and Arne. In every instance the arrangement is faithful to the original and not too difficult for ordinary players.

Exercises and Questions. Compiled by S. L. Jopling, L.R.A.M. [North of England School Publishing Company, Limited.]

THOSE who desire to know what has been offered in past years for the examination of candidates in the theory of music at the local examinations of Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh, will be glad to make acquaintance with this little work which, by permission of the delegates of the Universities, contains the questions in music set during the last six years. Intending candidates are hereby enabled to see what has been done and how they may prepare themselves with a prospect of success.

Daily Technical Studies. For the Pianoforte. By Oscar Beringer. [Stanley Lucas and Co.]

MR. BERINGER, who is well known as a practical pianist, has in these pages provided a means for young students to approach as easily as possible the road to "Tausig's Studies," and to bridge over certain gaps occurring in that work. Finger studies, scale passages, chord passages, studies for changing fingers, for thirds, sixths, octaves, extension studies, and for crossing and changing hands, are ably designed and fingered according to modern methods.

Careful directions are given for the use of the studies and transpositions, and there is an appendix of scales and arpeggi which will be found most useful. The book deserves to become well known for its practical character.

The History and growth of Church Music. By the Rev. Ethelred L. Taunton. [Burns and Oates, Limited.]

THE author of this excellent little book treats the subject from a purely Roman Catholic point of view. A sketch of the early history of music is well and clearly written, and the tribute of praise paid to Palestrina and Orlando di Lasso is judicious and temperate. It is not correct, by the way, to call di Lasso a German, unless the fact of his dying at Munich could make him one. The transition period and the rise of the work of the Oratory; the Vienna School, with Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, and others; the Italian and French Schools, with the church musicians of the present day belonging to the Roman communion; a capitally written and sensible chapter on the use of the organ in the service, with incidental mention of the value of boys' voices in the choir, and other matters, are spoken of with the authority and the temperateness of one who knows and one who loves church music. The pages are written so that the facts can be easily remembered. They are not superficial, however, and one or two peculiarities allowed for, the statements may be generally accepted. They are none the worse for being written in a "merry mood." It would be easy to make extracts which would be interesting to all musicians, whatever their religious tenets may be; but, though will is extensive, space is limited, and as the book is not large, and can probably be obtained at a small cost, the best advice that can be given to those for whom the subject has some attractiveness is—buy it, read it, and keep it for reference.

Original Organ Compositions. By George F. Vincent. Vol. 2, book 1. [Willcocks and Co.]

MR. VINCENT is not one of those organ composers who fritter away any talent they may happen to possess in turning out multitudes of trifling pieces, andantes and such like, which any organist of ordinary attainments could improvise with ease. In the present instance, at any rate, he has concentrated his energies upon a work of large dimensions, namely, an Offertoire and Fugue in B flat. It opens with a bold and imposing subject, and is worked out in ordinary symphonic form and with a good deal of elaboration as far as the recapitulation, where a subsidiary figure is used as a fugue subject, this part of the work being even more extended than the foregoing. The treatment is clever rather than scientifically accurate, but the general result is highly effective, and a re-entry of the leading theme of the Offertoire brings the work to a grandiose conclusion. It is far too long for use as a church voluntary, but it deserves the attention of recital players.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A. By I. Herbert Stammers. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IT is quite impossible to notice all the settings of the Canticles which appear in ever-increasing numbers, and many of which, though thoroughly churchlike and musicianly, possess no distinctiveness of character. The present service, composed for a harvest festival, is rather above the average in musical effectiveness, and recalls in a slight degree the manner of Goss, in its flowing yet dignified course, while it presents no difficulty that an ordinary amateur choir could not surmount.

Dr. Sawyer's Technical Exercises for the Pianoforte. Containing Exercises on Touch; Scales, Major and Minor (in both forms), Arpeggios, Octaves, Embellishments. [E. Donajowski.]

THIS volume will be found very useful to all students working with an earnest purpose, and especially those preparing for examination, as in addition to the exercises named on the title-page, some valuable hints on the method of practising them are scattered throughout. We think it a pity that three methods of fingering the chromatic scale should be given; and it is a question with us whether the "melodic" form of the minor scale should be practised in contrary motion, or in tenths and sixths; but masters, we know, differ in opinion on these matters.

Our Queen. National March. Composed by George Asch. [Ascherberg and Co.]

"GRAND Descriptive" Marches like the one before us, when disconnected from the events for which they are expressly written, can scarcely be judged at their true value. Mr. Asch's piece, however, is not left to tell its own tale, for "Cavalry patrol in the distance," "Royal trumpeters announcing the arrival of Her Majesty," and "Sounding of the bugles," are some of the titles placed over the several sections of the March. As the same theme serves for the arrival and departure of Her Majesty, it will be seen that there is not much variety in the composition.

La Petite Bergère. Sketch for the pianoforte. By Annie Tait. [Paterson and Sons.]

WERE this little Sketch not so monotonous, it would be a commendable specimen of the composer's power of writing an attractive piece for young players; for the quaint theme is well harmonised, and the passages lie so well under both hands as to make the composition an excellent exercise for legato playing.

The Offertory Sentences. Set to music for parish choirs. By Martin S. Skeffington. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE practice of singing the Offertory Sentences appears to be on the increase, and Mr. Skeffington's settings should become popular. They are extremely pleasing and at the same time perfectly unassuming, without any repetitions of words. Most of them could be sung without accompaniment.

FOREIGN NOTES.

A MONUMENT to Joseph Haydn, the work of the Tyrolese sculptor, Heinrich Natter, was unveiled at Vienna, in the square in front of the Mariahilf Church, on May 31, which was also the seventy-eighth anniversary of the composer's death. The statue, which is eight and a-half feet high, is of pure Carrara marble, and represents the great musician as he pauses before writing down one of the melodies which were to delight the world. In his left hand is a scroll with golden characters, while the right holds a pencil. The face is very life-like, having been modelled from the cast taken directly after Haydn's death, and the expression is bright with inspiration. The ceremony of unveiling the noble statue of the composer of the "Creation" was performed by the Austrian Emperor in person, assisted by a numerous and distinguished assembly, the musical arrangements including the performance, by the excellent Viennese Männergesang-Verein, of Herbeck's Te Deum. Among the numerous floral offerings deposited at the base of the monument were several wreaths sent by admirers of the master from this country.

Apropos of the above event, some extraordinary facts concerning Haydn's mortal remains have just been divulged by a writer in the Viennese Neue Freie Presse, Herr. L. A. Frankl. The great composer died in the year 1809, and was interred in one of the churchyards of the Kaiserstadt. When, eleven years later, the master's remains were exhumed in order to be transferred to the family vault of the Princes of Ezterhazy, at Eisenstadt, it was found that the skull had been removed by some person unknown. Strict enquiries having been instituted, a skull, said to be the missing one, was forthcoming, and was duly interred with the genuine remains of the composer. It now appears, upon documentary evidence produced by the writer in the Viennese journal, that the real skull of Haydn was, shortly after the first interment, purloined by a fanatical amateur, imbued with the doctrines of Dr. Gall, the phrenologist, and that the precious relic, having eventually passed into the hands of the anatomical museum of Vienna, forms to this day a much-treasured "item" in the collection of that institution.

It is now positively stated that the entire material for the completion of Herr Pohl's Haydn biography has been found among the literary remains of the late Viennese librarian, who has, moreover, by testamentary injunction, entrusted Herr Eusebius Mandyczewski with the task of editing the remaining volume of the important work. The last-named gentleman is one of the editors of the standard edition of Schubert's works now in course of publication at Leipzig.

A Schubert Museum is to be established at Vienna next year under the auspices of the Viennese Male Quartet Society "Schubertbund," and in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the latter's foundation.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's Operetta "Patience" has met with brilliant success in the Austrian capital, where public opinion has expressed itself unanimously in favour both of the work and of its performance.

Johannes Brahms is said to be just now engaged upon a romantic opera, the first from the pen of the symphonic master, and the production of which will be looked forward to with intense interest by all amateurs. The libretto, it is stated is founded upon a comedy by Gozzi, the author being Herr Widmann, who furnished the book of Goetz's "The Taming of the Shrew."

Four interesting additions have recently been made to the Historical Museum of Vienna, in accordance with a bequest made to that institution by the late Franz Liszt—viz., a spinet, once in the possession of Mozart (and "used by him when composing," as one of the vouchers states); a writing-desk of Haydn's; the bâton de mésure presented to Liszt on the occasion of his conducting the Concert commemorative of the centenary of Mozart's birth in 1856, at Vienna; and a plaster cast of Beethoven's face, taken from life.

It is stated in German papers that the collections for the projected Mendelssohn monument at Dessau have reached so large a sum that its erection is now secured. The committee left the choice of its site to the Duke, who has selected a spot in the Anlagen adjoining the new railway station. The committee will issue in a few days a circular stating the conditions of competition. At the instigation of several societies, both literary and artistic, commemorative tablets are to be placed against the houses situate in Schadow-Strasse and Allee-Strasse respectively, where Mendelssohn and Schumann resided during their tenure of office as musical directors of Düsseldorf.

Dr. Hans von Bülow will be the Conductor, in conjunction with Herr Sucher, of the Hamburg opera during next season, when a "cyclus" of Mozart's operas, culminating in a jubilee performance of "Don Giovanni" (with the German text revised by Herr Max Kalbeck), will be among the chief attractions; Verdi's "Otello" being likewise in course of preparation.

The right of public performance of Richard Wagner's early Symphony in C major has been acquired for a term of eighteen months by the concert agency of Hermann Wolff, of Berlin. The work dates from the year 1832, when the composer was only nineteen years of age, and was performed at one of the Leipzig Gewandhaus Concerts in the following year, when it met with the encouraging approval of the influential Herr Rochlitz, of the Allgemeine Musikalische Zeitung of that town. Since then the score of the work disappeared, but was re-discovered in 1877, and again privately performed in the presence of the composer and his family, in December, 1882, by the orchestra of the Liceo Benedetto Marcello, of Venice, in honour of Frau Cosima's birthday. Some two months later Wagner died. The impending revival in public of this youthful production in the domain of absolute music on the part of a composer whose genius was essentially a dramatic one, partakes, in the hands of an "agency," somewhat of the nature of a commercial enterprise, and will scarcely be approved of by the best friends of Wagnerian art.

The question concerning the treatment of the human voice in Wagner's music dramas having recently been again mooted in the columns of the Berlin Allgemeine Deutsche Musik Zeitung, Madame Joachim, the highly accomplished German contralto singer, writes to that journal as follows:—"It is really high time that the silly notion concerning the ruinous effect upon the voice of Wagner's operas should be abandoned. The reverse is the truth; and I maintain that the singing of Wagner's operas tends to preserve the voice, while husbanding it. There is no composer who, like him, supports the singer by means of his orchestra, which aids the voice in every way, and even anticipates the dramatic expression. Thus Gluck, for instance, abandons the vocal artist altogether by his orchestra in the most tragic moments, so that parts like Orpheus can only be done full justice to by a singer endowed with extraordinary physical powers, and by the unreserved display thereof."

Anton Rubinstein is busily engaged upon the composition of a new opera, which is to be one of the first works to be produced by the new National Russian Opera at St. Petersburg, whereof the pianist-composer is the principal founder.

A colossal bust of Richard Wagner is to be shortly unveiled at the theatre of Bologna, the first of the Italian stages where the master's "Lohengrin" was produced.

A serial performance of Wagner's music-dramas, from "Rienzi" to the "Nibelungen" Tetralogy, is just now in progress at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, a similar undertaking having recently been completed by the Royal Theatre of Dresden. The same master's early opera, "Die Feen," is being elaborately mounted at the Munich Hof-Theater.

An interesting brochure has just been published in Paris from the pen of M. Georges Street, entitled "Lohengrin à l'Eden Théâtre," containing an impartial resumé of the recent single performance of Wagner's chef d'œuvre at the French capital, and of the incidents attending it.

The annual Meeting of the members of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein was held from the 26th to the 29th ult. at Cologne. The musical performances, under the direction of Dr. Wüllner, included Liszt's Oratorio "St. Elizabeth," a new Pianoforte Concerto by Tschaikowski, and three Symphonic movements by Sgambati, the latter conducted by their composer. Johannes Brahms also took part in the proceedings.

The following were the principal works produced at this year's Music Festival of the Lower Rhine, held at Düsseldorf from the 29th to the 31st of May last, viz.:—Handel's "Joshua," Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G major, Bach's Cantata "Festa Ascencionis Christi," Mendelssohn's Overture "Fingal's Cave," Weber's Cantata "In seiner Ordnung schafft der Herr," Beethoven's Symphony "Eroica," Berlioz's Overture "Carnaval Romain," and Schumann's Symphony in B flat major. Hans Richter was the principal Conductor.

Schubert's seldom-heard opera "Der häusliche Krieg" ("Domestic Warfare") was recently revived, with much success, at the Munich Hof-Theatre.

Herr Goldmark's new operatic work, entitled "Merlin," has met with signal success on its recent first production at Mannheim, under the direction of the Court Capellmeister, Herr Paur.

A new concert-hall is projected at Berlin, which is to accommodate an audience of some 3,000 persons.

The Academical Senate of Leipzig has appointed Professor Kretzschmar, of Rostock, to the vacant post of Musical Director of the Saxon alma mater.

The opera "Antonius und Cleopatra," by the Count Wittgenstein, has been accepted for performance at the Imperial Theatre of Vienna, as well as at the Residential stages of Weimar and Schwerin.

Herr Frank van der Stucken, of New York, has recently given a most successful Concert, with the co-operation of the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, at the German capital, the programme including several important compositions by the Concert-giver. The Berlin press is unanimous in its praise of the artist both in his capacity as composer and orchestral director.

A French artist, M. Emile Mennesson, has invented a mechanism which may be easily adjusted to any pianoforte, and the effect of which is to reduce to a minimum the sounding capacities of the instrument. Thus the "Pédale Sourdine," as it is styled, recommends itself to all those subservient to the daily routine of mechanical finger exercises, and should, as the inventor suggests, be equally welcome to the "pianophile" and to the "pianophobe."

An opera, "La Montagne noire," is in course of being mounted at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, of Brussels, the composer being Madame Augusta Holmes, already known to French audiences by some choral and orchestral works.

An international competition of choral societies is to be held at Liège (Belgium) in September next at the instance of the Musical Association "Disciples de Grétry" of that town. Societies intending to participate in the contest are requested to communicate with the secretary of the undertaking, 27 Rue André-Dumont, Liège.

Signor Giuseppe Lamperti, the successful director of the Apollo Theatre, of Rome, has succeeded the brothers Corti in the management of the La Scala, of Milan. Wagner's "Tannhäuser" is to be the opening work of the new season, the principal novelty of which will be the opera "Medijé," by the Maëstro Samara, the successful composer of "Flora Mirabilis."

The death is announced at Pavia, his native town, of Gaetano Fraschini, who, some thirty years ago, was the most popular tenor singer of Italy. His most successful part was that of Edgardo in Donizetti's "Lucia."

At Magdeburg died, on May 31, at the age of eighty, Christian Friedrich Ehrlich, for many years the musical director at the Kloster Gymnasium, an excellent pianist (pupil of Hummel), and composer of several operas.

At Padua died, at the age of seventy, Madame Marini, a once highly popular prima donna of the La Scala of Milan; a native of Germany, whose real name was Fanny Goldberg.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"MELODY IN SPEECH."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In the March number of The Musical Times I have read your interesting comments on Mr. Weber's paper "Melody in Speech," which appeared in Longman's Magazine of February. Since you invite your readers (among whom I have the good fortune to be numbered) to communicate their views on the subject of Mr. Weber's article, I should like to say that I think there is scarcely a musician who would not at once answer in the affirmative to your question whether he has not "unconsciously laid greater stress than the facts warrant upon the distinctness of the intervals observed in our speech or in the sounds of nature"?

Most readers will surely have shared my astonishment when I saw ordinary phrases of speech represented in musical notation without the slightest difficulty apparently being felt by the writer, who scarcely even finds it necessary to use an accidental! I am a great believer in the staff notation, but how can it (or any other yet invented) represent those minute intervals which constantly occur in the "melody of speech," or those much wider "skips" which, while they suggest, or remind one of, musical intervals, are yet so faulty in intonation (to say the least) that they cannot be represented on a stave nor be reproduced on a key-board instrument? To prove this, let any of your readers, Sir, make the simple experiment of uttering a sentence, while he is careful that every inflection of his voice shall be an interval in tune. Will not the result be that he finds himself obliged to speak, or rather sing, in the style known as recitative? Most assuredly the effect will be much more artificial, if not artistic, than the sounds produced in ordinary speaking. I am only an Australian, and it may be different in the mother country, but certainly in Melbourne neither we colonials nor the Englishmen we meet talk in recitative. Would we could all rejoice in the possession of friends like Mr. Weber's, who, in deference, I presume, to his extreme musical sensibility, always address him in melodic intervals, doubtless perfectly in tune! Look at the "Good morning" with which he is greeted:—

Why, it must be an inspiration to him throughout his day's work! But, to be serious (as is fitting when one is thinking of the untunefulness of his own conversation and the faulty intonation of his friends, even in their best moments), I contend that Mr. Weber gives us examples of speech in music, not music in speech. One or two of them are really expressive bits of recitative—of melody, if Mr. Weber will have it so—and might encourage composers to observe the inflections of the voice under the influence of various emotions, and so, perhaps, help them to write recitative which is forcible, and as true to nature as is compatible with the necessities of musical expression. That many street cries are musical must of course be admitted, since in those who use them there is often the plain intention to sing the words instead of speaking them; and, no doubt, familiar intervals might be found in use amongst our Australian birds as in those countries where some of their songs have been noted, for I can remember the tuneful call of the Tasmanian Grey Thrush—Collaricincla Selbii—(don't accuse me of pedantry, Sir, for did you not find fault with Mr. Weber just now because he did not name his birds)? The bold, bright call of this bird used to ring through the lonely "bush" with a purity of intonation that would have delighted a musician; and was remarkable besides for being musical in rhythm and expression, thus—

I have not had an opportunity of hearing this for some eight or nine years, and have no means now of ascertaining the key in which it was usually performed; but of the rhythm and expression I feel quite sure, while the purity of the interval sounds so plainly in my ears as I write that I think I can trust my memory on this point also. As far as I know, the birds, when answering one another, sang their call at a different pitch, as if with the idea of "imitation" in the contrapuntal sense. But I must not write from memory any longer, for it would be setting a bad example to my readers, if I should be honoured with any. I think every one of his readers will sympathise with Mr. Weber in his obvious love for the great mistress Music, and his desire to hear her voice in all things. Somehow, we remember at this moment the composer who went forth into the fields and woods to gather inspiration, to whom the forest trees seemed ever to be saying, "Holy, holy"; and we begin to grow reverent. Ay, truly, music exists in Nature; but no man (except Mr. Weber) can put her magic melodies on music-paper in intervals easy to sing. One might as well try to write with sunshine instead of ink.

Your obedient Servant,

M. J. Hutchins.

Powlett Street, Melbourne, April 19, 1887.

Sir,—If you have space for further correspondence on this subject, I should like to note one fact which the previous letters may possibly have suggested to others among your readers, and which—in my case—close observation during a four years' residence in London has tended to confirm—viz., that between the street cries of London and those of provincial towns there is an essential difference. In the former case—curious and amusing as they often are—they almost invariably owe their origin to the idiosyncrasy (musical or otherwise) of the individual vendor; while in the latter, all vendors of the same article seem to have a particular cry in common, very frequently bearing on it the stamp of tradition—an element conspicuously lacking in the former instance.

It follows that in towns and cities where the traditional element is strong, traces of it will appear in the street cries. Edinburgh is a notable example of this; many of its beautiful street melodies having been handed down through many generations. The reason why such is not the case in London—where local tradition plays so small a part, and where the things of yesterday are forgotten in the bustle of to-day—is obvious. Then, taking the examples already given by your correspondents, it is noticeable that those which are cited as most nearly approaching old ecclesiastical chants (Mr. Rogers's "Watercresses" is Tone II., first ending, note for note) are those which hail from country towns, where, naturally, tradition is likely to be most deeply rooted.

This, I think, points to the fact of their having an origin of considerable antiquity; the London cry, on the other hand, as a rule, has its birth and death with the person who utters it.

Here is one which I noted some years ago in a small provincial town:—

The intervals were almost perfect, and the inflections are curiously like those so familiar to persons acquainted with the intoning of the Roman Mass, or Anglican Communion Office.

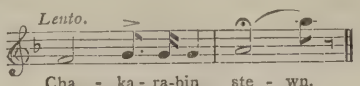
The following I first heard in the singularly unlovely borough of South Shields when a boy of seven, and such was the fascination of the dreamy phrase, with its weird sounding libretto, that I followed the vendor—with childish heedlessness—through some miles of streets, not finding my way back to my alarmed relatives until a late hour in the afternoon—



This mystic sentence is merely a distortion of "Chalk and rubbing-stone." In and about the same town I have often heard—and am told that both the above have, in the memory of the oldest inhabitants, been used by all hawkers of these two articles.

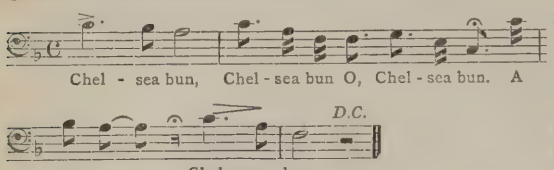
I am tempted to add yet another, which might have been heard many years ago in the streets of Richmond (Yorks); it does not bear upon anything said above, but seems quaint enough to merit quotation—



R. R. TERRY.

[Letters on the same subject have been received from an Organist; John Bell, Mus. Bac.; John T. Harmston; Herr Jaffé; F.C.O.; F.R.C.; H. H., and others, all more or less interesting, for which we regret to be unable to find room. The subject has been sufficiently ventilated to inspire the future historian who may be willing to turn his attention to it. To him the matter must now be consigned.—ED. Musical Times.]

THE METRONOME AND MODERN COMPOSERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The contents of this letter may possibly be interesting to many musicians who, like myself, are dissatisfied with the present anomalous nomenclature of Maëlzel's Metronome.

Intended originally as an international guide to the tempi of movements, it was a great step in the right direction, and there is reason to believe that with some revision it might be still of great universal use in the study and performance of musical works. But there must be revision, and I humbly submit the following figures and examples in support of my assertion.

I have examined several works of the following seven leading composers of the day—namely, Messrs. Cowen, Gounod, Macfarren, Mackenzie, Stanford, Sullivan, and Wagner, and find that taking the six principal or unqualified Italian rates of speed, they employ the following terms and corresponding Metronomic Equations, in a movement with a time signature of 4-4, viz.:—

In Adagio the pulsations range from 40 to 69, giving an average or standard pulse of 54.
Largo ranges from 54 to 84, average 69.
Andante has the same average.
Larghetto ranges 84—100, average 96.
Allegro ranges 116—132, average 120.
Presto ranges 120—208, average 132.

Now, comparing this table with that of Maëlzel, what do we see? In the first place, the order of terms is changed, Maëlzel calling his slowest movement a Largo, his next slowest a Larghetto, and placing Adagio third on the list, whereas our modern composers call their slowest movements Adagios.

Maëlzel's average Adagio	=	118.
Modern composers'	=	54.
Maëlzel's Andante	=	138.
Modern composers'	=	69.
Maëlzel's Presto	=	200.
Modern composers'	=	132.

Now, what is the result? Confusion. Supposing a new composition, awaiting the attachment of its proper Metronomic Equations and Italian terms of speed—what is done by the composer? He adapts the length of the pendulum of the metronome so as to give pulsations agreeing with his idea of the rapidity of the movement. Let it register 132 beats in the minute; he refers to the perpendicular table on the instrument, and finds Andante written opposite to 132; he therefore writes Andante at the commencement of the movement. So much for Maëlzel!

I find that in the same case, Dr. Mackenzie would write Presto!

Again, taking a case where the pendulum beats 116 in the minute, the composer, trusting to the Maëlzel Table, would write Adagio, whereas Mr. Cowen would write Allegretto, and Sir Arthur Sullivan Presto!

Surely this is a matter for reform. The unlucky musician who lives in the country, and is obliged to trust to his metronome for the proper indications of the tempi of the world's music, is very apt to be considerably out in his calculations, and, moreover, if he be a composer in the wilds of a country far removed from the great metronome of St. Paul's, his Italian terms of tempi are more than likely to be at great variance with the ideas of modern conductors, who take their time, so to speak, from the seven composers mentioned above, and will very possibly cause a wrong interpretation to be put upon his works.

Under these circumstances, and considering the general advance of English music in all its branches, the revision of the Italian Table affixed to Maëlzel's Metronome, will be of great help and real use to the English musician, the more especially if he be a composer. It may be said that each individual composer uses certain qualifying terms, which sufficiently explain his meaning. Is it so? Let us, in a standard movement of 4-4, take the equation ♩ = 76. We shall find among the works of the seven aforesaid modern composers, the following terms attached to this tempo, viz.:—Andante religioso, molto moderato, and Allegro moderato. Again, taking ♩ = 88, we shall find it representing Andante maestoso, Allegretto grazioso, and Allegro maestoso.

This appears to give a negative answer to the question. Again, how vague is the term—and this is but one among many—Andante quasi minuetto, when there are as many tempi for minuets as there are minuets. Why not abolish altogether the Italian terms, and, instead of being ashamed of their own comprehensive language, let Englishmen use English phrases combined with Metronomic Equations to indicate the proper performance of their works. Do not let us be too proud to take a lesson from Wagner, at least in this respect, who has used his own language in preference to Italian. Let the matter be taken in hand by our highest musical authorities, as the anomalies pointed out above should not be allowed to remain, and exhibit to the world of Art a very weak spot in the grammar of music.

Yours faithfully,
PENDULUM.

[Our correspondent, in desiring the introduction of English, in place of Italian words, is most certainly taking a step backwards. The aim of all composers should be to make music a universal language; and if the example of Schumann and Wagner in using German terms to express their intentions were to be extensively followed, it might lead to each country having its own vocabulary of musical words, its own fingering, and eventually, perhaps, its own notation.—ED. Musical Times.]

QUESTIONS OF AUTHORSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—There is a pianoforte solo published in London with title-page as follows: "Revivals No. 1. Grand Fantasia (in E and A minor and major) for the Pianoforte, by Wilhelm Friedemann Bach. Edited by J. W. Davison." A note states that this Fantasia was first played in public by Madame Arabella Goddard at her Pianoforte Recital in St. James's Hall, June 17, 1869. This is, I suppose, one of the two "noble Fantasias" mentioned in Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians" as having been introduced by Madame Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts. This same Fantasia is published in Germany with the following title-page: "Fantasie et Sonate pour le Piano dédiées à Mademoiselle la Comtesse Elisabeth Tolstoij, par J. G. Haessler. Op. 17. Nouvelle edition. Leipzig: Brietkopf und Härtel." This composer wrote the celebrated Gigue in D minor.

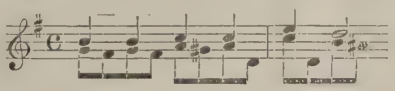
A Sonata in B flat, commencing is frequently published under Mozart's name, and the same may be said of a Rondo in G—



Is it known if Mozart really wrote the foregoing?

Can full information be obtained concerning the Sonata in B flat commencing which is generally published under Mozart's name? In the article on Pianoforte Music, by E. Pauer, in Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," it is stated that the "first movement is said to have been written by E. A. Müller," and in the article on Mozart, by the late C. F. Pohl, in the same work, it is stated that it was "partly put together from Mozart's Concerto by E. A. Müller as Op. 26." I have a copy of this Sonata with following title-page: "Sonate pour le Clavecin ou le Pianoforte, composée par E. A. Müller. Op. 26. Leipzig: C. F. Peters." Neither of the two Sonatas in B flat I have mentioned are included in the Peters edition of Mozart's Sonatas I purchased many years since. The following note is printed at foot of title-page of Müller's Op. 26: "Cette Sonate imprimée d'abord sous le nom de Mozart dans le Magazin de Musique de Thomas, que nous avions acheté, a paru maintenant comme œuvre posthume de Mozart dans le bureau d'Industrie à Vienne et à Mayence," &c.

Yours truly,

W. H. Selby.

Swinton Dale, Swinton, Nottingham, June 18, 1887.

BEETHOVEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Owing, I am afraid, to rather indistinct writing, there were three verbal mistakes in my letter in your last issue, which I should be obliged if you would kindly allow me to correct.

The sentence, "with this subscription," should read "with this superscription." The one "Auf Aufforderung gesehrieben," should read "Auf Aufforderung geschrieben." The one "As ruthless as it is remarkable," should read "As ruthless as it is unwarrantable."

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

John Towers.

Author of "Beethoven: A Centenary Memoir."

Manchester, June 8, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I have read with great pleasure the letter of your correspondent, Mr. Towers, in your last number, and I heartily support him in all he has said. Having also received a copy of what I conclude to be the same publication, I should like to draw his attention to the two hymn-tunes on the last page, which are evidently supposed to be correctly harmonised in four parts. They contain grammatical errors in the shape of consecutive octaves, such as would inevitably "plough" a tyro in an elementary examination in harmony.

Cannot something be done to check the circulation of such pure rubbish as there is in publications like these. Incalculable mischief is done by them, inasmuch as they generally fall into the hands of people who cannot detect the errors, and who are not aware that they are reading anything but what is reliable and sound information. At the present day no one can say that good musical publications are expensive when we look at Novello's, Litolf's, or Peters' catalogues, therefore I think such publications as the above ought to be freely exposed by criticism in order to guard unsuspecting readers from them.

Yours truly,

T. P. Levett.

Grammar School, Berwick, June 9, 1887.

FERRIS'S "GREAT COMPOSERS."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Can you or any of your readers inform me as to where I can obtain a book, in two volumes, by George Ferris, published in America, called, I believe, "The Great Composers"?—Yours obediently, Musicus.

"THE GOLDEN LEGEND" IN AMERICA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Your New York correspondent, in the June number, says: "On Sunday evening, May 8, Sir Arthur Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' was performed for the first time in the United States, by the Boston Oratorio Society," &c. The Boston papers also made this statement, in spite of all our feeble remonstrances. Will you do us the honour to state again, for the information of all men, that the "Legend" was brought forward for the first time in America by the Apollo Musical Club, of Chicago, March 11, 1887, and greatly oblige,—Yours sincerely,

Philo A. Otis,

Chairman of the Music Committee, Apollo Musical Club.

1216, Michigan Avenue, Chicago, June 7, 1887.

THE LOCAL EXAMINATIONS OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—The annual local theoretical and practical examinations of the above Institution were held last February, and at the time I write (four months after) the results have not been published.

This delay appears unreasonable, and is highly prejudicial to the best interests of the candidates themselves, and also their teachers. Compared with other examining institutions the Royal Academy is somnolence itself in this respect. This condition is the more to be deplored because of the acknowledged superior standing and excellence of its local examinations.

Is it useless to hope for a more expeditious method of publishing the results of these local examinations?

Mus. Bac., F.C.O.

June 17, 1887.

"R.A.M." and "R.C.M."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I can give your correspondent "Anxious" some information concerning the initials "R.A.M." and "R.C.M."

"R.A.M." is the highest honour which can be held in connection with the Royal Academy, and is conferred on students of the Academy "who distinguish themselves in the musical profession after quitting the institution," by vote of the Directors. It cannot be gained by any examination, and the fortunate individuals who are thus honoured may style themselves "Fellows of the Royal Academy." The number is limited to one hundred, and Fellows only "and no other persons, shall be entitled to the use after their names of the initials R.A.M." (The quotations are from the published rules.)

The foregoing being a simple statement of fact, it will naturally be wondered how it happens that in the local examination lists for the last year (lists authorised and issued by the Directors, duly signed by the Secretary), the names of about thirty ladies and gentlemen, who are not Fellows, appear with these honoured initials appended. In the same lists are many names with M.R.A.M. appended, but nothing concerning them appears in the rules. There are also many cases of the use of L.R.A.M., but these we know are honourably gained in examinations, and signify Licentiate of the Royal Academy. There is no doubt that by the use of R.A.M. all over the kingdom by mere students, a gross fraud is perpetrated on the public.

"R.C.M." (Royal College of Music) means nothing, except that a few terms have been spent in connection with the College.

Yours most obediently,
A PROFESSIONAL MUSICIAN.

June 22, 1887.

CHAMBER MUSIC FOR AMATEURS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The cultivation of bowed instruments has of late made such rapid progress among amateurs that almost every household contains a violinist, and violoncellists are no longer rare. Accordingly, the musical press teems with music for the violin and pianoforte, adapted to every degree of proficiency, from that of the merest tyro to that of the more ambitious amateur who essays Mendelssohn's Concertos and the like. With the violoncellist, however, it does not fare so well. Morceaux for his instrument, indeed, are not lacking; but the pianoforte trio, in which it is heard to the best advantage, fails to evoke the muse of modern composers. If he is unable to take part in the trios of the great composers, he has but little to fall back upon; and if we are reminded of the facile and agreeable trios of Haydn, it must be remembered that the cello part is of a tentative and unambitious character, and only calculated to supply his wants imperfectly. Is it expecting too much to hope, then, that this widely felt want may be supplied by the production of agreeable and well-contrived music, which shall not make too great demands on the technical skill of the performers? Doubtless it would meet with considerable acceptance.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

CELLO.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

Correspondents are particularly requested to write their communications on one side of the paper only.

TRITONE.—(1) It is necessary. (2) By practice from old scores.

W. H. L.—(1) We shall always be glad to insert matters of general interest. (2) We exercise our own judgment as to the value of the notice.

A. J. (BALHAM).—It takes more people to make a world than our esteemed correspondent. Matters which are distasteful to him have, unfortunately, a large amount of interest for other people.

ROLAND.—We cannot spare the space required for your able communication.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABINGDON.—The Orchestral Society (Conductor, Mr. H. B. Wilsdon) gave its fifth Concert on the 8th ult., and brought to a successful close the first three years of its existence. The performance was good throughout, and showed marked improvement in all parts of the band. Mr. G. H. Betjemann again led, and played as solos the Andante and Finale from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, and the Moto perpetuo by F. Ries. Mr. Betjemann is a capital leader, and his marvellous powers of execution in his solos took the audience completely by storm. One of the most important features of the programme was Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor, played by Mrs. H. S. Clench, whose rendering left nothing to be desired. Mr. Grice, an old favourite in Abingdon, was heartily welcomed and applauded. He sang Handel's "Revenge, Timotheus cries," "The Devout Lover" (M. V. White), and "The Toreador's Song" (Bizet). The pianoforte accompaniments were, as usual, played by Mrs. Slade Baker. The National Anthem was sung by Miss Florence Clarke at the commencement of the evening.

ASHFORD, KENT.—The Ashford Orchestral Society gave their eleventh Popular Concert on the 25th ult., and, in commemoration of the Jubilee, "God Save the Queen," "Rule, Britannia," and H. Smart's "Victoria," were included in the programme. The singing of Mrs. Lobb, Mrs. Colville, and Dr. Wilks was greatly appreciated by a large and enthusiastic audience. The orchestra played splendidly, and reflected great credit on their talented Conductor, Dr. Wilks, who does so much for music in Ashford. The Concert was certainly one of the best ever given here. The Choral Society availed themselves of this opportunity of presenting to Dr. Wilks a handsome Conductor's chair, beautifully designed, and made by a local tradesman.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Christ Church Dedication Festival was kept on Friday, the 17th ult. (St. Alban's Day), when the choir gave a rendering of Farmer's Christ and His Soldiers. Miss Marjorie Eaton, a recent débutante in Ashton, gave very valuable assistance by undertaking the soprano solos. She has a very rich and beautiful voice, and delighted her audience greatly. The other solo parts were taken by Messrs. Green, Robson, and Nield. The Choirmaster, Mr. J. Smith, conducted from the Lectern, and Mr. R. Thornhill accompanied the Oratorio at the organ. Christ Church choir is now a voluntary one, and Mr. Smith is to be congratulated on the result of his careful and constant training, as evidenced by the excellence of the solos and the crispness and steadiness of the choruses.

ATHERSTONE, WARWICKSHIRE.—The Grendon Choir, formed by Florence, Marchioness of Hastings, gave a special service in the Polesworth Parish Church, on Sunday, the 5th ult., under the direction of the Rev. A. Wellesley Batson, Mus. Bac., Oxon. The service was Garrett in D, and the anthem "Send out Thy light," by Gounod. Several other anthems were also sung, among them Wesley's "Blessed be the God and Father," the Rev. A. Batson's "The Lord is my Shepherd," and Stainer's "They have taken away my Lord."

BALHAM.—Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster of Balham Parish Church, S.W., gave a Recital after Evensong, on Whit Sunday, in the Church, to a large congregation, the programme including Guilmant's Grand Chorus in F, Handel's Fifth Organ Concerto, and works by Liszt, Beethoven, and Wagner.

BOURNEMOUTH.—At the Jubilee Service in St. Peter's Church a special Te Deum (Sullivan in D) was sung by a choir of about 100 voices, the organ being supplemented by some brass instruments. The Organist (Mr. Duncan Hume) afterwards conducted a performance by 2,000 children.

BRECON.—An Organ Recital was given by Dr. Langdon Colborne, of Hereford, on the 8th ult., at the Priory Church. Pieces by Mendelssohn, Guilmant, Smart, and Wesley showed the capabilities of the new organ, built by Messrs. Hill and Sons, of London. The Recital was varied by some sacred Arias, sung by Miss Mordecai Jones, Miss De Winton, and Mr. Tuckwell.

BURNLEY.—On Whit Sunday, Haydn's Imperial Mass was sung in Brunswick Chapel, the solos being delivered by Miss Horner, Mrs. Horner, Messrs. Burrell and Pollard. A large choir gave due effect to the choruses. The accompaniments were effectively performed by the organ and a string band. Mr. Thos. Pollard was Organist, and Mr. William Graham conducted.——The delegates of the Oddfellows' Society attended a special service in the Parish Church on Whit Sunday, when the ancient edifice was crowded. The service included chiefly well-known and favourite hymns.——Successful Choral Services were sung on the 12th ult., in Bethesda Congregational Church, when Miss Horner was the soprano soloist.

CHICAGO.—The Apollo Musical Club of Chicago, on April 26, gave a performance of Haydn's Creation, under the direction of Mr. W. L. Tomlins, in the Central Hall of that city. The vocalists were Miss Amy Sherwin, Mr. C. Abercrombie, and Mr. D. M. Babcock. A full band and chorus, with Mr. Clarence Eddy as Organist, secured an excellent interpretation of the work.

CHIPPING NORTON.—On Friday evening, May 27, the clergy and choir of the Parish Church met in the Boys' National School for the purpose of presenting Mr. Owen, Organist and Choirmaster of the Church, with the hood which he will be entitled to wear consequent upon his earning the degree of Bachelor of Music (Trinity College, Toronto). Mr. Bliss made the presentation on behalf of the choir, and in doing so referred to the high regard that was felt for Mr. Owen. The Vicar (Rev. G. A. Littledale, M.A.) having endorsed the remarks of Mr. Bliss, Mr. Owen thanked those present for their gift, which he trusted would be the means of cementing the good feeling that had always existed between the choir and himself.

CRAWSHAWBOOTH.—An Organ Recital was given in the Wesleyan Chapel on Tuesday evening, the 7th ult., by Mr. J. E. W. Lord. The programme included pieces by W. B. Gilbert, Guilmant, Lefébure-Wély, Haydn, Mozart, J. S. Bach, Weber, and Mendelssohn.

DURHAM.—A Concert in aid of the restoration of Shadforth Church was given in the Town Hall, Durham, on Thursday, the 9th ult. The great feature of the programme, arranged by Mr. Hilton, of the University, was the glee singing by male voices, the choir being composed of many local gentlemen, including some members of the University. The vocal soli by Messrs. Mace, Rowley, and the Rev. V. K. Cooper were excellently given. Messrs. Gatehouse and Joyce-Barrett, flute and violin respectively, gave their soli in a manner worthy of their reputations. Haydn's G major Trio, for violin, violoncello, and piano, was given with due vigour by Mr. Barrett, Rev. V. K. Cooper, and Mrs. Greenwell. About £10 was handed to the fund.

ENNISKILLEN.—The Church Choir met by invitation, on the 1st ult., at Mr. Arnold's residence, and presented to Miss McKedgne, on the occasion of her leaving the choir and approaching marriage, with a beautiful marble drawing-room clock and lady's dressing case; and, on the 8th ult., the churchwardens, on behalf of the parishioners, presented her with a purse of gold. The Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association also presented her with a silver tea and coffee service.

FARNBOROUGH.—A small but effective organ, containing two manuals and pedals, has been presented to Farnborough Parish Church by Hamilton Fox, Esq. It was opened on Monday, the 13th ult., by Dr. Warwick Jordan, of Lewisham, in the presence of a crowded congregation.

GILLINGHAM.—The tenth Concert of the Choral Society was given in the Lecture Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 1st ult., when Spohr's Cantata God, Thou art Great, and Louis N. Parker's Idyl, Silvia, were performed for the first time in Gillingham. The principal vocalists were Miss Marion Graham, of the Royal Academy; Miss Milford; Mr. J. M. Hayden, of Salisbury Cathedral; and Mr. J. F. Nash, of Bristol Cathedral, all of whom acquitted themselves with credit. An efficient band had been secured, and to it in a very large measure must be attributed the great success of the performance. Organ, Mr. Parker and Mr. Ley; piano, Miss M. Wilkinson. Mr. Ley, the instructor of the Society, conducted the sacred portion of the programme, and Mr. Parker, the composer, conducted Silvia. The chorus deserves great praise, and the performance, taken as a whole, must be classed amongst the best that have been given by the Society.

GREAT BERKHAMPSTEAD.—A Jubilee Service was held on the 22nd ult., in the Parish Church. The Order of Service as appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Service commenced with "Awake, O happy Nation!" composed by J. Munro Coward. The responses were sung to Dr. Bridge's arrangement as used in Westminster Abbey. Sir John Goss's Thanksgiving Te Deum in D (a magnificent setting, composed and dedicated to her Majesty the Queen, and sung at the Thanksgiving Service in St. Paul's Cathedral in 1872, on the restoration to health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales), and a Jubilee Anthem, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher Powers," by Dr. Stainer. The special Psalm was sung to Chant 67 (Cathedral Chant Book). Hymns 219 and 166 were sung during the offertory, after which the National Anthem, in which the large congregation joined "with heart and voice." After the blessing, Stainer's sevenfold Amen was sung by the choir. Mr. Frank Gatward, Organist and Choirmaster, presided at the organ.

HERTFORD.—The annual Choir Festival of All Saints' Church in this town took place on May 26. In the short service which preceded the performances, "God is a Spirit" was sung as the anthem, and produced a great effect. In place of the usual selection of anthems, interspersed with organ solos, a selection from Haydn's Creation was given. The choruses were sung by the choir of the church, assisted by the Hertford Choral Society, and gave evidence of much careful training. The soloists were Miss Ethel Winn, Messrs. W. H. Cummings, A. Thompson, A. Kenningham, and W. Winn. The whole of the accompaniments were played on the organ by Mr. M. Heywood (Organist of the church), upon whom has fallen the arduous task of training the choir. During the Offertory in the afternoon, Mr. H. Robins played the Larghetto from Mozart's Clarinet Quintet, and in the evening Allegro in F sharp minor (Guilmant). The Festival was a great success, the church being well filled at each service.

HAVANT.—The spring Concert of the Havant Choral Society took place on the 7th ult. Stanford's Revenge, Mendelssohn's Loreley, the Overtures to Der Freischütz and Zampa, with other items, made up a capital programme. The special feature of the evening was the singing of Miss Vinnie Beaumont. Mr. Packham conducted.

HEREFORD.—The Hereford Choral Society gave a performance of Dvorák's Spectre's Bride on Tuesday, May 28, before a large and appreciative audience. The work was rendered in a manner which elicited from the President, Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., the warmest commendations. To the talented Conductor, Dr. Langdon Colborne, Organist of the Cathedral, is chiefly due the praise bestowed on the Society by the frequent and hearty applause. The vocalists were Mrs. Hutchinson, Mr. Banks, and Mr. Ineson. The prima donna sung with her usual care the difficult music allotted to the principal soprano and was much applauded. Mr. Banks and Mr. Ineson severally and unitedly infused considerable spirit into their share of the work. Great credit is due to the members of this Society for the manner in which they discharged their share of a difficult and trying duty in such an exceedingly creditable manner.

HERNE BAY.—A grand Jubilee Concert was given in the Town Hall, on Thursday, the 9th ult., by the Choral Society, conducted by Mr. E. A. Cruttenden, who may be congratulated upon the result. The first part comprised patriotic music, and opened with the National Anthem. Mr. Mackenzie's stirring song, "The Empire Flag," was successfully sung by Mr. Flower, the Society, with a contingent from the Parish Church choir, forming the chorus. The Jubilee Madrigal by Dr. Stainer, entitled "The Triumph of Victoria," was heartily rendered, after which a duet, with harmonium obbligato, "The Queen! God bless her" (words by Miss King, of Belle Vue College, set to music by the Conductor), was ably sung by the Misses Falkenberg and Hollands. "Rule, Britannia" was a fitting conclusion to the first part. Jackson's Cantata The Year opened the second part, the solos in which were sung by Miss Katherine James, Miss Letti Wade, Mr. Page, and Mr. Rhodes. The trio "Now the pale moon," sung conjointly by the lady soloists and Mr. Page, won the only encore that was responded to during the evening. The spirited movement "Christmas comes" brought the Cantata to an end. The applause was great, and the success achieved by all concerned cannot be doubted. Miss Bowes, in her arduous and difficult position as accompanist, was all that could possibly be desired. Mr. Cyril Scott rendered valuable assistance at the American organ.——The Whit-Sunday services at the Parish Church were of a very bright and festal character, the whole of the music being excellently rendered by the choir. The Proper Psalms were sung, in the morning, to chants by Cruttenden and Cutler, and in the evening by Attwood and Beethoven. The Te Deum was by H. J. H. Sumner, and the Cantate and Deus Misereatur by Cobb. The Anthem at both services was "Thus saith the Lord God" (E. A. Cruttenden). Well known Whitsuntide hymns were chosen, the opening one being "Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire," to Attwood's beautiful setting.

HORSHAM.—On May 31 a Grand Evening Concert was given in the Assembly Room, in aid of the Cricket Club. The room was crowded in every part. The chief features of the programme were the two solos, "Heaven and earth" (Pinsuti) and "Will he come" (Sullivan), sung by Madame Edith Wynne, both of which were loudly applauded and encored, Madame Wynne showing that she retains all her well-known abilities and skill of pleasing the audience. The other artists were Miss Marion Severn, Miss Medora Gunning, Miss Stevenson, Miss R. Stevenson, Mrs. G. Henderson, Miss E. Allcard, Miss R. Sharp, Mr. Albert M. Hirschfeld, and Mr. Edgar Barnes, The Organist of St. Mark's Church, Mr. Arthur T. Harms, acted as accompanist.

INVERNESS.—The Philharmonic Society of Inverness gave its nineteenth Choral Concert in the Music Hall, on May 25, on which occasion the following works were performed:—Sullivan's Cantata On Shore and Sea and his madrigal "Brightly dawns"; Pearson's part-song "The Iron Founders"; Gounod's March Romaine and adaptation of Bach's first Prelude for soprano solo (Ave Maria), with accompaniment for violin, violoncello, organ, and piano; Poniatowski's "Yeoman's Wedding Song"; Roeckel's contralto song "Angus Macdonald"; and the programme concluded with Verdi's "Anvil Chorus" from Trovatore. The performance was an enjoyable one. Mr. F. H. Whitehead, A.C.O., (Organist of the Parish Church of Elgin), conducted, and the accompaniments were contributed by a local orchestra of about a dozen instruments.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT, N.B.—A very interesting Organ Recital, varied with anthems and hymns by the choir, was given on the 10th ult., by Mr. J. F. Kaltofen, Organist, in the Parish Church, assisted by Mr. James McEwen, the principal items of the programme being Meyerbeer's Coronation March (organ duet), the Hymn for the Queen (from the Moravian Hymnal), Rink's Variations on "God save the Queen" (Mr. Kaltofen), Clark's Offertoire in G (Mr. McEwen), and the latter part of Handel's Coronation Anthem as an organ duet.

LAUNCESTON, CORNWALL.—The sixteenth Annual Festival of the Launceston District Association of Church Choirs took place on Tuesday, the 14th ult., in the Parish Church. The music was Hymns 395, 438, 219, 220, and 296 from Ancient and Modern Hymnal; Festal Responses (Tallis); Special Psalms 24, 47, 108 from settings in Psalter Ancient and Modern; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (Langran) in E flat; Anthem, "O come let us worship" (Mendelssohn). The service was admirably rendered throughout and afforded undeniable testimony to the value of the work of the association in training the choirs in union to such a state of proficiency. Mr. Dalby, the Association Choirmaster, presided at the organ.

LENZIE UNION CHURCH.—A new Organ, by Messrs. J. and A. Mirelees, of Glasgow, has replaced the harmonium hitherto employed in assisting the service of praise. On May 27 its completion and opening was celebrated by a musical Recital in the Church, by Mr. Thomas Berry (Glasgow). Mr. E. B. Cox, Organist to the congregation, acted as Conductor of the choral music. The programme consisted of anthems, songs, and solos, by Macfarren, Mozart, &c., with an anthem composed for the occasion by Mr. Cox. The programme was executed with remarkable skill and taste, and the audience was at once sympathetic and appreciative.

LLANDUDNO.—The Pier Concerts have been continued with considerable success, having in regard the fact that the season is yet young, and that watering-places will not be anything like full until after the 21st. The performance of sacred music on Sunday evening, the 13th ult., was enjoyed by an audience probably of about 800. Miss Bessie Holt, the vocalist, has been quite a favourite. The performances on the harp by Madame Priscilla Frost, of Mr. Chas. Hallé's orchestra, and the harp accompaniments to the songs were both novel and delightful. Here is an admirable opportunity for the Welsh people to hear their national instrument played by one not easy to excel. The performances of the band, with Mr. Epworth as musical Conductor, gave every satisfaction.

MAIDSTONE.—The committee of the Maidstone Subscription Concerts presented to Mr. Burgiss-Brown a handsome salver, a pair of entrée dishes, and a patent combination spirit frame. For some years Mr. Burgiss-Brown has rendered valuable services as one of the hon. secretaries of the Society, and the season just closed has been the most successful of the series. The committee, finding a balance in hand, have adopted this means of paying a graceful and deserved compliment to one who has freely used his exceptional opportunities for the benefit of the Society. The salver bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Mr. John Burgiss-Brown by the committee of the Maidstone Subscription Concerts, in recognition of the valuable services he has so freely rendered, for several years, as one of the honorary secretaries, to the great benefit of the residents of Maidstone and the neighbourhood. June, 1887. The jubilee year of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria."

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Miss Hildegard Werner, assisted by her pupils, gave an evening Concert in the Northumberland Hall, on the 6th ult. Songs and pianoforte and violin pieces were performed by the pupils, and the Mignon String Orchestra, a new local string band, founded and conducted by Miss Werner, performed with great acceptance several numbers. During the evening a great number of prizes, given by the Mayoress (Mrs. B. C. Browne) and Miss Werner, were distributed by the Mayoress to the pupils who had made the greatest progress. Among the most youthful prize winners were, in the pianoforte class, Miss Hildetta Carse, aged ten years; and in the violin and orchestral class, Miss Maggie Smith, aged seven years.

NORTHFLEET.—The members of the Choral Union gave a Concert at the Factory Hall, Northfleet, on May 27. The first part of the programme consisted of Barnett's Cantata The Ancient Mariner, the second part being made up of miscellaneous selections. The chief choruses were excellently rendered. Mr. J. Carter Jenner was the Conductor. The solo parts were rendered with much taste and effect by Miss Tipple, Mrs. Symons, Mr. Maxwell Tod, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail. Mr. Howard Moss accompanied.

OSBERTON.—On the 6th ult. a Concert was given in the saloon of Osberton Hall, in aid of the Jubilee Nurses' Home at Worksop. Miss Howell, of Retford; Miss Rıdal, of Sheffield; Mr. Mackie, and Mr. G. L. Hopkinson were the vocalists. Mr. Ellis, of Oughtibridge, violin; Mr. Wilde, violoncello; Miss Carr, concertina. Miss Clara Linley, of Sheffield, played the piano accompaniments. The Retford Vocal Class, under the conductorship of Mr. Hamilton White, sang part-songs.

PAISLEY ABBEY.—A Service was held in the Abbey on the morning of the 16th ult., to celebrate the fiftieth year of Her Majesty's reign. The provost, magistrates, town council, and officials attended, wearing their badges of office, and there were also representatives from the various corporate bodies and the professions. The Abbey was filled in every part. The service was conducted by ministers of various denominations, and was of a thoroughly national character. The Abbey Choir was augmented by the leading vocalists in the town, the full choir numbering fifty voices, under the conductorship of Mr. James Barr, while Mr. J. Barratt, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster of the Abbey, presided at the organ. As an opening Voluntary he played Handel's Coronation Anthem, "Zadok the Priest," and at the conclusion Meyerbeer's "Coronation March," in masterly style, besides accompanying the service throughout. The Anthem, Dr. Bridge's "Blessed be the Lord thy God," was very finely rendered. Mr. James Fleming sang the bass solo. Altogether, the service was one of the finest ever given in the old Abbey. A free Concert was given in the evening by the Tannahill Choir, in the George A. Clark Town Hall, which was packed. Mr. J. Barratt, Mus.B., presided at the organ, and Mr. J. Roy Fraser conducted.

PARIS.—A grand evening Concert was given on the 6th ult., in the Church Rooms of the American Church of the Holy Trinity, by the gentlemen of the choir, assisted by Miss Hill, Miss O'Rorke, and Mr. Magnus (violin), the items of special note being Mr. Fowles's excellent rendering of "Why do the nations," the duet, "The moon hath raised," by Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Fowles; "The last muster" (Pontet) by Mr. Humphreys; Rondeau "Italiani in Alghieri" (Rossini) by Miss O'Rorke, and the masterly violin playing of Mr. Magnus. The choir was heard to great advantage in several part-songs and glees by British composers, including a male voice part-song, entitled "Good night, beloved," by Mr. Fowles. The Concert was a great success, both musically and financially.

PATELEY BRIDGE.—The annual Festival of the Ripon and Masham Choral Union took place on the 7th ult., at the Parish Church. The united choirs, numbering 186 voices, gave a very efficient rendering of Dr. Bridge's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D, and of Barnby's Anthem, "I will give thanks." The Rev. H. Lunn, Precentor of Ripon Cathedral, conducted, and Mr. James Cryer, of the Parish Church, officiated as Organist.

PELTON FELL.—A new organ was opened here on the 11th ult. by Mr. William Ellis, of Durham, when a Recital of various pieces of music was given to an appreciative audience, each being warmly received, and three of them having to be repeated. The organ, built by Messrs. H. J. Nelson and Co., Durham, is not large, but possesses a very fine tone, and contains the following registers:—Five stops on great, four on swell, pedal bourdon, with couplers, &c.

PORTSEA.—At Portsea, on the 4th ult., a Concert was given at the New Pier, South Parade, which was conducted by Mr. J. Winterbottom. The programme consisted of seven pieces by the string band of the Royal Marine Artillery, and four songs by Miss Clara Dowle.

SOUTHAMPTON.—The sacred Trilogy Redemption, by Gounod, was sung for the first time in Southampton on Tuesday evening, May 24, the performance taking place at Holy Rood Church, by the kind permission of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. The Trilogy was preceded by a short devotional service. Mr. Joseph Ridgway, R.A.M., presided at the organ, and the vocalists were Miss Marie Ridgway, Mr. Lawrence Fryer, and Mr. C. Geddes. Between the second and third parts the Rev. J. Aston Whitlock (vicar) read portions of Scripture appropriate to the occasion. A new version of "God save the Queen" was sung while a collection was made in aid of the church and organ funds.

SOUTHWOLD.—An Organ Recital was given by Mr. Albert E. Bishop on the 24th ult. The programme included works by Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Guilmant, Merkel, W. G. Wood, &c.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Mr. Charles Hallé and Madame Norman-Néruda gave another of their Recitals at the Great Hall on the 18th ult., before a large and distinguished audience. To Madame Norman-Néruda and Mr. Charles Hallé Tunbridge Wells may, in a great measure, be said to owe the cultivation of that taste for the refined conceptions of the great masters of musical art which has gained ground so largely in the town and neighbourhood of late. The programme embraced selections from the writings of Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Wieniawski, and the new Sonata in A of Brahms.

WINDSOR.—At a Concert given in the Albert Institute, Windsor, on Monday, May 23, a new musical setting to the 93rd Psalm, composed by Mr. R. P. Paine, of Windsor, was performed for the first time, and, judging from the applause, its success was assured. Mr. Paine has already composed several musical works, such as The Prodigal Son (a Cantata) and others, but that under notice may be said to be a meritorious composition such as will speedily find favour, because it is not of extreme length. In the design of the work the majesty of the Deity, described in every line in the Psalm selected, has been the chief thought. It is in five movements, the first commencing with a few bars of introduction to a bass solo in C major, "The Lord reigneth." The next movement, No. 2, is a chorus, "Thy throne is established," in the key of G major, and treated partly fugally and partly in pastoral style. A short Symphony, of about twenty-five bars, for horns, in which the emblematical nature of the next chorus, "The floods have lifted up their voice," is foreshadowed. The Symphony and the chorus are in C minor, gradually changing to B major; some parts of the Symphony are repeated in the chorus, and intensity is expressed in gradual rapidity. No. 4 opens with a Symphony of about forty-two bars, and serves to introduce the last chorus, No. 5, "The Lord is mightier than the waters," which reaches its climax in the verse, "Thy testimonies are very sure." This also is written partly in fugata style, in two distinct movements, the first being in triple time and the second in duple time, after the models of the old church style, and a chorus in full harmony brings the Psalm to a fitting close. The bass solo was admirably sung by Mr. D. Sutton Shepley, late of St. George's Chapel, and now of St. James's Chapel Royal, and the orchestra and chorus performed their duties in a fitting manner.

YIEWSLEY.—The Choral Society's last Concert for the season was held on May 26. The programme was miscellaneous, and included songs by Mrs. Andrews, Miss Amy Becket, Mr. Stromquist, Mr. R. Lansmere, and Mr. H. Roy, all of whom were highly successful. Two violin solos by Mdlle. Baudet were executed with such skill and artistic finish as to elicit the most hearty applause. Mr. English was solo pianist, and shared the duties of accompanist with Miss Becket. The glees and part-songs were well rendered, under the direction of Mr. Davies, the Conductor.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. H. Collier Grounds, Organist and Choirmaster to St. George's Church, Perry Hill, Catford.—Mr. Frederic Hodges, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Clonmel.—Mr. G. Denholm Walker, Organist and Choirmaster to St. George's Parish Church, Barrow-in-Furness.—Mr. H. Clough, Organist and Choirmaster to St. James's Church, Taunton.—Mr. John M. Gibson, Organist and Choirmaster to Brunswick Place Wesleyan Chapel, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Mr. H. Harvey Pinches, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Portsmouth.—Mr. G. W. Curtis, to St. Mark's, Cobourg Road, S.E.—Mr. Henry J. Wood, Organist and Choirmaster to the Church of St. John's, Fulham, S.W.—Mr. George R. Ceiley, Organist and Choirmaster to St. George's Parish Church, Gravesend.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Frank Pridmore (Bass), to St. German's Church, Blackheath.—Mr. J. A. Eveness (Alto), to Holy Trinity, Gray's Inn Road.—Mr. Henry A. Hughes, Choirmaster to the Chelsea Musical Society.—Mr. Albert Rayment (Solo Bass), to St. Stephen's, South Kensington.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd ult., at his residence, Great Yarmouth, the Rev. J. P. KNIGHT, aged 75.

On the 8th ult., at Woodlea, Ballard's Lane, Finchley, N., GEORGE DIXON, Mus. Doc., aged 67.

MR. GREGORY HAST
(Principal Tenor, St. Peter's, Eaton Square).
MADAME GREGORY HAST
(Pianist).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., 9, Shipka Road, Balham, S.W.

MR. HERBERT THOMAS (Tympani),
8, The Pavement, Clapham, S.W.

MISS MARIE AMBROISE (Soprano), pupil of Mr. John Stedman—"Sang sweetly, her efforts receiving flattering recognition."—West London Advertiser, June 11, 1887. Letters, 12, Upper Spring Street, W.

MR. HOLBERRY HAGYARD (Tenor) is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. References kindly permitted to Ebenezer Prout, Esq., 12, Greenwood Road, Dalston, N.; Dr. C. Swinnerton Heap (Conductor of the Wolverhampton Festival), Clarendon Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham; John North, Esq. (Conductor of the Huddersfield Festival); August Manns, Esq., Crystal Palace, Sydenham, &c. Engaged: University Musical Society Concert, June 9; Conversazione, 22; Dover, Miscellaneous, 25; Aylsham, July 5; Cheltenham Festival, October 24, 25, and 26; and Keighley "Messiah," December 20; at liberty for Yorkshire engagements, December 21, 22, and 23; Nottingham Philharmonic Society, "Elijah," March 22, 1888. Others pending. For terms, vacant dates, address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. BROUGHTON BLACK (Baritone), St. Paul's Cathedral, requests that all communications be addressed to 71, Reighton Road, Upper Clapton, or the Cathedral.

MR. FREDERIC KING requests that in future all communications respecting Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., be addressed to him at his private residence, St. Fillans, 19, Canfield Gardens, Finchley New Road, N.W.

MR. HENRY CROSS, A.R.C.M. (Certificate of Proficiency for Public Singing, Royal College of Music, April, 1887), BARITONE, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, and Westminster Abbey. Address, Concordia, Manor Park Road, Harlesden, N.W.

SINGING BOYS WANTED. Daily Engagement. Apply, by letter only, stating age and experience, to Mr. Richard Mackway, 60, Alexandra Road, N.W.

DURING THE LAST MONTH

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR.—"The Golden Legend." Adapted from the Poem of Longfellow by JOSEPH BENNETT. Full Score. 52s. 6d.

—— Te Deum laudamus and Domine salvam fac Reginam. For Soprano Solo, Chorus, Orchestra, Organ, and Military Band. (Composed for the Festival held at the Crystal Palace May 1, 1872, in Celebration of the Recovery of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.) Full Score. 25s.

DVOŘÁK, ANTONIN.—"Saint Ludmila." An Oratorio. Written by JAROSLAV VRCHLICKY. The Music composed for Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. With English, German, and Bohemian words. Full Score. 80s.

WINGHAM, THOMAS.—Te Deum laudamus (Latin words). For Solo Voices, Chorus, Orchestra, and Organ. (Composed for the Opening of the new Church of the London Oratory, on the Feast of St. Mark, April 25, 1884.) 1s. 6d.

FOSTER, MYLES BIRKET.—"The Lady of the Isles." A Jubilee Cantata. The Words by CLARA THWAITES. 1s. 6d.

DOUGLAS, H. A.—(in G). Second Communion Service (Missa S. Agatha). 9d.

—— Magnificat. First Tone, first ending (with Diatonic Harmonies). 2d.

STRUTT, RICHARD.—The Responses of the Book of Common Prayer. With Harmonies for Ferial and Festal Use. Holy Communion and Occasional Offices. 3d.

TOURS, BERTHOLD.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Orchestral Parts. 6s. 6d.

WALMISLEY, T. A.—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d.

HOLLOWAY, W. H.—"While the earth remaineth." Anthem for Harvest. 3d.

MUNDELLA, EMMA.—"Through wisdom is an house builded." Two-part Anthem for Treble and Alto Voices. 6d.

STEWART, SIR ROBERT P.—"The King shall rejoice." Anthem. Composed for the Celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee in Dublin, June 21, 1887. 6d.

COOKE, W. H.—"The Heart of this great Nation." Jubilee Hymn. 4d.

MANDER, REV. JOSIAH.—Ten Hymn Tunes. 1s.

MOONIE, JAMES A.—"Jerusalem, my happy home." Hymn (Circa 1565). 3d.

THE HOME HYMN BOOK. Additional Hymns and Tunes included in the Second Edition. 6d.

PAGE, ARTHUR, F.C.O.—"My voice shalt thou hear." Trio for Female Voices. 3d.

CUMMINGS, W. H.—"Victoria." A Four-part Song. 3d.

MÄHLLIG, RICARDO.—"Sleep, darling baby mine." A Lullaby. For Four Voices. (Novello's Part-Song Book, No. 539.) 3d.

—— "God and our country." A Four-part Song for Male Voices. (Novello's Orpheus, No. 204.) 2d.

BARRAUD, F. ALBAN.—"Rest." Song. The Words written by Miss FLORENCE TYLEE. 2s.

N. C.—"The reign of the roses." Song. The Words by LORD TENNYSON. 1s. 6d.

BERGER, FRANCESCO.—Cavatina in F. For Violoncello, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 1s. 6d.

MARTIN, DR. G. C.—Arrangements for the Organ. No. 7. 1s. 6d.

Ela Mater (Stabat Mater) ... ... A. DVORÁK.
Romance ... ... MOZART.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN.

56. Allegro ma non troppo. Communion Offertorium ... H. M. HIGGS 1s. 6d.
57. Prelude and Fugue ... ... ,, ,, 1s. 6d.
58. Mélodie, Prière Pastoral ... ... ,, ,, 1s. 6d.
59. Offertoire in D minor ... ... ,, ,, 1s. 6d.
99. Theme in A ... ...F. W. HIRD 1s. 0d.
100. Maestoso alla marcia ... ... ,, ,, 1s. 0d.

SPARK, DR. W.—"The Organist's Quarterly Journal." Part LXXV. 5s. Pastorale, William Mullineux; Sonata, E. Townshend Driffield; Andante (Evening Song), Edward Hake; Trio, with inversion of the theme (for the organ, or violin, viola, or violoncello), W. Conradi; Prelude, T. Downes.

ADELAÏDE, a new Play, in one Act, founded upon an incident in the life of Beethoven, will be performed for the first time at Mr. W. Poel's Matinée, at the Vaudeville Theatre, Strand, on Tuesday Afternoon, July 5, at 3 o'clock.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL, Edinburgh.—ALTO VACANCY (with Choir Librarianship), £80. Daily service 5 p.m., 2 on Sundays and Festivals. Apply with testimonials (copies) to the Organist on or before 13th inst. Careful training and chances of preferment for a young man.

TENOR (Deputy) is DISENGAGED during August for Sunday duty. Cathedral experience. Address, Deputy 181, Downham Road, Islington, N.

WANTED, TENOR and BASS VOICES. £5 per annum. Apply, Christ Church, Endell Street, W.C., Friday Evening, 7.30.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Moseley Road Wesleyan Chapel, Birmingham. Must have had experience in the formation and training of choirs. Written application only, stating salary required, to Walter Clarke, Cannon Street, Birmingham.

ORGANIST REQUIRED. Two services on Sundays, and one on Friday evenings, with choir practice following. Salary, £26. Testimonials, &c., to Vicar, Holy Trinity, Rotherhithe, S.E.

WANTED, ASSISTANT ORGANIST for Church in a West Central District, to help in Training Boys and to Sing in Choir. Tenor voice preferred. Salary, £25. State age and experience. Address, Organist, 34, Woburn Square, W.C.

DEPUTY ORGANIST WANTED, during month of August, for Church in N.W. district. Apply, Organist, 23, Maitland Park Road, N.W.

EMMANUEL SCHOOL, Wandsworth Common, S.W.—RESIDENT ORGANIST and MUSIC-MASTER REQUIRED for next Term. Qualified also to teach Elementary Latin and Mathematics. Salary, £50, and Pianoforte Pupils. Apply at once to the Clerk, United Westminster Schools, Palace Street, S.W., for form of application.

TO AMATEUR ORGANISTS.—An Organist, holding Appointment in Westminster, would like to meet with a Gentleman who, in return for practice on a Three-manual Organ, would occasionally DEPUTISE for him. L. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANISTS.—WANTED, EXCHANGE of CHURCH DUTIES, &c., during August. Simple Service (or Presbyterian) preferred. X., Gowanlea, Moffat, N.B.

AS ORGANIST or ASSISTANT, within a few miles of Lewes. Small remuneration. Good Organ. Sunday and week evenings. Organist, care of Mr. Austin, Bookseller, &c., High Street, Lewes, Sussex.

ORGANIST.—Can DEPUTISE July to September. Full Gregorian or Anglican. Musicus, 49, Stainforth Road, Walthamstow.

AS ASSISTANT or DEPUTY.—ORGANISTSHIP WANTED. Great musical experience. Can train Choir. F. L. S., 6, Sussex Place, London, S.W.

ORGANIST desires APPOINTMENT, with a good Organ and some opening for Teaching. Excellent testimonials. Cantab., Hoxton Vicarage, near Loughborough.

MR. J. H. MARSH (Pupil of Mr. W. S. Hoyte), late Assistant at All Saints', Margaret Street, and for the last three years Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Peter's, Vauxhall, is open to an APPOINTMENT. References to the Rev. G. W. Herbert, Vicar of St. Peter's, and W. S. Hoyte, Esq. Address, 16, Fentiman Road, S.W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

PRINCIPAL of SCHOOL has VACANCY for Young Lady as ARTICLED PUPIL MUSICAL PROFESSION. Premium required. Miss I. L. Jopling, L.R.A.M., Thirsk, Yorks.

TO VOCALISTS, LECTURERS, &c.—The Educational Department of the Bury District Co-operative Provision Society, Limited, intend to give a Series of CONCERTS and LECTURES during the ensuing Winter Season. The Committee will be glad to receive applications, stating terms and full particulars, with reports of last season's engagements. The Concerts and Lectures will be held in a large hall. The last Season's Concerts had an average attendance of about 800 persons. Address, The Secretary, Educational Department, Market Street, Bury, Lancashire.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC TRADE.—WANTED, a good COUNTERMAN, who can try Pianos and read fairly at sight. Must have good knowledge of Catalogues. Preference given to one who can Tune. Rising salary from £60. Outdoor. Apply, by letter only, giving age, experience, and copies of testimonials, to Walter Phillips, Putney, London.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.
Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.
Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.
Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.
I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.
When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DR. BRADFORD'S
NEW WORKS FOR
Choral Societies and for Church Festivals.

SONG OF JUBILEE
SACRED CANTATA
Composed in celebration of the Fiftieth Year of Her Majesty's Reign.
Vocal Score, Two Shillings.

HARVEST CANTATA
FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

I WAS GLAD
PSALM 122.
Price Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A GOOD TUNER and REGULATOR of PIANOS and AMERICAN ORGANS WANTED, for Country House. State where business was learned and where last employed. A. V., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER, age 30 (seven years with Collard), seeks ENGAGEMENT; whole or part of the week. H., 71, James Street, Camden Town.

BRINSMEAD TUNER requires RE-ENGAGEMENT on S. or S.W. Coast of England. Thorough Repairer. Understands American Organs and Harmoniums. Excellent character and references. Single. Age 27. Address, H. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN TUNER.—One thoroughly competent required by Messrs. Lewis and Co., Shepherd's Lane, Brixton. A good character indispensable.

TRAVELLER will shortly require SITUATION. Six years' experience in Music. Address, Jackson, care of H. Mason, 2, Market Place, New King's Road, Fulham.

WANTED, One or Two YOUNG LADIES or YOUTHS to learn Music Trade and Profession. Premium, 20 guineas. F. G., 57, Powis Street, Woolwich.

WANTED, by a Young Lady, ENGAGEMENT as ASSISTANT in MUSIC WAREHOUSE or ACCOMPANIST. Can read music at sight and play well. Watson, 131A, Mile End Road.

FOR SALE, in healthy Seaside town (North), MUSIC BUSINESS. Tuning Connection, and whole or part Stock. Good opportunity to a first-class Tuner and Repairer. Business well established. Owner about to retire. Address, Orpheus, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SALESMAN (Clerk).—Advertiser has experience in Pianoforte and Sheet Music Trade; also Bookkeeping and French. Good sight Reader. Knowledge of Organ Building. N. H. S., 147, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush.

RUMMENS'
ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT
FOR PIANOFORTES.
FOR THE HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.
ALWAYS READY FOR USE, AT ANY TIME, FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME. NO BLOWIST REQUIRED.

Price, complete, £8 8s. Coll. Org. or any other Pedal Board, detachable—i.e., instantly removed and replaced, 5s. extra.

These Pedals have been before the musical public for some years, and are always recommended by the entire musical profession as a perfect substitute for the Organ for practice. They are the best London make, and guaranteed to stand any amount of use. With Pedal Frame and Seat, French polished to match Piano, they are a positive ornament to any room.

Extracts from a few Testimonials.

DR. STAINER—"For those who wish to study Organ Music in their own homes I know of nothing more valuable than this Pedal Attachment."

DR. MARTIN—"It gives me much pleasure to be able to say that I think very highly of your clever mechanism for applying Organ Pedals to the Pianoforte."

DR. STEGGALL—"I have recommended these Pedals with great confidence, and they have in all cases given perfect satisfaction."

DR. BRIDGE—"A successful invention, and one which will give satisfaction to those who use it."

DR. FROST—"Every organ student who aspires to become a facile pedallist should have a set in the house."

E. H. TURPIN, ESQ.—"In short, I can strongly recommend Mr. Rummens' pedal action and its application to the pianoforte."

ADDRESS—HENRY J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

PIANO.—A full-compass CONCERT GRAND, by WORNUM. Rosewood case. Very good condition. Price £35. G., 60, Fortess Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

GRATIFYING RESULT.—INVENTIONS EXHIBITION.—VIOLINS.—Cremona Varnish in all its lovely imperishable perfection. Characteristics: power, sweetness, transparency. Warranted equal Stradivari. Wood, Blindley Heath, Redhill.

TO ORGANISTS AND VILLAGE CHOIRS.

JOHN GILPIN
(COMIC CANTATA)
BY
GEORGE FOX.
Vocal Score, 2s. 6d. net; complete set of Orchestral Parts, 10s. 6d. net.
New Edition revised.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners Street, W.

HERE ON THE STEPS OF THINE ALTAR. Hymn for a Flower Service. Words by Rev. C. W. STUBBS, M.A. Music by Rev. W. T. SOUTHWARD, M.A. Price 1d.; 6s. per 100.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

O NOBLE QUEEN OF ENGLAND. A Jubilee Part-Song for S.A.T.B. Composed by T. SIMPSON. Price 4d. No choir should omit singing this stirring part-song at any ensuing entertainment or tea-party.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Invaluable to Conductors, Pianists, and Public Entertainers.

THE JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT OF GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.
Price 2s. net. Published at 4s.
Each copy contains the following settings:—
Pianoforte (Showy Arrangement) .. Organ and Harmonium.
" (Simple Arrangement) ...Pianoforte Duet.
Vocal Score. Full Orchestral Score.
These settings may, if required, be all used together. Vocal Score, 1s. per doz. Leaflets, air and words, both notations, 1s. 6d. per 100.
JOHN BULL, 26, Hatfield Road, Hatcham Park, S.E.
 See long Advertisements in Musical Times for May and June, 1887.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
ASHTON, ALGERNON.—March and Tarantella. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 30	10	0
BEETHOVEN.—Cantata on the Death of the Emperor Joseph II.:—
Full Score ... ... net	8	6
Orchestral Parts ... ... ,,	7	0
Vocal Score, with English words ... ... ,,	4	0
BOHM, C.—Northern Romance. For Cello and Pianoforte ...	4	0
—— "Lizzie." Mazurka. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Mountain Echo." For Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Miranda." Study. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— Melodious Air. For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
BRAHMS, J.—Fourth Symphony. Op. 98. For two Pianofortes (eight hands)	40	0
BRUNI, G.—"Arma." Gavotte. For Pianoforte	2	0
—— "Dew Pearls." For Pianoforte...	2	0
DESHAYES, H.—Compositions for the Organ. Book V. net	3	6
DVOŘÁK, A.—Three Rhapsodies. Arranged for Pianoforte. Op. 45 ... ... each	6	0
—— Slavonian Dances. Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by R. Keller. Eight books... ... ... each	6	0
—— Slavonian Dances. Op. 72. Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by R. Barth. Two books ... ... each	12	0
—— Romantic Pieces. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 75 ...	9	0
—— Trio. For two Violins and Viola. Op. 74:—
Full Score	6	0
Parts	10	0
FISCHER, O.—"Love's Message." Mazurka. For Pianoforte. Op. 102	2	0
—— "Absence." For Pianoforte. Op. 110	3	0
—— "Wandersong." For Pianoforte. Op. 122	2	0
FUCHS, R.—"Autumn Leaves." Twelve Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 43. Two books ... ... each	8	0
—— "Miniaturen." Twenty-four Small Pieces. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 44. Two books ... ... each	8	0
GADE, N. W.—Sonata, No. 3, Op. 59. For Violin and Pianoforte	11	0
—— Volkstänze (in the Northern style). Op. 62. For Violin and Pianoforte	11	0
HENNES, A.—Six Pianoforte Pieces for Small Hands. Op. 369 ... ... each	2	0
HOFMANN, JOSEPH.—Six Compositions. For Pianoforte. Two books ... ... each	4	0
LANGE, G.—"Beloved Hour." Op. 371. For Pianoforte ...	3	0
—— "Love's Messenger." Gavotte. Op. 372. For Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Longing for home" ... ... ,, 373 ,,	3	0
—— "Guardian Angels" ... ... ,, 374 ,,	3	0
—— "The Farewell" ... ... ,, 375 ,,	3	0
—— "By mountain brooklet"... ... ,, 376 ,,	3	0
—— "In the country inn" ... ... ,, 377 ,,	3	0
—— "Brian rose" ... ... ,, 378 ,,	3	0
—— "On Alpine height" ... ... ,, 379 ,,	3	0
—— "In the high forest" ... ... ,, 380 ,,	3	0
—— "Bella Venezia" ... ... ,, 381 ,,	3	0
—— "In the fisher's hut" ... ... ,, 382 ,,	3	0
—— "Spring awakes" ... ... ,, 383 ,,	3	0
—— "Musical Box" ... ... ,, 384 ,,	3	0
—— "The Chase" ... ... ,, 385 ,,	3	0
—— "Five Balls"... ... ... ,, 386 ,,	3	0
—— "Elves of the Wood" ... ... ,, 387 ,,	3	0
MEYDER, K.—"Peveril of the Peak." Grand March. For Pianoforte. Op. 120...	3	0
NOTTEBOHM, G.—"Beethoveniana." Second Volume net	27	0
REHFELD, F.—Gavotte. For Pianoforte. Op. 44	3	0
RUBINSTEIN, A.—Two Melodies. For Pianoforte. Easily arranged by B. Wolff ... ... each	2	0
SCHUBERT.—New Edition of Complete Works. Série XIII. Containing the Masses in Full Score. Two Volumes:—
Vol. I. ... ... net	19	0
,, II. ... ... ,,	26	0
SCHÜTZ, H.—Complete Works. Vol. III. Containing Choruses, with Instruments. Full Score ... ... net	20	0
SCHYTTE, L.—"Albumblätter." For Pianoforte	5	0
WAGNER, M.—Ballade. For Pianoforte. Op. 6	2	0
WOLFF, B.—Three Small Pieces. For Pianoforte. Op. 133 each	2	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

CANTATA ON THE

Death of the Emperor Joseph the Second

BY

L. VAN BEETHOVEN.

Full score ... ... net 8s. 6d.
Orchestral parts ... ... ,, 7s. 0d.
Vocal score, with English words ... ... ,, 4s. 0d.

PASSION OF ST. LUKE

BY

J. S. BACH.

Vocal score, with German words ... ... net 3s. 0d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CONCONE'S LESSONS

NEW EDITION

WITH MARKS OF

EXPRESSION & PHRASING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

50 Lessons for the Medium part of the Voice.

40 Lessons for Contralto.

40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone.

The sterling value and great usefulness of Concone's Lessons have been so long recognised and so generally admitted, that their extensive adoption caused, as a natural consequence, the issue of numerous editions in almost every country where the study of the Art of Singing is cultivated. No edition, however, which has hitherto come under my notice, seems to me as correct, complete, and reliable as it should be.

I have endeavoured to rectify this deficiency by adding in the present edition signs of expression and phrasing, where I considered it expedient to do so, completing, and in some cases altering, the breathing marks, and altogether carefully revising the whole work.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JUST PUBLISHED.

ORGAN VOLUNTARIES

FOR CHURCH USE

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST,

MUS. DOC., CANTAB., FELL. COLL. ORG., PROFESSOR OF THE ORGAN AT THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC, &c., &c.

For full particulars of this work, see former advertisements. Subscription Edition (now nearly exhausted) only obtainable from the Composer, Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

SEVENTH LIST OF SUBSCRIBERS.—O., ORGANIST; C.M., CHOIRMASTER; P. CH., PARISH CHURCH.

B. Alty, Esq., O. Christ Church, Walmersley, Bury.
J. Almond, Esq., O. P. Ch., Sefton, Liverpool.
A. Ayres, Esq., O. St. Leonard's, Wallingford.
Messrs. Aylward and Spinney, Salisbury.
Edward Barnes, Esq., Blackburn Street, Radcliffe.
E. Bromell, Esq., O. and C. M. St. Mark's, Victoria Park.
H. H. Beaumont, Esq., Ilkeston.
A. E. Bostock, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Shaw, near Rochdale.
John Brown, Esq., O. St. Peter's, West Bromwich.
F. N. Baxter, Esq., F.C.O., O. P. Ch., Tetbury, Gloucestershire.
Miss Beddoes, O. P. Ch., Hopesay, Aston-on-Clun, Salop.
John E. Bottomley, Esq., Stourbridge.
H. Bradwell, Esq., O. P. Ch., Yoxall, Burton-on-Trent.
Geo. Battersby, Esq., Staveley, Ulverstone.
F. W. Baxter, Esq., O. P. Ch., Linthwaite, near Huddersfield.
W. Tillott Barlow, Esq., O. All Saints', Gravesend.
Mrs. Colonel Brown, O. P. Ch., Basildon, Reading.
Joseph Bennett, Esq., B.A., O. Wesleyan Chapel, Brookside, Louth.
William Billingham, Esq., O. St. Peter's P. Ch., Dunstable, Beds.
Alfred Craske, Esq., O. Wesleyan Church, Upper Tooting.
Sydney C. Coombs, Esq., O. St. James's Church, Ratcliffe.
J. Coulton, Esq., Woodplumpton, Preston, Lancashire.
Robert Chadwick, Esq., O. St. Mary's, Newton Moor.
John W. Cheetham, Esq., O. St. Mark's, Bolton.
Albert Cooper, Esq., O. & C.M. St. Paul's P. Ch., Chorlton-on-Medlock.
W. Cornwall, Esq., O. St. Mary's, Broughton, Stockbridge, Hants.
James M. Cable, Esq., O. Railton Road Chapel, Brixton.
J. E. Cheek, Esq., O. St. John's Church, Uxbridge.
Thos. Crass, Esq., O. P. Ch., Walton, near Wisbech.
A. W. Castell, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Giles's, Northampton.
O. A. Clark, Esq., O. and C.M. St. John's Church, Bury St. Edmunds.
J. Chapman, Esq., High Street, Southwold.
J. W. Denham, Esq., O. Highfield Congregational Ch., Huddersfield.
Miss Desborough, Cambridge.
W. Dawson and Sons, Cannon Street, E.C.
Miss Florence S. Dagnall, O. Holy Trinity, Wealdstone, Harrow.
Walter Davey, Esq., O. Christ Church, Harrogate.
John Dixon, Esq., North Walsham.
F. J. Danks, Esq., O. P. Ch., Much Wenlock, Salop.
Arthur J. Dover, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Michael, Beckenham.
J. H. P. Dean, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Matthias' Church, Salford.
E. G. Dunn, Esq., O. P. Ch., Bradninch, near Collumpton, Devon.
F. A. Eltoft, Esq., O. Congregational Chapel, Oak Street, Accrington.
W. Elstub, Esq., O. St. James's, Heckmondwike.
H. Elwood, Esq., O. and C.M. Highcliffe Church, Christchurch, Hants.
James Edwards, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Peter's Ch., Malvern Wells.
Miss M. E. Edwards, Deal.
Edmond Elford, Esq., O. and C.M. All Saints' Church, Dorchester.
Rev. A. Girdleston Fryer, Ingersley, Shanklin.
Fred. F. Freshwater, Esq., O. Cong. Church, Twickenham Green.
Thomas Lowe Ford, Esq., O. St. Matthew's Church, Stockport.
Miss E. M. Fenwick, Andover, Hants.
J. Firth, Esq., A.C.O., O. and C.M. Trinity Church, Ripon.
T. Grant, Esq., O. Wesleyan Chapel, Frome, Somerset.
J. H. Gallagher, Esq., O. St. James's, Lathom, near Ormskirk.
Miss J. Margaret Gregson, O. St. Stephen's Church, Windsor.
W. Gardiner, Esq., O. P. Ch., Brancepeth, Durham.
William Goad, Esq., jun., O. Trinity Church, Plymouth.
William Carter Gegg, Esq., O. P. Ch., Ironville, Alfreton, Derbyshire.
E. H. Hammond, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Andrew's, Jackson, Mississipi, U.S.A.
Alfred Hunt, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Mary's, Wolverhampton.
H. Holloway, Esq., O. Wesley Chapel, Reading.
William M. Hacker, Esq., O. and C.M. Congregational Church, Old Swindon.
Miss Rose Hayes, O. P. Ch., Marlboro'.
A. W. S. Hanes, Esq., O. All Saints', Kings Lynn.
J. T. Heston, Esq., O. and C.M. Christ Church, Newburgh.
Owain Hughes, Esq., O. Aber Church, Aber, Bangor.
Thos. Hosier, Esq., O. Christ Church, St. Alban's.
J. Henderson, Esq., O. P. Ch., Hunwick, Willington, Durham.
H. Humpherson, Esq., O. and C.M., St. Leonard's, Ribbesford, Bewdley.
Henry Halton, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab., O. and C.M., St. Chad's, Kirkby, Liverpool.
Fred. Hodges, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Queen Camel, Somerset.
S. C. Harford, Esq., O. St. Paul's, Clerkenwell.
C. A. Harris, Esq., O. St. Paul's, Middlesbro', Yorks.
Robert Jamieson, Esq., Upper Kelly Street, Greenock, N.B.
John Jarvis, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Thornhill, Wakefield.
John Knight Job, Esq., O. P. Ch., Bosbury, Ledbury.
Arthur Johns, Esq., Wilkes Street, Spitalfields.
Miss K. A. Kettons, O. Samlesbury Church, Preston, Lancashire.
Joseph King, Esq., O. All Saints' Church, Caledonian Road.
M. Kerr, Esq., Marine Terrace, Margate.
J. R. Kershaw, Esq., O. St. John's, Smallbridge, Rochdale.
E. Lockwood, Esq., O. Salem Congregational Church, Wakefield.
— Lomas, Esq., O. St. Andrew's Church, Dunedin, New Zealand.
S. Lawrence, Esq., jun., O. Hawley Square Wesleyan Chapel, Margate.
William Lamb, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Hetton-le-Hole, Fence Houses.
W. A. Lloyd., Esq, Dep. O. P. Ch., Holywell.
Walter H. Lonsdale, Esq., O. Holy Trinity, Eccleshall.
W. H. Liptrott, Esq., O. St. James's, Bolton.
Isaac Laycock, Esq., O. Christ Church, Oakworth, near Keighley.
Miss C. E. Linter, O. St. Michael's, Teignmouth, Devon.
W. E. Lancaster, Esq., O. P. Ch., Cartmel, Grange-over-Sands.
J. H. Morgan, Esq., King Street, Carmarthen.
Mrs. E. M. Manning, O. Weeley, Colchester.
Chas. H. Moss, Esq., O. and C.M. Christ Church, Belfast.
Jas. Boyd McCallum, Esq., O. South P. Ch., Greenock, N.B.
Jas. M. Mountain, Esq., Asst. O. St. Mary's, Blechingley, Redhill.
J. Marsden, Esq., O. Bolsterstone, near Sheffield.
Metzler and Co., Marlborough Street, W.
Jas. Martin, Esq, O. P. Ch., Camborne.
J. E. Moore, Esq., O. St. Luke's, Ripleyville, Bradford.
S. E. Marriott, Esq., O. St. Katherine, Northampton.
T. Morgan, Esq., Hon. O. St. Martin's, Woolston, Southampton.
Rev. J. F. Morton, Ainstable, Kirkoswald, Cumberland.
G. H. Newnes, Esq., C.M., St. Luke's, Dudley.
W. W. Nelson, Esq., Hensingham, near Whitehaven.
Jas. Newton, Esq., O. Westley Ch., Waterless, Cambs.
Ralph Nobbs, Esq., A.Mus., O. P. Ch., Albury, Guildford.
Geo. Northcote, O. and C.M. St. Thomas's Church, Bethnal Green.
C. H. Ockelford, Esq., Assist. O. P. Ch., Bethnal Green.
Horace Petley, Esq., O. Linden Grove Cong. Ch., Peckham Rye.
J. R. Peel, Esq., O. St. Bartholomew's, Bowling, Bradford.
John T. Pollard, Esq., Partington, near Manchester.
Frank Percival, Esq., Leeds.
E. A. Price, Esq., O. St. Stephen's, Bow, E.
W. R. Pullein, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch. and to Marquis of Lansdowne, Calne.
Geo. H. Powell, Esq., O. St. John's Church, Wolverhampton.
Alf. H. Rickard, Esq., O. Cong Church, Ossett, near Wakefield.
B. J. Rich, Esq., R.A.M., O. Palm Grove Wesleyan Chapel, Oxton.
Alf. Rhodes, Esq., O. Brixton Independent Church, S.W.
Thos. Russell, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Bartholomew's P. Ch., Marsden.
Jas. Rigbye, Esq., O. and C.M. Priory Church, St. Bees.
John Sayer, Esq., O. P. Ch., Kirkby Stephen, Westmoreland.
Miss Shortis, Claremont Road, Cricklewood.
C. Speight, Esq., O. P. Ch., Adlington, Chorley.
Arthur H. Smith, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Tenterden, Kent.
William Sidebotham, Esq., O. St. John's Church, Heaton Mersey, [near Manchester.
Miss Smith, Chetwood, near Buckingham.
Frank Spinney, Esq., F.C.O., Leamington.
J. Simmers, Esq., Panmure Street Congregational Church, Dundee.
W. E. Thomason, Esq., O. and C.M. Wesleyan Church, Handsworth.
C. H. Tenniers, Esq., jun., O. All Saints' Church, Hoole, Chester.
Arthur Thacker, Esq., O. and C.M. Thorney Abbey, near Peterboro'.
Richard Treadwell, Esq., O. St. John's Church, Hildenboro', Kent.
Ignatius Brook Thornton, Esq., O. Birstal, Leeds.
John K. Toms, Esq., A.C.O., O. P. Ch., Wellington, Somerset.
Fred. Tushingham, Esq., O. Eastham Church, Birkenhead.
William Wurr, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., and Holy Trinity, Stevenage.
B. Williams and Co., Paternoster Row, E.C.
— Woodley, Esq., Breakspeare Road, Brockley, S.E.
E. Melville Williams, Esq., Dorking.
Miss E. Wincote, O. St. Luke's Church, Leamington.
Herrap Wood, Esq., F.C.O., O. P. Ch., Market Harbro'.
R. Winter, Esq., O. St. Mary's, Long Sutton, Lincolnshire.
H. Wood, Esq., O. St. John's Church, Denby, Huddersfield.
Walter Wale, Esq., O. and C.M. P. Ch., Erdington, near Birmingham.
Henry Wooldridge, O. P. Ch., Wheatley, Oxford.
F. Whatmoor, Esq., George Street, Hemel Hempstead, Herts.
Thomas Ashcroft Yates, Esq., O. and C.M. St. Mary's, Enniskillen.
T. Yalland, Esq., O. St. Mary's, Fishponds, Bristol.

HARVEST FESTIVAL ORGAN PIECE.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

READY IN ABOUT A FORTNIGHT.

NEW ORGAN PIECE. Price 3s. net.

Come, ye thankful people, come

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST,

Mus. Doc., Cantab., Fell. Coll. Org.

This piece is issued (with illustrated title) as a companion piece to "Hark, the herald angels sing," and consists of an Introduction and thirteen Variations upon Sir Geo. Elvey's popular hymn tune "St. George," which is so well known in connection with that hymn. The Variations are not dependent upon each other, therefore when the whole are not required, a selection of the easiest can be made, and in place of the last the hymn might be sung. It is clearly printed in large clear type (uniform with the "Voluntaries") upon eighteen plates, is profusely fingered and pedal-marked throughout, with full instructions for its proper rendering, is set for a two-manual organ, and the Variations are easy to play.

DESCRIPTION.

Introduction, Theme.—Var. 1, left-hand, 2nd species counterpoint and no pedal; Var. 2, chromatic harmonies; Var. 3, theme in tenor, accompanied by 4th species counterpoint; Var. 4, with independent melody for left-hand; Var. 5, with theme concealed by ornamentation; Var. 6, theme on pedals; Var. 7, with running counterpoint; Var. 8, theme in inner part, and independent melody above it; Var. 9, florid passages for alternate hands; Var. 10, with carillons; Var. 11, with carillons, continued; Var. 12, minor; Var. 13, Alla marcia.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Or of the COMPOSER, Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEM.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

TO BE ISSUED ABOUT AUGUST 1. Price 6d.

Come, ye thankful people, come

A NEW HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEM

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST,

Mus. Doc., Cantab., Fell. Coll. Org.

This Anthem (24 pages) is a setting, for festival purposes, of the popular Harvest Hymn by the late Dean Alford, and in it Sir George Elvey's well-known tune to the same words ("St. George") is introduced in several ways.

DESCRIPTION.

1st part: Original work, consisting of sentences in unison for Tenor and Basses in Chorus (or Bass Solo), then for Trebles and Altos in unison (or Treble Solo), then Tenors and Basses in two-part vocal harmony, followed by Trebles and Altos in two-part harmony, then by full Chorus. 2nd part: Quartet or Semi-chorus, in which "St. George" first appears as a theme for the bass voice, while the other parts sing various counterpoints. 3rd part (a Chorus) gives the theme to the Tenors, while Trebles and Altos sing in unison an independent melody, the Bass also having independent counterpoint. 4th part (which may be a verse if desired) gives the theme to Trebles and Altos in unison, while Tenors and Basses sing in imitative florid counterpoint, then, after a reprise of the first part with its unison passages (or Solo), two-part vocal harmony and chorus, the theme finally appears as a grand unison in which the congregation are to join.

To assist choirs in the preparation of the Anthem, breath marks are given, and orchestral letters, which will save trouble in rehearsal by facilitating reference back to almost any possible starting point, are also given. Choirmasters' attention is also directed to the frequency of the theme in first one part and then another, facilitating the "getting up" by the choir.

For choirs who find the Anthem too long, a curtailed edition of 16 pages, beginning at letter Q, will be issued, price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Or of the COMPOSER, Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1½d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS WITH WELSH WORDS.

CENWCH GÂN O FAWL	J. STAINER.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O PRAWF, A GWEL	Syr JOHN GOSS.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O ARGLWYDD, MOR LÏOSOG YW DY WEITHREDOEDD DI	J. BARNBY.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM, in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE "	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	2d.
O LORD, CORRECT ME	2d

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE in F.

Price 6d.

OFFICE OF THE HOLY COMMUNION IN F.

Price 6d.

ANTHEM, ALMIGHTY GOD, S.A.T.B.

Verse, Bass. Price 4d.

BY

F. H. CHEETHAM.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS BY

T. MEE PATTISON.

MAY DAY (Cantata)	1s. 6d.
A bright and melodious work, strong in choruses, and containing some charming numbers for Soprano and Tenor voices.
THIRTEEN OFFERTORY SENTENCES	4d.
SIX KYRIES	2d.
All these Sentences and Kyries will be found useable, and, although easy, they are written in a refined and graceful style.

Popular Works (published also by Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.)

THE ANCIENT MARINER	2s. 6d.
THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL	2s. 6d.
FIFTEEN INTRODUCTORY and CONCLUDING VOLUNTARIES	3s. 6d.

London: STANNIER and Co., Vigo Chambers, 113, Regent Street, W.

EASY NEW ANTHEMS.

GOUNOD'S

THREE CELEBRATED COMPOSITIONS:

THE KING OF LOVE MY SHEPHERD IS—23RD PSALM.
GLORY TO THEE, MY GOD, THIS NIGHT.
FOR EVER WITH THE LORD.

Each of the above may be had as follows:—Anthem: Vocal Score, with Organ Accompaniment, 2s. net; separate Voice Parts, 2d. each; Song (4 keys), 2s. net; Vocal Duet for s. and c., 2s. net; for M.S. and Bar., 2s. net.

PHILLIPS and PAGE, 43, Kilburn High Road, N.W.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants. s. d.

No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
„ 10.	Cloth boards	5	0
„ 11.	Small edition	3	0
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	6d.
Cantate and Deus misereatur in G	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE OFFICE for the HOLY COMMUNION. Set to music in the key of F by GEORGE KETT. Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW ANTHEM, WITH VIOLIN OBBLIGATO.

Suitable equally for Parish Choir, Cathedral, or Home Use.

TEACH ME THY WAY, O LORD

Psalm LXXXVI., Verse 11. By W. H. WILSON. "Simple, easy, and effective." Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat)	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A)	6d.
Bridge, Dr. J. F. (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A)	6d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat)	6d.
Faning, Eaton (in C)	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C)	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C)	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F)	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F)	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E)	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D)	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C)	6d.	Williams, C. L. (in F major)	4d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and PARKER and Co.

Twentieth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in D. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 6d. Suitable for Festal or general use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VESPER MUSIC, No. 5, now ready. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by W. HAYNES, Organist, Priory Church, Malvern. These Settings have been sung at several Choral Festivals. No. 1, 2d.; Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 3d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN and TUNE for FLOWER SERVICES. Easy and effective. Price 2s. 6d. per 100. By F. G. FITCH.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO PEACE, from the Eirene of Aristophanes, for Soli, Trio, and Chorus. 1s. TWO SONNETS, by Sir PHILIP SIDNEY, for S.A.T.B. in the Madrigal style. 6d. By VYVYAN WALLIS POPHAM. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou." Four voices	3d.
„ "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn—"Sing to the Lord"	1d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	3d.
Cantate and Deus Misereatur in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.

PART-SONGS.

Autumn Song Four Voices	3d.
The Rhine Maiden. „	3d.
Beware „	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN

PSALTER CHANTS

SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET, W., AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET, E.C.

THE PSALMS

BIBLE VERSION

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

LORD, THOU ART GOD

ANTHEM FOR TENOR SOLO AND CHORUS

COMPOSED BY

J. STAINER.

SUITABLE FOR THE INSTALLATION OF A BISHOP, DEAN, CANON, OR PRECENTOR.

Price Eightpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PLAIN SETTING

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

INCLUDING

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE.

BY E. W. TAYLOR, MUS. DOC.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

A FESTIVAL SETTING OF THE

CANTATE DOMINO & DEUS MISEREATUR

In G major for Four Voices

COMPOSED BY

JOHN J. BAILEY,

Organist and Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, Ballarat, Victoria.

Price Sixpence.

Also, by the same Composer

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS

In G major for Four Voices.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

SELECTION FROM "A JUBILEE LYRIC"

LOVE THAT LASTS FOR EVER

WRITTEN BY THE EARL OF ROSSLYN,

AND PUBLISHED BY COMMAND.

Set to Music for Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus

(With introduction, by Her Majesty's gracious permission, of a Choral by H.R.H. THE PRINCE CONSORT),

BY

SIR HERBERT OAKELEY,

LL.D., Mus. Doc., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

ORGAN MUSIC

TWELVE SHORT AND EASY PIECES

Intended for use between Offertory Sentences, Confirmations, &c.

COMPOSED BY

E. BUNNETT, MUS. D.

Price 2s. net.

Also, by same Composer, for Organ,

LARGO IN E FLAT

Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO DR. STAINER.

ORGAN PEDAL SCALES & DAILY STUDIES, by GEO. ERNEST LAKE (including two Themes with varied Pedal Obbligati, containing many of the Passages met with in standard Organ Music). Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co

Fourth Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

	s.	d.
Parts I. and II. ... ... each	1	0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ... ... each	0	4

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS by A. J. CALDICOTT.

Poor Little Tom-ee (just published)...	6d.
Where are you going to, my pretty maid? (just published) ...	6d.
Humpty Dumpty	6d.
Little Jack Horner, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
Jack and Gill	4d.
The House that Jack built, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
The Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The Haymakers. Part-song	4d.
Out on the Waters. Part-song	4d.
Yule. Part-song	4d.
Sleeping Leaves. Glee...	4d.

London: METZLER and Co., 42, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW POPULAR SONGS.

A GOLDEN PROMISE (with Violin and Organ Accompaniments). Key F. Compass C to D. By H. T. TILTMAN.

DAPHNE. Words by Walter Besant. By H. T. TILTMAN.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

New Edition.

COME, FILL, MY BOYS, EACH CUP TO THE BRIM. Part-Song for A.T.T.B. By J. BAPTISTE CALKIN. The second part rewritten in a higher key. Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs, For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.

Part-Song—"The sun has gone down" (S.A.T.B.) ...	2d.
" —"Little Jack Horner"	4d.

(Sung with great success in London and provinces.)

Two-part Songs (S.C.)—"The Robin"	2d.
" —"The Skylark"	2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EMPIRE FLAG

A PATRIOTIC SONG FOR SOLO AND CHORUS

The Words written by

STUART REID AND W. ALEX. BARRETT.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Two Shillings net.

Arranged as a Part-Song, S.A.T.B., 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

'TIS THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER. Arranged by BENJAMIN CONGREVE as Soprano Solo, accompanied by Four-part Chorus. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR MALE VOICE CHOIR.—THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, price 4d.; JUBILEE ODE, price 6d. net., by GEORGE RISELEY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

SONGS.

	POETRY BY		s.	d.
Arise, my love!	ROBERT CROMPTON.	Tenor	1	6
The lover's star	"	"	1	6
Dreaming in the shadow ...	CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D.	Sop.	2	0
The magic harp	"	"	2	0
Hark! sweet bells	EDWARD OXENFORD.	"	1	6
Little Rosebud	"	"	1	6
The cricketer's song	F. T. READ.	Baritone	2	0
Wert thou mine	"	Tenor	1	6
The Woodman	EDWARD OXENFORD.	Bass ...	2	0
That smile of thine	RICHARD Y. STURGES.	Baritone	2	0
The sun and the flower ...	"	"	1	6
Winter and Spring	"	Contralto	2	0

TWO-PART SONGS

(With Pianoforte Accompaniment; for Schools and Classes).

Monarch Winter	W. S. PASSMORE		0	2
The Skylark	R. Y. STURGES		0	2
A School-boy's song	EDWARD LAWRENCE		0	2
The Spring welcome ...	"		0	2

PART-SONGS.

Monarch Winter	W. S. PASSMORE.	S.A.T.B. ...	0	3
May Day	Dr. WOLCOT.	" ...	0	1½
Merrily every bosom boundeth	THOMAS MOORE.	" ...	0	3
Summer is but fleeting ...	EDWARD OXENFORD.	" ...	0	3
Hark! The Nightingale is singing. Serenade.	ROBERT CROMPTON.	A.T.T.B.	0	6
Christabel (Glee)	"	"	0	6

CHURCH MUSIC.

A Collection of Hymn Tunes, Chants, &c.	1	0
Te Deum and Jubilate, in G	0	9

For Four Voices, with Organ Accompaniment.

Te Deum (separately)	0	6
The Nicene Creed, in C	0	4

In free Reciting form, for Four Voices and Organ.

PIANOFORTE PIECES.

Musings. Rondoletto, in G. Op. 20. No. 1	1	6
The Ride. Impromptu, in D. Op. 20. No. 2...	1	6
Evening by the sea. Rêverie in F. Op. 23. No. 1	1	0
Gondolier's Song. Barcarolle, in G. Op. 23. No. 2 ...	1	0
The Merry Heart. Bravura Galop, in F. Op. 14. No. 1 ...	2	0

All the above prices are net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

	Net. s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ... (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	2	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	2	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner...	2	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ... (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)	2	0
THE ZINGARA ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)	2	0
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	2	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)	2	0

PIANOFORTE, &c.

ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition	2	0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook	2	0
MY LADYE BARBARA'S GAVOTTE	2	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 8th Edition	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 12th Edition	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 8th Edition	0	2
THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 10th Edition ...	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 7th Edition	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.)	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee. By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.—COMPLETE LISTS of the MUSIC, arranged in numerical order, may now be had on application, Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the Authority of the Committee of the Royal Academy of Music.

ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.

"In the space of some fifty pages the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals, and scales, rests, time, and abbreviations, and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.

ELEMENTS OF HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.

This work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

SECOND THOUSAND. CLOTH BOARDS, IMPERIAL 8vo. PRICE 3s.

HARMONY & THOROUGH-BASS

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR USE IN CLASSES AND FOR THOSE PREPARING FOR MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

Composer of "The Holy City," "Ruth," "Passion Service," &c.

With fifty new exercises, written expressly for this work by T. Anderton, Dr. Bunnett, F. Cambridge, A. Deakin, A. R. Gaul, Dr. Gower, A. Page, H. Stonex, Dr. Wareing, and Dr. Winn; also examples by Albrechtsberger and Reicha.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Birmingham and Leicester: MIDLAND EDUCATIONAL Co., Limited.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

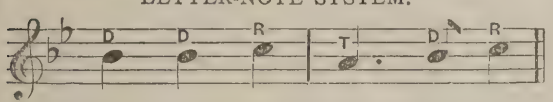
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

IMPORTANT TO ALL TEACHERS OF SINGING!!

THE SIMPLEST and EASIEST METHOD of Learning to SING AT SIGHT from the STAFF is the LETTER-NOTE SYSTEM.



COMBINING ALL THE FACILITIES OF THE NEW NOTATIONS WITH THE ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF THE STAFF.

Select List of Publications:—

ELEMENTARY SINGING MASTER, a complete course of Instruction on the Method. 80 pp., Cloth, 1s. 6d.; paper, 1s.

ELEMENTARY SINGING SCHOOL; being the Songs and Exercises of the above Work published separately for the use of Pupils. In two parts, price 3d. each, in wrapper. In this Work the letters are gradually withdrawn, training the Pupils to dispense with their aid.

THE INTERMEDIATE SIGHT-SINGER, and the ADVANCED SIGHT-SINGER, complete and systematic works of intermediate instruction. Price 3d. each, in wrapper.

FOR GOVERNMENT, NATIONAL, AND BOARD SCHOOLS. The Letter-Note Method has obtained Government recognition, and Letter-Note pupils are entitled to have the Sol-fa initials appended to the sight-singing test supplied by the School Inspector.

THE CODE SINGER, for the use of the different divisions in singing under the New Code.—1st and 2nd divisions, 3d. each, or in penny numbers; 3rd and 4th divisions, 4d. each, or in penny numbers.

The musical practice supplied is very copious. An abridged edition is published under the title of "Code Music," which contains everything absolutely essential for the work of the Code. Also a Teacher's Edition, containing the Code Singer, together with the directions as to examination by H.M. Inspector, model pointing and ear exercises, and hints on teaching. Div. I. & II., 8d.; Div. III. & IV., 10d.

CHORAL HARMONY, in penny numbers, each containing from 4 to 8 pages of Sacred or Secular Part-Music, printed either in Letter-Note or in ordinary Notation.

No. 159. Sing unto God.—R. A. Smith.
No. 178. 'Tis merry in the hall.—Marsh.

Twelve Specimen Numbers, Post-free, 9d.

Easy Cantatas, "Pilgrims of Ocean," 4d.; "Maypole," 3d.

Liberal terms to the Profession. Complete Catalogue free on application.

London: J. ADLEY and Co., Letter-Note Publishers, 19, Sparsholt Road, N.

RECEIVED AND ACKNOWLEDGED BY HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

GRAND CHORAL MARCH

"GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST"

(Soli and Chorus, S.A.T.B., 8vo, 4d.; Piano, 2s.; Organ, 2s. each net),

BY

WILLIAM J. YOUNG

Composer of Popular Part-songs.

I love the merry Springtime	26th thousand	... ...	net 2d.
Gaily through the greenwood	50th "	... ...	" 2d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes...	9th "	... ...	" 3d.
Fairy Revels	12th "	... ...	" 3d.
Forest Echoes	9th "	... ...	" 3d.
The Streamlet and Coming of Spring	5th "	... each	" 3d.
England's glory	7th "	... ...	" 3d.
O Anglia, land of the brave	2nd "	... ...	" 3d.
Where are you roaming?	2nd "	... ...	" 3d.
Who is Sylvia?	2nd "	... ...	" 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

Manchester: HIME and ADDISON, or COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade.

NEW HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

THE THREE MERRY DWARFS

Written by EDWARD OXENFORD.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NINE SACRED DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

HENRY SMART.

No. 1. There was joy in Heaven.	No. 6. Where the weary are at rest.
" 2. The Lord is my shepherd.	" 7. Vox Matutina.
" 3. When brighter suns.	" 8. By Babylon's waters.
" 4. Faint not, fear not.	" 9. Evening.
" 5. The Sabbath Bell.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

VOLUMES I., II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII.,

CLOTH, FOUR SHILLINGS EACH.

VOLUME I.	VOLUME V.
1. Compositions by Bach	13. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
2. Compositions by Bach	14. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
3. Compositions by Bach	15. Compositions by Wollenhaupt
VOLUME II.	VOLUME VI.
4. Compositions by Handel	17. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
5. Compositions by Handel	18. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
6. Compositions by Handel	19. Compositions by Fritz Spindler
VOLUME III.	VOLUME VII.
7. Marches	20. Compositions by H. Goetz
8. Marches	21. Compositions by H. Goetz
9. Marches	22. Compositions by H. Goetz
VOLUME IV.	VOLUME VIII.
10. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.	23. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
11. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.	24. Compositions by J. Rheinberger
12. Gavottes, Minuets, &c.	25. Compositions by J. Rheinberger

16. Scotch Airs (Duets).

List of Contents may be had gratis and Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

No. 5.

TWELVE SKETCHES

FOR

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

BATTISON HAYNES.

Op. 15.

1. Thoughts.	7. Moto Perpetuo.
2. Scherzino.	8. Rustic Dance.
3. March.	9. Idyll.
4. Cradle Song.	10. Polonaise.
5. Song without Words.	11. Arioso.
6. Mazurka.	12. Intermezzo.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN.

No.			s.	d.
1.	Two Introductory Voluntaries ...	George J. Bennett	1	0
2.	Three Andantes	Hamilton Clarke	2	0
3.	Postlude (Christmas)	... Dr. Garrett	1	6
4.	Andante con moto	... Dr. Garrett	1	0
5.	Interlude for Advent	... Oliver King	1	0
6.	Prelude for Lent, Op. 10, No. 2 ... / Fantasia on a Theme by Hermann Goetz, Op. 20	... ...Oliver King	1	0
7.	Three Pieces: (a) Baptism, (b) Wedding, (c) Burial	A. C. Mackenzie (each)	1	0
8.	Voluntary for Christmastide ...	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1	0
9.	Voluntary	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1	0
10.	Short Voluntary for a Time of Sorrow ...	Ridley Prentice	0	6
11.	Short Voluntary for Lent	B. Luard Selby	1	0
12.	Postlude in C Minor	Dr. Steggall	1	0
13.	Concluding Voluntary or Fantasia (Lent)	C. E. Stephens	1	0
14.	Three Canons	W. G. Wood	2	0
15.	Allegretto	... C. H. Lloyd	1	0
16.	Allegretto in D	B. Luard Selby	1	0
17.	Three Pieces: No. 1, Allegretto moderato; No. 2, Andante con moto; No. 3, Processional March ...	H. M. Higgs	2	6
18.	Andante in G	Herbert W. Wareing, Mus. Doc.	1	0
19.	Andante in A and Minuet in A	C. Harford Lloyd	1	6
20.	Allegro ma non troppo	Oscar Wagner	1	0
21.	Processional Wedding March	Henry R. Bird	1	0
22.	Rêverie	B. Luard Selby	1	0
23.	Three Pieces in F, D, and G	B. Luard Selby	1	6
24.	Marche Serieuse	B. Luard Selby	1	0
25.	Six Miniatures	Oscar Wagner	2	6
26.	Three Preludes	John E. West	1	0
27.	Communion in D flat ... ... / Preludium e Fughetta	B. Luard Selby	1	0
28.	Introduction and Fugue	Dr. Gladstone	1	0
29.	Allegretto	Dr. Gladstone	1	0
30.	Andante and Fugue	B. Luard Selby	1	6
31.	Pastorale and Melody in A flat	B. Luard Selby	1	6
32.	Orchestral March	B. Luard Selby	1	0
33.	Sonate	Oscar Wagner	1	6
34.	Sketch in C minor	John E. West	1	0
35.	Fugue in E minor	John E. West	1	0
36.	Minuet and Trio	B. Luard Selby	1	0
37.	Andante in B flat, and Short Postlude ...	B. Luard Selby	1	0
38.	Sarabande	B. Luard Selby	1	0
39.	Postlude in D...	B. Luard Selby	1	0
40.	Andante Grazioso	Dr. C. S. Heap	1	0
41.	Fantasia in C...	Berthold Tours	1	6
42.	Allegretto Grazioso...	Berthold Tours	1	0
43.	Menuetto	Berthold Tours	1	0
44.	Postlude	Berthold Tours	1	0
45.	Fantasia in C minor	W. S. Hoyte	1	6
46.	Four Short Voluntaries	Kate Westrop	1	6
47.	Concert Fantasia and Fugue	W. G. Wood	2	0
48.	Sonata in D minor	Charles H. Lloyd	2	6
49.	Andante in E, Minuet and Trio, No. 2, in A minor	B. Luard Selby	1	6
50.	Postlude in D...	...W. G. Wood	1	0
51.	Allegro in C	...W. G. Wood	1	0
52.	Melody in B flat	Arthur Carnall	1	0
53.	Three Andantes	Hamilton Clarke	1	6
54.	Postlude, in B flat	John E. West	1	0
55.	Allegro, in form of a Minuet	W. G. Wood	1	6
56.	Allegro ma non troppo (Communion Offertorium)	H. M. Higgs	1	6
57.	Prelude and Fugue	H. M. Higgs	1	6
58.	Mélodie, Prière, Pastorale...	H. M. Higgs	1	6
59.	Offertoire in D minor	H. M. Higgs	1	6
60.	Andantino in D	J. Barnby	0	6
61.	Communion and Larghetto	Edouard Batiste	1	0
62.	Prelude and Postlude	Edouard Batiste	1	6
63.	Andante in A flat and Pastorale in F ...	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
64.	Grand Offertorio in A	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
65.	Minuet in the Ancient Style, B flat ...	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
66.	Larghetto in C	C. J. Frost	1	0
67.	Fantasia in B flat	C. J. Frost	1	0
68.	Sonatina in C...	C. J. Frost	1	6
69.	Andante Moderato in A	Dr. Garrett	1	6
70.	Prelude in C minor	F. E. Gladstone	1	0
71.	Allegro Marziale	F. E. Gladstone	1	0
72.	Prelude and Fugue in A minor	Ch. Grædener	1	0
73.	Andante in F	J. W. Gritton	0	6
74.	MarcheTriomphale in E flat and Postlude in F...	Alex. Guilmant	1	6
75.	Fantaisie sur Deux Mélodies Anglaises...	Alex. Guilmant	1	6
76.	Festal March in E flat	Dr. C. S. Heap	1	6
77.	Fantasia on Mendelssohn's Volkslied ...	Geo. Hepworth	1	6
78.	Prelude in G	W. Macfarren	0	6
79.	Religious March in E flat	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
80.	Andante in G and Secular March ...	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
81.	Variations on the Psalm-tune "Windsor"	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
82.	Andante in D...	H. S. Oakeley	1	0
83.	Præludium et Fuga	Sir F. Ouseley	1	0
84.	Prelude in C sharp minor	... W. Parratt	0	6
85.	Postlude in C minor	... E. Prout	1	0
86.	Andante in E flat and Postlude in C ...	... F. J. Read	1	0
87.	Andante Serioso in D minor	... C. Reinecke	0	6
88.	Allegro vivace in D	... C. T. Speer	1	0

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN.—(continued.)

No.			s.	d.
89.	Prelude and Fugue in E minor	C. V. Stanford	1	0
90.	Postlude in C...	H. J. Stark	1	0
91.	Allegretto Pastorale in A and Fugue in D minor	C. Steggall	1	6
92.	Offertoire in F	C. E. Stephens	1	0
93.	Concert-Fantasia in D minor	Sir R. P. Stewart	1	6
94.	Fugato in C	Ph. Tietz	1	0
95.	Pastorale in E flat and Concluding Voluntary, Fugato in G minor	... Ph. Tietz	1	0
96.	March in F	...J. H. Wallis	1	0
97.	Voluntary (Grave and Andante)	S. S. Wesley	1	0
98.	Concert-Fantasia, D minor	Johann Worping	1	6
99.	Theme in A	... F. W. Hird	1	0
100.	Maestoso alla marcia	... F. W. Hird	1	0

(To be continued.)

Nos. 41 to 45, and 60 to 100, from "The Organist's Quarterly Journal."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

Compositions for the Organ

By GUSTAV MERKEL.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Sonata in D minor (originally written as a duet)	3	0
2.	Fantasia in E minor	1	0
3.	Twelve Short Preludes	2	0
4.	Pastorale in G; Adagio in F	1	0
5.	Pastorale in G	1	0
6.	Prelude in G; Triple Fugue in G minor; Postludium; Andantino	1	0
7.	Moderato in F; Pastorale in A; Pastorale in D	1	0
8.	Allegretto in A; Allegro in D	1	0
9.	Overture in C minor	1	0
10.	Three Short Pieces: (a) Andantino in G, (b) Allegro in C, (c) Allegro in D; Prelude in E flat	1	0
11.	Three Pieces: (a) Andante in B flat, (b) Allegretto in D, (c) Andante in G	2	0
12.	Ten Preludes	2	0
13.	Fantasia in D...	1	6
14.	Two Preludes (B flat and G)	1	0
15.	Marche Religieuse	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

Compositions for the Organ

By J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Andante (varied)	1	0
2.	Hommage à Mozart ... ... / Choral Fugue...	2	0
3.	Marche Religieuse ... ... / Allegretto	2	0
4.	Andante espressivo ... ... / Organ Study on Pleyel's Hymn-Tune ... ... / Hommage à Haydn	2	0
5.	Allegretto Religioso... ... ... / Minuet and Trio	2	0
6.	Festal March ... ... / Hommage à Mendelssohn...	2	0
7.	Harvest Thanksgiving March ... ... / Two-part Song without words	1	6
8.	Minuetto (from the Organist's Quarterly Journal)	1	0
9.	Andante con moto	1	0
10.	For Holy Communion	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

Compositions for the Organ

By HENRY SMART.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Choral, with Variations	1	6
2.	Two Trios	1	6
3.	Grand Solemn March	2	0
4.	Andante, No. 1, in G major	1	6
5.	Andante, No. 2, in A major	1	6
6.	Andante, No. 3, in E minor	1	6
7.	Six short and easy pieces, Nos. 1 and 2	1	6
8.	" " " 3 " 4	1	6
9.	" " " 5 " 6	1	6
10.	Air with Variations and Finale Fugato	3	0
11.	Twelve Short and Easy Pieces in various styles, Nos. 1 to 4	2	6
12.	" " " " 5 " 8	2	0
13.	" " " " 9 " 12	2	6
14.	Prelude, in A, and Postlude, in C	1	0
15.	Prelude, in E flat; Introductory Voluntary, in B flat; Andante Grazioso	1	6
16.	Postlude, in D	1	6
17.	Twelve Short Interludes	1	6
18.	March, in G	1	0
19.	Easy Preludes: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in G	1	0
20.	Minuet, in C...	1	6
21.	Festive March, in D	1	6
22.	Postlude, in E flat	1	6

Nos. 14 to 22 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

SERVICES

OF

SACRED SONG

EDITED BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

*1. ABRAHAM.—By the EDITOR.

*2. MOSES.—By the Ven. Archdeacon FARRAR.

*3. ELIJAH.—By the Rev. R. F. DALE, Rector of Bletchington, Oxon.

*4. DANIEL.—By the Rev. A. G. BOWMAN, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Westminster.

5. ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.—By the Rev. E. PRICE, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.

6. ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST.—By the Rev. H. A. COTTON, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.

*7. SIMON PETER.—By J. H. BRAMMALL.

* These are now ready.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

PRIMERS

OF

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ

FREDERIC CHOPIN

ROSSINI

CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

ANDROMEDA

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

The Libretto written by FREDERIC E. WEATHERLY

The Music composed and dedicated to his friend, C. LEE WILLIAMS,

BY

CHARLES HARFORD LLOYD.

Price, in paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

BRIDAL OF TRIERMAIN

A CANTATA

The words adapted from Sir WALTER SCOTT

The Music composed by

FREDERICK CORDER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE WATER-LILY

FOR CHORUS OF MALE VOICES, TENOR SOLO, AND ORCHESTRA

The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK

COMPOSED BY HERMANN GOETZ.

Octavo, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE LONGBEARD'S SAGA

CHORUS FOR MALE VOICES.

Words from CHARLES KINGSLEY'S "Hypatia."

MUSIC BY

CHAS. H. LLOYD.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR SACRED DUETS

FOR SOPRANO VOICES

COMPOSED BY

WILLIAM STERNDALE BENNETT.

No. 1. Remember now thy Creator.
" 2. Do no evil.
" 3. And who is he that will harm you?
" 4. Cast thy bread upon the waters.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

Cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR

SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING,

Pianist to Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne).

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. By vale and hill.
" 2. The Skylark.
" 3. Sweet content.
No. 4. To Daffodils.
" 5. Twilight.
" 6. Waiting and meeting.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

FREDERICK H. COWEN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. Echoes.
" 2. Cleansing Fires.
" 3. Violets.
No. 4. A thought of home at sea.
" 5. What the birds say.
" 6. Linger, oh gentle Time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

FOR LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling; or, singly, twopence each.

No. 1. To Sea!
" 2. If hope were but a fairy.
" 3. The willow and its lesson.
" 4. The Promised Land.
No. 5. Song should breathe of scents and flowers.
" 6. March.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS OF THE FOREST

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

Poetry by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY JOHN KINROSS.

OP. 10.

Price 1s.; or, singly:—

1. Early Morning ... ... 3d.
2. Hunter's Song ... ... 3d.
3. Merry Songsters ... ... 3d.
4. Flow'rets fair ... ... 3d.
5. The Waterfall ... ... 3d.
6. Shades of Night ... ... 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOLEMN MARCH

FROM

THE STORY OF SAYID

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Arranged for the Organ by G. C. MARTIN. Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

WOMAN'S LOVE AND LIFE

A CYCLE OF SONGS, WRITTEN BY

A. VON CHAMISSO.

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN

(Op. 42).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.

Price One Shilling.

MYRTHEN

(MYRTLES)

A CIRCLE OF SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

Edited and Translated by NATALIA MACFARREN.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

LIEDERKREIS

(TWELVE SONGS)

Poetry by J. VON EICHENDORFF, with Pianoforte Accompaniment

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN

(Op. 39).

Edited and translated by NATALIA MACFARREN

Price One Shilling.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March.
" 2. War March of the Priests.
No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
" 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 5.

TWELVE SKETCHES

COMPOSED BY

BATTISON HAYNES.

 These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE FOREST OF ARDEN

INTERMEZZO AND TANTARRA

COMPOSED FOR AND DEDICATED TO THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

BY HENRY GADSBY.

Full score, 7s. 6d. net; Orchestral parts, 10s. net;
Pianoforte Duet, 4s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION.

THE SEVENFOLD AMEN

BY

JOHN STAINER

INCLUDING

THE DRESDEN AMEN.

Price One Penny.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART ANTHEMS

FOR

LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

No. 1. The Night is far spent ... ... Advent.
" 2. There were Shepherds ... ... Christmas.
" 3. Is it nothing to you? ... ... Good Friday or Lent.
" 4. Why seek ye the living among the dead? Easter.
" 5. If ye then be risen with Christ ... ... Ascensiontide.
" 6. Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard ... Whitsuntide.

Price One Shilling; or, Threepence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBUMS
OF
GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,

BY

FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. I.

THIRTY SONGS

BY

ROBERT FRANZ.

On the hidden wood-path.
Sunset.
Not a star.
Sunset.
Breathlessly the Lake reposes.
In the forest, moonbeamed-brightened.
The Swiss Soldier's complaint.
Rest on me, thou eye of darkness.
At night I see thee with dreaming eyes.
Dreams.
The rose and the lily.
On the sea.
Gently through my bosom flow.
Omnipresence.
Thou art far.
A lifetime wasted.
Lo! he has come.
Autumn sorrow.
Will she come to-day?
Love in May.
Yea, thou art blighted.
The last tear.
Love song.
When my despair is deepest.
Sweetest maid, with lips like roses.
Thinking of thee.
The rose has made sad moan to me.
In Rhine's broad rolling waters.
Forgotten.
Good Night.

No. II.

TWENTY SONGS

BY

FRANZ LISZT.

Mignon's song—"Knowest thou the land?"
The King of Thule.
Peace.
Clara's song.
Who never ate with tears his bread?
Wanderer's night song.
The fisherboy.
The Alpine hunter.
Once and now.
Prayer.
The Loreley.
A flower thou resemblest.
Love's marvel.
The violet.
Flower and scent.
I cherish thee.
The three gipsies.
Question and answer.
Once again I fain would meet thee.
How sweetly sings the lark.

No. III.

TWENTY-FIVE SONGS

BY

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The dewdrops shine.
Like to a lark.
The wood-witch.
Aubade.
Loss.
A message.
Spring song.
In the forest all is growing.
A flower thou resemblest.
The Asra.
Sun and love.
The rose.
Love's presence.
Bend, fairest blossom.
Ah! could it remain thus for ever.
The golden sun is shining.
Be not so coy.
In the forest.
Night.
To Spring.
From a Spanish song book.
Clara's song.
A tragedy.
Morning song.
Budding stands the queen.

No. IV.

TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.
The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The Message of Flowers.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")
Hallow'd night, descend.
Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Thro' the pine-wood.
The summer waves.
Wanderer's Night-song.
Trust in Spring.
The Maiden's Lament.
To Mignon.
The Passing-Bell.
Alinda.
Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
The Fisherman.
On the water.

VOLUME II.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

CONTRALTO VOICE.

CONTENTS.

The Wanderer.
Fisher's song.
The angry Bard.
The unlucky Fisherman.
Old Man's song.
The flight of Time.
Litany for All Souls' day.
The weary heart.
Minstrel's treasure.
Soldier's drinking song.
Sadness.
To the Lyre.
Calm at sea.
Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman.
Passing to Hades.
Comfort in tears.
Death and the Maiden.
Crusaders.
Dithyramb.
Prometheus.

VOLUME III.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR

SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

The Erl-King.
Omnipotence.
Love's unrest.
Rose among the heather.
Sad heart.
The band of roses.
Thou art repose.
Ganymed.
Mignon.
Secrets.
Hark, hark, the lark.
Thee would I greet.
To the beloved one.
Suleika's second song.
Presence of the loved one
Laughing and weeping.
Margaret's prayer.
By the doorways I will wander.
To a brooklet.
To Sylvia.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

DEDICATED TO HER IMPERIAL AND ROYAL HIGHNESS THE CROWN PRINCESS OF GERMANY.

THE

ROSE OF SHARON

A DRAMATIC ORATORIO

FOUNDED ON THE SONG OF SOLOMON

THE WORDS SELECTED FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED EXPRESSLY FOR THE NORWICH MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1884, BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Paper cover, 5s.; Paper boards, 6s.; Cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 2s.

THE TIMES.

"The entire section, commencing with the Sulamite's solo, 'Dark am I but comely,' and ending with her address to the women of King Solomon's harem, 'I charge ye all, daughters of Jerusalem,' may be unhesitatingly classed among the masterpieces of oratorio music. It comprises the gorgeously designed 'Procession of the Ark,' and the poetic 'Dream of the Sulamite,' entirely different from each other in character, but each in its way perfect. . . . Mr. Mackenzie is eminently fitted to become the leader of the rising English school and to do honour to that school as an exponent of high and serious art both at home and abroad."

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"At the close the general verdict was unmistakable; cheer after cheer rang through the hall, while the members of the choir rained down flowers upon the fortunate composer. The Norwich audience thus stamped the oratorio with their approval. They could do no other and be just."

STANDARD.

"I have already alluded to the hearty reception given to Mr. Mackenzie, who richly deserved all the encomiums passed upon him. The knowledge of orchestral combination, the contrapuntal skill displayed no less in the instrumental than in the vocal parts, and, above all, the ease and grace of the melodies, together with the poetic feeling which underlies it, all set the seal of nobility upon 'The Rose of Sharon.' . . . The chorus 'Make a joyful noise' is simply an astonishing piece of contrapuntal ingenuity and skill. Handel or Bach would have been proud of such an exercise as this."

DAILY NEWS.

"It is one of the most important works of its class that has been produced for many years, and will doubtless speedily find wide acceptance."

MORNING POST.

"Mr. Mackenzie has produced a work which will make a distinct mark in his own career, as well as in the history of modern music. . . . It is the most remarkable endeavour of a high character which has as yet been achieved by an Englishman, and as such it deserved the enthusiastic reception which was accorded to it at the conclusion."

DAILY CHRONICLE.

"We are inclined to believe that nothing has been written of late years by any composer, British or foreign, to surpass the second scene of the second part of the oratorio. . . . . The impression made is vastly increased by a second rendition."

ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.

"No work, whether by a foreigner or by a native composer, has ever before drawn such an audience to the Crystal Palace, and the applause with which the oratorio was received showed that the confident expectation of the public had been in no way disappointed."

ATHENÆUM.

"The composer has put forth his full strength, and has not only surpassed everything he has previously done, but in our deliberate opinion has produced by far the finest oratorio ever written by an Englishman. . . . By his new achievement Mr. Mackenzie has placed himself at the head of living English composers, and shown the possession of genius as distinguished from highly cultivated talent."

ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

"'The Rose of Sharon' contains much beautiful and impressive music. The vocal writing—both for the soloists and the chorus—is fluent and effective; the orchestral details being throughout full of picturesque colouring and contrast."

WEEKLY DISPATCH.

"This has been a red-letter day for English music. Among the company of young composers who are striving successfully to raise the musical status of the country, Mr. A. C. Mackenzie may be accorded the foremost place, and he has now gained a conspicuous triumph in the most difficult branch of the art—namely, oratorio."

SUNDAY TIMES.

"It was listened to from the first note to the last, not only with patience and rapt attention, but with a delight which the audience could not at times refrain from showing. The interest of the story, the charm and the grandeur of the music, the excellence of the performance—all combined to impress upon the hearer one simple but decisive opinion, that 'The Rose of Sharon' is a magnificent work, and brings fresh honour to English art and additional fame to its gifted composer."

NORWICH ARGUS.

"The scene of enthusiasm witnessed in St. Andrew's Hall on the termination of Thursday morning's performance has probably never been equalled in the history of the Norwich Festival. . . . Again and again was Mr. Mackenzie recalled to the platform, and each time was the same rapturous ovation repeated. The excited assemblage shouted with delight, and assuredly, we repeat, put in a 'best on record' in the way of festival receptions."

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.
Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Friday, July 1, 1887.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 534.—Vol. 28. Registered for transmission abroad. AUGUST 1, 1887. Price 4*d.*; Post-free, 5*d.* Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5*s.*

WORCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

SEPTEMBER 4, 6, 7, 8, AND 9, 1887.

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 4,

GRAND OPENING SERVICE.

TUESDAY MORNING.—ELIJAH.
TUESDAY EVENING.—Cantata, THE GOLDEN LEGEND, and MISCELLANEOUS SELECTION.
WEDNESDAY MORNING.—Schubert's MASS IN E FLAT, HEAR MY PRAYER, and THE LAST JUDGMENT.
WEDNESDAY EVENING.—THE REDEMPTION.
THURSDAY MORNING.—Cowen's RUTH (conducted by the Composer); HYMN OF PRAISE.
THURSDAY EVENING.—Stanford's REVENGE and MISCELLANEOUS SELECTION.
FRIDAY MORNING.—THE MESSIAH.
FRIDAY EVENING.—CLOSING SERVICE by the THREE CHOIRS.

PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.—MADAME ALBANI and MISS ANNA WILLIAMS, MISS ELEANOR REES and MISS HOPE GLENN; MR. E. LLOYD and MR. BARTON McGUCKIN, MR. BRERETON and MR. WATKIN MILLS.

Programmes, containing full particulars, may be obtained either from Messrs. Deighton and Co.; or Mr. E. J. Spark, High Street, Worcester.

ROYAL EXHIBITION,

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE,

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21 & 22,

GRAND CHORAL COMPETITION

By Choirs of mixed voices, to all comers, of not less in number than 60 nor more than 80 singers.

FIRST PRIZE ... ... 50 GUINEAS.
SECOND PRIZE ... ... 20 GUINEAS.

Adjudicator, HENRY LESLIE, Esq.

Copy of Regulations and full particulars for intending competitors can be obtained on application by letter, marked on cover "Choral Contest," addressed to the Secretary, Royal Exhibition, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Exhibition has already been visited by nearly ONE MILLION PERSONS.

The vast number of exhibits are of more than ordinary interest; the splendid show of guns and gigantic Ordnance, and the model Coal and Lead Mines are unique. The models of Ship Architecture are extensive and complete in all departments. The first Passenger Locomotive in the world stands in vivid contrast by the side of the latest of Express Engines. The boat in which Grace Darling immortalised her name is on view. The Exhibition covers thirty acres, and contains a colossal reproduction of the old Tyne Bridge, with its picturesque houses, thrown across an artificial lake. The Toboggan Slide, Switch Back and Electric Railways, are among the numerous attractions.

ANNUAL CONSTABULARY CONCERT,

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE,

December 14, 1887.

Madame ALBANI. | Mr. CHARLES CHILLEY.
Madame PATEY. | Signor FOLI.

Seats can now be booked on application to Messrs. Hirschman and Co., 153, Pilgrim Street.

POPULAR CHAMBER CONCERT PARTY,

under the direction of Mr. J. OWEN.

Tenor Vocalist:
Mr. H. MOBBERLEY,
Of Leeds and Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Sole Pianoforte and Accompanist:
Miss JESSIE M. HILEY,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violin:
Mr. F. WARD,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violoncello:
Mr. J. OWEN,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

For terms and particulars of Concert Party, please address, Mr. J. Owen, Hamilton Villa, Hampton Road, Birchfield, Birmingham.

THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL MUSICIANS.

EXAMINATIONS, 1887.

The Examinations of the National Society of Professional Musicians are conducted upon the following principles:—

1. That every Teacher should be in a position of perfect equality to the public on the one hand and to the examining body on the other.
2. That two Examiners should be present at each practical examination, upon whose joint decision the certificates should be awarded.
3. That no Examiner should, under any circumstances, examine Candidates or papers from his own section of the Society.
4. That Candidates should be known to the Examiners by their registration number only.

By these means a bonâ fide and thoroughly impartial examination, unconnected with any teacher or educational establishment, is obtained, and the certificates awarded at the Society's Examinations possess a corresponding value.

Examinations will be held at the end of November next in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Nottingham, &c., &c.

Full particulars may be obtained from the Hon. Gen. Secretary, Mr. E. Chadfield, 49, Friar Gate, Derby, to whom Candidates' names and fees must be sent not later than October 15, 1887.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS" (REG.)

Conductor—Mr. JOSEF CANTOR.

Engagements fulfilled, Season 1886-1887:—

Leeds	Coliseum	4 Concerts.
Manchester ...	Free Trade Hall and Y.M.C.A. ...	3 Concerts.
Preston	New Public Hall	3 Concerts.
Halifax	Subscription Concerts	2 Concerts.
Bradford	St. George's Hall	3 Concerts.
Bolton	Albert and Temperance Halls ...	3 Concerts.
Huddersfield ...	Subscription Concerts
Worcester ...	Subscription Concerts
Liverpool	Hengler's Cirque
Bury	Co-operative Hall
Stalybridge ...	Town Hall
Leeds	Literary Society	2 Concerts.
Blackburn	Town Hall

&c., &c.

The répertoire of this Concert Company embraces selections from thirty different Operas, including "Tannhäuser," "Mefistofele," "Nadeshda," "Esmeralda," "La Gioconda," "Irene," "Carmen," "Oberon," "Talismano," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "Lily of Killarney," &c., &c.

The personnel comprises twenty-two Artists, all of whom are thoroughly competent Soloists. Selections are also introduced from the lighter compositions of Balfe, Wallace, Clay, Offenbach, Suppé, Cellier, Audran, and the Gilbert-Sullivan series.

Mr. Cantor is now booking dates for the Autumn and Winter of 1887, and will be pleased to forward full particulars, specimen programmes, &c., on application.

Address, Church Street, Liverpool. Telegrams—"Cantor," Liverpool.

SCHOOL OF ORATORIO AND RECITATIVE,

BURLINGTON HALL, BURLINGTON ST., REGENT ST.

Established 1886, under the direction of ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., and W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon. (Lecturer).

Instituted for the especial training of Vocalists in Oratorio, Cantata, Recitative and Concerted Music, Voice Production and Phrasing.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott, 57, Nevern Square, Earl's Court.

MR. GEORGE J. BENNETT is prepared to receive PUPILS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c. Address, 1, Berners Street, W.

MONS. EUGÈNE GIGOUT begs to announce that he will visit this country during the latter part of October, to give ORGAN RECITALS in London and the provinces. Communications respecting Engagements should be addressed to J. Laudy, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES and others.—MR. HENRY A. HUGHES (Conductor, Beresford Hope P. L. Choir, and Welwyn (Herts.) Choral Society, and Choirmaster, Chelsea Musical Society), is making arrangements for next Season. Address, 16, Burlington Road, Bayswater, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS MARIAN BATES (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Mr. Brook Sampson, Mus. Bac., Beethoven House, Northampton.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby).
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield St., or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS CONWAY (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS HILDA COWARD (Soprano).
For Oratorios, &c., 4, Strafford Road, Twickenham.

MISS ELLA DALY (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., address, Mr. F. W. Holder, Music Warehouse, Hull.

MISS ELLEN ELTON (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 27, Dancer Road, Fulham.

MADAME FARRAR-HYDE (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Grafton Place, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME LAURA HAWORTH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 39, Prospect Vale, Fairfield, Liverpool.

MISS HATTIE HICKLING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. William Shakespeare).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 51, St. Mary's Road, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano),
3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MRS. STANESBY (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late J. B. Welch, Esq.).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 104, Ferme Park Road, Hornsey, N.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano).
MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto).
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MAY LAMBOURNE (Mezzo-Soprano),
St. George's Villa, St. James's Road, Upper Tooting, S.W.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby, and Assistant Professor in her Academy; also Professor in the Hyde Park Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS EVELEEN BRYAN (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 183, Drake Street, Rochdale.

MISS MARY EDYTHS (Contralto)
(Of the Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 2, Argyll Street, W.

MISS SUSETTA FENN (Contralto)
(Silver and Bronze Medalist; also Medal for Piano, R.A.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, and Opera, 9, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

MISS MARIAN McKENZIE (Contralto).
Concert and Oratorio. Business Agent, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE (Contralto)
(Honours Certificate Royal Academy).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).
(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)
For Oratorios, Ballads, Pianoforte and Vocal Recitals, and Musical Lectures, 4, Valentine Street, Norwich. London Referees: Mdme. Vinning O'Leary, 9, Notting Hill Square, London, W., and Miss Selina Quick (Soprano, R.A.M.), 6, Brooklyn Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.
"O rest in the Lord" was rendered by Miss Constance Poock with artistic finish. Norwich Cathedral Popular Musical Services, April 21, 1887.—Vide Press. Vacant dates for Pavilion Engagements, &c., during August and September. Terms moderate.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor)
(Royal Academy and Trinity College Honours Certificates).
For terms and vacant dates, address, Moss Bridge, Darwen.

MR. RALPH DAWES (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Ballads, &c., address, 18, Arlington Park Gardens South, Chiswick, W.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN (the Scottish Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, and his English, Irish, and Scottish Entertainments, address, 62, Berners Street, W.

MR. ARTHUR FOX, A.R.A.M. (Tenor).
For Concerts, &c., address, 20, St. Charles' Square, North Kensington, W.

MR. GREEN-TAYLOR (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, 30, Great Coram St., W.C.

MR. JOSEPH HEALD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 33, Endlesham Road, Balham, London, S.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
"Sang excellently throughout, with great power and genuine art."—Kentish Gazette, May 7, 1887.
Address, The Cathedral, Canterbury.

MR. WILLIAM KNIGHT (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 68, Ryan Street, West Bowling Bradford, Yorks.

MR. J. MELLOR (Tenor),
Eccleshill, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. HENRY BAILEY (Baritone).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, Mill Road, Kettering.

MR. WM. CLARK, L.R.A.M. (Artist, Baritone),
20, Victoria Place, Camp Road, Leeds.

MR. W. J. INESON (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; Quartet also provided. Address, The Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. ARTHUR M. SHORE, R.C.M. (Baritone)
(Pupil of Signori Alberto Visetti and Franco Novara).
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. Has vacancies for pupils for Singing and Violin. 2, Salisbury Terrace, West Kensington Park.

MR. MUSGROVE TUFNAIL (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Harvest Festivals, &c. Open for Sunday engagements. The Poplars, Dartford.

MR. J. H. BARRETT (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 86, Newbey Road, Milnrow, Lancashire.

MR. C. D. COLLET (Bass).
Teacher of Singing, 7, Coleridge Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MR. ALISON LISTER (Basso).
Address, 48, Garfield Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass)
And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. EDWARD MILLS.
Baritone and Bass Parts, &c., 35, Knowle Road, S.W.

MR. HENRY POPE (Bass).
At liberty for Oratorios, Concerts, Opera, &c., 20, Bishop's Road, W

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Huddersfield.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass),
51, Pentonville Road, N.

MISS VINNIE BEAUMONT (Soprano) is now booking Engagements for the ensuing Season for Oratorio, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, Festival Services, &c. Address, Point House, Brigg, Lincolnshire, and Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MADAME GEORGINA BURNS requests that all communications respecting Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88 may be addressed to Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, London, W.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano). For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Engaged September 18; others pending. Address, 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano). Engaged: Ripon July 1; Harrogate, 28; Matlock Bath, August 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6; Darlington, September 30; other dates pending. Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 44, Alexandra Road, London, N.W., or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MISS KATHERINE JAMES (Mezzo-Soprano or Soprano), Medalist and Certificate-holder of the Royal Academy of Music, is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. Address, 33, Knowle Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MISS RICHARDSON (Contralto), Pupil of the late J. B. Welch. (Guildhall references.) Oratorios, Concerts, address, 19, Victor Road, Manningham, Bradford.

MISS MARION BURTON can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88. All communications to be addressed to her business agent, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, London, W.

MR. HENRY BEAUMONT (Tenor) from Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall Concerts, Carl Rosa Opera, Drury Lane, &c., is now booking dates for the coming winter: August 1, Southsea (Miscellaneous); 15, Hastings (Ballads); 18, Eastbourne (Ballads); September 20, Huddersfield Subscription Concerts (Ballads); March 27, Ditto (Bach's "Passion," &c.); October 3, Hastings (Ballads); November 10, Holmfirth ("Elijah"); December 16, Belfast (Ballads and Garden Scene from "Faust"); 17, Dublin, Ditto. Address, 49, Ladbroke Road, W.

MR. RALPH DAWES has REMOVED to 18, Arlington Park Gardens S., Chiswick, W., to which address all communications respecting Engagements should be addressed.

MR. BARTON McGUCKIN begs to announce that he can accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming Season. Address, Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W., or, 270, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, W.

MR. HOLBERRY-HAGYARD (Tenor) is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. Engaged: Bury St. Edmund's, September 25; Cambridge, 29; Cheltenham Musical Festival, October 24 25, 26; Keighley ("Messiah"), December 20; Nottingham ("Elijah"), March 22, 1888; others pending. References kindly permitted to Ebenezer Prout, Esq., B A., 12, Greenwood Road, Dalston, N.; C. Swinnerton Heap, Esq., Mus Doc. (Conductor of the Wolverhampton Festival), Clarendon Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham; John North, Esq. (Conductor of the Festival Choral Society), Huddersfield; Sir Herbert Oakeley, The University, Edinburgh. For terms, address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. REDFERN HOLLINS requests that all communications for Oratorio, Concerts, &c., be addressed to 30, St. Stephen's Avenue, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MR. LESLIE CROTTY requests that all communications respecting Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the Season 1887-88 may be addressed to Mr. Alfred Moul, 26, Old Bond Street, W.

MR. BROUGHTON BLACK (Baritone), St. Paul's Cathedral, requests that all communications be addressed to 71, Reighton Road, Upper Clapton, or the Cathedral.

MR. WALTER E. DAVIS (Bass-Baritone). Holder of Bronze and Silver Medals and two Certificates, R.A.M. For Engagements, or Lessons in Voice Production and English and Italian Singing, address, 23, Balfour Road, Highbury, N.

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY (Baritone) will be out of town until October 1. He is now booking dates for season 1887-88. All communications to be addressed, Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, Hanover Square.

MR. FREDERIC W. PARTRIDGE, A.R.C.M. (Baritone vocalist), can accept engagements for Oratorios and Concerts. Address, 2, St. George's Villas, Beckenham; or N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass-Baritone) is now booking ENGAGEMENTS for the ensuing season, for Oratorio, Classical, and Ballad Concert, &c. Address, The Cathedral, Southwell.

MR. BURGON SWIFT (Baritone) requests that all communications concerning Engagements be addressed to Morton, Bourne, Lincolnshire.

MR. W. H. BURGON, late Principal Bass of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and also of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, Sacred Harmonic Society, &c., begs to give notice that he is now at liberty for Oratorios and Concerts. All communications to 21, Westbourne Park Crescent, W.

MR. LAWFORD HUXTABLE (Bass-Baritone), Pupil of Signor Alberto Randegger, is open to accept Concert and Oratorio Engagements for the coming season. Address, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.; or, 14, Regent Street, Clifton.

MR. FREDERIC KING requests that in future all communications respecting Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., be addressed to him at his private residence, St. Fillans, 19, Canfield Gardens, Finchley New Road, N.W.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass) begs to announce that he is now ARRANGING his DATES for Oratorio, Ballad and other Concerts during the ensuing season, and will be glad to receive early applications for engagements in the same from Choral Societies, &c. His numerous and unprecedented press notices which are now being reprinted, will shortly be ready, and may be had on application to him at 14, Hanover Street, W. Telegraphic address, Iolas, London.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT is now booking ENGAGEMENTS for next season. Terms and press notices on application, 2, Russell Chambers, Bury Street, London, W.C.

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapels Royal, and Miss S. Riley (Mrs. Shepley), Contralto, request that all communications be addressed, 87, Malvern Road, London, N.W.

MR. SAMUEL K. WHITE (Manager and Secretary, Derby Castle, Douglas, Isle of Man) requests that all communications from Vocalists be addressed as above.

33, Denbigh Street, London, S.W.

MR. EDWARD HOLLAND, having been appointed to succeed Mr. J. P. Clarke as Bandmaster to the Scots Guards, begs that all communications, &c., respecting the Band, may be sent to his address as above.

MR. J. BAPTISTE CALKIN removed to 37, Hornsey Rise Gardens, N.

CONCERTS, AT HOMES, DINNERS, &c.—GLEES, PART-SONGS, and SOLOS, at short notice, by high-class Male Voice Quartet. C. R., 8, Plassy Road, Catford, S.E.

BASSOON—Mr. A. KNIGHT (Leeds, Chester, and Worcester Festivals, &c.), having seceded from Mr. Charles Hallé's Orchestra, can arrange dates for next season's Concerts. Principal Bassoon or Contra Fagotto, or for solos. Press notices on application.

MUSICAL AGENCY.—Mr. Knight supplies any number of Instrumentalists for Concerts, &c. Estimates given for Bands. Address, 64, Higher Temple Street, Ardwick Green, Manchester.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TUITION, by CORRESPONDENCE, for the Musical Examinations held by Trinity College, London, the Colleges of Organists, Preceptors, and the Universities. Single subjects taught. Full particulars from James Jennings and Co., Deptford, London.

MISS K. BOUNDY, A.R.C.M., gives LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence. Address, 47, Ladbroke Grove, Notting Hill, W.

MR. ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, &c., by post. 9, Avington Grove, Penge, S.E.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. JOHN GREIG, M.A., Mus. Bac., F.C.O., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and FUGUE by correspondence. Was successful in coaching for Final Mus. Bac., Oxon., 1886. Address, 7, Scotland Street, Edinburgh.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by Post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: Trinity College, London, 1887; College of Organists, 1887; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1887; First, Second, and Final Examinations, with first on list in Final; A.R.C.M., 1887. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

DR. HULTON MIDDLETON, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares Candidates for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Glossop Road, Sheffield.

MR. REGINALD B. MOORE, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., gives LESSONS in COUNTERPOINT, HARMONY, &c., and prepares Candidates for Examinations by Correspondence. Address, Kenilworth, York Road, Exeter.

MR. HENRY PIGGOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS by Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and other branches of the THEORY of MUSIC. Candidates prepared for Musical Examinations. Terms moderate. Alton, Hants.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street Mayfair, W.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON. (1885), and MUS. D., T.C.D. (1887), MUS. BAC., OXON. (1886); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., CANTAB.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (1st Class, June, 1887), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.R.A.M. (1887); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1887), N.S.P.M. (1887); Toronto (1887, 1st Class in Final Examination), F.C.O., A.C.O., &c. More than 260 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by Dr. Allison's Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885, 1886, and 1887. Harmony, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M. in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Latest successes: Mus. Bac., Final, Cantab., 1886; A.C.O. and L.R.A.M. in Composition, 1887. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

PIANO, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT.—LESSONS personally or by Correspondence. Miss Champion, A.Mus.,T.C.L. 7, Weymouth Street, London, W.

YOUNG GENTLEMAN, clever Pianist and Theorist, is open for ENGAGEMENT (home or abroad). Over three years at the Conservatorium, Leipzig. Address, Music, 120, Iverson Road, West Hampstead, N.W.

CONDUCTOR WANTED.—The Belfast Philharmonic Society requires a Conductor. For particulars of duties and terms, apply to the Secretary, 50, Royal Avenue, Belfast.

BAND and CHORUS MASTER WANTED.—The Belfast Philharmonic Society requires a Band and Chorus Master. For particulars of duties and terms, apply to the Secretary, 50, Royal Avenue, Belfast.

ASSISTANT MUSICMASTER.—Mr. J. W. Potter, Organist and Musicmaster at Loretto School, Musselburgh, requires (in October) an ASSISTANT. Salary, £50, with board and rooms, &c. Good opportunity for acquiring experience in teaching and in Oratorio and Cathedral music. Fine choir of nearly eighty voices. The position will only be given to one who can play the Violin well. Candidates must be able to play a plain service and take junior piano pupils. Cello playing an additional recommendation. Outside work might be obtained.

WANTED, in the North of England, in September, a good TEACHER for the VIOLIN (Lady or Gentleman); also one for Singing, a Soprano voice preferred. They would be required to place their entire services at the disposal of the principal of the establishment. Apply, stating qualifications and salary required, to B. C., 40, The Bailey, Durham.

WANTED, SITUATION as MUSIC GOVERNESS in a SCHOOL (Pupil of the late Sir Julius Benedict). Highest references. Address, K. Creech, 38, Park Street, Islington, N.

MR. G. F. H. PARNUM (Member, T. Sol-fa Coll.), Tunbridge Wells, desires ENGAGEMENT as TEACHER of SINGING, CONDUCTOR, ORGANIST, BANDMASTER, &c., in an Institution, or Schools, where whole time is required. For SALE (cheap), a magnificent 19-stop CHURCH AMERICAN ORGAN. Very powerful tone.

TO MUSICIANS and ARTISTS.—Comfortable Rooms (Residential or otherwise) can be had at a moderate rent, in a fine new building, in a central position, close to the Strand. Lighted throughout by electric light and fitted with every convenience. Apply at the Collector's Office in the Hall of 63 and 64, Chancery Lane, W.C.

CHOIR BOY.—WANTED, for Londonderry Cathedral, a LEADING BOY. Must have strong voice, be a fair Reader, and under 14 years of age. The boy will be boarded in a respectable family, and receive a good sound education. Situation is worth £40 a year. Apply to H. Byron, 7, Pump Street, Derry.

WANTED, two LEADING BOYS, for Holy Trinity Choir, Gray's Inn Road. Apply, stating salary required, Organist, 163, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

ALTO WANTED, for All Saints', Ennismore Gardens, S.W. Stipend, £12 to £20; also, TENOR, £12. Address, Mr. F. W. Belchamber, 59, Beauchamp Place, Brompton, S.W.

ALTO WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Lee, S.E. Liberal stipend. Apply to E. Harvey, Weston Villa, Dermody Road, Lewisham.

ALTO WANTED, for Church near London Bridge. Salary, £14 per annum. Must have good Voice, and be able to correctly sing usual Cathedral Service. Letters to Mr. P. W. Cook, 307, Holloway Road, N.

TENOR WANTED, for a City Church. Stipend, £12 per annum. Must be a good reader. Apply, by letter, to Organist, St. Alphage, London Wall, E.C.

CHRIST CHURCH, Hendon, N.W.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Choral Services. Salary, £60. Apply, by letter, to Prebendary Scrivener, Vicarage, Hendon.

DR. JOHN STORER, Organist of Folkestone Parish Church, will have a VACANCY in his house for an ASSISTANT PUPIL. Tuition in return for services. Last pupil took his Mus. Bac. degree, and is now Organist in an important church, with a salary of £100 per annum. Exceptional advantages. Apply Dr. Storer, Folkestone.

BANGOR, North Wales.—WANTED, September next, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, for St. James's Church. One accustomed to boys preferred. Salary, £40 to £45. Apply, Rev. T. Lewis Jones, Upper Bangor.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Parish Church, Bray, Co. Wicklow. Stipend, £60. Fashionable Seaside Resort and good scope for Tuition. Apply, with copies of testimonials, to Rev. T. S. Lindsay, 7, Novara Terrace, Bray.

ORGAN DEPUTY.—Young Gentleman, able to play plain service, is willing to Deputise in return for practice. Country preferred. Neighbourhood of Kent. Musicus, 2, York Road, Tunbridge Wells.

ORGANIST (lately Deputy at St. Peter's, Bournemouth) requires ENGAGEMENT in or near Clifton; Anglican or Gregorian services. Would deputise until post is secured. Address, Alpha, Post Office, Woolcott Park, Redland, Bristol.

MUS. DOC., F.C.O., is open to accept an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Address, M. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY ORGANIST (Church of England) wants ENGAGEMENT, near London. Good references. Address, E. S., care of H. Strong, 119, Hackney Road, E.

ORGANIST can DEPUTISE on Sundays, August 7, 14, and 21. Oxford or Somerset preferred. Address, Organist, Holmwood, Dorking.

WANTED, by Young Gentleman, a SITUATION as ORGANIST or DEPUTY. Good references. Address, Allegro, care of Mr. Morrell, Gold Street, Tiverton, Devon.

ORGANIST is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT, with good Organ and Choral Service. Excellent testimonials, &c. Graduate, Prestwold Vicarage, Leicestershire.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Accessible from Victoria. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

MR. J. H. MARSH (Pupil of Mr. W. S. Hoyte), late Assistant at All Saints', Margaret Street, and for the last three years Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Peter's, Vauxhall, is open to an APPOINTMENT. References to the Rev. G. W. Herbert, Vicar of St. Peter's, and W. S. Hoyte, Esq. Address, 16, Fentiman Road, S.W.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c., blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENT, by a brilliant PIANIST, in Music Saloon or Concert Co. Good references. F. L., Pound Street House, Warminster.

TUNER for PROVINCIAL HOUSE.—WANTED, a Man of good address and first-class references as to sobriety, honesty, &c.; a knowledge of American Organ and Harmonium work necessary. State particulars of references and salary required (permanency to suitable man), to Harmonic, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TUNER WANTED.—A First-class man, steady and reliable. Apply, with references, full particulars, salary required, and photo, to Alderson and Brentnall, 125, Northumberland Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

WANTED, a first-class TUNER and REPAIRER. Must understand Harmoniums and American Organs. References indispensable. F. W. Holder, Whitefriargate, Hull.

WANTED, a thoroughly good and experienced PIANO TUNER and REGULATOR. Should understand Harmoniums and American Organs. If a good pianist, engagements could be given for balls, &c. Apply, with full particulars, wages, &c., to Pigott and Co., Grafton Street, Dublin.

COMPETENT PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED, for the Country. One accustomed to Country work, with a knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs preferred. Apply, J. Gray and Sons, York.

GOOD TUNER and REGULATOR WANTED. Permanency to first-class man. Testimonials (copies) to Wood and Marshall, Bradford.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs. References good. Address, Freeling, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION WANTED, as PIANOFORTE TUNER. Good references as to Tuning, &c. Address, Tuner, Miss Osmond's, Westgate Street, Bath.

SITUATION as TUNER and REPAIRER. Ten years' good reference. Married; aged 32. Apply, R. H., 115, Priory Street, Tunbridge, Kent.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

A GOOD TUNER is open to Quarterly or Monthly ENGAGEMENTS. Town or Country. Advertiser is also willing to purchase a few Tunings within 50 miles of London. A. B., 527, Fulham Road, Walham Green.

TUNER (Collard), certificated, 25, wants an ENGAGEMENT. Save time by sending full particulars to F. Williams, 6, Camden Gardens, Kentish Town.

A YOUNG MAN, with first-class references, who can Tune, Regulate, Polish, or do any Repairing in the Piano in a creditable manner, wishes ENGAGEMENT. Country preferred. Address, F. B. E., 7, Derby Road, Southampton.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER desires two or three days a week. Town or country. By day or piece. W. N., 27, Ferndale Road, Clapham, London, S.W.

REPAIRER seeks SITUATION. Twenty years' factory experience. Moderate tuner. Good testimonials. Apply, Repairer, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

A PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER desires a permanent ENGAGEMENT. Understands ordinary Repairs. Aged 37; married. Address, E. Rimell, 9, Constantine Street, Plymouth.

PIANOFORTE FITTER-UP wants JOB. Town or country. J. B., 7, Allcroft Road, London, N.W.

TO ORGAN BUILDERS.—Wanted, to place a Young Gentleman in an ORGAN FACTORY, where special attention is paid to "voicing." Send particulars to W. P. D., 6, Springfield Villas, New Southgate, N.

WANTED, CLERK. Must be a good Accountant and Correspondent. One able to write Shorthand preferred. Duck, Son and Pinker, Musicsellers, Bath.

ASSISTANT REQUIRED. Must be well up in Small Goods Trade, and able to repair same, and a pushing Salesman. Permanent Situation. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by MANAGER of large Pianoforte and Music Warehouse, similar SITUATION (or Head Tuner). Permanent Situation and good Salary indispensable. Understands all branches of Trade thoroughly (Factory experience). Of good address, and strictly temperate. Last berths, 5, 6, and 4 years. Age 31. Change desired (Colonies not objected to). If possible, personal interview given. Address, Energy, Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, Paris, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,
PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

Catalogues and testimonials Post-free on application.

TO MUSICSELLERS and PUBLISHERS.—RE-ENGAGEMENT desired in Town or Country (Town preferred) by Advertiser. Married; age 24; with 10 years' experience. Total abstainer. Thorough knowledge of Sheet-music Trade and Catalogues. Good Pianist, Reader of music at sight, fair Tuner, and willing to make himself generally useful. No objection to go to America or Colonies (providing passage for himself was paid). Highest references. Address, H. W. Walch, 23, York Street West, Stepney, E.

WANTED, EMPLOYMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by an experienced Organ Builder and Tuner. Can tune American Organs and Harmoniums, and do general Repairs. Address, J. K., City News Rooms, Ludgate Circus, E.C.

SITUATION WANTED, as IMPROVER in First-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by Young Lady, 18. Reads and plays well. 18 months' experience. Apply, C. P. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AS TRAVELLER or MANAGER. Aged 31. Thorough experience. Wide connection. Best references. Moderate salary. Indoors or out. Address, Sheet Music, 66, Hampstead Road, London.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE.—One of the best Businesses in the Midland Counties. A certain fortune for a practical man. Ill-health cause of sale. Cash required about £1,000, which would include Stock, Fixtures, Goodwill, Furniture, Horse, Van, &c. Address, B. M. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE in South of England, principal thoroughfare. Good Tuning Connection, &c. Now in height of season. Splendid opportunity for a man with capital. Favourable terms to an immediate purchaser. Satisfactory reasons for leaving. Apply, in first instance, to H., Brooklyn Park Road, Crouch End, N.

MUSIC BUSINESS to be DISPOSED OF in small Town on South Coast. Particulars of J. J. B., Triangle House, Hackney, London, E.

BUSINESS for SALE.—An old-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, well situated in a main road, W. district, for SALE, owing to the retirement of the proprietor. Principals only treated with. Address, A. Y., 3, Bond Court, Walbrook, E.C.

FOR DISPOSAL, an important and well-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS in a large town on the South Coast of England. For particulars apply to Trustee, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogues on application. Parcels of music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. Peck, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

SURPLICES (12 Men's, 16 Boys'). £8. Will divide. Surplice, General Agency, Bank Buildings, Victoria Street, S.W.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.
(Late of Coventry Street),
WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF
MUSICAL STRINGS
From Rome, Padua, and Naples.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.
No other Address.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

ORGAN (fine-toned). Two-manual, 17 stops, pedal, open diapason. £125. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

ORGAN (Pipe). 7 ft. 6 in. high; decorated front; 7 stops; about 200 pipes. Good Instrument; perfect order. £14 10s. Stoneham, 21, Walterton Road, Westbourne Park, London.

ORGAN. Two Manuals, 17 Stops, Pedal, Open Diapason; 881 pipes; 3 couplers. Now in use at the Parish Church, Moseley, near Birmingham. To be sold very cheap, to make room for larger instrument. Apply, the Vicar, Rev. W. H. Colmore.

ORGAN for SALE.—Two manuals, 8 stops and couplers, bourdon pedals; mahogany case, gilt front. Price only £65. T. R. Willis, 29, Minories, E.C.

FOR SALE, a Three-manual "Father Smith" ORGAN. 26 stops. Size: 17 feet high, 13½ feet deep, 10½ feet wide; 2½ octaves pedals. Bought 14 years ago for £350. No reasonable offer refused. May be removed early in September. To be seen on application to Rev. Maurice Stack, St. John's Vicarage, Isle of Dogs, E.

WANTED, a Second-hand CHAMBER ORGAN. Must have two manuals and pedal. Particulars, &c., send to Mr. B. C. Crossley, Organist and Choirmaster, the Parish Church, Heywood, Lancashire.

CC ORGANS for SALE, or HIRE, or both. One: 2 manuals and pedals, 16 stops, 61 notes, 5 octaves; One: 3 manuals and pedals, 54 notes, 31 stops. Apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick Street, Poplar, E.

TWO-MANUAL ORGANS for SALE. Church or Chapel. 26, 16, 10, and 8 stops. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Manchester, S.W.

FOR SALE, the GRAND ORGAN in the Royal Yorkshire Jubilee Exhibition, Saltaire, suitable for a Concert Hall or large Church, containing four manuals and 44 stops. For full particulars apply to P. Conacher and Co., Organ Builders, Huddersfield.

"ALBANY" AMERICAN ORGANS. Cheapest and best. SNELL and CO., Manufacturers (removed to), 32, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W. Special terms to trade and profession.

HARMONIUM—Two-manual, rosewood, percussion action, by Alexandre, for SALE, cheap. Nearly as good as new. J. W. Warman, 17, St. Thomas's Place, Canterbury.

MADE by an Englishman, English Cremona VIOLINS. Warranted equal to Stradivari in every requirement. Inspection by appointment. Wood, Postmaster, Blindley Heath, viâ Redhill.

GOOD Old CELLO, in case. Splendid instrument. 16 guineas. Wm. Simkin, 18, Peel Street, Runcorn.

FOR SALE.—A fine old VIOLONCELLO. For three generations the property of a well-known Leicestershire county family. Fine tone. Very handsome. Perfect condition. Case and bow. Price £7. A., 14, Granby Street, Leicester.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, Post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

MESSRS. BEARE AND SON
MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,
STRINGS, FITTINGS, &c.,
34, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.
Merchants, Shippers, and the Trade supplied.

BEARE and SON invite an inspection of their unrivalled Collection of OLD VIOLINS, TENORS, CELLOS, and DOUBLE-BASSES. All genuine examples of the celebrated OLD MASTERS, from £5 upwards.
Over Three Hundred Old Instruments from which to select.
Sole Wholesale Agents for James Tubbs's celebrated BOWS.
The only Makers of the New Queen's Model PIANO and AMERICAN ORGAN CHAIRS (as exhibited at the International Exhibitions). Metal tube frames, gilt with the best gold bronze, shaped seats, upholstered to taste from £1 11s. 6d.
TOY INSTRUMENTS and MUSIC, for the Performance of Toy Symphonies, from 18s. 6d. per set, including Music. Lists of Toy Symphony Music and Instruments required, sent on application.
BRASS and WOOD INSTRUMENTS of every kind, at lowest possible prices.
HARPS bought, sold, or taken in exchange.
REPAIRS of every kind of Musical Instrument executed promptly by experienced Workmen.

Newly Revised and Illustrated Catalogue just out.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.
Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.
Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

EUSTACE INGRAM
ORGAN BUILDER,
BURNARD PLACE, HOLLOWAY, LONDON, N.
Tone very sweet, characteristic, and sonorous; reeds smooth, even, and brilliant; action absolutely noiseless, light, and elastic, with most perfect repetition. Unrivalled for standing in tune and repair. Prices most reasonable.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch.—Five Firsts (Gut or Silk) or Two Everlasting Metallic Strings sent Post-free for 13 stamps. Prenzel's PATENT MACHINE PEGS for Violin, Viola, and Cello. These Pegs turn easily; will not slip or get out of order. Sole Agent, J. Dean, 77, City Road, E.C. Established 1843. Price Lists sent free.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
ESTABLISHED 1854.
SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

TYMPANI.—Pair of fine KETTLEDRUMS. Property of a Gentleman Amateur. Price £16. Puttick and Simpson, Leicester Square.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., Post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 14th edition. 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

RUMMENS'
ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT FOR PIANOFORTES.

FOR THE HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

ALWAYS READY FOR USE, AT ANY TIME, FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME. NO BLOWIST REQUIRED.

Price, complete, £8 8s. Coll. Org. or any other Pedal Board, detachable—i.e., instantly removed and replaced, 5s. extra.

These Pedals have been before the musical public for some years, and are always recommended by the entire musical profession as a perfect substitute for the Organ for practice. They are the best London make, and guaranteed to stand any amount of use. With Pedal Frame and Seat, French polished to match Piano, they are a positive ornament to any room.

Extracts from a few Testimonials.

DR. STAINER—"For those who wish to study Organ Music in their own homes I know of nothing more valuable than this Pedal Attachment."

DR. MARTIN—"It gives me much pleasure to be able to say that I think very highly of your clever mechanism for applying Organ Pedals to the Pianoforte."

DR. STEGGALL—"I have recommended these Pedals with great confidence, and they have in all cases given perfect satisfaction."

DR. BRIDGE—"A successful invention, and one which will give satisfaction to those who use it."

DR. FROST—"Every organ student who aspires to become a facile pedallist should have a set in the house."

E. H. TURPIN, ESQ.—"In short, I can strongly recommend Mr. Rummens' pedal action and its application to the pianoforte."

ADDRESS—HENRY J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

GREAT SALE of PIANOS and ORGANS.—In consequence of the retirement of the senior partner of the firm of T. D'ALMAINE & CO. (established 100 years), the entire STOCK is offered for SALE at an enormous reduction in price. Every instrument warranted for ten years, and, if exchanged for a higher class one, full price paid will be allowed for it within three years. Easy terms arranged. After the sale business will be carried on as usual.

The following advertisements will give some idea of the really genuine bargains to be obtained from this, one of the oldest houses in the trade: Students' Piano, full compass, metal plate, &c., 10 guineas; Piano, trichord, full compass, &c., 12 guineas; Piano, steel frame, trichord, céleste pedal, full compass, &c., 15 guineas; splendid steel-frame Piano, trichord throughout, céleste action, full compass, &c., 17 guineas; fine-toned Collard and Collard Cottage, 19 guineas; an Upright Grand (Cottage size), steel frame, overstrung, full compass, trichord throughout, céleste pedal, double check French action, best ivory bushed keys, &c., 24 guineas; a magnificent Upright Grand, double overstrung, by Weidenslaufer, 28 guineas; Upright Grand, by Neiber, 30 guineas; Upright Grand, by Hupfer, of Zeitz, 35 guineas; an ebonised Schreiber Piano, 40 guineas; an Upright Grand Oblique, by Erard, 28 guineas, &c., &c.

American Organs.—Full compass Organ, knee swell, &c., 5 guineas; Organ, 4 stops, knee swell, &c., 8 guineas; Organ, 7 stops, 3 sets of reeds, 11 guineas; Organ, by Karn, 4 sets of reeds, 10 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 13 guineas; Organ, by Estey, 4 sets of reeds, 8 stops, 2 swells, &c., 14 guineas; Organ, by Bell, 4 sets of reeds, 11 stops, 2 keee swells, 15 guineas; Organ, by Bell, 5 sets of reeds, 12 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 16 guineas; Organ, by Dyer and Hughes, 5 sets of reeds, 12 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 15 guineas; Organ, by Story and Clark, 7 sets of reeds, 16 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 20 guineas; Organ, by Story and Clark, 8 sets of reeds, 16 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 26 guineas. A Two-manual Organ, with full compass of pedals, made specially for students, 45 guineas. Illustrations of any of the above Organs or Pianos will be sent on application.

N.B.—It will be seen from the makers' names mentioned above that the instruments offered are of the first quality.

T. D'ALMAINE & CO., 91, Finsbury Pavement, London, E.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.—COMPLETE LISTS of the MUSIC, arranged in numerical order, may now be had on application, Post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Just published.

NEW EDITION OF

FRANZ SCHUBERT'S COMPLETE WORKS

SÉRIE XIII.: MASSES IN FULL SCORE.

		s.	d.
No. 1. Mass in F	net	9	6
„ 2. „ G	„	3	0
„ 3. „ B	„	4	6
„ 4. „ C	„	4	0
„ 5. „ A flat	„	13	0
„ 6. „ E flat	„	12	6
„ 7. German Mass	„	1	6

THE SAME, COMPLETE, IN TWO VOLUMES.

Vol. I.	net	19	0
„ II.	„	26	0

Subscriptions to the whole of Franz Schubert's Works (New Edition) may be received by the Sole Agents for England, NOVELLO, EWER and Co., London.

Recently published.

THE TECHNICS, ORNAMENTATION, AND TONE PRODUCTION IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING

BY

H. GERMER.

Op. 28 and 30.

English Edition, bound in red cloth ... ... net 6s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

PRIMERS

OF

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ
FREDERIC CHOPIN
ROSSINI
CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT.—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1887-8.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

MICHAELMAS TERM COMMENCES SEPTEMBER 26.

Students (professional and amateur) are received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study. The following is a list of the subjects taught, with names of Professors:—

HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT.—Prof. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D., C. W. Pearce, Mus.D., Prof. James Higgs, Mus.B. FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. COMPOSITION.—Frederick Corder. MUSICAL ACOUSTICS (University Lectures).—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B. PIANOFORTE.—Prof. Bradbury Turner, Mus.B., F. G. Cole, L.Mus., G. E. Bambridge, L.Mus., Frederick Corder. ORGAN.—W. Pinney, Mus.B., C. E. Willing, F. G. M. Ogbourne. FIGURED BASS PLAYING, TRANSPOSITION, &c.—Prof. E. H. Turpin. SOLO SINGING.—A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel, C. E. Willing, L.Mus., Walter Bolton. PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT.—C. E. Willing. VIOLIN.—J. T. Carrodus, L. Szczepanowski. VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. DOUBLE BASS.—John Reynolds. FLUTE.—John Radcliff, W. L. Barrett. OBOE.—A. J. B. Dubrucq, W. M. Malsch CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—Ernest R. Lockwood. HORN.—T. E. Mann. ORCHESTRAL CLASS.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—Prof. E. H. Turpin, L.Mus. SIGHT-SINGING.—W. G. W. Goodworth, L.Mus. CHORAL CLASS.—F. G. Cole, L.Mus. VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY (Lectures).—C. E. Armand Semple, M.B., M.R.C.P. VOICE PRODUCTION CLASS (Lectures).—A. Visetti.

There are also Classes in General Subjects for the benefit of those Students of the College who are desirous of improving their general culture or are preparing for the matriculation and other Examinations preliminary to University Degrees and other diplomas in music.

The fee for three Studies (e.g., Pianoforte, Singing, and Harmony) is Five Guineas per Term.

Both Male and Female Students are received, and there is no limit as to age. There are Evening as well as Day Classes, and Harmony and Counterpoint are also taught by Correspondence.

Students of the College are allowed to enter for any of the College Examinations at reduced fees.

Prospectus, forms of application, and all particulars, can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By order of the Academical Board.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

NOW READY.

A SHORT HISTORY

OF

CHEAP MUSIC

AS EXEMPLIFIED IN THE RECORDS OF THE HOUSE

OF

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE FIRST FIFTY YEARS OF THE REIGN OF

HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY

QUEEN VICTORIA

WITH A

PREFACE BY SIR GEORGE GROVE, D.C.L., &c., &c.

AND PORTRAITS OF

VINCENT NOVELLO, J. ALFRED NOVELLO,

AND

HENRY LITTLETON.

ETCHED BY H. R. ROBERTSON.

	s.	d.
Small 8vo .. .. price	2	0
Ditto, on hand-made paper (only 750 copies printed), with proofs of Portraits	5	0
Large paper Edition, limited to 250 copies	10	6

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITED

FOR

DRIVING ORGAN BELLOWS

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's " "
Lichfield "
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).
St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity "
Alnwick (Parish Church).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

NEW HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

THE

THREE MERRY DWARFS

WRITTEN BY

EDWARD OXENFORD.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

PRICE FOURPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

SUITABLE FOR OPENING CONCERTS OF THE ENSUING SEASON.

A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED FOR THE

FESTIVAL CONCERT

HELD AT THE

CRYSTAL PALACE,

JUNE 22, 1887.

WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

(OP. 36.)

"An unaccompanied choral prayer, 'Lord of life, and light, and glory,' rises to a still higher plane. Solidly written, and laden with rich yet not recondite harmonies, this number is likely long to survive the occasion that gave it birth. It shows how well Mr. Mackenzie can write in the broadest style for a mass of voices. The lead-up to the National Anthem belongs to a still higher order of things. Constructed with rare art, it answers to the ideal of preparation for a climax, and works upon the feelings with immense power till 'God save the Queen' comes in as an ultimate expression."—Daily Telegraph.

"The reception of the Jubilee Ode proved unmistakably that it had thoroughly taken hold of public favour, and this is a fact agreeable to note seeing that the work was entirely of home growth."—Standard.

"The work is short and occupies only about three-quarters of an hour in performance, but it is full of interest from the first note to the last, and in its every line displays the thoughtful and the experienced musician."—Morning Post.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
AUGUST 1, 1887.

THE LONDON MUSICAL SEASON.

In making a summary of the events of a past year, and referring to the records of the years immediately preceding, the strong family likeness in the chronicles will not escape the observant reader. Time after time the same names of pieces, places, and persons constantly recurring would tend to show that the process of history making is remarkably slow. The events which have any real effect upon the advance or the retardation of art "seem to forget to occur," and the musical world is busy apparently without profitable result, and occupied seemingly with doing nothing.

One year's work may bear a remarkable likeness to another year's work, except in a few details, yet those very details may serve as the point of departure into regions hitherto untrodden. These are matters which can only be estimated after the lapse of years. The chronicles of last year will seem to be like those of the present when judged by themselves, but when comparison is instituted between the present and a time with a gap of years between, the difference will then be more marked. Time was when the musical season occupied only a short period of the year. It lasted for the most part while the Houses of Parliament were sitting. Foreign singers and players dwelt for a while in London, the opera was the central point of interest, and all other musical matters took their light from its greater brilliancy. Music was dependent upon what was called fashion, and while fashion was good for artists, its influence upon art was somewhat doubtful. The artists were the associates and friends of the leaders of fashion, and music assumed the tone and no little of the manners of society. When fashion withdrew its support from the opera it was thought to be the death blow to art, and the action was lamented accordingly. It was probably only the cause of its entrance into a new and untrammelled state in which it was bound to accommodate itself. It has not yet learned the lesson in its full import, because it still believes in the associations of the past.

The people are only indirectly influenced by musical fashion or by fashion in music. Their love for the art and its exposition is undeniable. They do not hesitate to patronise that which ministers to their taste, or is within the scope of their powers of appreciation. Hence the lack of attraction for them in the Italian Opera, a form of entertainment which requires the exercise of qualifications on the part of the hearer which the majority do not possess. The music, as music, delights the ear. Its purport, as associated with words, is more or less an unrecognisable quality. It does not follow that opera as an entertainment is not liked by the people. The success of the short season when opera was given in English at Drury Lane Theatre proves the contrary. The earnest attention which is paid to the performance of classical orchestral works at the Promenade Concerts may be taken as indicative of the desire to understand the stronger things in music, when the mind is unembarrassed by inappropriate or unmeaning words. These Concerts, with the music halls, are the chief places where music is to be heard in the month of August, and music is an important factor in popular amusements of all kinds. Those who desire to hear music should not be driven to accept the lower forms of art. The time may come when the barriers confining the musical season will be broken down and laughed at, as other time-honoured superstitions have been when deprived of their force and influence.

Men have already begun to smile at the fetichism of the Italian Opera. It was a god set up by the so-called higher classes, for the people to bow down before. They obeyed as in duty bound, but between the periods of enforced reverence and leisure they have contemplated the image, and have found it to be composed of materials not calculated to command even respect. All that was good in it they have never failed to admire; but the principles surrounding it have no charm for the higher senses. These higher senses have asserted their claims to be included in the consideration of the matter, and the effigy is found to represent only indifferently the qualities affirmed to belong to it.

The series of performances of opera in French, at Her Majesty's Theatre, commenced by Mr. Mayer, in October, were not calculated to give the English public a very exalted idea of that form of entertainment. Some of the principal singers, like Madame Galli Marié, Madame Girard, Messrs. Max, Dauphin, &c., were excellent, but the chorus singing was ridiculous, and the band contemptible. The Soldier's Chorus in "Faust" was hissed, and many of the inner parts of the orchestration were entirely omitted. None of the other operas were conspicuous for brilliancy. The intention of alternating classical opera with comic opera and opera bouffe was abandoned after the preliminary trial, and "La Grande Duchesse" reigned undisturbed.

In addition to the difficulties attending the attempt to popularise opera in French, there were others connected with the Italian Opera ventures entered upon later on.

Impresarios have never been able to force ordinary folk into a liking for performances in a language "not understanded of the people." They have tried many ways without permanent success. There is a sentiment akin to contempt in the minds of all reasonable people for a system chiefly connected with Italian Opera which, by its continuance, tends to destroy the aim of true art. This is the star system.

During the past season Italian Opera, which had already been the cause of the disgraceful exhibition of a body of poor unpaid chorus singers begging coppers of the audience, added yet another reason for the application of the clotûre to it. Mr. Mapleson, one of the most enterprising and courageous among operatic managers, after a short season of opera in Italian at Covent Garden Theatre, immediately preceding Signor Lago's season, opened Her Majesty's Theatre with a somewhat indifferent company, and after declaring his intention of giving operas on every night in the week was compelled by circumstances to present opera on an average once a week.

He stated in his advertisements that "few lyric establishments could boast of a history so brilliant as that to which the King's Theatre may lay claim, it having been inseparably connected with the history of Italian opera, not only in this country, but throughout Europe. There is scarcely a great work of lyric art which has not been originally presented within its walls, or a lyric artist of renown who has not appealed to the judgment of its aristocratic patrons."

"It is but natural that an establishment like Her Majesty's Theatre, directed by private individual enterprise and unaided by Government—unlike in all other European capitals—should have experienced vicissitudes of fortune in the course of over 100 years!"

The last vicissitude was exhibited on the 9th ult., when Madame Adelina Patti, who was announced to appear, failed to do so, and Mr. Mapleson invited those who attended the theatre to remain as his guests, when "Carmen" was performed with the best intentions, but with naturally somewhat "maimed rites." He had already paid this "star artist" some £650 for a single performance.

The simple record of the fact tells most forcibly the position to which Italian Opera has arrived in this country. Whether it is the last page in the history of the house and its operatic vicissitudes cannot be said. Neither can it be affirmed whether any further step has been made to popularise this form of art by the simultaneous performances of Italian Opera at two other houses—Drury Lane and Covent Garden. At the first of these theatres Mr. Augustus Harris produced a series of well-known operas, after a fashion which proved that it was still possible to surround many of them with new interest. His genius for stage management helped him to realise some splendid effects in connection with opera. His staging of "Lucia di Lammermoor" brought it out of the region of the common-place and the conventional, while his mounting of "The Huguenots," with the final scenes restored; of "Faust," of "Carmen," of "Don Giovanni," and other works produced, were deservedly admired. At the opening series of performances the audiences had to suffer much distress caused by the efforts of a series of female performers who, though young in appearance, sang with uncontrollable shivers in their voices, as though they were afflicted with octogenarianism. It is not necessary to repeat their names, as they were never heard of before, and they are not likely to be heard of again. His new singer, Miss Arnoldson, made a very successful début, and was welcomed with enthusiasm each time she appeared. With her and Madame Lilian Nordica, Miss Marie Engle, Miss Desvignes, and, above all, Madame Minnie Hauk, Mr. Harris has been able to give excellent representations of operas, for his vocalists of the sterner sex—the two De Reszkes, Maurel, and others whose deeds have been duly chronicled—have been all that could be wished by the most exacting. Mr. Harris has not produced any opera new to the stage; it was not within the scope of his declared intention so to do, but he restored the final scene of the "Huguenots," and introduced the "Walpurgis Night" scene with the ballet into Gounod's "Faust." He began with high prices, but like a sensible man, whose aim was to conciliate the public, his best friends, he reduced his charges for seats, and converted a possible failure into an actual success.

It has been already stated that Mr. Mapleson had a short season of Italian Opera at cheap prices at Covent Garden. This was distinguished by the production of Gounod's "Mirella" and Bizet's "Pêcheurs de Pérles," under the title of "Leila," neither of which created the excitement expected. Madame Nevada introduced "Les Couplets du Mysoli" in Gounod's work, doubtless to compensate for the absence of other music suitable to her voice and style, and the opera was not performed after the original design, but according to the later altered and less interesting version. On the last night of his season (May 7) he gave for his benefit a grand combination performance—selections from "Traviata," "Trovatore," "Leila," and "L'Africaine," the latter with Madame Minnie Hauk and Signor Caylus, who sang his part in French.

When Signor Lago took possession of the house the high prices were restored. His opening night was May 24, and his leading artists were Mesdames Albani, Ella Russell, De Cepeda, Sandra, Medea Mea, Valda, Scalchi, Guercia, Dassi; Messrs. Gayarre, D'Andrade, Figner, and Prevost, a tenore robusto, for whom "William Tell" was revived; Devoyod, Carbone (basso comico), Cotogni, De Sereni, Campello, and Lorrain, with Signor Bevignani as Conductor. Familiar operas were given in a more or less acceptable style, and Glinka's "La Vita per lo Czar," was placed upon the stage for the first time in England.

In the musical as well as in the social and the political world it is the unexpected that always happens. Mr. Carl Rosa, in his English opera season at Drury Lane, brought forward Corder's Opera "Nordisa," which had been originally produced at Liverpool in the previous January, and expected to make a great hit with it, because it was understood to have been written with a view to conciliate popular taste. Success did not crown the effort. The music was in many parts extremely good, but the story is not interesting, and the scenic effects excited feelings the reverse of the intention. The audience was overwhelmed by shreds of paper employed for the snow, and the avalanche brought down dust rather than applause. "Carmen," "Mignon," and other familiar works, in which Madame Marie Roze, Madame Georgina Burns, Mr. Barton McGuckin, and Mr. Leslie Crotty appeared, were the chief attractions of the English season, and "Lohengrin," magnificently mounted by Mr. Harris, to the astonishment of all, brought the largest houses of the season. There is no doubt that if ever operatic performances prove remunerative in England it will be because the works are given in the native tongue.

A little English Opera called "Dorothy," with music by Alfred Cellier, has been running a successful career, and still retains a place among the amusements of London. "Ruddigore," by Sir Arthur Sullivan, has held its own at the Savoy Theatre because of the charm of the music. Each of these works is marked by a degree of originality which the public is not slow to recognise. So-called operas, whose music is a repetition of things by the same writer which have heretofore pleased the public, do not attract in their nominal new forms, and the public soon tire of them.

These operas were designed to minister to the demand for something superior to the ordinary opera bouffe, which has loosened its hold upon public estimation, even as the burlesque has been drowned by the flood of contempt which its own extravagances had let loose.

From operas to oratorios is but a step, and the record of the past season would be incomplete without a special mention of the success achieved by the performances at "Novello's Oratorio Concerts," under Dr. A. C. Mackenzie. "The Story of Sayid," by the Conductor, for the first time in London; Stanford's "Revenge," Dvorák's "St. Ludmila," Sullivan's "Golden Legend," Spohr's "Calvary," Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty," Beethoven's "Choral Symphony," Gounod's "Mors et Vita" and his third "Messe Solennelle," testify to a considerable degree of activity and enthusiasm alike on the part of the director as on that of his splendid band and of his chorus. The performances were in every respect admirable, that of the Choral Symphony especially was magnificent, and a crowning glory to the labours of the choir. Other societies, whose chief labours are directed to the department of Oratorio, such as the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, with Mr. Barnby as Conductor, and the Sacred Harmonic Society, with Mr. W. H. Cummings as chief in command, have done good service. Gounod's sacred trilogy "The Redemption" was given by the former body at the Christmas Concert, and the work awakened an interest at that time hitherto only excited by "The Messiah." Whether this is likely to prove permanent, and Gounod's work be destined to rival Handel's as an exposition of Christmas feelings, may be matter worthy of future note. The Society gave the older Oratorio at the time of Lent, and revived Rossini's "Messe Solennelle" during the same period, without, however, being able to command a large amount of enthusiasm for its peculiarities. Rossini's sacred music is best represented by his "Stabat Mater," although even that is often felt to have more of the character of the stage than the Sanctuary. Some of the most effective music in the "Messe Solennelle" is only a repetition of melodic phrases and harmonies to be found in his other works. Sullivan's "Golden Legend," Hiller's "Song of Victory," and Haydn's "Creation" have also been performed.

The Sacred Harmonic Society, in addition to certain standard works always included in the scheme of its operations, gave Costa's "Eli" and Rossini's "Moses in Egpyt," "works of merit which other bodies studiously neglect." The Concerts secured very good attendances, and the encouraging support of the public justified the Society in promising more extended enterprise next season.

The labours of the lesser vocal societies have not been conducted without spirit, even if here and there evidence is not wanting of errors in judgment. The Bach Choir was thought to go a little out of its way in producing Schumann's "Genoveva," but while it must be admitted that the work is deficient in dramatic interest, it is full of beautiful music. Therefore, as it was not likely to gain a hearing on the operatic stage, amateurs were not unthankful to hear the work in the concert-room. The Society gave three Concerts, under the conductorship of Dr. Stanford, not the least interesting of the works produced being the "Te Deum" of Berlioz.

Concerts by Henry Leslie's Choir have been given. It has been observed with regret that the part-singing has not been so satisfactory, and that the constitution of the choral body sadly needs to be reinvigorated, so that the purposes for which the Choir was originally established may be more perfectly fulfilled.

The London Musical Society, now conducted by Dr. Mackenzie, true to the object which called it into activity, of searching out interesting and little known works and bringing them to a public hearing, produced at its Concert in May a Cantata by Beethoven which had probably never been performed in public, and certainly never in England.

A series of interesting programmes was provided by Mr. Henschel for his "Symphony Concerts," and although the support of the public was scantily supplied, the artistic excellence of the performances was admitted on all sides. It is just possible that the next season may make up for the want of encouragement of the first. Mr. Henschel has a guarantee fund for two seasons, by which time it is hoped that the public will have grown to a knowledge of the value of the scheme.

The Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts were this season distinguished by a particular and interesting event—namely, the attainment of the 1,000th Concert. The last Concert of the season proper was the 999th, and an extra meeting was held on April 1 to bring the list up to the round number. Madame Schumann was at the head of the list of celebrated pianists, and Herr Joachim the chief leader of the quartets.

Several important works were produced at the Philharmonic Society's Concerts during the season. The directors, pursuing the experiment tried last year, of affording some of our native composers a hearing, have found the result satisfactory to their supporters, a Roumanian Suite, by F. Corder, Cowen's Scandinavian Symphony, with other works by Stanford, Randegger, &c., testifying to the continuance of the design. At the final Concert of the season, the wonderful boy pianist and composer, Josef Hofmann, played Beethoven's Concerto in C major in a manner that excited the greatest astonishment. He had shown the versatility of his executive powers by the execution of pieces by many composers at a Recital in the Princes' Hall, and although some exception was taken by a few purists at the appearance of the child at the Philharmonic Concerts, his performance was quite equal to many older pianists concerning whose engagements no objection had been urged. Sir Arthur Sullivan, in consequence of a shock to the nervous system, sustained during the earthquakes at Monte Carlo during the time of his visit to that place, was unable to be present at the first two Concerts of the series. These were conducted by Mr. G. Mount and Mr. F. H. Cowen.

Young Hofmann, to whom allusion is made above, gave altogether five public recitals, and two more visits to London will be made by him during the ensuing autumn and spring. In the meantime a provincial tour has been arranged for him. He is certainly one of the most phenomenal young musicians since the time of Mozart and Liszt. It may be hoped that his strength will grow with his genius, and his genius with his strength. It was not at all surprising to find that other young people have been brought forward in order to show that he is not the only infant prodigy. Concerts have been given by Pauline Ellice, Jeanne Douste, and others, but he still retains his superiority.

Pianoforte recitals have been given by Stavenhagen, Walter Bache, Schönberger, Cor de Lass, Buonamici (for the Liszt Scholarship), Pachmann, Miss Kleeberg, Mr. Charlton Speer, and others; violoncello recitals by Hausmann and Hollmann; violin recitals by Herr Peiniger; a song recital by Mr. Cowen; vocal recitals by Mr. and Mrs. Henschel, all of which have been fully commented upon, and serve to show the amount of skill and ability possessed by the performers. Chamber Concerts by Madame Frickenhaus and Herr Ludwig, by the Heckmann Quartet, and others, have demonstrated the continued delight of the public in the varieties of musical productions represented.

At the Richter Concerts a new Symphony by F. H. Cowen, written for the Cambridge Musical Society and produced under his bâton, was received with much favour, and testified to the growing experience and ability of its author.

At the Crystal Palace the Saturday Concerts have been continued, and Mr. Manns has given further proof, by the excellence of his direction and the cosmopolitanism of his taste, that his high position among the musicians of the country is well maintained and well deserved. At the opening of the season in May, Sullivan's "Golden Legend" was performed under his direction by over 3,000 executants, and brought to a successful issue. The fine Jubilee Ode written by Dr. Mackenzie, and performed at the Crystal Palace, bore ample testimony of his powers as a musician, and the thoughtfulness of his mind in dealing with a subject so comprehensive in its details. The solos, as given by Madame Albani and Mr. Edward Lloyd, produced a marked effect, and the whole Ode made an impression which will not be easily effaced by those who heard it. The Jubilee Services in Westminster Abbey, in St. Paul's Cathedral, and in many places in Great Britain and the Colonies, demonstrated the value of music as a handmaid to religion, and as one of the most distinctive means of intensifying the expressions of loyalty.

In the colleges, academies, and seminaries of musical learning, good work is still being done. The Concerts given from time to time by the pupils of the Royal College of Music, of the Royal Academy, the Guildhall School, and other kindred institutions, show both activity and progress, and help to promote the belief in the future of English music.

The suburban Choral Societies, such as the Borough of Hackney Choral Association and the Highbury Philharmonic, have been doing good and useful work. The Concerts of the Westminster Choral Society, the St. George's Glee Union, the glee clubs and choral associations which are springing up on every side, all testify to musical activity.

Music, at the ceremonial at the laying of the foundation-stone of the Imperial Institute by the Queen, occupied a prominent part of the day's proceedings. Music also formed a special feature at the opening of the People's Palace at Mile End by the Queen. But while every other art and science was represented on the Committee or Council of the new Imperial Institute, music seemed to be altogether passed over in the selection of delegates. There was also much newspaper talk about Jubilee honours for musicians. Here again expectations were not realised. Perhaps the day is not far distant when the world will hear of the establishment of an English Legion of Honour especially formed to recognise merit in music, the pictorial arts, literature, and science, and restricted in its operations to those who have earned distinction by their labours in either cause. Time will show. England has demonstrated her claim to be considered a musical nation, despite all that is said to the contrary. English musicians have made themselves honourable. Is it not yet time that they should take brevet rank?

The record of the deeds and hopes of the year has always a melancholy passage. The hand of death is always to be traced in the writing of the pages. Among the names of those who were once active in the promotion of the art of music in its various forms, and with whom time is no more since our last summary, are Mr. Frank Chappell, the head of the firm of Metzler and Co.; Charles Frye, assistant Organist at King's College; Edouard de Paris, a famous pianist, in his last days resident in Brighton; Lord Gerald Fitzgerald, once a prominent member of the famous amateur band, the Wandering Minstrels, and a scion of a family noted for its love of music for many generations; Dr. Chipp, Organist of Ely Cathedral; John Bacon Welch, teacher of singing at the Guildhall School of Music; Lindsay Sloper, teacher of the piano at the same place; Frederic Lablache; Edward Hecht, of Manchester; James Broughton, formerly Chorus Master of the Leeds Festivals; Robert Cocks, the publisher; Thomas Julian Adams, of Eastbourne, a well-known Conductor; Joseph Philip Knight, the composer of "She wore a wreath of roses," and other popular songs; and, among many others whose names cannot be specified, Franz Liszt. His visit to England was the last joy of a busy, active, and valuable life. Few of those who enjoyed the privilege of seeing and hearing the great master during his visit thought that they were looking upon his face for the last time. As he took leave of his English friends, he spoke with hopefulness of his intended return visit in the following year. His hope was not realised, for when the time came the spring flowers were blooming on his grave.

The memory of Joseph Maas, one who was loved as a man and admired as an artist, has been perpetuated by a beautiful monument erected in Hampstead Cemetery, and his name is preserved through the medium of the scholarship which has been founded out of the surplus funds collected for the monument. The memory of many of those who have "joined the majority" will be kept green for the good they have wrought in their lives, and for the lesson their actions give to those who are left behind. How far profitable or otherwise the events may prove to be in advancing the status of music and musicians, each man must judge for himself. What the effect may be upon the history of the art in time to come can only be estimated in the future.

MR. F. H. COWEN'S "RUTH."

The Oratorio upon which Mr. F. H. Cowen has been engaged for some time past is now completed, and we are sure that readers of The Musical Times will be interested to learn something of its character, in anticipation of the performance in Worcester Cathedral at the forthcoming Festival of the Three Choirs.

The book of the Oratorio has been laid out, and the words selected, exclusively from the Old Testament Scriptures, by Mr. Joseph Bennett, who has adopted a dramatic form as best suited to the nature of a story which involves interesting situations and a good deal of action. As far as our knowledge goes, this is the first time that the sweet pastoral has been so treated, the narrative form, for some reason or other, enjoying greater favour. Whether the librettist, in the present case, has succeeded in justifying his action must be left for experience to decide. Our present purpose is limited to the task of description only, and we may add to these preliminary remarks that Mr. Bennett has not confined himself strictly to the ancient Jewish tale. Where dramatic or musical exigencies seemed to warrant the course, he has diverged, though not beyond the bounds of probability, and in very few cases.

Mr. Bennett has divided the book into two parts and five scenes, the first of which is laid in the land of Moab, the action taking place before the house of Naomi (contralto). A caravan of Hebrews approaches, singing of their return home, where the glorious Lord will be to them a place of broad rivers and streams. Naomi questions the travellers as to their destination, and hears that the famine has been taken away from Israel. The caravan moves on, the song of thanksgiving dying away in the distance. Left alone, Naomi muses upon the Divine goodness, and feels a strong inclination to go home likewise. Her heart and flesh cry out for the living God. Desire leads to resolve, and the resolve is communicated to Ruth (soprano) and Orpah (soprano) as they enter from the house. Orpah seeks to dissuade her mother-in-law, and is supported by the neighbours who have gathered round; but Ruth begs Naomi to recognise a heavenly call, and act upon it. This she determines to do, and the scene ends with a benediction from the neighbours, who declare that in all things will Naomi be blessed.

The second scene takes place a day's journey on the road to the land of Israel. Ruth and Orpah have accompanied their mother-in-law thus far, as part of a band of returning Hebrews, and now, when morning breaks and the journey is about to be resumed, Naomi entreats her daughters to go back to their own people. The conversation which ensues is that so well known to every Bible reader, Orpah accepts the advice of her relative and retraces her steps, but Ruth remains firm, overcomes Naomi's resistance, and sets out again with the company, who sing with two-fold significance "Yet a little while and the time of harvest will come, when they that sow in tears shall reap in joy."

When the third scene opens we are in the harvest field of Boaz near Bethlehem. Ruth has joined the Reapers and Gleaners, who sing together a joyous chorus in praise of the Lord of harvest, a Reaper (baritone) interpolating solo passages. Boaz comes out of the city, exchanges salutations with his labourers, and, noticing Ruth, enquires who she is. The Reaper answers, and then the Bible dialogue is once more closely followed, till Boaz departs, again saluting, and being saluted by, his people. Evening comes on, all cease their toil, and go in a body towards the town, singing "Now shall we dwell in a peaceful habitation and in quiet resting-places." On the road Ruth meets Naomi, and the two women stop to converse; the Reapers and Gleaners continuing their way and their song. Now follows the dialogue, beginning "Where hast thou gleaned to-day?" represented in the Bible as taking place at the house of Naomi. As it proceeds, snatches of the Labourers' chorus come, more and more faintly, from the distance, and at last the music fades away to silence. In this unusual manner end the first part and the third scene.

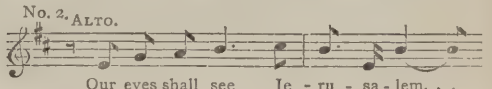
The second part (fourth scene) opens on the threshing-floor of Boaz, where Reapers and Gleaners have assembled at the close of harvest. Boaz enters, accompanied by an Elder (baritone), and expresses gratitude to God for the bountiful fruits of the earth, his people meanwhile assuring him that he will be blessed in their possession. The Elder then quotes the Divine injunction: "After thou hast gathered in thy corn and thy wine, thou shalt surely rejoice in thy feast." Hearing this, the labourers call for timbrel, harp, and psaltery, to the sound of which they engage in choral dances, all finally bringing to mind the horrors of the famine, and joining in a prolonged expression of praise and thanksgiving. Night having fallen, the people disperse to their homes, leaving Boaz, who lies down and sleeps upon a heap of corn. As he reposes, Ruth enters, with a prayer to the Guide of her youth for help and protection. As she moves towards Boaz he awakes, and begins the well-known dialogue, which concludes with a promise to do his duty as a near kinsman. It will be observed that Mr. Bennett has considerably modified a situation, some details of which, however significant and beautiful as appertaining to Hebrew customs, are hardly accordant with modern taste. Either this had to be done or the interview on the threshing-floor—the very crisis of the story—omitted altogether. Between two such courses choice was easy.

The last scene is laid at the gate of Bethlehem, where all the dramatis personæ have gathered. Boaz calls upon the people to witness that he has taken Ruth to wife, and they respond with a wish that she may be as Rachel and Leah unto Israel. The four principal characters then give utterance to appropriate reflections upon the situation, while the people pronounce the ancient Benediction, "The Lord bless you and keep you," &c. As this ensemble closes, a spirit of prophecy descends upon the Elder, who, looking into the future, sees a son born to Ruth and Boaz, from whose roots shall spring a Branch, under the shadow of which those who dwell there "shall revive as the corn and flourish as the vine." A chorus of praise then ends the work.

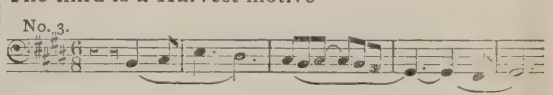
It goes without saying that the librettist has looked outside the book of Ruth for much of the text, and it clearly appears that he has ransacked Old Testament poetry for impressive and eloquent words, giving studied preference to those which, by allusion to pastoral pursuits, conditions, and circumstances, best harmonise with the drama.

As regards Mr. Cowen's music, a few general observations are called for in the first place. The composer has wisely refrained from the structural innovations so often attempted now-a-days with great boldness and little result. His five Scenes are subdivided into numbers which, though closely linked, in a majority of cases, to their immediate neighbours, are yet complete entities, having a beginning, a middle, and an end, and being otherwise in accepted form. The unit of the work is, no doubt, the Scene, but the fractions of the Scene are made artistically complete in themselves, according as the verbal text expresses a complete sense. In this manner Mr. Cowen shows a more thorough regard for the "poetic basis" of his music than would have been the case had he made each grand division of the subject a long paragraph with only one period. Another point which should be indicated is a very restrained use of the Leitmotiv and reminiscent theme. In his secular Cantata "Sleeping Beauty" Mr. Cowen largely employed these devices. Why he has not done so in the present case is a question to which we can only give a speculative and, therefore, worthless reply. The fact stands, as we have said, and it is one with which few will quarrel in connection with oratorio. The leading representative themes are four in number; three doing duty for circumstances and one for a person. First of the three comes a motive always heard in connection with the journey to the land of Israel. It may be called the motive of homeward travel:—

The second should, perhaps, be known as the motive of Home itself. It is first heard in association with the words: "Our eyes shall see Jerusalem"—



The third is a Harvest motive—



The one personal motive always precedes the entrance of Boaz—

It will be observed that neither Ruth nor Naomi are represented in this fashion, and it will be concluded that the composer attaches no great importance—in oratorio, at any rate—to the so-called "leading theme," since he leaves two such important characters destitute. As a matter of fact, the themes above given are themselves so little used that we are scarcely justified in giving up more than a small amount of space to their statement and consideration. There are in the work, as may be supposed, instances of subjects repeated in a suggestive way, but nothing materially interferes with the conspicuous fact that the various divisions of the text are dealt with independently, and with a view to the unimpaired expression of their prevailing sentiment. As regards the melodic and harmonic characteristics of Mr. Cowen's new work, it will readily be assumed that they are permeated with an individuality which the composer has by this time made familiar. Mr. Cowen is never common-place. More and better than this, he is always distinctive and recognisable. His themes have a character of their own, and so has the harmony with which he clothes them. Concerning the orchestration of "Ruth," we are unable to express an opinion, but its excellence may be taken for granted, Mr. Cowen having shown over and over again that he knows how to handle deftly the means which a modern orchestra puts at disposal.

The reader probably expects us now to run through the various scenes in order, and point out whatever may be found specially remarkable. We hasten to fulfil the obligation, in the limited manner dictated by considerations of space.

There is no overture, or orchestral introduction, the motive of Travel being at once heard, preliminary to a chorus of returning Hebrews: "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling-place." This number is in the usual form—principal section, episode, return of principal section—with a contrasted and important Coda, "There the glorious Lord," &c. The motive of Travel runs through the principal section only; that of Home being the theme of the episode. Somewhat of an archaic character is given to the chorus by the leading subject—but the greatest effect is made in the Coda, "There the glorious Lord"—an example of strong and strenuous music. The brief dialogue between Naomi and an Elder of the caravan is attended throughout by the Home motive, after which the chorus resumes, and gradually dies away. The second number opens with an air for Naomi, "Like as a father," in which conspicuous use is made of the two representative themes (Travel and Home) already mentioned—this in connection with the widow's resolve to return to her own people. In the course of Naomi's dialogue with her daughters-in-law, and when Orpah exclaims "Lo! famine consumes the land," a minor representative phrase is heard—afterwards associated with the dissuasion of the neighbours: "We will rejoice and be glad in thee." These words and others are set as an ensemble for chorus and soprano solo (Orpah), the progress of which Naomi breaks now and then, with her sustained resolve to depart. The whole movement is smoothly written in contrapuntal fashion, points of imitation abounding throughout, and is carried on at some length very pleasingly, but without much force of expression. It is as though the composer intended to give an idea of neighbourly compliment and goodwill. Ruth's following solo strikes a different chord with artful emphasis. Here the conviction is firm, the feeling ardent, as may be seen in the opening phrase—and the whole fibre of the music solid, while perfectly free and unembarrassed. This air may be counted on for all the effect which an aria d'entrata should have. It is well supported by the benediction of the neighbours: "The Lord thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest," to which massive and imposing harmonies lend all requisite dignity.

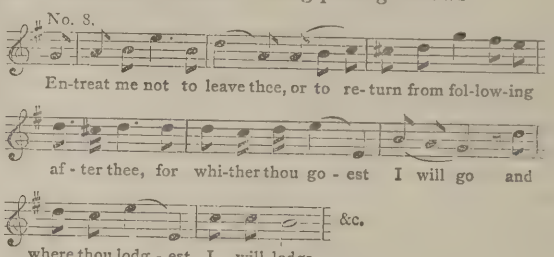
The second scene begins with a chorus of returning Hebrews, "God shall help us when the morning appeareth"—another example of the lofty and impressive choral writing that best becomes the character of oratorio. The treatment of the second subject, "We will sing aloud of Thy mercy," recalls Mendelssohn, but is none the worse on that account, while the whole serves as an appropriate introduction to the scene in which Naomi counsels her daughters to return. Mr. Cowen could not but be conscious that here a great opportunity lay to his hand, and he has used it well, not by complication and elaboration of means, but by endeavouring to embody the keen feelings of the situation in melody which shall be their adequate expression. The music, therefore, is simple, but all music should be as simple as the requirements of its subject allow. Mr. Cowen, however, marks off the mother's passages from those of the younger women by changes in the gravity and character of the accompaniment, and takes other means to secure a desirable distinctiveness. Moreover, the dialogue is relieved by a brief entry of the Hebrews' Chorus, the words of which, "Let us go again to our own people," mingle with those of Naomi as she still further presses Ruth to rejoin her kindred. Then follows Ruth's memorable declaration, upon which, as in duty bound, Mr. Cowen has lavished all his care, in order to secure intense pathos without bathos. His success cannot, we think, be disputed. The melody is most expressive and touching, as the following passage shows—



No. 8.
En-treat me not to leave thee, or to re-turn from fol-low-ing af-ter thee, for whi-ther thou go-est I will go and &c.
where thou lodg-est I will lodge, and, still more, the following—

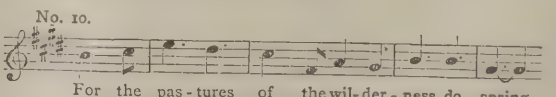
Mr. Cowen does not prolong the solo. It passes in two or three minutes, but it leaves an impression that endures to the end of the work. The final chorus of this scene, "The Lord hath done great things for us," is generally in the massive, contrapuntal style of the first, but more fully developed. It adds no little to the sum of the merit possessed by the oratorio, and makes an effective ending to a scene which is full of musical beauty. We should add that when the voices cease, the motive of Travel indicates that the Caravan has resumed its homeward journey.

The Harvest motive opens the scene in the wheatfield, and introduces a somewhat extended orchestral prelude to the solo and chorus of Reapers and Gleaners, "Fear not, O land." Into the earliest phrases of this the motive enters—



A smooth and flowing pastoral style is maintained through the ensemble, which gains variety by employment of the female voices in two and three part harmony as an alternative to the incidental solo and full chorus. The Boaz theme precedes the entry of that personage with his monotone salutation, "The Lord be with you," to which the labourers respond in unison, using a quaint unaccompanied phrase, possibly of Hebrew origin—

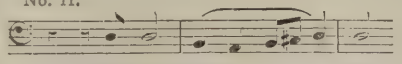
No. 11.



The dialogue following ranks with that in the second scene. Preceded by the Home motive, it introduces that of Harvest where the Reaper answers Boaz, "So she came and hath continued even from the morning until now." The Home theme is also an attendant upon the words of Boaz: "It hath fully been showed me. . . . how that thou hast left thy father and thy mother," &c. These are the chief structural features of the dialogue music, which, however, derives its chief value from natural and expressive melody and general fitness to the situation. Reminiscences of the pastoral introduction and the opening chorus of the scene suggest the idea of labour till evening comes on, and the toilers go homeward. The concluding number of the scene embraces a chorus, "Man goeth forth unto his labour until the evening," and the dialogue in which Ruth and Naomi speak of Boaz. Undoubtedly the chorus is one of the most beautiful and charming things in the entire work. It comprises two distinct sets of words and themes, sung respectively by the Reapers and the Gleaners, the men leading off—and continuing in the same simple, tender, and pleasing style. The women, on their part, have a different rhythm and subject, which, however, does not stand in the way of combination—

No. 12.

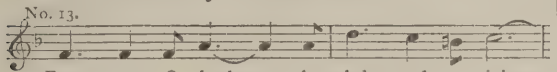
No. 13.



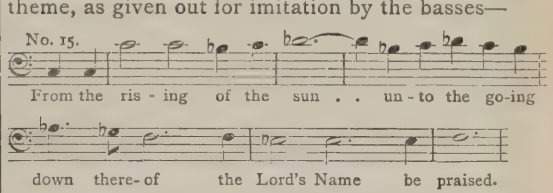
the theme being that which opened the Harvest chorus. When Naomi meets Ruth, and the harvesters pass on, the dialogue (parlante) of the two women is happily accompanied by the melody of Ruth's solo, "Entreat me not to leave thee," and several times interrupted by the receding chorus. All this is managed with immense tact, and we shall be surprised if the novel and beautiful finish of the first part do not make a sensation.

The second part is preluded by an orchestral movement in G minor, entitled "Thanksgiving at Harvest Time." The true effect of this can only be judged on perusal of the score, but we may say that it is full of earnest feeling, and boasts a good deal of character, especially the section marked In modo d'un Canto religioso. Nothing in the work, perhaps, is more in the composer's individual style. A solo for Boaz, "How excellent is Thy loving-kindness"—led up to by an exordium founded on the Harvest motive—gives the tenor vocalist a good opportunity for the effect open to legitimate singing. It is relieved by a choral response, "He will love thee and bless thee," having the plain, solid, substantial features of which, as we have already seen, Mr. Cowen knows at once the secret and the value. The Elder's brief address, "Thus saith the Lord," follows, preceding an important series of choruses. First of all, the Reapers sing, "Now shall the virgin rejoice," &c., as the Gleaners dance; the vocal music, of course, being an accompaniment to the dance measure as played by the orchestra. In work of this kind, Mr. Cowen is peculiarly happy, having a perfect command of grace and piquancy. Here, at any rate, he has invented themes and orchestral effects in the highest degree characteristic, but without overstepping the limits imposed by an oratorio. The dance of Gleaners is followed by a dance of Reapers, to which the women sing an accompaniment, using words, beginning "Corn shall make the young men cheerful." Again we have character, piquancy, and charm—

No. 14.

Presently the two dances are cleverly combined with excellent effect, and treated thus with full development. In the next number, Mr. Cowen makes his greatest, and, we venture to think, most successful choral effort. Opening with solemn and pathetic strains on the words, "The Lord said: I will send a famine," he passes to a jubilant outburst, "We will praise Thee, O Lord," of considerable length and sustained force and animation. This is the composer's "Thanks be to God," and one not unworthy of association with Mendelssohn's masterpiece. It is in the usual form, the episode being one of peculiar grandeur. One might almost infer this from the theme, as given out for imitation by the basses—

No. 15.



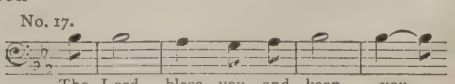
The whole is worked out at much length and with increasing power right up to the climax, whence the music rapidly subsides, fading away as the people depart, and Boaz lies down to sleep. As Ruth enters, the orchestra plays the melody of her solo, "Intreat me not to leave thee," which leads to an earnest prayer, "My Father, Thou art the Guide of my youth." It is brief, but full of significance and appropriateness to the situation. The music of the ensuing dialogue and duet, "Happy am I," shows no falling off from this level.

The final scene is wisely not prolonged, the story having reached its highest point of interest, and nothing remaining but a consummation which everybody foresees. Boaz, preceded by his theme, as usual, announces his "purchase" of Ruth, and the assembled people respond with words of good will, set to plain and massive strains. Then follows an ensemble, in which all the characters and the chorus take part, Ruth leading off with a solo—

No. 16.

after her coming Naomi with an independent melody, "I have been young and now am old." Boaz next takes up the tale, "The meek shall inherit the earth," and then the subjects are variously employed in combination till the entrance of the chorus, headed by the Elder, who leads a quasi-ecclesiastical Benediction—

No. 17.



In the end all the solos are joined with the chorus, so continuing to the close in solemn and stately fashion. The Elder's prophecy, "Behold new things do I declare," shows that Mr. Cowen still has ample resources left, especially of fancy, for the creation of new and interesting ideas—a fact to which the final chorus, "O generation, see ye the words of the Lord," bears even more emphatic testimony, the peroration being as animated, vigorous, and effective as any part of the work.

We have now given not only a description, but a record of first impressions which warrant in congratulating the Worcester Festival upon a noble addition to its programme, and English art upon an oratorio of which English amateurs should be proud.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

(Concluded from page 398.)

In previous notices of Victorian music we sought to draw a contrast between the condition of the art at the present time and when the Queen came to the throne. We also indicated the more prominent agencies by which the changes observed were brought about. There now remains to dwell for a little upon matters of at least equal importance, connected with the fluctuations—or progressive stages, if the reader like it better—which have marked the condition of public taste and, to a large extent, determined the course and character of music during the period under notice.

At the outset of this consideration we should make present to the reader's mind certain facts which distinguish the art of music from its kindred. May we put the case thus broadly: The past of other arts remains and mingles on equal terms with the present; the past of music is dead, and there is only the present. This, of course, is a rough generalisation, not to be accepted as of microscopic fidelity to the actual circumstances, but on the whole it expresses a truth. The poetry of generations long gone by is the poetry of to-day—often more esteemed than that of contemporary genius—and exerts amongst us an active force, influencing the minds of men, shaping their thoughts and even their expressions. So with sculpture, as to its kind and in its degree. The masterpieces of the ancient world are those before which men now living bow in admiration, and by which they determine their standard of perfection. Architecture may, on its part, be said to have no past, since the energies of the present are devoted to labour upon old models. Of all the arts, painting comes nearest to music as viewed from the standpoint we have now taken up. But while its progress has been marked by the rise and fall of schools, and by many changes of faith and practice, the measure of this phenomenon cannot be compared with that observable in connection with music, nor is the attitude of the public the same. The great pictures of all ages and styles have a place in common esteem with those which meet the latest development of taste, and are equally honoured as works of genius. Music stands alone, not only in the rapidity with which the fashion of it changes, but in that the fashion of yesterday is as much disregarded to-day as is a past shape in bonnets or mantles. By some minds, of course, change is less favourably received than by others. In certain cases a constitutional objection to quit the old lines comes into operation; or there may, in special cases, be powerful reasons founded upon artistic considerations. Hence we have, at any given time, a multitude of preferences, the assertion of which leads to clashing and contest. But amateurs who are most conservative are themselves moving. They stand where stood the "radical reformers" of a century ago, and they ignore the music of two centuries ago with as much resolution and completeness as do their antagonists of to-day. The "dead past" of music begins where the retrospective sympathies of conservative minds end, and that fatal limit is ever advancing, enclosing more and more of the domain of bye-gone art, and consigning it to darkness and oblivion. We do not here enquire into the reason of a condition from which other arts are free, though the question is most interesting and attractive. Nor will we assume that it is a necessary and unavoidable condition. A time may come when a more perfected and universal taste than has existed hitherto shall comprehend the good of all ages; meanwhile we must take matters as we find them, and no survey of the last fifty years can boast of even elementary completeness while it ignores the changes of musical fashion.

With regard to orchestral music, the higher tastes of English amateurs were devoted to the classical masters for many years after the Queen came to the throne. A glance at the Philharmonic and other programmes of the day show this with striking completeness, and it is a spectacle that gives no occasion for wonder. Music-lovers were then almost within the shadow cast by the great German composers as they receded from earth. Beethoven and Weber had died but yesterday, so to speak, Haydn was a personal recollection to many living men, and Mozart belonged to the generation immediately past. This marvellous constellation of genius might well have been enough for those who saw its pristine splendour, and first comprehended its significance. Vainly would any contemporary musician, however great, have striven against the influence of the mighty dead, had he dared to set up a musical way of his own. There was only one course open—to follow on the classical lines with such individual peculiarities as might give distinctiveness and piquancy. This course Spohr, Mendelssohn, and Schumann adopted with greater or less fidelity, so bringing up the rear of the masters of whose company they were worthy.

The first contemporary that exercised a powerful influence upon Victorian taste in music was Spohr. Circumstances in a measure favoured the rise of this master. The age naturally rejoiced in one who had a claim to be considered great, and accounted a legitimate successor of heroes not long passed away. Moreover, Spohr had no serious rival between Beethoven's death and the advent of Mendelssohn. In orchestral music, as in that of oratorio and the chamber, there was none to dispute his pre-eminence. But his English success was due to the fact that, while closely adhering to classic forms and principles, he had characteristics of a new and fascinating kind. His music offended no prejudices, and puzzled none of its hearers. Beautifully clear in its meaning and familiar in its main constructive lines, it allowed free play to a wealth of tender and touching melody, coupled with a richness and elaboration of harmony such as had never before challenged admiration. We of the present day are acquainted with Spohr's defects. We rightly estimate his cloying sweetness, his abundant mannerisms, and the comparative absence from his music of strong elements. But then we are in the position of a man who has long lived with a beautiful and somewhat insipid woman. The beauty has become familiar, while, pari passu, there has been increasing perception of the insipidity. Fifty years ago the charm of Spohr was fresh, and England fell madly in love with him, doting upon his melodies and rolling his ornate harmony, like a sweet morsel, under the tongue. This was the honeymoon of composer and public, and the glamour of it, like that of so many other lunes de miel, did not last.

We may doubt whether Spohr's pre-eminence would have endured even if a younger and nobler rival had not appeared on the scene. His music is hardly adapted for constant wear, and its delicate, finely elaborated structure scarcely accords with the indisputable preference of English taste for something bolder, firmer, simpler, stronger. The nation that has made a god of Handel, is not likely to depose him in favour of Spohr. But, however this may be, it is right to congratulate ourselves upon the fact that the Cassel master was himself deposed. His music, so luscious and beautiful, has its place among the sweets of the art—to be partaken of sparingly and at intervals, rather than to be a staple article of food. Enjoyed often, it would bring on indigestion. Happily the star of Mendelssohn arose, and as it soared to the zenith, that of the older master sank, leaving behind nothing that can be pointed out as a permanent influence. Spohr has now no following amongst composers, and nobody thinks of writing in his style, as many do in the style of Mendelssohn, Schumann, Brahms, Wagner, and others who are exemplars with a following.

If the Spohr fever raged severely for a time, what shall be said of that communicated by the genius of Mendelssohn? who, had nature expressly made of him a musician to captivate England, would have been no other than he was. Save, perhaps, the advent of Handel among us, no more important event than the rise of Mendelssohn ever occurred in the history of English music. It certainly is the chief incident in the record of music Victorian, which has largely derived its character from Mendelssohnian impulse and precedent, just as public taste has been affected in an immense degree by the same influence. It is sometimes urged that English worship of the fascinating Felix has been a curse rather than a blessing, because it has barred the acceptance in this country of newer and more progressive composers. According to those who so contend, England would now, but for Mendelssohn, be far ahead of the point she has reached. Their argument amounts to a partial begging of the question. It implies that had England not taken so ardently to the composer of the Scotch Symphony and the "Hebrides" Overture, she would have surrendered herself to the "newer and more progressive" men. That may, or may not, have been the case. There is no proof either way, and, in the nature of things, there cannot be. Moreover, it is by no means allowed on all hands that the musicians in whose path Mendelssohn has stood are better adapted than he to repay popular appreciation by promoting the cause of true art. At the same time, we are prepared cheerfully to grant that the exclusive cult of one composer, or one school of composers, amounts to a national misfortune. It resembles breeding "in and in." The result is deterioration. With regard to England and Mendelssohn, however, there never was cause to fear such a disaster, for the simple reason that, while the favourite undoubtedly left scant room for new comers, he did not expel the older masters. Handel, Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven were not less worshipped because the people had found a fresh idol, and only the contemporary Spohr, who had reigned but a little while, can be said to have suffered. On the whole, there is cause for rejoicing rather than mourning in that our country, at the very moment when she awoke to musical life, gave herself up heart and soul to strains so pure and beautiful, at the same time so masterful and invigorating, as those of Mendelssohn.

It may be asked what there was in Mendelssohn's work to secure favour so general and prolonged at the hands of the English! The question hardly admits of an exhaustive answer, coming, as it does, within the region of taste, which is as much beyond explanation as outside dispute. Individuals very often cannot account to themselves for the ties that bind them to persons and things, to forms of thought, sentiment, and expression. They are equally unable to show clear cause for feelings of repulsion.

> I do not like thee, Doctor Fell;
> The reason why I cannot tell;
> But this, in sooth, I know full well,—
> I do not like thee, Doctor Fell.

As with one person, so with a community or a nation. Mysterious sympathies come into action, excited by the adaptation of supply to, sometimes, half conscious or wholly unconscious need, and such a condition is then set up as that which we contemplate when looking at Mendelssohn's relations to England. But the cause of those relations is not entirely obscure. Mendelssohn, like Spohr, thoroughly understood that the mission of art is to gratify by producing and exhibiting the beautiful, and that it is most completely discharged when the beauty is made most intelligible. Like his predecessor, therefore, Mendelssohn exerted himself to charm by clearness of construction, by elegant and moving themes, by wealth of harmony and richness—not gaudiness—of colour. When a composer does this, with the support of adequate talent, he pleases as assuredly as that light accompanies sunrise. But Mendelssohn had a peculiar advantage over Spohr when bidding for English approval. We find it in the greater solidity of his style, especially as regards religious music, and the no less marked simplicity and spontaneity of his lighter works. English amateurs recognised in "St. Paul," "Elijah," the Psalms, &c., a legitimate development from the Handelian oratorio of the last century. This was enough for them; and if Mendelssohn had written nothing else he would still have won amongst us a position of supremacy.

Not often does a nation yield itself to the domination of a single artist so completely as did England to the might of Mendelssohn. For twenty years from about 1840 the composer was the most vital of the musical forces operating amongst us. The older masters were cultivated as before, and newer aspirants for fame were not wholly neglected by superior persons, but the people at large were Mendelssohnian first and anything else afterwards. Our own composers acted, in many cases, but as more or less distant and faint echoes of the oracle. They seemed unable to write in any other style. Indeed, Mendelssohn was music and music was Mendelssohn in all that concerned or was associated with contemporary art. We say again that here is cause for congratulation rather than regret. The popular composer came at a most critical time, and held the nation fast to true art just when ill-regulated and newly-excited impulses might have precipitated it anywhere but in the right direction.

Of course it was not desirable that this state of things should continue. It served a useful purpose, and then made way for new circumstances which gave greater liberty, but not, we desire to think, in excess of judgment wherewith to use it well. What originated the new circumstances in question? Undoubtedly the invasion of England by composers of the romantic school, between whom and the classicists there were connecting-links that served, and are even now serving, to lessen the shock of a change which promises, in its ultimate issues, to be of a very radical nature. Romanticism, it is important to observe, did not obtrude upon classicism as a new creation. It is really a development from it—a development artificially strained to extravagance, in many cases, no doubt, but still having its roots where we have placed them. The first great romanticist was Beethoven, beyond whom, within the bounds of legitimate art, none of his successors have gone. Schubert, also, was a romanticist; so was Weber; so, in some respects, were Spohr and Mendelssohn; so, beyond all question, was Schumann. The difference between these masters and the romanticists par excellence is that they subordinated fancy and expression to the established rules of art, while their successors give both unrestricted play. But having the root of the matter in common, the second school could follow the first without, to use an intelligible figure, change of carriage. At most, the transfer involved only a case of switching from one line of rails to another—an operation which sleepy passengers were not likely even to notice. Whatever the facts on this point, there can be no doubt at all that the last fifteen years of Queen Victoria's fifty have witnessed a gradual change in public taste, tending to the popularisation among us of music which, if less artistic than the classics, as some say, is perhaps more in accord with the spirit and feeling of the age. The change has not been violent, and we mistake the English character if it will ever be permitted to become revolutionary. We are a slow moving people, and our inborn conservatism is a guarantee that we shall never cease to cherish what of good the past has handed down. So much the better for us in all respects, but especially as regards music, since we, with our national caution and practical instincts shall succeed, if any people ever do, in fairly adjusting the claims of art and of the feeling that the music of an age should be an exact expression of its emotional characteristics. This consummation is clearly indicated in the works of the new English school as represented by men like Mackenzie, Cowen, Stanford, Parry, and others. The sympathy of those composers with modern developments cannot be mistaken, since, in the "hot youth" of some of them it found almost ill-regulated expression; but their mature works—those which are really determinative of character—show a happy alliance between purely artistic considerations and others which have to do with the mere excitement and gratification of sense and sensibility. So long as we can preserve that alliance in English music, we shall keep our art in touch with the illustrious past, and guard it from excesses such as have, in the case of less solid and look-before-you-leap peoples, given occasion for regret and even shame.

No reasonable man will deny that music, intimately allied as it is with the inner life of individuals and communities, should take its character from the mental and emotional peculiarities of the age. Only thus, indeed, can it have true vitality, and propagate its kind. We may—and if our minds be unprejudiced, we must—admire the excellence of the past; that above all which, by force of genius, rises superior to the influence of fashion, and is unaffected by change in musical manners and customs. Nevertheless, our principal concern is with the music of our own time. That belongs to us in a special sense; we are its custodians, and responsible to those who shall come after us for handing it down unimpaired by lack of judgment or want of firmness in insisting upon an ordered art, not a chaos of sound. Our accountability at the present time is certainly very great. We are living in days when it may be said with all possible emphasis: "The old order changeth, giving place to new." Under the influence of amazing developments, even the public mind and feeling are undergoing transformation, becoming more alert, vivacious, sensitive; demanding stronger excitement and plenty of it. We have, in short, entered upon a period of nervous energy, that threatens to become excessive and set up disease. By this our music is naturally affected in the first place and in the strongest degree, but it would be a grave reproach to the Victorian age were we to permit an unrestrained licence. Though the arts are our servants, who minister to our pleasures, they have their rights as well as their duties; and one right is immunity from violence done to principles which all ages have respected, and the continuous wisdom of generations has approved. We are not disquieted, as far as England is concerned, on this matter, but look forward with assurance that what remains of Victorian music will illustrate the order defined by Johnson as "the child of Beauty and Wisdom."

A FORGOTTEN BOOK.

II.

(Continued from page 396.)

The schism which raged in the musical world in the seasons of 1791-2 was healed in the following year, and a union of parties being effected, the Haymarket Theatre was re-opened with the best company available in England. Of the tenor Kelly, from Drury Lane, the author writes that he was a good musician, but in spite of his long residence in Italy, "he retained or regained much of the English vulgarity of manner." Madame Mara, already declining in voice and favour, actually condescended to sing as Polly Peachum, in the "Beggars' Opera," at Covent Garden. Her subsequent history was disastrous: for "in the maturity of charms which had never been great," she eloped from a drunken husband with a young flautist, lived for several years in Russia, and re-appeared in England at fully seventy years of age to give a benefit Concert, at which her tones were compared to those of a penny trumpet. "We are now come," says Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "to an interesting period in operatical history, the arrival of Banti, whom I must ever consider as far the most delightful singer I ever heard." Banti—to whom, by the way, Mr. Shorthouse makes allusion in his tale "The Little Schoolmaster Mark"—was, like Grisi, never a good musician, but her instinct stood her in unfailing stead. Her voice, according to the author, was a rich voce di petto * of singularly uniform beauty throughout, and her acting, always excellent, rose on occasion to heights of remarkable power. She made her début in Bianchi's "Semiramide," or "La Vendetta di Nino," introducing into her part "a fine air by Guglielmi from the Oratorio of 'Deborah,' with violin obbligato. . . . No opera ever had greater success, or a longer run, than this." In a subsequent season—that of 1800—she performed for her benefit an opera by Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "Zenobia," set to Metastasio's drama, "and gave to the music an effect which its own merits could never have produced in other hands." The "first man's" part was allotted to Roselli, a male soprano, but was taken by Benelli, a tenor. "After this year," adds the author, "Roselli sang no more, nor had we ever another soprano at the opera." This statement is not quite correct, for after a lapse of just twenty-five years, Velluti made his appearance in Meyerbeer's "Il Crociato in Egitto." A new generation had grown up, however, to whom this kind of voice was unfamiliar, and the feeling was so strong against the revival that unusual precautions had to be taken. Managers then realised that it was highly impolitic to combat a prejudice founded upon a natural and healthy basis, and this time the male soprano disappeared for ever from the operatic boards. The list of operas in Banti's repertory is given in the article in Grove's Dictionary, the writer of which, by the way, has embodied a great deal of Lord Mount Edgcumbe's remarks totidem verbis, without the use of quotation marks. Lord Mount Edgcumbe never wearied of hearing Banti, but the public apparently did, and the manager accordingly let Banti depart in 1802. Before her departure she sang at her own benefit with Mrs. Billington, the new star, in Portogallo's "Merope," conceding the leading rôle to her rival. "The curiosity to hear these two celebrated singers together was so great that the theatre overflowed, and even ladies were obliged to sit on the stage for want of other places." In the summer and autumn of 1802 the author of these "Reminiscences" took a short tour on the Continent. At Stuttgart he heard a charming opera by Weigl, "L'Amor Marinaro," in which the first woman appears in male attire. He adds, "I endeavoured a year or two ago to get this opera performed here, but could not succeed, though it was acknowledged to be likely to please. The travestissement of the first woman was, I believe, the chief obstacle." In connection with his stay in Paris he observes: "Of French music the less that is said the better . . . the grand opéra was in no respect improved; that human ears can bear it is marvellous."

* It is to be observed that Lord Mount Edgcumbe uses the phrase voce di petto, voce di testa of a voice as a whole, not of a particular register of the voice.

Mrs. Billington, née Weichsel, had the advantage over her rival and predecessor Banti of being a thorough musician, coming as she did of a musical stock on both sides. "Her voice, though sweet and flexible," says Lord Mount Edgcumbe, "was not of that full nature which formed the charm of Banti's, but was rather a voce di testa, and in its very high tones resembled a flute or flageolet." Excelling in the execution of florid passages, Mrs. Billington lacked pathos of expression, and was an indifferent actress. The writer confesses that he only began to appreciate her great merits from the very circumstance which rather lowered her popularity—namely, the arrival of Grassini. Of their relative merits he remarks, with great point:—"As every one has eyes, and but few musical ears, the superior beauty was the most generally admired, and no doubt the deaf would have been charmed with Grassini, while the blind must have been delighted with Mrs. Billington." They appeared alternately for two years, during which Braham, lately returned from Italy, now first began to challenge public notice as a leading operatic tenor. On Braham Lord Mount Edgcumbe has a great deal to say, and says it well. He praises the quality of his voice, his knowledge of music, &c., and after remarking that it is certain he can sing well, regrets that he should do otherwise, quitting "the natural register of his voice by raising it to an unpleasant falsetto, or forcing it by too violent exertion . . . departing from good style and taste, which he knows as well as any man, to adopt, at some times, the over-florid and frittered Italian manner; at others, falling into the coarseness and vulgarity of the English." To revert to Mrs. Billington, it is interesting to encounter, amid the list of operas in which she excelled, Mozart's "Clemenza di Tito," the first of his works for the stage ever acted in this country. After three years of divided reign, Mrs. Billington and Grassini both retired, the former in the plenitude of her power, the latter with impaired resources and diminished popularity. Both were replaced by "the great, the far-famed Catalani," who for many years reigned alone. The bulk of Lord Mount Edgcumbe's criticisms upon her gifts and abuse of them will be found in the article "Catalani," in Grove's Dictionary. One passage not quoted there is worthy of note, in which, after censuring the "fantastical excess" of her embellishments in ad libitum passages, he goes on—"She is fond of singing variations on some known simple air, and latterly has pushed this taste to the very height of absurdity by singing, even without words, variations composed for the fiddle. This is absolute nonsense, a lamentable misapplication of that finest of instruments, the human voice, and of the delightful faculty of song." We have underlined these last words as exactly indicating the standpoint of the writer—one which cannot be said to be that of all modern musicians. For it can hardly be gainsaid that the tide of music is setting irresistibly in an anti-vocal direction. The art of vocalisation, the bel canto, is well nigh dead. There is neither a sufficient demand for nor interest in florid music to make it worth the while of singers to cultivate it. It has come to this then, that the vocalists worth the name, now before the public, may roughly be divided into, firstly, the useful class of those whose physique, intelligence, and dramatic aptitude enable them to co-operate with an orchestra; and, secondly, that small band of singers to whose ranks few if any recruits are added, who still maintain the traditions of the cantabile and legato style, conscious—some of them by actual experience—that any excursion on their part into the Wagnerian arena must inevitably be attended by a loss of that delicacy and finish which is their especial charm. Of the few surviving representatives of the bel canto, Mesdames Patti, Lucca, and Trebelli have been practically total abstainers from Wagner, and the way in which they have all of them retained their powers has probably not suffered from this abstinence. In this connection, however, it may be admissible to offer a reassuring word about the decadence of great voices. A similar cry was raised—by Lord Mount Edgcumbe himself, amongst others—in the period which immediately preceded the palmy days of the greatest operatic quartet the world has probably ever known. Between the years 1805 and 1825, with one or two exceptions, there was a complete dearth of great singers, and then came Pasta, Malibran, Grisi, Rubini, Mario, Lablache, Alboni. Such a galaxy of vocal talent the world has never known before or since. Turning again to Catalani we are glad of the opportunity of transcribing the following amusing paragraph:—

"Whenever I hear such an outrageous display of execution, either vocal or instrumental, I never fail to recollect and cordially join in the opinion of a late noble statesman, more famous for his wit than for love of music, who, hearing a remark on the extreme difficulty of some performance, observed that he wished it was impossible." Lord Mount Edgcumbe adds, in a note, that the same noble lord "being asked why he did not subscribe to the Ancient Concerts, and it being urged as a reason for it that his brother, the Bishop of W——, did, 'Oh!' replied his lordship, 'if I was as deaf as my brother I would subscribe too.'"

Catalani was not only successful in serious opera, but achieved distinction in the opera buffa as well. "Though the outline of her features is decidedly tragic (almost Siddonian), yet she can relax them into the most charming smile, and assume the character not merely of gaiety, but even of niaiserie and of arch simplicity. . . . With all her faults, therefore (and no great singer ever had so many), she must be reckoned a very fine performer; and if the natural powers with which she is so highly gifted were guided by sound taste and judgment, she might have been a perfect one." Catalani's intolerance of rivalry and perpetually enhanced terms wore out the patience and exhausted the purse of English managers, and she quitted England in 1813, since when she "found it more agreeable to her taste, and probably more advantageous to her interest, to travel throughout nearly the whole of Europe, giving Concerts, at which she is generally the only vocal performer. She has made one such visit to England [in 1824] and may make more, as she retains a partiality for this country, where she has been more extravagantly admired and paid than in any other."

In the supplement to these "Reminiscences," published in 1834, Lord Mount Edgcumbe cannot resist seizing the opportunity of taking his "last leave" of Catalani, who, after fulfilling a festival engagement at York, in the summer of 1828, traversed the whole island, and came to stay at Plymouth with the Earl of Northesk, then Port Admiral, at whose house the author met her in private, and heard her at one public Concert, for the first time since 1813. Her voice was still wonderfully fresh, and though diminished in compass had gained in expression. In particular, he was delighted with her singing of "Rule, Britannia"—which used to throw sailors into transports of enthusiasm—"which last I always thought she sang better than anybody." "The last notes," he adds, "I ever heard from her were in my own house, accompanying herself on the pianoforte, in some beautiful little Italian canzonets. . . . I have since heard of her from Florence, near which town she resides, and I hope will long do so in health and happiness." On Catalani's departure, in 1813, "a new aera began in our opera." At this point, however, he retraces his steps in order to relate what had taken place in the realm of comic opera. Morichelli and Bolla were the two principal performers in the years 1792-1800, the latter of whom, in her benefit, introduced the innovation of speaking the dialogue in prose, without recitative, "which had not a bad effect." Storace was often called in, likewise Mrs. Billington, who, when she performed with Naldi, an excellent actor and musician in the "Fanatico per la Musica," "took the opportunity of displaying her talents as an instrumental performer, by accompanying herself on the pianoforte."

Lord Mount Edgcumbe winds up this section with a survey of the last two periods, and a comparison of the five great female singers comprised therein. Mara and Mrs. Billington belonged to one class, and resembled each other closely. Both were good musicians, with sweet agile voices, excelling in the bravura style. "But neither was an Italian, and consequently both were deficient in recitative; neither had much feeling, both were deficient in theatrical talents, therefore they were more calculated to give pleasure in the concert room than on the stage. . . . The other three, on the contrary, had great dramatic talents . . . They were all likewise but indifferently skilled in music, supplying by genius what they wanted in science. . . . Their distinctive differences, I should say, were these: Grassini was all grace, Catalani all fire, Banti all feeling; and, by a singular coincidence, forming almost exact counterparts of the three great singers before compared together, the first may be said to have borne a strong resemblance in her style to Rubinelli, the second to Marchesi, and the third to have united in a high degree all the varied excellence of Pacchierotti." The "new aera," which began with the departure of Catalani, was, in the opinion of the author, marked by a great deterioration in the style of operatic composition and a corresponding decadence in the art of singing, and a falling off in the supply of good voices. The distinction between serious and comic operas was nearly broken down, while "the separation of singers for them' was entirely at an end. A mongrel compromise arose called semi-seria. "The dialogue, which used to be carried on in recitative is now cut up . . . into pezzi concertati or long singing conversations, which present a tedious succession of unconnected everchanging motives, having nothing to do with each other; and if a satisfactory air is for a moment introduced which the ear would like to dwell upon, to hear modulated, varied, and again returned to, it is broken off before it is well understood or sufficiently heard, by a sudden transition into a totally different melody, time, and key." One might almost imagine that this was a straitlaced modern Kapellmeister falling foul of Wagner, whereas it is Rossini whose vicious innovations excite the strictures of the "old amateur." "Single songs," he continues, "are almost exploded, for which one good reason may be given, that there are few singers capable of singing them. . . . The acknowledged decline of singing in general (which the Italians themselves are obliged to confess) has no doubt in a great measure occasioned this change. . . . The generality of voices are basses which, for want of better, are thrust up into the first characters . . . and take the lead in operas with almost as much propriety as if the double bass were to do so in the orchestra. . . . Composers therefore having few good voices, and few good singers to write for, have been obliged to adapt their compositions to the abilities of those who are to perform them." This is perfectly true, we may add, parenthetically, of Mozart, who generally wrote his songs last, with special regard to his cast; and the fact that the principal male character in two of Mozart's operas—Count Almaviva and Don Giovanni—were written for a basso cantante, as it was then called, is an effective confirmation of the passage quoted above. "Songs have disappeared, and interminable quartettos, quintettos, and sestettos fill their place. . . . Every opera is filled with such pieces, which, in fact, are so many Finales. These, after wearying the attention for a longer time than half-a-dozen old songs, generally conclude by a noisy crash of voices and instruments, in which the harmony is frequently distracted, each personage engaged in the scene having, perhaps, to express a different passion [The italics are ours. Lord Mount Edgcumbe here forestalls the scathing criticism of this anomaly delivered by Berlioz], and the whole vocal part almost overpowered by so loud and busy an accompaniment that the voices themselves are nearly lost. It is really distressing to hear the leading voice strained almost to cracking in order to be audible over a full chorus and full orchestra, strengthened often by trumpets, trombones, kettledrums, and all the noisiest instruments." In this sort of composition, he goes on, good lungs are more useful than quality or style. "Very good singers, therefore, are scarcely necessary, and it must be confessed that though there are now none so good, neither are there many [? any] so bad as I remember in the inferior characters. In these levelling days, equalisation has extended itself to the stage and musical profession; and a kind of mediocrity of talent prevails which, if it did not occasion the invention of these melo-dramatic pieces, is, at least, very favourable to their execution." We make no excuse for transcribing the foregoing remarks almost in extenso. They are not only interesting and instructive as forestalling the strictures passed on more recent innovators, but, in so far as singing is concerned, they are decidedly encouraging. Who knows but that we, too, may be on the eve of an amazing revival of vocal excellence—a melodic reaction provoked by the excesses of over-elaborate orchestration?

It was against Rossini, then in the zenith of his fame as a composer, that Lord Mount Edgcumbe's criticism was primarily directed. He allows him genius and invention, but not good taste, charging him, further, with constant plagiarism from himself, a weakness for noisy instrumentation, and inability to compose music appropriate to strong situations. He proceeds: "I have often heard it seriously remarked that his operas sound best when performed without the voices [what some Philistines say now-a-days of Wagner]. Strange praise for vocal music, which I have considered as the finest vehicle for feeling and for passion, and as giving greater expression to words than can otherwise be conveyed; therefore when it is really good they must be inseparably united. At the same time, I must allow there is truth in the remark, for Rossini gives so much importance to the orchestra, and so labours his accompaniments, that the vocal part is really often the least prominent, and overwhelmed, not supported." The latitude which was allowed to great singers by the Italian composers of the last century is illustrated in the following most interesting note: "Many songs of the old masters would be very indifferently sung by modern performers, not on account of their difficulty, but their apparent facility. Composers, when writing for a first-rate singer, noted down merely a simple tema, with the slightest possible accompaniment, which, if sung as written, would be cold, bald, and insipid. It was left to the singer to fill up the outline, to give it the light and shade, and all its grace and expression; which requires not only a thorough knowledge of music, but the greatest taste and judgment. No one ever worked on such a canvas like Pacchierotti." What a curious inversion of the rôles of creator and interpreter is involved in this practice, which led inevitably to those "outrageous displays of vocal execution" which the writer elsewhere so effectively denounces!

Mozart was the only writer of opera who at this period could get a hearing beside Rossini. Of him Lord Mount Edgcumbe speaks in terms of the highest praise. "His genius was not only original, it was inexhaustible; his productions are full of diversity, and all possessed of intrinsic merit. The frippery and meretricious style of modern music is to the ear like tinsel to the eye . . . but it will be transitory and speedily lost in the fluctuations of taste . . . while the name of Mozart, with those of his two great countrymen—Handel and Haydn—will live for ever, and his compositions, like theirs, descend as sterling gold to posterity."

Of the operatic singers who appeared in the following seasons, Ronzi de Begnis, a handsome woman with a sweet flexible voice, who excelled in buffa parts, and Camporese, were the only two prime donne of talent. Ronzi, as she was familiarly called, was a great favourite by reason of her good looks and genial ways. Camporese had talent of a much higher order, so much so that, writing in April, 1823, Lord Mount Edgcumbe declares her to be much the best singer of her time, and "the only one that has ever at all brought back to my recollection, or in any degree resembled her to whom I shall always think every other must yield, the unique, the incomparable Banti." This, it should be remembered, however, was written before he had heard Pasta or Malibran. The succeeding section, No. 8, is devoted to an account of English music, which shows that his predilection for the old Italian masters by no means blinded him to the undoubted merits of native compositions. He gives the preference to our Cathedral music as an aid to devotion over that of Italy, and declares "our glees, our only national music," to be unexcelled in their way. Of English female singers he remembers in particular Mrs. Sheridan and Mrs. Bates, who, as Miss Linley and Miss Harrop, were at the head of their profession, and quitted it at the height of their fame. "Mrs. Sheridan to an angelic face (Reynolds painted her as St. Cecilia) added an angelic voice," which, "combined with her touching expression, produced an effect almost heavenly." Mrs. Bates had been a pupil of Sacchini, and would, doubtless, have been famous in the Italian style but that her talents were diverted into the Handelian groove by her husband, a learned musician and fine organist, the man who first "imagined and arranged" the Handel Festivals in the Abbey. Mrs. Billington, he adds, was the only other singer who could be compared with them, and such a comparison would not be fair, as she must be reckoned in school and style as an Italian rather than an English singer. The postscript, which closes the first edition of these reminiscences, is interesting from the fact that it alludes briefly to the proceedings of the opera season of 1824, and the success of Pasta, "now become a delightful performer, a finished singer, and excellent actress."

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By Joseph Bennett.

No. XXII.—GRÉTRY (concluded from page 401).

The closing years of Grétry's life were brightened by many marks of appreciation, but none, it may be, gave him more real pleasure than the act of his fellow citizens of Liège in naming after him one of the public places of their city. Some of Grétry's letters in connection with this event have been published, and are worthy of record as showing the sweet unaffected nature of the man, his sincere gratitude for kindness, and, above all, a humility which cannot be mistaken for an assumed virtue. The first letter, dated December 10, 1810, is addressed to a notary of Liège, and runs thus:—

"I have three times lately received the Gazette de Liège; you or M. Hencart have sent me them, I doubt not, and, to increase my gratitude towards both, you have done so anonymously. I have only just learned of your exertions with the authorities of Liège to secure the success of the project concerning the place which bears my name, and will make my memory imperishable in the city where I was born, and where I desire that, one day, my heart may rest."

In the same month Grétry's friend desired him to visit his native city. The composer replied:—

"You do not cease to concern yourself about me, and this moves me even to tears. . . . You wish me to go to Liège for February 11, 1811; Oh! my friend, I can assure you that it would be impossible for me to endure either the journey or the ceremony which touches me so closely. Every time I expose myself to cold I spit blood: see to what thirty-five represented operas, coming out of my poor head, have reduced me! Now, in my good town, surrounded by you all, joy would suffocate me, and you do not wish me to die yet."

The new Place Grétry was not opened till June 3, 1811, when an imposing ceremony took place. A full and particular account of these may be found in the local journals of the day, one of which declares that "At six o'clock in the evening all the inhabitants of Liège were gathered in the Outre-Meuse quarter, where Grétry was born, where is the public place bearing his name, and where he received the glorious homage of his country." A large platform had been erected in the square; orchestra, chorus, artists, amateurs, officials, had a place on this elevation, and the proceedings began with the Overture to "Panurge." After certain official documents had been read, the quartet from "Lucile" was sung to words specially written, and followed by a speech from the Mayor, who said:—

"We celebrate to-day a family fête; to-day the country honours herself in honouring one of her children; to-day we solemnly inaugurate the Place Grétry: what Liègeoise does not mention the name of Grétry with tender sentiment, and does not claim him as a compatriot with noble pride? You, inhabitants of a quarter famous for its courage, worthy of respect for its misfortunes, honourable for its active industry . . . you who, by the side of your cradles, have seen the cradle of Grétry: dwellers in the Quarter Outre-Meuse, you are proud of that name, you are happy in its glory. Ah! what name more celebrated in the world of art? and in the paths of glory, what renown more beautiful? His genius has charmed the world; his lyre has sung of gods, heroes, sublime and generous actions: 'Silvain,' 'Lucile,' 'Zémire,' 'Colinette,' and 'Le Tableau Parlant'—all his works—do they not receive the tribute of the heart, of talent, and of virtue? Wherefore Liège discharges a sacred debt when she inaugurates this public place and decorates it in the name of Grétry. Grétry, your immortal works have gained all suffrages; your fête, a civic fête, has united all hearts."

After this effort of oratory came more special music; the proceedings ending with the Overture to "La Caravane" and the March in "Panurge."

Satisfactory as was this unusual tribute to the worth of a composer, much more real value belongs to the extraordinary reaction in favour of Grétry's music which distinguished the year 1811. It has already been shown that the rise in Paris of Méhul, and other musicians, whose style was more energetic and noisy than that of the older master, put Grétry's works somewhat in the shade. After a time public taste returned to its old love, and, in January, 1811, began a remarkable series of revivals, which ran its course amid general applause. Among the operas reproduced were "Zémire et Azor," "La Caravane," "Les Evénements Imprévus," "Richard Cœur de Lion," "Colinette à la Cour," "Anacréon," and "Raoul Barbe-Bleue." Regarding this resurrection a critic of the period wrote:—

"The public, a little satiated with roulades . . . seemed transported with this altogether new melody (dating from 1775), so theatrical, expressive, and ingenious. It is in vain that fashionable musicians and singers have for long conspired to stifle this kind of music, this taste for natural, true, and varied song; it is in vain that they force themselves to substitute for these lively and animated accents I know not what insipid prattling, I know not what tiresome and monotonous twittering, in which one succeeds by means of artifice, without warmth, talent, or resources. The music of the 'Tableau Parlant,' one of the best of Grétry's works, is now forty-two years old, but more fresh and brilliant than that of to-day; it is full of energy, warmth, and life. At the present time we have airs inanimate and without colour. Composers even affect to disdain the elegant, spirituelle, and gracious workmanship, which they cannot approach."

Such testimony as this, and the revived taste for his music, must greatly have cheered the declining days of Grétry, and enabled him to bear up against increasing weakness, due to the advance of a chest malady, which had troubled him, more or less, from childhood. He was now settled peacefully at Rousseau's Hermitage, no longer disturbed by dread of a midnight assassin, but waiting with calmness for death, and tenderly cared for by his sister-in-law, Madame Grétry, and her daughters, one of whom had resided in the composer's house during his wife's lifetime. The master slowly but surely descended into the "valley of the shadow," and well knew whither he was going. But the knowledge did not disturb his placidity. Every day brought him nearer to the loved ones who had gone before, and if he looked back it was upon a laborious, honourable, and successful career, from which sprang no reproaches to trouble his last hours. So time went on till September, 1813, when the master's presence was required at the Institute for the awarding of musical prizes. Grétry, unable to attend, sent the following letter:—

"It is impossible for me to present myself at the Institute to consider the musical awards. On arriving at the Hermitage, still convalescent, I had a hemorrhage, which lasted three days and has thrown me into a condition of extreme weakness. At the present moment, swollen to the chest, I wait the end of my long sufferings. I am resigned, but I feel that, in quitting this life, one of my keenest regrets will be that I cannot any longer associate myself with my dear confrères for whom I have not less love than honour. Allow them, I beg you, to see this letter. Adieu, my dear confrère, I embrace you with all my heart."

Eleven days after these lines were written the honoured master passed away. At the moment of fatal seizure, the only person with him was his nephew, Flamand Grétry, who has put on record some interesting details:—

"His sister-in-law and nieces having gone to snatch a little repose, I spent this celebrated man's last night near his bed of suffering. How shall I describe the cruel situation in which I found myself during that frightful time? At each crisis I thought that he would expire. Occasionally he took my hand and thanked me for my attention, and that of his family, all of which he, alas! judged to be useless. The terrible moment approached which should separate for ever the best of relatives. Some hours later, Grétry, by a movement spontaneous and, to me, alarming, raised himself to a sitting posture, at the same time lifting up his dying eyes and failing arms towards heaven, without uttering a word. What was his thought? But soon his strength failed, and he fell prone, overcome by agony. Suddenly he called us around his bed, took our hands and said: 'Come, all of you—my children—I have only—only an hour to remain with you—I die!' We thought that he had sighed his last, but he again opened his eyes, looked fixedly at us, and asked for a glass of anisette. It was brought; he moistened his livid lips; his head fell again upon the pillow, and in a moment after he was no more."

No sooner was Grétry dead than overwhelming evidence appeared as to the esteem in which the whole nation held him. At that moment the French armies were being crushed by the Allies, despite the amazing genius shown by Napoleon in his extremity. Yet national misfortune did not wholly pre-occupy the public mind. There were many sorrowing for Grétry. The newspapers were full of eulogiums; prints, busts, and medals of Grétry were seen on every hand; breast-pins, snuff-boxes, and what not beside, were all adorned with the master's portrait. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that Paris gave her dead musician a solemn and imposing funeral.

In the first place a deputation of the Institute went down to Montmorency and escorted to Paris, with all honour, the remains of the lamented master. The body afterwards "lay in state," being visited by an immense crowd. On September 27 the funeral took place; a solemn procession passing along the Boulevards to the church of St. Roch. Pupils of the Conservatoire marched on each side of the hearse as a body-guard, the corners of the pall being supported by Méhul, Marsollier, Berton, and Bouilly, while, in front, a band composed of the best executants in Paris played a funeral march written by Gossec for the obsequies of Mirabeau. After halting in front of the Théâtre Feydeau and the Academy of Music, the procession reach the church, having been followed along its course by a crowd estimated at 30,000 persons. From St. Roch, the funeral cortège proceeded to Père La Chaise, where Méhul and Bouilly delivered orations over the open grave; around the speakers being grouped Cherubini, Gossec, Paer, Boieldieu, Berton, Catel, and many other musicians of fame. Méhul said:—

"At sight of the coffin, which will soon disappear from view, the same sentiment affects us; the same thought occupies us. We lament a great artist, and we contemplate with pride in his career all his qualities and claims to the admiration of posterity. These begin, for famous men, at the moment when they cease to exist, and too often it is only then that such men receive the tribute of esteem and gratitude deserved by useful and honourable toil. If, before consecrating a life to art, one could know at what price renown would be bought, men of pride and sensibility would prefer an obscure life to fame too much envied not to be the source of vexation. By a combination of circumstances so happy that it may hardly occur again, Grétry was never called upon to suffer the injustice of his contemporaries. Too superior in his line to be disquieted by rivalry, he knew nothing of the shameful worries which rivalry involves. Honoured at court, honoured in the city, favour and fortune were the reward of his happy labours. He received all the honours and distinctions which he deserved, and his long career was a long triumph. In this place, where he precedes us by a short time; in this place, where so many reputations are effaced for ever, his name will not be interred with his ashes. Grétry saw the raising of monuments which will immortalise his memory. Before closing his eyes he passed to the judgment of posterity and rejoiced in his deathless fame. May he enter upon eternal repose, and let us seek to assuage the bitterness of our regrets in thinking that he is happy, and that a prolonged old age has not added to the painful infirmities which saddened his last days."

"The death of a great artist does not resemble that of a common man. The one disappears entirely, but the other seems, so to speak, to live on in the creations of his genius. If Grétry has been taken from us by the common law of mortality, the treasures of his fertile imagination remain. That precious inheritance for us and our descendants forms part of the glory of the age which has just closed, and will be an unfailing source of pleasure to that which has just begun. A weak emulator of so great a master—of a master inimitable—in a word, of the Molière of lyric comedy, it would be sweet for me to offer to his manes the tribute of admiration which animates me, and to be the worthy interpreter of the regrets felt by the fine art section of the Institute; but a fear of sacriligious presumption prevents me from undertaking a task beyond my powers. There are men whose renown is at once so elevated and so popular that to name them is to recall their great qualities. Of these, Grétry is one, and Grétry will have as many admirers and panegyrists as there are souls sensitive to the beautiful art in which he became illustrious. I limit myself, then, to saying that he was admired for his talents and esteemed for his character, and that he will long be regretted by his family, his friends, and his numerous admirers."

Pompous ceremonial and eloquent eulogy were not the only means by which Paris honoured the dead composer. No fewer than ten of his principal operas were performed at the lyric theatres in rapid succession, and in presence of applauding crowds. But the record most suggestive of Grétry's popularity is found in an anecdote. As the master's imposing funeral passed along the street, some workmen came out of a shop to look on. "Is it a senator?" asked one of an attendant. "Better than that," was the reply. "Is it a general?" "Bah! you are not in it." "Is it a prince then?" "Better still than that." "Might it be a brother of the Emperor?" "It is a sovereign—the sovereign of music in France; in a word, it is Grétry." "He who made us weep in 'Sylvain' and 'Richard Cœur de Lion'?" "Exactly." "And who made us laugh in 'La Fausse Magie' and 'Le Tableau Parlant'?" "Precisely." "And whose melodies we sing in all our workshops?" "The same." "In that case we will join the procession."

The heart of Grétry rests in his native city, but Liège did not obtain it without a long and bitter controversy with the composer's nephew, who resented the indecent manner in which the Mayor, when offered the precious relic, made such arrangements for its transmission as would have become the carriage of a common parcel.

Although Grétry is principally known as the composer of fifty operas, he did not limit himself wholly to works for the lyric stage. Among his compositions for the orchestra are said to be six symphonies, written at Liège in the early part of his career. Of these, however, the master's industrious biographer can find no trace, and he has been equally baffled in his search for the six sonatas for clavecin declared, by M. Fétis, to have been published in Paris under date 1768. Neither can M. Gregoire discover the quartets sometimes attributed to his hero, other than those existing in the library of the Paris Conservatoire and entitled "Sei Quartetti per due violini, alto e basso, composta a Roma, Opera III." Grétry was scarcely more fertile in religious music. A "Confitebor" from his pen is sometimes heard in Belgian churches. Six motetts for two and three voices were composed at Rome in 1763, and a "De Profundis"—fragment of a "Requiem"—was written specially for the master's own funeral, and spoken of by Grétry to Berton only two days before his death, but the MS. has mysteriously disappeared. It is clear from the master's meagre remains in the departments of music other than opera that the lyric stage commanded all his sympathies. There he was at home, and on its boards he built up his glory.

With regard to Grétry's dramatic music, an anecdote told by M. Béraud of Rossini is of interest and value. On an occasion, when Rossini, Nourrit, Taglioni, and a brilliant company had gathered at the house of Mdlle. Mars, some one contended that music was only a matter of fashion, and its beauties only beauties of convention. In support of this assertion, he instanced the works of Grétry, so popular once, but then so old and out of fashion. This brought up Rossini, who exclaimed: "Old and out of fashion! old and out of fashion! Know, Sir, that in every age . . . I will cite, for example, the very Grétry of whom you have dared to speak without knowledge. The beauties of Grétry still live. He is the most French composer that you have, although he was a Liègeois. It is doubtless true that Grétry was not perfect. He came at a time when opéra-comique was just born. Before him opéra-comique was only vaudeville with new songs. He was the first to give it style. What a melodic flight he made it take!

What ravishing developments in the expansion of ideas! What adorable truth in expression, and what dramatic strength! Grétry is wanting as regards harmonic treatment, it is true, but there is an observation to make which I will not follow up here—it is that, in Grétry's time, singing was on the stage, whereas now it is in the orchestra. Now, to tell you all my thought, with a mere trifle (un petit rien), one may complete this great composer, who can only be reproached with faults of orthography. Would you like a proof?" The company cried "Yes, of course"; and Rossini went on. "I will give you one in a moment. Nourrit, and you, Dabadie, are you acquainted with that little gem the duet in 'Les Deux Avares.'" "Yes, Maestro," answered the artists. "Do you know it?" "No doubt!" "Well then, sing it. I will put myself at the piano and add a mere trifle of accompaniment in my own fashion." Rossini at once improvised an accompaniment quite in harmony with the piece, but so rich and masterful that even the critics of Grétry broke into applause. "Well," exclaimed the great Italian as he rose from the instrument, "you see, I have only corrected his faults of orthography."

Another interesting extract is from M. Johannes Weber, who writes:—

"His (Grétry's) fundamental principle in vocal composition was to follow the inflexions of the declamation of the words. But having found that one could write an expressive melody without words, and add, afterwards, a very appropriate text, he predicted quite a revolution in opera—one of which Haydn's Symphonies had given him the first idea. 'A hundred times,' said he, 'I have suggested to those symphonies the words which they appear to demand.' This is what Grétry proposed: 'The author will write in verse only the text of the recitatives, that of the pieces in measured music being written in prose. The musician will compose his work for orchestra only, inspiring himself by the general sense of the prose words. The symphonic score finished, it will be performed, and the pieces which obtain no applause will be re-written. A second trial will then take place, the poet reading the words after each number, so that the correspondence of the music with them may be judged. Only then will verse be added.' I leave to Grétry the task of explaining the advantages secured by this new system. If he did not practise the plan himself, it was, he said, because every composer specially devoted to vocal music finds that a symphony often costs more labour than the most difficult scene. He recommended his system to composers of instrumental music. 'I have indicated to them,' he added, 'the means of making us equal, and of surpassing us, perhaps, in dramatic effect.'"

One other extract will serve to indicate Grétry's precise place in French art, and with it we may close this sketch of a famous and happy career. It is from the pen of M. Labat:—

"Grétry had the incontestable distinction of prodigiously developing musical taste in France. The education of a people in art proceeds little by little. In that regard, the French were an age behind the Italians, but, from the moment when Grétry's works appeared at the Opéra Comique, the gracious themes scattered about their scores, the true and touching expression of the melodies abounding in them, appealed to the popular fibre. Everybody sang them, and thanks to this happy influence, the entire nation shaped itself to the elegance of its new songs. France, which had not yet a school, properly so called, soon placed herself not only abreast of the country of Scarlatti, Leo, and Pergolesi, but was able to offer to Italy forms and qualities which she did not possess. If Gluck and Piccinni, and, after them, Méhul, Cherubini, Lesueur, carried the development of dramatic music to a degree much more elevated, it is not less true that Grétry smoothed the road for them, and prepared the public to understand the profound thoughts which those composers had to offer. The voice of the people, always just on subjects identified with their instincts, rendered a striking homage to the merit of Grétry."

A NEW METRONOME.

Mr. Fijean, the well-known Parisian mechanician, writes àpropos of the new metronome:—

"The well-known terms of 'largo,' 'adagio,' 'andante,' 'allegro,' 'presto,' and some others have for a long time been employed for various forms of expression, leaving, however, a great deal to the judgment of the performance. Since the adoption of Maelzel's metronome (c. 1816) the preceding terms have been accompanied by certain numbers, such as the following: 40 for 'largo,' 52 for 'adagio," 66 for 'andante,' 120 for 'allegro,' 184 for 'presto'; each answering to so many beats a minute, thus fixing the time of the measure. Thus, by means of a divided scale engraved upon a rigid rod forming a pendulum and bearing two little weights, of which the one which is movable, if placed at different heights, moved by clockwork, can beat at will all the tempi comprised between 40 and 208 beats a minute.

"If the instrument were always of the same construction—i.e., if to the same digit the same number of beats always corresponded, the problem might be regarded as solved, and it were futile to seek a new solution; but it is well known that it is not so, and that the indications of the instruments in general use to-day are very irregular and uncertain.

"Mr. Léon Roques considers that the causes of the irregularities in Maelzel's metronome are due to the fact that the chief portion of the instrument is a pendulum, set in motion by clockwork, in which the slightest difference in construction causes marked variation in speed, and, moreover, that the divisions of tempi marked on the pendulum have no relation, easy to verify, with the metrical length of the simple pendulum. Mr. Léon Roques has, therefore, endeavoured to construct a new metronome of which the indications may be more constant, and the verification more easy. To attain this end, he has had recourse to the well-known properties of a simple pendulum oscillating merely under the action of its weight, which may be regarded as invariable, whence it results that the number of oscillations in the same space of time—a minute, for example—only depend on the length of the pendulum, that is to say, on the distance—always easy to verify—between the point of suspension of the wire and the centre of the small swinging weight. On the other hand, the number of these oscillations being mathematically connected with the length of the pendulum, and the length of the pendulum, which makes 60 simple beats a minute, being known in metrical unity with great precision, one can easily calculate a scale of lengths giving for each division a fixed number of oscillations. It must further be noted, that the pendulum once set in motion gives lesser and lesser oscillation in consequence of atmospheric resistance, but the number of beats a minute remains unchanged in spite of their diminution in extent—provided certain limits be not passed, according to the phenomenon of isochronism.

"Such are the principles on which rest Mr. Roques's solution of the problem; but a difficulty is presented in its application relative to the variations of greater length than the simple pendulum seems to effect, in order to conform to the various movements used in music. Thus, for example, in changing from 'largo' to 'presto,' the length of the pendulum ought to change 2·236 to 0·106 mètres. Mr. Léon Roques has succeeded in avoiding these exaggerated dimensions in preserving the simplicity and precision of the indication by giving to his pendulum a length of 0·25 mètres, only as the maximum. This arrangement gives a scale of variations which at first appears very limited; but it is easy to extend it by a very simple device, consisting in reckoning for a single bar, sometimes one, sometimes two, sometimes four beats of the pendulum. A scale divided into three columns, engraved on the instrument, allows in all cases of an adjustment of the little pendulum according to the rate required, which thus can be varied from 30 to 236 beats a minute, sufficient to realise all customary tempi in music."

The want of good teaching in music is still occasionally manifest, despite the numerous manuals and other works designed to form a Royal road to learning. The answers to Examination Papers frequently disclose curiosities of knowledge which demonstrate a greater amount of want of perception on the part of the pupils than of care and painstaking on the part of masters. Exhibitions of incompetency are rarely displayed in the course of vivâ voce examinations, because the sympathies of the examiner prompt him so to frame his questions that the answers are more or less obvious. An Examination Paper is generally a plain dead thing, from which no amount of help can be obtained. The written answers remain, and the absence of expression upon its face never leads the writer into a consciousness of mistakes. The writing once delivered up stands as an unalterable memorial of the amount of information possessed by the writer. The report of the musical Examination of the Society of Arts discloses some gems of replies to ordinary questions, and there is no doubt that if other examiners would take the trouble to register their experiences some equally surprising and edifying facts would be elicited. Taking only the questions "Give a few particulars concerning the following musicians, and arrange their names in order of time:—J. S. Bach, Weber, Mendelssohn, Handel, Purcell, Gounod"; and "State what you know of the life of the composer of 'Le Nozze di Figaro.' Mention some other of his works." Some edifying facts are shown. These are portions of the answers:—Purcell was said to have written, among other things, an opera called "Ebdon and Eneas"; one writes that he was born 1543 and died 1595, that he wrote masses and reformed the church music; another that he was the organist of King's College Chapel, and wrote madrigals. One stated that he was born 1568 and died 1695; another gave his dates 1693, 1685. One said he was a German, born "somewhere in the nineteenth century," which statement another confirmed by giving his dates as 1817-1846; and, further, credited him with the composition of "The Woman of Samaria," and as having transposed plain-song from tenor to bass. Bach is said to have been the founder of the "Thames School Lipsic," the composer of the "Seasons," the celebrated writer of opera comique, born 16—, and having gone through an operation for one of his fingers, turned his attention to composition, wrote operas, and, lastly, that he was born in 1756 and died 1880, and that his fame rests on his passions. The facts about Handel are pretty correct, but we find that Weber wrote "Parsifal," "The Flying Dutchman," "Der Ring der Nibulengon." His dates are 1813-1883. Mendelssohn was born 1770, died 1827, studied under Hadyn (sic), and that he composed many operas. Gounod is said to be "a rather modern musician"; he wrote "Othello," "Three Holy Children," besides "Faust," and other works. Among the names given as the composer of "Nozze di Figaro," are Donizetti, William Sterndale Bennett, Gunod, and Sir Mickall Costa. The particulars concerning the real composer are equally interesting. (1) His name is spelt Mozzart, Mosarde, &c. (2) He was a well-known Italian, wrote "Medea," and others. (3) His first opera was "Idumea," or "Idomeo." (4) He composed "Lieder ohne Worte," "Don Pasquale," "Don Govianna" (the "Zauberfloat"), "Feuges," and his "Requiem" is the crowning glory of his "marvellious carere." (5) He was a German, "born 1756, at a very early age." If the dates given by another writer be true (born 1795, died 1659), it is certain that he must have died before he was born. The examiner is probably right when he says:—"All these things show want of proper teaching, want of revision of teaching, besides the probable use of indifferent text-books."

The full prospectus of the forthcoming Festival at Worcester has just been issued. The proceedings will commence with a Jubilee opening Service on Sunday, September 4, at which the customary sermon will be delivered by the Rev. John Gott, D.D., Dean of Worcester. A second Special Service will be held in the evening of the same day. Monday will be set aside for the necessary rehearsals, a portion of the previous Saturday will also be employed for a like purpose. The public Festival will commence on Tuesday morning, with a performance of "Elijah." On Wednesday Schubert's Mass in E flat, Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," and Spohr's "Last Judgment" will be given. On Wednesday evening Gounod's "Redemption" is to be performed, and on Thursday morning Mr. F. H. Cowen's new Oratorio "Ruth" will be heard for the first time, conducted by the composer; Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" will complete the morning's music. As usual, "The Messiah" will end the Festival proper. All these works will be given in the Cathedral. The daily services will not be interrupted in their course, the time only will be altered to suit the convenience of those who have to attend the Festival. Two miscellaneous Concerts will be given in the College Hall, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, when Sullivan's "Golden Legend," Stanford's Ballad "The Revenge," with a varied selection of vocal and instrumental pieces will form the attraction. A special closing Service by the three choirs will, as it were, serve to enclose the Festival and help to give the week's proceedings that character which, under the circumstances, it is right that they should possess. The orchestra, led by Mr. Carrodus, will consist of about eighty performers. Dr. Colborne, of Hereford, will be at the organ, erected by Nicholson for the occasion. Mr. Hugh Blair, B.A., will take the organ at the special services; Mr. Done, of Worcester, and Mr. Williams, of Gloucester, are the Conductors, and Madame Albani, Mrs. Glover-Eaton, Miss Anna Williams, Miss Hope Glenn, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Smith, Mr. Dyson, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. Brereton, Mr. Milward, and Mr. Watkin Mills are the principal vocalists. The Rev. T. Littleton Wheeler and his father are the honorary secretaries, and a large list of stewards as guarantors testifies to the local interest in the undertaking, which, of course, will be, as heretofore, for the benefit of the Poor Clergy of the three dioceses.

THE new Mass, written by Gounod in commemoration of Joan of Arc, was heard for the first time on Sunday, the 24th ult., in the Cathedral of Rheims, in the presence of Cardinal Langenieux, the Papal Nuncio, besides a large gathering of bishops and other church dignitaries, together with many musical celebrities. The work had been carefully rehearsed, under the personal superintendence of the composer, and its performance was most impressive in effect. The composition of the Mass arose out of a suggestion by Cardinal Lavigerie, who wished the composer to write something for the Festival of Pope Urban II., celebrated through the part he took in the Crusades; but Gounod found the genus loci inspired his mind with more sympathetic leanings towards the story of the peasant girl of Domremy, "Libératrice et Martyre," as he calls her in his dedication of the published work. The music is designed after the models supplied by Palestrina in his immortal contributions to the music of the Church, and it is marked by passages of great beauty as well as dignity. Many of the numbers are designed to be sung without accompaniment; for although in certain places the organ part is supplied with the voices, yet the composer is particular in calling attention to the fact—"on ne doublera les voix par l'orgue qu'en cas d'absolue nécessité," or "qui si les voix ne maintenaient pas irreprochablement la tonalité." There is no instrumentation properly so called, but a fanfare for trumpets in the prelude, upon the entry into the Cathedral at Rheims, precedes and follows a passage for sopranos, which typifies the effect of the "heavenly voices" heard by the Maid of Orleans before her mission. In the Benedictus, written in his own style, there is an exquisite passage for harps, with solemn and sustained tones of the organ. In all other places the organ alone supplies such instrumental tone as is needed. The Sanctus and the Agnus Dei are fine pieces of writing in the church style. The Mass ends with a glorious outburst of harmony, symbolising the prayer for peace contained in the Dona Nobis. Gounod has many ardent admirers in England, and the work will command attention when it is given in this country.

ONE of those itinerant philanthropists, known to the vulgar as "quack doctors," but whom the local press more grandiloquently designate "peripatetic sons of Æsculapius," was wont to employ the services of a brass band to herald his approach into the larger towns on his circuit. In the lesser villages certain difficulties stood in the way of his obtaining this form of help. As he found that music was always most attractive in calling attention to his speeches, advocating the unheard of virtues of his pills, salves, elixirs, and plaisters, he decided to have a hand-organ especially made for his purposes. He gave the order to an eminent firm in Clerkenwell, stipulating only that the tone should be loud and the tunes popular. The workman who "pricked" the tunes on the barrel was an Italian, and his knowledge of English orthography somewhat limited, so that his description of the airs was rather peculiar. When the organ reached its destination the greatest satisfaction was expressed, because the "professor" found that the first melody on the barrel was "See, the corncuring hero comes."

A CONTEMPORARY journal, in noticing the performance of young Josef Hofmann on the 4th ult., prints two accounts from different correspondents. One states that the boy played "Beethoven's C minor Concerto (without book), the orchestral part being performed upon another piano by his father." The other says, "The programme was headed by Beethoven's Concerto in C major (not C minor, as stated), repeated after the great success at the Philharmonic Concert; the orchestral part to it was played on the second piano by Mr. Hofmann père." Did the boy play both? If not, "who shall decide when doctors disagree?" especially when they write their prescriptions in the same paper.

OF how many organists can it be said that they have attended the same church and played the same organ for fifty years? Mr. Joseph Kerfoot, the organist of Winwick Parish Church, has fulfilled that function for forty-nine years, and will complete his jubilee in December. During these years he has only missed one service, and has traversed over 42,000 miles in his journeys backwards and forwards, his residence being eight miles from the church. It is at the present time peculiarly interesting to note that Mr. Kerfoot was born in the same year as the Queen, and became organist at Winwick Church in the year of her coronation.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

MR. MAPLESON re-opened this house during the last week of June for another short and disastrous season, which failed, if anything, more completely than did its predecessor under the same roof. The impresario, always sanguine, may have persuaded himself into a belief that one or two performances a week with Madame Patti (who claimed nearly all the reasonably expected proceeds) would float the whole concern. If so, he must have been miserably disappointed. After some preliminary representations of "Carmen," "Faust," "Fidelio," and "Mefistofele"—in which a talented soprano, Miss Oselio, made a good impression—Madame Patti appeared (the 1st ult.) as Violetta in "La Traviata." There was an immense attendance, every part of the theatre being crowded, while, as a matter of course, the greatest among living singers evoked enthusiastic applause. What was the easily foreseen result? Mr. Mapleson, we suspect, received very little of the proceeds, and found his ordinary performances utterly extinguished. Even he, accustomed as he is to look upon the bright side of things, saw this, and soon suspended them, intending to open the house only on Patti nights. But the diva never appeared again. Her second advertised representation did not come off, because, as was said, the prima donna had caught cold. So sudden was this that the theatre had to be shut, in default of a substituted opera. A third announced appearance had the same result, for other reasons, into which we do not care to enter. Nothing is more disgusting to lovers of art than the squabbles of its professors, and especially the intrigues of opera. The whole thing has an evil savour, and we will only add that Mr. Mapleson, having given his disappointed public a gratuitous performance of "Carmen" and promised to return their money, shut up the house to open it no more.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

MR. LAGO brought his season to an end on the 16th ult., having, between the date of our previous notice and that time, carried on his performances with no disappointment to the public, a negative credit which he supplemented by the very positive production of Glinka's "Life for the Czar." The manager may fairly be congratulated upon bringing out the only novelty of the Italian season, and a very interesting one to boot, because representative of the early days of Sclavonic art, and, in itself, the first result of a serious effort to assert Sclavonic talent in the face of Europe. It may be that, generations hence, "Life for the Czar" will have greater significance than now. Thoughtful minds see clearly enough that the Slavs are the "coming people," and when that race figures in art much more largely than now, the initial effort of Michel Glinka is certain to receive the attention due to the forerunner.

The earlier proceedings of the time under notice need not long detain us. They were signalised by a production of Rossini's "Guillaume Tell," upon which there is no reason to look back with special satisfaction. Rossini's opera is an exacting one, impossible of justice when the stage is only half-manned. Mr. Lago did not sufficiently recognise this, and the great choral and spectacular effects were very poor indeed, by comparison with those to which we were accustomed, years ago, upon the same stage. The principal characters were, however, in fairly good hands; favourable mention being deserved by Miss Ella Russell (Matilda), Mr. Prevost (Arnold), Mr. Devoyod (Tell), and Mr. Campello (Walter). Mr. Prevost made his first appearance in this country. He is a tenor of exceptional capacity, having some very good, if not very robust, high notes, and a warmth of manner that served him well in the great trio of the second act, rousing to cordial approval an audience of more than Covent Garden coldness. The opera was twice performed in the face of considerable public indifference; Mr. Lago's patrons showing quite clearly that, as presented, they cared very little about it. But such amateurs as were content to hear Rossini's music with small regard for anything else, had occasion for satisfaction, and enjoyed themselves accordingly.

"Guillaume Tell" was followed by "I Puritani" (June 30), put on, apparently, for no other reason than that the principal character suited Madame Albani, who played Elvira to the Arturo of Mr. Gayarré, the Riccardo of Mr. D'Andrade, and the Giorgio of Mr. Lorrain. It would be superfluous to dwell upon a performance which belonged in all respects to the most ordinary class of Italian opera doings. "Semiramide" came after "I Puritani," with Madame Cepeda as the Assyrian Queen, Madame Scalchi as Arsace, and Mr. Campello as Oroe; the next in order being "Linda di Chamouni," with Miss Ella Russell, Madame Scalchi, Mr. Cotogni, and Mr. Carbone in parts which the reader will with ease distribute correctly. Mr. Lago then played the trump card of his season, Glinka's "Life for the Czar." Our remarks upon this work must needs be influenced as to length as well as character by the fact that the Russian opera is not likely to figure permanently in the repertory of the Anglo-Italian stage. Its interest cannot be denied, but the whole thing is too intensely national to find much favour out of Russia. The more national such a work is, the more it exercises only a local influence, and one must be a Russian to go into raptures over "Life for the Czar." The opera has a Russian subject, its predominant feeling is Russian patriotism, and its music largely bears a Russian character. This explains, to a great extent, why "Life for the Czar" has never obtained a permanent footing beyond the range of Russian sympathies. We shall spare the reader a long story anent the genesis, character, and history of the work; full particulars having recently appeared in The Musical Times in connection with Mr. Bennett's biographical sketch of the composer. It is only needful to point out that the charm of Russian and Polish national airs, great though it be, does not suffice to float an opera. Some of the solos are, no doubt, pleasing, and there is a quartet, having the characteristics of Greek Church music, which every hearer of taste and judgment must approve. The Polish dance music, too, is delightful, and was associated at Covent Garden with some first-rate dancing by a ballet imported from Warsaw. But these advantages, even as aided by a satisfactory representation all round, did not redeem the opera from a certain dulness, due, in part, perhaps, to a clumsy libretto, and still more to heavy music long drawn out. The far-stretching movements, sombre and low-toned, had their inevitable effect upon an audience fond of brightness and animation, so it happened that as the opera dragged along, like the "wounded snake" of Pope's "Alexandrine," the audience grew weary and began making a rapid exit. None the less should the performance be praised, and credit be given on account of it to Mr. Bevignani, the clever Conductor, and to Madame Albani, Madame Scalchi, Mr. Gayarré, and Mr. Devoyod, by whom the parts of Antonida, Wania, Sobinin, and Sussanin were respectively sustained. No great amount of money had been spent upon the mise-en-scène—a fact which should give pleasure to those friends of Mr. Lago who desire for him a course of wise economy. After "Don Giovanni" (the 14th ult.), Glinka's Opera was performed a second time on the 16th ult., when the season came to an end.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, DRURY LANE.

Mr. Harris's season of Italian opera ended somewhat abruptly on the 23rd ult., being shorn of its designed proportions by one week. The impresario was quite right not to carry his operations beyond the limit of the season, and set his performances against the attractions of Goodwood and country life, to which everybody who could get away was hastening. But up to the date just given he worked with extraordinary vigour, and, every night, put an opera worthily upon the stage—an old one, it is true, but one that often derived new interest from the manner of its presentation. On June 27 "Lucia" served for the introduction of Miss Gambogi, daughter of the Italian tenor bearing the same name. The young lady's means did not suit so large a house, and, though she is a neat, well-trained singer, Mr. Harris made no further use of her. Miss Sigrid Arnoldson followed, with her second appearance in "Il Barbière," and about this time Mr. Harris lowered his prices from the fancy standard of Italian opera to the more reasonable theatre figure. It is safe to assume that the change was much to his advantage.

On June 30 "Carmen" presented the fine mise-en-scène which obtained so much approval during Mr. Rosa's English season; Madame Minnie Hauk again representing the heroine in her own inimitable fashion, supported by Mr. Del Puente, Mr. Runcio, and Miss Engle. Bizet's standard work, the popularity of which seems incapable of diminution, was followed by "Don Giovanni," Miss Sigrid Arnoldson playing Zerlina. We are sorry to say it, but there is no doubt whatever that the promise of the young Swedish lady's Rosina was not sustained. The audience even allowed one of Zerlina's airs to pass without an encore, and were little better than half-hearted in demanding a repetition of the other. For this reason, perhaps, Miss Arnoldson did not assume another character during the season. Her advisers may have thought that quasi-failure should not be risked just at this time. If so, they were quite right. The Don of Mr. Maurel was, as usual, a first-class effort, that left little indeed to be desired.

On the 11th ult. Mr. Harris made another "hit" by putting "Les Huguenots" on the stage, so as to win the hearty approval of connoisseurs, amateurs, and the general public alike. We attach little importance to his revival of the long discarded last act. It comes very late; few people stop for it, and its musical claims are not of the greatest. The manager might, therefore, have spared himself some expense, and his artists some trouble. But the fault—if so we may call it—was on the right side. The performance may fairly be described as the best for some years past, thanks to the co-operation of Miss Nordica (Valentine), Miss Fabbri (Urbano), Mr. Jean de Reszké (Raoul), Mr. Maurel (Nevers), Mr. Foli (Marcel), and Mr. Edouard de Reszké (St. Bris). These excellent artists carried Meyerbeer's great work through triumphantly, and helped to give the Drury Lane season a red-letter night of the highest value. No words of praise are too strong for the acting and singing of Miss Nordica and Mr. Jean de Reszké in the great duet. They rose fully to the occasion, and evoked a storm of applause. This revival was the last notable event of Mr. Harris's season, which will long be remembered for its liberality and thoroughness.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Notwithstanding the many counter attractions in the neighbourhood, and the character of the weather which prompted out-of-door amusements, there was a very good audience at the Royal Albert Hall, on Saturday, the 2nd ult., at the grand Concert in honour of the fiftieth year of her most Gracious Majesty's glorious reign, given by the artists of the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. Mdlle. Sandra took part in the quartet, "Un di si ben," with Madame Scalchi, Signor Figner, and Signor D'Andrade, who each gave solos; Signor D'Andrade making the customary effect with "Eri tu." Signor Gayarré's reading of the aria "Deserto in terra" and Salve dimora (violin obbligato, Mr. Carrodus) was greatly enjoyed and heartily applauded. Signor Campello's fine voice was heard to great advantage in the aria from Ernani, "Infelice."

Signor Carbone introduced with great ability the clever and once extremely popular Tarantella, by Rossini, "Gia la luna"; Madame Medea Mei sang the aria "Roberto tu che adoro"; Mdlle. Sandra, with the chorus of the Opera, gave a spirited, if not highly satisfying, reading of the "Inflammatus," from the "Stabat Mater"; Madame Scalchi also chose an aria of Rossini's, "Ah! quel giorno," from "Semiramide," and joined with Madame Albani in the duet "Quis est homo." Madame Albani's solos, "Ardon gl' incensi" (flute obbligato, M. Brossa), and Dr. Mackenzie's brilliant and stirring song from the Jubilee Ode, "More than crown of monarch precious," conducted by the composer, were enthusiastically received, Dr. Mackenzie receiving quite an ovation. The programme further contained the Polonaise from Glinka's Opera "La Vie pour le Czar," excellently given by the orchestra and chorus; a fantasia for clarinet upon airs from "La Sonnambula," cleverly played by M. Gomez, and Tschaikowsky's "Caprice Italien," for orchestra, performed for the first time in England. This admirably written and interesting composition should serve to introduce a better knowledge of the labours of the composer, who is one of the foremost among the rising Russian musicians. His pianoforte works are known in England, but the best expressions of his artistic mind are to be found in those of his productions in which the orchestra is employed. London amateurs will thank Signor Bevignani, who conducted with consummate skill, for having been the means of calling their attention to a new pleasure. A performance of "The Golden Legend" was given also at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 13th ult., for the benefit of the Middlesex Hospital. The soloists, Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Mr. Lloyd, and Signor Foli, were all in perfect voice, and rendered the fullest justice to their respective parts. The performance was conducted by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

RICHTER CONCERTS.

THE season ended with a performance of Bach's Magnificat and Beethoven's Choral Symphony, those works being preceded, unaccountably enough, by a piece so different as the Overture to "Tannhäuser." There was, we presume, a real or fancied necessity to have Wagner in the programme; hence a conjunction startling, incongruous, and every way to be deprecated. Both the monumental creations of Bach and Beethoven were given with care and success, under Mr. Richter's intelligent direction, the solos being taken by Miss Marriott, Miss Lena Little, Mr. Bernard Lane, and Mr. Watkin Mills. In the Magnificat the exertions of these artists met with small response from an audience quite out of touch with Bach's airs, but the splendid choruses made their wonted effect, and were heard with unfeigned pleasure. With regard to the work of the orchestra, we cannot praise in excess of deserts. Here Mr. Richter's influence was manifest at its fullest, and the result could hardly have been better. In the instrumental movements of Beethoven's Symphony, the good results of recent changes in the personnel of the orchestra was very apparent. It may be questioned whether Mr. Richter ever conducted a finer performance in England, the strings being heard with all requisite fulness and splendour of tone. This performance worthily ended the first season under Mr. N. Vert's management. Regarding its pecuniary success we know nothing, and are not disposed to indulge in guesses. Our hope is that Mr. Vert has made both ends meet, and that, by making the programmes as comprehensive as possible, he will go on to reap a full reward for all his risk and labour.

PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

ALTHOUGH certain artists of the first calibre who were expected this season failed to put in an appearance, doubtless for good and sufficient reasons, a number of those who, without fear of offence, may be denominated lesser lights, came forward in swift succession to the very end of the season. The first of whom we have to take note this month is Miss Martha Remmert, who somewhat rashly essayed a performance in St. James's Hall on Tuesday evening, the 28th ult. It seems to be generally recognised that Pianoforte Recitals should take place in the afternoon, and the number of empty benches suggested a lack of wisdom in the effort to induce the public to alter an established custom.. It may be said frankly, however, that Miss Remmert is an executant of remarkable ability. In respect of physical means she reminds us somewhat of Miss Sophie Menter, her execution being very powerful and, at the same time, commendably accurate. Her sympathies would appear to be with the ultra-modern school, as the two most prominent items in her programme were Weber's Concertstück, arranged for two pianos by Hans von Bülow, and Liszt's Concerto in E, also arranged for two pianos.

Another German pianist who sought for, but only obtained in small measure, the support of London amateurs, was Madame Hermann, who gave a Recital at the Princes' Hall on the 1st ult. In her instance the executive facility displayed was really the only noteworthy point in the performance. Madame Hermann went through Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, Mendelssohn's Fantasia in F sharp minor (Op. 28), Chopin's Polonaise in A flat, and various smaller pieces, in a dry, soulless manner—correct as to the notes, but totally lacking in the higher qualities of pianoforte playing. It is of no use to mince matters; mediocrities are far too numerous, and should not be encouraged.

The appearance of a distinct luminary in the field of art is generally followed by a host of imitators, and the case of little Josef Hofmann is no exception to the rule. Miss Pauline Ellice, who gave a Concert at St. James's Hall on the 7th ult., is officially stated to be eleven years old, and she has therefore an advantage of a year—not two years as stated elsewhere—over her juvenile rival. We believe she is chiefly indebted for her present command over the keyboard to Mr. Franklin Taylor, and she is certainly a pupil of whom any master would feel proud. Such works as Beethoven's Concerto in C minor, Mendelssohn's Capriccio in B minor, and Liszt's arrangement of Weber's Polacca in E, constitute together no mean test of an adult pianist's ability, and Miss Ellice played them with almost unfailing accuracy. More than this it is impossible to say, and we see no special reason for the young lady's very early entrance on a public career. The orchestral accompaniments were rendered in a somewhat rough and perfunctory mannner, Mr. George Mount conducting.

Another young aspirant, whose name, however, is by no means unfamiliar to the public, was Miss Jeanne Douste, who gave a Recital at the Princes' Hall on the 9th ult. If we remember rightly, this young lady, together with her sister, Miss Louise Douste, first appeared about twelve years ago, so that she can be no longer a child, though her appearance and manner are distinctly youthful. She commenced badly, a breakdown occurring in the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata in B flat (Op. 22), but afterwards she fairly warmed to her work, and played with a good deal of spirit and energy.

Signor Giuseppe Buonamici, of Florence, gave a Pianoforte Recital at the Princes' Hall, on the 11th ult., in aid of the Liszt Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music. Signor Buonamici, by a thoroughly artistic rendering of the F major Variations of Beethoven (Op. 34) as the opening piece, exhibited a delicacy of touch and intelligent manner of phrasing which delighted the audience. Although to the minds of many present Signor Buonamici was happiest in his performance of the quieter and more poetical passages—his reading of Chopin was as near perfection as possible—yet the boldness and passion of his execution in the "Benediction de Dieu," and some of the lesser pieces by Liszt, especially the Etude in E, d'après Paganini, roused the audience to actual enthusiasm. The two symphonic poems, "Hungaria" and "Mazeppa," were played on two pianofortes by Mr. Walter Bache and Fritz Hartvigson, the second pianoforte being used for the orchestral accompaniments. The efforts of both the players were greatly applauded.

MR. CHARLES HALLÉ'S CONCERTS.

Two more of these pleasant summer entertainments remain to be noticed. At the seventh Concert, on the 1st ult., Brahms's Sonata in F, for piano and violoncello (Op. 99), was given for the second time, with Mr. Franz

The Musical Times, August 1 1887.

The sun shall be no more thy light by day

ANTHEM FOR A SAINT'S DAY OR FESTAL USE.

Isaiah lx. 19, xxxiii. 17; and Hymn by the Lord Bishop of Lichfield.

Composed by the Rev. H. H. Woodward, M.A., Mus. Bac., Minor Canon of Worcester.

Moderately fast.

Soprano. mf The sun shall be no

Alto. mf The sun shall be . . no . .

Tenor. mf The sun shall be no

Bass. mf The sun shall be no

Moderately fast.

Organ. ♩ = 100. Gt. Stop. Diap. & Dul. Sw. mf cres. more thy light by day; . . f nei - ther for bright-ness the moon by night, the p cres. more thy light by day, thy light by day; f nei-ther for bright-ness the moon by night;

cres. more thy light by day, thy light by day; f nei-ther for bright-ness the moon by night;

cres. more thy light by day; f nei - ther for bright-ness the moon by night;

f dim.

cres. sun shall be no more thy light by day, f nei - ther for bright-ness the p cres. the sun shall be no more thy light by day, f nei - ther for bright-ness the p cres. the sun shall be no more thy light by day, nei-ther for bright-ness the p cres. the sun no more thy light by day, f nei - ther for bright-ness the p cres. Gt. f

dim.
p
moon by night, nei - ther for bright-ness the moon by night:
moon by night, nei - ther for bright-ness the moon by night:
moon by night, nei - ther for bright - ness the moon by night:
moon by night, nei-ther for bright-ness, for bright-ness the moon by night:
Sw.
Ch.
Majestically.
f
but the Lord thy God shall be thine ev - er-last-ing ff
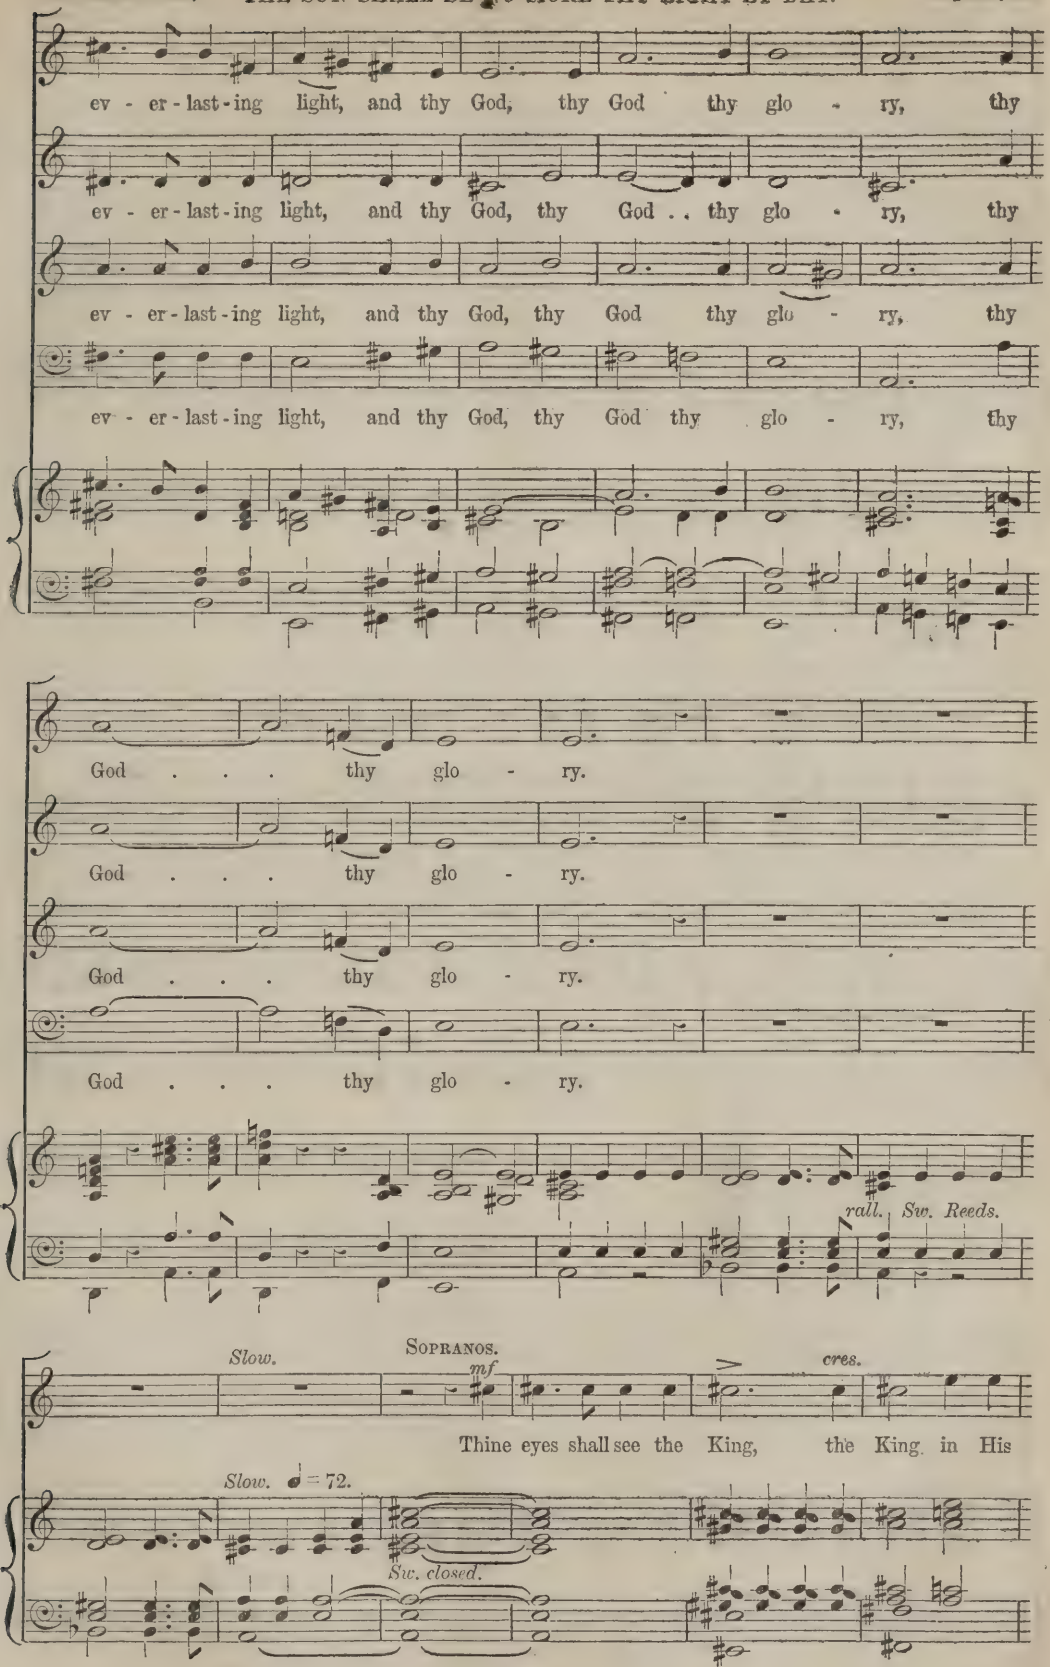
Gt. f
Poco stac.
light, and thy God, thy God thy glo - ry, the Lord thy God shall be thine



ev - er - last - ing light, and thy God, thy God thy glo - ry, thy ev - er - last - ing light, and thy God, thy God . . thy glo - ry, thy ev - er - last - ing light, and thy God, thy God thy glo - ry, thy ev - er - last - ing light, and thy God, thy God thy glo - ry, thy God . . . thy glo - ry.
God . . . thy glo - ry.
God . . . thy glo - ry.
God . . . thy glo - ry.
rall.
Sw. Reeds.
Slow.
Sopranos.
mf
cres.
Thine eyes shall see the King, the King in His Slow. ♩ = 72.
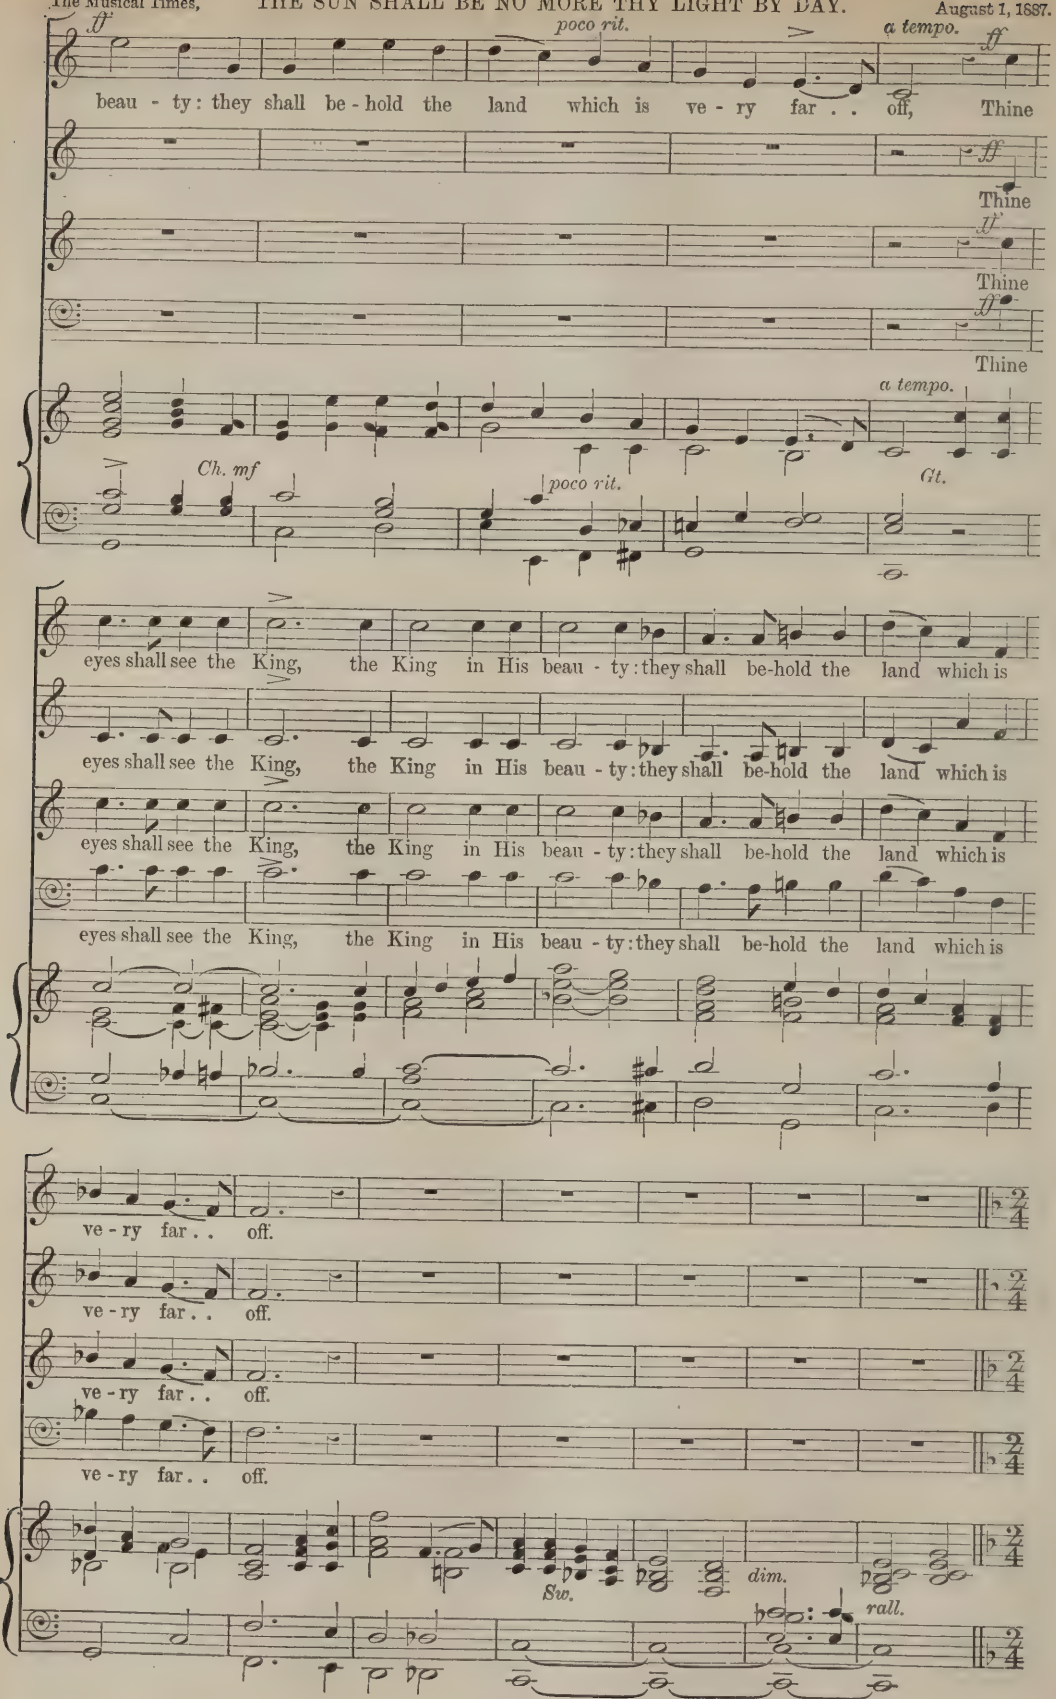
Sw. closed.



ff
poco rit.
a tempo.
ff
beau - ty: they shall be - hold the land which is ve - ry far . . off, Thine ff
Thine
ff
Thine
ff
Thine
a tempo.
Ch. mf
poco rit.
Gt.
eyes shall see the King, the King in His beau - ty: they shall be-hold the land which is eyes shall see the King, the King in His beau - ty: they shall be-hold the land which is eyes shall see the King, the King in His beau - ty: they shall be-hold the land which is eyes shall see the King, the King in His beau - ty: they shall be-hold the land which is ve - ry far . . off.
ve - ry far . . off.
ve - ry far . . off.
ve - ry far . . off.
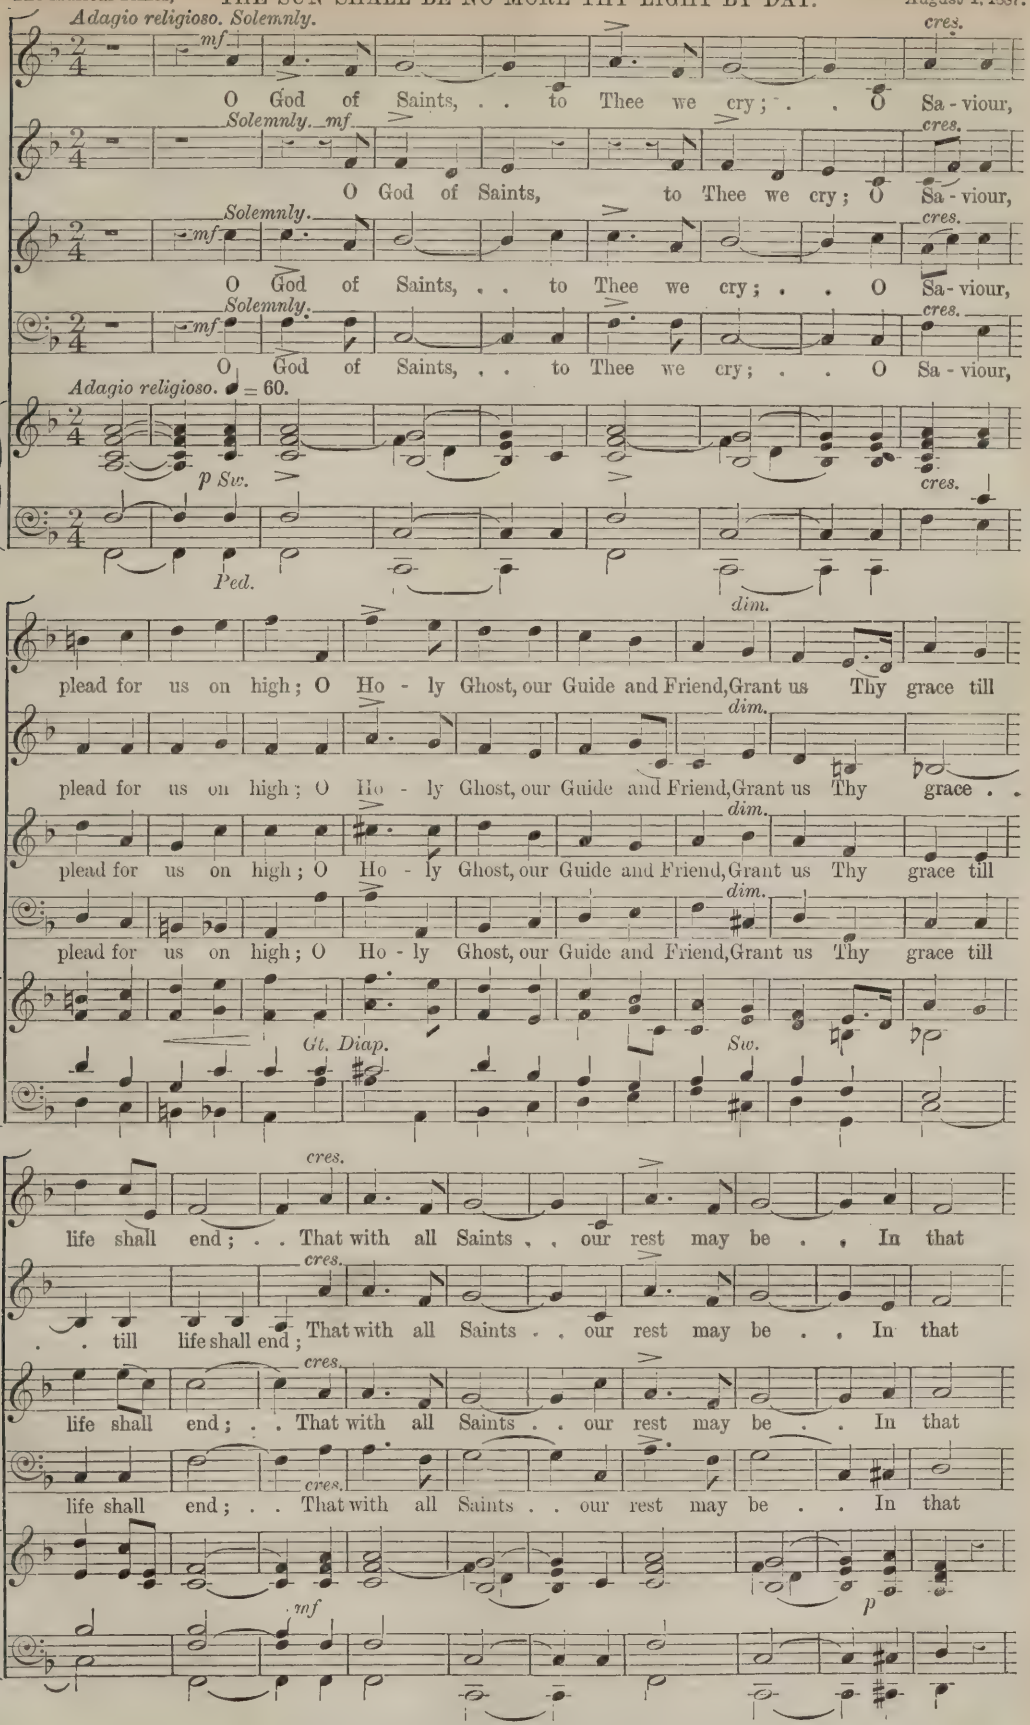
Sw.
dim.
rall.



Adagio religioso. Solemnly.
mf
cres.
O God of Saints, . . to Thee we cry; . . O Sa - viour, Solemnly. mf
cres.
O God of Saints, to Thee we cry; O Sa - viour, Solemnly.
mf
cres.
O God of Saints, . . to Thee we cry; . . O Sa - viour, Solemnly.
mf
cres.
O God of Saints, . . to Thee we cry; . . O Sa - viour, Adagio religioso. ♩ = 60.
p Sw.
cres.
Ped.
dim.
plead for us on high; O Ho - ly Ghost, our Guide and Friend, Grant us Thy grace till
dim.
plead for us on high; O Ho - ly Ghost, our Guide and Friend, Grant us Thy grace . .
dim.
plead for us on high; O Ho - ly Ghost, our Guide and Friend, Grant us Thy grace till dim.
plead for us on high; O Ho - ly Ghost, our Guide and Friend, Grant us Thy grace till Gt. Diap.
Sw.
cres.
life shall end; . . That with all Saints . . our rest may be . . In that
cres.
. . till life shall end; That with all Saints . . our rest may be . . In that
cres.
life shall end; . . That with all Saints . . our rest may be . . In that
cres.
life shall end; . . That with all Saints . . our rest may be . . In that mf
p bright Pa - ra - dise . . with Thee, . . That with all Saints . . our bright Pa - ra - dise with Thee, . . That with all Saints . . our bright Pa - ra - dise . . with Thee, . . That with all Saints . . our bright Pa - ra - dise with Thee, . . That with all Saints . . our Voices only.

Gt. mf
Sw.
cres.
rest may be . . . In that bright Pa - - ra - dise . . with rest may be . . . In that bright Pa - - ra - dise with rest may be . . . In that bright Pa - - ra - dise with rest may be . . . In that bright Pa - - ra - dise with Voices only.
Strict time.
lunga.
Thee. . A - - men, . . A - - - - - men.
Thee. . A - - men, . . A - - - - - men.
Thee. . A - - men, . . A - - - - - men.
Thee. . A - - men, . . A - - - - - men.
Strict time.
lunga.
Sw.

Néruda as the violoncellist. The work is likely to be in frequent request, as it is unusually clear and concise for this composer. Spohr's Trio in F (Op. 123), performed for the first time, is in every respect worthy of the Cassel master, though it possesses no special characteristics. The best movement is the Larghetto, which is very lovely. Mr. Hallé played Beethoven's thirty-two Variations in C minor, and joined with Madame Néruda in Schubert's Fantasia in C, for piano and violin (Op. 159), the manner in which these familiar works are rendered by the artists named being well known to lovers of chamber-music. Miss Marguerite Hall, as the vocalist, made a decidedly favourable impression, her best efforts being Schumann's "Widmung."

Mr. Hallé, like his exemplar, Mr. Arthur Chappell, always takes care to bring his season to an effective termination. The special attraction on the 8th ult. was Beethoven's ever fresh "Kreutzer" Sonata for piano and violin, which of course received the fullest justice at the hands of the Concert-giver and Madame Néruda. Another item, which pleased greatly, was Haydn's Quartet in A (Op. 20, No. 6), one of the shortest and simplest of the eighty-three, but none the less interesting on that account. A set of Variations for piano, violin, and violoncello, on a theme of Schumann's, by Iwan Knorr, may be pronounced clever, but dry. Mr. Hallé's highly intellectual and technically perfect interpretation of Schumann's Fantasia in C (Op. 17) afforded a very valuable lesson to students. Miss Agnes Jansen was the vocalist, but her rendering of songs by Schumann, Grieg, and Maude White does not call for remark.

JOSEF HOFMANN.

This wonderful boy continued his weekly Recitals of pianoforte music up to the 14th ult., when the attendance was, if possible, greater than ever. We need not trouble our readers with particulars of all his performances, and it would be tedious to mention the selections in which he displayed his precocious talent. Enough that the power shown at the early Recitals were equally present in the later ones, if, indeed, the lad, encouraged by so many signs of approval and admiration, did not exert himself to even better effect. As time went on the public became more and more impressed, and we fear that Master Hofmann became the recipient of somewhat troublesome attentions. The army of autograph hunters certainly marked him down as legitimate prey, so that after each Recital the poor boy was kept busily ministering to their unreasonable requirements. Josef will return to this country in the autumn, and then undertake an extended tour in the provinces. It was the C minor Concerto (No. 3) which young Hofmann played at his Recital.

MISS GABRIELLE VAILLANT'S MATINÉE.

Among the Chamber Concerts which found place in the concluding weeks of the season that of Miss Vaillant may claim prominent mention. This was not the first appeal made by the young lady to the public, and it would seem that she has already secured a number of admirers, for the Steinway Hall was well filled on the 9th ult., despite the torrid weather. Lady violinists are becoming very numerous, but there are few among those who appear on the Concert platform who possess stronger artistic qualifications than Miss Vaillant. Her technical abilities were well tested in her solos, which included one of Veracini's Sonatas and a difficult Study by Ferdinand Hiller, and her command of taste and expression in Macfarren's Quintet in G minor for piano and strings, in which she was assisted by Mr. S. Kemp, Miss Ellis Roberts, Mr. Albert, and Mr. A. Harper. An interesting feature of the Concert was Schumann's "Märchenerzählungen" for piano, clarinet, and viola. These four "legendary tales" are among the composer's latest efforts, but they are surprisingly fresh and genial. The clarinet part was extremely well played by Miss Frances Thomas. The vocalists were Miss Adela Vernon, Madame Osborne Williams, and Mr. W. H. Brereton.

THE LONDON WAGNER SOCIETY.

Whether the members of the London branch of the United Richard Wagner Society met on June 28, in St. George's Hall, to do honour to their venerated master or merely to amuse themselves cannot be determined; in either case the proceedings, to a profane outsider, were peculiar, if not inexplicable. The meeting was styled a Conversazione; that is to say, a Concert, with intervals for conversation between the pieces. Now, the Wagnerians are not to be blamed for performing selections from the Bayreuth composer's music-dramas in concert-room fashion. Wagner himself sanctioned such performances, and there is an end of the matter. But surely under the auspices of a Society that bears his name one might reasonably expect perfect execution, musically, of the various excerpts. We need not condemn the spirited rendering of the sailor's chorus from "Der Fliegende Holländer" by the German Liederkranz, under Herr Martin Müller, and the bright, fresh voices of the Hyde Park Academy Choir, under Mr. H. F. Frost, told well in the Spinning chorus from the same opera. But the effect of the opening scene of "Das Rheingold," with a piano accompaniment, was certainly not what the composer intended, and the farewell duet in "Götterdämmerung" suffered equally, though it is only fair to say that Mr. William Nicholl, who undertook the part of Siegfried, sang in tune. The "Siegfried Idyll," with the horn part played on a piano, was a fitting climax to a somewhat painful evening. If the Wagnerians cannot give a stage performance of one of the music-dramas, they surely might venture upon a properly arranged Concert.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The usual orchestral Concert given at the end of the summer term took place at St. James's Hall on the 16th ult., and was more than ordinarily successful. Perhaps the most interesting feature at these gatherings is the presentation of efforts in composition by the students. On this occasion there was only one such effort, but that was of unusual importance, nothing less, in fact, than a complete Symphony. Mr. J. Edward German, the composer, probably appreciated the honour thus conferred upon him, and we are not disposed to question the course adopted by the authorities. The Symphony is undoubtedly a work of great promise, though it is somewhat unequal. The first movement is in themes and workmanship thoroughly admirable, and the piquant Scherzo is even better. But in the slow movement Mr. German indulges in the modern vice of straining after effects by over orchestration, and the result is unsatisfactory. However, this defect may be due merely to inexperience, and we have every confidence that Mr. German will develop into a composer worthy to rank with those who are already at work in the formation of a genuine English school. As regards executants, we may select for special praise Mr. H. J. Wood, who played the first movement of Prout's fine Organ Concerto in E minor; Miss Kate Norman, soprano; and Miss Hannah Jones, contralto. There were others, however, who did almost equal credit to themselves and to the Academy, notably Mr. Crowther, who rendered the last two movements of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto tastefully. The effect of Mr. Barnby's admirable training was shown in the singing of the choir. Indeed, the rendering of Brahms's beautiful but arduous "Song of Destiny" would have done credit to any of our regular choral societies.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Emboldened by the unanimous verdict of approval which attended the performance of Cherubini's "Water Carrier" by the students last year, the authorities took a higher flight this year, and prepared "Der Freischütz," which was duly presented at the Savoy Theatre on June 27, in presence of a representative audience, including the Prince of Wales. Of course it would be idle to pretend that anyone of the young people who undertook the leading parts in Weber's masterpiece offered a presentment which would have passed muster at a regular opera house. Dramatically there was a certain stiffness, in spite of—perhaps because of—the very careful supervision of Mrs. Kendal, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Stirling, Mr. Visetti, and

Mr. B. Soutten. An easy, natural manner behind the footlights can only come with experience. Mr. Lionel Kilby displayed a promising light tenor voice as Max, Miss Anna Russell sang the music of Agnes with quiet taste, Mr. David Price did the same with that of Caspar, and Mr. Otto Fischer was fully competent in the dual parts of Prince Ottocar and Kilian. The greatest amount of stage aptitude was exhibited by Miss Annie Roberts as Aennchen, her singing and her manner being equally bright and pleasant. In one respect the performance compared favourably with that on the professional stage. The airs and affectations which are the bane of opera were conspicuous by their absence, no one leaving his or her part to acknowledge applause, or to tout for an encore. The chorus was admirable, and the orchestra, composed mainly of students, did great credit to the Conductor, Dr. Villiers Stanford.

The interest of the three concluding Concerts of the term was largely instrumental, owing to the co-operation of the orchestra at the performances of June 30 and the 14th ult. Schumann's Symphony No. 1, in B flat, was the chief feature of the programme given on the former date, and the two final movements, in particular, were excellently rendered under Professor Holmes's bâton. Cherubini's "Abencerrages" Overture and Beethoven's Violin Romance in F, in which the solo part was well played by Mr. Sutcliffe, and Max Bruch's "Kol Nidrei," with Mr. Squire as solo cello, were the other purely instrumental numbers, the orchestra supplying the accompaniment to Mr. Kilby in the romance "Through the Forest" ("Der Freischütz") and Miss Davies in Gounod's air "Far greater in his lowly state," in both of which the efforts of the vocalists seemed to meet the approval of the majority of the audience. Mr. Kilby was again to the fore in the Concert of the 7th ult., in which he sang two songs (MS.) by Charles Hoby, settings of words by Oliver Wendell Holmes, not wanting in a certain grace, but curiously incomplete in structure. The choice of vocal music and, it must be added, its execution at these Concerts is still on a very much lower level than that observed in regard to the instrumental selections. A welcome innovation, however, remains to be noted in the introduction of some part-singing under the direction of Mr. John Foster, who has succeeded Mr. Eaton Faning in this department. The material is good, and the tendency to run away from the beat, particularly noticeable in Bennet's Madrigal "All creatures now," will no doubt be corrected by further practice under so energetic a Conductor. The other items in the programme which call for notice were Beethoven's Sonata for pianoforte and violin, in G (Op. 96), played by Miss Annie Grimson and Miss Stone, the same master's Pianoforte Sonata in D minor (Op. 31, No. 2), well given by Miss Kellett, and, lastly, Schumann's immortal Quintet, in which Miss Osborn, Mr. Bent, Miss Elsner, Mr. Hobday, and Mr. Werge were associated with very satisfactory results. The last Concert of the term was in some respects one of the best ever given at the College. Goetz's lovely Symphony in F, recently performed for the first time at the Philharmonic Concerts, received such a rendering, thanks to Dr. Stanford's excellent preparation, as reflected the greatest credit on all concerned. The Intermezzo was played with the utmost delicacy, and the cantilena for the first violins in the Adagio was given with great purity of tone. Mr. Barton showed excellent taste and sympathy in his performance of the solo part of Mozart's Piano Concerto in D minor, introducing the graceful but diffuse cadences of Mr. John Francis Barnett. Sterndale Bennett's beautiful "Parisina" and Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" Overtures were also included in the programme, the vocal numbers being Joachim's scena "Marfa," "O had I Jubal's lyre," and Jensen's "Mürmelndes Lüftchen," sung respectively by Miss Squire, Miss Nunn, and Mr. Atkinson.

MUSIC IN SOUTH WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Generally speaking, there has been a lull in the local musical world of late. There have been a few matters deserving of notice, but public attention is now strongly directed towards the forthcoming Eisteddfod at the Albert Hall, London.

At Blaenavon, on the 18th ult., an Eisteddfod was held in the Park. Mr. D. Francis Martin was adjudicator. The chief choral prize of £15 went to the Blaenavon United Choir (Mr. J. Lumley, Conductor).

Madame Patti, who sang at Brecon some time since, in aid of the local hospital, has consented to appear again in that locality on the 10th inst., with a view to establish a "Patti-Nicolini Poor Fund," the interest of which is proposed to be distributed annually at Christmas.

The Brecon Archidiaconal Choral Union, comprising about 250 vocalists, held its Festival at the Old Priory Church, Brecon, on the 12th ult. The Rev. W. Howel, was Conductor, and the Rev. W. L. Richards, Merthyrl presided at the organ.

The news of the high position again attained by the Cardiff Blue Ribbon Choir, led by their Conductor, Mr. Jacob Davies, at the Crystal Palace Temperance Fête, on the 12th ult., was duly received. The choir was beaten by London, Nottingham coming third, Wellingborough and Hull also competing.

According to the programme for the coming National Eisteddfod at the Albert Hall, London, it appears that on Tuesday, the 9th inst., the leading event will be the competition for £50 and a gold medal between male-voice choirs. The competitors named are—Huddersfield Glee Society, Tredegar Orpheus, Merthyr Orpheus, Cynon Glee Society, Port Talbot Choir, Rhondda Choir, Brynaman Choir, Arfonic Choir, Glyn Tawe, London Welsh, Rhondda Glee Society, and Dowlais. The chief choral competition for a first prize of £200 and a gold medal, and a second prize of £50, will take place on the following day. The choirs entered are—Aberyschan and Pontypool, Huddersfield, Nottingham, Wrexham Philharmonic, Penrhyn Arfonic, Swansea District, Abercarn, and Llanelly. Dowlais is conspicuous by its absence. At three ensuing meetings there will also be some important events. A guarantee fund is being formed at Brecon, and it is proposed to memorialise the executive of the Eisteddfod to hold the National meeting of 1889 in that town.

In a further contribution to the local press, Dr. Parry, of Swansea, gives his views of an "ideal Eisteddfod." He is in favour of offering prizes in an extended range of pianoforte music, and he proceeds to say:—"My ideal Eisteddfod would also offer prizes for the study and solo playing of each member of the orchestral family—string, wood, and brass." The writer also reminds his countrymen that more remuneration could also be obtained as a result of the additional knowledge. I must confess that on the face of it it is strange that people in Wales, whose musical instincts are so strong, and whose desire to make money is no less manifest than that of persons elsewhere, should require so much pressing in this matter.

The Prince of Wales, it is announced, will preside at one of the National Eisteddfod meetings, and will be accompanied by the Princess of Wales and his two sons. Mr. Gladstone will preside on another day.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

New York, July 12, 1887.

The eleventh Annual Meeting of the Musical Teachers' National Association was held on the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th inst., in Indianapolis, Indiana. Its deliberations, and more especially the Festival which took place at the same time, form the most important of the musical doings in the United States in the interregnum between the close of the last and the opening of the next season. Among those who participated in it being Edward Fisher, of Toronto, William Barron, G. B. Sippi and Charles Sippi, of London, Ontario, and several others well known in the provinces. The business meetings were held in the Roberts Park Methodist Episcopal Church, the fine new Tomlinson Hall built last year by the city with money bequeathed to it by an old citizen being reserved for the Orchestral and Choral Concerts, of which five were given on three evenings and two afternoons, under the direction of Mr. Frank van der Stucken, of New York City. The orchestra was fifty strong, and also hailed from New York, as did the majority of the soloists. The choir was an unexpectedly fine body of four hundred singers, organised expressly to participate in the festival.

Numerous Recitals by pianoforte players, organists, and singers were given during the festival, but the larger Concerts were the only ones which had special significance. Of these there were three, and their value lay in their educational aim. The first two, given on the evenings of the 5th and 6th inst., brought forward a dozen compositions in various forms by American composers; the third gave a hearing to works by representative composers yet alive of European countries. The American programmes were as follows:—

First Concert:—Overture, "In the Mountains," Arthur Foote (Boston); Third Part of "Messe Solennelle," F. Q. Dulcken (New York); Selections from "Tempest" music, F. van der Stucken (New York); Rhapsody for pianoforte and orchestra, H. H. Huss (New York); Movement from "Spring" Symphony, J. K. Paine (Cambridge); Cantata, "Landing of the Pilgrims," Otto Singer (Cincinnati); Festival Anthem, Dudley Buck (Brooklyn).

Second Concert:—Concert Prelude and Fugue, Otto Floersheim (New York); Ballad, solo, chorus and orchestra, "The Rose," W. W. Gilchrist (Philadelphia); Cantata, "Henry of Navarre," G. E. Whiting (Boston); Symphonic Fantasia, F. X. Arens (Cleveland, Ohio); Dedication Ode, G. W. Chadwick (Boston).

Third Concert:—Overture, "Waldmeister's Brautfahrt," Gernsheim (German); Air, "Reine de Saba," Gounod (French); Interlude from "Jason," Mackenzie (English); Scherzo, Sgambati (Italian); Concerto, G minor, for pianoforte, Saint-Saëns (French); Melody for strings, Grieg (Scandinavian); Ball Scene from "Charlotte Corday," Benoit (Flemish); Vocal Duets, Rubinstein (Russian); Slavonic Dance, Dvorák (Bohemian).

All of this music was new to the audiences that listened to it. Three additional compositions deserve also to go on the record as belonging to the class of American novelties, though they were heard at other Concerts. They were a Sextet for strings, by J. H. Beck, of Cleveland, Ohio; a Gavotte for orchestra, by Arthur Bird, now in Berlin; and a "Dance of Egyptian Maidens" for orchestra, by Harry Rowe Shelley, of Brooklyn. The works all received creditable representation and were listened to with many marks of warm approval by the assembled musicians. This was the third meeting of the Association at which American compositions of larger scope than pianoforte compositions were produced, and the exhibition of results attained was in the highest degree creditable to the American movement. Not even the most sanguine advocate of that movement expected to discern a masterpiece in the list, but the learning, earnestness, skill, and loftiness of ideal displayed by nearly all the compositions were highly suggestive of the possibilities that lie in the young school of American writers. The most prevalent defects noticeable were a weakness of fancy in the development of the fundamental ideas of the works, and a disposition to say too much. The exhibitions of skill in the handling of the technical elements of composition, notably in orchestral treatment, were numerous enough to set at rest all questions as to the studiousness of the young men who are clearing a way for the future representatives of an American school of composition.

Simultaneously with the Musical Teachers' National Association, the American College of Musicians held a Convocation. This institution is in the hands of some of the ablest musicians in the country, and is striving to elevate the standard of musicianship by means of degrees of various classes awarded to candidates who pass examinations. To show the thoughts which occupied the attention of the music teachers' meeting, a list of subjects, together with the names of those who formally discussed them, is appended.

"The Real Things of Music, and the Necessary Preparation for Teaching the Same," Henry Harding (Binghamton, New York) and Thomas Tapper (Canton, Massachusetts); "Notation and Terminology," Edward Fisher (Toronto) and A. R. Parsons (New York); "The Needs of the Musical Profession," J. H. Gower, Mus. Doc., Oxon. (England) and S. N. Penfield (New York City). Dr. Gower sent his paper in response to an invitation from the Association. "Expression in Piano-playing," Miss Amy Fay and Madame Fanny Bloomfield (Chicago); "Breathing in Relation to Piano-playing," C. B. Cadz (Ann Arbor, Michigan); "The Proper Use of Piano Pedals," Arthur Foote (Boston) and Richard Zeckner (Philadelphia); "Singing Flat and Singing Sharp," Leo Kofler (Brooklyn) and Charles Abercrombie (Chicago); "A few Practical Remarks on Singing," F. C. de Rialp (New York); "Principles of Voice Production," Dr. Ephraim Cutter (New York); "The American College of Musicians the Ally of the Competent Teacher," E. M. Bowman (St. Louis) and W. H. Sherwood (New York); "Schopenhauer's Musical Theories," Karl Merz (Wooster, Ohio); "Modernised Harmony and Specialised Sense Perception," W. S. B. Mathews (Chicago) and J. C. Fillmore (Milwaukee); "Practical versus Impractical Harmony," C. C. Müller (New York); "Knowledge of Educational Science a Requisite for School Work in Music," H. E. Holt (Boston) and M. Z. Tinker (Evansville, Indiana); "Science of Music versus Rote Practice in Schools," B. Jepson (New Haven, Connecticut) and W. T. Griffe (Logansport, Indiana); "The Musical Convention: its Utility and Abuse," H. S. Perkins (Chicago); "American Composition and its Recognition in and out of the Musical Teachers' National Association," Wilson G. Smith (Cleveland, Ohio) and Charles W. Landon (Claverack, New York); "Boy Choirs: their Training, Discipline, and Influence for Good," H. B. Roney (Chicago) and S. B. Whitney (Boston).

OBITUARY.

Death has recently removed two of the best-known teachers of music in London. Mr. J. B. Welch, whose success and popularity as a singing-master were remarkable, expired, on the 1st ult., after a very short illness. Mr. Welch studied singing in Italy under Signor Gaetano Nava, but as a baritone vocalist he did not make much way; and when he was about thirty years of age he gave up public singing, and directed his attention to the art of teaching. This was evidently his true vocation, and he soon became widely known. Many of his pupils have attained high rank in the profession, among them being Miss Anna Williams, Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Santley, and Messrs. Bridson, Brereton, and Henry Piercy. At the Guildhall School of Music, Mr. Welch's services were in extraordinary request, and a large number of the professors and pupils attended his funeral, which took place at Highgate on the 5th ult.

Mr. Lindsay Sloper, whose name was familiar in the musical world for many years, passed away on the 3rd ult. at the age of 61. A pupil of Moscheles, Mr. Sloper soon came to the front as a pianist and teacher, and in the latter capacity he was much esteemed. Of late, however, the state of his health compelled him to withdraw more and more from public life, and his death was by no means unexpected. Mr. Sloper published a number of light drawing-room pianoforte pieces, which enjoyed considerable popularity in their day.

By the removal of the celebrated Milan critic, Dr. Filippo Filippi, a familiar figure will be missed from operatic first nights. Dr. Filippi would travel to any part of Europe to witness the production of an important new opera, and he attended the first performance of "The Nibelung's Ring" at Bayreuth in 1876. Recognising the wonderful power and beauty of that colossal work, he has ever since championed the cause of Wagner among his own countrymen. The last important première at which he assisted was that of Verdi's "Otello," where his racy and genial conversation and fund of anecdote greatly entertained the assemblage of musical critics of all nations, and no one could have imagined the end was so near. The immediate cause of death was apoplexy. Dr. Filippi was an occasional but valued contributor to the columns of The Musical Times.

We have also to record the death of Mr. George John Bruzaud at the age of 74, who was connected all his life with the firm of Erard and Co., the famous pianoforte makers. Mr. Bruzaud was for thirty-two years the managing partner of the Marlborough Street establishment. His funeral, at Brompton, was attended by his brother, Mr. James Bruzaud, his two sons, a large number of the employés of the firm, and several well-known musicians, including Mr. G. A. Osborne, Signor Li Calsi, Herr Goldberg, and Mr. Oberthur.

"M. Camille Saint-Saëns, the composer, writes with great confidence concerning the new instrument for timing the movements of the larynx, thorax, and diaphragm during the operations of singing and breathing. The apparatus has been invented by M. Piltan, and in recommending it to the Academy of Fine Arts M. Saint-Saëns records it as his firm opinion that by its means a genuine scientific method can be applied to the art of singing. The Maëstro adds that professors of singing who, unlike M. Piltan, are not physiologists, teach by empirical methods, telling their pupils that some sounds should proceed from the stomach, others from the chest, and so forth. This, however, does not prevent good singers from coming to the front any more than do the methods of the professors, who look upon the glottis as a vibrating medium, and the larynx as the seat of sonority. M. Piltan's researches destroy the theories of the empirics and pseudo-physiologists of the singing profession. He holds, and has proved by experiment, that all the movements of the glottis, far from being voluntary, are simple reflex movements obeying the different modes of breathing, and, on that account, that respiration is the preponderating element in the act of phonation. M. Piltan's experiments also prove that the tension, more or less great, of the vocal chords is not the cause of the depth or acuteness of sounds, that the voice is the result of a shock or struggle between the inspirative and expirative muscles; and, finally, that the point where the collision takes place determines the altitude of the sound. The larynx and the glottis, therefore, instead of forming sounds, only modify them. M. Saint-Saëns does not, of course, enthusiastically accept all M. Piltan's conclusions, but he recommends them to the special attention of the members of the Academy and of professors of singing." The foregoing paragraph, from "Paris Day by Day," in The Daily Telegraph, relates to a most interesting discovery. If it is proved possible to apply the invention to voice production, the chief difficulty with which teachers have to contend will be removed, and the art of vocalisation will be imparted by machinery, and perhaps any number of voices of like quality may be possibly reproduced "as per pattern."

The recent establishment of the Highbury New Park School of Music, an Institution for general musical training in this neighbourhood, naturally created some interest in the Concert given by some of the staff of Professors at the Highbury Athenæum, on June 29. The audience exhibited hearty appreciation of the various items of a specially interesting programme. The Concert opened with Prout's Concertante Duet in A major, first movement, ably played by Miss C. J. Birch and Mr. Fountain Meen. Miss Hannah Jones was heard to advantage in the recitative and air "Be thou patient," from Smart's "Jacob," and "Aufenthalt" (Schubert), as was also Miss Jenny Eddison in Purcell's "Nymphs and Shepherds," and in "Nobil signor" (encored). Mr. John Probert had a hearty re-call for his rendering of "Adelaide," and Mr. Winn's fine voice made a marked impression in Sullivan's "O mistress mine." Mr. J. H. Leipold played Rheinberger's "Menuet" for the left hand, and "Toccata," with great taste; and Mr. G. H. Betjemann, who is very popular here as Conductor of the Highbury Philharmonic Society, played Alard's Fantasia for violin on Masaniello, receiving a hearty encore, when he substituted Sarasate's "Spanish Dances." The special features of the programme were, however, Schumann's Quintet in E flat (Op. 44), admirably played by Messrs. G. R. and G. H. Betjemann, O'Brien, H. Channell, and E. Woolhouse, and Beethoven's Septet in E flat (Op. 20), rendered with remarkable executive skill by Messrs. G. H. Betjemann, H. Channell, Lazarus, Steinebruggen, Anderson, Woolhouse, and John Reynolds. At the commencement of the second part Mr. Charles Fry recited Browning's "Good news from Ghent" with dramatic vigour, and gave a humorous rendering of a "Bab Ballad." Mr. A. D. Duvivier conducted throughout. Mr. Oscar Kronke, the principal of the Institution, is to be congratulated on the success of his first Concert, given with the laudable object of founding a Scholarship in the school.

On Tuesday, the 19th ult., a numerous gathering of the members of The Royal Society of Musicians of Great Britain, including those who have retired from the active exercise of their profession, and the widows and children of deceased members, assembled at the Crystal Palace to partake of a Jubilee Luncheon, provided by Mr. Thomas Molineux, a liberal donor to the charitable funds of the Society. The Chair was filled by the Honorary Treasurer, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and amongst the guests were many distinguished musicians. The Chairman proposed the toast of "The Queen," and referred to the progress made by the Society during Her Majesty's reign of fifty years. The toast having been duly honoured, the Chairman then gave the toast of "Our Jubilee King" (Mr. Molineux), whose bounty and benevolence had provided the entertainment. A gold locket, offered as a testimonial to Mr. Molineux, had been provided by the voluntary donations of the members, who heartily hoped that he might long be spared to wear it as a token of affectionate regard from all, including the widows and orphans who would hand down his name to future generations, who would bless the memory of a good man. Mr. Cummings then handed to Mr. Molineux the gold locket set with diamonds, having on one side the motto of the society, "To deliver the poor that cry," and on the other side a suitable inscription. Mr. Molineux in a few words, with evident emotion, returned thanks. The toast of "Prosperity and Perpetuity to the Royal Society of Musicians" brought the proceedings to a close.

The Annual Festival of the Croydon Church Choirs Union was held on Thursday, the 14th ult., in the fine Parish Church of Croydon, and consisted of an early Choral Communion, an Organ Recital in the afternoon (given by Mr. J. H. Wallis and Mr. H. L. Balfour, two local organists, together with Dr. H. Walmsley Little, of Tulse Hill), and full Choral Evensong at 8 p.m., in which eight choirs from within the parish of Croydon took part. The music included various hymns and Anglican chants, Gadsby's Evening Service in C, the first chorus of the "Lobgesang" for the Anthem, and "The heavens are telling," at the conclusion of the Service. A considerable uncertainty and want of steadiness in the organ part somewhat marred the effect of the service in several places, but this drawback notwithstanding, the choirs sang as a whole remarkably well; and save in the Haydn chorus, where their powers appeared somewhat overtaxed, the performance was a fine and effective one, and reflected much credit upon Mr. H. L. Balfour, the Choirmaster of the Union, who conducted. The organ accompaniments, however, as already hinted, left a good deal to be desired. The Rev. W. T. Houldsworth, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, was the preacher.

"News comes from Baltimore of Professor Crouch, the composer of 'Kathleen Mavourneen.' He is living quietly in that city, and has just reached his eighty-seventh birthday. He has been married four times, is the father of twenty-seven children, and has a great many grandchildren. He has forwarded to the London Society of Arts his acceptance of a fellowship to which he has been elected, and with it original manuscripts of many of his compositions. Professor Crouch is an Englishman, but has resided in America since 1849." With reference to the above paragraph, which comes from an American source, we have made enquiry, and the courteous secretary of the Society of Arts, John Street, Adelphi, has replied, denying all knowledge of the matter. It is suggested that there is some "bogus" society, which for "a consideration," allows its subscribers to append an assortment of letters to their names and so delude the world into the belief that they are members of a bonâ fide learned or scientific society. Can any of our readers give any information concerning the body and the spirit by which it is animated?

The Sacred Harmonic Society has already begun to make preliminary arrangements for its next season, Mr. W. H. Cummings is retained as Conductor, and the Council are wise in the engagement of so painstaking a musician. It is intended next season to give six Concerts and a Conversazione, full details of which will be issued in due course. The Council specially notify that, in consequence of St. James's Hall having been engaged every Friday evening for quite a distinct purpose, it has become compulsory to hold the Concerts on another evening, and after full consideration they have decided to give the majority of these on Thursdays instead of Fridays. The season will commence on Thursday, November 17, with Signor Bottesini's new Oratorio, "The Garden of Olivet" (composed for the Norwich Festival), and engagements have already been made with the leading artists, including Mdlle. Trebelli, Miss Anna Williams, Madame Trebelli, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and others.

On Sunday, June 26, there were special Thanksgiving Services for Her Majesty's Jubilee at St. Agnes', Kennington Park, S.E. The Communion Service used in the morning was a Service in C composed by Mr. W. W. Hedgcock, the Organist and Choirmaster of the Church. At the offertory, Beethoven's "Hallelujah" Chorus from the "Mount of Olives" was sung, and Costa's arrangement of the National Anthem concluded the service. Best's "March for a Church Festival" was the voluntary. At Evensong Bach's arrangement of the Peregrine Tone was the Magnificat, "Zadok the Priest" was the Anthem, and Villiers Stanford's Te Deum in B flat was sung before the blessing. Sullivan's Processional March was the voluntary. The hymns throughout both services (with the exception of Ravenscroft's Old 104th, and the Old 100th to Ravenscroft's harmonies) were set to old German chorals, and on both occasions the organ was reinforced by trumpets and drums, which, being stationed on the rood screen, added fine effect.

The Epping Forest Church Choir Association held its seventh annual Festival on Saturday, the 16th ult., at Ely Cathedral. The service was fully choral. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were by C. H. Lloyd, in E flat, and the Anthem was Barnby's "I will give thanks." The combined choirs, numbering about 200 voices, acquitted themselves very well, especially in the Anthem, the fine choral in which was very effective. The rendering of the processional hymn, "Forward! be our watchword," to Henry Gadsby's tune, is worthy of special mention. Three cornets, a euphonium, and a trombone were very useful in sustaining the pitch and helping the accuracy of the rhythm. The service closed with Dykes's Te Deum and Stainer's sevenfold "Amen." Mr. Ullyett conducted, and Mr. H. Riding, F.C.O., assisted by the Cathedral Organist, skilfully and tastefully accompanied the service.

The Academical Board of Trinity College, London, have awarded the following Exhibition and Prizes after competition:—Henry Smart Scholarship to Louise Goldhawk; Benedict Pianoforte Exhibition to Emily A. Rivett; Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibition to Frank Swinford; College Violin Exhibition to William A. Robins; Harmony and Counterpoint Medals to Elizabeth L. Edwards and Frank Swinford respectively; the Gabriel Prize to Armitage Goodall, A. Mus.; the Turner Pianoforte and Singing Medals to Gertrude E. Corbin and Frank Swinford respectively. The Examiners were Messrs. Henry R. Bird, C. Edwin Willing, Charles E. Stephens, Michael Maybrick, Signor Papini, and Professors Higgs, Saunders, and Turpin. Medals for Regularity and Diligence were also awarded to Harold W. Tompkins and Florence Easton.

A Grand Concert was given in the Town Hall, Grahamstown, in honour of the Queen's Jubilee, on Monday evening, June 20. The Concert was under the auspices of the Cathedral Choral Union, assistance being rendered by members of other choirs. The programme included Handel's Coronation Anthem "Zadok the Priest" and the Oratorio "Judas Maccabæus." The band and chorus numbered upwards of a hundred performers. Both works were excellently rendered. The principal soloists were Miss Kitching, Miss de Beer, Miss Tidmarsh, and Messrs. Cawse and Winny. Mrs. Erpin was the pianist, Mr. Winny presided at the harmonium, and Herr Eberlein was leader of the orchestra. The Rev. F. H. Fisher, Precentor of the Cathedral, conducted.

The St. Columba's Choral Society gave a Recital of Sacred Music in St. Columba's (Church of Scotland), Pont Street, S.W., on Friday, the 1st ult., in commemoration of Her Majesty's Jubilee. The chief choral works were Sullivan's Festival Te Deum and "Domine salvam fac Reginam," and Handel's "The King shall rejoice," both of which were effectively rendered by the choir of about fifty voices, under the careful direction of Mr. John Lowe, Organist of the church. Miss Ethel Bowra sang the soprano solos in the Te Deum with much refinement. The organ was in the experienced hands of Mr. W. S. Hoyte, who succeeded in giving a good idea of the orchestral effects in the accompaniments, and played Weber's "Jubilee" Overture, and other solos.

Mr. W. Freeman Thomas announces the commencement of his sixth season of Promenade Concerts on Saturday, the 13th inst. Amongst others the following artists are already engaged:—Messrs. Santley, F. King, Barrington Foote, Walter Clifford, W. H. Burgon, Henry Pyatt, Signor Foli, Edward Lloyd, J. W. Turner, Redfern Hollins, and Harper Kearton; Mesdames Alwina Valleria, Eugenie Pappenheim, Clara Samuells, Trebelli, Agnes Larkcom, Rose Hersee, Patey, Enriquez, Helen D'Alton, Fassett, Antoinette Sterling; pianists, Madame Frickenhaus, Misses Josephine Lawrence, Florence Waud, and Mr. S. Dutton Cook; leader of the orchestra, Mr. Carrodus; flute solo, J. Radcliff; cornet, Howard Reynolds.

On the 3rd ult. a Jubilee Festival was held at St. Dionis's Church, Parson's Green, the evening service being of a very elaborate character. An excellent performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was given by the choir, accompanied by a stringed orchestra and organ. The soloists were Master H. Humm, of the Temple Choir, and Mr. T. W. Hanson, of St. Paul's Cathedral. The whole of the Symphony was exceedingly well played by the band, and listened to with marked attention. The choral portions of the work was sung by the choir with astonishing precision and vigour, and reflected the greatest credit on Mr. Alfred Kenningham, their trainer, who conducted on this occasion.

The 221st Consecutive Monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union took place on the 1st ult., at the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street, S.W. Miss Ellen Elton, Miss Maud Leslie, Mr. T. W. Page, and Mr. W. E. Hellawell were the solo artists, and Miss Ada Hatfield and Miss Bessie Fédarb each contributed a pianoforte solo. Part-songs by Bennett, Ravenscroft, Hatton, and Mendelssohn were well sung by the choir. The glee "There is beauty," by Sir John Goss, was very finely given as a quartet by members of the choir, and the male voices gave an excellent rendering of "Hohenlinden" (T. Cooke). Mr. F. R. Kinkee very ably presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

A special Jubilee Thanksgiving Service was held in the Church of St. John's, Fulham, S.W., on June 26. The service, which was full choral, included Tallis's Responses, Palmer's Service in F, and Dr. Bridge's Jubilee Anthem, "Blessed be the Lord thy God." The bass solo in the Choral was sung with great effect by Mr. Frank May. After the benediction Dr. Stainer's "Amen" was sung, and the service was brought to a conclusion with Costa's version of the National Anthem, with additional verse by Mr. Baring-Gould. Mr. Henry J. Wood presided at the organ, and displayed much taste and skill in his accompaniment to the service.

At Steinway Hall, on June 30, Miss Florence Crafter gave her first Concert, and made a very successful début. Her singing of "Winds in the trees" (Goring Thomas), and two songs by Kjerulf, "My heart and lute" and "Spring song," showed a pleasing voice, and was marked by much taste and expression, the latter song winning an enthusiastic encore. Miss Crafter was assisted by Miss Damian, Mr. Houghton, and Mr. I. de Lara's Ladies' Choir in the vocal department, and Mr. Papini (violin) and Mr. Kiver (pianoforte) played solos on their respective instruments. Mr. Albert Visetti (under whom Miss Crafter has studied) was the Conductor.

On Coronation Day, June 28, a fine performance of Jubilee music was given in St. Stephen's Church, Walworth, by the St. Stephen's Choral Society. There was a full orchestral band of thirty instruments, comprising strings, brass, and drums. The soloists were Miss Alice Patten, Madame Cockburn, and Messrs. Henry Yates, Charles Hardy, and H. Wakerell. The principal items were the Jubilee Anthems of Dr. Stainer and Dr. Bridge, Weber's Jubilee Cantata "The Praise of Jehovah," Hallelujah Chorus, Te Deum (Jackson), National Anthem (Costa). Mr. F. J. Knapp conducted with skill and ability, and Mr. W. J. Varney rendered excellent service at the organ.

Roosevelt, the eminent organ builder of New York, has been commissioned by Mr. Isaac E. Blake, of Denver, Colorado, to erect an instrument for the Trinity M.E. Church of that city. It is to contain 3,738 pipes, distributed as follows:—Great organ, 16 stops, 1,218 pipes; swell organ, 18 stops, 1,204 pipes; choir organ, 11 stops, 638 pipes; solo organ, 6 stops, 348 pipes; pedal organ, 11 stops, 330 pipes; couplers, 11 stops; mechanical accessories, 7 stops; pedal movements, 13 stops; adjustable combination pistons, 15 stops. Total, 108 stops in all. Mr. Walter E. Hall, F.C.O.—at present Organist of St. John's Cathedral in the same city—is to be the organist.

Mr. Aguilar's pupils gave a very interesting Concert at Brighton, on the 16th ult., which illustrated the excellence of their master's teaching. The programme, made up of selections from the works of Handel, Bennett, Chopin, Nicodé, Raff, Bizet, Godard, and others, testified to the variety of the ability displayed, and the desire on the part of the teacher to accommodate the performance to the differences of skill in the pupils. Mr. Aguilar opened and closed the Concert with a Fugue by Bach and some pieces by Schumann, and between the parts addressed a few remarks appropriate to the occasion.

The members of the Grosvenor Choral Society gave their 185th monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall, on Friday, the 15th ult., when a selection from Cowen's "Rose Maiden," together with a miscellaneous collection of part-songs and solos by Callcott, Cowen, Marzials, Bishop, Faning, &c., were well rendered by a large choir. The soloists were Miss Katherine James (who made a successful first appearance at these Concerts), Miss Gibbs, Miss Kelly, and Mr. W. Burridge. Miss A. Daymond and Miss J. Davies gave a pianoforte duet, Mrs. T. P. Frame accompanied, and Mr. David Woodhouse conducted.

The National Eisteddfod of Wales is to be held at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th inst. The proceedings will open each day with a Gorsedd, in which Bards, Druids, Ovates, and Musicians will take part. Competitions for male voice and other choirs open to all comers; Concerts of Welsh music, with accompaniment of Harps; adjudications upon the seventeen Odes for a prize, the winner of which will be placed in Bardic Chair with all the ancient ceremonies, and other matters will engage the attention of those to whom the combination of antique customs and modern enterprise is not without interest.

On the 27th ult. very successful Jubilee Services were held in the Church of St. Saviour's, Upper Chelsea. The Service in the morning was Dykes in F, and in the evening Goss in A. In addition to special hymns and "God save the Queen," Dr. Stainer's Jubilee Anthem, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers," was sung at each service, the congregation joining heartily in the final choral. The solos were taken by Miss Florence M. Cross. Mr. Henry A. Evans, Organist of the church, presided at the organ.

The services at the West Hackney Church on Jubilee Sunday were of a very festal character. Both at Matins and Evensong the hymns and anthems bore particular reference to the day, and at Evensong "Zadok the Priest" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" were very finely rendered by a largely augmented choir and orchestra. The Service (Martin in G) and the hymns were accompanied by the band, the parts for which were arranged by Mr. F. L. Kett, who conducted. Mr. R. T. Gibbons, F.C.O., presided at the organ.

A Concert was given by the Choir of St. John's, Waterloo Road, S.E., at the Hawkstone Hall, Westminster Bridge Road, on Tuesday evening, the 12th ult., when a successful performance of J. F. Barnett's Cantata "The Building of the Ship" formed the first part of the programme. The second part comprised solos by Madame Belle Cole, and a reading by Mr. Gerald Wynter. A special feature of this Concert was the performance by boy sopranos of both solo and chorus work of this Cantata. Mr. Henry J. B. Dart conducted.

Miss Amina Goodwin's morning Concert was given on June 27, at the house of Sir Julian and Lady Goldsmid. She played Schumann's "Papillons" and pieces by Gounod as her solos with considerable expression and technical skill, and joined with Messrs. Peiniger and Charles Ould in a thoroughly artistic performance of Rubinstein's Trio in B major (Op. 52). Each of these gentlemen played solos on their several instruments, which were duly applauded. Some vocal pieces were contributed by Madame Rueff and Miss Hilda Wilson.

A Choral Competition will be held in the Newcastle-upon-Tyne Exhibition on September 21 and 22 next. Apart from the attractions of the Exhibition—which, by the way, is a very great success—much interest is attached to the competition, as it is the first of its kind ever held in Newcastle. As liberal arrangements are being made by the Executive Council with the various railway companies, no doubt many of the choirs in the district, from Yorkshire, and from the Midlands will enter for the prizes offered.

A new organ at St. John's Church, Bedford Hill, Balham, was opened on the 21st ult., by Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster of the Parish Church. The instrument has been built by Messrs. Jones and Sons, under the supervision of Mr. H. W. Weston, and contains two complete manuals and preparation for the third. The two Recitals were largely attended, the organist admirably showing off the power and variety of the instrument in a carefully selected programme of standard organ works.

Mr. William Poel gave a Matinée at the Vaudeville Theatre, on the 5th ult., when he produced a piece called "Adelaide," dealing with an incident in the life of Beethoven. Miss Mary Rorke represented Adelaide, and Mr. Poel, Beethoven. He also played in a comedy called "Mrs. Deakly's difficulty." A domestic sketch, "Drifted apart," was cleverly acted by Miss Cowen and Mr. Eric Lewis, and a musical performance by the Neapolitan Quartet completed the programme.

An Organ Recital was given at St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey, E.C., by Mr. H. W. Weston, F.C.O., of Balham, on Coronation Day, June 28, to a large congregation, consisting mostly of business men. The programme contained Mendelssohn's Overture "Ruy Blas," two movements for the Organ by Niels Gade, a Concerto by Handel, and works by Guilmant and Freyer. The Recital commenced with the National Anthem and concluded with Meyerbeer's "Coronation March."

At St. John's, Waterloo Road, S.E., a Jubilee Service was held on Sunday evening, June 26, when the music comprised Tours's Evening Service in F, Handel's "The King shall rejoice," and Smart's Te Deum in F; Mendelssohn's "Athalie" March being selected for the concluding voluntary. Mr. Edmund West presided at the organ, and Mr. Henry J. B. Dart conducted the band and choir, numbering sixty performers.

Mr. F. Slade Olver, Professor of Music at St. Paul's Hall, Salem, New York, gave an Organ Recital at St. Peter's, De Beauvoir Town, on Wednesday evening, the 6th ult. The programme consisted of works by Benedict, Batiste, Olver, Beethoven, and Rink's variations on "God save the King." Mr. Taylor sang Mendelssohn's "O rest in the Lord." Mr. A. Kelly, the Organist of St. Peter's, ably accompanied the shortened evening service.

At the Commencements, held at Trinity College, Dublin, on June 30, the degree of Doctor of Music was conferred upon Mr. Charles E. Allum, Mus. Bac., Conductor of the Stirling Choral Society. Selections from Dr. Allum's Cantata, "Jehoshaphat," were performed in the College Chapel, Dublin, on Wednesday, June 29, the professor of music, Sir Robert P. Stewart, Mus. Doc., being present.

The competition at the Guildhall School of Music for the "Lady Jenkinson Prize" of £5 took place on Monday, the 4th ult., when there were fourteen competitors, and the prize was awarded to Miss Adie Curtis. The following gentlemen acted as judges:—Messrs. Li Calsi, Carl Lahmeyer, and Stephen Kemp; Mr. H. Weist Hill (principal), chairman.

The Report of the Birmingham and Midland Musical Guild for the third Session, 1886, gives a list of the members, a summary of the proceedings at the meetings, a statement of the financial condition, the rules and regulations, and other interesting matter, which points to the flourishing state of the Society and the earnest endeavours of its members to further the cause of musical art in the district.

The Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of the "Creation" in Christ Church, Somers Town, on the 6th ult. The soloists were Mrs. Stanesby, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. James Blackney. Mr. E. H. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

Mr. Tobias A. Matthay gave a Pupils' Pianoforte Recital on Saturday afternoon, the 2nd ult., at the Belmont Hall, Clapham. Two of the pupils came forward with compositions of their own. The remainder of a very interesting programme included some excellent singing.

Mr. H. C. Tonking, Sub-Professor of the Organ at the Royal Academy of Music, has been appointed to succeed Dr. Sloman as Organist of St. Luke's, West Norwood. There were fifty-eight candidates.

Among the recipients of the Degree of Doctor of Music at the University of Dublin, on June 30, was the Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.S., Edin., Warden of Trinity College, London.

The Organ Recital on Tuesday, the 5th ult., at the Church of St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey, was given by Mr. J. H. Dott, and consisted of selections from the works of Mendelssohn, Gounod, Rossini, Haydn, and Bach.

Mr. Edward Holland, the bandmaster of the Northamptonshire (48th) Regiment, has been appointed the bandmaster of the Scots Guards.

Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh have graciously accepted copies of Dr. Bradford's new Cantata "The Song of Jubilee."

REVIEWS.

Lectures on Musical Analysis. Delivered before the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind. Musical Art and Study. Papers for Musicians. By Henry C. Banister. [George Bell and Sons.]

Music, even by its most ardent admirers, is acknowledged to be an indefinite language; but this fact seems so little acted upon, that not only do discerning critics tell us the meaning of certain great works—even in all their minute details—but many composers, timidly conscious, we presume, of their incapacity to rely upon the intrinsic value of their musical essays, frequently give them some name, the appropriateness of which they may hope will employ the mind of the audience, and thus draw off the attention from a too critical examination of the abstract merit of the music. Few composers of high reputation have had recourse to this device; but many could be named whose works would have been better received in the absence of what is thought to be a "descriptive" title, the culminating point of which absurdity has, we hope, been reached in a pianoforte piece, published in the United States, called "Lady Godiva," the well-known incidents of which legend it has naturally somewhat puzzled the American reviewers to point out in the composition. Yet in spite of these numerous keys to the intention of creative musical artists—furnished either by the composers themselves or their annotators—there is a remarkable scarcity of works which expound to students, in simple language, the laws of musical structure, as exemplified in the compositions of the most eminent masters of the art. Here, indeeed, is a field of labour, the results of which must be of incalculable benefit to the pupil; for instead of fanciful conjectures as to the signification of a composition, attention is exclusively directed to the manner in which an artist has "built up" his movements, and we are thus enabled to discover beauties in a work which might have escaped us without the analytical remarks of an intelligent and sympathetic musician. Mr. Banister, whose occasional lectures have convinced us of his fitness for the task, has, in the first of the two books under notice, most successfully supplied the want which we have referred to; and as the many happy illustrations of the observance of the rules he gives are mainly drawn from compositions well known, or easily accessible, there can be no doubt that not only students, but the general musical public will gladly avail themselves of so excellent a guide. In his capacity as Professor of Harmony, Counterpoint, and Composition at the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, it was the author's custom to assemble the pupils in the evening once a fortnight, and to deliver to them a lecture upon the plan of musical compositions, illustrated upon the pianoforte: "The continued eagerness," he says, in his preface, "among the younger, as well as the elder students, led me to consider whether, if the lectures, originally delivered from rough notes, were fairly arranged in readable form, they might be useful to musical students generally, and I determined to make a selection from those delivered, and so to prepare them for the press. This volume is the result. It is offered, not as by any means furnishing a complete course of instruction in musical analysis. This would require a much larger work. But, in familiar manner, it deals consecutively with some of those elementary principles of musical structure, illustrated in the works of the great masters, with which every student should become acquainted who aspires to intelligence about the art." After defining the term analysis, what may properly be termed first movement form is taken to commence with, that being the model upon which is usually constructed the first movement of sonatas, symphonies, instrumental quartets, trios, &c.; and here we may well quote the clear and concise description given of this important portion of a musical work. "Briefly," it is said, "the plan, or order of ideas, in the first movement of a sonata, or similar work, is this: (a) the first Subject; then some connecting matter leading to (b) the second Subject, followed by some supplementary matter, and probably a codetta, finishing the first part of the movement, at the first double bar. Then comes (c) the second part, or, as some term it, the Free Fantasia, which, in the main, consists of the development, or working of the material of the first part. This leads to the third part of the movement, which is (d) the Recapitulation, indicated by the return of the (first) Subject, and the repetition, with modifications, of the matter of the first part; and sometimes a Coda." The excessive care with which extracts have been made from the best classical models in illustration of the plan thus explained, is deserving of the warmest commendation; and we are certain that any pupil who attentively reads these chapters will derive a very large amount both of pleasure and profit from the study. The remarks upon the Episode, and especially the definition of an Episodical movement, must also be praised, not only for their lucidity, but because they make clear to the student that there is design in all musical compositions of any importance, and thus lead him to dwell upon points which might otherwise escape him. The allusions to the early examples of the Rondo form are extremely interesting, and it is truly stated that many movements not thus named, are, in fact, Rondos, and that others which are so entitled have not the strict Rondo form. We are glad to find that Mr. Banister on this subject—as indeed on many others—has the courage of his convictions, and that when he finds a truth he boldly states it. The chapters treating of the Coda and Codetta, the Minuet and Scherzo, and the Fugue show not only that he has been a diligent student of all the forms of composition, but that he thoroughly understands how to convey the result of his investigations to others. In proof, however, of his sharing our belief that the most searching analysis can do no more than indicate how an artist has worked, we quote the concluding sentence of his book, which deserves to be taken to heart by every earnest music-lover:—"Remember that, while a true work of art has design, plan, development, all of which may be analysed, there remains, underlying all, permeating all, that subtle sentiment, the offspring of genius, which can neither be defined nor analysed. By training and such explanations as I have endeavoured to furnish you with, you may learn how to analyse, and, therefore, intelligently to understand and enjoy great music. But the subtle essence appeals to your sensibilities, which may be kindled, awakened, regulated—but not imparted. All expositions will avail little unless there is, in yourselves, the sympathetic faculty to appreciate and enjoy the sublime or the beautiful."

The volume called "Musical Art and Study" contains three papers entitled respectively, "Our Art and our Profession," "Some Methods of Musical Study," and "Some Musical Ethics and Analogies," all of which exhibit a commendable desire to elevate the art in public estimation, and a keen perception as to the best method of effecting this object. In the first paper we have some acute observations upon the real, as distinct from the conventional, meaning of the words our Art and our Profession, which, as Mr. Banister truly says, should be placed "not in opposition, but in apposition, not as inconsistent, but as parallel, not with the contrast sometimes implied when profession and practice are mentioned together. Our art is our profession; we profess an art." Of course, having taken up this ground at the commencement of his essay, something must be said about the much-vexed question of the essential difference between amateurs and professors, and this, we think, is so well said that, rather than do an injustice to the author by quoting a portion of his remarks, we refer the reader to the book itself. In "Some Methods of Musical Study," the necessity of employing the mind upon classical works is happily dwelt upon, and this in no pedantic manner, but in the true spirit which should actuate a teacher desirous of producing the best result with his pupils. The advisability of studying the theory of the art is also earnestly insisted upon: "Counterpoint," it is said, "was once termed by Sterndale Bennett 'the gymnastics of music'; by which, doubtless, he meant that kind of exercise which is adapted to impart to the musical intellect the suppleness and strength which gymnastic training imparts to the body; the capacity to accomplish anything muscularly, on the one hand; to work subjects any way musically, on the other; but all the while ignoring any mere acrobaticism, and moreover remembering that the exercises in question are means to an end, not themselves that end." Those who so often find "Exercises" put forward as compositions will, we are certain, agree with us that, in the interest of the progress of music, these truths cannot be too often spoken. The third paper contains some excellent remarks upon the "Classical" and "Romantic" schools of composition; and although we may object to the author's assumption that the pupil will gain but little by the study of the second of these schools, we certainly believe in the absolute necessity of an early training in what may be termed the "orthodox" school, in proof of which it may be asserted that the great artists who have deviated from classical forms in their compositions are usually those who have most diligently made themselves acquainted with them. In conclusion, we cordially commend both Mr. Banister's works as most valuable aids to the true appreciation of the imperishable creations of musical art.

Congregational Church Hymnal. Edited by George S. Barrett, B.A. The Harmonies revised by E. J. Hopkins, Mus. Doc. [Hodder and Stoughton.]

The value of the Hymn Book belonging to any religious community is not always to be estimated by the likelihood of its becoming popular at the time of church service. It has a power and an influence beyond. Next to the Bible and the exposition of its truths and teaching by competent expounders, the collection of Hymns is the most powerful agent in promulgating the moral influences of religion and doctrinal instruction. Each community of worshippers recognises the importance of the Hymn Book as an element of devotional education. Out of concession to higher views on the subject which are entertained in the present day the best endeavours are made on all sides to produce a collection which shall be worthy of peculiar teaching, and of the great purpose which should be never lost sight of. It is not, however, the literary or the doctrinal character of the present beautifully printed book with which it is proposed to treat on the present occasion. Much might be said in favour of the labours of the Editor in both respects, but all purposes will be served by passing references to those matters which relate more particularly to the musical portion of the work.

The Hymnal was prepared "in pursuance of a resolution passed by a Committee of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, in April, 1883, and sanctioned by the Assembly of that year in its adoption of the Annual Report." The number of hymns was limited to about 750 (the book contains 774), and those which were selected were such as should form a book suitable to the worship of a mixed congregation, and that while true to the distinctive faith and spiritual traditions of Congregationalism, it should be catholic in feeling, and draw freely from the ample stores furnished by the sanctified genius of all sections of the Christian Church.

Thus far the spirit of the Hymnal is in perfect accord with the feelings of those who admit the unity of Christian teaching. Of the alterations made in the words and text of the hymns nothing need be said in this place, these may or may not give satisfaction to those especially interested in the questions involved. Those who admire the verses will be willing to offer the Editor praise for having given at the end of each hymn the name of the author, for stating the alterations where made, and such like particulars.

Many of the hymn tunes which have established themselves in the affections of the people have been retained, and will be found associated with the words through which their popularity has been won and maintained. Such fine old tunes as "Abridge," by Isaac Smith; "Bristol," "Darwell," "Rockingham," and others of like character, are inserted in the collection. Many of the tunes still popular with certain congregations, both of the Church of England and other denominations, which modern taste has proved to be extravagant and productive of irreverent ideas, have been wisely omitted. The selection is characterised by excellent taste throughout, and the revised harmonies to some of the older melodies are distinguished by good judgment, as might be expected, considering in whose charge this matter has been placed.

An editorial note makes due acknowledgment of the various sources drawn upon, and includes references to the obligations conferred by those who have written new tunes for the work, or have given permission for the use of those already printed in other collections. The body of the book may be described briefly as possessing all that comprehensive character which a work of this sort should present. The general Table of Contents exhibits the classification of the hymns into subjects, and defines the occasions when certain groups may be available and useful. There are other indices which display the varied character of the work, and render it valuable under several aspects. There is an Alphabetical Index to Tunes, a Metrical Index, and an Index of First Lines. The index of tunes gives the names of the several composers, and that of the first lines the names of the authors and adaptors of the words. In the names of the composers there are some curious statements, which will probably be altered in future editions. For instance, the Rev. G. P. Merrick is described in the preface as Mus. Doc., and in the index as Mus. Bac. He is further distinguished by being called Sir G. P. Merrick. This is an honour he may deserve but has not yet attained. The like title is appended to the name of Henry Smart, who is also called Mus. Doc. No authority exists for either statement any more than it does for the announcement that Sir Michael Costa held the right to any academic title. Mr. W. H. Gladstone has not taken a doctor's degree, and Jeremiah Clark had no University distinction. Barthelemon's name does not require the diphthong. "St. Anne's" tune is rightly ascribed to Dr. Croft, for it was written for and named after the Church of St. Ann's, Soho, of which he was sometime the organist. It is still an unsettled point as to whether he was the composer of the tune called "Hanover," often attributed to Handel. The Russian National Hymn, here called "Rephidim," was composed by Lvoff not Lyoff.

These matters are not alluded to in any hypercritical spirit, neither do they in the least affect the value of the Hymnal. It is one of the best collections of tunes for general use in Evangelical congregations which has been compiled, far superior to the former works of the same kind issued under the like authority. The old melodies are good, the new ones furnished by such composers as Barnby, Brown-Borthwick, Bunnett, Calkin, Frost, Elliott, Elvey, Foster, Hiles, Hopkins, Leslie, Macfarren, W. H. Monk,

Prout, Stainer, and others, speak for themselves, and the Editor may be honestly congratulated not only upon his own labours, but upon his being able to secure the co-operation of so many excellent hands in the duty he has so conscientiously carried out.

Common Praise: a Practical Handbook of Nonconformist Church Music. By F. G. Edwards. [J. Curwen and Sons.]

THIS excellent little book is compiled upon a principle instituted by Mr. Lennox Browne when he projected his work called "Voice Use and Stimulants." A schedule of about forty questions was addressed to the organists and choirmasters of respective churches in the following denominations: Baptist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Unitarian, United Methodist Free Church, and Wesleyan Methodist, in England and Wales; and the Church of Scotland, Free Church, and United Presbyterian Church, in Scotland. The replies have been summarised and largely quoted from, so that, in addition to the practical experience of the author, the reader has the advantage of knowing in a general way the thoughts and opinions of others deeply interested in the subject.

The author modestly makes no pretension to literary excellence in his work, but his very earnestness imparts a style to his labours, which brings with it a sympathetic agreement with him in his endeavours to show how that the higher forms may with advantage be aimed at in religious worship. For these reasons, the reader, be he churchman or dissenter, having the like objects in view, may derive not only profit, but pleasure from the perusal of the pages.

These pages treat of the attitude of the minister as regards music, of the organist, the choirmaster, choir organisation and management, the choir practice, congregational hymn singing, chanting, anthems, solos, services, and responses, organ recitals, concerts, special musical services, orchestral accompaniments, choral festivals, the organ and its position, organ accompaniments, and voluntaries. Besides the statistics obtained in reply to the circular, and having reference to the above subjects, the author's own views with regard to the music in "Common Praise" are instructive. He advocates the formation of voluntary choirs composed of persons of both sexes. In Nonconformist churches the opposition to the employment of women's voices in the choir does not exist, and Mr. Edwards thinks that "the objections to boys in choirs far outweigh the advantages." Where the services are arranged on a different plan to that adopted in cathedrals and large churches of the Anglican Communion, the employment of women in the choir may be advantageous; but where daily service is the rule the objection would be reversed, and women would be found to give more trouble than they are worth. Among dissenting congregations daily services are rare, and the voluntary choir is a possibility, the demands upon the time of the members are not great, and the interest in the music where it exists is keener among the congregation than in the Established Church. The observations on the "Choir practice" and "Congregational singing" are excellent, and are, for the most part, of general application. Chanting, which is a more modern practice with Nonconformists, is described and commented upon in considerable detail, and some of the remarks are shrewd and just. The use of Anthems by the congregation and choir, which is adopted by many of the churches, necessarily limits the choice to the most simple, and often to the least valuable as music. "The average Congregational Anthem-book is a very hotch-potch collection, and includes all sorts and conditions of composers and their works." Some curiosities of performance are cited, "enough to make any musical person's hair stand on end." Our author's opinion concerning the question as to whether the congregation should or should not sing in this part of the service, is expressed in the words, "Let the choir alone sing the Anthem," and while it is being sung let the congregation "make melody in their hearts." The temptation to make further extracts from this admirable work must be resisted. All who desire to find help and encouragement in the endeavour to promote the influence of common praise will gladly join in offering a tribute of thanks to the author for his wide-minded and commonsense views on the subject, as expressed in his book. Whatever be the tenets of the religious body to which they may belong, they will find in it much matter for thought, and many precepts which will strengthen and comfort them in the endeavour to advance the love for music in its employment as an aid to worship.

Original Compositions for the Organ. Nos. 56, 57, 58, and 59. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IN these four numbers of an exceedingly useful publication, will be found a series of pieces by Mr. H. M. Higgs, whose name is a guarantee for excellence. The founder of the modern English school of organ music was unquestionably Henry Smart, and Mr. Higgs writes very much in the elegant, refined, and scholarly style of the deceased composer. The qualities we have named are not equally prominent in every one of the present pieces. Thus, for example, in the first of the set, an Allegro ma non troppo and a Communion are admirable, but an Offertorium is too chromatic to be pleasing. More important than these is a Prelude and Fugue in A in the next number. The Prelude is possibly open to the charge of monotony, but the Fugue is a masterly effort worked out with equal skill and brilliancy. Dropping the scientific, the composer gives us in No. 58 three pieces in a lighter style, of which the gem is undoubtedly a remarkably piquant Pastorale, quite fresh and dainty in manner, and yet not by any means flippant. A flowing and graceful Melodie also deserves mention. The last of the series is an Offertoire in D minor in the form of a Rondo. This is a very vigorous piece, but it is not so difficult as it sounds. The first and second subjects are perhaps not sufficiently contrasted, but the necessary variety is provided in an episode in the tonic major in which the left hand has a choral-like theme for the vox humana while the right accompanies in triplets with excellent effect. Mr. Higgs's pieces are well worthy the attention of organists.

A Dictionary of Music and Musicians (A.D. 1450-1887). Edited by Sir George Grove, D.C.L., LL.D. Part XXII. [Macmillan and Co.]

THE four volumes into which this Dictionary is divided are completed with the present Part; and, looking back upon his labours, we cannot but think that the energetic editor must be thoroughly satisfied with the result. The many eminent writers who have contributed to the work are entitled to the highest commendation for the manner in which they have fulfilled their task; and if some few of the articles strike us as being too strongly coloured with the personal convictions of their authors, it must be remembered how difficult it is for those active in the art upon which they are writing to avoid classifying a fellow-worker according to their own view of the value of his exertions in the progress of the cause. As a rule, however, the most important papers are free from this objection; and a very large fund of valuable information respecting the careers of the greatest artists of the world, as well as upon music and musical instruments, has been collected, which will, doubtless, render the book almost indispensable both for professors and amateurs of the art. The illustrations and woodcuts are uniformly good, and all the musical extracts clearly and correctly printed. An Appendix and full Index to the whole work are in preparation, and will be shortly issued. On the appearance of this Appendix we shall be able to judge whether the names of several artists, whom we consider worthy of a place in a work of this magnitude, are omitted by design or accident.

Praise the Lord of Heaven (Psalm 150). By C. Villiers Stanford. [Forsyth Brothers.]

THIS work was composed for the opening of the present Manchester Exhibition, and is inscribed to the memory of the late Edward Hecht. It has served its initial purpose, but there is no reason why it should not be heard on other occasions of a festive nature, either in church or concert-room, for it is quite worthy of Dr. Stanford's reputation. A solid yet vigorous introduction in G leads to a fully developed and very spirited chorus, with which phrases for soprano solo are blended. At the words "Praise Him in the sound of the trumpet" a transition is made to the key of B, in which we have another solo and chorus, still more energetic, and showily written for the principal voice. An effective passage for orchestra (or organ) then leads back to the original key, and a fugue is started on the first line of the tune known as Tallis's Ordinal. When this has been duly worked out the entire tune is heard in full harmony, and a short Coda in the same style brings the work to a highly imposing conclusion.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. By T. A. Walmisley.

This reprint, in octavo size, of the evening portion of the late Cambridge Professor's Service in D major, will doubtless, in its present cheap and popular form, prove a welcome addition to many a choir library. It is a happy example of English Cathedral music in its best form, and the part-writing, notably the arrangement of the inner parts, is specially fine and effective. Belonging, as it does, to a considerably earlier period in the composer's life than the popular setting in D minor, the Service, which has nearly reached its jubilee year, is probably well known already to the student of Cathedral music; but to those who have yet its acquaintance to make we may say that it is strictly in four parts throughout; festal in character, although short in time of actual performance, and well suited for a considerable number of voices; and as there is no break in the time in either Canticle, it will be found acceptable for occasions where there is no conductor.

As I live, saith the Lord. The Lord hath been mindful. By E. T. Chipp. Octavo Anthems, Nos. 311 and 312. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Something more than formal recognition should be given to these Anthems from the pen of a composer who might have appeared more frequently with advantage to himself and to church music. The first commences with bold phrases for bass solo and chorus, and ends with a very bright and effective chorus, including a capital fugato episode. The other starts with a very pleasing strain for sopranos in unison, which is taken up by the other voices, and developed into a regular chorus, the close of which is especially charming. Compared with the first, the Anthem is quieter, and more flowing and melodious, the influence of Mendelssohn being apparent. Both Anthems are quite within the means of ordinary choirs.

Arrangements for the Organ. By George C. Martin. Nos. 6 and 7. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

So much original organ music of merit is appearing at present that transcriptions are not so much needed as in former days, but they are still welcome when wisely chosen and skilfully executed, as those by Dr. Martin certainly are. In the first of the present books we have the opening Allegro from Beethoven's Quartet in G (Op. 18, No. 2), a charming movement, and the simple Minuet and Trio from Schubert's Sonata in E flat (Op. 122). The other contains the beautiful "Eia Mater" from Dvorák's Stabat Mater, and a lovely Romance attributed to Mozart. The musicianly taste which marks each of these arrangements merits warm acknowledgment.

Hymn-tunes for Well-known Hymns. Composed by W. H. C. Malton, B.A. [Oxford: Mowbray and Co.]

The ten tunes contained in this little book are constructed upon familiar models, and those acquainted with popular hymn-tunes will have little difficulty in perceiving that the composer has not ventured into the region of new rhythms, though he has tried to avoid similarity of melody to the tunes already known in connection with the words he has chosen. He may certainly be commended for one thing, often lost sight of by composers of hymn-tunes: he has wisely confined his melodies to the limits of ordinary voices, so that there is a chance of their attaining popularity, if ever they become known out of the circle of the acquaintance of the composer.

Five Songs for Baritone. Set to music by Walter Frere. [London Music Publishing Company, Limited.]

There is a character in each of these songs which brings with it an interest beyond that which exists in the attempt to give due expression to the words. The individuality of the composer may be reflected in this character. If so, and it is not the mere result of an attempt to be quaint to suit the old-world style of the verses, the future works of the composer may command attention. The poets whose words are selected are of the Elizabethan period, and the music has a character of the formalism of that date, occasionally relieved with expressions indicating the greater freedom of modern art.

Hungarian Dances. Transcribed by Siegfried Jacoby. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This selection of pieces, which forms No. 6 of Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums for Violin and Pianoforte, will secure a hearty welcome among amateur and professional players. There are eight pieces in all, in which most of the peculiarities of Hungarian violin music will be found associated with characteristic melodies which possess a peculiarly fascinating and satisfactory effect. The chief of the work is given to the violin, the demands upon the skill of the pianoforte player being reduced to a minimum. A violoncello arrangement is also published.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Festive performances of Mozart's "Don Giovanni," in commemoration of the centenary of that immortal work, are to be given by the directors of the Mozarteum at Salzburg, in the coming autumn. Herr Hans Richter will be the Conductor, and among the vocalists engaged we notice the names of Mdlle. Bianchi (Zerlina), Herr Reichmann (Don Giovanni), and Herr Vogl (Don Ottavio). A similar commemorative performance is announced to take place in October next at the Paris Grand Opéra, on which occasion the original manuscript score of the work (in the possession of Madame Viardot-Garcia) is to be exhibited in the foyer of that institution. Luigi Bassi, who "created" the part of the Don on the occasion of the first production of the work at Prague, lies buried in a Dresden churchyard, and attention having been drawn to the fact by the forthcoming celebrations, the Tonkünstler-Verein of Dresden has lately caused the artist's grave to be restored, and a cross, bearing a suitable inscription, to be placed over it.

M. Vianesi, the new Conductor of the Paris Grand Opéra, assumed his functions on the 1st ult., with a performance of "Les Huguenots," which was highly approved of both by the audience and by his critics of the Press. M. Vianesi has made some modifications in the traditions established by his predecessors, including the use of the modern bâton in place of the violin bow hitherto adhered to.

M. Paladilhe's opera "Patrie" was the work chosen for performance (given gratuitously on that day) at the Paris Grand Opéra in connection with the National Fêtes annually recurring on July 14.

The Grand Prix de Rome, of the Paris Conservatoire, has been awarded this year to M. Charpentier, a pupil of M. Massenet.

M. Lamoureux has been presented by Frau Cosima Wagner with a splendidly bound copy of the score of "Lohengrin," together with some interesting autographs of her late husband, in grateful recognition of the services rendered by the eminent French conductor to the Wagnerian cause in France.

M. Leo Délibes is just now engaged upon the composition of a comic opera entitled "Cassia," for which MM. Gille and Meilhac have written the libretto.

We read the following in Le Ménestrel:—"An innovation highly interesting to the musical world, is being announced for the coming season—viz., the performance, with scenery and costumes, of the most celebrated oratorios by ancient and modern composers. Madame Marguerite Olagnier is the originator of this project, in the carrying out of which she will be assisted by Madame. Ugalde. Every Thursday, between the hours of two and four in the afternoon, are to be performed works hitherto produced only in fragments, and without the additional attractions of scenery and costumes. The orchestra and chorus will be augmented by the members of our great lyrical stages, if the permission of directors can be obtained, which, however, appears doubtful. The cycle of performances will be opened with one of Haydn's Oratorios—i.e., 'The Seasons' or 'The Creation.'"

A complete orchestra of Javanese musical instruments has just been presented to the museum of the Paris Conservatoire by M. van Vlenten, the Minister of the Interior for the Dutch Indies.

The following are the operatic works which will form the répertoire of the Teatro Costanzi, of Rome, next season—viz., "Mefistofele," "Carmen," "Le Prophète," "Hamlet," "Les Pêcheurs de Perles," "Otello," "Rigoletto," "Gustavo Wasa," and a new opera by the Maëstro Puccini, the young composer whose "Le Willi" has achieved such great success in Italy.

A monument is to be erected at Bergamo, his native town, to Donizetti. The composer of "Lucrezia Borgia" and "Lucia di Lammermoor" was born in 1797, and died at Bergamo in 1848.

The municipality of Genoa has raised its annual subvention to the Carlo Felice Theatre, of that town, from 70,000 to 100,000 francs.

An opera, "Colomba," by the young Maëstro, Vittorio Rodeglia, has been brought out with much success at the Dal Verme Theatre of Milan.

A prize of 5,000 lire has been offered by the Municipal Council of Bologna for the composition of an opera. Only Italian composers are to be allowed to compete.

Signor Sgambati, the eminent Italian pianist-composer, who met with a most flattering reception at the recent annual meeting of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Verein, held at Cologne, has decided upon a Concert-tour in Germany next winter, for the purpose of introducing his compositions.

Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman" has met with an enthusiastic reception upon its recent first performance at the Pergola Theatre, of Florence, where, in 1877, the same master's "Rienzi" was successfully produced.

A parody of Verdi's "Otello," recently brought out at the Teatro Valle, of Rome, has not met with an appreciative audience. L'Opinione, reporting upon the second performance, says: "The public allowed the piece to proceed to the end when, however, the performers were treated to a perfect volley of hisses. It is to be hoped that, if only for the sake of the good name of the theatre in question, no third representation will be attempted."

It is stated that the proceeds of the right of performance of Wagner's early Symphony, granted for one year to a Berlin agency (and commented on in our last number), have been applied by the composer's widow to the foundation of a Richard Wagner Scholarship which had been for some time in contemplation. Some curious details are given in the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik concerning the rediscovery, in 1877, of this interesting work, the manuscript whereof had been completely lost sight of after its performance in 1833, at the Leipzig Gewandhaus, when it attracted but little notice, but was favourably commented on by an eminent Leipzig critic, Herr Rochlitz.

At the Berlin Opera 264 performances have taken place during its operatic year ending June 30 last. By far the greatest number of these (viz., forty-two) were devoted to works by Richard Wagner, Victor Nessler being next in numerical order of performances with his one opera "Der Trompeter von Säkkingen," which was given twenty-five times. The theatre re-opens towards the end of this month, when the electric light will be used for the first time.

A female string quartet party has been formed at Berlin for the purpose of giving a series of Concerts of Chamber Music, both at the capital and other musical centres of Germany. The lady executants, all of them former pupils of the Berlin Hochschule, represent four different nationalities, the leader (Fraülein Soldat) being German, and the other members natives of Finland, France, and England respectively.

A new opera, "Die Jungfrau von Orleans" (The Maid of Orleans), was recently produced with conspicuous success at Prague, under the direction of Herr Angelo Neumann. The work, which is constructed on Wagnerian principles, is from the pen of Herr C. N. Reznicek, a native of Vienna, and son of a distinguished Austrian general.

A marble tablet bearing the inscription: "Carl Maria von Weber resided here in 1805," has been placed against the house, Taschenstrasse, No. 31, in Breslau, at which town the composer of "Freischütz" (then only nineteen years of age) occupied the post of operatic conductor.

The production, at Munich, of Wagner's early opera "Die Feen" has been postponed until next year, owing to he difficulties presented by its scenic mounting, which is to be on the most complete scale.

Friedrich Gernsheim has just completed a Symphony (his third) in C minor.

A new music-drama, "Faust," by Heinrich Zoellner, has been accepted for performance during the coming season both at Munich and Cologne. The book of the new work is compiled entirely from the words of Goethe's drama.

Count Hochberg, the new director of the Berlin Opera, has associated with that institution three well-known Berlin painters, Herren Bracht (landscapes), Dielitz (portraits), and Von Heyden (historical), who will assist in the scenic arrangements of newly mounted works.

Among the papers of the late Princess Wittgenstein have been found a number of letters by Wagner, Berlioz, the poet Hoffmann von Fallersleben, and other celebrated persons. Wagner's letters have been transmitted to the poet-composer's family, at Bayreuth, and those of Berlioz are to be handed over to the heirs of the latter.

Spontini's chef-d'œuvre, "Fernando Cortez," is to be presented, for the first time, to an American audience by the Metropolitan Opera House of New York next season, with Herr Albert Niemann in the title-rôle.

Verdi's "Otello" is to be produced next season at the Munich Hof-Theater.

Mdlle. Teresina Tua, the brilliant violinist, has, the Allgemeine Musik Zeitung states, closed a contract for an artistic tour in the United States, embracing no less than two hundred and twenty Concerts, to extend over fourteen months, and for which she has been guaranteed the sum of 150,000 francs.

An exhibition is to be opened in the coming autumn at Amsterdam of objects connected with musical art, including an extensive collection of musical instruments ancient and modern. A series of historical Concerts in connection with the undertaking is likewise contemplated.

A new theatre, constructed upon the Bayreuth Festspielhaus model, is to be erected in the Belgian capital. The sum of half-a-million francs has already been subscribed towards the undertaking.

Madame Sophie Menter has resigned her professorship at the St. Petersburg Conservatoire.

The first Scandinavian Music Festival is to be held next year at Copenhagen, in connection with a General Art and Industrial Exhibition. Herr Niels Gade is to be the musical director of the Festival.

A Mr. Gustav Becker, of New York, is the inventor of a finger-exercising machine which, by means of stretching and various other contortions, is said to render valuable assistance in the formation of the "pianoforte hand" in accordance with the requirements of modern technique.

An interesting brochure, entitled "Précis de l'histoire de l'Opéra Comique," has just been published in Paris (Dupret), from the pen of MM. Albert Soubies and Charles Malherbe, the joint authors also of several other meritorious publications on subjects connected with the lyric stage.

The death is announced, at Paris, of Léon Leroy, a musical critic of note, one of the first adherents of Wagner in France, upon whose life and work he published numerous enthusiastic articles in La Liberté, Le Ménestrel, and other journals.

The recently deceased tenor, Gaetano Fraschini, has left to his native town, Pavia, the sum of 630,000 francs, two-thirds of which are to be devoted to charitable objects, and one-third to the annual subsidy of a theatre bearing his name.

Friedrich Koenen, for many years Organist and Musical Director of Cologne Cathedral, died at that town on the 6th ult.

At Leipzig died Adolf Schimon-Regan, one of the senior professors of the Conservatorium, and a composer of chamber music and numerous Lieder. An opera from his pen entitled "List um List" was produced some thirty years since, at Dresden. The deceased was born in 1820, at Vienna.

Louis Mérante, the famous ballet master of the Grand Opéra, Paris, died on the 17th ult., at his residence at Asnières. The last time he appeared in public was at the performance given by Madame Floquet, at the Palais Bourbon, in aid of the victims of the Opéra Comique fire. Although fifty-nine years old, Mérante was still as active as a young man. His connection with the Opéra dates from the year 1848.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE METRONOME AND MODERN COMPOSERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Your Correspondent "Pendulum" speaks of "the anomalous nomenclature of Maëlzel's Metronome," of the vagueness of the Italian terms, and of reform.

We see from the Italian terms and the metronomic numbers he has quoted, that Adagio ranges from a Modern Composer's 54 to Maëlzel's 118. 54 and 118 what? Unfortunately, the kind of note which each pulsation is intended to represent is not given, consequently the meaning of the quotations is decidedly vague. Are we to conclude that the modern composer's note is in every case the same as that intended to be used by Maëlzel? The result of this would indeed be utter confusion. Now, if we suppose the former to be either a ♩ or a 𝅗𝅥, where the latter would be either a ♪ or a ♩, we obtain the following fairly satisfactory result:—

Adagio.	♪ = 118	= ♩ =	59. Maëlzel.
	♩ = 108	= ♩ =	54. Modern Composers.
Andante.	♪ = 138	= ♩ =	69. Maëlzel.
	♩ = 138	= ♩ =	69. Modern Composers.
Presto.	♩ = 200	= 𝅗𝅥 =	100. Maëlzel.
	♩ = 264	= 𝅗𝅥 =	132. Modern Composers.

No doubt the Italian terms are to some extent vague. Would not any other words, used for the same purpose, be vague? To a musician these terms have reference not only to the rate of performance, but also to the general character or spirit of a composition. One may say that, from a musical point of view, they have "an inward spiritual meaning," which can be only vaguely expressed in any language except music itself. For this reason I do not think they can be made totally submissive to the rule of the pendulum, so that a hard-and-fast line could be drawn with respect to where Allegro, &c., &c., shall either begin or end—so much depends upon the general character of a composition. The term Andante quasi minuetto is given as an instance of vagueness. Well, this is surely a very significant and suggestive term, for it clearly refers to the rate of performance, the spirit, and the form of a composition.

The present metronomic scale is certainly very misleading to the conductor or the performer, if there be any such who take the tempo of a work from the metronome, when the composer has not made use of that machine; or to the composer who adopts the plan described by your correspondent, in marking the Italian term and metronomic number to his work. One can hardly imagine a composer following this plan. He would be much more likely to mark his movement Andante, or Adagio, or whatever it happened to be, without consulting his metronome.

Some reform is evidently needed, but do not "abolish altogether the Italian terms." This, Sir, as you say, "would most certainly be taking a step backwards. The aim of all composers should be to make music a universal language." Would it not be better either to do away with the Italian table as it stands at present on the metronome, or else introduce a table showing what notes should be used in combination with the numbers, and indicating also the corresponding Italian terms? The latter plan would probably be too complicated to be included in the scale attached to the metronome.

On referring to the article on the metronome, by Mr. W. S. Rockstro, in Sir George Grove's Dictionary, I find the following:—"Some metronomes are marked with the words Andante, Allegretto, Allegro, &c., in addition to the numbers. This is a new and utterly useless contrivance." He further says that "the word moderato, without the minim, crotchet, or quaver to qualify it, means nothing at all, and it is absurd to encumber the scale with it, or with any other technical terms whatever."

I should be glad to know when, and by whom, the Italian table was added to the metronome.—Yours truly,

J. Richard Reeve.

Park Road, Moseley, Birmingham, July 2, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Referring to "Pendulum's" letter on the Metronome, it is, I believe, generally allowed that to print the Italian terms for various styles of movement on a metronome is a useless innovation; and as to the terms themselves, we were taught that it was an ignorant error to suppose that they referred to pace, except in an indirect way; thus, Allegro means cheerful, and implies such a pace as shall produce a cheerful effect; but it is quite true that Allegro in one movement may demand a pace much faster than in another; and it is most undesirable that any other sense should be assigned to such words, for that is their classical use; and pace can be indicated to a hair's breadth by the metronome figures. In the same way, tempo di minuetto, di marcia, &c., refer to style, and not directly to pace.

Concerning R.A.M.: Why does not the Academy distinguish its Fellows by the letters F.R.A.M. in the manner of other learned societies? R.A.M. would then, like R.C.M., or Trin. Coll. Cam., have its natural meaning, which is sometimes useful.—Yours faithfully, Student.

R.A.M. and R.C.M

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Allow me to thank your correspondent "A Professional Musician" for the valuable information he has given me.

It appears that all who use the initials R.A.M. are either eminent musicians who have been honoured by the directors, and who are entitled to their use, or ex-students who have no right whatever to them, and who, by their use, delude the public. That being so, it seems to me that some steps ought to be taken by "the powers that be" to prevent the continuous perpetration of the practice, for how can the public possibly know who are the honoured hundred?—Yours obediently, July 18, 1887. Anxious.

[Several other correspondents have sent communications on the same subject. Some are tempted to wander a little out of the path, in speaking of matters not directly connected with the theme; a few would open quite a nice controversy; but as we think that enough has been said we propose to close the correspondence.—Ed. M. T.]

FERRIS'S "GREAT COMPOSERS."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I am pleased to be able to inform your correspondent "Musicus" that he can obtain "The Great Composers," in one volume (1s.), in the Camelot Classics, published by W. Scott, Warwick Lane. I believe the American edition is not to be had in England.

Yours sincerely,

John F. Pole.

11, John Street, Wilmington Square, W.C.,
June 29, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In the interests of musical students, I beg to call your attention to an instance of most audacious plagiarism in the book asked for by one of your correspondents. It was published in Mr. Walter Scott's "Camelot Classics," entitled "The Great Composers, German, French, and Italian, by J. Ferris." The book reads superbly in parts, but a slight knowledge of musical literature suffices to show that though the voice is the voice of Ferris, the hands are the hands of various other gentlemen. It is not merely that he takes their ideas: he even appropriates their actual words. A book he has drawn very largely upon is Dr. Schlüter's "History of Music," although it is evident that he has not read the book in the original, for he uses an English translation by Mrs. R. Tubbs. He also "paraphrases" Mr. Hueffer on Wagner, and lays other authors under forced contribution. Wherever he trusts himself to row with his own oars he always catches an atrociously bad crab. But it is dull work descanting on this clever kind of "originality"; it will be sufficient if this letter prevents any musical students being led away by it. I am, yours truly,

W. R.

Liverpool, July 14, 1887.

[Our correspondent sent us copious extracts from the work in question, arranged in parallel columns with the original works. These, which unfortunately our space will not permit us to quote, show something more than an accidental resemblance.—Ed. M. T.]

THE LOCAL EXAMINATIONS OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Seeing a letter with reference to the above in your last month's issue from "Mus. Bac., F.C.O.," I beg to inform you that the Local Examinations for this year, though beginning in February, only terminated on May 31, and that the results were published on June 18. This, if your correspondent will refer to the Academy syllabus, he will find to be a fortnight in advance of the date promised.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

William John Short,

Clerk of Metropolitan and Local Examinations.

95, Clifton Hill, N.W., July 20, 1887.

THE CELLO.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In addition to "Cello's" plea for his instrument, may I be permitted to suggest that it would be a great boon if publishers would agree as to how they will print the music for it? At the present moment I have before me four different ways of writing cello music—the bass clef, the tenor clef, and the treble clef. This last method is again divided into two, some publishers intending the notes to be played at the proper pitch, others again an octave lower than written, and in reading at sight it is often not very clear what is intended. Surely it would be sufficient to use the bass and treble clefs only, the latter always representing the true pitch of the note, and so avoiding the use of ledger lines, which are ugly to look at, and always more or less confusing in the higher positions.

July 11, 1887. Cello secondo.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I was glad to see the letter of "Cello" in your July number, having myself for some time been in quest of easy concerted chamber music. I venture to suggest, if he requires something very simple, to get Pleyel's Violin Duets and Sonatinas, arranged by Hermann, and published as trios, by Augener. If he have the luck to secure an amateur tenor and flute he can have these as trios, quartets, or quintets. Then there are some charming German "Kinder Trios," by Meyer, Bergmann, Henning, and Rösler, which Messrs. Novello kindly got for me from Magdeburg, and which, probably, he would find in Berners Street. Chanot has also published some trios for violin, cello, and piano. There is a pleasing minuet, by Acraman, published by Hutchings, in Blenheim Street, and several others. These may assist him till, as he suggests, some composer will take care of progressing trio amateurs.

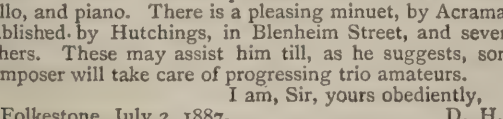
I am, Sir, yours obediently,

Folkestone, July 2, 1887. D. H.

ORIGIN OF A MUSICAL PHRASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Can any of your correspondents inform me who was the originator of the following musical phrase?—



Although this is from Schubert's "Adieu," it certainly does not belong to him, for Cherubini, in the Overture to "The Water-Carrier," has it almost note for note—

It appears again in Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," although he gives it a sacred expression—

And, lastly, it appears in Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Pinafore," but with its character greatly altered—

Thus far the idea seems to have originated in Cherubini. Perhaps some of your readers may be able to enlighten me as to whether the phrase occurs in any of the older masters.—Yours truly, Max Tanner.

57, Lancaster Road, Stroud Green, July 2, 1887.

DENMAN'S LORD'S PRAYER.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Is anything known of the harmonised arrangement for the Lord's Prayer by Denman, the actor, mentioned in F. W. Hawkins's "Life of Edmund Kean"? If any of your readers can bring it to light, it will be very useful to—Yours, July 8, 1887. Inquirer.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

Correspondents are particularly requested to write their communications on one side of the paper only.

R. G. W.—Our correspondent must make his own choice. We cannot undertake the responsibility of recommending teachers.

J. A. P.—Letter received. We cannot agree with you.

J. W. L.—We are sorry we cannot entertain your proposition.

John Law (Melbourne).—We shall be always glad to have musical news from the Colony.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Altrincham, Cheshire.—After a dinner to the aged people on Jubilee day, a free Concert was given in the Market Hall. A capital orchestra had been organised, which included most of the available talent of the district. The programme included songs, glees, solos, and orchestral selections. The orchestra gave a March, "Victoria Regina," composed by the Conductor, Mr. D. Colley. The work includes some interesting treatment of the Chorals, Coburg and Gotha, composed by the late Prince Consort, which were introduced with the special permission of Her Majesty the Queen, the effect of the peroration, which brings in the National Anthem, combined with phrases of the Chorals, being very impressive. This piece was received with great enthusiasm. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen" brought the Concert to a close. Mr. D. Colley officiated as accompanist. A vote of thanks was made to the ladies and gentlemen who kindly contributed to the success of the undertaking.

Bandon, Co. Cork.—The Queen's Jubilee was celebrated here on June 28 and 29, by two Concerts, given by the Young Men's Association, in the Town Hall. The choruses, well rendered by about eighty voices and a large orchestra, included the Hallelujah Chorus, from The Messiah, "O noble Queen" (Simpson), "Royal Choral March" (Young), "Great Britain's Sons and Daughters" (Bridge), "Advance, Britannia" (West), "The Empire Flag" (Mackenzie). Solos were given by Messrs. Emerson, Poole, Williams, Vaughan, Mrs. McCarthy Morrogh, the Misses Jackson, Horsford, French, and Brown. The Band of the Royal Munster Fusiliers played selections during the evening, under the bâton of Mr. J. Laurie, bandmaster, which gave much satisfaction, and the War March from Athalie was rendered in a very spirited manner by the orchestra. The National Anthem was sung both at the commencement and finish of each Concert, the whole audience rising and joining heartily. During the interval, an address to Her Majesty, congratulating her on attaining the fiftieth year of a reign that has been marked by a broad, ready sympathy with the joys and sorrows of her people, and by a wise fulfilment of her duties as Constitutional ruler, was passed, to be presented to Her Majesty by the Earl of Bandon. The Concerts, if judged by the crowded houses and the sympathy and enthusiasm of the audience, was a great success. Mr. J. P. Mills, Organist of St. Peter's Church, conducted.

Bexley.—On June 24, special Services in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, and to inaugurate the opening of the new organ, were held at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Park Hill, and were attended by a large and interested congregation. The order of the Service was as follows:—Processional Hymn, No. 5 (special); special Psalms, xlvii., lxxxi., and cl.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (Grey in A flat), composed expressly for the occasion by the organist; Anthem, "Rejoice in the Lord" (Elvey); followed by the National Anthem and special Jubilee prayers. After this the dedication of the new organ took place. The musical part of the service was admirably carried out under the direction of Mr. C. J. Grey, the Organist, and the fine tone and power of the new organ were generally admired.

Brampton Deanery.—The Triennial Festival of the Parish Choirs Association for Brampton Deanery was held at Lanercost Abbey on June 28. Choirs were present from Talkin, Midgeholme and Spelter Works, Brampton, Lanercost and Lees Hill, Farlam, Walton, Irthington, Nether Denton, Gilsland, Cumwhitton, Castlecarrock, Cumrew, and Hayton. Mr. Fred Willy (Organist of Brampton Parish Church) conducted, and Mr. J. H. Rooks (Organist of St. Paul's Church, Bradford) presided at the organ.

Bridlington Quay.—On Sunday, the 3rd ult., a fine new organ, which has been erected in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, was opened by Mr. T. S. Partridge, late organist of the Priory Church. The instrument is of pitch pine, handsomely decorated, and built by Messrs. Conacher and Co., Huddersfield. It has two rows of keys and a pedal organ, with six stops in the great organ and five in the swell, and a total number of 646 pipes. Under the skilful manipulation of Mr. Partridge, the power and tone of the instrument were thoroughly satisfactory.

Brisbane, Queensland.—The Musical Union, which, under the guidance of its new Conductor, Dr. Allan Walters, is entering upon a new lease of life, recently offered a prize of fifty guineas for a Jubilee Ode. Six compositions were sent in, written for chorus and full orchestra, and the prize was unanimously awarded to Mr. A. M. Nesbitt, Head Master of Toowoomba Grammar School. At the same time, high commendation was bestowed upon the work sent in by Dr. Walters as one of high merit, and the Committee decided that both Odes should be performed at the Jubilee Festival in June. The other musical arrangements for the week comprised a Choir and Band Competitions, as well as an open-air Concert by 1,000 children in the State schools, under the direction of Dr. Allan Walters.

Burnley.—At the Fulledge Chapel Anniversary Services, on June 19, the Anthems included Gounod's "Send out Thy light" and "From Thy love as a Father," and Macfarren's "A day in Thy courts." The Official Jubilee Service was sung in its entirety at the Parish Church, under the direction of Mr. Cruickshank, Mus. Bac., Organist, on June 26. Stainer's "Let every soul be subject" was selected by Bethesda Congregational Church, and Jude's "Grant the Queen a long life," was rendered at St. James's Church on the 10th ult. Sir George Elvey's Cantata Victoria was well rendered by the Choir of Holy Trinity on June 22 and 26. The solos were allotted to Mr. E. Hartly and Masters A. Slater and Jas. M. Simpson. Mr. Watson presided at the organ. Mr. Edward S. Massey, who is an enthusiastic musical amateur, has associated his name for some years with a chorus, which has rendered such works as Elijah, St. Paul, Stabat Mater, Redemption, and Golden Legend. For their adequate performance Mr. Massey has made himself responsible both as trainer and Conductor, as also by engaging splendid orchestras as his own expense. The result has been most gratifying, and it is earnestly hoped that the chorus will remain united, continue to gain further successes, and become an institution in the town. The members were invited by Mr. Massey to a pic-nic on the 2nd ult. On returning to Skipton, the choir presented him with three pieces of silver plate as a small recognition of his zealous efforts on behalf of music in Burnley. In replying, Mr. Massey expressed his hope of meeting the choir again on his return from an extended tour.——The Jubilee Service at the Parish Church consisted of the music performed at Westminster Abbey, supplemented with selections from the works of Dr. Stainer to suit the lengthened service. The National Anthem, as arranged by Sir Michael Costa, was sung morning and evening. Tallis's Festal Service was used, the Te Deum by the late Prince Consort, the Anthem, "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers" (Dr. Stainer), Dr. Bridge's "Blessed be the Lord thy God which delighted in thee," and Dr. Stainer's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in B flat. The whole service was of the highest excellence, devotionally rendered, and reflected great credit upon the Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. Cruickshank, and his admirable choir.

Chelmsford.—An Organ Recital was given by Mr. F. R. Frye, F.C.O., at St. Mary's Church, on Wednesday evening, the 13th ult. The programme consisted of pieces by Handel, Chipp, Smart, Batiste, Capocci, Gladstone, and Mailly. There was a large congregation.

Douglas, Isle of Man.—The season here, from a musical point of view, promises to be one of the most brilliant ever witnessed. At the most popular resort, Derby Castle, the splendid new pavilion is being utilised for a series of Concerts which, for excellence, it would be difficult to surpass. Mr. Charles Reynolds, the well-known oboe player, of the Charles Hallé orchestra, and of other famed musical combinations, is the Conductor, and he has gathered around him a number of artists of acknowledged musical skill. Amongst the vocalists are Mr. Seymour Jackson, Miss Kate Drew, Mdlle. Vadini, and a host of others. A special engagement has also been concluded with the Blue Hungarian Band. The management has been entrusted to Mr. S. K. White, who is to be congratulated on the completeness of his arrangements, and the success which has attended them.

Eastbourne.—A very excellent Concert was given in the Town Hall on Thursday, the 14th ult., by the pupils of Miss Hardy. There was a very fair attendance. With the exception of two items, standing to the name of Miss Janet Steele, the whole of the numbers in the programme were rendered by Miss Hardy or her pupils, all of whom played in good style. The Concert closed with a piece for nine violins, played most spiritedly and with true precision. Miss Hardy exhibited her talents in various ways. She recited, presided at the piano, gave a concertina solo, and assisted in a trio with the violoncello.

Eckington.—The district Festival of the Derby Archidiaconal Choral Association for this year, was held in the Parish Church, on June 30, when the following choirs were present:—Eckington, Old Whittington, New Whittington, Staveley, Brimington, Beighton, Killamarsh, and Barlbro'. The choirs were under the conductorship of Mr. A. F. Smith, Mus. Bac., of Derby, and Mr. Edwin Keeton, of Eckington, was the Organist. The Anthem, "Fear not, O land," by Sir John Goss; the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, by J. T. Field; and the Te Deum, by Henry Gadsby, were very effectively rendered. A sermon, by the Rector of Eckington, spoke of the advancement of church music during the last fifty years, and a selection from Haydn's No. 1 Mass, played on the organ by Mr. Keeton, ended the service.

Edinburgh.—The great feature of this summer's revival of Rob Roy at the Lyceum Theatre was the appearance of Mr. Sims Reeves in the character of Francis Osbaldistone. On stepping upon the stage he was enthusiastically cheered, and seemed gratified by the heartiness of the reception he received. His first song, "My pretty Jane," was given with rare sweetness and expression. His singing of "Auld lang syne" was a great treat, and the audience would fain have had him repeat it. Throughout the evening, however, he wisely set his face against encores. Mr. Reeves also took part with Miss Siedle—the Diana Vernon of the evening—in the two unaccompanied duets. Miss Siedle has a light sweet voice of excellent quality, which was heard to much advantage in "Robin Adair" and "Cam ye by Athol." Mr. Howard took the title rôle and Mrs. Howard the part of Helen Macgregor; Mr. Wyndham (Captain Thornton), Mr. Mollison (Bailie), Mr. Rainforth (Dougal), Miss Kate Sherry (Mattie), and Mr. Tom Walker (Major Galbraith), completed the cast.

Falkirk.—A highly successful Students' Concert was given by Mr J. Watson Lee in the Town Hall, which was quite filled, on Friday evening, the 8th ult. The principal items were Grand Duo for two pianos, "Hommage à Handel" (Moscheles), splendidly played; the Overtures "Son and Stranger" (Mendelssohn) and "Jubel" (Weber), arranged for two pianos (8 hands); Beethoven's 16th Sonata, Chopin's Etude in G flat, and Bach's "Præambulum" piano solos, all of which were exceedingly well played and thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Clelland and Mr. James Rule each contributed two songs. The Rev. James Aitchison presided, and gave out the certificates to the successful candidates who had passed the recent examinations in connection with Trinity College, London.

Gargrave.—The annual Festival of the North Craven Choir Union was this year held at Gargrave on the 2nd ult. The Processional Hymn was "Come, ye faithful people," set to an original tune by Dr. A. L. Peace; the Anthem, Dr. Stainer's "Let every soul be subject"; Canticles, Wesley's Chant Service in F; Hymn before sermon, "For all thy countless bounties," words by the Dean of Wells, set to music by Mr. R. Watson; and "Holy offerings" was sung during the offertory. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Champneys, Vicar of Haslingden. The service was intoned by the Rev. John Thursfield, Vicar of S. Edmund's, Leeds. Mr. F. Holt, Mus. Bac., Darwen, presided at the organ, and Mr. R. Watson, of Burnley, the organising Choirmaster, conducted.

Gosforth, Whitehaven.—On the 9th ult., the fourth annual Festival of Choirs in the Rural Deanery of Gosforth, took place in the Parish Church. The service began at two o'clock in the afternoon, and above 200 choristers took part in it. Tallis's Responses were used, and the Psalms were sung to chants by Henley, Turle, and Lawes. Bunnett's popular Service in F was effectively rendered. The Anthem was Dr. Tye's "O God of Hosts." The simplicity of this composition enabled every singer to thoroughly master it, and a perfect performance was ensured. The hymn, "Rejoice to day with one accord," was sung in unison, and the effect was enhanced by two cornets accompanying the organ. The whole of the musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. W. H. Bates, the Organist of Holy Trinity Church, Whitehaven, who had trained the choirs individually. Miss Shaw, the Organist of the Church, gave valuable assistance at the organ.

Hamilton, N.B.—Thanksgiving Services were held in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, on Sunday, June 26. The Anthem in the morning was Dr. Bridge's Jubilee Anthem, the bass solo being sung by Mr. James Steel. At the evening service, Dr. Stainer's Anthem, "Let every soul be subject," was sung, the solo being divided by Sergeants Trydell and Carroll, S.R., and as a second Anthem, after the last hymn, Dr. Bridge's anthem was repeated as in the morning. Mr. Hood, the Organist, played an Andante by Spohr; the Hallelujah Chorus, Handel; Cramer's Andante in A flat; an Andante by G. A. Macfarren; and Handel's Coronation Anthem.

Herne Bay.—On Jubilee Day a united Service was given in Christ Church. The musical portion of the service was conducted by Mr. E. A. Cruttenden with great ability, and his efforts were ably seconded by a well-balanced choir and considerable heartiness on the part of the congregation. The order of this part of the service was as follows:—Opening Voluntary, "Extempore Fanfare"; Te Deum (Albert Lowe); Psalm xx., to a chant by Beethoven; Anthem, "Let every soul be subject," by Dr. Stainer; and a Hymn in which the congregation joined. This was followed by the National Anthem, and the service concluded with the Hallelujah Chorus.

Manchester.—The annual meeting of the subscribers to the Manchester Gentlemen's Concerts was held on the 18th ult., at the Concert Hall, Peter Street, Mr. F. Hampson presiding. The report stated that the directors desired to impress upon the subscribers that, although the treasurer's statement showed a small balance in favour of the Institution, it was not to be concluded that the funds were in a satisfactory condition. Notwithstanding the excellence of the Concerts given during the past season, a considerable number of subscribers had, at the close of it, sent in their resignations. Although new subscribers would be added to the list, and many of the resignations might be withdrawn, the directors confessed to some feeling of disappointment that the effort they had so carefully and persistently made to maintain a high standard in the character of the Concerts had not met with a more hearty response. In the ensuing season the usual number of afternoon and evening Concerts would be given, and the directors, in pursuing the policy which they had acted upon hitherto, would spare no pains to promote the best interests of the Institution. The report and statement of accounts were adopted. The latter showed that the year began with a balance in hand of £285, and ended with a balance in hand of £37.

Melbourne.—For want of the usual and highly suitable accommodation of the Town Hall, which is still in the hands of the decorators, the managers of the Melbourne Liedertafel, on May 2, gave their 186th Concert in the Alexandra Theatre. There was an efficient band of thirty players in the orchestra and the choir mustered some sixty strong. Mr. G. Weston was the leader of the orchestra; Madame D'Arch and Mr. Henry Stockwell were the solo vocalists, and the whole of the musical forces were, as usual, under the experienced guidance of Mr. Julius Siede. The first number on the programme was the well-known "Jubilee Overture," by Weber. The first three movements from the "Im Walde" Symphony, by Raff, were played in a style which was creditable to the players engaged. The remaining portions of the entertainment were of the kind common to Liedertafel Concerts. The part-singing included the "Students' Evening Song," by Fischer; "Name the day," by Pontet, arranged for chorus and orchestra; Beethoven's "Adelaide," arranged by Mr. Siede for men's voices and orchestra; "The Knight's Farewell," by Kinkel; "The Post Horn," by Schäffer, with cornet obbligato, played by Mr. Thompson; "The Star of Love Waltz," composed by Mr. Siede for voices and orchestra; and "The Dance," composed for voices and orchestra, by Zelman. These contributions were rendered by the choir with good effect, and were duly acknowledged by the audience. Signor Zelman was accompanist at the pianoforte.

Northfleet.—A Special Service of thanksgiving for Her Majesty's Jubilee was held in the Parish Church, on Thursday evening, June 23, when there was a crowded congregation. The choir was supplemented by trumpets and drums from the band of the Royal Marines. The form of service used was that specially issued, the Te Deum being sung to Woodward's setting in E flat; the Anthem was Stainer's "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers." "God save the Queen" was sung as a Processional, and "Awake, O Church of England" as a Recessional, the full parts of the service having a very grand effect. Mr. J. Carter-Jenner presided at the organ, and played Rink's brilliant arrangement of "God save the Queen" at the close of the service.

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad.—The local celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee was appropriately brought to a conclusion by a Concert for the benefit of the poor, which took place on June 25 in the Prince's Building. The National Anthem was sung by the Philharmonic Union in chorus, solos by Miss Donnatien and Miss Drago. The Symphony to the Hymn of Praise which followed was creditably performed. The choruses were rendered with vigour and precision, but the accompaniments to the solos were sometimes too loud. Handel's Coronation Anthem was well performed, and the Ode was creditably rendered. Dr. A. C. Mackenzie's Grand Jubilee Ode was the piece par excellence of the evening. The solos were sung by Mrs. Doorly, Miss Drago, Miss Donnatien, and Mr. Gatty. The music leading to the National Anthem, for which a new second verse has been written, has a true festive ring and a majestic solidity befitting the occasion, while in the choruses there are some bold and striking effects. The greatest praise is to be accorded to the performers and their leaders for this, one of the grandest musical efforts ever made in the Colony, and the result of which reflects the greatest credit on all concerned, but more especially on the Rev. W. S. Doorly, on whom devolved the greater part of the preliminary labour of the undertaking.

Reading.—On the 12th ult. an open air Concert was given at Westwood, the residence of S. S. Melville, Esq., by the London Male Voice Quartet, under the direction of Mr. D. Sutton Shepley. The programme consisted of glees, madrigals, and part-songs, the performance of which was very successful, there being several encores accorded.

Scholes, Cleckheaton.—At Scholes Church, on June 25, a special service to inaugurate a reredos erected to the memory of the late Mrs. R. F. Taylor, and also a lectern in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, was given. The members of the St. Paul's Church Choir, Manningham (a large professional choir), along with Mr. J. H. Rooks, their talented organist, had generously volunteered their assistance, and the musical portion of the service was most efficiently and pleasingly rendered. In the evening a garden party and Concert took place on the lawn attached to the vicarage. The members of the St. Paul's Church choir, and several ladies from Bradford, contributed a number of songs and glees, Mr. Rooks ably accompanying on the pianoforte.

Sheffield.—The music performed by the Queen's command at Westminster Abbey, on June 21, was incorporated in the services at St. Philip's Church on June 25. The special music on both occasions was the Processional March from Handel's Occasional Oratorio; Tallis's Responses, with the additional responses and versicles arranged by Dr. Bridge; The Prince Consort's Te Deum; Special Psalm, "Exaudiat te Dominus"; Anthem, "Blessed be the Lord thy God" (Dr. Bridge), and the Recessional March from Mendelssohn's Athalie. Under the superintendence of Mr. J. Beaumont, the Organist of the Church, this music was given in a manner praiseworthy to all concerned. To render the service complete and make it somewhat reflective of the grand Jubilee service at the Abbey, a band consisting of two cornets, three trombones, a euphonium, and drums, was employed in the accompaniments in addition to the organ. The effect of this combination was often exceedingly grand, and especially was it so in the National Anthem, which was sung as the hymn before the evening's sermon, the immense congregation joining in it with one accord.

Strone.—A very successful Jubilee Concert was given on June 30 under the auspices of the local lodge of Good Templars. The programme was excellently arranged, and the rendering of the various pieces by the choir reflected great credit on Mr. Gibson, of Dunoon, as a choirtrainer. A special feature of the programme was a jubilee song and chorus, entitled "God save Victoria," words by Mr. J. L. MacLean Watt, music by Mr. A. C. Beckett, of Glasgow. The composition, excellently sung by Mr. Gibson and choir, was enthusiastically received by the audience. It received a prize in the People's Friend jubilee song competition. The members of the choir also contributed solos and duets, which were tastefully sung.

Stoke Poges.—Mr. Summers has been presented with a testimonial on his resignation of the offices he had held as Organist and Choirmaster. The testimonial consisted of a very handsome gold watch, with an address.

Tunbridge Wells.—Mr. J. Maughan Barnett, assisted by Miss Lucille Saunders and Mr. Hilwen Jones (vocalists), gave his annual Pianoforte Recital in the Pump Room, on Saturday, the 9th ult. His programme included Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 31), Schubert's "Wanderer" Fantaisie, Liszt's "Rhapsodie Hongroise," and works by Schumann, Chopin, Field, and J. Maughan Barnett. The vocal selections consisted of songs by Tosti, Goring Thomas, Isidore de Lara, Hope Temple, and J. Maughan Barnett, and a duet by Gustav Ernest. Mr. C. J. Wood acted as accompanist.

Whitley.—An Organ Recital was given in St. Michael's Church on Thursday, the 21st ult., by Mr. W. T. Clark, the Organist. The programme included selections from Bach, Mendelssohn, Guilmant, Batiste, Wély, &c.

Organ Appointments.—Miss Fryer, Organist and Choirtrainer to Cathcart Street Presbyterian Church, Ayr, N.B.—Mr. Ernest R. Foster, to Holy Trinity Church, Rotherhithe.—Mr. Charles Behr, R.C.M., Leipzig, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Bartholomew's, Southsea, Hants.—Mr. J. E. Adkins, F.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to Esher.—Mr. Robert H. Johnston, Organist and Choirmaster to the Congregational Church, Ipswich, Queensland.—Mr. G. E. Arnold, Organist and Choirmaster to Knaresborough Parish Church.—Mr. J. Westbrook, Organist and Choirmaster to Didsbury Parish Church.—Mr. William H. Stocks, A.C.O., L.R.A.M., Organist and Choirmaster to the Chapel of Alleyn's College of God's Gift, Dulwich.—Mr. Blewett Faull, to St. Paul's Church, Kilburn.—Mr. John Ellis, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Old Charlton, Kent.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. J. W. Winkworth (Alto), to Ripon Cathedral.—Mr. H. J. J. Jones (Tenor), to Ely Cathedral.—Mr. H. J. W. Marshall (Alto), to St. Stephen's Church, South Dulwich.

DEATHS.

On June 17, at 300, Mile End Road, London, Thomas John Watson late of the Crystal Palace and Royal Italian Opera, aged 50.

On June 25, at Milan, Filippo Filippi, Musical Critic of the Perseveranza and the Giove Potente, of Milan.

On the 1st ult., suddenly, J. B. Welch, Professor of Singing in the National Training School for Music and the Guildhall School of Music.

On the 3rd ult., at 63, York Terrace, Regent's Park, Lindsay Sloper, aged 61.

On the 24th ult., at 61, Gloucester Street, Warwick Square, S.W., after a long illness, Constantine Guenther, aged 55, Professor of Music.

MR. JAMES SAUVAGE begs to announce that he is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Opera, Concerts, &c. All communications to be addressed, 21, Poplar Grove, West Kensington Park, W.

ORGANIST desires an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST or ASSISTANT ORGANIST. Choral Services. Highest references. W. T. K., Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. NORMAN ADAMS, the Organist of the American Church, Paris, will be enabled to accept an APPOINTMENT in England, September next. Address, 26, Avenue Marceau, Paris.

OLD-ESTABLISHED PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, with Tuning connection, in the Midlands, to be SOLD. Address, S. L., Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

HAIL TO OUR HARVEST HOME! Part-music. By Benjamin Congreve. Price 1½d.
"This is a spirited composition."—The Orb.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

DURING THE LAST MONTH
Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

A SHORT HISTORY OF CHEAP MUSIC, as exemplified in the records of the house of NOVELLO, EWER and Co. For particulars, see page 456.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ.—"Schwanengesang" ("Swan Songs"). Fourteen Songs. With Pianoforte Accompaniment. The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK. 1s. 6d.

BAILEY, JOHN J.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 6d.

HIGGINS, W. H.—(in E flat). Benedictus. 4d.

RUSSELL, W. A. B.—Benedictus. Chant form. 3d.

WEST, CHARLES T.—(in B flat). Te Deum (on the Melody of the Chimes). 3d.

WHITEHEAD, A. W.—(in E flat). The Office of the Holy Communion. 2s.

BLISS, REV. W. H., M.A.—Chants. 3d.

CROOK, ARTHUR T.—"In Thee, O Lord." Anthem. For Four Voices. 4d.

TOWNSEND, HERBERT.—Seed-time and Harvest. Harvest Carol. 2d. Words only, 2s. per 100.

HAYNES, BATTISON.—Six Vocal Duets. For Soprano and Contralto. 2s. 6d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"More than crown of Monarch precious." Solo for Soprano. From "A Jubilee Ode." 2s.

ROBERTS, R. MEYRICK.—"Plighted Vows." Duet. For Soprano and Tenor. The Words written by the Rev. J. CONWAY WALTER. 1s. 6d.

NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 23, 24, and 25. 1s. each. One Volume, cloth, 4s. (Compositions by JOSEF RHEINBERGER.)

RAGGHIANTI, IPPOLITO.—Nine Morceaux de Salon. (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums for Violin and Pianoforte, No. 7.) 2s. 6d.

TOURS, BERTHOLD.—"Juvenile Album." Eight Characteristic Pieces (four hands). The Primo part being generally within the Compass of Five Notes. (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Pianoforte Albums, No. 26.) 2s.

BEATTIE, WILLIAM.—"Sea Dreams." Morceau pour Piano. 1s. 6d.

O'LEARY, ARTHUR.—Scherzetto in G major. For the Pianoforte. 2s.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN.

54.	Postlude, in B flat	John E. West	1 0
55.	Allegro, in form of a Minuet	W. G. Wood	1 6
60.	Andantino in D	J. Barnby	0 6
61.	Communion and Larghetto	Edouard Batiste	1 0
62.	Prelude and Postlude	Edouard Batiste	1 6
63.	Andante in A flat and Pastorale in F	Hamilton Clarke	1 0
64.	Grand Offertorio in A	Hamilton Clarke	1 0
65.	Minuet in the Ancient Style, B flat	Hamilton Clarke	1 0
66.	Larghetto in C	C. J. Frost	1 0
67.	Fantasia in B flat	C. J. Frost	1 0
68.	Sonatina in C	C. J. Frost	1 6
69.	Andante Moderato in A	Dr. Garrett	1 6
70.	Prelude in C minor	F. E. Gladstone	1 0
71.	Allegro Marziale	F. E. Gladstone	1 0
72.	Prelude and Fugue in A minor	Ch. Grædener	1 0
73.	Andante in F	J. W. Gritton	0 6
74.	Marche Triomphale in E flat and Postlude in F	Alex. Guilmant	1 6
75.	Fantaisie sur Deux Mélodies Anglaises	Alex. Guilmant	1 6
76.	Festal March in E flat	Dr. C. S. Heap	1 6
77.	Fantasia on Mendelssohn's Volkslied	Geo. Hepworth	1 6
78.	Prelude in G	W. Macfarren	0 6
79.	Religious March in E flat	G. A. Macfarren	1 0
80.	Andante in G and Secular March	G. A. Macfarren	1 0
81.	Variations on the Psalm-tune "Windsor"	G. A. Macfarren	1 0
82.	Andante in D	H. S. Oakeley	1 0
83.	Præludium et Fuga	Sir F. Ouseley	1 0
84.	Prelude in C sharp minor	W. Parratt	0 6
85.	Postlude in C minor	E. Prout	1 0
86.	Andante in E flat and Postlude in C	F. J. Read	1 0
87.	Andante Serioso in D minor	C. Reinecke	0 6
88.	Allegro vivace in D	C. T. Speer	1 0
89.	Prelude and Fugue in E minor	C. V. Stanford	1 0
90.	Postlude in C	H. J. Stark	1 0
91.	Allegretto Pastorale in A and Fugue in D minor	C. Steggall	1 6
92.	Offertoire in F	C. E. Stephens	1 0
93.	Concert-Fantasia in D minor	Sir R. P. Stewart	1 6
94.	Fugato in C	Ph. Tietz	1 0
95.	Pastorale in E flat and Concluding Voluntary, Fugato in G minor	Ph. Tietz	1 0

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

96.	March in F	J. H. Wallis	1 0
97.	Voluntary (Grave and Andante)	S. S. Wesley	1 0
98.	Concert-Fantasia, D minor	Johann Worping	1 6

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. MCNAUGHT.
No. 553. Mary Morison. Part-song. GEORGE J. BENNETT 1d.

REDUCED PRICE:—

ANDERTON, THOMAS.—"Yule-tide." A Cantata. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s.; cloth gilt, 3s.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.
Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.
Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.
Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.
I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.
When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WANTED, a SITUATION as TUNER and SHOP-ASSISTANT. London and country experience. R., 12, High Street, Bath.

REDUCED PRICE
ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

SUMMER NIGHTS
(LES NUITS D'ÉTÉ)
SIX SONGS BY THÉOPHILE GAUTIER
Set to Music, with Accompaniment for small Orchestra or Pianoforte
BY
HECTOR BERLIOZ.
(Op. 7.)
English version by FRANCIS HUEFFER.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR SACRED DUETS
FOR SOPRANO VOICES
COMPOSED BY
WILLIAM STERNDALE BENNETT.
No. 1. Remember now thy Creator.
" 2. Do no evil.
" 3. And who is he that will harm you?
" 4. Cast thy bread upon the waters.
PRICE ONE SHILLING.
Cloth, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE SONGS
WITH ENGLISH AND GERMAN WORDS
COMPOSED BY
WILLIAM STERNDALE BENNETT.

Op. 23.	Op. 35.
No. 1. Musing on the Roaring Ocean.	No. 7. Indian Love.
2. May Dew.	8. Winter's Gone.
3. Forget-me-not.	9. Dawn, Gentle Flower.
4. To Chloe (in Sickness).	10. Castle Gordon.
5. The Past.	11. As Lonesome through the Woods.
6. Gentle Zephyr.	12. Sing, Maiden, Sing.

PRICE ONE SHILLING;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
Also separately, folio, price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee	E. H. Thorne 3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	H. Gadsby 1½d.
Blessed be thou	Dr. Bunnett 3d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	Sir J. Goss 6d.
Fear not, O land	C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	J. F. Bridge 4d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	G. A. Macfarren 6d.
Great is the Lord	E. A. Sydenham 3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	E. J. Hopkins 6d.
I will give Thanks unto Thee	J. Barnby 4d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	Sir J. Goss 3d.
Make melody within your hearts	Rev. F. A. J. Hervey 3d.
O give thanks	E. A. Sydenham 3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	T. M. Pattison 3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	J. Barnby 1½d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works ...	Sir G. A. Macfarren 1½d.
O praise the Lord	Sir Herbert Oakeley 4d.
O praise the Lord of Heaven	Sir J. Goss 6d.
O that men would praise the Lord	J. C. Bridge 4d.
Our God is Lord of the harvest	Emma Mundella 3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Dr. W. Hayes 4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	W. G. Wood 4d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul...	H. Lahee 1½d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	G. Garrett 1½d.
Praised be the Lord	C. Steggall 1/-
Sing praises to God	H. W. Wareing 1½d.
The earth is the Lord's	Dr. C. S. Heap 4d.
The earth is the Lord's	A. Lowe 3d.
The earth is the Lord's	T. T. Trimnell 4d.
The fost'ring earth, the genial showers... ...	J. L. Hopkins 3d.
The harvest-tide thanksgiving	J. Barnby 1½d.
The Lord hath done great things...	H. Smart 4d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	G. Garrett 3d.
This is the day	Sir Herbert Oakeley 4d.
Thou visitest the earth and blessest it	W. H. Callcott 2d.
Thou visitest the earth	Dr. Greene 1½d.
Thou visitest the earth	J. Baptiste Calkin 4d.
While the earth remaineth...	C. Swinnerton Heap 4d.
While the earth remaineth...	B. Tours 1½d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	J. Stainer 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES
FOR HARVEST
SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	J. Barnby.
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	Sir F. Ouseley.
Father, blessing every seed-time	Dr. Dykes.
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead...	W. Metcalf.
The wintry time hath ended	Dr. Gauntlett.
Come, ye thankful people, come	Sir George Elvey.
God, the Father, Whose creation...	H. Smart.
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail...	Anonymous.
Lo, summer comes again	Rev. E. B. Whyley.
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	German.
Summer ended, harvest o'er	J. Adcock.
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	Dr. Wesley.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST
THANKSGIVING MARCH
FOR THE ORGAN
BY
J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.
One Shilling and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA
(HARVEST CANTATA)
FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
COMPOSED BY
C. M. VON WEBER.
Op. 58.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The words translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Octavo, 1s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.

O GIVE THANKS. Composed by E. A. SYDENHAM. As sung at the Festival of the London Sunday School Choirs, at the Crystal Palace, on June 15, by

5,000 VOICES.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.
GREAT IS THE LORD

Festival Anthem for Harvest or General use, by E. A. SYDENHAM.

"A jubilant composition, full of spirit, and a most successful treatment of the words."—Church Times.

"An excellent specimen of a Choral Festival Anthem, is bright and jubilant in style, very melodious and easy throughout. It well deserves the attention of Choirmasters."—Leeds Mercury.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-halfpence.

TO BE SUNG AT THE
CARMARTHEN CHURCH CHORAL UNION FESTIVAL.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM
ANTHEM FOR HARVEST THANKSGIVING OR ANY SPECIAL SERVICE
BY
REV. E. V. HALL.
Price Fourpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fourth Thousand.
NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.
THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE
"Easy, melodious, and effective."
COMPOSED BY EDWYN A. CLARE.
Old Notation, price 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, price 2d.
To be sung, October 5, by about 1,500 voices at Newcastle-on-Tyne.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.
NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.
WHILE THE EARTH REMAINETH
BY W. H. HOLLOWAY.
Price Threepence.
VERY TUNEFUL AND NOT DIFFICULT.
"It is a tuneful and pleasing composition, and will be found of service in the season for which it was written."—Manchester City News.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL FEED MY FLOCK. NEW HARVEST ANTHEM. Price 4d. By CALEB SIMPER, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Worcester (Composer of Ten Prize Tunes to Favourite Hymns, also the First Prize Tune in the Manchester Sunday School Competition, 1887). "Exceedingly pretty, and not difficult." 2nd Thousand.

Also the following popular, easy, melodious, and effective Anthems, &c.

And God said, Let the earth. 24th Edition	3d.
O Lord, how manifold. 6th 1,000	4d.
Fear not, O land. 7th 1,000	3d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul. 4th 1,000...	3d.
They that sow in tears. 6th Edition	3d.
Make a joyful noise. 6th 1,000	3d.
Te Deum in F. 6th Edition	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. 11th Edition. (To be sung by 300 voices at Budworth, September 27)	4d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. 2nd Edition	4d.
Communion Service in F. New...	6d.

TONIC SOL-FA.—The first five Anthems (including the new one) may be had in Tonic Sol-fa. Price of each, 1d. less than Old Notation.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

SMALLWOOD'S (WM.) FESTAL and GENERAL ANTHEMS.

No. 1. THE LORD REIGNETH. Easter, Whitsuntide, or General.
„ 2. THUS SAITH THE LORD, THE KING OF ISRAEL. Easter, Trinity, or General.
„ 3. PRAISED BE THE LORD DAILY. Harvest, Easter, or Whitsuntide.
„ 4. I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. Festival or General.
„ 5. IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Christmas.
„ 6. I WILL GIVE THANKS. Easter, Ascension, or General.
„ 7. ALL THY WORKS PRAISE THEE, O LORD. Harvest or General.

Price 2d. each.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

VOCAL SCORE. OLD NOTATION. TWELFTH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A HARVEST PASTORAL

WORDS BY

EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

SUITABLE FOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

"The Biblical story of which Ruth is the central figure lends itself with remarkable suitability to an illustration of a harvest celebration. The country landscape, the ripened corn, the sturdy reapers, the standing sheaves, the active gleaners, and the busy farmer, all combine to fill the mind's eye with a pleasant scene of excitement. Set to music by a competent composer such as Mr. A. R. Gaul, the narrative of Ruth's eventful episode lends itself to a pathetic, picturesque, and pleasant performance. The bereaved and sorrowful trio of women on whom the calamity of poverty and famine has fallen, as if to give intensity to their greater grief, and the unexpected and happy influence of patriarchal benevolence displayed by the mighty Boaz, who so quickly transforms sorrow into joy, are all introduced and aptly take their allotted place in the melodious music of Gaul's interpretation of the tale."—Gloucester Citizen.

"The work, like the 'Holy City,' is full of beautiful orchestral passages, while the vocal score abounds with charming numbers."—Bucks Herald.

"'Ruth is a work of sterling power; its musical form is that of perfect tunefulness combined with simplicity and strength. . . . The composer has grasped his theme in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and has produced a work which is worthy of the subject."—Bradford Observer.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musicianly—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation."—Birmingham Weekly Dart.

"'Ruth' has been set to music by several composers; none, however, has become so worthily popular as the Cantata under notice. . . . It contains some charming music, and is highly characteristic of the story it so vividly illustrates."—South Wilts Express.

"Full of flowing melody."—Salisbury Times.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON TWELVE OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; ditto, paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s. The Choruses (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 9d. Band parts on loan.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

SEED TIME AND HARVEST

HARVEST CAROL

COMPOSED BY

HERBERT TOWNSEND.

Price Twopence. Words only Two Shillings per 100.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Edition. Price Fourpence.

O THAT MEN WOULD PRAISE THE LORD

(FULL ANTHEM FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS)

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.,

Organist of Chester Cathedral.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR HARVEST OR GENERAL USE.

3rd Thousand. Price 3d.

O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH

ANTHEM

By F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Easy and exceedingly effective. Containing expressive solo for treble or tenor. A most popular Anthem wherever heard.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

COMPOSITIONS by S. CORBETT, Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Harvest Anthem, "Behold, we have brought the first-fruits" price 3d.
Four Offertory Sentences ... ... ,, 6d.
Part-song, "Waken, lords"... ... ... ,, 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Songs, "The Organist" and "The Reaper and the Flowers," each net 2s.

London: Messrs. Forsyth Bros.

Fifth Thousand.

HARVEST ANTHEM.

ALL THY WORKS PRAISE THEE. By

T. Mee Pattison. Two Choruses and Tenor Solo. Price 3d.; Sol-fa, 1½d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

NEW WORKS FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS.

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST,

Mus. Doc., Cantab., Fell. Coll. Org.

Come, ye thankful people, come

AN ORGAN PIECE. Price 3s. net.

This piece is issued (with illustrated title) as a companion piece to "Hark, the herald angels sing," and consists of an Introduction and thirteen Variations upon Sir Geo. Elvey's popular hymn tune "St. George," which is so well known in connection with that hymn. The Variations are not dependent upon each other, therefore when the whole are not required, a selection of the easiest can be made, and in place of the last the hymn might be sung. It is clearly printed in large clear type (uniform with the "Voluntaries") upon eighteen plates, is profusely fingered and pedal-marked throughout, with full instructions for its proper rendering, is set for a two-manual organ, and the Variations are easy to play.

DESCRIPTION.

Introduction, Theme.—Var. 1, left-hand, 2nd species counterpoint and no pedal; Var. 2, chromatic harmonies; Var. 3, theme in tenor, accompanied by 4th species counterpoint; Var. 4, with independent melody for left-hand; Var. 5, with theme concealed by ornamentation; Var. 6, theme on pedals; Var. 7, with running counterpoint; Var. 8, theme in inner part, and independent melody above it; Var. 9, florid passages for alternate hands; Var. 10, with carillons; Var. 11, with carillons, continued; Var. 12, minor; Var. 13, Alla marcia.

Come, ye thankful people, come

HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEM. Price 6d.

This Anthem (24 pages) is a setting, for festival purposes, of the popular Harvest Hymn by the late Dean Alford, and in it Sir George Elvey's well-known tune to the same words ("St. George") is introduced in several ways.

DESCRIPTION.

1st part: Original work, consisting of sentences in unison for Tenor and Basses in Chorus (or Bass Solo), then for Trebles and Altos in unison (or Treble Solo), then Tenors and Basses in two-part vocal harmony, followed by Trebles and Altos in two-part harmony, then by full Chorus. 2nd part: Quartet or Semi-chorus, in which "St. George" first appears as a theme for the bass voice, while the other parts sing various counterpoints. 3rd part (a Chorus) gives the theme to the Tenors, while Trebles and Altos sing in unison an independent melody, the Bass also having independent counterpoint. 4th part (which may be a verse if desired) gives the theme to Trebles and Altos in unison, while Tenors and Basses sing in imitative florid counterpoint, then, after a reprise of the first part with its unison passages (or Solo), two-part vocal harmony and chorus, the theme finally appears as a grand unison in which the congregation are to join.

To assist choirs in the preparation of the Anthem, breath marks are given, and orchestral letters, which will save trouble in rehearsal by facilitating reference back to almost any possible starting point, are also given. Choirmasters' attention is also directed to the frequency of the theme in first one part and then another, facilitating the "getting up" by the choir.

For choirs who find the Anthem too long, a curtailed edition of 16 pages, beginning at letter Q, will be issued, price 4d.

OTHER HARVEST FESTIVAL ANTHEMS BY THE SAME COMPOSER.

Thou visitest the earth ... ... 3d.
When the Lord turned again ... ... 6d.
God is the Lord ... ... 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Or of the Composer, Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

EASY HARVEST MUSIC.

EIGHT HARVEST HYMNS. Words by Rev. S. Childs Clarke. Music by Dr. Dykes, Dean Alford, Mr. Langran, and the Editor, Mr. A. H. Brown. Price 2d.; words only, 1s. per 100.

"A very excellent set of hymns, and most suitable for country parishes."—Church Times.

"We would specially draw attention to the unusually good common metre tune 'St. Angelus,' No. 5, which might well pass for a composition of 250 years ago."—Church Herald.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEMS.

FEAR NOT, O LAND. Composed by C. Cooke. Easy and effective. Price 3d.

"A good anthem."—Christian World.

"Is a well-arranged setting, and will certainly meet with success."—Church Times.

THE RAIN COMETH DOWN. For Harvest Thanksgiving. Arthur Trickett. 3d.

THOU VISITEST THE EARTH. For Harvest Thanksgiving. Arthur Simms. 6d.

The London Music Publishing Co. (Limited), 54, Great Marlborough Street, W.

Just published. Octavo, 3d.

THE HARVEST TRULY IS GREAT

SHORT, FULL ANTHEM FOR HARVEST, EMBER DAYS, MISSIONS, &c.

COMPOSED BY

W. W. PEARSON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.—By THOS. SMITH. 3d. each.

THOU CROWNEST THE YEAR. 26th Ed. "O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O Land." 2nd Ed. "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "It is a good thing." "Sing we merrily." 4th Ed. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmund's.

AWAKE UP, MY GLORY. Full Anthem for Harvest or other Festivals. By JAMES LOARING, F.C.O. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

THOU VISITEST THE EARTH. By T. MEE PATTISON. Two Choruses and Soprano Chorus. Price 2d.; Sol-fa, 1½d.

London: STANNIER and Co., Vigo Chambers, 113, Regent Street, W.

FOR HARVEST-TIDE. Third Thousand.

I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. By WM. JOHNSON (composer of "Ecce Homo," &c.) Price Threepence. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEM.

PRAISE THE LORD. By M. MARSHALL. Price 4d.; specimen copy, 2d. Address, W. Marshall, 15, Charles Street, Portland Town, N.W.

NEW ANTHEM FOR HARVEST.

PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM. Composed by W. G. WOOD. Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HERE ON THE STEPS OF THINE ALTAR. Hymn for a Flower Service. Words by Rev. C. W. STUBBS, M.A. Music by Rev. W. T. SOUTHWARD, M.A. Price 1d.; 6s. per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1½d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS WITH WELSH WORDS.

MOLWCH YR ARGLWYDD	Syr JOHN GOSS.	Pris 1½c.	Solffa 1c.
CENWCH GÂN O FAWL	J. STAINER.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O PRAWF, A GWEL	Syr JOHN GOSS.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1½c.
O ARGLWYDD, MOR LIOSOG YW DY WEITHREDOEDD DI	J. BARNBY.	Pris 3c.	Solffa 1c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM, in B flat	6d.
JUBILATE „	4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS	4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus)	3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs)	2d.
O LORD, CORRECT ME	2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

READY EARLY IN SEPTEMBER.

THE LORD REIGNETH

(PSALM XCIII.)

SET TO MUSIC BY

ROBERT PARKER PAINE.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

"At the Concert of the Windsor and Eton Choral Society, at the Albert Institute, Windsor, which was crowded, a new setting to the 93rd Psalm, by R. P. Paine, was performed for the first time. Without doubt there is very much that is really grand in it. . . . Mr. Paine was warmly congratulated by members of the profession upon his success. The audience called for the composer, and the last chorus was repeated."—Buckinghamshire Advertiser.

"The second part consisted of a composition by Mr. R. P. Paine, being the first time of performance, the 93rd Psalm. . . . There is a grandeur about the composition in harmony with the tone of the Psalm. Each number was applauded, and at the close Mr. Paine twice bowed his acknowledgments."—Eton Express.

"Mr. Paine is already the composer of several works, but in none of his previous efforts, successful and meritorious as they have been, has he scored such a success. . . . The rendering of the composition was listened to by several professors of music, who have expressed the highest commendatory opinions of the work, and without doubt Mr. Paine has exhibited exceptional ability."—Windsor and Eton Gazette.

Full Score and Band Parts can be hired.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHOOL CANTATAS AND SONGS

Composed and Adapted by GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac.

Containing SOLOS, DUETS, and CHORUSES for Treble and Alto, with Pianoforte Accompaniment.

THE BELL TOWER	Staff Notation	1s.	Sol-fa 4d.
TWELVE SCHOOL SONGS	„	8d.	„ 3d.
THE FOUR SEASONS	„	1s. 6d.	„ 6d.

"We cordially recommend this Cantata."—School Guardian.

"'The Four Seasons' is written throughout with appropriate simplicity, but bears the evidence of artistic workmanship in every bar. Some of the soprano solos will delight the prima donna of any establishment where the Cantata is placed in rehearsal."—Musical Times.

"This Cantata cannot fail to be most useful in ladies' schools."—Pitman's Musical Monthly.

"A very pretty Cantata; and the composer may be congratulated at having produced a work so eminently fitted for the purpose."—Essex Weekly News.

London: HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

SERVICES

OF

SACRED SONG

EDITED BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

1. ABRAHAM.—By the EDITOR.
2. MOSES.—By the Ven. Archdeacon FARRAR.
3. ELIJAH.—By the Rev. R. F. DALE, Rector of Bletchington, Oxon.
4. DANIEL.—By the Rev. A. G. BOWMAN, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Westminster.
5. ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.—By the Rev. E. PRICE, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.
6. ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST.—By the Rev. H. A. COTTON, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.
7. SIMON PETER.—By J. H. BRAMMALL.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IN THE PRESS. Ready August 15.

(To be produced by the BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.)

JOAN OF ARC

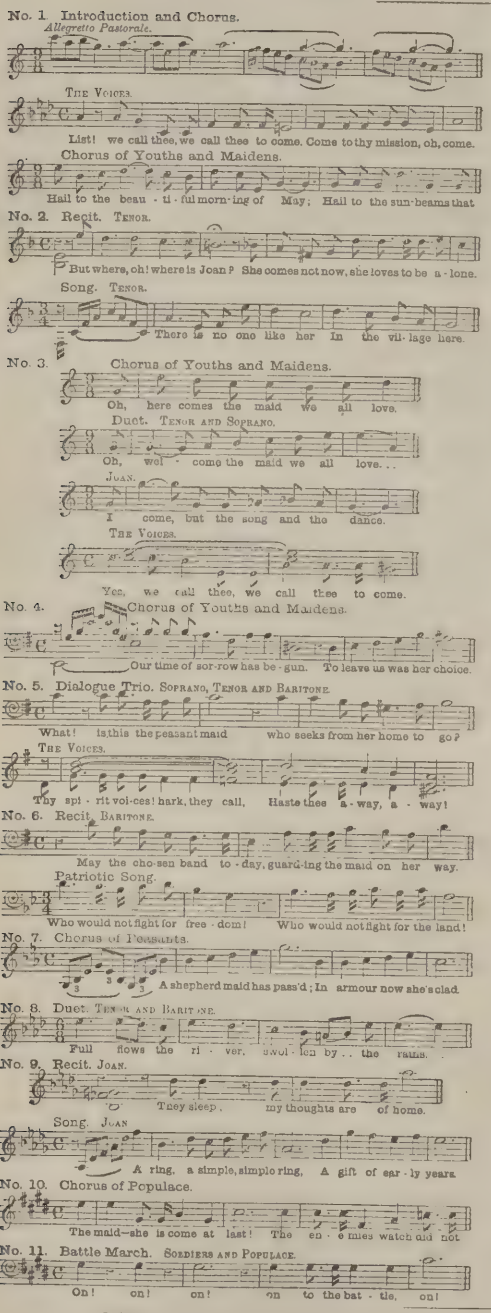
"THE MAID OF ORLEANS"

AN HISTORICAL CANTATA

THE VERSE BY FREDERICK ENOCH

THE MUSIC BY ALFRED R. GAUL (OP. 41)

COMPOSER OF "THE HOLY CITY," "RUTH," "PASSION SERVICE," &c.



No. 1. Introduction and Chorus.
Allegretto Pastorale.
The Voices.
List! we call thee, we call thee to come. Come to thy mission, oh, come.
Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Hail to the beau - ti - ful morn - ing of May; Hail to the sun-beams that
No. 2. Recit. Tenor.
But where, oh! where is Joan? She comes not now, she loves to be a - lone.
Song. Tenor.
There is no one like her In the vil - lage here.
No. 3. Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Oh, here comes the maid we all love.
Duet. Tenor and Soprano.
Oh, wel - come the maid we all love.
Joan.
I come, but the song and the dance.
The Voices.
Yes, we call thee, we call thee to come.
No. 4. Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Our time of sor-row has be - gun. To leave us was her choice.
No. 5. Dialogue Trio. Soprano, Tenor and Baritone.
What! is this the peasant maid who seeks from her home to go?
The Voices.
Thy spi - rit voi-ces! hark, they call, Haste thee a - way, a - way!
No. 6. Recit. Baritone.
May the cho-sen band to - day, guard-ing the maid on her way.
Patriotic Song.
Who would not fight for free - dom! Who would not fight for the land!
No. 7. Chorus of Peasants.
A shepherd maid has pass'd; In armour now she's clad.
No. 8. Duet. Tenor and Baritone.
Full flows the ri - ver, swol - len by . . the rains.
No. 9. Recit. Joan.
They sleep, my thoughts are of home.
Song. Joan
A ring, a simple, simple ring, A gift of ear - ly years.
No. 10. Chorus of Populace.
The maid—she is come at last! The en - e mies watch did not
No. 11. Battle March. Soldiers and Populace.
Oh! on! on! on to the bat - tle, on!
No. 12. Trio. Soprano, Tenor and Baritone.
Lead ye on the men - at - arms, With free-dom's bat - tle cry.
No. 12a. Chorus. Tenors & Basses. English & Burgundian Men-at-arms.
'Tis the witch! the fiend! a - gain!
No. 13. In the Cathedral
A - ve Ma - ri - a— Glad our thanks a - rise.
Second Verse.
A - ve Ma - ri - a, Oh! bless to
Oh! bliss to know how bless-ings wait us near,
No. 14. Chorus of Populace.
Hark . . the chant - ing swells, Hark . . the
List . to the clang . of the bells.
No. 15. Intermezzo Leading from Joy to Sorrow.
Allegro.
No. 16. Chorus of Populace.
She is lost! she is lost! They have ta-ken, have ta - ken the maid
No. 17 Joan.
Is it here that I must die? Oh! France, be - lov - ed.
The Voices Slowly.
Fret not thy-self to - day Of thy mar-tyr-dom, thy mar-tyr-dom, thy sac-rifice; For thou shalt come at last ev-en un-to the kingdom of Pa-ra-dise.
No. 18. Finale, Chorus. Youths and Maidens.
Hail to the beau - ti - ful morn - ing of May.
Villagers, Men & Women.
Slowly
Hush'd, oh! hush'd be the song! oh! hush'd, all hush'd be the song!
Full Choir.
Pompous
But her deeds, her deeds will re - main, re -

Price, paper covers, 2s. 6d.; ditto boards, 3s.; Scarlet Cloth, 4s.; Tonic Sol-Fa, 1s.; Vocal parts, each 1s.

Ent. Sta. Hall.] Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

The gratuitous loan of instrumental parts may be had on application to the Composer, and full liberty is given to perform this Cantata and to insert the words in any programme without further permission.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

This day.

COMMON PRAISE,

A PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF NONCONFORMIST CHURCH MUSIC,

By F. G. EDWARDS,

Organist and Choirmaster of St. John's Wood Presbyterian Church, London.

Formerly Organist and Choirmaster of Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars, and (its perpetuation) Christ Church, Westminster Road, London. Associate of the Philharmonic Society.

CONTENTS:

Chapter I. The Minister.—Chapter II. The Organist; The Choirmaster.—Chapter III. Choir Organisation and Management.—Chapter IV. The Choir Practice.—Chapter V. Congregational Hymn Singing.—Chapter VI. Chanting.—Chapter VII. Anthems, Solos, Services (Te Deums, &c.), and Responses.—Chapter VIII. Organ Recitals, Concerts, Special Musical Services, Orchestral Accompaniments, and Choral Festivals.—Chapter IX. The Organ, and its position.—Chapter X. Organ Voluntaries.—Chapter XI. Organ Accompaniments.

 This work, in addition to a quantity of original matter, summarises 226 replies to thirty-eight questions addressed to Organists, Precentors, Choirmasters, &c., in all the nonconforming churches.

Price 3s. 6d.

LONDON: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

This day.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

A book of practical hints and experiences for the use of Conductors, Secretaries, and Committees.

By L. C. VENABLES.

CONTENTS:

INTRODUCTION.
OFFICERS AND COMMITTEE.
RULES.
BOOKS AND ACCOUNTS.
MEMBERSHIP.
BOYS' VOICES.
MEN ALTOS.
REHEARSALS.
SELECTION OF MUSIC.
CONCERTS—PROFITS AND LOSSES.
ARRANGEMENT OF MISCELLANEOUS PROGRAMMES.
MANAGEMENT OF CONCERTS.
ENGAGEMENT OF SOLOISTS, &c.
BANDS AND ACCOMPANIMENTS.
TUNING.
ACCOMPANIMENT OF RECITATIVES.
ELEMENTARY CLASSES.
THE TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION.
HOW TO RETAIN MEMBERS.
MEN'S VOICE SOCIETIES.
CHORAL COMPETITIONS.
CHOIR TRAINING.
HINTS TO CONDUCTORS.
DO CHORAL SOCIETIES PAY?

Price 3s.

LONDON: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

Now Ready.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE:

WITH TUNES

FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND HOME.

Containing Six Hundred Hymns, Original and Selected.

OLD NOTATION & TONIC SOL-FA (together),

Small Quarto, 760 Pages, Cloth Boards. Price 4s.

There being a great variety of Peculiar Metre Hymns with Tunes, it renders the collection most valuable for Superintendents and others to select from, for special occasions, Anniversaries, &c.

WORDS ONLY.

Demy 16mo, cloth, printed covers. Price 4d. (A Specimen Copy sent Post-free for 4d. in stamps.) Cloth boards, sewn on tapes, 6d.

A DESK COPY OF THE VOICE OF PRAISE.

Imperial 16mo. Cloth Boards. Price 1s.

London: SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

RECEIVED AND ACKNOWLEDGED BY HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

GRAND CHORAL MARCH.—GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST (Soli and Chorus S.A.T.B. 8vo, 4d.; Piano, 2s.; Organ, 2s. each net).

By WILLIAM J. YOUNG,

Composer of Popular Part-Songs.

This March has been played on the Grand Organ at the Royal Exhibition, Manchester, by the eminent Organist, J. Kendrick Pyne, Esq.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TEN SONGS

SET TO POEMS OF ROBERT BURNS

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

O NOBLE QUEEN OF ENGLAND. A Jubilee Part-Song for S.A.T.B. Composed by T. SIMPSON. Price 4d. No choir should omit singing this stirring part-song at any ensuing entertainment or tea-party.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUNG BY MADAME ALBANI.

MORE THAN CROWN OF MONARCH PRECIOUS

SOLO FOR SOPRANO FROM A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price Two Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EMPIRE FLAG

A PATRIOTIC SONG FOR SOLO AND CHORUS

The Words written by

STUART REID AND W. ALEX. BARRETT.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Two Shillings net.

Arranged as a Part-Song, S.A.T.B., 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

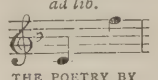
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price 4s.

THE SINGERS

SONG, WITH HARMONIUM OR ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT ad lib.

Compass:—



THE POETRY BY

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE MUSIC BY

W. W. PEARSON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

SELECTION FROM "A JUBILEE LYRIC"

LOVE THAT LASTS FOR EVER

WRITTEN BY THE EARL OF ROSSLYN,

AND PUBLISHED BY COMMAND.

Set to Music for Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus

(With introduction, by Her Majesty's gracious permission, of a Choral by H.R.H. THE PRINCE CONSORT),

BY

SIR HERBERT OAKELEY,

LL.D., Mus. Doc., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO ORGANISTS AND VILLAGE CHOIRS.

JOHN GILPIN

(COMIC CANTATA)

BY

GEORGE FOX.

Vocal Score, 2s. 6d. net; complete set of Orchestral Parts, 10s. 6d. net.

New Edition revised.

London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners Street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Now Ready.

SECOND EDITION OF DR. STORER'S SUCCESSFUL CANTATA

THE TOURNAMENT

Two Shillings net.

This work has been performed with great success at Beverley, Dover (with Mr. Santley), Doncaster, Folkestone, Glasgow, Halifax, Londonderry, Salisbury, and other places.

Orchestral Parts to had on hire from the Author, Folkestone.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MASS

TO THE

MEMORY OF JOAN OF ARC

BY

CHARLES GOUNOD.

For Soli, Chorus, and Organ, preceded by a Prelude for Trumpets, Trombones, and Organ ... ... Score, net 10s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS BY

JOHN FARMER,

ORGANIST AT BALLIOL COLLEGE, OXFORD, AND DIRECTOR OF THE HARROW MUSIC SCHOOL.

		s.	d.
HARROW SCHOOL SONGS	complete	3	0
HARROW GLEE BOOK		3	0
NURSERY RHYMES. 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Sets	each	1	0
CINDERELLA. Fairy Opera		3	0
CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS. Oratorio		3	0
Chorus parts		1	0
REQUIEM		2	0

JUST OUT.

A FROG HE WOULD A-WOOING GO 3 0

For Men's Voices, with Solos—for The Mouse (Alto), The Frog (Tenor), The Rat (Bass), with an Accompaniment for String Instruments and Piano or for Piano alone.

Chorus parts	1	0
String parts	0	6
The same for Mixed Voices	3	0
(With Accompaniment for String Instruments.)
And also for Female Voices, ditto	3	0

AND ALL OTHER WORKS ARE PUBLISHED BY

JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS STREET, W.

Fourth Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

	s.	d.
Parts I. and II. ... ... each	1	0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ... ... each	0	2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS by A. J. CALDICOTT.

Poor Little Tom-ee (just published)...	6d.
Where are you going to, my pretty maid? (just published) ...	6d.
Humpty Dumpty	6d.
Little Jack Horner, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
Jack and Gill	4d.
The House that Jack built, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
The Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The Haymakers. Part-song	4d.
Out on the Waters. Part-song	4d.
Yule. Part-song	4d.
Sleeping Leaves. Glee...	4d.

London: METZLER and Co., 42, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW POPULAR SONGS.

A GOLDEN PROMISE (with Violin and Organ Accompaniments). Key F. Compass C to D. By H. T. TILTMAN.

DAPHNE. Words by Walter Besant. By H. T. TILTMAN.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	Net. s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ... (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	2	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	2	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner...	2	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ... (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)	2	0
THE ZINGARA ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)	2	0
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	2	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)	2	0

PIANOFORTE, &c.
ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition	2	0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook	2	0
MY LADYE BARBARA'S GAVOTTE	2	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.
THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 8th Edition	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 12th Edition	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 8th Edition	0	2
THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 10th Edition ...	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 7th Edition	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.)	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

FOR MALE VOICE CHOIR.—THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, price 4d.; JUBILEE ODE, price 6d. net., by GEORGE RISELEY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the Authority of the Committee of the Royal Academy of Music.

ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.

"In the space of some fifty pages the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals, and scales, rests, time, and abbreviations, and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.

ELEMENTS OF HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.

This work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

SECOND THOUSAND. CLOTH BOARDS, IMPERIAL 8vo.

PRICE 3s.

HARMONY & THOROUGH-BASS

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR USE IN CLASSES AND FOR THOSE PREPARING FOR MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

Composer of "The Holy City," "Ruth," "Passion Service," &c.

With fifty new exercises, written expressly for this work by T. Anderton, Dr. Bunnett, F. Cambridge, A. Deakin, A. R. Gaul, Dr. Gower, A. Page, H. Stonex, Dr. Wareing, and Dr. Winn; also examples by Albrechtsberger and Reicha.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Birmingham and Leicester: MIDLAND EDUCATIONAL Co., Limited.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee. By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net. STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs, For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.

Part-Song—"The sun has gone down" (S.A.T.B.) ... 2d.
" —"Little Jack Horner" ... ... 4d.
(Sung with great success in London and provinces.)
Two-part Songs (S.C.)—"The Robin" ... ... 2d.
" —"The Skylark" ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in F). Composed by W. G. WOOD. Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

Compositions for the Organ

BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Andante, in D	1	0
2.	Andante, in F	1	0
3.	Andante, in A	1	0
4.	Concert Variations	2	0
5.	Allegretto, in E, and Prelude, in G	1	0
6.	Motivo, in B flat, and Fugue, in D minor	1	0
7.	Marche Triomphale	1	6
8.	Allemande	1	0

Nos. 5 to 8 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JUVENILE ALBUM

EIGHT CHARACTERISTIC PIECES
(FOUR HANDS)

The Primo Part being generally within the Compass of Five Notes

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

(NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS, No. 26.)

Price Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

No. 6.

HUNGARIAN DANCES

TRANSCRIBED BY

SIEGFRIED JACOBY.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

This Album may also be had for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

CAVATINA

(IN F)

FOR VIOLONCELLO, WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

FRANCESCO BERGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

SONGS.

	POETRY BY		net. s.	d.
Arise, my love!	ROBERT CROMPTON.	Tenor ...	1	6
The lover's star	"	...	1	6
Dreaming in the shadow...	CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D.	Soprano	2	0
The magic harp	"	"	2	0
Hark! sweet bells ...	EDWARD OXENFORD.	"	1	6
Little Rosebud	"	"	1	6
The cricketer's song ...	F. T. READ.	Baritone	2	0
Wert thou mine	"	Tenor	1	6
The Woodman	EDWARD OXENFORD.	Bass... ...	2	0
That smile of thine ...	RICHARD Y. STURGES.	Baritone ...	2	0
The sun and the flower ...	"	" ...	1	6
Winter and Spring ...	"	Contralto...	2	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

A FESTIVAL SETTING OF THE

CANTATE DOMINO & DEUS MISEREATUR

In G major for Four Voices

COMPOSED BY

JOHN J. BAILEY,

Organist and Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, Ballarat, Victoria.

Price Sixpence.

Also, by the same Composer

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS

In G major for Four Voices.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

ORGAN MUSIC

TWELVE SHORT AND EASY PIECES

Intended for use between Offertory Sentences, Confirmations, &c.

COMPOSED BY

E. BUNNETT, MUS. D.

Price 2s. net.

Also, by same Composer, for Organ,

LARGO IN E FLAT

Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants. s. d.

No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
,, 10.	Cloth boards	5	0
,, 11.	Small edition	3	0
,, 12.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.
These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	6d.
Cantate and Deus misereatur in G	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE OFFICE for the HOLY COMMUNION. Set to music in the key of F by GEORGE KETT. Price Fourpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW ANTHEM, WITH VIOLIN OBBLIGATO.

Suitable equally for Parish Choir, Cathedral, or Home Use.

TEACH ME THY WAY, O LORD

Psalm LXXXVI., Verse 11. By W. H. WILSON. "Simple, easy, and effective." Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat)	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A)	6d.
Bridge, Dr. J. F. (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A)	6d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat)	6d.
Faning, Eaton (in C)	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C)	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C)	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F)	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F)	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E)	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D)	6d
Martin, George C. (in C)	6d.	Williams, C. L. (in F major)	4d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.
This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and PARKER and Co.

Twentieth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.
The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in D. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 6d. Suitable for Festal or general use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO PEACE, from the Eirene of Aristophanes, for Soli, Trio, and Chorus. 1s. TWO SONNETS, by Sir PHILIP SIDNEY, for S.A.T.B. in the Madrigal style. 6d. By VYVYAN WALLIS POPHAM. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou." Four voices	3d.
,, "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn—"Sing to the Lord"	1d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	9d.
Cantate and Deus Misereatur in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.

PART-SONGS.

Autumn Song Four Voices	3d.
The Rhine Maiden. ,, ...	3d.
Beware ,, ...	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
London: NOVELLO EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICES OF

OUSELEY AND MONK'S
POINTED PSALTER.

		s.	d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score		4	0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each	1	6
32mo Edition. Words only		0	9
Ditto. Ditto, with Proper Psalms		1	0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

THE PSALMS
BIBLE VERSION
POINTED FOR CHANTING
BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

Cloth, One Shilling.

LONDON AND NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE CAPTIVES OF BABYLON
AN ORATORIO
COMPOSED BY
GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

This work contains many effective Solos and Choruses of moderate difficulty. The first part describes the destruction of Jerusalem and the carrying away of the captives into Babylon. The second part, the fall of Babylon and the return of the captives to Jerusalem.

The work is suitable for Concert-room or Church.

Price 2s. Cloth, 3s. 6d.; Sol-fa, 1s.

LONDON: HART & CO., 22, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

A Specimen Copy will be sent Post-free (until December) by Geo. Shinn, 234, Stockwell Road, Brixton, S.W., on receipt of P.O. for 1s. 6d.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE in F.
Price 6d.

OFFICE OF THE HOLY COMMUNION IN F.
Price 6d.

Anthem, ALMIGHTY GOD, s.a.t.b.
Verse, Bass. Price 4d.
BY
F. H. CHEETHAM.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G (for Parish Choirs).
Composed and inscribed to John Stainer, Esq., M.A., Mus. Doc., by George Lees. Price 4d.
Dr. Stainer says: "I think the Te Deum is very good indeed."
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO DR. STAINER.

ORGAN PEDAL SCALES & DAILY STUDIES, by Geo. Ernest Lake (including two Themes with varied Pedal Obbligati, containing many of the Passages met with in standard Organ Music). Price 1s. net.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CONCONE'S LESSONS

NEW EDITION

WITH MARKS OF

EXPRESSION & PHRASING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

50 Lessons for the Medium part of the Voice.

40 Lessons for Contralto.

40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone.

The sterling value and great usefulness of Concone's Lessons have been so long recognised and so generally admitted, that their extensive adoption caused, as a natural consequence, the issue of numerous editions in almost every country where the study of the Art of Singing is cultivated. No edition, however, which has hitherto come under my notice, seems to me as correct, complete, and reliable as it should be.

I have endeavoured to rectify this deficiency by adding in the present edition signs of expression and phrasing, where I considered it expedient to do so, completing, and in some cases altering, the breathing marks, and altogether carefully revising the whole work.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BECKER, A.—Quintet. For Pianoforte, two Violins, Viola, and Cello. Op. 49	28	0
—— Five Sacred Songs. (With German words.) Op. 51 ...	6	0
BEETHOVEN.—German Dances. Arranged for Pianoforte and Violin by I. Seiss	8	0
BIBL, R.—Five Organ Pieces. Op. 56	4	0
BIZET, G.—Hundred-and-Twenty Sacred Pieces. Transcribed for the Organ or Harmonium by L. Roques. Two Vols. ... each net	5	0
BÖDECKER, L.—Fantasia for Pianoforte. Op. 30	4	0
BROSIG, M.—Five Organ Pieces (in various styles), and Three Postludes. Op. 61	5	0
CHOVÁN, C.—"Frühlings Scenen." Six Small Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 11	5	0
FREUND, R.—Six Preludes. Op. 1. For Pianoforte	5	0
FUCHS, J. N.—Six Songs. For a medium voice. (German words)	6	0
GERMER, H.—"The Technics, Ornamentation, and Tone Production in Pianoforte Playing." Bound in cloth... net	6	6
GOUNOD, CH.—Mass to the Memory of Joan of Arc. For Soli, Chorus, and Organ ... ... net	10	0
HAYDN.—Adagio from the Ninth Symphony. Arranged for Harmonium, Violin, and Cello by J. Fröhlich...	3	0
—— "Tirsi e Nice." Duet for two Sopranos. (Italian and German words)	3	0
HESSE, A.—Andante from the Organ Fantasia. Arranged for Cello and Organ, or Harmonium, by J. V. Müller	2	0
KLENGEL, J.—Third Mazurka. Op. 14. For Cello and Pianoforte	6	0
—— Second Tarantella. Op. 18. For Cello and Pianoforte ...	5	0
LANGE, G.—"The Wild Rose." Op. 304. For Pianoforte ...	3	0
—— "Felice notte." Nocturne. Op. 305. For Pianoforte ...	3	0
—— "Amoretten." Op. 306. For Pianoforte	3	0
LAZZARI, S.—Three Songs. For a medium Voice. (With German and French words.) Op. 9	5	0
LEUTNER, A.—Festival Overture. Arranged for Pianoforte and Harmonium by A. Riedel	5	0
LULLI, J. B.—"Les Naïades." Duet for two Sopranos. (German and French words)	2	0
MAAS, L.—Concerto in C minor. For Pianoforte and Orchestra. Op. 12:—
Parts	46	0
Arranged for Two Pianofortes	36	0
MEINARDUS, L.—"Emmaus." Oratorio. For Soli, Chorus, and Organ. Op. 46. (German words) ... ... net	3	0
MERKEL, J.—Sonata. Op. 1. For Pianoforte	6	0
—— Three Novellettes. Op. 2. For Pianoforte	4	0
NEUKOMM, S.—"Der Ostermorgen." Cantata. For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. (German words.) Vocal Score, net	2	0
PALESTRINA.—Six Selected Madrigals. Arranged for practical use by P. Druffel:—
Score. (With German and Italian words) ... net	4	0
Parts ... ... each net	0	4
RICHTER, A.—Valse Sérieuse and Danse Pastorale. Op. 5. For Pianoforte... ... ... each	3	0
—— Four Miniatures. Op. 7. For Pianoforte	5	0
RÖNTGEN, J.—Nocturne. For Pianoforte. Op. 4	1	0
ROSENHAIN, J.—Second Sonata. Op. 70. For Pianoforte...	6	0
SCHARWENKA, PH.—"Children's Games." (Second Suite.) Eight Easy Pieces. For Pianoforte. Op. 68 ... each	2	0
—— "From bygone days." Five Fantasia Pieces:—
Nos. 1 and 5 ... ... each	4	0
,, 2, 3, and 4 ... ... ,,	3	0
SCHUBERT, F.—New Edition of Complete Works. Série XIII.: Masses. In Full Score:—
No. 1. Mass in F ... ... net	9	6
,, 2. ,, G ... ... ,,	3	0
,, 3. ,, B ... ... ,,	4	6
,, 4. ,, C ... ... ,,	4	0
,, 5. ,, A flat ... ... ,,	13	0
,, 6. ,, E flat ... ... ,,	12	6
,, 7. German Mass ... ... ,,	1	6
—— The same, complete, in two Vols.:—
Vol. I. ... ... net	19	0
,, II. ... ... ,,	26	0
—— Symphony in B. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet by A. Horn net	7	0
—— Symphony in D. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet by A. Horn net	4	0
SCHUMANN, R.—Favourite Pieces from the "Album for the Young." Op. 68. Arranged for Pianoforte and Harmonium or Two Pianofortes by R. Seifert. Two books ... each	7	0
—— Ten Celebrated Songs and Pieces. Easily arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by R. Hofmann ... ... each	2	0
—— Seven Celebrated Songs and Pieces. Arranged for Cello and Pianoforte by G. Goltermann ... ... each	2	0
SPINDLER, F.—"Little Musicians." Twenty Easy Pieces. For Pianoforte. Op. 356. Two books ... ... each	3	0
UEBE, R.—"The Common Broken Chord: Technical Studies for Pianoforte" ... ... net	7	0
WECKBECKER, W.—Variations on a Theme by J. S. Bach. For Pianoforte. Op. 5.	6	0
WILM, N. VON.—Two Impromptus in A and A flat. Op. 57 each	2	0
—— Six Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 61:—
Book I.	3	0
,, II.	4	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

* FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March. | No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
„ 2. War March of the Priests. | „ 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

* THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

* TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

* TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 5.

TWELVE SKETCHES

COMPOSED BY

BATTISON HAYNES.

No. 6.

*HUNGARIAN DANCES

TRANSCRIBED BY

SIEGFRIED JACOBY.

No. 7.

NINE MORCEAUX DE SALON

COMPOSED BY

IPPOLITO RAGGHIANTI.

No. 8.

* TWELVE PIECES

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

* These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

CIRO PINSUTI.

BOOK I.

No. 1. After the rain. | No. 4. I sing because I love to sing.
„ 2. Out in the sunshine. | „ 5. Passing away.
„ 3. I love all things. | „ 6. The voice of the waterfall.

BOOK II.

No. 7. The mermaids. | No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back.
„ 8. False love, and true. | „ 11. Love and friendship.
„ 9. Under the stars. | „ 12. The Magicians.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

FREDERICK H. COWEN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. Echoes. | No. 4. A thought of home at sea.
„ 2. Cleansing Fires. | „ 5. What the birds say.
„ 3. Violets. | „ 6. Linger, oh gentle Time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR

SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. By vale and hill. | No. 4. To Daffodils.
„ 2. The Skylark. | „ 5. Twilight.
„ 3. Sweet content. | „ 6. Waiting and meeting.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

FOR LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling; or, singly, twopence each.

No. 1. To Sea! | No. 5. Song should breathe of scents and flowers.
„ 2. If hope were but a fairy. | „ 6. March.
„ 3. The willow and its lesson.
„ 4. The Promised Land.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

WITH THE ORIGINAL WORDS (ENGLISH),

ONE SHILLING.

Cloth, gilt edges ... ... 2s.
German and English Words ... ... 2s.
„ „ Cloth, gilt edges ... ... 4s.

Each Song separately, price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S FOLIO EDITION

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

WITH THE ORIGINAL WORDS (ENGLISH),

TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE;

Or singly, 1s. 6d. each net.

1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from "Ruy Blas."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF
TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c.
FOR FEMALE VOICES.

RECENT NUMBERS.

166. The stedfast heavens ... ... R. Schumann 2d.
167. To a skylark ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
168. Nurse's Song (A Two-part song) ... ... B. Luard Selby 2d.
169. The moorland ride ... ... Carl Hering 2d.
170. The shepherd boy ... ... " 3d.
171. Evening rest ... ... " 2d.
172. At the spinning wheel... ... ... " 2d.
173. The Hussar's departure ... ... " 3d.
174. The Festival ... ... " 2d.
175. Voice of the western wind ... ... J. Barnby 3d.
176. The twilight star ... ... " 3d.
177. Sweet May ... ... " 3d.
178. Vox Amoris ... ... Otto Schweizer 3d.
179. The Knight and the Lady ... ... " 3d.
180. Whene'er the sounding harp is heard ... ... J. Brahms 6d.
181. Come away, come away, Death ... ... " 4d.
182. The Gardener ... ... " 6d.
183. The death of Trenar ... ... " 6d.
184. Eglantine... ... ... Adolf Jensen 3d.
185. The Mountain Spirit ... ... " 3d.
186. Spring and his Bride ... ... " 4d.
187. The Fairies' Song ... ... Sir Henry R. Bishop 4d.
188. June ... ... Finlay Dun 3d.
189. A Northern Love-song ... ... H. Hofmann 2d.
190. Sympathy... ... ... Otto Schweizer 3d.
191. Quiet Hours ... ... R. B. Addison 3d.
192. Morning Hymn ... ...G. Spontini 4d.
193. Sweet and low ... ... B. Luard Selby 2d.
194. Flow down, cold rivulet ... ... " 3d.
195. Blessed are the pure in heart ... ... Ernest Lake 3d.
196. Through murm'rous leaves ... ... G. Bartel 2d.
197. On the land afar extending ... ... " 2d.
198. Morning sweet Cuckoos greet ... ... " 3d.
199. True life to live ... ... " 3d.
200. The Nightingale ...Thomas Weelkes (arr. by H. Leslie) 2d.
201. Twelve by the clock ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
202. Bright is the day ... ... E. Prout 4d.
203. Sweet the balmy days of Spring ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
204. In our boat ... ... F. H. Cowen 3d.

(To be continued.)

NOVELLO'S
PART-SONG BOOK

RECENT NUMBERS.

498. When at Corinna's eyes ... ... C. H. Lloyd 3d.
499. I love my love ... ... G. B. Allen 4d.
500. The Troubadour ... ... H. Leslie 4d.
501. The Lass of Richmond Hill ... ... " 4d.
502. In this hour of softened ... ... C. Pinsuti 4d.
503. The sea hath its pearls ... ... " 4d.
504. Ye gallant men of England ... ... E. Hecht 3d.
505. The Moorland Witch ... ... " 3d.
506. It was a lover and his lass... ... ... J. Barnby 3d.
507. Come, live with me ... ... Sir W. S. Bennett 4d.
508. Looking for Spring ... ... C. H. Lloyd 3d.
509. Tell me not, in mournful ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 3d.
510. There is music by the river ... ... " 3d.
511. O sunny beam ... ...R. Schumann 2d.
512. O red, red rose ... ... " 2d.
513. Wanderer's Song ... ... " 3d.
514. Evening Song ... ... " 2d.
515. Ah! woe is me ... ... H. Lahee 4d.
516. Sweet evening hour... ... ... S. Reay 3d.
517. Fair land, we greet thee ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 4d.
518. Rise, fair Goddess ... ... H. Smart 3d.
519. A garland for our fairest ... ... J. L. Hatton 3d.
520. Around the maypole tripping ... ... " 3d.
521. The boatman's good-night ... ... F. Schira 3d.
522. The Serenade... ... ... J. Brahms 2d.
523. Vineta ... ... " 3d.
524. The dirge of Darthula ... ... " 4d.
525. As I saw fair Clora ... ... F. Corder 3d.
526. Up! up! ye dames ... ... W. Bendall 3d.
527. If love be dead ... ... C. Wood 4d.
528. The Norse Queen's gift ... ... W. Hay 3d.
529. Cavalry Song ... ... C. A. Macirone 3d.
530. The winds that waft... ... ... Vincent Wallace 2d.
531. Corin for Cleora dying ... ... " " 3d.
532. Madeleine ... ...J. L. Roeckel 3d.
533. May balmy sleep ... ... Sir M. Costa 3d.
534. Music, when soft voices die ... ... A. King 4d.
535. The days of long ago ... ... B. Tours 3d.
536. The Present; or, the bag of the bee ... C. C. Moseley 3d.
537. The triumph of Victoria ... ... J. Stainer 6d.
538. The three merry dwarfs ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
539. Sleep, darling baby mine ... ... Ricardo Mähllig 3d.

(To be continued.)

THE ORPHEUS
(NEW SERIES).

RECENT NUMBERS.

162. Come, follow me ... ... E. T. Driffield 4d.
163. Autumn is come again ... ... F. Corder 4d.
164. Great Orpheus was a fiddler... ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
165. Tom he was a piper's son ... ... E. T. Driffield 4d.
166. O mistress mine... ... ... " 3d.
167. The Love Spell ... ... T. B. Evison 3d.
168. I wish to tune my quiv'ring lyre ... ... S. S. Wesley 6d.
169. Roaming ... ... H. Hofmann 2d.
170. Sir Cuckoo ... ... " 4d.
171. Glorious May ... ... " 3d.
172. In Spring time ... ... " 4d.
173. Our Maxim ... ... " 3d.
174. In dulci jubilo ... ... " 4d.
175. Dim and grey appear the mountains ... ... Franz Abt 3d.
176. At Andernach in Rhineland ... ... " 3d.
177. The Grave of a Singer ... ... " 3d.
178. Laughing ... ... " 4d.
179. Tell me where is fancy bred ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 3d.
180. Hymn to Cynthia ... ... Berthold Tours 3d.
181. The Patriot ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 2d.
182. A sad disappointment ... ... C. E. McCheane 2d.
183. Cold blows the wind ... ... G. C. Martin 3d.
184. Fly to my mistress ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
185. Fisherman's Song ... ... Joachim Raff 3d.
186. Herdsman's Song ... ... " 2d.
187. Alpine Hunter's Song ... ... " 2d.
188. Come, brother, gaily drink ... ... " 4d.
189. Winter Song ... ... " 2d.
190. Sad that I must turn to dust ... ... " 2d.
191. Cossack's Drinking Song ... ... " 2d.
192. One little star in the heaven... ... ... " 2d.
193. A mighty king is wine... ... ... " 2d.
194. God rules alone ... ... " 2d.
195. A wet sheet and a flowing sea ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
196. Stars of the summer night ... ... W. A. C. Cruickshank 3d.
197. The Norman Cider ... ... Arthur E. Dyer 3d.
198. The Song of the Chase ... ... R. Schumann 4d.
199. Have a care ... ... " 4d.
200. The Hunter's Morning Song ... ... " 4d.
201. At break of day... ... ... " 4d.
202. In full chase ... ... " 4d.
203. If doughty deeds ... ... G. F. Cobb 4d.
204. God and our country ... ... R. Mähllig 2d.

(To be continued.)

NOVELLO'S
OCTAVO ANTHEMS

RECENT NUMBERS.

277. Enter not into judgment ... Dr. J. Clarke-Whitfeld 2d.
278. In that day ... ... Sir G. Elvey 8d.
279. By Babylon's wave ... ... Gounod 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo, a great multitude ... ... Sir G. Elvey 6d.
281. Thou, O God, art praised in Sion ... Sir R. P. Stewart 4d.
282. In the Lord put I my trust ... ... " 6d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost ... ... Sir G. Elvey 4d.
284. Blessed is He ... ... Dr. F. E. Gladstone 2d.
285. The souls of the righteous ... ...H. H. Woodward 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu (Stabat Mater) ... ... Dvorák 6d.
287. Save me, O God... ... ... J. L. Hopkins 2d.
288. My God, my God ... ... " 3d.
289. The eyes of all wait ...Orlando Gibbons (ed. by P. Armes) 4d.
290. Make a joyful noise ... ...A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
291. Sing, O heavens ... ... " 6d.
292. Blessed is he that readeth ... ... " 4d.
293. Come, my soul, while daylight dying ... G. C. Martin 4d.
294. The Souls of the righteous ... ... William Rea 6d.
295. My soul, wait thou still ... ... F. J. Read 4d.
296. Behold, I bring you glad tidings ... ... Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
297. Teach me, O Lord ... ... John W. Gritton 3d.
298. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem ... ... W. H. Bliss 3d.
299. The Hills stand about Jerusalem ... ... G. Gardner 4d.
300. Ponder my words ... ... F. J. Sawyer 2d.
301. O Jesu! Victim blest ... ... J. B. Powell 3d.
302. There is no condemnation ... ... H. S. Irons 3d.
303. Our God is Lord ... ... E. Mundella 3d.
304. The Lord preserveth the souls of His Saints Philip Armes 6d.
305. The Lord is my Shepherd ... ... C. V. Stanford 6d.
306. O Lord of Hosts ... ... Kate Boundy 3d.
307. Christ our Passover ... ...E. V. Hall 3d.
308 Let us now praise ... ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
309. Give the Lord the honour ... ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
310. Hear, O God, hear my cry ... ... A. H. Friedländer 6d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord ... ... E. T. Chipp 3d.
312. The Lord hath been mindful of us ... ... " 3d.
313. The King shall rejoice in thy strength Sir R. P. Stewart 6d.
314. Come now and let us reason ... ... H. W. Wareing 4d.
315. Behold, O God, our Defender ... ... F. W. Hird 4d.
316. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem ... . E. V. Hall 4d.
317. Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous... ... Philip Armes 6d.
318. Lord, Thou art my God ... ... J. Stainer 8d.
319. Seek ye the Lord ... ... Hague Kinsey 3d.

(To be continued.)

ALBUMS
OF
GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,
BY
FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. I.—THIRTY SONGS
BY
ROBERT FRANZ.

On the hidden wood-path.
Sunset.
Not a star.
Sunset.
Breathlessly the Lake reposes.
In the forest, moonbeamed-brightened.
The Swiss Soldier's complaint.
Rest on me, thou eye of darkness.
At night I see thee with dreaming eyes.
Dreams.
The rose and the lily.
On the sea.
Gently through my bosom flow.
Omnipresence.
Thou art far.
A lifetime wasted.
Lo! he has come.
Autumn sorrow.
Will she come to-day?
Love in May.
Yea, thou art blighted.
The last tear.
Love song.
When my despair is deepest.
Sweetest maid, with lips like roses.
Thinking of thee.
The rose has made sad moan to me.
In Rhine's broad rolling waters.
Forgotten.
Good Night.

No. II.—TWENTY SONGS
BY FRANZ LISZT.

Mignon's song—"Knowest thou the land?"
The King of Thule.
Peace.
Clara's song.
Who never ate with tears his bread?
Wanderer's night song.
The fisherboy.
The Alpine hunter.
Once and now.
Prayer.
The Loreley.
A flower thou resemblest.
Love's marvel.
The violet.
Flower and scent.
I cherish thee.
The three gipsies.
Question and answer.
Once again I fain would meet thee.
How sweetly sings the lark.

No. III.—TWENTY-FIVE SONGS
BY
ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The dewdrops shine.
Like to a lark.
The wood-witch.
Aubade.
Loss.
A message.
Spring song.
In the forest all is growing.
A flower thou resemblest.
The Asra.
Sun and love.
The rose.
Love's presence.
Bend, fairest blossom.
Ah! could it remain thus for ever.
The golden sun is shining.
Be not so coy.
In the forest.
Night.
To Spring.
From a Spanish song book.
Clara's song.
A tragedy.
Morning song.
Budding stands the queen.

No. IV.—TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS
BY JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.
The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY
NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOL. I.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR MEZZO-SOPRANO.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The Message of Flowers.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")
Hallow'd night, descend.
Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Thro' the pine-wood.
The summer waves.
Wanderer's Night-song.
Trust in Spring.
The Maiden's Lament.
To Mignon.
The Passing-Bell.
Alinda.
Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
The Fisherman.
On the water.

VOL. II.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR CONTRALTO.

CONTENTS.

The Wanderer.
Fisher's song.
The angry Bard.
The unlucky Fisherman.
Old Man's song.
The flight of Time.
Litany for All Souls' day.
The weary heart.
Minstrel's treasure.
Soldier's drinking song.
Sadness.
To the Lyre.
Calm at sea.
Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman.
Passing to Hades.
Comfort in tears.
Death and the Maiden.
Crusaders.
Dithyramb.
Prometheus.

VOL. III.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR
SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

The Erl-King.
Omnipotence.
Love's unrest.
Rose among the heather.
Sad heart.
The band of roses.
Thou art repose.
Ganymed.
Mignon.
Secrets.
Hark, hark, the lark.
Thee would I greet.
To the beloved one.
Suleika's second song.
Presence of the loved one
Laughing and weeping.
Margaret's prayer.
By the doorways I will wander.
To a brooklet.
To Sylvia.

VOL. IV.—SCHWANENGESANG
(SWAN SONGS)
FOURTEEN SONGS.

(The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.)

CONTENTS.

1. Love's Message—Murmuring Brooklet.
2. The Soldier's presentiment—In slumber deep.
3. Longings in Spring—Murmuring breezes.
4. A Serenade—Lightly wafted through the darkness.
5. The Retreat—Loud rushing stream.
6. In a strange land—Woe to one wandering.
7. Departure—Adieu, thou home of the happy and gay.
8. Atlas—On me, unhappy Atlas.
9. Her Portrait—I stood, and, sadly dreaming.
10. The Fishermaiden—Thou lovely fishermaiden.
11. The town—upon the far horizon.
12. By the sea—The sea yet gleamed.
13. The Apparition—Hushed is the night.
14. The pigeon post—A carrier pigeon.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Standard Works for Choral Societies.

NEW EDITION OF

FAUST

A Dramatic Legend, by HECTOR BERLIOZ. A new Edition of this celebrated work at a greatly reduced price. Paper, 3s. 6d.; cloth, 5s. net.

GRAY'S ELEGY

A Cantata, by ALFRED CELLIER. Paper, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s.

THE MARTYR OF ANTIOCH

Sacred Musical Drama. Words selected from Milman's Poems. The Music composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Price, in paper cover, 5s. net; cloth, 8s. net.

GOD IS LOVE

A new Edition of this popular Cantata. Words selected from the Sacred Poets.

Music composed by Mrs. JOSEPH ROBINSON. Price 3s. net; separate Voice Parts, 6d. net. Harmonium Part, 1s. 6d. net.

THE JACKDAW OF RHEIMS

Cantata written by THOMAS INGOLDSBY.

Music composed by GEORGE FOX. Price 2s. 6d. net; Separate Voice Parts, 6d. net.

FRIDOLIN; OR, THE MESSAGE TO THE FORGE

Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Paper, 5s.; cloth, 7s. 6d.

MESSE SOLENNELLE—ROSSINI

A new Edition of this beautiful work at a reduced price. Paper, 4s.; cloth, 6s.

ISAIAS

Oratorio. Words by ALBINI (Translation by J. BENNETT)

The Music composed by MANCINELLI

Written expressly for the Norwich Festival of 1887 (will shortly be published in a cheap form).

Orchestral and Chorus Parts of all the above may be had on Hire of

CHAPPELL & CO.,

50, NEW BOND STREET, W., AND 15, POULTRY, E.C.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Monday, August 1, 1887.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 535.—Vol. 28. SEPTEMBER 1, 1887. Price 4d.; Post-free, 5d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 5s.

ROYAL IRISH ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

36, WESTLAND ROW, DUBLIN.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Council of the Royal Irish Academy of Music hereby give notice that a SENIOR PROFESSORSHIP of SINGING is VACANT, and that they are now ready to receive applications.

Candidates must be fully qualified to give the most advanced instruction in singing, and should with their applications transmit copies of testimonials.

Further information may be obtained from the Secretary.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC

VICTORIA EMBANKMENT, E.C.
(Established by the Corporation of London).
Principal: Mr. H. WEIST HILL.

The next TERM will commence on MONDAY, September 26, 1887.

EXAMINATIONS of CANDIDATES for admission as STUDENTS will take place on September 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, and 24.

For prospectuses, &c., apply to the Secretary.
By order, CHARLES P. SMITH, Secretary.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE.

President: E. J. HOPKINS, Mus. Doc.
Principal: EDWIN M. LOTT, Mus. Doc.

LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, November 30, 1887.

"Pass" or "Honours" Paper, 3s. 6d. "Pass" and "Honours" Papers, 5s.

Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
HEDLEY CARUS, Esq., Hon. Sec., 270, Cornwall Road, W.

SCHOOL OF ORATORIO AND RECITATIVE,

BURLINGTON HALL, BURLINGTON ST., REGENT ST.

Established 1886, under the direction of ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., and W. A. BARRETT, Mus. Bac., Oxon. (Lecturer).

Instituted for the especial training of Vocalists in Oratorio, Cantata, Recitative and Concerted Music, Voice Production and Phrasing.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to Mr. Alfred J. Caldicott, 57, Nevern Square, Earl's Court.

GUILD OF ORGANISTS,

35, WELLINGTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Patron: The Right Rev. The LORD BISHOP OF LONDON.
Presidents:
The Rev. Canon Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Mus. Doc.
Sir HERBERT OAKELEY, Mus. Doc.
Sir ROBERT STEWART, Mus. Doc.
Vice-President: WILLIAM PINNEY, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Established to advance the cause of Church Music and the interests of its Professors, &c.

Subscription: Professional Organists, 10s. 6d. per annum; Amateurs, 15s. per annum.

Public Meeting, September 26, at 7.30 p.m.

F.G.O. Examination in January.

Prospectus and further particulars may be obtained from the Hon. Sec., J. H. LEWIS, D.C.L., Staines, Middlesex.

BIRMINGHAM SCHOOL OF SINGING

(Established 1872.)

The old traditional Italian system adapted to English requirements. Amateurs and Professionals taught as in Italy.

List of Artists (1887) and Students, for Concerts, on application to Professor (Signor) Philip Martinengo, R.A.M., S.C.R. (Italy), F.S.Sc. (London), 58, New Street, Birmingham.

ANNUAL CONSTABULARY CONCERT,

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE,

December 14, 1887.

Madame ALBANI. | Mr. CHARLES CHILLEY.
Madame PATEY. | Signor FOLI.

Seats can now be booked on application to Messrs. Hirschman and Co., 153, Pilgrim Street.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIO CONCERTS.—

CHOIR.—There are a few VACANCIES in EACH DEPARTMENT. Ladies and Gentlemen (good Readers) are requested to apply at once to the Choir Secretary, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

SEASON 1887-88.

FOUR CONCERTS will be given at the SHOREDITCH TOWN HALL, on MONDAY EVENINGS, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Conductor: EBENEZER PROUT, ESQ., B.A.

First Concert, October 31, 1887: Cantata, THE RED CROSS KNIGHT (E. Prout).

Second Concert, December 12, 1887: Psalm cxiv., WHEN ISRAEL OUT OF EGYPT CAME (Mendelssohn); Symphony, No. 3, in E flat (Haydn); Cantata, THE BRIDAL OF TRIERMAIN (F. Corder).

Third Concert, February 6, 1888: Oratorio, ELIJAH (Mendelssohn).

Fourth Concert, March 19, 1888: Cantata, PARADISE AND THE PERI (Schumann).

Terms of Subscription: For two numbered and reserved seats for the four Concerts, One Guinea; or, for one seat for the four Concerts, Half-a-Guinea. Prices for single Concerts: Numbered reserved seats, 4s. each; unreserved seats in balcony, 2s.; unreserved area, 1s.

The Committee will be glad to receive applications from Ladies and Gentlemen desirous of joining the Choir, especially in the Soprano and Tenor divisions.

Intending members should apply, stating whether Soprano, Alto Tenor, or Bass, to the Hon. Secretary.

Subscriptions for members of the Choir (including use of music): Ladies, 7s. 6d.; Gentlemen, 10s. 6d.

Rehearsals will commence on Friday, September 23, 1887, at the Grocers' Company's Schools, Hackney Downs.

HENRY A. JOHNSON, Hon Sec.
31, Fountayne Road, Stoke Newington, N.

THE MUSICAL ARTISTS' SOCIETY affords opportunity to both Professors and Amateurs for the public performance of their compositions. Alfred Gilbert, Hon. Sec., The Woodlands, 89, Maida Vale.

MR. GEORGE J. BENNETT is prepared to receive PUPILS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c. Address, 1, Berners Street, W.

MONS. EUGÈNE GIGOUT begs to announce that he will visit this country during the latter part of October, to give ORGAN RECITALS in London and the provinces. Communications respecting Engagements should be addressed to J. Laudy, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. CHARLES FRY'S RECITALS: MERCHANT OF VENICE (with Sullivan's Music), ATHALIE, ANTIGONE, PRECIOSA, THE DESERT (David), &c. Private Lessons in Elocution. 4, Park Village West, N.W.

UNIVERSITY OF TRINITY COLLEGE, Toronto (The Church of England University of Upper Canada). FACULTY of MUSIC.—The next Examinations for the Degree of Bachelor of Music will be held simultaneously in Toronto and London in Easter week, 1888. Women are admissible to these Examinations. For particulars apply to Rev. E. K. Kendall, D.C.L., Registrar for England, Southsea.

POPULAR CHAMBER CONCERT PARTY,

under the direction of Mr. J. OWEN.

Tenor Vocalist:
Mr. H. MOBBERLEY,
Of Leeds and Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Pianoforte and Accompanist:
Miss JESSIE M. HILEY,
Of Birmingham Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violin:
Mr. F. WARD,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

Solo Violoncello:
Mr. J. OWEN,
Of Birmingham Musical Festival, Town Hall Concerts, &c., &c.

For terms and particulars of Concert Party, please address, Mr. J. Owen, Hamilton Villa, Hampton Road, Birchfield, Birmingham.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS MARIAN BATES (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Mr. Brook Sampson, Mus. Bac., Beethoven House, Northampton.

MISS ADA BECK (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late Mr. Welch).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Brompton Cottage, New Brompton, Chatham.

MADAME CARRIE BLACKWELL (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby).
Orchestral, Oratorio, Ballad Concerts, &c., 4A, Sloane Square, S.W.

MISS FRASER BRUNNER (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Operatic or Ballad Concerts, address, 44, Icknield St., or Messrs. Rogers and Priestley's, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

MISS CONWAY (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Cantatas, &c., address, 53, Robert Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MISS HARRIET COOPER (Soprano)
(Royal Academy Honour Certificate for Singing).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 19, Lendal, York.

MISS HILDA COWARD (Soprano).
For Oratorios, &c., 4, Strafford Road, Twickenham.

MISS ELLA DALY (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c., address, Mr. F. W. Holder, Music Warehouse, Hull.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS ELLEN ELTON (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 27, Dancer Road, Fulham.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, formerly her Assistant Professor; Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME MINNIE GWYNNE (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, address, 18, St. Stephen's Avenue, Uxbridge Road, W.

MADAME LAURA HAWORTH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 39, Prospect Vale, Fairfield, Liverpool.

MISS HATTIE HICKLING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. William Shakespeare).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 51, St. Mary's Road, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano),
3, Bradshaw Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

MISS ELLIOT RICHARDS (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 9, Oakley Street, Northampton.

MRS. STANESBY (Soprano)
(Pupil of the late J. B. Welch, Esq.).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 104, Ferme Park Road, Hornsey, N.

MDLLE. PERETTI (Mezzo-Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Visetti, Royal College of Music, and the late Signor Chiaromonte, Brussels).
For Concerts, "At Homes," Singing Lessons; special terms for Schools. Address, 1, Harewood Street, Harewood Square, N.W.

MADAME CLARA WEST (Soprano),
MISS LOTTIE WEST (Contralto),
Beethoven Villa, King Edward Road, Hackney.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano or Contralto)
(Pupil of the late Madame Sainton-Dolby, and Assistant Professor in her Academy; also Professor in the Hyde Park Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT (Contralto)
(Principal of St. Peter's, Manchester),
51, Mercer Street, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester.
"Joshua.—Miss Bowmont's part in the programme was sustained very efficiently. She possesses a remarkably strong voice of a deep and mellow tone. In her enunciation she has evidently taken special care, and the result is a very pleasing one. In her several contributions she sang in a truly meritorious manner, and worthily won the entire approval of the assembly."—Halifax Courier, January 22, 1887.

MISS MARY E. DAKIN, R.A.M. (Contralto).
For Ballads, Oratorio, &c., 31, Monmouth Road, Bayswater.

MISS DEWS (Contralto),
63, Waterloo Road N., Wolverhampton.

MISS MARY EDYTHS (Contralto)
(Of the Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 2, Argyll Street, W.

MISS HELEN LEE, R.A.M. (Contralto).
Address, 119, Greengate Street, Oldham.

MISS PATTIE MICHIE (Contralto)
(Honours Certificate Royal Academy).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 68, Park Walk, Fulham Road, S.W.

MISS CONSTANCE POOCK (Contralto and Pianist).
(Of the Bristol, Norwich, Derby, Hull, Cambridge, Ipswich, &c., Concerts; R.A.M. Honours Certificate, 1882.)
For Oratorios, Ballads, Pianoforte and Vocal Recitals, and Musical Lectures, 4, Valentine Street, Norwich. London Referees: Mdme. Vinning O'Leary, 9, Notting Hill Square, London, W., and Miss Selina Quick (Soprano, R.A.M.), 6, Brooklyn Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.
"O rest in the Lord" was rendered by Miss Constance Poock with artistic finish. Norwich Cathedral Popular Musical Services, April 21, 1887.—Vide Press. Vacant dates for Pavilion Engagements, &c., during September. Terms moderate.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto).
Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MADAME ISABEL WYATT (Contralto),
(Pupil of T. A. Wallworth, Esq.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 206, High Street, Rochester.

MR. GEO. BUTTERWORTH (Tenor)
(Royal Academy and Trinity College Honours Certificates).
For terms and vacant dates, address, Moss Bridge, Darwen.

MR. S. BOYCE CREAK (Solo Tenor),
Bristol Cathedral.
For Oratorios, Ballads, &c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN (the Scottish Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, and his English, Irish, and Scottish Entertainments, address, 62, Berners Street, W.

MR. ARTHUR FOX, A.R.A.M. (Tenor).
For Concerts, &c., address, 20, St. Charles' Square, North Kensington, W.

MR. LAWRENCE FREYER (Tenor)
(St. Paul's Cathedral).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 233, Friern Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.; or The Cathedral.

MR. JOSEPH HEALD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 33, Endlesham Road, Balham, London, S.W.

MR. CHARLES KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
"Sang excellently throughout, with great power and genuine art."—Kentish Gazette, May 7, 1887.
Address, The Cathedral, Canterbury.

MR. J. MELLOR (Tenor),
Eccleshill, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. STUART MONCŒUR (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W., or Keith House, Whitely Road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

MR. T. OLDROYD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Rochester.

MR. S. THORNBOROUGH (Tenor).
Répertoire: "Andromeda," "Redemption," "Elijah," "Creation," "Messiah," "Judas Maccabæus," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," "Acis and Galatea," Masses, &c. Address, 125, Montague Street, Blackburn.

MR. HENRY BAILEY (Baritone).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, Mill Road, Kettering.

MR. WM. CLARK, L.R.A.M. (Artist, Baritone),
20, Victoria Place, Camp Road, Leeds.

MR. W. J. INESON (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.; Quartet also provided. Address, The Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. ARTHUR M. SHORE, R.C.M. (Baritone)
(Pupil of Signori Alberto Visetti and Franco Novara).
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. Has vacancies for pupils for Singing and Violin. 2, Salisbury Terrace, West Kensington Park.

MR. FERGUS ASQUITH (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., The Cathedral, Wells.

MR. J. H. BARRETT (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 86, Newhey Road, Milnrow, Lancashire.

MR. ALBERT BROWN (Principal Bass),
Preston Parish Church.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c., 75, Church St., Preston, Lancs.

MR. J. BROWNING (Principal Bass),
Parish Church, Leeds. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.

MR. T. L. CAMPION (Bass).
At liberty for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cathedral, Durham, or W. B. Healey, Esq., 10A, Warwick Street, W.

MR. JAMES W. CLOUGH (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Ashley Street, Burnley.

MR. C. D. COLLET (Bass).
Teacher of Singing, 7, Coleridge Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MR. JAMES FLEMING (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &c. Terms and Press extracts on application. Address, 166, George Street, Paisley, N.B.

MR. T. C. HOLLIDAY (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Rochester.

MR. THOMAS KEMPTON (Bass Vocalist)
(St. Paul's Cathedral).
For Oratorio, Miscellaneous Concerts, Church Festivals, Masonic Banquets, &c.; also for Concert Party.

MR. T. E. MACKIE (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cheapside, Worksop, Notts.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass)
And the London Oratorio and Ballad Union, under his direction.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 14, Hanover Street, W.
Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."
For list of works see p. 516.

MR. EDWARD MILLS.
Baritone and Bass Parts, &c., 24, Morval Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. HENRY POPE (Bass).
At liberty for Oratorios, Concerts, Opera, &c., 20, Bishop's Road, W., or Mr. W. B. Healey, 10A, Warwick Street, W.

MR. WILLIAM RILEY (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Huddersfield.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass),
51, Pentonville Road, N.

MISS MARY CHETHAM (Violinist)
(Silver Medalist and Certificated R.A.M.).
Engagements and Lessons given. Batts Ford, Bedford.

MR. FRED. W. DAVIS (Trombone),
56, Kingsley Street, Shaftesbury Park, S.W.

HERR H. VEYD (Zitherist).
For Concerts, Banquets, Instruction, &c., address, Westbourne House, 47, Fernhead Road, W.

MISS VINNIE BEAUMONT (Soprano) is now booking Engagements for the ensuing Season for Oratorio, Classical and Ballad Concerts, Organ Recitals, Festival Services, &c. Address, Point House, Brigg, Lincolnshire, and Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MISS LEILA BAIRSTOW (Soprano) will sing at Llandudno September 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11. Address, 30, Lord Street, Southport.

MISS FANNY BRISTOWE (Soprano) is now booking Oratorio and Concert Engagements for the coming Season, and requests all communications to be addressed to 120, High Street, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MADELINE HARDY (Soprano) has REMOVED to 27, Loughborough Road, Brixton, where all communications respecting Concerts, &c., should be addressed.

MADAME LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting Oratorio, Operatic Recital, or Ballad Concerts be addressed, 44, Alexandra Road, London, N.W., or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME WORRELL (Soprano), Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, begs to announce that she has REMOVED to 69, Wiltshire Road, Brixton, S.W., where all communications respecting engagements for Concerts, &c., should be addressed.

MISS KATHERINE JAMES (Mezzo-Soprano or Soprano), Medalist and Certificate-holder of the Royal Academy of Music, is booking ENGAGEMENTS for the coming season. August 3, Crystal Palace; October 22, Leicester; December 27, Northampton (Choral Society), &c. Address, 33, Knowle Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MISS EMILIE HARRIS (Contralto) begs to announce that communications respecting Concert or Oratorio Engagements may be addressed to N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, Bond Street, W., or to 42, Golden Hillock Road, Birmingham. Répertoire includes:—"Messiah," "Samson," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Stabat Mater," "Rose of Sharon," "Light of the World," "Fall of Babylon," "God, Thou art Great," "Eli," "Naaman," "Woman of Samaria," "Holy City," "Ruth," "Sleeping Beauty," "Rose Maiden," "Psyche," "Erl-King's Daughter," "Andromeda," "Golden Legend," &c., &c.

MISS LENA LAW (Contralto) begs to announce her return to town. For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Crowcombe Villa, Ealing Common.

MISS RICHARDSON (Contralto), Pupil of the late J. B. Welch. (Guildhall references.) Oratorios, Concerts, address, 19, Victor Road, Manningham, Bradford.

MR. H. C. TONKING has REMOVED to 13, Wolfington Road, West Norwood, S.E.

MISS SANDERSON (Contralto) is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., press opinions, vacant dates, address, Casson Gate, Rochdale.

MR. HENRY BEAUMONT (Tenor) from Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall Concerts, Carl Rosa Opera, Drury Lane, &c., is now booking dates for the coming winter: August 1, Southsea (Miscellaneous); 15, Hastings (Ballads); 18, Eastbourne (Ballads); 29, Crystal Palace ("Foresters' Day"); 30, Southsea (Ballads); September 20, Huddersfield Subscription Concerts (Ballads); March 27, Ditto (Bach's "Passion," &c.); October 3, Hastings (Ballads); 22, Bury (Ballads); 29, Saddleworth, Choral ("Samson"); November 10, Holmfirth ("Elijah"); December 9, Belfast (Ballads and Garden Scene from "Faust"); 10, Dublin, Ditto; 20, Glasgow Choral Union ("Elijah.") Address, 49, Ladbroke Road, W.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor), 65, King Cross Street, Halifax, respectfully begs to intimate his complete recovery from loss of voice (through serious indisposition), and is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS from this date.

MR. ARTHUR CASTINGS (Principal Tenor of Hereford Cathedral) is now booking ENGAGEMENTS for the coming concert season. Dates already booked in September, November, and December. For vacant dates, press notices, references, &c., address, Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP (Tenor), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's, begs that all communications be addressed to 34, Priory Park Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. HOLBERRY-HAGYARD (Tenor) is now booking Engagements for the coming Season. Engaged: Bury St. Edmund's, September 25; Cambridge, 29; Cheltenham Musical Festival, October 24, 25, 26; Keighley ("Messiah"), December 20; Nottingham ("Elijah"), March 22, 1888; others pending. References kindly permitted to Ebenezer Prout, Esq., B.A., 12, Greenwood Road, Dalston, N.; C. Swinnerton Heap, Esq., Mus. Doc. (Conductor of the Wolverhampton Festival), Clarendon Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham; John North, Esq. (Conductor of the Festival Choral Society), Huddersfield; Sir Herbert Oakeley, The University, Edinburgh. For terms, address, Trinity College, Cambridge.

MR. SEYMOUR JACKSON (Concerts and Oratorios). All communications respecting engagements should be addressed to his agent, Mr. N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, London, W., or Old Trafford, Manchester.

MR. PERCY PALMER (Tenor), having returned to town, desires that all communications respecting engagements for the coming season be addressed to him at his residence, 7, Peterboro' Villas, Fulham, S.W.

MR. WALTER E. DAVIS (Bass-Baritone). Holder of Bronze and Silver Medals and two Certificates, R.A.M. For Engagements, or Lessons in Voice Production and English and Italian Singing, address, 23, Balfour Road, Highbury, N.

MR. BROUGHTON BLACK (Baritone), St. Paul's Cathedral, requests that all communications be addressed to 71, Reighton Road, Upper Clapton, or The Cathedral.

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY (Baritone) will be out of town until October 1. He is now booking dates for season 1887-88. All communications to be addressed, Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, Hanover Square.

CHANGE of ADDRESS.—Mr. EDWARD MILLS (Baritone), 24, Morval Road, Brixton, S.W. (instead of 35, Knowle Road).

MR. FREDERIC W. PARTRIDGE, A.R.C.M. (Baritone vocalist), can accept engagements for Oratorios and Concerts. Address, 2, St. George's Villas, Beckenham; or N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. JAMES SAUVAGE begs to announce that he is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Opera, Concerts, &c. All communications to be addressed, 21, Poplar Grove, West Kensington Park, W.

MR. BURGON SWIFT (Baritone) is now booking ENGAGEMENTS in Oratorios, Cantatas, Concerts, &c., for the coming season. For terms, apply to Morton, Bourne, Lincolnshire.

MR. W. H. BRERETON and MISS AMBLER (Mrs. Brereton) can accept JOINT ENGAGEMENTS (or separately) this season. 6, Blenheim Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

MR. W. H. BURGON, late Principal Bass of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and also of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, Sacred Harmonic Society, &c., begs to give notice that he is now at liberty for Oratorios and Concerts. All communications to 21, Westbourne Park Crescent, W.

MR. FREDERIC KING requests that in future all communications respecting Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., be addressed to him at his private residence, St. Fillans, 19, Canfield Gardens, Finchley New Road, N.W.

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass), Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapels Royal, and Miss S. Riley (Mrs. Shepley), Contralto, request that all communications be addressed, 87, Malvern Road, London, N.W.

MR. FRANK MAY
(BASS),

Having been most successful in the following works, begs to announce that he is now booking Engagements for the ensuing season in the same, or for other compositions of a popular character:—

THE MESSIAH	...HANDEL.
JUDAS MACCABÆUS	"
ACIS AND GALATEA	"
WEDDING MUSIC FROM "JOSEPH" ...	"
THE PASSION (ST. JOHN)	BACH.
THE CREATION	HAYDN.
ELIJAH...	...MENDELSSOHN.
ST. PAUL	"
THE WALPURGIS NIGHT	"
LAST JUDGMENT	SPOHR.
GOD, THOU ART GREAT	"
TWELFTH MASS...	...MOZART.
STABAT MATER	...ROSSINI.
DIDO AND ÆNEAS	PURCELL.
BRIDE OF DUNKERRON	SMART.
JUBILEE CANTATA	WEBER.
THE REDEMPTION	GOUNOD.
MAY QUEEN	STERNDALE BENNETT.
CRUSADERS	GADE.
ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER	"
MARTYR OF ANTIOCH	SULLIVAN.
ANCIENT MARINER	...BARNETT.
HOLY CITY...	GAUL.
RUTH	"
ROSE MAIDEN	COWEN.
SLEEPING BEAUTY	"
FAIRY RING	CUMMINGS.
DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS	STAINER.
PLACIDA	CARTER.
FOOTPRINTS OF THE SAVIOUR... ...	ROGERS.
MERRY MEN OF SHERWOOD FOREST...	BIRCH.

For terms, vacant dates, and press notices, address, Mr. Frank May, 14, Hanover Street, London, W. Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass) begs to announce that his voluminous and unprecedented Press notices on his performances during the recent Season, 1886-87, are now ready, and may be had on application to him at 14, Hanover Street, London, W. He also desires to direct the attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Choral Societies, &c. (from whom he will be happy to receive early application for Engagements during the ensuing Season) to his other announcement setting forth a list of works in which he has sung with the greatest success. Telegraphic address, "Iolas, London."

MADAME and the MISSES PORTER (the London Lady Quartet—Vocal and Instrumental, including Piano, Violin, Violoncello, Flute, Piccolo, &c.) Engagements: August—Littlehampton Bognor, Minehead, Burnham, Sidmouth; September—Exmouth, Paignton, Dawlish, Tavistock, Ilfracombe, Barnstaple, Bideford, &c. A few vacant dates after September. Address, 17, Formosa Street, Maida Hill, London, W.

BASSOON—Mr. A. KNIGHT (Leeds, Chester, and Worcester Festivals, &c.), having seceded from Mr. Charles Hallé's Orchestra, can arrange dates for next season's Concerts. Principal Bassoon or Contra Fagotto, or for solos. Press notices on application.

MUSICAL AGENCY.—Mr. Knight supplies any number of Instrumentalists for Concerts, &c. Estimates given for Bands. Address, 64, Higher Temple Street, Ardwick Green, Manchester.

THE HIGHBURY NEW PARK SCHOOL of MUSIC, Highbury Athenæum, Highbury New Park, N.—The Autumn Term will commence on MONDAY, September 26. Students' Applications should be sent in during the week, from September 19 to 24. Prospectus to be had of the Principal.

TRIO and QUARTET CLASS (Piano and Strings). Mr. and Mrs. HENRY R. STARR beg to announce that they will resume the above on Monday, October 3, at their new residence, 67, Brondesbury Road, Kilburn. Particulars on application.

PRIZE COMPETITION (£3, £2, and £1) for Whitsuntide Hymn Tunes. Manchester Sunday School Union. For conditions send stamp to J. E. Balmer, Crumpsall, Manchester.

THE BIRMINGHAM CONCERT PARTY
(FIFTH SEASON), CONSISTING OF—
MISS CLARA SURGEY,
MISS EMILIE HARRIS,
MR. R. LLOYD JAMES,
AND
MR. GEORGE HARRISS,

are now booking engagements for Oratorios and Miscellaneous Concerts, together or separately. Large and successful répertoire. For terms (which are very moderate), critiques, &c., address, Mr. George Harriss, 194, Deritend, Birmingham.

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS" (REG.)
Conductor—Mr. JOSEF CANTOR.
Engagements fulfilled, Season 1886-1887:—

Leeds	Coliseum...	4 Concerts.
Manchester ...	Free Trade Hall and Y.M.C.A. ...	3 Concerts.
Preston	New Public Hall	3 Concerts.
Halifax	Subscription Concerts	2 Concerts.
Bradford	St. George's Hall	3 Concerts.
Bolton	Albert and Temperance Halls ...	3 Concerts.
Huddersfield ...	Subscription Concerts
Worcester ...	Subscription Concerts
Liverpool	Hengler's Cirque
Bury	Co-operative Hall
Stalybridge ...	Town Hall
Leeds	Literary Society	2 Concerts.
Blackburn	Town Hall

&c., &c.

The répertoire of this Concert Company embraces selections from thirty different Operas, including "Tannhäuser," "Mefistofele," "Nadeshda," "Esmeralda," "La Gioconda," "Irene," "Carmen," "Oberon," "Talismano," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "Lily of Killarney," &c., &c.

The personnel comprises twenty-two Artists, all of whom are thoroughly competent Soloists. Selections are also introduced from the lighter compositions of Balfe, Wallace, Clay, Offenbach, Suppé, Cellier, Audran, and the Gilbert-Sullivan series.

Mr. Cantor is now booking dates for the Autumn and Winter of 1887, and will be pleased to forward full particulars, specimen programmes, &c., on application.

Address, Church Street, Liverpool. Telegrams—"Cantor," Liverpool.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fee, three guineas per term. Children from 8 to 13 allowed to begin and continue for two guineas per term. Pupils not in the School pay an entrance fee of one guinea. The fees payable in advance. Pupils wishing to join Violin Class to send in their names to Miss Macirone.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

MISS CLARA TITTERTON, Medalist, R.A.M., First Class Certificate Society of Arts, &c., &c., receives PUPILS for the VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE on moderate terms. Lessons given at pupils' own residences. Schools attended. Miss Titterton also accepts engagements for Concerts and At Homes. 20, Godolphin Road, Goldhawk Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TUITION, by CORRESPONDENCE, for the Musical Examinations held by Trinity College, London, the Colleges of Organists, Preceptors, and the Universities. Single subjects taught. Full particulars from James Jennings and Co., Deptford, London.

MR. ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, &c., by post. 9, Avington Grove, Penge, S.E.

DR. CROW, of Ripon Cathedral, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, &c., by Correspondence.

MR. JOHN GREIG, M.A., Mus. Bac., F.C.O., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and FUGUE by correspondence. Was successful in coaching for Final Mus. Bac., Oxon., 1886. Address, 7, Scotland Street, Edinburgh.

H. A. HARDING, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, and FUGUE by correspondence, and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Harding, Sidmouth.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations by Post. Address, Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. HULTON MIDDLETON, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares Candidates for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Glossop Road, Sheffield.

MR. REGINALD B. MOORE, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., gives LESSONS in COUNTERPOINT, HARMONY, &c., and prepares Candidates for Examinations by Correspondence. Address, Kenilworth, York Road, Exeter.

MR. HENRY PIGGOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS by Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and other branches of the THEORY of MUSIC. Candidates prepared for Musical Examinations. Terms moderate. Alton, Hants.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., gives ORGAN and PIANOFORTE LESSONS. Harmony, Counterpoint, Composition, &c., taught personally or by post. Terms moderate. 6, East Chapel Street Mayfair, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—LESSONS given by a Gentleman (pupil of Mr. John Francis Barnett), Silver Medalist, L.A.M. Terms moderate. H. C., 59, Freegrove Road, Holloway.

DR. ALLISON, R.A.M., instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT EXAMINATIONS for MUS. DOC., OXON. (1885), and MUS. D., T.C.D. (1887), MUS. BAC., OXON. (1886); MUS. BAC., T.C.D. (1886); MUS. BAC., CANTAB.; Cambridge 1st Mus. Bac. (1st Class, June, 1887), 1st Mus. Bac., Oxon., L.R.A.M. (1887); Local R.A.M. "With Honours" (1887), N.S.P.M. (1887); F.C.O., and the other Musical Examinations. More than 260 Certificates, Degrees, &c., have been gained by Dr. Allison's Pupils at Musical Examinations, and they won the GOLD MEDALS for excellence in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Plan or Design at Manchester in 1885, 1886, and 1887. Harmony, Acoustics, Orchestration, and Revision of Musical Compositions by Post to Correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. H. COY gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Candidates prepared for all Musical Examinations. Address, Sale, near Manchester.

MR. T. V. DAVIES gives LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by post. Address, 84, Guilford Street, Russell Square, W.C.

MR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and Prepares Candidates for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: Trinity College, London, 1887; College of Organists, 1887; Mus. Bac., Toronto, 1887; First, Second, and Final Examinations, with first on list in Final, A.R.C.M., 1887. Senior Local R.A.M. and T.C.L. in Honours. Terms very moderate. Address, Cobham, Surrey.

MR. G. J. ROBERTSON, F.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, and ORCHESTRATION, by Post. Address, Buccleuch Villa, Coventry.

HERBERT W. WAREING, Mus. Doc., King's College, Cambridge (1886) gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, CANON, and FUGUE by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for University and other Musical Examinations. Address, Dr. Wareing, 76, Bristol Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

ALTO VOICES TRAINED and SIGHT-READING TAUGHT, by Mr. W. A. FROST (Alto of St. Paul's Cathedral), at his Residence, 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C., or at the City School of Music, 26, Knightrider Street. Several of Mr. Frost's pupils have obtained cathedral and other choir appointments, and he has been unable to supply as many altos as he has been asked for to London church choirs.

PIANO, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT.—Lessons personally or by correspondence. Miss Champion, A. Mus., T.C.L., 7, Weymouth Street, Portland Place, London.

DR. TAYLOR, F.C.O., L.Mus., prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M. in Composition, teaches Harmony, Counterpoint, Acoustics, &c., by Correspondence. Latest successes: Mus. Bac., Final, Cantab., 1886; A.C.O. and L.R.A.M. in Composition, 1887. Ashburne, Derbyshire.

ORGAN STUDENTS prepared for Examinations of Royal Academy or Royal College of Music. Lessons given, and practice allowed on a fine Three-manual Willis Organ in the City. Highest references. Terms, five shillings for half-hour lesson. Apply, by letter, to Fides, Messrs. Novello & Co., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals and Pedal Organ, 18 stops, blown by Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Manufacturer of THE PERFECT HYDRAULIC ENGINE for supplying wind to Organs of the largest dimensions and the smallest Harmoniums. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective.

Particulars and estimates as above free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (in the City). One shilling per hour, upon a complete instrument. Three manuals and independent pedals, &c., blown by engine. Willis, 29, Minories.

THE ORGANIST of Norwich Cathedral has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Apply to Dr. F. Bates, The Close.

YOUNG LADY, with good voice, WANTED, to train and introduce as Vocalist at High-class Concerts. Advantageous terms to pianist. Comfortable home. References. Address, Mr. Ford, Post Office, Twickenham.

ASSISTANT PUPIL REQUIRED (Gentleman). Thorough musical education in return for light assistance. Rooms provided, but no board. Two Organs. Country. A. E., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VACANCY for two RESIDENT PUPILS in a HOME in Kensington. Lessons on the Organ and Pianoforte, in Composition and Singing. For terms, address, Emily Lawrence, West Vale, Rugby.

CAMB. B.A. (also 1st Mus. Bac.), experienced ORGANIST, desires to act as ASSISTANT-PUPIL, where full knowledge of Musical Profession may be had. Brilliant Pianist. S., Mr. Mudford, Fore Street, Tiverton, Devon.

TEACHER for ORGAN, VIOLIN, TENOR, and CELLO, and for FRENCH, ITALIAN, and GERMAN LANGUAGES wants SITUATION here or in the Colonies. A. V., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN experienced LADY TEACHER of PIANOFORTE and SINGING, Trinity College Honours Certificate, and excellent testimonials, desires a MORNING ENGAGEMENT in a ladies' or boys' school. P.F., Messrs. Novello and Co., Berners Street, W.

WANTED, ENGAGEMENTS as ACCOMPANIST for SONGS or VIOLIN. Evenings only. Concerts and parties attended. Terms moderate. Address, Miss Edith Earl, 6, Charlton Place, Islington, N.

OXFORD (New College).—Four CHORISTERS (Boys) WANTED, to sing an ALTO part. Apply to The Precentor.

WANTED, two LEADING BOYS for All Souls' Choir, Loudoun Road, St. John's Wood, N.W. Salary, £3. Apply at the Church, Friday evening, 7 to 9.

WANTED, at once, LEADING TREBLE. Church in Camberwell. Stipend, £8 8s. per annum. Letter to Organist, 15, Harley Road, Kennington.

A LADY (Soprano) desires an ENGAGEMENT in a Church Choir. Address, M. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

YORK MINSTER CHOIR.—ALTO and BASS REQUIRED. Candidates must be Communicants of the Church of England and possess a thorough knowledge of Cathedral Music. Stipend for Alto, £70 per annum; for Bass, £85 per annum. Successful candidates must be prepared to sign an agreement to stay two years. Testimonials and applications to be sent in before September 20, and addressed Dr. Naylor, Song School, The Minster, York.

WANTED, for an important West-end Church, two ALTOS and one BASS. Must be up in Church work. Salary according to ability; also two LEADING BOYS. Application, by letter only, to R., Organist, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

ALTO (Solo) WANTED, for St. James's Church, Knatchbull Road, Camberwell. Salary, £15 per annum. Apply at the Church on Friday evenings, 8 p.m.

ALTO, of Cathedral experience, desires ENGAGEMENTS. Would like to make one of a Quartet. Apply, Zeta, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WELLS CATHEDRAL.—VACANCY for TENOR. £80 per annum. For particulars, apply to the Organist, Mr. C. W. Lavington, Wells, Somerset. Applications to be sent in before September 10.

WANTED, FIRST TENOR at Catholic Church, N.W. Must read fairly and be accustomed to the Latin. Terms, £20 per annum. W. H. Wall, Holmside, St. Paul's Crescent, Camden Square.

SOLO TENOR (from a West End High Church) will be at liberty to accept a CHURCH ENGAGEMENT after September 21. Concerts, &c., during the Winter Season. Address, J. P. D., 120, Ashmore Road, W.

WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Gray's Inn Road, a BASS VOICE. Salary, £8 per annum to begin. Apply, Organist, 163, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

BASS (not Baritone) REQUIRED, for Choir of Church near Oxford Circus. Stipend, £10. Good references from last appointment indispensable. Address, A. D., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SCHOOL BOARD for LONDON.—The Board require the services of an ASSISTANT to the SINGING INSTRUCTOR. He will, under the direction of the Instructor, have to visit Schools and assist in the superintendence and examination of Children, and also of the Pupil Teachers at the Central Classes in Singing. He must have a thorough knowledge of music, and be a practical and successful teacher by the staff and tonic sol-fa notations, and must hold the highest Certificates granted by the Tonic Sol-fa College for Theory and Teaching. He should also have some experience in conducting large concerts. Annual salary, £175, rising by yearly increases of £5 to £200.

Applications, containing copies of not more than three testimonials, should be sent so as to reach the Clerk of the Board, School Board for London, Victoria Embankment, W.C., on or before Saturday, September 24, and should be marked outside, "Application, Assistant Singing Instructor."

ORGANIST REQUIRED, for Long Cross, Chertsey, for September 11, 18, 25. Board and Lodging from Friday till Monday each week given in exchange for services, and expenses paid. Three Services each Sunday (one Choral), and one Practice on Fridays. Apply, Mr. C. Berwers, Long Cross, Chertsey.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, of great experience, seeks a similar APPOINTMENT. Cathedral training. Highest testimonials. Address, G. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CONDUCTOR WANTED.—The BELFAST PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY requires a CONDUCTOR. Salary, £150 for the season. This is the highest musical position in the North of Ireland. For particulars, apply to the Secretary, 50, Royal Avenue, Belfast.

ST. BEES.—ORGANIST WANTED, by October 1. £50. Address, Vicar.

WANTED, for the Parish Church, Melton Mowbray, an ORGANIST. Salary, £40. Apply, with references, Rev. Dr. Colles, The Vicarage, Melton Mowbray.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, or DEPUTY, by Young Gentleman. Excellent testimonials. Address, Ranquel, Ravensbourne Road, Bromley, Kent.

WANTED, in September, post as ORGANIST, &c. In or near London preferred. Experienced. Address, L. C. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to immediate ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Accessible from Victoria. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as ORGANIST, or ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, by a thoroughly experienced man. First-class testimonials. London or suburbs. J. Barfoot, 102, Surrey Lane, Battersea, S.W.

ASSISTANT ORGANIST.—A Gentleman (Guildhall School) desires to give his services as above, in Brixton, Clapham, or Camberwell Districts. Would take Sunday afternoon service. A. C., 19, St. Lawrence Road, Brixton.

ORGANIST, DEPUTY or ASSISTANT, could Train or Assist in Choir. F.L.S., 6, Sussex Place, S.W.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. NORMAN ADAMS, the Organist of the American Church, Paris, will be enabled to accept an APPOINTMENT in England, September next. Address, 26, Avenue Marceau, Paris.

A THOROUGHLY experienced CHOIRMASTER will be DISENGAGED at Michaelmas. Address, Metronome, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 & 81, Queen Street, London, E.C.

WANTED, for a Music Warehouse in South Africa, a thoroughly competent PIANOFORTE TUNER. Must be able to repair Instruments, and possess a general knowledge of the Retail Music Trade. Apply, in the first instance, by letter, to No. 119, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

EXPERIENCED TUNER for Seaside (South-West). Permanent situation to a first-class, steady hand. Good address essential. Salary and commission. Aged 25 to 30. E. F. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNERS.—Thoroughly reliable Men WANTED. Good salary and commission, and permanent employ. Apply to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street, Liverpool.

THE Services of a First-class PIANO TUNER REQUIRED for about a month in October. Apply, stating terms, &c., to C. Taphouse and Son, 3, Magdalen Street, Oxford.

WANTED, a First-class PIANO TUNER. One who understands Harmoniums and American Organs, and can do ordinary repairs preferred. To a thoroughly competent and steady man a permanent situation is offered. State age, wages, and previous experience, with references. Address, by letter only, Smith, Piano Factory, Oxford Road, Manchester.

TUNER and TONER (Pianoforte).—WANTED, a really good solid Tuner for Outdoor, and a first-class Tuner and Toner for Indoor; in either case men with ability for American Organ and Harmonium Tuning preferred. Permanent work, at moderate Salary. Apply to Locke and Son, Mendelssohn House, Strangeways, Manchester.

WANTED, First-Class PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. Must have a knowledge of American Organs and Harmoniums. References, experience, salary, age, and Photo, to J. Herbert Marshall, Pianoforte Depôt, Rutland Street, Leicester.

TUNER (Certificated) and REPAIRER, understands Organs and Harmoniums, desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in good house. Excellent references, &c. Aged 27. Particulars to Verita, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER, REPAIRER, and to ASSIST.—SITUATION WANTED, with a good firm. Used to Organs and Harmoniums. References good. Address, Kent, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN Experienced TUNER (Brinsmead) is open to ENGAGEMENT. Good references as to tuning, sobriety, &c. Address, L. A., 5, Fir Grove, York Road, Bournemouth.

WANTED (in Town or Country), ENGAGEMENT as SECOND TUNER in good house of business. Good factory and country experience. Address, W. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street London, W.

SITUATION WANTED, by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER. Good references. Address, M., Miss Osmonds, Westgate Street, Bath.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Knowledge of American Organs, Harmoniums, and Repairs, &c. Address, P. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Understands Finishing. Six years in a London factory. Address, F. Y., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE REPAIRER and REGULATOR wants SITUATION. Aged 30. Fourteen years' London and provincial experience. Fair tuner. Very low wages would be accepted with an opportunity of improving tuning. Address, Abstainer, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as TUNER. Accustomed to country work; excellent references. Apply, A. L. Keall, Lea House, Wantage, Berks.

A YOUNG MAN desires SITUATION as TUNER, &c. Knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs. Good references. Desires change. Address, W. Drayton, Cheap Street, Sherborne, Dorset.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (single) seeks ENGAGEMENT. Very steady and reliable, knowledge of repairs, &c Good references. Would go abroad if expenses are allowed. T. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER and REPAIRER seeks RE-ENGAGEMENT. Fifteen years' experience. Address, Tuner, 6, Willingham Terrace, Kentish Town, London.

WANTED, by MANAGER of large Pianoforte and Music Warehouse, similar SITUATION (or Head Tuner). Permanent Situation and good Salary indispensable. Understands all branches of Trade thoroughly (Factory experience). Of good address, and strictly temperate. Last berths, 5, 6, and 4 years. Aged 31. Change desired (Colonies not objected to). If possible, personal interview given. Address, Energy, Messrs. Novello, 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC SALESMAN.—WANTED, smart active Young Man (about 28) as SECOND ASSISTANT. Thorough knowledge of the Catalogues indispensable. Good salary. Apply to J. B. Cramer and Co., 26, Church Street. Liverpool.

WELL-EDUCATED Youth REQUIRED, as ASSISTANT SALESMAN in Provincial Music Warehouse. Enclose C.D.V., in stamped addressed envelope, state nature of experience, and wages required. Address, No. 751, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A COUNTRY MUSICSELLER wishing to remove to London, would be glad to hear of some one with capital, who thoroughly understands the trade, and who could take the MANAGEMENT and also a SHARE in the BUSINESS. Address, F. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT (experienced) desires SITUATION in MUSIC SALOON or otherwise. Can teach Violin and Piano. Excellent reference as to qualifications, &c. Apply, J. K., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG LADY WANTED, who thoroughly understands the Music Trade. Must be experienced and have first-class references. Apply, with full particulars, salary required, and photo, which shall in every case be returned, to R. J. Heath and Sons, 51, Queen Street, Cardiff.

YOUNG LADY WANTED, to take charge of a high-class MUSIC BUSINESS, must thoroughly understand the trade, and be able to read music at sight and keep books. Address, N. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A LADY, good Musician, Pianist, and Vocalist, seeks an APPOINTMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Town or country. Address, Musicus, 32, Fitzroy Road, Primrose Hill, N.W.

YOUNG LADY (23) desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Good sight reader, pianist, and vocalist. Address, Miss Shackell, Music Warehouse, 78, Union Street, Ryde.

WANTED, by a Young Lady of good appearance, a SITUATION in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE; is a brilliant pianist and good singer; can read at first sight, and could also give lessons if required; good references. Address, A. E. Briant, 28, Palmerston Road, Southsea.

MUSIC BUSINESS for DISPOSAL.—Instruments, Small Goods, Sheet Music, Tuning Connection. Stock low, at valuation. Henry Mee, Leek, Staffordshire.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE at a fashionable seaside resort. Good Tuning Connection. Small goods and hiring. Address, Verax, care of J. W. Vickers, 5, Nicholas Lane, E.C.

PIANO VAN (four wheels), new from maker October, 1886. Cost 65 guineas; used occasionally only. Price £38. Apply, Joseph Bishop, 10, Seven Sisters Road, N.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Managers of Operas, Operettas, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.
CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest and most varied stock in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day. Terms and Catalogues on application. Parcels of music sent on "sale or return" on receipt of two London references or a deposit of £2.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED without delay, on exceptionally low terms. Estimates given on receipt of MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MUSIC COPIED and Drawn from the Full Score, with proper Cues for Engraving; also Songs or other Pieces Transposed, by J. Peck, 36, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

SURPLICES (12 Men's, 16 Boys'). £8. Will divide. Surplice, General Agency, Bank Buildings, Victoria Street, S.W.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c., 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

ALFRED MONK'S JUBILEE ORGANS.—Three manuals, 22 stops, the most valuable and effective selection of high-class stops. Full rich cathedral tone. The most serviceable and desirable Organ for modern requirements ever constructed for the remarkable price of £300. Unrivalled in quality of tone, mechanism, and workmanship. Four-manual Organs, 50 stops, £1,200. Several new and second-hand two-manual Organs, ready for sale or hire, or on the three years system. Organs built to any specification and dimensions. Highest class of stops, and most complete and perfect in scales. All Organs constructed of first-class materials and workmanship, Tuners sent to all parts of the kingdom. Estimates, price list, and fifty testimonials sent free. Organ Works and Show Rooms, 550, Holloway Road, London. Inspection invited. Organ Practice, 1s. per hour.

THOMAS A. JENNINGS, Organ Builder to the Trade, continues to supply PNEUMATIC WORK and other Specialties to order. Address, 19, York Street, Hackney Road, London, E.

FOR SALE.—DOUBLE BASS by FOSTER; fine old Italian Bass (formerly the property of Dragonetti); Stradivarius Tenor; Violin by BETTS; English Bass, played with keys (with original mechanism); fine tone old Violin, small size, suitable for a lady. Apply, Mrs. Hopkins, care of Elgar Bros., Piano Dealers, 10, High Street, Worcester.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

VIOLINS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—CLASS 13.
OFFICER OF ACADEMY (FINE ARTS), 1884.

Gold and Silver Medal, PARIS, 1878.—Gold Medal, Paris, 1879.
Gold Medal, ROME, 1880, and Two Diplomas.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER,
ARTISTIC HOUSE,
PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved. Recommended and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMAN, LEONARD, ARMINGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANCHOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.
Catalogues and testimonials Post-free on application.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

THE Old-established firm of W. E. HILL and SONS, Makers and Sellers of Violins and Bows, will REMOVE their Business, at the end of October next, from 72, Wardour Street, to their new Premises, No. 38, NEW BOND STREET, opposite to the Grosvenor Gallery, and a few doors North of the Doré Gallery.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS have been awarded a GOLD MEDAL at the INVENTIONS EXHIBITION, 1885, and the Sole GOLD MEDAL, SOCIETY OF ARTS, 1885, for VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, and BOW MAKING.

MESSRS. W. E. HILL and SONS (the Experts to the Historic Music Loan Collection, Inventions Exhibition, 1885) give opinions as to the make and value of Violins for a moderate fee.

GENTLEMAN'S COLLECTION of VIOLINS for SALE. From £10 to £30. Address, Rector, 139, Arbour Street, Southport.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Finest Italian, three firsts, Post-free as sample, for thirteen stamps. Alphonse Cary, Newbury.

ORCHESTROPHONE.—WANTED, to PURCHASE. Must be good. State full particulars to A. B., 2, Scalford Road, Melton Mowbray.

OBOES from J. SHARPE (Professional Oboeist), Pudsey, near Leeds, are warranted free from the faulty notes so common on other Oboes. N.B.—Special attention is paid to the bore, &c.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL REED ORGAN by GILBERT BAUER.—A very fine-toned and complete instrument, in perfect order as new. In massive walnut case, stool, &c. Cost £150. Price 45 guineas. Also, a 22-stop, Two-manual Alexandre Harmonium. Cost 90 guineas. Price 30 guineas. Apply, Messrs. Stagg and Co., 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

CHURCH ORGANS for SALE. Just rebuilt and greater part new. Consisting of two Manuals, five Stops on Great, seven on Swell; Bourdon and three Couplers; illuminated pipes in front. Price £250. Also small Pipe Organs in Stock from £50, and a large sample Church Organ, £550. W. Beales and Co., Organ Builders, Limes Road, Croydon.

FOR SALE, to make room for a larger Instrument, a TWO-MANUAL CHURCH ORGAN, 17 Stops, Pedals, Couplers, &c.; Ornamental Front, 13½ ft. high, 9½ ft. long, 8½ ft. wide. Cost 200 guineas. No reasonable offer refused. Apply, Churchwardens, Ironville, Alfreton.

NEW ORGAN for SALE.—Messrs. W. HILL and SON have for SALE a fine new TWO-MANUAL ORGAN. 8 stops in Great, 8 in Swell, 2 in Pedal, and 4 Couplers. The instrument is of their own build and is worked by Schmoele's Electric System, with a detached console, and every appliance for combination action. Price £600 without case. Can be seen at the Factory, 372, York Road, Islington, N.

TWO-MANUAL CHAMBER PIPE ORGAN. Height 9 ft. 10 in. Elegant mahogany case; 4 stops on swell, 6 on great, bourdon pedals; thorough order; good tone. 40 Guineas. Stoneham, 21, Waltenton Road, Westbourne Park, W. Evenings preferred.

ORGAN for SALE, by HILL and SON. Two manuals; 7 stops on great, 5 in swell, and 2 on pedal. Apply to Hill and Son, 372, York Road, N.

ORGAN for SALE, double action, six stops, three Composition Pedals; Swell; nine feet high. G. E., 8, King's Road, Upton Park, E.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

PRESIDENT.—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

SESSION 1887-8.

The Inaugural Address of the Session will be delivered on TUESDAY, September 27, at Eight o'clock, by the Warden (the Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus.D.), to be followed by a Distribution of Prizes, Medals, &c.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

MICHAELMAS TERM COMMENCES SEPTEMBER 26.

Students (professional and amateur) are received for a complete course of musical training, or for a single study. The following is a list of the subjects taught: Harmony and Counterpoint, Form and Orchestration, Composition, Musical Accoustics (University Lectures), Pianoforte, Organ, Figured Bass Playing, Transposition, &c., Solo Singing, Pianoforte Accompaniment, Violin, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Harp, Horn, Orchestral Class, Musical History, Sight-singing, Choral Class, Vocal and Aural Physiology (Lectures), and Voice Production Class (Lectures).

There are also Classes in General Subjects for the benefit of those Students of the College who are desirous of improving their general culture or are preparing for the matriculation and other Examinations preliminary to University Degrees and other diplomas in music.

The fee for three Studies (e.g., Pianoforte, Singing, and Harmony) is Five Guineas per Term.

Both Male and Female Students are received, and there is no limit as to age. There are Evening as well as Day Classes, and Harmony and Counterpoint are also taught by Correspondence.

Students of the College are allowed to enter for any of the College Examinations at reduced fees.

Prospectus, forms of application, and all particulars, can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By order of the Academical Board.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

NOW READY.

COMPOSED EXPRESSLY FOR THE WORCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1887.

RUTH

A DRAMATIC ORATORIO

THE WORDS SELECTED FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FREDERIC H. COWEN.

	s.	d.
Price, in paper cover	4	0
„ paper boards	4	6
„ cloth gilt	6	0
Vocal parts, each	1	6
String Parts	23	0
Wind Parts	49	0

Full Score (In the Press).

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The "OTTO" Gas Engine

IS ADMIRABLY SUITED

FOR

DRIVING ORGAN BELLOWS

IT IS USED IN THE FOLLOWING CHURCHES AND CATHEDRALS FOR THIS PURPOSE:—

St. Paul's Cathedral.
Westminster Abbey.
St. Giles's Cathedral (Edinburgh).
St. Mary's „ „
Lichfield „
St. Michael's (Macclesfield).
Salisbury Cathedral.
St. Peter's (Eaton Sq., London).
St. Mark's (Bradford).
Harrogate Baptist Church.
Holy Trinity (Hull).
St. Thomas's (Oldham).
St. Andrew's (Southport).
Holy Trinity „
Alnwick (Parish Church).
Congregational Church (Blackburn).
St. Ann's-in-Grove (Halifax).
Parish Church (Folkestone).
Eton College, and others.
Coombe Down Church.
Thirsk Church.

Also in many Private Residences, Public Halls, &c., &c.

CROSSLEY BROS., LTD., MANCHESTER.

WILL BE READY OCTOBER 1

A

METHOD OF SINGING

WRITTEN BY

JULIUS STOCKHAUSEN

TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH BY

SOPHIE LÖWE.

PRICE FIVE SHILLINGS.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

SERVICES

OF

SACRED SONG

EDITED BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

PRICE SIXPENCE EACH.

1. ABRAHAM.—By the EDITOR.
2. MOSES.—By the Ven. Archdeacon FARRAR.
3. ELIJAH.—By the Rev. R. F. DALE, Rector of Bletchington, Oxon.
4. DANIEL.—By the Rev. A. G. BOWMAN, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Westminster.
5. ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.—By the Rev. E. PRICE, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.
6. ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST.—By the Rev. H. A. COTTON, Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey.
7. SIMON PETER.—By J. H. BRAMMALL.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1887.

THE LESSONS OF THE EISTEDDFOD.

THE recent gathering in the Royal Albert Hall of those interested in the maintenance of the ancient traditions of Welsh literary and musical matters had a greater significance than that which appeared upon the surface. It is no little thing, in the first place, for the Welsh people to find that the prejudices which they expected to encounter, and the amusement their old world ceremonies was likely to excite, were reduced to the smallest degree. There will always be those who indulge in silly laughter at the sight of something out of their ordinary experience, whether it be a strangeness of gait, a peculiarity of expression, the cut of a coat, or the want of cut in the hair. These are they whom Albert Smith called "the gigglers, who bring contempt upon English ways, for lack of orderly behaviour before those unaccustomed to them." The tendency of the present age is to equalise men's minds, so that they may exhibit consideration even for things they cannot at first rightly appreciate. If certain ways and habits are out of the experience of those who are looking upon them for the first time, is that a justification for ridicule? On the contrary, the laugh displays his ignorance, and his ignorance excites contempt. The customs transmitted through the Welsh people, and exhibited at the meetings of the Eisteddfodau are said to be of Druidical origin. Many people therefore believe that they should not be continued in a country professedly Christian. If it were possible to entertain such an argument, or if it were required to eliminate from our habits all that is pre-Christian or Pagan, we should be called upon to sacrifice many cherished practices, which have become insensibly interwoven into the fabric of our every day life, and now form an integral part of its texture. It is true that many Pagan customs have become modified, and have parted with their special characteristics. Their irregularities have been smoothed down, have accommodated themselves so as to fit in with other matters, with which they are constantly brought into contact. The peculiar ceremonies of the Eisteddfod, and the singularities thereat attendant have much in them which should give the Saxon, as all who are not Welsh are called, themes for reflection if not for adaptation, and from which he may, if he chooses, learn one or two useful lessons. The first is the virtue of perseverance. There is nothing to prove that the Welsh are greater as musicians than any other of the people of Europe, but there is much to show that they have been assiduous in its cultivation and practice, and nationally anxious for its encouragement among themselves for a longer period than any other nation on this side of the Himalayan mountains. Their Eisteddfodau—their sittings of learned men—have been held from time immemorial. There are records concerning them which date as far back as the seventh century of the Christian era, when King Cadwaladr presided. They were even then ancient assemblies, and they have been continued, with interruptions more or less long and frequent, into the present day. The interest excited by the meeting held at the Royal Albert Hall, in "the fortified City of Lud," will doubtless cause many enquiries to be made concerning the aim and object of these gatherings. The enthusiasm with which they are surrounded may possibly kindle other souls than those animated by the traditions and sympathies of the Cambrian race.

For the benefit of the greater part of readers who are not Welsh it may be useful to offer the explanation of the pronunciation of the word "Eisteddfod," as given by John Hullah. "A Saxon," he says, "may never satisfy the delicate ear of a Welshman by his attempts to reproduce Welsh utterances, but he may avoid making himself ridiculous, or even unintelligible to a Celt by remembering that 'ei' is sounded in Welsh as in German; that 'dd' approaches closely the English 'th'; and 'f' the English 'v'; also that, though the emphasis, as in most Welsh polysyllables, is on the penultimate, the ultimate is long. Approximately, the word is pronounced as though it were written 'Aistéthvode,' and 'Eisteddfodau' is to be rendered similarly 'Aistéthvothow.' The name 'Pencerdd,' signifying chief minstrel, may be sounded as 'Penkerth,' and 'Gorsedd,' the meeting of the Bards and Druids, as 'Gorseth.'" These are, of course, only suggested as approximate pronunciations.

The history of the Eisteddfodau is somewhat of a broken chain until the time of Edward IV., when they were revived and continued with tolerably strong connections until the reign of Queen Elizabeth, who granted commissions for the holding of Eisteddfodau at Caerwys in 1523 and 1567. Intermittent meetings were held until the year 1828, Sir Benjamin Hall, afterwards Lord Llanover, being the chief promoter. In the times previously—namely, in 1681, in 1771, and in 1819—certain of the meetings were made memorable by peculiar circumstances needless now to enter upon. The revival of the Eisteddfod, as at present constituted, is said to be chiefly due to the exertions of John Parry, the elder, a Welshman of the Welsh, and the composer of more than one of their popular tunes. They are now held annually at various places determined upon and announced "for a twelvemonth and a day" beforehand, in order to secure their customary legality. It is usual to hold a Gorsedd of Bards a short time before the intended meeting, and those who did not understand the dignity of the proceedings made merry when they heard of the preliminary meeting in November, 1886. This was held in the gardens of the Inner Temple, when the Arch-Druid proclaimed that, "when the age of Christ is 1887, and when the period of the Bards shall approach the Feast of the Solstice of Autumn—namely, the Equinox of the Harvest of Corn—after the Notice and Summons here given to all Wales, at the sound of the Trumpet from this conspicuous place, in the hearing of Country and Queen, a Gorsedd and Eisteddfod will be held in the chief city of Lud in Britain."

These quaint and archaic ceremonies may raise a smile in this utilitarian age, but as a well-informed writer says:—"The institution, its manners and customs, were once held up to ridicule amongst ourselves; in accordance with the thoroughly English idea that whoever differs from us in anything is to that extent a poor unenlightened and mirth-provoking creature. Latterly, with greater knowledge has come better sense. We laugh at the Eisteddfod no longer—all of us, that is to say, who do not care to raise a roar by appeals to bad taste; while enlightened Englishmen ardently wish that a time may come when their countrymen will take as much interest as the Welsh in all that the Eisteddfod seeks to promote."

The lesson which may be learned by musicians is an important one. It is not necessary here to enlarge upon the peculiarities of the other features of the meeting, as they are scarcely applicable to any but Welsh-speaking people. The advantage of continuing and encouraging the study of a language and literature which practically isolates its students, cannot but be doubtful. The tongue most generally "understanded of the people" is the one most likely to be profitable as a medium of intercourse. The enlightened Hollanders know and provide for this; and in their schools, while the native speech is properly preserved, other languages are taught, so that all may have the opportunity of communicating with those who do not consider the native tongue sufficiently classical or plastic to become the basis of a universal speech. The classics of the Welsh language chiefly belong to the past, and the use of its idioms is too limited for so enlightened a nation as the Welsh is acknowledged to be. Therefore, while it is both just and proper to give all needful encouragement to its preservation for the sake of the literary monuments which exist, little profit can accrue if the rewards are offered with a hope that the language may be brought into more extensive cultivation. That part of the meeting which dealt with music and its practice commands the greater sympathies of the outside world. There, at least, is a subject which places the energetic Cambrian nation more in touch with those outside their pale. When Mr. Richard, one of the most ardent admirers of the Welsh language, literature, and customs, discoursed about the love of Welshmen for their mother tongue, and hinted at the attempts of the Imperial Government to discourage its use, he allowed his emotions to override his judgment. England has very little to gain by the preservation of a tongue which practically places a barrier between the subjects under one rule. Of course, the disappearance of an ancient tongue is a matter which every philologist must regret. But such regret is purely sentimental. It is one of the signs of the times that the peculiarities of dialect throughout the kingdom are disappearing. Those who are interested in the growth and progress of language find in this matter many subjects for "jeremiads." The social and commercial advantages derived from these changes are far in excess of those which would accrue were they retained. There were, at no very great distance of time, special languages employed in Cornwall, and by the Hull Hollanders, the retention of which helped to keep them apart from the rest of the English race. A Yorkshireman and a Cornishman can now converse without the aid of an interpreter, and read and write and speak in a manner for the most part common to all who call themselves Englishmen. There are not wanting well-meaning men who, in their endeavours to find reasons for the want of cordial reception of things pleasing to themselves, attempt to account for the matter by notions which are totally foreign, and which probably existed only in their own imagination. In speaking of the attitude of the press in former days towards the Eisteddfodau, Mr. Richard asserted that it arose from an unfounded belief that they were political institutions hostile to English supremacy. This may have been true before the reign of Edward IV., and may account for the hiatus valde deflendus in the continuity of the meetings. The fact that Queen Elizabeth allowed them to be held showed that she, suspicious as she was of popular movements, and jealous for the maintenance of her prerogative, could not have entertained such an idea even in her time. The presence of the Prince of Wales during the course of the meeting was answer sufficiently powerful as to the opinion of the highest in the land as to the real drift of the gathering. The position of importance which the musical portion of the ceremonies occupied in public estimation is a further evidence of the general belief in the artistic value of the assemblies, so far as the one art is concerned.

From this London should learn a new duty. During the fifty years of the reign of our beloved Queen the cultivation of music among all classes has become most extensive. It was encouraged in the belief that it would win men from baser things. This it has done in a great measure, and has exceeded the expectations formed of it. It has become more than a mere pastime, it has developed into a serious pursuit. It is bringing forth qualities which were denied as being possessed by the English race. Our choral societies throughout the kingdom are admitted to be unequalled in the world. The cultivation of the domestic virtues, which the practice of music promoted, has been extended to social virtues, and is doing much to influence the British character. The good, which is rudimentary in this pursuit, must be encouraged, and the form which the encouragement should take is suggested by the recent Eisteddfod.

Why should not such meetings be made National, or, at all events, Metropolitan? There should be no difficulty now in forming the necessary organisation, and in a rich city like London, so keenly alive to the advantages of musical culture, money should not be wanting. Private enterprise some fifteen years ago furnished enough money to justify the commencement of an attempt to establish "National Music Meetings," where competitions in solo and part-singing, choral and brass band contests, were intended to be held annually; but the time was hardly ripe for their continuance. Notwithstanding the earnest efforts of the promoter, Mr. Willert Beale, nothing serious in the way of ascertaining musical progress has been done. The "Challenge Prize," valued at a thousand guineas, is in existence ready to be competed for. This would form a fair nucleus of rewards. Open competitions would spur existing bodies to efforts which could not be otherwise than for the advantage of art and the development of musical knowledge. Let London show that she is not too proud to take a hint from her Welsh kinsmen, and demonstrate to the world how she can, in one branch at least, learn a profitable lesson from the Eisteddfod.

PRODIGIES.

The dictionaries define the word prodigy to signify anything out of the course of nature, and adapted to excite wonder and astonishment. Thus extraordinary convulsions upon the universe are so regarded, and of old were held as portents, betokening the occurrence of events to come, which should "fright men from their proprieties." It is not so much with the disturbance of order in the course of the atmospheric phenomena that it is now proposed to deal, as with the aberrations of human intellect which occasionally disturb the conventionalities of existence. There may be some who will consider that as the word aberration is commonly used in a depreciative sense, that it is therefore wrongly applied in cases where the wanderings from the right path are made in the higher appearances of nature in which the cause is not immediately obvious. As it is proposed in this short paper to quote certain instances where nature seems to have strayed from her customary ways in the process of maturing intellect, or in the endowment of exceptional powers in certain human beings at a very early age, the term must stand, and no further apology will be made for it. With regard to the existence of the extraordinary in human matters, we have no right to consider that because the records are silent, the occurrence of prodigies is confined to modern times. For some reason or another the ancient Chroniclers are silent concerning the freaks of nature in the early development of intellectual powers. They probably considered them due to the interposition of evil spirits, fairies, and witches, and for dread of offending those authorities, suppressed all comment concerning them. Men seem to have shrunk from the record of exceptional gifts, until the time came when the dawning of learning had discovered the weakness of superstition.

The earliest notices of unusual capabilities in the human subject dwell upon the extraordinary brain powers displayed in occasional instances in the acquisition of languages, or the possession of premature powers in mathematics.

Ludovico Ferrara, who died in 1565, at the age of forty-five, was only nine when he discovered the biquadratic mode of analysis. King Edward VI., at the age of seven, was able to write in French and Latin, and before he was fifteen he had learned seven different languages. He understood logic and natural philosophy, and could sing and play well upon the lute.

Sir Philip Sidney also displayed much ability in early life, and Prince Henry, the son of James I., was unusually talented as a child. Perhaps the most remarkable infant was Christian Henry Heinksen, who was born at Lubeck, on February 6, 1721. The account of the precocity of his talents reads like a fable, yet every fact has been duly vouched for. So soon as he had passed his first year, he not only could speak fluently, but he learned and could recite the principal facts in the first five books of Moses, with a number of verses on the Creation. He knew all the history of the Bible, the history of the nations of antiquity, geography, anatomy, the use of maps, and nearly eight thousand Latin words, before he was three years old. The history of Denmark, and the genealogy of the reigning European Sovereigns he could repeat perfectly before he was four. In his fourth year he learned divinity with scriptural proofs, could say and sing two hundred hymns. He delivered twelve speeches before the Court of Denmark, and underwent a public examination in the presence of the Syndicate of the University. He spoke German, Latin, French, and Dutch, was fond of music, and was exceedingly good natured and well behaved, but of a most delicate constitution. He never ate any solid food, but subsisted entirely on milk. He was known as the learned child of Lubeck, and died June 27, 1724, aged four years, four months, twenty days, and twenty-one hours, after having displayed the most astonishing proofs of intellectual ability. What he would have been, had he reached maturity, can only be surmised. It is very rarely found that those who give early promise of great talents are destined to long life. John Philip Barretier, born at Schwabach in the same year as young Heinksen, was master of Greek, Hebrew, Latin, French, and German before he was nine years old. He was created Doctor of Philosophy at fifteen, and after dazzling his contemporaries with the splendour of his genius, he died in his nineteenth year. The story of Chatterton is familiar to most English readers, and need not be dwelt upon. Blaise Pascal, the Admirable Crichton, Robert Charles Dallas, who wrote poems and tragedies in his ninth year; Gassendi, astronomer and preacher at the tender age of seven; Zerah Colburn, the American calculating boy, and George Bidder, another mathematical genius, born in Devonshire, offer remarkable instances of the existence of high mathematical faculties in early youth. Fenelon and Bossuet were preachers at fifteen. Salathiel Pavy, one of the children of the Chapel Royal, St. James's, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, is a noteworthy example of early histrionic talent. He died in his thirteenth year, and Ben Jonson wrote his epitaph. At the time when many of Jonson's plays and those of Lilly's, with others, were enacted by the children of the Chapel Royal and of St. Paul's Cathedral, young Pavy was famous as an actor. Rare Ben wrote his epitaph, a portion of which tells us that:—

> Years he numbered scarce thirteen
> When fates turned cruel,
> Yet three filled zodiacs had he been
> The stage's jewel;
> And did act (what now we moan)
> Old men so duly,
> As, sooth, the Parcæ thought him one,
> He played so truly;
> So by error to his fate,
> They all consented.

Early development of talent seems to have been more noticed in the instances in which the drama, mathematics, and music are concerned, and there are many who have "set the world in amazement" while they were babes, who did not wholly redeem the promises of their childhood, especially in the subject of music.

Smeaton was an engineer while he was yet in petticoats; Christopher Smart wrote poems when he was four; John Harrison, the "Discoverer of the Longitude" as he is called, and the inventor of the chronometer, made improvements in an old watch, given to him as a plaything during an illness, in his sixth year, which led to his making a clock which would not be subject to irregularities occasioned by the difference of climates and the motion of a ship. Dr. Saunderson, whose lectures formed the basis of Harrison's studies, was also clever as a child, especially in music. When he became blind he abandoned the practice of music for that of mathematics, but his ear was always so sensitive and delicate that he could readily distinguish minute shades of difference in pitch. All these became famous as men.

The power of appreciating the subtleties of mathematics, and of enjoying the charms arising from music, is more general than would at first be supposed. It is true that very few of the famous musicians exhibited any strong bias on behalf of the science of numbers; but nearly every mathematician, whether famous or not, has some love for music. Many modern mathematicians are ardent votaries of the divine art, and some have excelled as composers and exponents. The story of Mozart covering the walls and floors of his father's rooms with figures tends to show that the mathematical and the musical faculties are nearly allied. Indeed, it is a question as to whether one is not absorbed as inclination or direction has tended to the preference of the other. Mozart is of course an instance where the talent of the child was as manly as his ability as a man. Some of his early compositions are as vigorous and as original as those produced at later dates. Except for the known fact that his experience grew with his years, and that his works bore evidence of the extent of his knowledge, there is little difference in them to the casual observer. The same powerful display of ideas, the same love of form, and the same appreciation of the beauty of melody distinguishes in a general way all his labours from the beginning to the end. The mere mechanical conquest of the difficulties of the key-board was less the point of wonder to his older contemporaries than the originality and power foreshadowed in his compositions. Other young musicians have exhibited especial facilities in the performance upon musical instruments, but few have ever attained to the eminence in composition which was prophesied for him when a child.

Mozart's pupil, Hummel, is said to have been a composer and to have played in public when he was only five years old. When he appeared in London in 1791, in his tenth year, it was said of his playing of a certain piece "That few professors would attempt to surmount the many extremely difficult and complicated passages which ran through the whole of this lesson, and which he executed, so far as could be judged by the testimony of the ear, without missing a single note." Hummel certainly justified his genius in his manhood. So also did Samuel Wesley, the brother of Charles—both remarkable for juvenile precocity. Others, like Dr. Crotch, the Earl of Mornington, John Davy, and a few more, settled down into respectable musicians, admired by their contemporaries, but known chiefly by name to the present generation. Whether there is justice in the present neglect of their works is a question it is not proposed to enter into now. The fact alone is stated. Many instances have been recorded of remarkable skill in children, and predictions as to their future have been uttered and never realised. What was the future of the boy Appleton, who in 1790 came from Birmingham to London, and astonished the connoisseurs before he was four years old by his performance of Handel and Corelli on the pianoforte and organ? Until he was three years of age the child showed an aversion to music. Suddenly he conquered that aversion, and in nine months learned to play so as to excite wonder at his powers, at so tender an age, among the experts. Is there anything known about him than the scanty story told in "Percy's Anecdotes"? Did he settle down as a teacher in a distant country town like Elizabeth Randles "the little Cambrian prodigy"? She was only twenty-nine when she died, having spent the last decade of her life as a teacher. She made her first public appearance before she was two years old, and by her precocious talent helped to support her blind father. He was organist at Wrexham, where she was born. Her biography occupies seven columns in the second volume of a "Dictionary of Musicians," 1827. Later biographical works are less liberal in their allowance of space concerning her.

The compositions of George Aspull, whom Rossini is said to have pronounced to be one of the most remarkable persons in Europe, scarcely justify contemporary opinion as to his powers. That he was a genius none can doubt, but his genius was stronger in the executive expression of his playing and singing than in the higher walks of composition. He was nineteen when he died in 1832, so it is possible that "death cut off the promise of his youth." Like young Josef Hofmann, whose powers set men wondering during the past season, young Aspull delighted those who saw and heard him by his appearance and behaviour, which did "not differ from those of other children of the same age"—this was in 1821—"but his manner, when performing upon the pianoforte, is that of a person deeply attentive."

It is not necessary to multiply instances of precocity or to repeat the well-known stories of the early exercise of the genius of Pelham Humfreys, Henry Purcell, Henry Bishop, and Mrs. Billington in the past, and of that of others still living, who have displayed their musical powers at a very early age, and continued to delight the world by the exercise of their gifts in after life. The events which have most lasting influence upon humanity are not always those of sudden growth, but rather those which take time in building. Nature may occasionally assert its privilege to depart from the ordinary paths, but art can only be fostered by continuous efforts in a common direction, so that ordinary minds may profit. Precocity of intellect or of special ability can only be advantageous to the generality when it appears in such forms as are exhibited by a Mozart or a Liszt. There the early genius of childhood was the foreshadowing of still greater excellence in manhood. Nature is not so chary of her special endowments in particular cases as to effect little else by them than the excitement of the world's wonder. But it is continuous perseverance that makes the great child a still greater man. The flattery of mankind will cause many clever people to be satisfied with the means that provoke the praise. If, by natural inclination, swerved by the carelessness of friends, no effort is made to develop the powers with developing years, failure is the result and disappointment the reward. Young people are apt to be daunted by the display of superior skill by those of their own age, and are tempted, in despair of ever equalling them, to abandon pursuits in which they might excel were they to persevere. Knowledge, like wealth, must be worked for. The wild sloe of the woods is a wild sloe for ever, but by careful and painful cultivation it is developed into one of the most sought after of many fruits. Genius rises unexpectedly and is able to command admiration. The world is not wanting in talented people, but it is only those who have learned to make the best use of their gifts who are able to enlist the sympathies of their fellow workers, and to enjoy the respect of those with whom they may be brought into contact.

Artistic prodigies may serve as artistic portents when they show the way to the attainment of higher efforts. In this light the occasional appearance of young people gifted with abilities beyond their years may point a moral which can be turned to advantage by those engaged in the slow struggle to attain eminence.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By Joseph Bennett.

No. XXIII.—FÉLICIEN DAVID.

Félicien David was born on April 13, 1810, at a village named Cadenet, Department of Vaucluse, France. He lost both parents at an early age. His mother died not long after giving birth to her fifth and most gifted child, and the father followed her some five years later. David père lived long enough, however, to perceive the bent of his little son's taste, and to encourage it in a material degree. Some writers have even seen, in the circumstances of his career, that which had a determining influence upon Félicien's music. Every amateur knows with what zest and with how much success the composer addressed himself to the picturing of tropical scenes and events. Nearly all his best works are connected with sunny lands, among them the "Désert," "Moïse au Sinai," "Eden," and "La Perle du Brésil." This is a fact which no biographer would overlook, and the writers in question have discovered a reason in another fact—the elder David lived for some years in St. Domingo, then a French colony, and became so much of a Creole that he "creolised" his children, imparting to them sympathies with the warmth, and colour, and passion of the tropics. The explanation is certainly ingenious, and there may be something in it; but no doubt whatever can exist as to the stimulus given by the example and precepts of the father to the musical instincts of the son.

The elder David was himself an amateur musician, and played passably well upon the violin. Often, when listening to the paternal exercise, at a very tender age, little Félicien imitated the tones of the instrument with such precision and fluency that the father would say, "Hearken to Félicien; he will be a good musician some day." At four years of age the boy could sing romances well enough to make him the wonder and admiration of all who heard him. He furnished the after-dinner entertainment on special occasions at his father's house, where, covered with kisses and stuffed with sweetmeats by delighted guests, he ran the double risk of having the simplicity of childish nature and the efficiency of youthful digestion seriously deranged. When the boy was seven years old chance—if there be such a thing—brought to Cadenet the first oboeist of the Paris Opéra, and advantage was taken of an opportunity to obtain an authoritative opinion upon Félicien's talents. M. Garnier met the lad, heard him sing, put him through various tests, and decided that his vocation was music to all intents and purposes. Garnier gave the little fellow's family most excellent advice, counselling them to obtain for him admission into a choir where his musical and general education would be conducted upon the best principles. Acting upon this, what remained of the David household removed to Aix, and, with little or no trouble, gained for Félicien entrance into the choir of St. Saviour's. At that time the boy was seven and a-half years old.

Whatever education the enfants de chœur of St. Saviour's may have received, it certainly was not comprehensive; being limited to reading, writing, the elements of Latin, and solfeggi. But this was enough for our little hero—more than enough, since he would have devoted all his time to music, the passion of which raged within him, excluding every other. He made rapid progress. In two years he could read whatever was put before him, but all the time he remained simply a vocalist. The reverend fathers who conducted the education of the choir had no notion of turning out musicians. It was enough for them that the boys sang well; when their voices broke they had to leave, and make up as best they could for deficiency in general knowledge. This partially accounts for the fact that David knew little or nothing of the pianoforte till he was twenty years old. One of his biographers—M. Azevado—tell us that this was rather a gain than a loss. He says: "Great talent as a pianist urges those who possess it to search after complications, and to the tolerance of a certain hardness of style. Mozart excepted—unique and immortal exception which proves the rule—one may say absolutely that this pianistic talent is incompatible with the art of writing well for voices. Moreover, it must have a bad influence upon orchestration. One is naturally tempted to employ the style, and produce the effects which are familiar, and it is often found that that style and those effects, when applied to other instruments, lead to deplorable results. If pianists of the first rank, such as Mozart and Beethoven, have been wonderful symphonists, it is because they have never regarded the pianoforte save across the orchestra." We leave M. Azevado's ingenious argument to the reader's appreciation, merely adding that, to the end of his days, Félicien David remained a poor executant upon the pianoforte. Under his hands, nevertheless, it charmed all hearers by effects which were those of a poet-musician if having little in common with the product of a virtuoso's talent.

Young David made a conspicuous figure among his comrades of the choir. He had a delightful voice, and managed it with so much taste and expression, that people came from far and near to hear him sing. It is even said that his performances were marked by a measure of sympathy rarely present at so early an age—that he anticipated, in this respect, an experience of life and human passions which, as a rule, only comes with maturity. His knowledge was limited, at this period, to the religious music of Haydn, Mozart, and Cherubini, but he found enough stimulus to the artistic fire burning within, and sought with ardent effort to follow in the footsteps of those masters. Although he had not received a single lesson in harmony, Félicien wrote motetts, hymns, &c., in which, it is said, good judges have discerned real merit and abundant promise. A string quartet, composed at the age of thirteen, still exists in the library of the choir at Aix.

In course of time David's beautiful treble voice failed him, and his place at St. Saviour's knew him no more. But the clergy did not throw him aside as of no further concern to them. They placed him in the Jesuits' College of their city, where, without cost to his family, he completed his general studies. The choice of institution was specially happy. They made good music at the College, and gathered the materials from any and every source, sacred or profane. It was nothing to the reverend fathers that certain airs belonged to opera, and were allied to sometimes questionable words and situations. In short, they believed with Rowland Hill, that the devil had no exclusive right to pretty tunes. Hence it was that their new student made acquaintance for the first time with the finest melodies of secular art. Nor was this all of immediate advantage. David had taught himself the violin in such fashion that he was quickly promoted, by the college authorities, to the rank of chef d'attaque, and second chef in the orchestra of the institution. Thus favourably situated, it might have been supposed that he would have obtained from the fathers every facility for acquiring knowledge and experience. But he was not even free of the College répertoire. The reverend personages in power were jealous on the question of their musical possessions, and would allow nobody to approach them. Under these circumstances David tried to evade rule by stratagem, and partially succeeded, thanks to a memory of rare retentiveness. Getting the violin part by heart, he would listen carefully to the other instruments, and, when the exercise was over, make haste to commit to paper all that he had carried away. He thus secured copies, more or less complete, of many works not otherwise obtainable; with these feeding an insatiable appetite for study and self-improvement.

In respect of other studies, young David was not quite so happy. It is easy to imagine him grudging every minute given to the "humanities" and general knowledge, making little progress with them, and incurring the displeasure of his superiors. All this duly came to pass. The lad existed only for music, and his real professors, as has been well said, were not the reverend fathers but Mozart, Cherubini, and others of the same illustrious company. There is reason to believe that, while David's superiors regretted his inattention to all but one subject—and punished it sometimes by taking away his ruled paper and music books—they saw clearly enough that the delinquent was in a fair way to shed glory upon their College. Hence their abstention from severe measures, which, however well intentioned, might have done infinite harm to a precious charge. It must not be supposed, however, that David was wholly neglectful of duty apart from music. It is on record that he finished the rhetoric course in four years. Not his own will, nor that of his superiors, severed him finally from the College. In 1828 the Government of France closed every Jesuitical institution throughout the realm. That at Aix was shut up with the rest, and its pupils scattered. Félicien David was then eighteen years old.

The young man now found himself in an unenviable position. He had no friends and no resources, his musical attainments, such as they were, could do little for him of a satisfactory nature without more regular training and larger experience, and he stood apparently helpless and alone. In this position the youth had sense enough to see that he must take whatever in the way of musical occupation he could get. It was not for him to choose, but to be thankful for the smallest mercy. In this spirit he went to the little theatre of Aix, where they played vaudevilles, and offered himself as a violinist. The work was of the humblest and the pay matched it, but it meant bread and our hero was under the supreme necessity of living. Imagine, therefore, the joy with which he found his offer accepted. But no one could have been less fit for the post. Brought up in choir and college, and familiar with sacred music only, he was as ignorant of the vaudeville as of life and the world. His rawness made him, of course, the butt of countless practical jokes, and he felt himself degraded by the task of accompanying actors destitute of every musical qualification, and who took all manner of liberties which far better artists than themselves were bound to endure. David's whole soul revolted against the position wherein he found himself, but he stuck to it bravely. It was at any rate a living, though a poor one, and it gave opportunity for gaining experience such as might prove of value later on. After six months of vaudeville work at Aix, an incident took place which threw our young musician again upon the world. It appears that one of the actors, being hissed by his audience for a fault, pointed significantly to David as the real offender. Upon this the public turned their wrath in the direction of the innocent violinist, who, bursting into tears, left the theatre never to return.

A second time thrown on the world, and now not knowing what to do, or where to go, as a musician, David sought and obtained a post as junior clerk in the office of M. Pellegrin, an advocate practising at Aix. The poor fellow must have been very "hard up" before thus abandoning, even for a time, his beloved art, and, naturally, he thought much less of his quill-driving labours than was altogether acceptable to his new master. M. Pellegrin, however, seems to have been a good sort of man, and, possibly taking in all the circumstances of his junior clerk, was pleased to overlook much that otherwise would have brought about unpleasant correction or dismissal. While matters were in this state the post of music-master at the cathedral fell vacant, and David, without stopping to review his qualifications for such a post, at once became a candidate, in opposition to M. Sylvestre, a musician of name and standing, who came armed with incontestible ability and a host of powerful recommendations. In ordinary course, David would have had no chance against so formidable a rival, but this M. Sylvestre was no ordinary man. On ascertaining the forlorn position of the advocate's clerk, and his strong musical tendencies, he begged to retire in his favour. Sylvestre's noteworthy and most generous act had the instant result of putting David at the head of the music in the church where he sang as a boy, and of giving to the Aix cathedral a capellmeister who had never received a lesson in harmony or counterpoint.

At last the young musician was happy. The means of living were assured by gratuitous board and lodging and a salary of 800 francs. But better than this was the duty of composing works for performance in the church—a duty upon which David entered with all the energy and devotedness of a man who sees himself for the first time in a position indicated by nature and his own prepossessions. For every fête, or other special occasion, the new chapel-master was ready with a freshly-composed motett or hymn, accompanied, now by an organ only, now by an orchestra. Some of these pieces were published at a later period, after proper revision, and proved to the world what exalted feeling and true expression, and what prescience of subtleties into which he had never been initiated the young untutored man possessed.

We now come to an event which exercised an immense influence upon David's career, and marked the beginning of a change that ended in the transference of his energies and talent from sacred music to profane. One evening three of his friends took it into their heads to go and sing under his windows a piece by M. Roux Martin, entitled "Tendre fruit des pleurs de l'Aurore." At its conclusion David begged them to repeat it, and the next morning showed them the entire composition written out from memory. Thus came a first impulse towards the creation of similar things, and, in about a month, David had completed fifteen serenades for three or four voices. Some of these got abroad in the old city, which now was quite awake to the fact that a remarkable man had appeared. So far, well; but the admiration of Aix could not satisfy an ambition which grew with every success, nor could it remove from David's mind a strong conviction of the truth that he had very much to learn before qualifying himself for victory on a larger field. Clearly he must go to Paris. That was the place to learn, to achieve, and to enjoy. But a familiar stood between the young man and the fascinating city. David had no money, either for travel or support at the end of the journey. What was to be done? Our hero considered the question, and, as a forlorn hope, made up his mind to borrow, if he could, from a wealthy uncle, known to be a most unfavourable subject for such an application. Hard alike to himself and others, knowing nothing about art or the exigencies of artists, treating as ridiculous the notion that making notes on music-paper could bring in money, and destitute of the faintest sympathy with aspirations after fame, this uncle of David's was about the last man likely to extend a helping hand. Many persons of influence did what they could in the way of intercession, but the man was as hard as a stone, and "No" his only reply. It chanced, however, that on one occasion he heard an "O Salutaris" written by his nephew for three voices, a quartet accompaniment and violin solo. The work had a great success, the composer was embraced with effusion, and even the uncle felt that he must do something in recognition. But his avaricious nature stopped at fifty francs a month. He would give his relative so much, and so much Félicien was glad to get. It would, at any rate, keep him from starvation in Paris. With the light heart of twenty years, therefore, he made his arrangements, bade his family and friends farewell, and started for the great city and the unknown future—made roseate by hope—which it had in store.

On reaching Paris David wasted no time in sight-seeing. The attractions so dear to provincials were none at all to him. He wanted admission into the Conservatoire, and to the Conservatoire he went straight away, taking with him some of his compositions. Cherubini saw the young man himself, and M. Azevado gives an account of the interview worth translating:—

"Enter the candidate, naïf and timid, who, for the first time in his life, found himself face to face with one of the venerated masters whose works had been his models, and he the scholastic and irritable Florentine, who had found thousands of faults in Spontini's 'Vestale.' Every time that Cherubini discovered an error of counterpoint in the instinctive essays of the young man—and assuredly there were many to find—he beat with his foot, made frightful grimaces, and cried, in that voice, strident, dry, sharp, which no one who heard it ever forgot,

'You know nothing! You make only mistakes! This is not music. Your master was a stupid ass!' In vain the unfortunate David declared that he never had a master, and that he had come to the Conservatoire to obtain what he wanted. Cherubini, without listening, continued his chase after faults, his foot-beatings, his grimaces, and his amiable remarks, till at length the young man gave way to despair and wept. Then, by one of those sudden transformations so frequent with Cherubini, who had a good heart and a just nature under repelling forms, the scene changed its aspect. 'Don't be down-hearted,' said he to Félicien David; 'your "Beatus Vir" is not bad. I will put you into a class for counterpoint.' 'But, Monsieur,' answered David, very little reassured, 'since I know nothing, why is it that I begin with counterpoint?' 'You are quite right,' said the master, and he followed up his words by handing Félicien over to Millaud for harmony."

David now entered upon serious work in the only spirit that can win success. He laboured strenuously and continually, and was led by very ardour to take lessons from Reber on another system than that taught by Millaud. Clashing, however, did not lead to confusion. Taking what was excellent in both methods, David made for himself a third which was better than either. The pianoforte also entered into the round of his studies, and only the fact of age in excess of the limit laid down prevented him from competing for admission to the Conservatoire class with a sonata of his own writing. His study of the instrument was as persevering as his temperament and musical passion could make it, and he was making rapid progress all round, when news arrived that the uncle had stopped his miserable grant of fifty francs a month. Remonstrances and prayers had no effect upon the determination of this provincial miser, and once more poor David found himself without resources. How he bore up against so great a disaster, and by what means he contrived to live on in Paris, we must take another opportunity of showing.

(To be continued.)

A FORGOTTEN BOOK.

III.

(Concluded from page 469.)

APROPOS of the season of 1824, Lord Mount-Edgcumbe mentions the appearance of Madame Colbran Rossini in her husband's opera of "Zelmira," "containing, as I was told, some of Rossini's noisiest pieces, of which I subsequently heard one at a concert: it was stunning." We need hardly explain that the "old amateur" does not employ this adjective in its modern slang acceptation. He adds that Rossini had to pay forfeit for not composing an opera he was engaged to write for the theatre, so much absorbed was he "in pleasures and convivial meetings." Catalani acted five or six times this season in her favourite comic opera of "Il Fanatico per la Musica," in which she introduced some new song every night. Ronzi continued to be a favourite, but was soon eclipsed by Pasta, who, after attracting little notice as "second woman" with Camporese, had now risen to the top of her profession. The season of 1825 opened inauspiciously, owing to a panic caused by the reported insecurity of the Opera House. After a temporary sojourn at the New Theatre Royal, Haymarket, the Opera returned to its regular domicile. Pasta paid these shores but a flying visit; Ronzi fell ill, lost her voice, and returned to Italy; Vestris seceded to the English stage; Caradori, an excellent seconda donna, was for the time being hors de combat, so the gap was filled by a débutante, a mere girl, the daughter of the tenor Garcia, known afterward by her married name of Malibran as one of the most gifted and fascinating singers of the century. "Her extreme youth [she was only seventeen at the time], her prettiness, her pleasing voice and sprightly easy action as Rosina in the 'Barbiere,' in which part she made her début, gained her general favour." In the following year she went to America with her father, and when she next returned to England had fully verified Velluti's prediction that she would rise to the front rank of her profession. For this year was remarkable, as we have already mentioned, for the arrival after the lapse of some twenty-five years of Velluti, the last male soprano who ever trod the boards in opera in this country. "Unusual precautions," says Lord Mount-Edgcumbe, "were deemed necessary to secure a somewhat partial audience, and prevent his being driven from the stage on his very first entry upon it." This we may remark parenthetically is denied by Ebers in his "Seven years of the King's Theatre," p. 267, though certainly more credit attaches to the testimony of Lord Mount-Edgcumbe. Velluti made his début in "Il Crociato in Egitto," an opera "by a German composer named Meyerbeer, till then totally unknown in this country. The music was quite of the new school, but not copied from its founder, Rossini; it was original, odd, flighty, and might even be termed fantastic, but at times beautiful." The season of 1826 began with the same opera company. Caradori was "unaccountably removed" to make room for a mediocre singer, Bonini, a pupil of Velluti's. Velluti himself, already declining in popularity, brought out for his benefit an early work by Rossini "Aureliano in Palmira," in Lord Mount-Edgcumbe's opinion one of the best of that master, "as he had not yet in his efforts at originality fallen into that wild unnatural style which characterises so many of his works. There are in it many beautiful melodies and but little of the extravagant ornament and cramped passages he subsequently delighted to introduce." Pasta returned, but Velluti would never appear with her, preferring Bonini, trained in his own method, to a singer who would have overpowered him by the strength and volume of her voice. The author gives a full account of Pasta in her famous rôle of Medea, from which it appears that he considers a great deal of her genius consisted in the art of taking pains. "She is really a first-rate performer, both as singer and actress, and that by mere dint of talent without any very pre-eminent natural qualifications; for though a pretty woman, her figure is short and not graceful, and her voice, though powerful and extensive, is not of the very finest quality, not free from defects." Her performance in "Medea" both surprised and delighted Lord Mount-Edgcumbe: "None since Banti's had equalled it, and perhaps she even excelled her great predecessor as an actress; though in quality of voice she infinitely falls short of her." He particularly mentions Pasta's singing of "Di tanti palpiti" as surpassing that of all her rivals. She took it much more slowly, so "doing away with its country-dance like character"; and he adds in a note that this altered tempo was more proper, "as the motivo is taken from a Latin Litany, which Rossini has not scrupled to adopt as his own. His other favourite cavatina 'Di piacer mi balza il core' is a wild air sung by the Sicilian peasants; so much for the originality of his two most popular songs."

The events of the season of 1827, so far as the prime donne are concerned, are neatly summed up in a quatrain which occurs in one of Praed's most charming pieces, his "Good-night to the Season," his estimate exactly tallying with that of Lord Mount-Edgcumbe when he sings—

> Good-night to the season!—the Toso,
> So very majestic and tall;
> Miss Ayton, whose singing was so-so,
> And Pasta divinest of all.

Praed's vers de société, we may incidentally remark, contain a good many allusions to the chief stars in the musical firmament. Another favourite poem, "My Partner," must have been written about this time, for in it the speaker describes how he "hoped Ronzi would come back again." We trust we may be readily pardoned for this passing allusion to a writer the tunefulness of whose verse must always endear him to musicians. As one of his biographers puts it, "his rhymes ring truly, like a chime of bells." Lord Mount-Edgcumbe speaks of Toso as a brilliantly handsome girl, and if Brambilla, another débutante with a fine contralto, was as attractive looking as the engraving of her in Ebers' "Seven years of the King's Theatre," the deaf and the blind must have been equally charmed this season. There is a long digression at this point in these "Reminiscences" on the subject of the mismanagement of the King's Theatre. The season was now divided into portions, and singers engaged accordingly, some for three months, some for less, with the result that the public might be "deprived of their greatest favourites and of the most admired opera in the height of their popularity, and others substituted not so well approved." He notes that Pasta got for three months double the amount that Banti ever received for a whole season, and after pointing out the obvious advantages, apart from economy, attaching to the older system of small but efficient and continuous companies, proceeds to give, in the form of a retrospect, a great deal of interesting information relating to the gradual rise in the subscriptions to the opera and the alteration in the character of the audience frequenting the various parts of the house. The whole passage is a locus classicus in its way and may be thus briefly summarised: In the old days, 1770-1790, the price of a subscription to a box for fifty representations was twenty guineas. This was a saving of five guineas to serial subscribers, admission to the pit being half-a-guinea, and full dress de rigueur in both. The boxes were fewer, more commodious, and, as well as the pit, filled with the "best classes of society." All these frequented the coffee-room at the end of the performance. Over the front box was the five shilling gallery for respectable folk not in full dress, and over that again the three shilling gallery. The rise in price took place in Catalani's second year, when the price of a whole box of six seats was raised from 180 to 300 guineas for sixty performances. Hinc illæ lacrimæ. Persons of moderate income could no longer afford the luxury. Subscriptions were now halved and sub-divided, few persons having the sole ownership of a box. Boxes came to be let for the night, and single tickets sold when not used by the proprietor. A regular system of speculating in boxes thus arose, those not taken for the season being often put up to auction; while, on the other hand, the value of pit tickets was unduly depreciated. The system of giving free passes or even boxes to create the appearance of a good house dates from this epoch. "The pit has long ceased to be the resort of ladies of fashion." He adds, however, that it has been "improved since, by parting off the front rows into single seats, called stalls, which may be had for the night, or for a longer period." The abuses which Lord Mount-Edgcumbe exposes, and for which he suggests judicious remedies, have lasted almost without intermission to our own days. Wherever improvement has been perceptible it has been by yielding to that democratic spirit by which, in the sphere of creation, nearly all the best modern work has been animated; but we cannot share Lord Mount Edgcumbe's regret that the pit should have ceased to be the resort of ladies of fashion, holding as we do that precisely in the pit and gallery are to be found that section of musicians with whom rests the future of English music.

The season of 1827 ended disastrously, but with 1828 an improvement was perceptible. There was a good company with "Pasta permanently at its head," and in contrast with the "labour in vain of the ballet so sadly deficient in stars," lamented by Praed in his stanzas on the preceding season, there were a good set of dancers, and, most important of all, the luckless Ebers was replaced by a manager "much more likely to conduct the concern with judgment and, consequently, with success." Sontag, preceded by extravagant eulogium, made her début with immense success in the "Barbiere." Lord Mount-Edgcumbe pronounces her voice to have been of "great extent, brilliant clearness, and correct intonation," but wanting in feeling and expression. It was to her credit, however, that though unsurpassed in the execution of elaborate fioriture, she was eminently moderate in the display of such vocal ornamentation. This season was remarkable for the fact that three of the chief singers were Germans—Sontag, Caradori (née Munck), and Madame Schutz, a good mezzo-soprano. The operatic novelties, none of which were very successful, were only three in number—Meyerbeer's "Margherita di Anjou," "La Rosa Bianca e la Rosa Rossa," by Mayer, and Bellini's "Norma," all nominally connected with English history or scenery. What a strange circumstance it is that it should be left for foreign composers to choose subjects from English history, while native writers sedulously avoid them! Dr. Stanford's "Canterbury Pilgrims" furnishes an exception to a rule, which we cannot help thinking more honoured in the breach than in the observance, particularly when there is now such a genuine demand for operas in the vernacular. Lord Mount-Edgcumbe winds up this section by observing that there was never within his memory so large a number of eminent singers assembled at once in England. Besides those engaged at the opera, there were Velluti, Ronzi and her husband, De Begnis, Toso, and other good concert singers. Futhermore, Catalani was shortly expected, being engaged for the triennial festival at York. "The rage for music," he goes on, "is revived throughout all classes, and certainly the taste of the public is much improved, good operas by Mozart, Salieri, Weber, and other excellent masters having been performed in English with great success."

The supplement which follows is prefaced by a brief statement as to the nature of these final additions which, with the exception of a detailed account of the Festival held in Westminster Abbey in 1834, were founded more on the reports of others than on the writer's own observations. He only went to the Italian opera twice in the years 1829-1834. Still, he heard some of the chief singers at private concerts, and in many ways kept in touch with the musical world. Of Malibran, who replaced Pasta in the year 1829, he relates the following agreeable anecdote. After stating that she excelled in the comic opera he adds that she "actually condescended" to take the third and least important part in Cimarosa's "Matrimonio Segreto." "From an insignificant character she raised it to a prominent one, and very greatly added to the effect of that excellent opera, which was then performed admirably throughout." "Semiramide," in which the writer heard Malibran, bored him by its length, and as though it was not enough, it was followed by one act of the "Barbiere," in which Sontag appeared and sang Rode's "Variations" with astonishing neatness and accuracy. It is satisfactory to find in Lord Mount-Edgcumbe a vigorous opponent of the practice of giving these "strange medley performances." This season was noteworthy as that in which Lablache appeared for the first time before an English audience. "His voice," says Lord Mount-Edgcumbe, "was not only of deeper compass than almost any ever heard, but when he chose, absolutely stentorian, and he was also gigantic in person." On the other hand, his dramatic talent was considerable, a rich vein of humour rendering him invaluable in comic parts. For several seasons Pasta and Malibran shared the honours, no other prima donna of note appearing, while of the tenors, Rubini was facile princeps, the performance of Bellini's "Sonnambula," in which both he and Pasta sang and acted to perfection, being especially memorable in the annals of the opera. The season of 1832, unsuccessful so far as the achievements of the Italian opera were concerned, was remarkable for the success which attended the visit of a German company, which gave several operas of the best composers in that language. The first produced was "Der Freischütz," already a great favourite; but the success of the season was "Fidelio," with Madame Schroeder-Devrient, "one of the most striking and effective performers I ever saw," in the title rôle. "The whole opera was throughout well sung and acted, . . . but it was in the choruses, especially, that the excellence of the German singers was most displayed. These were performed in a manner quite new to an English audience." He adds that the Prisoners' chorus was repeated every night, and assigns as the cause of this greater excellence "the very superior knowledge of music possessed by the Germans, who study it more scientifically than any other nation." Next year he saw the "Zauberflöte" and Weber's "Euryanthe," in which latter Devrient shone. In the following season, however, she would not revisit England, and the German opera collapsed. A French company, headed by Madame Damoreau, had also come over in 1832, in order to perform Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable," which the "old amateur" denounces with amusing vigour as a type of the immorality and impropriety of the French stage. "I saw it acted at Covent Garden, and never did I see a more disagreeable or disgusting performance; the sight of the resurrection of a whole convent of nuns, who rise from their graves and begin dancing like so many bacchantes, is revolting; and a sacred service in church accompanied by an organ on the stage not very decorous. Neither does the music of Meyerbeer compensate for a fable which is a tissue of nonsense and improbability." Tamburini appeared for the first time in England at the close of this season, but his efforts, and even those of Malibran, came too late to repair the losses of the manager, who became bankrupt, the singers not even receiving their salaries. The season of 1834, which began unfortunately, was redeemed from failure by the advent of Giulietta Grisi, who at once came to the front, "combining every requisite for the situation. . . . She is an excellent singer and excellent actress, in short, is described to be as nearly perfect as possible, and is almost a greater favourite than even Pasta or Malibran." The male singers were unusually strong also, comprising Rubini, Tamburini, Zuchelli, Curioni, and a good Russian tenor named Ivanhoff. Only one novelty was produced, Rossini's "Siege of Corinth," of which Lord Mount-Edgcumbe remarks that "it has in it but little originality, though a great deal of noise; a siege and Turkish music giving ample scope for the brass instruments." Of the new Italian operatic composers he speaks slightingly, with the exception of Bellini. All the rest either feebly imitated Rossini or outdid him in extravagance. "The modern German composers," he continues, "are decidedly better than the Italians, and even the French have latterly produced works which may claim precedence over them."

At this point the record of the writer's experiences as an opera-goer is brought to a close, the remainder of his pages being devoted to a very full account of the Musical Festival in Westminster Abbey in 1834, as compared with those given half-a-century earlier. The original festivals were held annually from 1784 to 1787, then interrupted by the King's illness, and resumed in 1790, that of 1791 being the last. Lord Mount-Edgcumbe readily admits the improvement in the instrumental department, and the high standard of merit maintained by the choruses, but declares that there "are not now to be found singers of such excellence as then existed, while of the most eminent of the present day few are now in England. . . ." "The good singers for solo parts were few in number, not one transcendently excellent, and those whom it was possible to collect were not employed as much or as advantageously as they might have been." The series consisted of four Concerts, the supreme direction resting with Sir George Smart. Two-thirds of the Abbey was filled with holders of tickets at two guineas, and the seats for the rehearsals fetched frequently more than double the regular price of half-a-guinea. "The arrangement was incomparable; there was neither hurry, crowd, nor confusion." On the occasion of the former performances in 1784 and the following years, the ladies all wore full dress: "now the permission, or rather the direction, to wear morning costume detracted much from the grandeur of the spectacle," although the King, his suite, and the directors were all dressed in splendid uniforms. "The female singers, following the example of the audience, appeared in dishabille (sic), hardly respectful in presence of their Majesties." The disposition of the performers, again, seems not to have been so judiciously planned as on former occasions, and Lord Mount-Edgcumbe cannot altogether acquiesce in the adoption of the Continental practice of substituting a conductor with a bâton for a leader. He could not even see the leader: "Sir George Smart alone was conspicuous, and he was rendered more so by an opening left in the centre of the front seat, for no imaginable reason but to exhibit the conductor's back to all the auditors. . . . In that central point formerly sat Madame Mara; the gap recalled her to the minds of those who remembered her there, and seemed to be left vacant because nobody was worthy to fill her seat." Lord Mount-Edgcumbe entirely endorses Dr. Burney's account of the overpowering effect produced by the earlier performances on many auditors, and compares Mara's power over the sensibility of the audience to that of Mrs. Siddons. "In the present instance," on the other hand, "I am sorry to observe that I neither witnessed nor experienced any similar feelings. I saw no tears, no faintings; nor did that general thrill pervade the hearers which then was manifested by signs so unequivocal. Admiration was expressed with calmness and moderation, without excitement, without emotion." It is only fair to urge in explanation of this more tranquil demeanour on the part of the audience that while it is undoubtedly true that as people become more highly civilised they learn to keep their feelings more under control—particularly in a race like ours, where reserve has always been considered to constitute an integral part of good breeding—it should also be borne in mind that the thoughts which lie too deep for tears are precisely those which are evoked by listening to music. The works performed at this Festival were chiefly those of Handel. Selections from Mozart, Haydn, and Beethoven were also given, but while a great admirer of the two former, he gives Handel the preference over them all "on such an occasion and in such a place." As to Beethoven, he frankly confesses that he is but slightly acquainted with his works. The exertions of the soloists in the main failed to please him, the allotment of parts being also open to grave question. The directors were met by a serious obstacle in the lack of a "prima donna assoluta." Neither Malibran nor Pasta were available, and Catalani had retired. Decidedly the most prominent amongst the singers, in the author's opinion, was Braham, who, though advanced in years, was in the full possession of his powers, and filled the Abbey with ease, while no fault could be found with the taste and judgment of his performance. Amongst the women, he considers Caradori to have been incontestably the best. "She sang with her usual excellence, . . . was well heard . . . and gave universal satisfaction, but was employed much too little, having only three songs allotted to her in the course of all the concerts." Second in order of merit he places Miss Stephens, who left her retirement for the occasion. Her voice had lost in volume and flexibility, but still gave pleasure in songs of moderate compass and easy execution. Third came Madame Stockhausen, a very good singer and musician, though "hardly strong enough for the higher style of music." Of the rest, Mrs. Knyvett, a very good second, was alone deemed by him worthy of mention, though no less than fifteen other principal female vocalists were engaged. Three or four belonged to the playhouses, the majority of the rest being pupils of the new Academy of Music, amongst whom Miss Clara Novello, "a very young girl with a clear, good voice," was by far the best. Amongst the men there were some passés favourites, like Vaughan and Bellamy, while of the less known performers, Sapio, a fine tenor, Seguin and Phillips, both good basses, alone deserved notice, and might well have had more allotted them. "Numerically no concert certainly was ever so well provided with vocalists," but, as he insists, numbers do not make amends for want of excellence. Of principals there were forty, exclusive of five opera singers—Grisi, Rubini, Ivanhoff, Zuchelli, and Tamburini. Of the latter Tamburini alone did well. Grisi broke down at rehearsal—how unlike, he adds, the former generation of Italians, who sang Handel to perfection! "So entirely does the bad modern opera music unfit singers for everything that is good." The first day's performance opened with the Coronation Anthem "Zadok the Priest," and was followed by Haydn's "Creation," which, though singling out some numbers for high praise, he pronounces to be in parts very languid and insipid. "With verdure clad," as sung by Caradori, was quite the feature of the concert, and "The heavens are telling" produced a great impression. The third part of the day's performance was a selection from "Samson," in which Braham distinguished himself. The second day opened with an extremely miscellaneous selection, consisting of fragments from various works by Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven. Against this "mangling system" Lord Mount-Edgcumbe inveighs with just severity, saying that it is impossible to conceive a greater patchwork than the first part of this Concert. The other two parts consisted wholly of Handel's "Israel in Egypt," with a good deal of interpolation in the words and music, some of the latter not even being written by Handel. The third day began with Haydn's "Hymn to the Emperor," "a soft and pleasing melody," the whole of the rest of this part being occupied by Handel's "Judas Maccabæus." In connection with the cello accompaniment, played by Lindley to the air "O Liberty," Lord Mount-Edgcumbe offers some interesting and pertinent remarks on the abuse of cadenzas ad libitum. "It was to be wished that he (Lindley) had not finished his symphony with so long a cadence, not quite in accordance with the air. I would here, by the way, remark that not only instrumental, but vocal performers also are much too apt to indulge in the bad habit of tediously spinning out their cadences to an unreasonable length. In the latter, especially, there cannot be a greater fault. When cadenzas ad libitum invariably closed every song, it was a positive rule to confine them, shake included, to one breath. A cadence a due fiati was by the Italians considered an undisputed mark of a bad singer. I counted no less than four respirations in one cadence, the deepest taken just before the shake, disjoining it from the passage of which it is the natural and expected close. The effect of this is indescribably bad. To compress these extemporaneous effusions into a short compass and so to sustain and husband the breath as to effect it, requires more skill than all the lengthened desultory wanderings which are now sometimes heard." The second part of the concert was miscellaneous, beginning with a Motett of Mozart's "in that sort of Latin verse in doggerel rhyme common in Roman Catholic services, but very offensive to English and classical ears." Lord Mount-Edgcumbe comments on the use made of two boy choristers in Pergolesi's "Gloria in excelsis" in the following terms, which are well worth quoting: "Boys can never sing really well; and though their clear bell-like tones have often a charming effect in the cathedral services, they are not sufficiently formed to be brought forward as principals on an occasion like this. Such exhibitions are like schoolboys reciting their lessons in public, a thing not to be done except before select and partial audiences." Braham's performance of "Deeper and deeper still" and "Waft her, angels," he pronounces to have been perfect, and, perhaps, the best performance of the Festival. Then followed a double chorus by Leo, and airs from two Litanies by Mozart, the Latinity of which was a sore trial to Lord Mount-Edgcumbe. Of the last piece, he remarks, that the Latin, crabbed as it was, admitted of a very simple rendering—Transubstantiation. The remainder of this part was taken up by a selection from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," "parts of which were very beautiful." The third part consisted of Anthems by Purcell and Pergolesi, airs from Handel's "Solomon" and "Joshua," a Sestet from Haydn's first Service, in which Clara Novello distinguished herself, and a Quartet by Himmel, led by Tamburini, in which he was so prominent that it practically resolved itself into a solo. The fourth and last concert consisted solely of "The Messiah," the error complained of before—the little use made of the best singers—being more conspicuous on this than on any of the preceding days. Braham, Caradori, and Miss Stephens had only one air apiece, while the bass songs were divided amongst three singers, Seguin, the best, getting none. It is curious to us to be told that owing to the lack of a good counter-tenor, "He was despised" was, faute de mieux, assigned to a female contralto, who also gave "He shall feed His flock." Lord Mount-Edgcumbe adds that "on one of the former occasions it was executed to perfection by Rubinelli." Summing up his judgments in the light of his recollections of the earlier festivals, he says that though the instrumental part now was nearly as good as it could be, the choral resources available appeared to him less strong; while in the department of principal vocalists there certainly was no comparison. The last few pages are occupied by some curious criticisms and forecasts. He apprehends that Handel's popularity has already gone out of fashion, though he cannot himself acquiesce in such a verdict. Of the new works introduced in deference to the demand for novelty, "much was dull, much insipid. . . . If even Haydn's chef-d'œuvre, the 'Creation,' which is so beautiful in many of its parts, failed of making an impression, nothing else could." He would have preferred the admixture of old English church music as better suited to the style of Handel. And then, he adds, all the music would have been Protestant. For if it were objected that this latitude was due to the inability of Italian performers to sing in English, this excuse was overborne by the fact that the former generation of Italian singers in many cases spoke English like natives, and could all sing it creditably. And so, after a few other criticisms, the "old amateur" bids his readers a kindly farewell, remarking that in his case first impressions have been the most lasting and indelible.

Where a writer expresses himself with such engaging sincerity as the author of these "Reminiscences," it is obviously unfair to point out in what respects his predictions have been falsified or his verdicts reversed. Lord Mount-Edgcumbe would doubtless be glad to find that his apprehensions as to the hold of Handel upon the affection of the English people have proved unfounded. On the other hand, the popularity of Rossini, though undoubtedly impaired, has stood the test of time more successfully than Lord Mount-Edgcumbe anticipated. Our aim in stringing together such extracts as seemed most likely to interest our readers has been to avoid gratuitous comment, and to let the author speak for himself as much as possible. When a writer approaches his subject with such impartiality, such long experience, and such enthusiasm as the "old amateur," the result can hardly fail to be attractive to those who are interested in the history of musical criticism. A great many of his strictures on the license adopted by executants are just as pointed and appropriate now as when they were penned more than half-a-century back. Even where we differ from him toto cœlo it is impossible to help admiring his loyalty to the old Italian opera and standards of art long since grown obsolete. A cultivated, if not a profound, musician, endowed with a very keen appreciation for purity of style, and a corresponding distaste for meretricious ornament, Lord Mount-Edgcumbe is able to read the present generation many wholesome lessons. Exempt from the influences which too often assail and bias the judgment of professional musicians, he viewed the musical events of his time from the disinterested standpoint of an amateur—using that term in its fullest and most honourable acceptation—and has left in the pages summarised in these columns a record of those events, which for entertainment and instructiveness is not to be surpassed by any work of the same nature and compass in the department of English musical literature.

MUSICAL PORTRAITS.

III.—THE PRIMA DONNA.

In giving this sketch of the famous singer, Madame Corsetti, I am beset with misgivings, lest any of my readers should believe the portrait to be intended for some other person. Certainly the lives of eminent vocalists are curiously alike, but I take this opportunity of declaring emphatically that these "Musical Portraits" are only intended to apply to the persons therein named. People seem to think that I am always satirising something or somebody. It is really most annoying.

We have all read in the papers and musical dictionaries, over and over again, the story of Madame Corsetti's early life. How, when she was a little Italian peasant girl, her parents used to send her into the streets to sing; how Mr. X——, the great impresario, happened to be wandering disconsolately through the little village of Pearsoapoli, after having vainly scoured Italy for a new "star." He heard this girl singing in the street, and stopped to wash her—to watch her, I mean. Struck by her marvellous talent he rescued her from her wretched condition, put her for three years at Milan under the best of masters, Signor Z——, and having thus kept and educated her at his own expense, was repaid by giving to the world one of the greatest singers it has ever known. Unfortunately for this admirable specimen of puffery, there is not a word of truth in it. In the first place, Madame Corsetti is not an Italian at all. She is an American by birth, and her name was Miss Lacey. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tite Lacey, were shrewd, hardheaded people, who kept a boarding house in Chicago, and finding that their daughter had a good voice, they invested their savings in her purely as a business speculation. They sent her to Italy at the age of seventeen to study, and the girl, a chip of the old block, made the best use of her time and talents. Her début took place some five years later, at Brescia; I could give all the details, but, as they are not very edifying, and I should probably not be believed, I refrain. Suffice it to say that the young artist suffered sad humiliations, to use a mild term, and the affair cost her parents some £200. The investment, however, proved a sound one. Miss Lacey, or rather Mdlle. Corsetti, obtained at once small paying engagements and rapidly rose to fame. A year later, she came out at the Scala. In the first act the audience yelled, hooted, and assailed her with fearful abuse. In the second, could they have reached the stage they would have torn her to pieces. They had to content themselves with throwing vegetables and other missiles at her, one of which, an old shoe, struck her in the face, and caused her cheek to bleed slightly. She afterwards said that she was only saved from breaking down by a superstitious fancy that the shoe would bring her luck. And it did, for the brave girl, mastering her feelings after a moment's terrible struggle, resumed her part and sang as she had never sung before. It was like the spur to a racer, and she proved herself "true grit," as her people say. An almost inevitable reaction set in among the fickle, emotional Italian audience. At the end of the Opera, jewels instead of cabbage stalks were thrown upon the stage, the people screamed and wept with delirious rapture. Men hurled themselves under the wheels of her carriage as she drove home in triumph, her hotel was besieged all night—in fact, Mdlle. Corsetti was made from that hour.

Her career, however, suffered a temporary check almost at the outset, for before she had been more than the comet of a season the public were startled and chagrined to hear that she had married an Italian nobleman, the Duke of Monte Carlo, and retired from the stage. She was but human, and it is only to her credit that a simple domestic life (for her noble husband was poor) should have seemed to her more attractive than the brilliant but hollow triumphs of her profession. However, less than a year elapsed before the bright star shone out again.

Madame Corsetti's first appearance in London (in Violetta, of course) was a very tame affair compared with her début at La Scala. Here there is no venal press to be bought, no hired claque, and no organised opposition. But her genius commanded from the first almost universal recognition, and her fame never wanes. Her enemies indeed sneer at the persistent manner in which she puts forward one or two rather ordinary songs composed by influential critics, but what of that? Rightly looked at it is merely a token of her gratitude (which has been defined as a sense of favours to come) for their championship of her cause. Besides, perhaps she really likes the songs, unlikely as it may seem. Still, as I say, she has really been accepted on her merits here, and though she makes occasional foreign tours, is too sensible a woman of business ever to leave England for long. Some seven years after her advent to these shores she married her business-agent, mainly, I suspect, to keep the titled fortune-hunters at bay. Her husband adores her, and she has found, when least expected, the domestic bliss for which she formerly made so vain a sacrifice. The greater part of her life is passed uneventfully in London, but this is made up for during her provincial and foreign tours, when she would seem to enjoy an endless round of exciting adventures. Thus I find by the papers that she has had no less than forty-seven carriage accidents in the last ten years and has been robbed of her jewels (chiefly in America) thirty-six times during the same period. Anecdotes illustrating her amiable character abound, and the Religious Tract Society has a beautiful large coloured picture (price one shilling, mounted on card, with a loop of green string for hanging up) representing the touching incident, said to have happened in many different places, of the great artist singing hymns to a dying cottager, having broken an engagement at Marlborough House for that purpose. A worthy woman indeed; the idol of the public. Her wealth is said to be fabulous. The daily papers—surely an unimpeachable authority—have stated that when she was in Calcutta, the Rajah of Pawnpore presented her with a set of diamonds valued at £40,000 as a pledge of his esteem, and when she sings at Osborne she receives the more precious reward of her sovereign's personal thanks.

Writing as a musician, I cannot help asking what Madame Corsetti has done for art? The inevitable answer is—Nothing whatever. She sings in "Lohengrin" and "Fidelio" because these are popular operas, but she prefers "La Sonnambula" and "Norma" because here there is less to distract attention from herself. Her concert repertory consists of some half-a-dozen hackneyed Italian arias and two or three threadbare English ditties. She has never assisted in the success of a new work, nor sung a new song unless heavily paid for so doing. But in these particulars she is only like her compeers and is not to be blamed. The mission of a great singer, or a great performer of any kind, is to excite wonder and enthusiasm in the breasts of the unlearned, thereby giving them a respect for art which its higher manifestations would fail to evoke. Great performers are the mane and tail of Pegasus, the plumage of the Phœnix, glittering ornaments with which we in these degenerate days deck the chaste forms of the Muses.

IV.—THE PRIMA DONNA'S HUSBAND.

Few people know how much of Madame Corsetti's success is owing to her husband; few people so much as know his name. This relieves me from the necessity of mentioning it. He was and still is a dramatic and musical agent—that is, a man who earns his living by taking upon his more capable shoulders the whole active career of those "artists" who are unequal to any exertion beyond opening their mouths. Not that Madame Corsetti is one of these, but an agent is an undeniable convenience, especially to a lady; and this particular one is a model for his class. He watched the interests of his client with Argus eyes even before she became his wife, but now managers literally tremble before him. At every fresh success scored by the great singer, does he not wait upon the entrepreneur with a demand for more salary? And if the receipts have fallen off instead of rising, who so skilful as he at evading all prayers for a reduction of Madame's terms? Who but he arranges the extra advertisements which the fond public imagines to emanate from the management? Who but he works that now threadbare mystery, the bouquet-throwing trick? Who but he causes the thrilling accounts of Madame's jewel robberies and carriage accidents to obtain "the largest circulation in the world"? Nay, has he not been known even to arrange spurious comedies and tragedies with trustworthy and well-paid myrmidons unto the furtherance of his spouse's fame?

For instance: Scene, a town in the Far West. Madame being hospitably entertained by the "judge" and other notabilities. Enter honest farmer with a canary bird in a cage. It is his one treasure, left him by his dead wife—he would back its singing against all creation. Some one has told him that the "Eyetalian singer marm can see thet there bird an' go one better," so he wants to "plank down his bottom dollar and call her," or in plain English hear her and stake his fortune on the result. Madame Corsetti smilingly accepts the challenge, farmer listens till his eyes "bug out," then dejectedly wrings the neck of his bird and casting at the lady's feet a huge bag of silver dollars, departs chapfallen. This story is vouched for by many respectable witnesses, but I regret to say that the farmer was a trustworthy and well-paid myrmidon and the bag contained only stage-money—that is, buttons.

Again: Little girl comes to hotel at seven a.m. and insists on seeing Madame. Refused admittance. Disturbance. Madame wakes and sends out to enquire. Child is a street singer, has heard that Madame was one once, and wants to hear her sing. Great artist, touched, complies, to the edification of the hotel employés. Child delighted. One more favour to ask. Has a deaf and dumb sister. Will Madame come (it is only through a mile or so of slums) that the afflicted one may see her sing as she cannot hear? Every one affected to tears at child's simplicity. Subscription got up for deaf and dumb sister. Story goes the round of all the papers. A very touching anecdote and it grieves me deeply to be obliged to state that the child was the baggage keeper's little girl who used to play the infant Arline till she got too big, and the deaf and dumb sister was a myth. So too with the incident of the factory hands who on several occasions have taken the horses from Madame's carriage and drawn her home themselves, while others formed a procession with torches to escort her. I saw the property man once preparing those torches, and if you should ever see the "hands" drawing the carriage you would be surprised at their business-like and unenthusiastic demeanour. The band of red Indians which attacked the train in which Madame was crossing the Plains, in order to secure her as a squaw for their chief Red Gum, and the Nevada miners who stopped the performance of "Lohengrin" by firing at Frederick and Ortrud with their revolvers and insisting on Elsa's giving them "The old folks at home," were all, I fear, trustworthy and well-paid myrmidons of the prima donna's husband.

The ingenuity displayed in these and other similar artifices has created an awe of him in the opera company almost ridiculous in its intensity. He is regarded as a sort of Mephistophiles with a boundless power of swaying men and events and turning them to his own purposes. If a singer or an opera fails, the prima donna's husband is always believed to have brought it about, and every secession from the company is "his work." People are seldom credited with good acts, so none of the successes (except his wife's) are put down to the p. d. h. Yet they might reasonably be so, for he is one of the most amiable and charming of men, popular in every class of society, courted and genuinely liked by nearly everyone, save his natural enemies, the managers. Some prima donnas' husbands occasionally run off with their wives' pretty pupils, or create heartburnings in the company; this one never does. He idolizes his wife, to whom he is so attentive that her maid's place is almost a sinecure. Alas for the gilded dukes and wicked earls! Their occupation is gone. They have no chance now-a-days in an opera house, where prima donnas have husbands like this. No, great singers are no longer the Circes that lady novelists still delight in portraying, and the once wicked opera house is fast turning into a temple of all the virtues, under the beneficent influence of the prima donna's husband. F.C.

MUSIC IN EMBRYO.

THE expansion of music into its civilised form from first germs is not a process which the advance of human art is leaving in the past like the development of a manufacture. The most primitive stages of music-making can still be found in the world, notwithstanding our four thousand years or so of art-life and our strides of culture in the last century.

It differs, however, from many analogous processes of growth, by one very marked peculiarity. It is not uniformly progressive, advancing imperceptibly like the growth of a plant. Civilised music, as we know it, is distinctly duplex in character; and the assumption of what may be called its second factor is as distinct an event as the addition of acid to alkali to produce an effervescing draught. If we may take a parallel from natural growth, it might be found in the crab, the frog, and other animals whose embryonic type is distinguished by essential features from that of maturity.

In regarding music as a science, this requires clear recognition; and an acquaintance with almost any of the crudescent music of uncivilised races brings out the point with striking distinctness.

The two ingredients—if we may so define them—of civilised music are the expression of human emotion and the employment of a numerical or mathematical scale by which it is governed. This may sound trite enough, but it constitutes an absolute line of demarcation between what we may call infant and adult music. In uncivilised music we find the emotions controlling the scale; while in cultivated music the scale commands the emotions. The introduction of the scale element as its basis lifts embryo music at one step into a new phase, and the period when this occurs is as definite as the effervescing of a Seidlitz powder or the evanishment of a tadpole's tail.

And it cannot be maintained that the absence of scale extinguishes the attributes of music. There are peoples in the world at this moment very far from devoid of musical perception and talent, whose use of tones is wholly unregulated by scale; and in some respects their rendering of the emotions is forcible to a degree not easily attained under the rule of a scale, however much license may be taken with it. I have listened for hours to dramatic recital in non-graduated music; and although it conveys to the educated ear a peculiarly barbarous and unsatisfying impression, no artist would consent to say that it is not music at all. When, in the midst of such a performance, the limitations of a scale lay their hand on the reins for a moment, the effect is intensely captivating. In the torrent of chromatic extravagance which, but for the words it carries, would be utterly wearisome, there suddenly floats up an unlooked-for suspicion of familiar melody, vanishing again like a dream just as it is grasped. And this is how the law of diatonic scale enters and gains its hold. The echo of the scale-melody may have fallen from distant civilisation as the bird drops seed on the coral islands; but it takes root and perhaps lives on for a generation before chance sends another to supplement it.

Only the lowest grades of human intelligence are really not receptive of the scale-method; and there is many a central African savage who never sang three consecutive notes of a diatonic scale in his life who yet will pick up a "catching" melody as readily as a trained chorister.

Perhaps the most interesting evidences of this grafting of the scale-method into embryo music are to be found, at the present day, among those nations whose locale, both physically and in history, lies upon the threshold of civilisation. The northern and western littoral of the African continent presents such a condition; and especially along the Europeanised seaboard of the Mediterranean. The jealously exclusive temper of the races dominated by the faith of Islam has held them for ages next door to actual barbarism, while the pressure of civilisation close at hand has continually brought the "Kafir" and his new-fangled notions within their boundary. So, whether as Spanish invader, French politician, or English scientist, trader, or Christianiser, he has come and gone, and has left the memory of his scale-measured songs wherever he passed. Here and there it has held the fancy of the keen-eared Berber, who has woven it into his wild recitations of love and peril, and transmitted it to his children's children.

The imitative faculty is prompt and sympathetic. Over and over again, in remote corners of North-West Africa, I have hummed or played on strings a distinct octave or other interval, with the express purpose of testing this in localities where scale-music was unknown. I have heard it instantly and intelligently repeated, showing how its responsive character was felt, and the nature of the scale perceived without being understood.

The presence of the scale, or even traces of it, in barbarian music is a certain indication of the proximity of civilising influence in some shape. The ecclesiastical official known as the muddhen or muezzin, whose duty it is to announce the prayer hours from the mosque tower, illustrates this throughout Mahommedanism. In Cairo or Constantinople his cry is a chant of what we should call tuneful cadences; in Fez or Morocco it is an unmeaning howl. He will not introduce a Christian amendment into his custom if he can help it, but let his ear once have the opportunity of appreciating scale-tones, and he will use them instinctively in spite of himself.

The present Emperor of Morocco, after the organisation of his infantry corps and body guard was undertaken some years ago by an English officer, determined on the formation of an instrumental band. The material for this was, of course, native talent of the least cultured order, and the reader's imagination of the early efforts of a brass band under such circumstances will perhaps raise a smile. Yet a listener could not deny that the performance of "God save the Queen," as given by a good ear combined with an imperfect recognition of scale tones, was even more interesting than laughable. In a surprisingly short time the scale-idea was fully grasped, and the result was most creditable.

If, however, we thus regard the musical scale as an exotic, and its grafting-in as a distinct epoch in the local existence of music, it is natural to enquire what is the origin of graduated tones; and on what occasion, or on how many occasions, they have been introduced into the world de novo. To answer such a question with precision is, of course, impossible. The number of individual intelligences which either have, or could have, originated the diatonic scale is perhaps very limited. Nature provides the octave, but art has cut it up; and the curious convention of perceptive faculty which is only satisfied by its division into eight unequal steps, hardly justifies us in saying that barbaric "ungraduated" music shows no sense of any scale at all. The necessity for precision in man's means of communicating with his neighbour has evolved language; and the same sympathetic need in music has evolved the scale. When therefore the cultivated man has presented to his more backward fellow this conventional foot-rule for expression in music, he has merely given him a grammar which moulds his tone-utterances into a language. Without the grammar his music is a Babel—but still music.

Before leaving the consideration of embryo musical art, I will notice one or two curious distinctive features of scale-less music which are widely spread.

One of the primary demands of our own perception of melody is that which requires us to bring it to a full close (either actually or by implication) on the tonic of the scale in which it opened. In a vast majority of instances the barbaric musician has adopted a different idea. He brings his subject to a close on the supertonic, or "second" of his key—conveying to our mind an effect something like that of ending a story with half a word and a hyphen. After constant observation of semi-savage music, I believe this da capo arrangement to be evidently designed to express the fact that the melody admits of being revolved ad libitum, like a Thibetan prayer-wheel. It is often further emphasized, vocally, by the singer concluding with a sort of glissando plunge, downward through an uncertain interval, which it would be very difficult to express in musical notation; but clearly intimating that he could go on again if required. The origin of this may perhaps be found in the species of dramatic recitation which is the vehicle for most music of that class. The conclusion of the story is always heralded by a wild rush of the repeated melody at double time, after which the effect of the full close on the supertonic, dropping down with a huge gasp to nowhere, is most vivid and characteristic. It is a feature not wholly extinct in remote parts of Spain—an apt, but backward country in musical culture.

Another noticeable feature of "wild" music is the prevalence of triple time. It is said that if a child elects to use triple time by choice it is an evidence of superior musical capacity; if so, we must grant the same credit to the barbarian. The triplet is suggested by several natural sounds—such as the gallop of a horse or the cry of a bird—and he therefore is readily led to reproduce it on the strings of his "gimbri," or on his drum. By such adaptations the talent of the "native" announces itself. As a rule, he has a healthy frame, keen senses, and often a discriminating ear. Add to these the common emotions of humanity, and you have a ready pupil in the grammar of expression.

One of the most curiously incongruous impressions of barbarism I can recall from scenes of travel was that of hearing a very eminent Moor, who had probably never uttered a word in his life in any tongue but his own mongrel Arabic, doing his best to say "Birmingham." Yet in every instance where such efforts were made to acquire the pronunciation of an English word, the imitative faculty was keen and the ear correct. With two or three attempts the rough Arabic tongue always mastered the most intractable words with accuracy—why not, then, the less complex utterance of the common chord or simple diatonic scale? O. H. H.

A RUMOUR has been spread abroad that an order has gone out from the Horse Guards to the effect that no army band would, in future, be allowed to accept an engagement outside the district in which it might for the time be stationed. As a colourable support to this statement it is known that the army bands have cancelled many engagements into which they had entered because they were beyond a certain radius, and the report has thus been seemingly confirmed. Be the statement true or not, it has given rise to discussion as to whether or not it is right to allow State-paid men to be brought into competition with those who have not that advantage. There are numbers of brass and other wind bands who are ready to accept engagements at fêtes, &c., who complain that their chances of employment have been restricted in consequence of the preference for military bands. The question as to whether the decree has been issued in order to give civilian bands opportunities of obtaining work may be dismissed at once, for the reason is more or less sentimental, and the authorities of the Horse Guards do not act on emotional motives. It is usually understood that the members of the several bands are only exempted from certain portions of their military duties in consideration of their accomplishments by courtesy of the officers, for whose gratification they are chiefly employed. The instruments are paid for by the officers, and the expenses of the band are provided for out of a voluntary subscription. The only musical instruments recognised officially are, for infantry, fifes and side-drums, with bagpipes for Scotch regiments, and bugles and trumpets for artillery and cavalry. Permission has hitherto been freely granted by the colonels commanding for the bands belonging to their several regiments to perform at festive gatherings, &c., the custom taking its rise some half-a-century back, at such times when the female relatives of the officers took part in some fancy fair, some fête champêtre, or the like. These may have been held either in the neighbourhood of the depôt or elsewhere. Permission for the band to play all over the country has rarely been refused, for the men have striven to show themselves worthy by their performances, and the officers have gained a sort of reflected honour. The men have been paid, of course, and the money so won has helped to purchase comforts they could not obtain out of the barrack allowances. The existence of these military bands led to the formation of amateur bands, and contests for superiority have become frequent. These, which are annually undertaken, are many in number, and all tend to the advancement of musical knowledge, the cultivation of refinement in execution, and the improvement of musical instruments. The imitation of the military bands, the pioneers in this form of artistic enterprise, was at one time looked upon as a harmless eccentricity on the part of the lovers of music. The rise of the Volunteer movement gave a further impetus to the work, and the worthy efforts of many of the large manufacturers of the North of England to encourage the pursuit of peaceful and elevating practices among their workmen has developed the whole thing into a serious business. Brass instruments are not only imported in quantities into the country from abroad, but a large and increasing number of workmen are employed in various factories in England in the fabrication of metal musical instruments. One way and another, there are probably nearly ten thousand brass bands, amateur and professional, in the kingdom. There are several journals especially conducted in their interests, of which the Brass Band News of Liverpool is at the head. There are many professional bands quite as well organised as the military bands, and in not a few instances they are equal, if not superior, to many for their musical qualifications. They will probably look upon the new order with some degree of gratification, as it will doubtless give them more ample means of employment than they have hitherto enjoyed. It is not at all unlikely that at present they may feel that they are brought into unfair competition with bodies who, being already provided for by the State, can afford to undersell them in the market. It is not for a moment urged that this is the case; it is just as likely that the military bands can command higher honoraria. There is, however, the prestige gained by the military bands, thanks to the careful training they have been able to obtain, and the attraction the service offers to good men. Few civilian bands can compete against this, even though their interpretation of music may be far superior to the military bands, as it is in many cases. There is, however, this prestige to contend against, and many of the bands have complained against the preference of the military. However, there is good in all changes to those who know how to look for it. Whether the order exists or not, now is the time for the professional and amateur bands to prove their worthiness. The military bands have started an industry; let those who practise that industry show how and to what extent they have benefited by the example, and how far they have improved upon the patterns set. If the order restricts the use of military bands and causes them to cancel many engagements, there will be plenty of work for other bands. Let those other bands enter the lists, and by the excellence of their work gain honour for themselves. The apprentice ought not to complain of his master if, when he first sets up for himself, he finds that customers still believe in the older man. So soon as he can show that he is competent and capable, work will be found for both, according to their abilities and the varied aspects of belief in them.

THE wearied critic, constantly obliged to ring the changes upon a limited number of stock phrases and conventional epithets, must feel grateful to any writer who coins some new and original word applicable to the needs of his situation. Such a feeling has been excited in us by a perusal of a work entitled "Only a Curate" (T. Fisher Unwin), in which the writer, from the point of view of a Colonial cleric, unburdens himself of his grievances against the English Church. The "desecration" of churches and cathedrals by the performance within their precincts of instrumental music with full orchestral accessories is one of his grounds for complaint, and we extract from page 52 of this work a passage descriptive of a rehearsal in St. Paul's. "The Conductor waves his bâton. One, two, three. A simultaneous crash of the whole orchestra deafens the ear, the effect being increased by the thud of the kettledrums. A pause. A few bars of less noisy music, and hush! All is still for a moment, and then, quavering and semiquavering (sic), like birds twittering and warbling some unknown note of melodious song, the movement proceeds. The dulcet tones of the flute are followed by those of the clarinet, the brass instruments joining in concert; and finally the whole of the band, accompanied by the organ, burst into one wild, weird strain of magic melody and bewildering music. It was an overture. Egomet's senses were incomprehensibly affected as the performance culminated in a loud burst similar to the opening. Different selections, vocal as well as instrumental, followed. The female soloists warble deliciously. Aerial notes strike the ear in echoes from the dome above, like larks mounting the skies, whilst their songs are heard on earth below." Later on, in the course of this singular autobiography, we read how Egomet, the hero, called upon his churchwarden, and how the following episode occurred:—After observing that his hostess had a magnificent instrument, he went on, "Perhaps you will favour us with some old English ballad?" "She will, with pleasure," said the host, rising and opening the instrument. Laying aside the embroidery, she rose, and taking a seat, commenced playing a selection from "Tannerhaüser" (sic). It may be the case that "Tannerhaüser" is the name of an old English ballad. It is certainly not the name of a modern German Opera.

THOSE who remember Punch's "Guide to Bradshaw," published a few years ago, may be tempted to think that some such amusing paper might be written in explanation of the words constantly used in musical notices. It is true that professional artists may guess pretty accurately, from the context, the true words—as experienced travellers may, by turning over page after page of "Bradshaw's Guide," find out how to go from place to place—but it is on behalf of the general public that we speak, and we confidently affirm that many who read, as we have recently done, that a pianist performed a "pat pourri," that the solo part for the "comet" was very brilliant, that a vocalist sang "Nan pui andrais," that two numbers were played from the "Whal temperit clavier," or that a first-rate organ, with "foot-notes and seven stops," is to be disposed of, would be much puzzled to discover what the writers really mean. A record of these absurdities reminds us that we are in arrear with our "Curiosities of Criticism"; and from our store, therefore, we select the following:—Speaking of Henry Smart's "Lady, arise," a critic tells us that "The beautiful serenade whose masculine passion is brought so well in the common time used, was the best thing done in the part-singing," and that the duet "Oh, that we two were maying" is "a pretty composition, which the altos fully proved." In another notice it is said that the organist presided at the instrument in a masterly manner, "the overture calling forth a special word of praise, which is in itself a difficult solo to perform." But the following, in reference to a rendering of "The Messiah," which appears in a newspaper, in the form of a letter to the conductor of the work, is unique, as a specimen of "fine writing." After speaking of the pride he must have felt in holding "spell-bound the talent ready to burst forth each in its own particular," the author says "It is more than forty years since I heard the like strains from stringed instruments. They were seraphic. Their preludes and symphonies so encouraging—their refrains taken up like the joyous melody of the myriads which float in the summer air, and particularly your first viol. The bow descended on the strings so instant and tremulous—like a bee, filled with fright, dashing its nose against a glass barrier."

WE do not know whether the attention of pianoforte manufacturers has ever been drawn to the requirements of the Burmese in selecting an instrument, but certainly if that nation should ever become decidedly musical, we have the authority of the author of "Myam Ma"—"The House of the Burman"—for some information which should be well pondered before our English makers submit specimens of their skill to the pianists of the country, and especially to the Burmese Minister, whom we may presume to be a high authority on musical matters. It seems that this exalted personage had received a present of a splendid grand pianoforte; and although fully appreciating the value of the gift, he immediately proceeded to "improve" it. A quotation from the book already referred to tells us how this was effected:—"It was placed upon the bare floor, the legs having been removed, and the black notes sawed off. On expressing surprise that the beautiful instrument had been so ruthlessly maimed, we were informed that the raised notes obstructed the fingers moving smoothly over the key-board, and one had only to remember the Burmese mode of sitting to realise at once the reason why the legs of the instrument had been dispensed with." Were the demand for pianofortes sufficient to warrant the experiment of constructing some especially for Burmah, no doubt the trouble of removing the legs and sawing off the black keys might be saved by making pianofortes without either of what we here consider such necessary portions of the instrument. Not being acquainted with the salient characteristics of Burmese music, we cannot say whether the native compositions would be at all deteriorated by the absence of the black keys; yet we cannot but think that the performer's position at the key-board would be materially improved if he would consent to retain the legs, and thus necessitate the introduction into Burmah of so novel a piece of furniture as a music-stool.

THE idea of an English Eisteddfod is thus spoken of in the Globe:—"Rumour has it that the recent apotheosis of Welsh music and poetry at the Albert Hall has suggested to some philanthropic souls the idea of 'adapting the system to the genius of the Saxons,' and making it, in some way or other, 'an instrument for elevating the masses.' It is suggested that the existing Sunday-school organisation would supply the agency by which the Eisteddfod might be represented in every parish in England, and it is supposed that in this manner the problems of 'secondary education and healthful indoor recreation for the people' might be partially solved. In the meantime, all this is rather vague. At first blush, it is difficult even to conceive an English Eisteddfod, and there are those who shy instinctively at the very mention of the 'elevating-the-masses' phrase. Not very clear, either, is the possible connection between Sunday-schools and harp-playing, prize poems, and the like. But we may presume that, if ever there is to be an Eisteddfod for 'the Saxons,' the leading features of the Celtic variety will be largely modified. Perhaps for the harp there will be substituted the concertina, which is undeniably the favourite instrument of the plebs—unless it be the barrel organ. And, in either case, public competitions between experts would be charming. As for the prize poems, it is certain at least that the entries would be numerous, for if ever there was a country of mute, inglorious Miltons, it is ours. Choral singing is a different matter. With "secondary education" an English Eisteddfod could scarcely have much, if anything, to do; but any institution which would promote the study of vocal art among our people would be welcome. In time, what there is of distinctive in English music might become as familiar in the cottage as in the villa, and then, perhaps, our composers would begin to write again in an English style."

THE Tenbury Musical Society, in a modest little pamphlet, has set forth the amount of work done in an unobtrusive way in propagating a knowledge of certain of the Classics of Music in its own area during a period of seventeen years. In sacred music: Oratorios by Handel, Sullivan, Ouseley, and Sterndale Bennett; Cantatas by Astorga, Gaul, Gounod, Hiller, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Ouseley, Schubert, Schumann, Spohr, Stainer, and Weber; Motetts, choruses, etc., by Armes, Crotch, Haydn, Hummel, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Rossini, Smart, and Walmisley; Secular works by Barnett, Bennett, Dvorák, Gade, Gadsby, Handel, Locke, Macfarren, Prout, Schumann, Alice Mary Smith, and others too many to name, with a large number of symphonies and overtures among the instrumental works, all testify to an activity and cosmopolitanism of taste not always found in provincial societies. The example thus offered by the Conductor, the Rev. John Hampton, has found a following in various parts of the world into which some of the members have gone. The enthusiasm of the Conductor communicates itself to the members and conscientious and even excellent readings of the several works produced have distinguished the meetings.

DR. MACKENZIE'S JUBILEE ODE IN AUSTRALIA.

IT will certainly interest many of our readers to know how this work was received at the Antipodes—as far, that is, as the fact can be ascertained from public criticism. We have pleasure in now condensing the opinions of a few of the leading newspapers; premising that the Ode was performed in the Exhibition Building at Melbourne, by the Philharmonic Society, under the direction of Mr. George Peake, the solo parts being taken by Madame Boema and Mr. Armes Beaumont. There was a very large attendance, and the occasion had something of State dignity and importance.

The Melbourne Age occupied a position of some difficulty with reference to Dr. Mackenzie's work; the reason being that a second Jubilee Ode, produced at the same Concert, was from the pen of its musical critic, Mr. Plumpton. We assume, of course, that Mr. Plumpton did not write the article now lying before us, since he could scarcely criticise his own doings or those of a man with whom he was, for the moment, in personal rivalry. But Mr. Plumpton's substitute was also in a condition of some embarrassment, and we have no right to be surprised at the fact that the tone and spirit of his remarks upon the work written by the critic of the Age differ somewhat from the tone and spirit in which Dr. Mackenzie's effusion is treated. But, while not surprised, we are compelled to take into account the circumstances just stated. The Age opens its article with some examples of comprehensive condemnation, and proceeds to details with severity. In fact, the tenour of the whole criticism is adverse; wherefore, we are entitled to lay all the greater stress upon such passages as indicate approval. The Age pronounces the melodies to be, "for the most part, graceful and pleasing"; the principal theme of the opening chorus is "worked up chorally in a solid and musicianly manner"; the orchestral opening of the Pageant Chorus is "short, but effective, and the number as a whole contains original ideas," "the accompaniment to the African Chorus in particular being quaint and characteristic of savage nations," while the introduction of the National Anthem, prior to the advent of the Australians, is "highly effective." The soprano air, "More than crown of Monarch" (replaced in the home edition by another setting), is described as "certainly the musical gem of the piece"; the "Amen" of the choral is "prettily worked up," and the dramatic structure of the entire Ode "leaves nothing to be desired, being equally correct and felicitous." With the foregoing encomiums the Age tempers somewhat the character of an article which cannot be called in any sense friendly.

Turning to the Argus, we find its critic taking each number of the work separately, and avoiding general remarks. He describes the opening chorus as "a grand greeting, developing in breadth and earnestness as the work proceeds; it consists of many spirited phrases, which are effectively used for the harmonised voices, and well supported and enforced by full and skilful instrumentation in the orchestra." Referring to the tenor solo, "O Queen," the Argus observes: "Here the musician rises into tuneful strains of great beauty, charmingly sustained on a soft accompaniment of reed and string instruments, which pulsates and gives fine vitality to the lofty apostrophe which the singer has to declaim." In the Pageant chorus, "The peoples of various countries, Canada, Australia, Africa, and India, are shown by means of most ingenious tone-painting in the instrumentation of the elaborate and most attractive orchestral accompaniment. This chorus is in itself a complete work, and might be listened to at any time for the intrinsic beauty there is in it." The soprano solo, "More than crown of Monarch," is pronounced "graciously tuneful" and "a gem in musical creation," while we are told, of the final number, that "the soli and chorus—to which there is a fine instrumental introduction in B flat—lead on by finely progressive passages, in which elemental strains of our great National Anthem are heard—these rise in cohesiveness and growing fervour until, by perfectly good, musicianly development, 'God save our gracious Queen' is reached, in all its severe purity of musical structure and grandeur of effect."

After dealing separately with the numbers of the Ode, the Melbourne Daily Telegraph critic sums up as follows:—"As a whole, the work is a worthy piece of good workmanship. The ingenuity and fancy and undoubted power shown in scoring on every page are worthy of admiration. The choral work is massive and well thought out, and the frequent employment of unison may be explained by the nature of the work, which to a great extent warrants it. Dr. Mackenzie has produced a composition which only a master could have written, and that the solos do not show him in quite as happy a light as some of his exquisite songs is not to be wondered at in a piece where, from its very nature, the choral writing is of primary importance."

Here our extracts must cease. Putting one thing with another, it is clear that Dr. Mackenzie's Australian repute has gained largely by the Jubilee Ode.

THE WELSH NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD.

If the Eisteddfod ceremonies in the Albert Hall on the 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th ult. served no other purpose, they did something towards bridging over the musical hiatus in London which usually extends from the end of July to the end of September. The question naturally occurs why our Welsh compatriots should elect to hold their annual art meeting in what they are pleased to term "the city of Lud." As a matter of fact, this is by no means the first time they have done so, and there is no reason why it should be the last. There are sufficient Welsh residents in London to form a goodly sized town, and it is only right that their convenience should be studied now and then, should they desire to take part in Eisteddfod ceremonies. It is only within the last few years that the English feeling of contempt towards an institution which seemed a mixture of barbarism and unjustifiable pretentiousness has given way. We have become more tolerant, not to say sympathetic, because we have discovered that, underlying their somewhat exaggerated regard for antique forms and customs, our brethren of the Principality cherish a sincere regard for art, and that the Eisteddfod is by no means without its usefulness as a means of promoting art culture among the common people of Wales. One danger has to be guarded against. To prevent the extinction of Cambrian literature by perpetuating a knowledge of the Cymric tongue is good in its way; but to discourage the use of English, and so fatally handicap the youth of Wales in the race for wealth and position is to commit a grievous wrong, deserving of severe censure and strenuous opposition. With this matter, however, we need not concern ourselves at present, our business is chiefly to speak of the musical competitions, which certainly formed the most interesting and valuable feature of last month's ceremonial. They were also instructive to those who had no previous knowledge of the special manner in which the art is cultivated in Wales. It was hoped that Mr. Gladstone would have been present to deliver the inaugural address on Tuesday morning, but he was prevented by hoarseness from keeping his promise, and the Presidential speech fell to the lot of Lord Mostyn, who was brief and to the purpose. The audience at this hour (11 a.m.) was very sparse, and not at any time on the opening day was the Albert Hall well filled. The competitions then commenced, but neither on this nor on any other day did they proceed without pre-arranged interruptions intended to entertain the assemblage, and prevent a feeling of weariness and monotony. One of the diversions was Pennillion singing, in which "the harpist plays over the tune, and the vocalists sing as suits their fancy, beginning with the third, fourth, fifth, or even with the last bar of the tune, and while the harper gives way to his imagination in different forms of variations of the tune, the singers take care to keep in correct harmony and to end exactly with the last note of the melody." Then, whenever a delay occurred through the non-arrival of a competitor or some other cause, Mr. William Abraham, M.P., would address a few chatty remarks to the audience, occasionally in English, but most frequently in Welsh. His native humour was evidently much appreciated by those who could follow his words. To an outsider the whole proceedings savoured of a huge family gathering. The visit of the Prince of Wales afforded a welcome pleasure to all. The first competition was one for contraltos, the test piece being Handel's air, "Hence, Iris, hence away." The prize of £5 was borne away by Miss Lucy Clark, of Cardiff. Then followed the principal business of the day, a choral competition for male choirs of fifty to seventy voices each, open to all comers, the prize being £50 and a gold medal to the Conductor. One English Choir, the Huddersfield Glee Society, presented itself against ten Welsh rivals. This was rather discouraging, but fortunately the Yorkshire singers proved worthy to represent the Saxon portion of the kingdom. The test pieces were the chorus "Where is he?" from "The Mount of Olives," and Sullivan's part-song "The Beleaguered"; and the adjudicators were Sir George Macfarren and Messrs. Randegger, Joseph Bennett, John Thomas, D. Emlyn Evans, and David Jenkins. The first choir to present itself was the Cynon Glee Society, under Mr. W. E. Davies. Here was a fine body of working men under perfect discipline, and evidently devoted to the vocal art. Neither they nor their Conductor used any music, but the singing was admirable as regards precision and observance of light and shade. In mere power the Merthyr Orpheus Society surpassed them, but were inferior in finish. The London Welsh did not appear to advantage, and neither the Brynaman Choir nor the Tredegar Orpheus Society came near the Cynon. But the Rhondda Glee Society, under Mr. T. Stephens, at once distanced all its earlier rivals. The magnificent tone both of the basses and tenors, and the splendid attack and spirit of these singers, astounded their hearers, and a roar of applause when they had finished testified to the impression they had made. The Glan Tawe Glee Society sang well, and so to a less extent did the Dowlais. Then came a pause, Dr. Roland Rogers, the Conductor of the Arvonic Choir, not having arrived; and the ever-ready Mr. Abraham suggested that all present should sing the old Welsh hymn "Crowned with a thousand marvels." Taking the lead himself, he kept things well together, and the effect was very impressive, the numbers having greatly increased since the morning. The Arvonic Choir was very unfortunate. A finer body of singers never faced judges, power, quality, and style being alike admirable; but the Conductor took both pieces at an absurdly slow pace, and this, according to the adjudicators, put the Choir out of the running. The Port Talbot Society were obviously not in the first division and there only remained the Huddersfield Choir under Mr. John North, their singing rendering the task of selection exceedingly difficult. The Rhondda men were more noteworthy for power aud dash, but the beautiful tone and perfect finish of the Yorkshire singers had to be taken into consideration, and in the end the judges could not agree. They therefore resolved to divide the prize and allot a medal to each Conductor. This decision gave rise to some expressions of disapprobation, but Eisteddfod audiences are apt to express their opinions pretty strongly, and therefore no particular significance need be attached to this demonstration. In the evening there was a Concert of Welsh airs and choruses, with which were mingled some pieces by Mr. John Thomas. There is no occasion to speak of the programme in detail, and the attendance was wretchedly small.

Matters considerably improved on Wednesday, much interest evidently being felt in the choral competition for mixed voices of from 200 to 250 in each choir. This was also open to all comers, and the prizes were £200 and £50. Some minor competitions and adjudications were first proceeded with, the results being generally unsatisfactory. Thus, out of seven overtures for full orchestra, not one was considered worthy of a prize, and some competitions in pictorial art fell through in like manner. By the time the chief event was reached the hall was well filled, and the excitement was very great. Two English and six Welsh choirs entered the lists, the number of the former being, perhaps, disappointing, especially as London was entirely unrepresented. But in August our Metropolitan amateurs are dispersed over the face of land and water, and could not be called together for a competition or any other purpose. The test pieces on this occasion were Bach's Motett "I wrestle and pray," Handel's "Wretched lovers," and Mendelssohn's "Come with torches," from "The Walpurgis Night." With the exception that Dr. Joseph Parry replaced Mr. David Jenkins, the adjudicators were the same as before. The first to appear was the Huddersfield Choir, and when it had finished it was difficult to perceive how it could be beaten. Rich, powerful tone, pure quality, and admirable phrasing, characterised the efforts of Mr. John North's splendid phalanx of amateurs, and Yorkshire fully sustained its reputation for first-rate choral singing. By comparison, the Nottingham Choir, the sopranos excepted, was weak and slipshod, but its imperfections were due, we understand, to the illness of the Conductor and the consequent want of sufficient rehearsal. The only absolute failure, however, was made by the Pontypool Fire Brigade and Abersychan Choir, which should not have been entered for the competition. The sopranos and contraltos were mostly boys and girls, and the singing only merited the praise due to good intentions and earnestness. The Llanelly Choir seemed to be immensely popular and they certainly sang with much spirit, but were distanced by the Wrexham Philharmonic Choir in purity of tone and general refinement. This last society was one of the best in the list, and its occasional unsteadiness appeared to be due to the tame beat of its Conductor, the Rev. C. H. Hylton Stewart. On the other hand, the Swansea District Choir has evidently a model leader in "Eos Morlais," whose Saxon patronymic is, we believe, Robert Rees. The vigour and dash with which "Come with torches" was rendered by this body was almost electrifying. The Abercarn Choir sang well, if somewhat coarsely, but its effects were marred by a bad accompaniment. Last of all came the Penrhyn Arvonic Choir, which literally covered itself with glory. More magnificent sopranos and tenors were surely never heard, and the contraltos and basses were scarcely inferior. Dr. Roland Rogers ought to be proud of this superb body of voices, which is an honour to Wales. It was scarcely surprising that the judges were again unable to agree as to the absolute superiority of any choir, and their decision to divide the first prize between the Huddersfield and Penrhyn Societies and to allot the second prize to the Swansea Choir was, however unsatisfactory, the best that could have been made. The petulance and ill-humour displayed by some of those interested showed a sad want of taste and dignity, for which probably the offenders are now heartily sorry. Before quitting this central feature of the Eisteddfod, we may remark that while a few of the Welsh singers used old notation, and a few others Tonic Sol-fa parts, the vast majority dispensed with music altogether. This naturally gave rise to the suggestion that they had learned the pieces by rote, and we think it would be well to introduce a simple sight-reading test in future competitions, if only to prevent such an uncomfortable idea. In the miscellaneous Concert, on the same evening, the winning choirs took part, but they only repeated the trial pieces.

The remainder of the Eisteddfod may be briefly dismissed. On the third day the principal ceremony was "Chairing the Bard," but this quaint custom seemed to arouse but little interest, the attendance being very sparse. A number of literary adjudications were made, but unfortunately the principal musical prize—namely, £25 for a sacred Cantata with orchestral accompaniment, was not awarded, only one composition, and that of a very poor nature, being received. A prize of £7 for a vocal trio was, however, carried off by Mr. Thomas Price, of Merthyr-Tydvil. Another meeting was held in the evening, when several musical awards were made. Only one entry resulted from an offer of £30 for the best rendering of the Overture to "Le Nozze di Figaro." This was the Cardiff Orchestral Society, which gave such a good account of itself as to merit the prize. Mr. T. Price, of Merthyr-Tydvil, took £10 for a congregational anthem, Mr. R. T. Hughes, of Bethesda, £5 for a soprano song, and Mr. William Davies, of Bangor Cathedral, £5 for a baritone song. On the other hand, a sight-singing competition was a disastrous failure. Again, at the final meeting on Friday morning, a string quartet competition only secured one party from Cardiff, to whom half the prize was given. The proceedings closed with another choral competition for Welsh choirs only, of from 120 to 150 voices each. Two choirs entered, of whom the first, namely, the Brymbo, Broughton, and Bersham Choral Society appeared to the listeners by far the best; but the adjudicators thought the Gyrn Castle Choral Union deserving of equal recognition, and divided the first prize between them. Thus in every case the choir competitions resulted in a dead heat. A third miscellaneous Concert of English and Welsh music was held in the evening, in which there was nothing to deserve note. On the whole, Wales has a right to feel pride in the manner in which vocal art is cultivated within its boundaries; but instrumental music, creative and executive, is obviously in its infancy. The Eisteddfod next year will be held at Wrexham.

MUSIC IN SOUTH WALES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE National Eisteddfod at the Albert Hall has been the greatest topic of conversation. South Wales, it is felt regretfully, has not taken such a position as local musicians could have desired. It is unfortunate that the Dowlais choir, which was at one time looked upon as a probable competitor for the chief choral prize, did not, after all, enter the lists. Swansea only followed Huddersfield and a North Wales choir in the great event, and in some other respects South Wales has not achieved great things.

The visit of Madame Patti to Brecon, on the 10th ult., did not perhaps give rise to the same amount of enthusiasm as when she last repaired to the old town on a mission of charity, but she was received with considerable demonstration, and her motives in starting a "Patti-Nicolini" fund for the benefit of the local poor was held to be very praiseworthy. She was supported at the Concert by Signor Nicolini, Miss Georgina Ganz, Mdlle. Thérèse Castellan (violin), and Signor Bonetti and Signor Tito Mattei (pianoforte), Mr. W. Ganz being conductor. The Mayor and Mr. J. P. Gwynne Holford offered thanks to Madame Patti for her charitable work, and the compliment was acknowledged by Mr. Spalding (who gave a recitation in the course of the programme). Some attempt has been made, it is rumoured, to induce the celebrated vocalist to give a Concert at Merthyr in aid of the new hospital now being raised in that town.

An interesting Eisteddfod was held at Taff's Well, near Cardiff, on Bank holiday. The Mayor of Cardiff, now Sir Morgan Morgan (one of the Jubilee Knights), presided; Rev. C. T. Thomas was Conductor, and the adjudicator was Mr. W. T. Rees, Llanelly.

The annual Festival of the Choral Association of the Archdeaconry of St. David's was held at the Parish Church, Tenby, on the 10th ult. The choir, furnished from various localities, consisted of nearly 350 voices. The service included the rendering of "The heavens are telling," with full organ accompaniment, Mr. W. T. Jenkins presiding, as usual, at that instrument. The solos were rendered by Miss Williams (St. Florence) and Mr. Dickeson (Tenby). Conductor and trainer, Mr. Cook (Carmarthen).

It is, perhaps, a question whether much financial gain resulted to the promoters of the Eisteddfod at Merthyr in aid of the English Baptist Chapel building fund at Noedyrhiw. The proceedings took place on Bank holiday, when there were so many counter-attractions. The Abercwmboy, Ebenezer (Merthyr), Blaenavon Harmonic, Hirwain United, and Brynmawr United Choirs competed for a prize of £20 (and a gold medal for the successful conductor) for the best rendering of "Then round about the starry throne." Mr. D. W. Lewis, musical adjudicator, awarded the prize to Ebenezer (Mr. J. Harris, Dowlais, conductor). The prize for the best rendering of the bass solo, "Honour and Arms," was taken by Mr. J. Broad, Treorky. The Dowlais Minstrels (Mr. W. Hughes, leader) received the prize of £4 for their rendering of "The Young Musicians." The conductor was awarded a silver medal also. There were several interesting solo competitions. The President was the Rev. S. Davies, Abercanaid, and the Eisteddfod Conductor, Rev. H. Richards.

OBITUARY.

SIGNOR LUIGI CARACCIOLO, the well-known song composer, died in London on July 22. He was born at Andria, near Bari, in the district of Naples, in 1849, and was a pupil at the Royal School of Music, Naples. In early life Caracciolo wrote several works of pretension, among others an opera, "Maso il Montanaro," and a cantata, "Godfrey under the walls of Jerusalem." In 1876 he went to Dublin as a teacher, but he afterwards settled in London, where he practised as a professor of singing, and became popular for some charming Italian songs, many of which have attained no inconsiderable share of favour among professional and amateur vocalists.

MR. WILLIAM HENRY HUSK, one of the oldest members and the honorary librarian of the late Sacred Harmonic Society, died on Friday, the 12th ult., after a fortnight's illness. A familiar face and figure will thus be missed in all the large musical gatherings. He was the author of a number of biographical articles for the "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," numerous prefaces to the books of words of oratorios, "An Account of the Musical Celebrations of St. Cecilia's Day in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Centuries," a collection of carols called "Songs of the Nativity," &c. He was an accurate and painstaking historian, and a careful and generally trustworthy writer. He possessed a vast fund of knowledge of music, of musicians, and of collateral matters which was always at the disposal of earnest students. He was born in London in the year 1814, consequently he was in his seventy-third year at the time of his death. His funeral took place on Friday, the 19th ult., at Brompton Cemetery. He was followed to his last resting-place by many old friends, colleagues, and officers of the old Sacred Harmonic Society, among whom were Messrs. Henry Littleton, George Mence Smith, Raphael Costa, F. W. Willcocks, J.P., G. W. Donnison, J. N. Frye, S. Sumner, J. Peck, Henry Wright, and H. M. Dalton, solicitor, with whom and his father Mr. Husk was chief clerk for fifty-three years.

JULES ETIENNE PASDELOUP, the eminent French Conductor, and founder of the Paris Concerts Populaires, died at his residence at Fontainebleau, on the 13th ult., in his sixty-eighth year. Born in the French capital on September 15, 1819, the son of a violinist of considerable ability, he entered the Conservatoire at the early age of ten, and, four years afterwards, carried away the first prize for pianoforte playing, he being a pupil on that instrument of the celebrated Zimmermann. After a short period spent in travelling, concert-giving, and teaching, the young artist was appointed régisseur of the Palace of St. Cloud by the Provisional Government of 1848, which post, however, he resigned in 1851, devoting himself henceforth solely to the organisation of enterprises connected with his art. In the latter capacity he became the founder, inter alia, of the "Société des jeunes Artistes," but at first his concerts were on a limited scale. It was in 1859, when Pasdeloup conducted the monster concert, organised by the German residents in Paris, and held in the covered arena of the Champs Elysées in commemoration of the centenary of the birth of Schiller, that the idea is said to have first occurred to him of establishing concerts of classical music in a similarly spacious locality. Thus, in 1861, the enterprising conductor, supported by influential patronage, inaugurated a scheme of "classical concerts" at popular prices at the Cirque Napoléon. His success was truly surprising, and it may be said that to these admirable concerts it is mainly owing that French audiences were familiarised with the works of Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Schubert, and many others of the classical school, hitherto accessible only within the academical walls of the Conservatoire. This is M. Pasdeloup's undying merit, and although rival institutions sprang up in the course of time in the French capital, which eventually outbid the original institution in the matter of popularity, the founder of the Concerts Populaires has secured for himself an honourable place in the annals of French musical history, which the non-success of his artistic undertakings during the latter end of his career can in no way eliminate.

THE general Committee of the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Festival held a meeting at Norwich Guildhall, on Saturday, the 13th ult., to receive a report from the subcommittee respecting the arrangements made for the approaching Festival. The report, read by Mr. C. R. Gilman, the honorary secretary, stated that arrangements had been made for holding the Festival on the 11th, 12th, 13th, and 14th of October, and that the principal vocalists engaged are Madame Albani, Miss Liza Lehmann, Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Hilda Wilson, and Miss Lena Little; Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Charles Wade, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. Santley, Mr. Alec Marsh, Mr. Brockbank, and Mr. Barrington Foote. Dr. Bunnett is the organist, Dr. Hill is chorus-master, and Mr. Alberto Randegger is the Conductor. The programme is as follows:—Tuesday evening, October 11, "Jubilee Ode" (A. C. Mackenzie); Psalm xix., "The Heavens Declare" (Camille Saint-Saëns); "Hymn of Praise" (Mendelssohn). Wednesday morning, October 12, "The Garden of Olivet" (Bottesini), a devotional Oratorio composed expressly for this Festival, and conducted by the composer; "Stabat Mater" (A. Dvorák). Wednesday evening, October 12, a miscellaneous Concert. Thursday morning, October 13, Oratorio "Isaiah" (Luigi Mancinelli), composed expressly for this Festival, and conducted by the composer; "Fourth Mass" (Cherubini). Thursday evening, October 13, Symphony in F minor, "The Irish" (C. V. Stanford), conducted by the composer; Cantata, "The Golden Legend" (Sir Arthur Sullivan), conducted by the composer. Friday morning, October 14, Oratorio, "The Messiah" (Handel). Friday evening, October 14, dramatic legend, "Faust" (H. Berlioz).

THE second Examination for the Degree of Bachelor in Music of the University of Oxford will commence on Tuesday, October 18, at 10 a.m., in the Schools. In addition to the usual subjects, there will be required a critical knowledge of the full scores of Beethoven's "Fidelio" (including the E major Overture only) and Mozart's Symphony in E flat. Candidates are required to bring the scores with them. The Examination for the Degree of Doctor in Music will commence at the same time and place as the above. Each of the above Examinations will occupy at least two days. Candidates whose exercises have been approved, and who propose to offer themselves for either of these Examinations, are required to give in their names to Mr. George Parker, the Clerk of the Schools, on or before October 1, to pay the statutable fee of £2, and to exhibit their "Testamur" of having passed the previous examination.

ON Monday evening, the 15th ult., the Church of St. Michael's, Folkestone, was crowded to hear an address by the Rev. E. Husband, Incumbent, who is also Organist and Choirmaster, on the subject of "Gounod's Church Music." The address commenced with a short account of the life of the great French composer; and in speaking of the religious spirit with which M. Gounod is endowed, referred to the fact that at one time in his life he had contemplated taking orders in the Church. However, the idea was abandoned, and Gounod was destined to preach the Gospel to his fellowmen, not from a church pulpit, but through the ministry of music, much of which can never die. But Gounod's religious spirit helps to inspire his music. His whole soul is in what he writes. It differs from much that we meet with in the present day which is called by the name of music. But Gounod is no copyist, no imitator, no mechanical musician. He is invested with an individuality and originality which always accompany true genius. "There is the genius of individuality about his compositions which make them just Gounod's music, and a distinct and separate expression of musical inspiration. Of course of Gounod's compositions for the stage, such as his immortal 'Faust,' it is not the place here to speak. I am only to-night speaking of those compositions which have emanated from his fertile pen for use in church. And they are many, and to think of them is at once to bring the soul, as it were, into a garden of the choicest flowers. Who can forget the wonderful orchestration of his works, how an orchestra in his hands becomes an inspiration; such marvellous instrumentation; such solidity of structure; such breadth of tone; such boldness of contrast; such variety of colouring. And who amongst living composers is such a master of melody and of harmony as he; with such startling progressions and modulations, and what I may call harmonious discords. If the orator has the smiles and tears of his audience at his will, so has Gounod, standing on the higher platform of music, a still greater power to move the heart to rejoicing or to tears. So greatly has Gounod's music the power to do this, that sometimes we have heard people say that 'the music is too luscious to be used in church,' or 'too operatic,' whatever they may by these expressions mean. I cannot agree with them. I am not blind to the occasional defects of Gounod's music, nor to an excessive exaggeration at times of style, such as you meet with, for example, in the second part of 'Mors et Vita'; but notwithstanding all defects, Gounod stands out before me as the great living composer of the present day, who has, and is still bequeathing rich legacies of music to the world, that will take their place for all time amongst the classics of musical compositions." Mr. Husband then proceeded to give illustrations of Gounod's music, which were finely sung by the large choir of the church, including "Gallia," "O day of Penitence," "Beside the Cross remaining," from "The Redemption"; "By Babylon's wave," "Judex," from "Mors et Vita"; and a short selection from the "Messe Solennelle." In conclusion Mr. Husband said:—"I hope our rendering of these anthems by the greatest composer of the day will tend to show you that anthems sung in church ought not to be regarded as mere musical performances to be listened to, but that they are preachers of the Gospel, teaching great spiritual truths; full of deep meaning and religious instruction." It may interest our readers to know that since St. Michael's Church was first opened in 1873, Mr. Husband has occupied the exceptional position of being Organist as well as Incumbent of his church, and for this reason the keyboard of the organ (a fine instrument of three manuals, built by Messrs. H. Jones and Son, of South Kensington) has been brought to the side of the Incumbent's stall. Mr. Husband has himself given over 150 Organ Recitals in the church, and the choir, which at the present time numbers nearly fifty voices, renders the best of our Cathedral music in a way not often surpassed by a parish church country choir. We may add that on the 29th ult. another musical Service took place, when Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" and Gounod's Thanksgiving Te Deum were sung, the occasion being a Thanksgiving Service for the extinction of a building fund debt of £9,000, incurred by the enlargement of the church three years ago. On the 29th inst.—the Feast of the Dedication of the Church—Bennett's "Woman of Samaria" will be sung.

ON Sunday, July 17, some interesting Centenary Services were held at the Church of St. John the Baptist, St. John's Square, Clerkenwell, where one hundred years ago the Rev. John Wesley, the Rev. W. Romaine, and the Rev. Rowland Hill preached from the pulpit still in use on behalf of the Finsbury Dispensary, founded in 1780. The sermons and the offertories were in aid of the same object, under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs. The morning preacher was the Rev. Philip Bainbrigge, M.A., Rector of St. Thomas's, Regent Street. The evening preacher was the Rev. Robert Maguire, D.D., Rector of St. Olave's, Southwark. Under the direction of the Rector of St. John's, the Rev. W. Dawson, M.A., careful and complete arrangements were made. The hymns for both services were all Wesley's, by the particular desire of the Rector, the first in the morning being "O for a thousand tongues to sing," and the last in the evening, "Ye servants of God, your Master proclaim." At the end of the book of the Musical Services, by Beethoven and Haydn, interesting biographical notices were given of the Rev. John Wesley, the Rev. W. Romaine, the Rev. Rowland Hill, and others, by R. Moreland, Honorary Secretary. There is also a view of the ancient and beautiful crypt of St. John's, which, though upwards of 700 years old, is yet in excellent preservation. Copies of this most interesting book can still be obtained by applying to the Honorary Secretary, at the Finsbury Dispensary, Brewer Street, Goswell Road, E.C.

THE Borough of Hackney Choral Association will begin the season 1887-88, on October 31, at the Shoreditch Town Hall; Conductor, Mr. Ebenezer Prout, B.A. At the first Concert, the Cantata "The Red Cross Knight" (E. Prout) is to be heard; at the second Concert, on December 12, Mendelssohn's Psalm cxiv., "When Israel out of Egypt came," the Symphony (No. 3) in E flat (Haydn), and the Cantata, "The Bridal of Triermain" (F. Corder), will form the programme. "Elijah" is named for the third Concert, February 6, 1888, and Schumann's Cantata, "Paradise and the Peri," will end the series on March 19, 1888.

THE members of the St. George's Glee Union gave their 222nd Consecutive Monthly Concert on the 5th ult., in the Pimlico Rooms, Warwick Street, S.W. The solo artists were Miss Alice Patten, Miss Susetta Fenn, Mr. Charles Strong, and Mr. George Adams, and Mdlle. Eléonore de Burgh played two pianoforte solos. Part-songs by Mendelssohn, Clarke, Dr. Cooke, Horsley, Elliott, and Bishop were well sung by the choir. Mr. F. R. Kinkee presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

MR. NORTH DALRYMPLE HOME, who died at Clifton on July 3, was an accomplished artist, for some time connected with the German Reed Company. He was born at Long Ashton, in August, 1856. He entered as a student of the Royal Academy of Music, and was engaged as tenor singer by the managers of the German Reed Entertainment. His wife, Marion Wardroper, was a member of the same company. On January 4 he appeared for the last time in the character of the shepherd Hubert, in "The Friar."

MR. ANDREW BLACK, of Glasgow, a pupil of the late J. B. Welch and of Signor Randegger, made a most successful appearance at the Crystal Palace on July 30. He has a fine baritone voice, and sings with earnestness and expression. He also appeared on the 6th and 17th ult., repeating and augmenting his initial success. He only needs experience to become one of the foremost of our British vocalists.

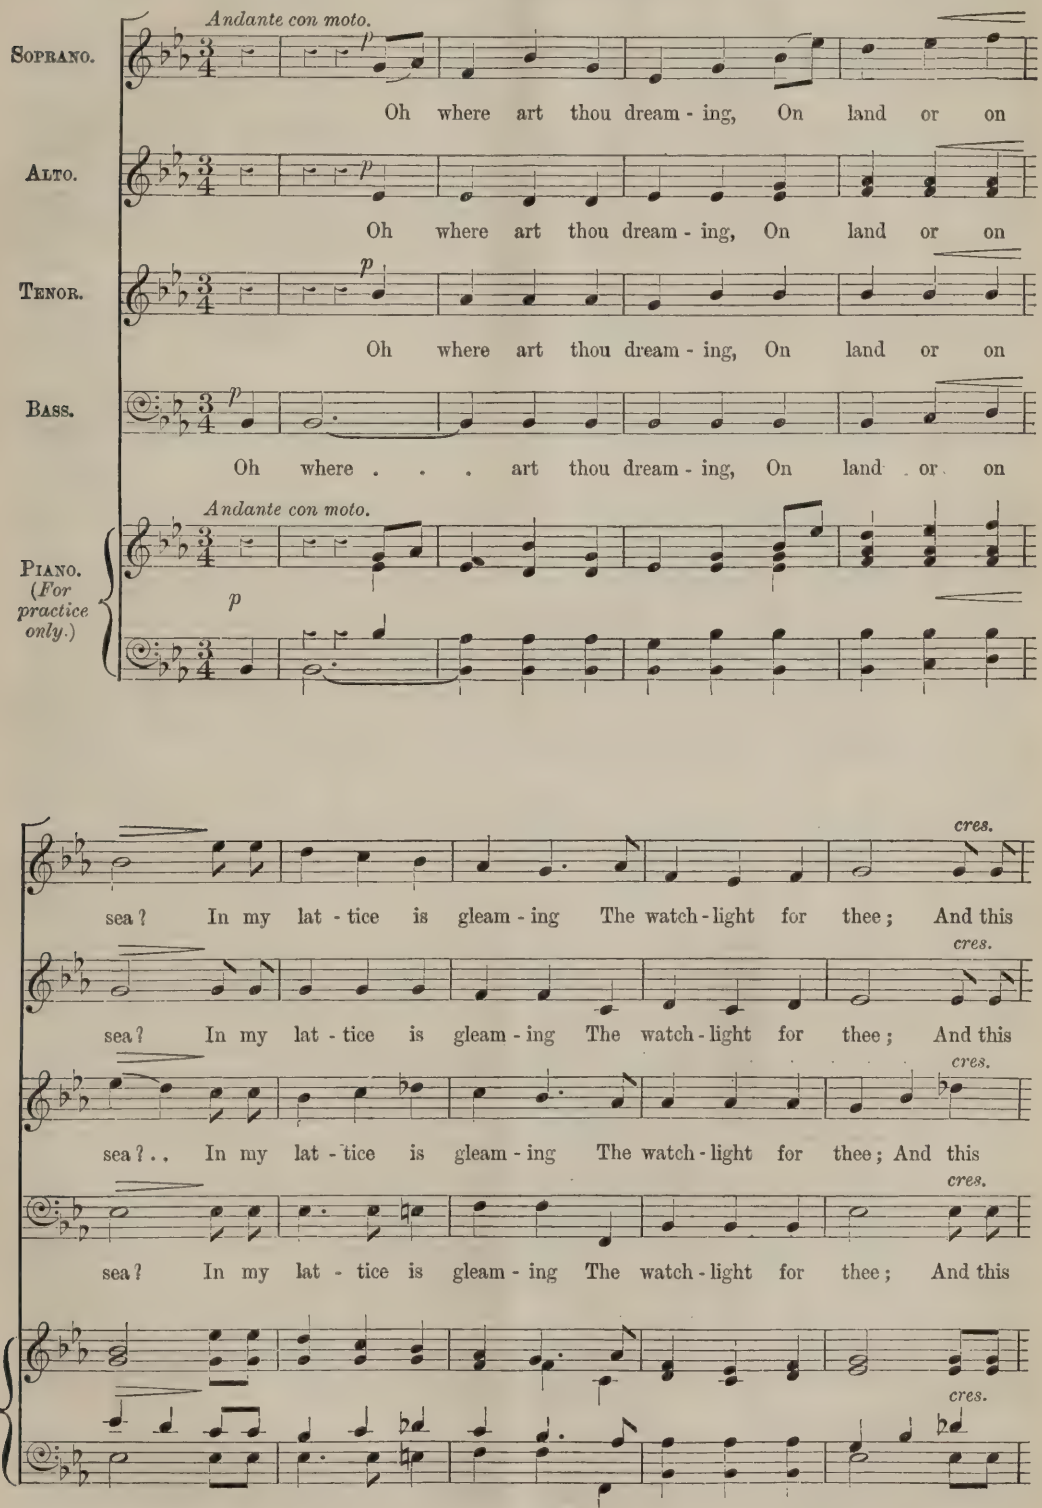
AN Organ Recital was given at Kentish Town, on the 20th ult., upon the enlarged organ in the Church of St. Barnabas, by Mr. H. C. Tonking, Sub-Professor of the Organ, Royal Academy of Music, and Organist of St. Luke's, West Norwood. The programme contained compositions by Bach, Batiste, Gounod, Henselt, Salomé, Stainer, and Widor, and was listened to by a large audience.

Oh where art thou dreaming?

FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by MOORE. Composed by HAMISH MACCUNN.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



Andante con moto.
SOPRANO.
Oh where art thou dream - ing, On land or on
ALTO.
Oh where art thou dream - ing, On land or on
TENOR.
Oh where art thou dream - ing, On land or on BASS.
Oh where . . . art thou dream - ing, On land or on Andante con moto.
PIANO. (For practice only.)
cres.
sea? In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The watch - light for thee; And this sea? In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The watch - light for thee; And this sea? . . In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The watch - light for thee; And this sea? In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The watch - light for thee; And this fond heart is glow - ing To wel - come thee home, And the night is fast go - ing, But thou art not come,— No, thou com - - - est not. 'Tis the time when night flow - ers Should wake from their

not. 'Tis the time . . . . . when night flow - ers Should wake from their rest, 'Tis the hour of all hours When the lute sing - eth

rest, 'Tis the hour of all hours When the lute sing - eth
rest, 'Tis the hour of all hours When the lute sing - eth rest, . . 'Tis the hour of all hours When the lute sing - eth
cres.
f
dim.
best; But the flowers are half sleep - ing Till thy glance they see, And the best; But the flowers are half sleep - ing Till thy glance they see, And the best; But the flowers are half sleep - ing Till thy glance they see, And the best; But the flowers are half sleep - ing Till thy glance they see, And the p poco rall.
dim.
a tempo.
pp
hushed lute is . . keep - ing Its mu - sic for thee,— Yet thou hushed lute is keep - ing Its mu - sic for thee,— Yet thou hushed lute is . . keep - ing Its mu - sic for thee,— Yet thou hushed lute is keep - ing Its mu - sic for thee,— Yet thou

pp
com - - est not, ... thou com - - - - - -
pp
com - - est not, ... thou com - - - - - -
mp espress.
com - - est not, ... Oh where art thou dream - ing, On pp
com - - est not, thou com - - - - - - - - - -
pp
Meno mosso. dim. poco rall.
- - - - est not. . . In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The dim. poco rall.
- - - - est not. . . In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The land or on sea? . . In my lat - tice is gleam - ing The
- - - - est not, . . thou com - - - - - - -
Meno mosso.
dim. poco rall.
Adagio.
watch - light for thee, . . the watch - light for thee. . .
watch - light for thee, . . the watch - light for thee. . .
watch - light for thee, . . the watch - light for thee. . .
- - - - est not, . . thou com - est not. . .
Adagio.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 555, price 1½*d.*

To all you ladies now on land.

CHORAL SONG.

Words by the Earl of Dorset. Composed by Clara Angela Macirone.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1 Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.

Allegro con spirito e ben marcato.

Soprano. Alto. Tenor. Bass. Piano. (ad lib.)

1. To all you la - dies now . . on land We men . . at sea in -
2. In jus - tice you can ne'er re - fuse To think of our dis -
1. To all you la - dies now . . on land We men . . at sea in -
2. In jus - tice you can ne'er re - fuse To think of our dis -

Allegro con spirito e ben marcato.

f

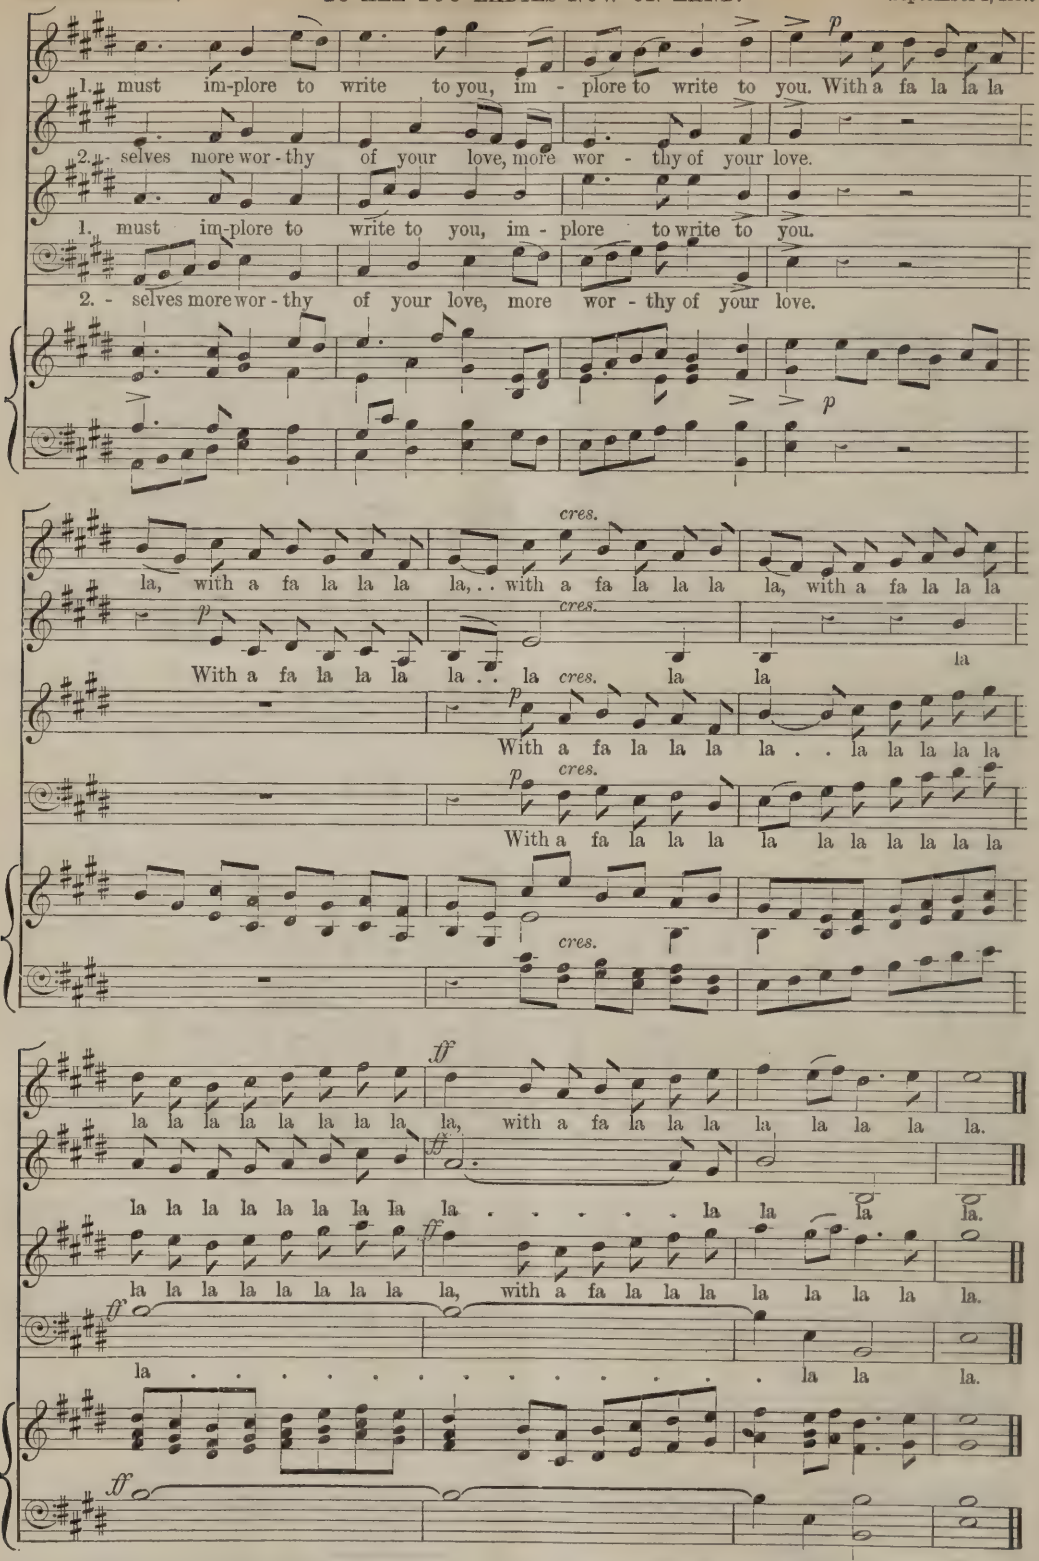
1. - dite, But first would have you un - derstand How hard . . it is to write; The
2. - tress; When we for hopes of hon - our lose Our cer - tain hap - pi - ness: All
1. - dite, But first would have you un - derstand How hard it is to write; The
2. - tress; When we for hopes of hon - our lose Our cer - tain hap - pi - ness; All

mf

cres.

1. Mu - ses now and Nep - tune too, We must im - plore to write, to you, . . we
2. these de - signs are but to prove Our - selves more wor - thy of your love, our -
1. Mu - ses now and Nep - tune too, We must im - plore to write, to you, we
2. these de - signs are but to prove Our - selves more wor - thy of your love. our -

f



1. must im-plore to write to you, im - plore to write to you. With a fa la la la
2. - selves more wor - thy of your love, more wor - thy of your love.
1. must im-plore to write to you, im - plore to write to you.
2. - selves more wor - thy of your love, more wor - thy of your love.
p
cres.
la, with a fa la la la la, . . with a fa la la la la, with a fa la la la
With a fa la la la la . . la cres. la la
With a fa la la la la . . la la la la la
With a fa la la la la la la la la la la
ff
la la la la la la la la la, with a fa la la la la la la la.
la la la la la la la la la . . . . . la la la la.
la la la la la la la la la, with a fa la la la la la la la.
la . . . . . la la la.

3 Then if we write not by each post,
Think not we are unkind,
Nor yet conclude our ships are lost
By Dutchmen or by wind;
Our tears we'll send a speedier way,
The tide shall bring them twice a day.
With a fa la, &c.

4 And now we've told you all our loves,
And likewise all our fears;
In hopes this declaration moves
Some pity for our tears;
Let's hear of no inconstancy,
We have too much of that at sea.
With a fa la, &c.

Dr. C. G. Verrinder, Organist of St. Michael's, Chester Square, and also Organist of the West London Synagogue, Upper Berkeley Street, W., was presented, on Wednesday, June 29, by the choristers of the Synagogue with a handsome gold watch, suitably inscribed, together with an address, in which their high appreciation of Dr. Verrinder's ability and kindness was expressed.

Mrs. Beattie West gave a Pupils' Pianoforte Recital on Friday evening, July 29, in Mallinson Road Lecture Hall, Wandsworth Common. The solos and duets played by the pupils were very much admired, all being played with much taste and expression. The vocal parts were sustained by Miss Winifred Parker and Miss Maude Hayter.

Mr. H. C. Tonking and Mr. B. M. Carrodus are about to make a tour in the West of England, giving Organ and Violin Recitals at most of the important towns. The first will take place in St. John's Hall, Penzance, on the 2nd inst.

An Organ Recital was given at St. John's, Waterloo Road, S.E., on Sunday evening, July 31, by Mr. Henry J. B. Dart, when his programme included works by Haydn, Handel, Lemmens, and Guilmant.

Mr. Thomas Vincent Davies, a young Welsh musician who has lately settled in London, was presented at Pontypridd, on the 6th ult., with an illuminated address and a purse of gold containing £40.

The old-established firm of W. E. Hill and Sons, makers and sellers of violins and bows, will remove their business, at the end of October next, from 72, Wardour Street, to 38, New Bond Street.

Mr. Ernest Birch has been specially engaged to play the part of the Sultan in Cellier's Opera the "Sultan of Mocha," to be revived in the course of the month at the Strand Theatre.

An Organ Recital was given at St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, on the 16th ult., by Mr. Stretton Swann. The programme included works by Batiste, Smart, Rossini, S. Clark, &c.

REVIEWS.

Carmen Sæculare. An Ode for the Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, written by Alfred, Lord Tennyson, and set to music by C. Villiers Stanford. (Op. 26.)
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

It may be necessary to apologise to the reader for sending his thoughts back upon the recent Jubilee, and, if it be necessary, we do apologise accordingly. But he who is most weary of the theme must clearly see that we could not pass over a pièce d'occasion from one so distinguished as Dr. Stanford, to say nothing of the position it holds in right of Court performance and royal patronage. There is, however, no need for prolixity, since a fair idea of the piece can be conveyed through general remarks. Dr. Stanford laid upon himself a heavy task when he undertook musically to illustrate the laureate's official deliverance. It is no part of our present duty to criticise Lord Tennyson's Ode, but we are bound to say that nothing less musical or less adapted for music can be conceived. Poor in matter, awkward in structure, it might well be the despair of the musician. But Dr. Stanford, perhaps, could hardly help himself under the circumstances, and it must be granted that the result is more, in the way of merit, than was probable, and almost all that was possible. The musical structure of the piece is very irregular, in some places quite fragmentary; but this may be regarded as unavoidable. Obviously the composer's first duty was to follow his text through all its rapid changes and Dr. Stanford stood by his obligation with fidelity. At the same time he sought to give something of unity to the work by the frequent introduction of a single motive, heard at the beginning, conspicuous at the end, and present in various forms between the extremes. This, as far as is possible to the device, welds the many short sections of the work into a solid whole, and attains an object, the securing of which was absolutely indispensable. The theme just indicated enters into a short orchestral introduction, and is that of some passages for female voices, on the words "She, beloved for a kindliness rare," &c. Here the motive is happily combined with a jubilant expression of the line "Queen and Empress of India," and with some development that serves to prolong the section in an appropriate manner. After a brief, stately Adagio for male voices in mingled unison and harmony on the words "Nothing of the lawless," &c., the music breaks into Allegro, 6-8, and the male voices, in harmony, have an exordium, "You then, loyally, all of you," leading to a full chorus, "And in each let a multitude." Here a modified form of the central theme, contrapuntally treated, opens a very vigorous and stirring ensemble, largely made up of homophonic and antiphonal passages. It is all too brief, especially as the orchestra gives varied interest by pursuing throughout its joyous 6-8 rhythm. At this point, indeed, the orchestra has more individual work to do than at any other. A soprano solo, "Queen as true to womanhood" follows. It is divided into four sections, each different in important respects of structure and meaning from the rest. They are held together, however, by the always useful central theme, and more than one of them can boast of satisfying beauty. Dr. Stanford's melody is conspicuously good in the third section, "Let the weary be comforted," and elsewhere, while his accompaniment, if sometimes a little strained, is strained only in the direction of suggestiveness—a good fault. The central theme does capital service by way of orchestral interlude, in another fine declamatory passage, "Henry's fifty years are all in shadow," for male voices alone, and also leads up to and opens a full chorus, "All her people, scatter'd o'er an Empire." As a matter of fact, the motive enters now upon what may be called its apotheosis, and is rarely absent in some form or another till the work ends. Dr. Stanford is seen at his best in these closing divisions. The words helped him but little, yet he appears at the full height of his great argument in music there, for his choral writing is of the loftiest. We are fain to congratulate the composer upon this fact and upon the general manner in which he has discharged a task made irksome and well-nigh hopeless by circumstances beyond his control.

Offenbach: Sa vie et son œuvre. Par André Martinet.
[Paris: Dentu et Cie.]

Among the composers of the century, Offenbach occupied a position quite remarkable enough to justify his being made the subject of a biography. In his own sphere his place is unique, and his influence, as the creator of the modern opéra bouffe and the most gifted and successful representative of that species of composition, of extraordinarily wide-reaching extent. Catalani's often quoted remark on Sontag—"Elle n'est pas grande mais elle est grande dans son genre"—is singularly applicable to Offenbach. Or, as M. Joncières remarked of him after his death, "Offenbach a pu écrire de la petite musique, mais c'était un grand artiste." External circumstances, in more than one particular, were singularly propitious to him. He was fortunate in his interpreters; he was still more fortunate in his librettists, being in the case of the greater number of his works associated, not with hack writers of the Grub Street order, but with men of imagination, wit, and scholarship, several of whom in the fields of the drama, fiction, and poetry have earned high repute. Such were Hector Crémieux and, above all others, Meilhac and Ludovic Halévy, the well known authors of "Frou-Frou" as well as of "La Grande Duchesse." Furthermore, from first to last, Offenbach was sheltered by the ægis of Imperialism, spite of occasional differences with the Censorship, and though a German and a Jew he may be said to have summed up in his music the brilliant cynicism of the Second Empire with a completeness which no true-born Parisian ever attained. His career, though chequered by occasional failures, was remarkable for its record of successes. The list of his operettas is indeed formidable, no less than a hundred having been composed between the years 1855 and 1880. His industry was on a par with his inexhaustible fertility, and many of his compositions were thrown off with the speed of improvisations. If his harmony is often thin and his orchestration wanting in body, as a coiner of melodies, not very distinguished perhaps, but full of spirit and humour, animated in rhythm, and occasionally marked by real grace and feeling, he is entitled to serious consideration. The ponderous tirades of the classicists failed entirely of their mark, and just as a savage review will often increase the circulation of a book, Jules Janin's onslaught in the Débats on the tone, musical and moral, of "Orphée aux Enfers" only stimulated the curiosity of the public to see a piece which, strange to say, was coldly received on the opening night. In the controversy which raged around Offenbach the wit was all on his side. As one of his champions remarked, not without point: "M. Berlioz may despise Offenbach's music as much as ever he likes; he won't make his own any the better appreciated. Until there is established at the Polytechnic School a special class of Berliozometry, where it will be demonstrated that the three angles of a harmony are equal to two melodies, the high-flying music of M. Berlioz has no chance of being respected." For all these reasons, as we have admitted at the outset, Offenbach deserved his biography, and it is greatly to be regretted that the work before us should have been executed in a spirit of indiscriminate partisanship rather than that of sober criticism. As a chronicle of facts, M. Martinet's pages are curious and interesting, though the jerky telegraphic style of the writer is excessively trying. But the critical value of the work is nil. It is one unmitigated panegyric. In winning immediate popularity, perhaps no other composer ever approached Offenbach. Such unfailing tact in hitting the taste or the fashion of the day, though a valuable commercial quality, is hardly the best guarantee for abiding and immortal fame such as M. Martinet claims for his hero. From the many anecdotes with which his pages bristle we may extract the following: "Les Deux Aveugles," with which Offenbach had scored his first success as a manager as well as a composer in 1855, had attracted the curiosity of the Emperor, who ordered a performance to be given at the Tuileries. "A stage was erected in the salon de Diane, and Offenbach conducted his orchestra before a brilliant audience blazing with diamonds. Their Majesties were in the front row, and near to them Count Bacciochi, the Grand Chamberlain, armed with his wand. Pradeau and Berthelier [the representatives of the "two blinds"], at the thought of this imposing audience, felt a thousand confusing apprehensions awaken in their hearts. Would they not find in them judges at least as critical as those at the general rehearsal? What effect would this long burst of laughter have before the sovereigns? The famous duet was barely finished when, with a terrified gesture, Pradeau pointed out to his companion M. Bacciochi, signalling to them and vehemently waving his arm. There could be no more doubt about it. Their sinister presages were realised. The Empress was evidently ordering the piece to be stopped; so, armed, the one with his trombone, the other with his guitar, Pradeau and Berthelier left the stage, to the profound amazement of those present. The Chamberlain, in dismay, rushed after them, found them in the "Salle des Maréchaux," and breathless with emotion, in language variegated with Italian, informed them that the gesture which had alarmed them so much was intended 'per bisser'" (i.e., as a signal for an encore). M. Martinet gives an amusing picture in one of the later chapters of the Friday evening parties at Offenbach's house, at which all sorts of musical absurdities were enacted by Bizet, Gustave Doré, Délibes, and other friends. We read how, on one occasion, a "Farmyard Symphony" was performed, in which the last-named composer created a furore by his rendering of "The return of the little dog whose foot has been trodden on." Two features in Offenbach's character which especially command respect were his generosity and his indomitable capacity for work, which neither suffering nor the approach of death could abate. The volume is prefaced by a characteristic portrait of the composer in which his hawklike glance, the terror of many superstitious Italians, is well reproduced.

Eighteen Songs. With pianoforte accompaniment. Composed by Hermann Goetz (Op. 4, 12, and 19). The English version by the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ANYTHING from the pen of Hermann Goetz—the gifted one who died all too soon for his fame and his art—comes with special welcomeness, and here we have a timely and handy selection from his best songs, such as cannot fail to meet with approval. It is hardly necessary to point out the qualities of Goetz as a song-writer. In the Lied, as in other forms of art, he belongs essentially to the German school; he appears to have modelled his form and character upon the form and character of Robert Franz, and to have cultivated with great success the blending on equal terms of voice and instrument, as well as the habit of sacrificing something of lyric beauty to an intellectual conception of the poetic text. A refined and musicianly taste, together with general culture, is essential to the proper reception of the songs before us, but there is in them that which, to some extent or other, all amateurs can appreciate and enjoy. Opus 4 comprises six songs, the verses being German translations from, or paraphrases of, Italian national lyrics. We need scarcely say that there is nothing distinctively Italian in the music, which represents the composer's characteristics in the strictest sense. The subject of each is love, and if, in some cases, the music lacks the strength of the words, it is always suggestive and thoughtful. A certain stiffness of phrasing appears now and then, and one is tempted to conclude from this and other indications that Goetz took upon himself to express the strongest of passions before having himself experienced it. There are occasions, however, when he comes nearly up to the mark, as, for example, in No. 4, "The Swallow." No. 6, in which a young girl tells how she longed for a musical lover, and at last gained a fiddler husband, proves that Goetz was by no means deficient in humour. Opus 12 also includes six songs, words by various German writers. These compositions are, as a rule, more largely developed than those in Op. 4, and many amateurs may reckon them as conspicuously more valuable. No. 1, "The Secret," suggests Schubert in manifest fashion, partaking largely of that composer's lyrical beauty and, on occasion, frank geniality. It will be a favourite everywhere. No. 2, "The Gentle Touch," abounds in pathos that deepens into solemnity, and is, musically, altogether beautiful. No. 3, "The Passage Bird," ranks with No. 1 in fulness of development, while each of the remaining examples presents features, technical or expressive, which lift it far above the common order. The final set of six songs (Op. 19), words by several German authors, presents again the beauties already indicated, in combination with proofs that the composer's genius underwent continuous and rapid development. Without going further into details, we heartily recommend this book to amateurs who have learned to appreciate German song. They will find in it abundance of matter upon which to dwell with delight.

Notes and Notions on Music. By N. Kilburn, Mus. Bac., Cantab. [James Burns.]

THE author, in his preface, tells us that his Notes are "the outcome of practical experience, rather than the ideas of a mere student." His first article, or note, informs us that "it is commonly believed that genius is always original," and he then gives parallel passages from different composers in musical notes to show that there is "a kind of common fund out of which composers help themselves whenever their own fount of inspiration fails." These things and others are stated in a lofty oracular form, as though they were new discoveries, and that, until our author condescended to enter upon the scene, the world knew nothing of them. Most musicians will be extremely grateful to our author for his kindness in placing before them such new facts as that Beethoven was deaf, that Macfarren is blind, that Mozart was a great and wonderful genius, that Mendelssohn had a great faculty for extemporising at the piano, and that Wagner uses the most advanced musical means. These are facts which it would seem have never been stated in print before. Who is there among us who, after reading the chapter on "Musical Culture," will not feel a glow of pride at being told that it "augurs well for the future of musical England that such compositions as 'The Messiah,' the 'Creation,' and 'Elijah' continue to hold so firm a place in the esteem and affection of the people"? These are "brave 'ords at the bridge," but here are braver: "Yet it should be borne in mind that music does not end with the oratorio." There are many literary men, of considerable position in the world of art, who devote their lives to the investigation of humble matters, but who bring to their aid all the resources of education. Men who take, perhaps, a humble ballad as a theme, and invest it with the glow of classic lore. These men find a stone and leave a diamond. Others there are who become fascinated with the charm of the diction of the casual reporter, vulgo dicto "penny-a-liner," and find their best modes of expression in rhodomontade and metonymy. Fire is "a devouring element," water falling from an overturned pail "rushes with an uncontrolled impetuous force," the noise of a sack of coals cast down a shoot "rends the air with deafening reverberations," and so forth. Our author offers "the outcome of practical experience" in a manner only equalled by the process adopted by those who desire to instruct the female ancestor of one of their parents in the art of extracting the albuminous and other contents of the ovum of the gallus domesticus, by the process of imbibition. When we are told in the grandiloquent descriptions of the three oratorios named above, that the Hallelujah Chorus, Niagara-like, defies description, that in Mendelssohn's "and he went by a whirlwind into heaven," "one is almost borne away by the impetuosity of this resistless Tone-tempest," or that "the fact that our popular taste has clung to works like these, testifies to a latent musical capacity which, laid bare by more diligent practice and study," we are humbled by a superior presence in literature, and we feel crushed and humiliated, and find how hollow everything else written on the subject of music has been. In mercy to that which exists, we implore the author to give no more "Notes and Notions" for the present, lest we be absolutely annihilated; for, insects as we are, our lives are sweet to us.

The Choral Society. By L. C. Venables. [Curwen and Sons.]

In this neatly printed little book there are some twenty-three chapters setting forth the various details of the formation and conduct of choral societies, with directions and instructions for their business management and so forth. There are also instructions concerning the choice and classification of voices, the direction of rehearsals, the selection of music, arrangement of programmes, the management of concerts, the engagement of soloists, tuning, accompaniments, how to retain members, choral competitions, men's voice societies, hints to conductors, and a number of other matters of a valuable and useful character. The whole is probably derived from experience, and although the matters cannot in the nature of things sublunary be made applicable to all cases, those who are interested in the subject and are seeking some such work for their own guidance will doubtless be able to adapt the suggestions to fit their own requirements. In this respect the little book will be found most useful and handy, and may be safely recommended for perusal and preservation. There are many interesting references to work done at home and abroad, but they can only be regarded as of lesser importance compared with the practical part of the book. The writer has much to say about the Tonic Sol-fa notation, and its advocated advantages. This is of course to be expected, but his book will be more sought after for his commonsense remarks concerning the formation and maintenance of choral societies than for the expression of his own and other views on the subject of musical systems.

Come now, and let us reason. By Herbert W. Wareing. (Octavo Anthems, No. 314.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Although the composer of this anthem is a musical graduate, it contains very little display of counterpoint, melodic interest being apparently his principal aim. Thus it commences with a flowing chorus in 6-4 time, to which succeeds a very expressive soprano (or tenor) air and chorus, a third chorus somewhat like the first, but rather more vigorous, bringing the work to an effective conclusion.

Alternative Tunes to Familiar Hymns. By John A. Macmeikan, M.A. [Hart and Co.]

This is a series of some twenty-two tunes to words already associated with other melodies. They are well and thoughtfully written, and may be used as a change by those who admit the pleasure arising from variety.

Album of Short Classical Pieces, for Piano. Arranged and Fingered by William Smallwood. [Joseph Williams.]

All persons who desire that young pianists should become acquainted with classical pieces will, we are certain, welcome a collection of the minor works of the great composers in a cheap form; and we must say that in the Album before us are some well chosen little gems, carefully arranged and fingered. But we must object to presenting fragments of compositions without any acknowledgment that they are fragments. For example, one page, containing merely the theme of Dussek's well-known piece, is headed "La Consolation—Dussek." In another volume of similar character, noticed by us some short time since, the whole of the composition, minus the Introduction, was given. Now in either of these cases how can a juvenile student become acquainted with the piece as Dussek wrote it? It may be said that masters would probably explain the matter to their pupils; but many professors would not think of doing so; and it must also be remembered that amateurs purchase these Albums, and play their contents without any communication with a teacher. The objection we have named also applies with considerable force to the extract called "Andante in F—Beethoven," which (apart from its conveying no idea that it commences a lengthy piece) having no distinctive title—save to musicians, who are accustomed to hear it so-named—is likely to be confounded with any other Andante in F by the same composer. Some of the little pieces, however, are complete in themselves, and all are abstractedly excellent themes to linger over.

The Treasury. Compiled and edited by Joseph B. Mead. [Published by the Trustees.]

It is pleasant to note that the great reform in the music of the sanctuary which has taken place in the Church of England within the last generation or two is now finding its echo in the ranks of dissent. That our Nonconformist brethren were somewhat slow to move in this matter was by no means surprising, for many reasons; but they now seem fairly alive to the necessity of keeping with the times, and have apparently grasped the truth that music, to be reverential, need not be wholly inartistic. The present work, intended primarily for the use of the Baptist denomination, consists of over 600 tunes, and a few chants, anthems, &c. From the preface we gather that few of the tunes appear for the first time, but the collection is very comprehensive, and the editing shows a praiseworthy amount of musicianly care and taste. It is said that "a very few have been included more from their general popularity and the hold they have obtained than from their intrinsic musical value." This probably refers to such tunes as Helmsley, Miles Lane, &c., in which case it does not matter very much, as there are alternatives to these vulgar melodies. But is it possible that any devotional feeling can still be aroused by such trivial, flippant compositions as Jackson's Te Deum in F, "I will arise," and "Vital spark"? These survivals from the dark days of sacred music might surely be replaced by worthier pieces—if not by modern composers, at any rate by our grand old composers, such as Tallis, Farrant, Bird, or Gibbons.

Albums for Violin and Pianoforte. (No. 6.) Hungarian Dances. Transcribed by Siegfried Jacoby. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

It is safe to prophesy that there will be a large demand for this welcome addition to the Novello Albums. The book contains eight examples of Hungarian dance melodies, each of which may be found in the selection arranged for four hands, by Brahms, and, subsequently, by Joachim for violin and pianoforte. If it be asked why, since Joachim has transcribed the themes for the same instruments, Mr. Jacoby has done a superfluous deed, the answer is that there are players and players. The great violinist's version presents difficulties which are prohibitive to the vast majority of amateurs; Mr. Jacoby, on the other hand, has taken the beautiful tunes, laid them out simply, with an equally unexacting accompaniment, and so placed them within the reach of very moderate performers. That they will be extensively used and much valued in amateur circles we do not for a moment doubt.

Juvenile Album. Eight Characteristic Pieces (four hands). (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Pianoforte Albums, No. 26.) By Berthold Tours.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

In this addition to the Pianoforte Albums the firm produces a new edition of a clever and valuable work. There are eight characteristic pieces for four hands, the primo part being generally within the compass of five notes. Each is distinguished by a personal name, such as Hector, Grace, &c., as though it was intended to typify some child-like character indicated by the title. By these means a considerable amount of variety is obtained, while the object of education is kept steadily in view. Little hands may perform the upper part, while more experienced fingers are required for the accompanying harmonies. These are set forth with the greatest possible artistic skill and musicianly feeling, so that the duets will serve a higher purpose than that of utilising the limited powers of young players. They will literally educate; that is to say, will lead out the minds of the pupils and develop the taste for the enjoyment of more ambitious efforts. In this respect they are worthy of the highest commendation.

Twelve Single Chants, &c. By Robert Brown-Borthwick.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The composition of an effective single chant, simple as it may appear because of its limits, is by no means an easy thing. So many have been written by many musicians, that it is difficult to find a sufficiently new succession of notes to form an original melody, without exceeding the needful compass which should confine it. In this respect the composer of these chants may be congratulated upon his success. The chants are good, capitally harmonised, and quite within the range of ordinary capacities. The double chant written for Psalms xiii. and xxxviii. is very pleasing, but the treble part exceeds the bounds of an octave, which many count a fault in this form of church melody. A chant for the Benedicite, and the Dresden Amen, with two Responsive Amens, in which the original melody has been inverted and variously harmonised, are likewise cleverly and effectively done.

Espérance. Rêverie Caprice. Impromptu Hongroi. Marche Arabe. Pour Piano, par Polydore de Vos.
[Edwin Ashdown.]

Although all these pieces show much freedom in writing, and a thorough knowledge of what may be termed "drawing-room" effects on the pianoforte, they are by no means equal in merit. "Espérance," though based upon an attractive theme, is both conventional and monotonous. The "Impromptu Hongrois" is very much better, and indeed may be made effective by a good player; but the "Marche Arabe" is the best of all. Here we have decided character; and if the key—E flat minor—do not prove a barrier to its general acceptance, it should become extremely popular, especially as it is by no means difficult of execution.

Missa Cœlestis. By Arthur Henry Brown.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The title of this work suggests the idea that it is a setting of the Roman Catholic Mass, but such is not the case. It is merely an extremely simple Communion Service with the traditional intonations for the Sursum Corda, the prefaces for festivals, &c. Mr. A. H. Brown has produced a quantity of music specially adapted for churches where high ritual prevails, and we have no doubt the present service will meet the needs of many places where elaborate music is neither possible nor desirable, his original portions being as little ornate as can well be imagined.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. By Alfred J. Dye.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Though there is nothing remarkably original in this setting of the Evening Canticles, it is a good scholarly piece of work in the orthodox English Church style. There are no solos, and the writing, both for voices and accompaniments, is studiously simple. The most effective portion is the Nunc dimittis.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C. By Henry Cohen.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The title page informs us that this service was written for Jubilee celebrations, and it is dedicated to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. It is rather a curious setting, being partly in simple four-part harmony, partly in melodic unisonal phrases, and partly in recitation or monotone. The mixture of style extends to the accompaniment, which, for the most part severely simple, occasionally takes the form of ornamental arpeggios. These matters, however, need not be regarded as defects, and, on the whole, Mr. Cohen's service is certainly effective and by no means difficult.

A Message to Phyllis. Glee for four voices. By Gerard F. Cobb. (Op. 12.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

To this glee was awarded a prize offered by the South London Musical Club. Mr. Cobb's compositions are always musicianly, and he has set Thomas Heywood's quaint lines in a very appropriate manner, the voice parts abounding in old fashioned figures of imitation, while the accompaniment is, for the most part, independent, and in the peroration it greatly aids the effect. Glee societies will be glad to make the acquaintance of this excellent example of a school of music more distinctly English than any other.

Lead Thou me on. Sacred Song. Written by Cardinal Newman.
The Carver. Song. Words by Frederic E. Weatherly. Composed by Theodore W. Barth. [Weekes and Co.]

Mr. Barth has an evident feeling for sacred music, his first song, although extremely unpretentious, being in excellent sympathy with the verses. "The Carver" has a bold and characteristic subject in D minor, to which the theme, in the relative major, forms a good contrast; but we question whether the music happily expresses the kneeling "in silent prayer" which afterwards nerves the sculptor to his work. The song has, however, many good points.

Jerusalem, my Happy Home. Hymn. Set to music by James A. Moonie. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This is a setting of the old popular hymn, which brings it within the range of the anthem or cantata. A short introduction, quasi-recitative, for a soprano voice, to words selected from the Bible version of the 84th Psalm, precedes the music to the hymn, which is set in four-part harmony with an accompaniment. The music is good and expressive, and may be used at either public or private devotions.

Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. By the Rev. E. V. Hall. (Octavo Anthems, No. 316.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This is a seasonable anthem, being intended primarily for Harvest Thanksgivings, though it is equally suitable for general use. The composer, who is Precentor of Worcestor Cathedral, writes in a solid, straightforward manner, avoiding difficulties of every kind. The most pleasing section is a solo for tenor or soprano. The whole concludes with the Old Hundredth Doxology.

Awake, put on Thy strength. By James Loaring.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This little anthem is specially suitable to the Advent season, which will soon be with us once more. The composer knows the art of gaining effects by simple means, his music being as pleasing and melodious as it is unpretentious. The anthem may be recommended to the notice of choirmasters whose forces are of modest capabilities.

Morning Service in the Key of D for Four Voices. By Henry J. B. Dart. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The composer has aimed at simplicity in the setting of the Te Deum and Jubilate, and by not introducing effects which may be inconsistent with his object has produced a setting which is not deficient in dignified reverence. Church choirs of unambitious tendencies will be glad to add this Service to their répertoires.

A Summer Day-Dream. For Pianoforte. By Tobias A. Matthay. [London Music Publishing Company.]

To any pianist who can feel 10-8 rhythm, this piece will speak most eloquently, for it is both well written and melodious, although in parts the harmonies are somewhat forced. We confess, however, to a non-comprehension of the meaning of the two minims in the bar at the conclusion.

Ariosti's Gavotte in D. Arranged for the pianoforte by Edwin M. Lott. [Edwin Ashdown.]

We particularly recommend all lovers of this class of music to study Ariosti's charming Gavotte, the fresh melodiousness of which will delight every listener. It is excellently arranged, and makes an extremely effective pianoforte piece, even for a modern drawing-room audience.

FOREIGN NOTES.

The centennial performances of Mozart's operatic chef d'œuvre, "Don Giovanni," were inaugurated, on the 20th ult., by an excellent production of the work at Salzburg, under the auspices of the "Mozarteum," and under the direction of Dr. Hans Richter. The Court Theatre, which was profusely decorated for the occasion, was densely crowded, among those present being many persons distinguished in the musical world. The performance was a great success, and the ladies and gentlemen of the Salzburg Amateur Choir, who took part therein, were warmly applauded. The solo parts were cast as follows: Don Giovanni, Herr Reichmann; Donna Anna, Frau Marie Wilt; Donna Elvira, Fräulein Marie Lehmann; Don Ottavio, Herr Heinrich Vogl; Leporello, Herr Staudigl; Masetto, Herr B. Felix; Zerlina, Signora Bianca-Bianchi. Similar commemorative performances are contemplated at all the leading operatic establishments of Germany next month, the opera having been first produced on October 29, 1787, at Prague. On that memorable occasion the playbills made the announcement in the following terms:—"Oggi per la prima volta Don Giovanni ossia il Dissoluto punito. Drama giocoso in due atti con balli analoghi. Parole del Sign. Abbate da Ponte, musica del celebre maestro Sign. Amadeo Mozart. Personaggi: Don Giovanni, Sign. Luigi Bassi; Il Commendatore, Sign. Gius. Lolli; Donna Anna, Signora Teresa Saporiti; Donna Elvira, Signora Cat. Miceli; Leporello, Sign. Felice Penziani; Zerline, Signora Teresina Bondini; Masetto, il suo sposo, Sign. Gius. Lolli. Cori di cantadine, dami, damigelle, popolo, Ballabili di cantadine," &c. At the Cologne Stadt-Theater, the festival performance of "Don Giovanni" is to be in strict accordance with the first production of the work in German, at Vienna (1792), which included two comic scenes between the Don and some emissaries of police on the one hand, and with some of his creditors on the other; both these additional scenes are, as a matter of curiosity, to be revived on the occasion named. The total number of performances of "Don Giovanni" at the Vienna Hof-Theater, since 1788, is stated to be 470. A new freely rendered German version of Da Ponte's libretto has just been published from the pen of Herr Max Kalbeck, and has met with considerable appreciation, having already been adopted by several operatic stages of the Fatherland. This is a fresh proof of the extraordinary vitality of Mozart's masterpiece. "Don Giovanni" was first produced in London, at the King's Theatre, on April 12, 1817.

The Imperial Opera of Vienna re-opened its doors on the 18th ult., with a performance of "Carmen." During the recess the arrangements for the introduction of the electric light had been completed, and the effect of the new illumination is said to be very fine. The lighting of the stage, too, excited much admiration. "The actors," a correspondent writes, "seemed to stand out more boldly than formerly, and the effect of the scenery was greatly enhanced. When the singers came forward, in obedience to the calls of the audience, various coloured lights were thrown upon them. The audience were very warm in their applause. The same system is to be applied to all the theatres, public buildings, and large palaces in central Vienna." The Dresden Hof-Theater opened its new season on the 1st ult., with Weber's "Freischütz."

According to the Allgemeine Musik Zeitung, there is every prospect of "Die Meistersinger" being included with next year's festival performances at Bayreuth, in alternation with "Tristan und Isolde," and, of course, "Parsifal." Capellmeister Nikisch, of Leipzig, will most likely conduct the performances, in the room of Herr Levi, of Munich, whose official engagements will not permit of his wielding the bâton at the Bayreuth Theatre next year.

It is said that Herr Stägemann, the director of the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, is contemplating the production next season of Mendelssohn's Oratorio "St. Paul" as a stage performance, with scenery and costumes.

Samara's successful opera "Flora Mirabilis" is to be brought out, for the first time in Germany, at the Cologne Theatre next season.

Another complete performance of Wagner's "Nibelungen" Tetralogy is announced to take place from the 6th to the 11th inst., at the Dresden Hof-Theater. A similar performance was recently most successfully concluded (both artistically and financially) at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater.

The directors of the Berlin Concerthaus have opened the following competition, in which composers of every nationality may take part—viz., for an orchestral symphony, three prizes of 1,000, 500, and 300 marks; and for an orchestral suite three prizes, of 600, 400, and 200 marks respectively. Manuscripts are to be addressed, not later than November 1 of the current year, to the directors of the above institution, Leipziger Strasse, No. 48, Berlin.

Berlioz's Opera "Beatrice et Benedict" is to be produced at the Carlsruhe Hof-Theater during next winter, under the direction of Herr Felix Mottl, and with the German version of the libretto by Richard Pohl. This interesting work, written by the composer for Baden-Baden, and first produced there in 1862, has not since been performed in Germany, and its projected revival is looked forward to with much interest. Berlioz was his own librettist, the subject of the opera, as its title indicates, being founded upon Shakespeare's "Much Ado about Nothing."

According to the annual report, just published, of the Cologne Musikschule (Conservatorium), under the direction of Professor Wüllner, 293 pupils of both sexes have frequented that institution during the past scholastic year. The above number includes twenty-eight non-Germans, and amongst them nine natives of Great Britain.

Massenet's opera "Le Cid" will be the principal novelty this season at the Frankfurt Stadt-Theater, where also a cycle of Mozart's operas is to be given in commemoration of the "Don Giovanni" Jubilee.

Dr. Hans von Bülow has undertaken to conduct a series of Subscription Concerts at the "Künstlerverein" of Bremen during the coming winter.

We read in the Leipzig Signale that the few fragments and sketches of a comic opera, "Die drei Pintos," found among the posthumous papers of Carl Maria von Weber, have been entrusted by the composer's grandson to a young Leipzig Capellmeister, Herr Mahler, who has undertaken to complete the work "entirely in the spirit of the master," and that the performance has already been promised by the director of the Leipzig Stadt-Theater. The result may be looked forward to with some interest, as it seems scarcely so easy a matter to write "in the spirit of a great master."

The German War Office has ordered the introduction in the military bands of the Empire of the so-called Paris diapason (a = 870 simple vibrations). The arrangements for this purpose are to be complete throughout the army by August 1, 1891.

Wagner's "Der fliegende Holländer" has just been produced, for the first time, at Buenos Ayres, by an Italian company, and has been enthusiastically received. The work will also be performed, by the same company, at Montevideo, Santiago de Chile, and Rio de Janeiro.

Herr August Wilhelmj, the eminent violinist, is about to transfer his permanent residence from Wiesbaden to the German capital.

A statue of Johann Nepomuk Hummel, by the eminent sculptor, Professor Victor Tilgner, is to be shortly unveiled at the pianist-composer's native town of Pressburg.

M. Gounod's new Mass, à la mémoire de Jeanne d'Arc, has met with most favourable criticism in French papers; the Prelude and the Benedictus being considered the most valuable and effective numbers of the score. According to a notice contained in German papers, M. Gounod's new work is to be performed ere long at Berlin.

Mdlle. Henriette Renié, a youthful aspirant to musical fame, gained the first prize for harp playing at the examination lately held by the Paris Conservatoire. The composition selected for the occasion was Charles Oberthür's concertino for harp and orchestra. Mdlle. Renié is only eleven years of age.

The manager of the Paris Odéon, the second Théâtre Français, intends during the coming season to produce "Esther," "Athalie," and "L'Arlésienne," and M. Lamoureux, who came to such an untimely fate owing to his attempt to introduce Richard Wagner's "Lohengrin" to Parisians, will lend his orchestra for all the proposed representations.

At the Imperial Opera of St. Petersburg, the following novelties by Russian composers are to be mounted during next season—viz., "Undine," by Dargomiszki; "Don Juan," by Bovis Scheel, and a new opera by Tschaikowsky.

Anton Rubinstein's project respecting the establishment of a national Russian Opera is to be realised in the coming winter, when the performances will be inaugurated by an operatic work from his own pen.

An opera, "Colomba," by Signor Radeglia, has recently been produced with much success at the Teatro dal Verme, of Milan.

A prize of 5,000 lire has been offered by the municipality of Bologna for the composition of a new opera; the successful work to be produced at that art-loving town with every possible care and liberality during next season.

Lighting by electricity is fast becoming the rule now in Continental opera houses. At Madrid, indeed, an order has just been issued according to which no theatre is to be opened next season in the Spanish capital unless it be provided with the electric means of lighting.

Verdi, Italian papers state, has caused a small asylum for aged paupers to be built at Sant' Agáta, near his native place, Roncole, which is to be opened on the 9th prox., the seventy-fourth birthday of the Maëstro.

Signor Passaglia, the eminent sculptor, has been entrusted with the execution of a design for a monument to Rossini, to be erected in the Church of Santa Croce, at Florence.

The seventeenth Musical Festival of Holland took place last month, at Nimeguen, and was very successful. Madame Minnie Hauk, who sang selections from "Lohengrin," "Manon," and "Mignon," met with a most enthusiastic reception, of which the principal features were a torchlight procession, a serenade, and the presentation of an address. In return for the address, Madame Minnie Hauk sang the Dutch National Hymn in Dutch, greatly delighting the people.

Byron's "Manfred" is being translated into Hungarian, and will shortly be produced, with Schumann's music, at the opera house of Buda-Pesth.

The German Opera of New York will open its doors on November 2, with a performance of "Tristan und Isolde." Among other works that will obtain a hearing during the season (extending over sixteen weeks) may be instanced "Der Ring des Nibelungen" (with the exception of "Rheingold"), "Tannhäuser," "Die Meistersinger," "Rienzi" (Wagner), "Fidelio" (Beethoven), "Euryanthe" (Weber), "Fernando Cortez" (Spontini), "Merlin" (Goldmark), and "Aïda" (Verdi)—assuredly a worthy programme. Mesdames Lilli Lehmann, Krauss, and Marianne Brandt, and Herren Alvary, Emil Fischer, Elmblad, and Niemann are amongst the artists whose co-operation the energetic director, Mr. Stanton, has been able to secure.

Johannes Strauss has completed a new opera entitled "Simplicius."

One of the violins made by Amati for Louis XIV., has just been sold at Buda-Pesth for £700.

A new operetta, "Don Pedro dei Medina," by the young Maëstro Paolo Lanzini, was brought out at the Teatro Pezzana, of Milan, and was exceedingly well received, being, it is said, a very melodious work.

Our esteemed French contemporary, Le Ménestrel, more fortunate than the great majority of its confrères, has decreed itself a doubtless well deserved holiday, having suspended its issue from August 7 to the 10th inst.

Herr Carl Formes, the once famous basso, and of late years a professor of singing at San Francisco, has forwarded the manuscript of his "Lebens-Errinnerungen" to his native Cologne, where it will shortly be published.

A small biographical volume on Karl Loewe has just been published (Leipzig: Max Hesse) from the pen of Herr August Wellmer. The revival in recent years of the interest in this composer's music, more especially in his powerful balladen, is a curious and interesting fact; Loewe's music, at one time so popular, having been almost forgotten at the time of his death, in 1869.

Recent numbers of the Berlin Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung contain an interesting series of articles, founded upon authentic material, concerning Richard Wagner's stay at Zurich during his years of exile, from 1849 to 1858. The author of the articles, which throw some new light upon this most trying period in the poet-composer's life, is Herr A. Heintz, the able commentator of Wagnerian music-dramas.

M. Adolphe Jullien is just now engaged upon an important work entitled "Hector Berlioz, sa vie et ses œuvres," which is to form a pendant in every respect to the same author's magnificent work on Richard Wagner.

Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, have just published the Passion according to St. Luke, with the music, which is considered, by competent authorities, to be an early composition of Sebastian Bach. This is the first time the work has appeared in print.

A biography of Rossini, from the pen of a personal friend and frequent companion of the composer, M. Michatte, is just now being published in book form at Rome, it having previously appeared in the columns of the Fanfulla.

The death is announced at Paris, at the age of sixty, of Madame Massart, for many years a highly esteemed professor of the pianoforte at the Conservatoire. Among the younger generation of her many pupils may be mentioned Mdlle. Clotilde Kleeberg.

M. Leforrestier, a well-known Paris professor of singing, recently deceased, has bequeathed the whole of his not inconsiderable fortune to the establishment of a fund out of which temporary provision shall be made for young ladies whose hopes of entering upon a brilliant operatic career have been rudely dispelled, and who, not unfrequently, find themselves in precarious circumstances in consequence. The curators of this excellent foundation are not likely to find their office a sinecure.

We have also to record the death at Dresden, on July 24, of Ferdinand Hüllweck, first violinist of the Royal orchestra, and a much esteemed professor of his instrument at the Dresden Conservatorium. The deceased artist was born in 1824, at Dessau.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DENMAN'S LORD'S PRAYER.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In answer to the question of "Inquirer," in The Musical Times, I beg to say that the Lord's Prayer, with music by Denman, and also the Creed, by the same composer, were published in Whitaker's "Seraph"; a collection of sacred music, which about sixty years ago was much esteemed by lovers of melodious and tastefully arranged Psalmody. If "Inquirer" needs a copy, and cannot meet with the music elsewhere, I could furnish him with a written one, if that will answer his purpose.

Yours truly,

C. Oldershaw.

3, St. Martin's East, Leicester, August 16, 1887.

[Replies to the like effect from A.L.C., W. P. Tait, H. R., Index, and Santa Maria.—Ed. Musical Times.]

DOUBTFUL DEGREES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In a paragraph in your issue of August 1, referring to Professor Crouch having been elected "Fellow of the London Society of Arts" (according to an American paper), you say:—"We have enquired of the said Society's Secretary and he denies all knowledge of the matter"; and further, that "it is suggested that there is some bogus society which, for a consideration, allows its subscribers to append an assortment of letters to their names, and so delude the world into the belief that they are members of a bonâ fide learned or scientific society"; and you ask your readers for further information.

I beg to say that there is a Society of Science, Letters, and Art in London, which for a consideration allows its subscribers to append letters to their names, and I would call the attention of those interested in the subject to an article which appeared in the Journal of Education for July 1, referring to this very Society, which includes among its subscribers, musicians who wear brilliant coloured hoods, and drag F.S.S. after their names, after being elected Fellows.

This article, I think, will give some information about the Society of Science, Letters, and Art.—Yours faithfully,

A. E. RYDE-ROGERS.

Belper, August 19, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I was favoured (with many other organists, I imagine) with an invitation to join the Society of Science, Letters, and Art, and had a Fellowship offered to me, the chief condition, so far as I remember, being the payment of fees and a reference to two professionals. Unfortunately I destroyed the circular on receipt, but it would seem from the following, which appeared in the Kentish Express of July 30, 1887, that the Society also requires an examination:—"Mr. Stroud, Master of St. Michael's National School, has passed the examination in Science and Arts, which included an examination in Harmony and Counterpoint, of the Society of Science, Letters, and Art, London. This has gained for him the Diploma of Fellowship, and the right to wear the hood belonging to that Society." Perhaps ere this you have obtained a prospectus. I enclose my card, and remain,—Yours obediently,

August 4, 1887. M. BRAY.

MR. JOSEPH KERFOOT.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In your August number of THE MUSICAL TIMES you speak of the above gentleman as being still alive, and add that he "will complete his jubilee in December"! There must certainly be a mistake somewhere, for I have got a notice of a person named Joseph Kerfoot (also born in 1819) who died at Leigh in August, 1884! I may add there is a brother of the above (Mr. Thomas Kerfoot) upon my list as well.—Faithfully yours,

D. BAPTIE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In the hope of interesting some of the statistical minds among your readers, I send you the following inscription from a tablet on the wall of Beccles Parish Church, which I think shows as remarkable a record as that of the Organist of Winwick, in the July number of THE MUSICAL TIMES:—"In Memory of Thomas Pymar, who for upwards of fifty-nine years was Organist of this Parish, and departed this life on the 1st January, 1854, aged seventy-nine years." The inscription relates great talents and exceptional virtues, but I am unable to find anything entitling him to notice, beyond his age and long servitude.—Yours most obediently,

W. H. WILLIAMSON, Organist of Beccles.

Beccles, August 11, 1887.

TREMAIN'S CONCERTOS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Could any of your readers give me any information respecting a composer named (T——) Tremain, who lived about the latter end of the last century? I have a manuscript book containing six Concertos for strings, oboes, and horns by him, dated 1790.

I remain, your obedient Servant,

VIOLIN.

CHAMBER MUSIC FOR AMATEURS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In answer to the letter signed "Cello" in the July number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, I would venture to suggest the "Leichte Trios," by Franz Wohlfahrt (Op. 66), of which there are six. All these are pretty and effectively written for the respective instruments—piano, violoncello, and violin. Also four Trios by Richard Hofmann (Op. 53, 54, 55, 56), which, though more difficult than those of Wohlfahrt, are equally effective. If "Cello" cares for old masters, I can recommend "Violin and Violoncello Bass" of Albrechtsberger (Beethoven's master). The first are published by Forberg, the second by Siegel, both in Leipzig, and the last by Pohle in Hamburg, though they are to be procured through Messrs. Augener in London.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,

Alby Hill House, R. H. LEGGE.
Hanworth, Norfolk.

THE CELLO.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—May I suggest to your correspondent that, in addition to solos and trios, there is another very beautiful form of composition—namely, the song, with violoncello obbligato, such as "The Waterlily," by Horsley; "The Guiding Star," by Fesca, published by Augener. There is also a very charming song "Here's the Bower," by Slatter, published by Weekes. These are all good, and calculated to procure pleasure to hearers and players.

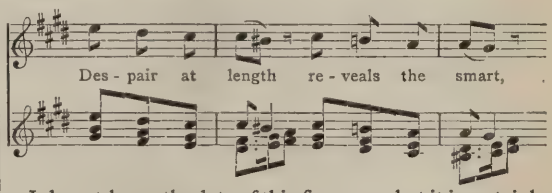
Yours truly,

G. COOPER.

ORIGIN OF A MUSICAL PHRASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The phrase quoted by Mr. Max Tanner from the overture to Cherubini's "Water Carrier" is to be found in one of Haydn's Canzonets, entitled "Despair," in an English version in Cramer's Vocal Gems, where it appears in the following form:—



I do not know the date of this fine song, but it is certainly earlier than the "Water Carrier." But possibly some of your readers may trace the phrase in the works of still older masters.—Faithfully yours,

J. MAKEHAM.

62, Stroud Green Road, August 8, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The phrase in E flat in Mr. Tanner's letter is the beginning of a song of Schubert's. It can be found in No. 7 of Cramer's Vocal Gems, under the English title, "Weep not for friends departed." I do not know the German title, as I have not a foreign edition of the songs at present.—Yours truly, W. H. NICHOLLS.

Fakenham, Norfolk, August 3, 1887.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

FUGA.—Communication received.

F. E. SPINNEY.—The letter was crowded out.

H. BARBER.—Thanks for your letter, but the matter it treats of is a little too personal for insertion in the paper.

F. S. O.—If the paper can be found it shall be forwarded.

A LOVER OF MUSIC (NEWTON-LE-WILLOWS).—Your queries had better be addressed to the Secretary of the Institution to which you refer.

J. HUNT GORDON, A.C.O.—Under consideration.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—An Organ Recital was given in Craigiebucklen Parish Church, by Mr. Robert Stronach, the Organist, on Friday, the 12th ult. The programme, which was varied with vocal solos, included the Organ Concerto (No. 5), by Handel, and compositions by Guilmant, Gounod, Bach, Sullivan, and Smart.

AYSGARTH, BEDALE.—An Organ Recital was given in St. Andrew's Church, on July 31, by Mr. Maurice Davies, Organist of Aysgarth School. The programme included works by Handel, Mendelssohn, Guilmant, Smart, Sterndale Bennett, and other composers. Mr. Davies was assisted by Miss Pilkington, whose rendering of "He shall feed His flock" and "From mighty kings" was greatly appreciated by a large congregation.

BOURTON, NEAR SHRIVENHAM.—The Highworth Parish Church Choir assisted at the Anglican Choral Festival held in St. James's Church, on the 28th ult. Handel's Grand Coronation Anthem, Zadok the Priest, was sung with vigour. The performance of the whole of the festal music was most devotional and impressive. Mr. Read, Organist of Highworth, presided at the organ.

BRADFORD.—Mr. Arthur Ingham, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, gave a Recital on the grand organ in the Saltaire Exhibition, on Wednesday, the 3rd ult. Mr. Ingham's programme contained selections from Bach, Guilmant, Ouseley, Batiste, Widor, and Henselt. There was a large audience, and all the selections were thoroughly appreciated.

BURNLEY.—The Burnley Borough Band has again commenced its weekly performances, the first Concert having been given on the 10th ult.——On the occasion of the School Sermons at Holy Trinity Church, the Anthems were "He shall feed His flock" and "His yoke is easy." The solos were rendered by Messrs. William Arnold, Matthew Burrell, and Master J. M. Simpson.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.—At the Dedication Festival of St. James's Church, on Monday, July 25, Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise was given, with orchestral accompaniment. The choir was augmented by about seventy ladies and gentlemen of the Choral Society. The solos were taken by Masters Webb and Osborne and the Rev. A. W. Ivatt. At the organ, Mr. W. J. Lancaster, Organist of St. Michael's College, Tenbury; Conductor, Mr. Edward Iles, F.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster of St. James's.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—The new organ, constructed by A. Kirkland, Holloway, for the New Street Baptist Chapel, was opened on Tuesday, the 23rd ult., for an introductory service. A grand Organ Recital was given in the evening by Mr. E. H. Turpin, who performed pieces by Molique, Beethoven, Handel, Bach, Morandi, Guilmant, Capocci, Spohr, Weber, and other composers, to the gratification of the audience.

CHICAGO.—A Song Recital of excerpts from Rossini, Mozart, Schubert, Taubert, Raff, Jensen, Jüngst, Warren, Proch, and Sullivan, was given by Miss Genie M. Baldwin, soprano, pupil of Mrs. E. Eddy, on Wednesday evening, July 27, 1887, at eight o'clock, at the pianoforte warerooms of Messrs. Lyon and Healy. Mr. Clarence Eddy played the accompaniments. The Recital was well attended and completely successful, Miss Baldwin's voice and singing being greatly admired.

CHRISTCHURCH.—On the 19th ult., Mr. Abdy Williams, Organist of St. Mary Boltons, London, gave an Organ Recital in the Priory Church, on the fine organ by Willis, erected a few years since. He was assisted by Mr. Ferrey, who has held the post of Organist forty-one years, and to whose exertions in former years the church is much indebted for the possession of so fine an instrument. Miss Abdy Williams contributed two songs by Mendelssohn and Handel. Mr. Abdy Williams gave a good reading of Handel's Concerto in B flat, and Toccata, Adagio, and Fugue in C, Bach. Mr. Ferrey performed Rink's Flute Concerto. The offertory was devoted to the funds for the restoration of the Priory Church.

CORWEN.—The new organ (on Casson's Patent System) was opened at St. Julian's Church, on Wednesday, the 10th ult., by Mr. W. T. Best, of Liverpool. The morning Service and Sermon, by the Very Rev. the Dean of St. Asaph, were given in English. In the afternoon Mr. Best gave an Organ Recital of pieces by Morandi, Silas, Handel, Lefèbure-Wély, Dubois, Bach, and himself. In the evening there was a Welsh Service and Sermon by the Rev. D. Grimaldi Davies.

DEPTFORD.—The following is a description of the organ recently erected by Messrs. Bevington and Sons, in St. Mark's Church:—Two manuals, CC to G. Great organ: open diapason, violin diapason, claribel, dulciana, flute harmonic, principal, fifteenth, full mixture, trumpet. Swell organ: double diapason, open diapason, vox angelica, lieblich gedact, principal, fifteenth, mixture, oboe, cornopean. Pedal organ: Open diapason (with usual couplers and composition pedals). The organ was "opened" by Dr. Jacob Bradford on Thursday, July 28, when a Recital was given before a crowded congregation.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—An Organ Recital was given in St. John's Church, on Thursday, the 11th ult., by Mr. E. A. Crusha, of Tottenham. The programme consisted of Festal March, Calkin; Andante Grazioso, Smart; Fac ut portem, Rossini; Andante in E major, Batiste; Giant Fugue, Bach; Cantilène Pastorale, Guilmant; War March (Athalie), Mendelssohn; Larghetto in E flat, Batiste; Andante and Allegro, Bach; "O rest in the Lord," Mendelssohn; Wedding March, Mendelssohn; Hallelujah Chorus, Handel.

LEEDS.—Dr. Spark gave the last Organ Recital of the season, at the Town Hall, on Saturday evening, the 6th ult., before a large audience. An attractive programme was presented, opening with the beautiful and melodious Overture to Bellini's Opera Il Pirato. Mendelssohn's Allegretto in G minor, admirably rendered, was succeeded by an extemporaneous treatment of the favourite Welsh melody, "The Bells of Aberdovey," in which the carillon stop was introduced. Lemmens's Organ Sonata in A major was played for the first time, and a selection from Weber's Der Freischütz was a fitting termination to a successful Concert. With the exception of interruptions for bazaars and other entertainments, and three weeks' rest taken by Dr. Spark, the Recitals have taken place pretty regularly on Tuesday afternoons and Saturday evenings. The attendance has always been large. The Recitals will be resumed early in the present month.

LYTHAM.—The first of the Lytham Military Band Promenade Concerts was held in the Baths Assembly Rooms, on July 28. The vocalists were Miss Alma Hallowell, Miss Florence Hallowell, and Mr. W. R. Duncan. Miss Alma Hallowell sang in her usual style "A voice that is still" and "At my window," and was loudly recalled after each song. Miss Florence Hallowell was also very successful. Mr. Duncan gave much pleasure to the audience. Mr. Holden was a very efficient accompanist, and Mr. Norwood, as Conductor, was all that could be desired.

NORWICH.—The annual distribution of the certificates obtained by the students in the local examination held during the year, under the auspices of the Royal Academy of Music, took place at the Guildhall on Saturday, July 30, the Sheriff (F. Oddin Taylor, Esq.) presiding. The Sheriff, in opening the proceedings, said he had great pleasure in presiding that day for the purpose of presenting the awards gained by the students at the recent examination. He had an hereditary interest in the Royal Academy of Music, for his mother received her musical education within its walls under Dr. Crotch and Cipriani Potter. It was rather a significant fact that the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Festivals and the Royal Academy were founded at about the same time. The first principal of the Academy was Dr. Crotch, who was a citizen of Norwich. It was during the régime of the present eminent principal, Sir George Macfarren, that this system of local examinations was commenced, and it was of great advantage to local professors of music that Norwich was made a centre, in order that the test of Metropolitan experience might be applied to the work which they performed; Dr. Hill, the representative of the Royal Academy of Music in the Norwich centre, gave an interesting sketch of the progress made in the examinations; the Sheriff then presented the certificates to the successful candidates; Mr. W. P. Edwards moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Hill, which was seconded by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre; the Rev. Sir William Vincent, having advocated the necessity of more attention being paid to the study of the theory of music, concluded by moving a vote of thanks to the Sheriff for presiding; Dr. Bunnett having seconded the motion, it was carried with acclamation; the Sheriff, in reply, thanked the meeting for the compliment they had paid him, and took this opportunity of saying a few words on the coming festival, which he hoped would be well supported by persons interested in musical matters. He said that a very interesting list of works would be performed. Among them was an entirely new work by Signor Mancinelli, which would be presented for the first time.

SWINDON.—The Annual Choral Festival in connection with St. Mark's Church was held on Saturday evening, the 6th ult. The singing of the choirs, and the executive ability displayed by the Organist, Mr. Hayward, A.C.O., were in all respects gratifying, and the merits of each were thoroughly appreciated. The choirs in attendance were: St. Mark's, 40; St. John's, 24; St. Augustine's, 16; Wroughton, 19; Wanborough, 16; total, 115. Tallis's Responses were used, and the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were sung to chants. The prayers were intoned by Revs. A. N. Scott and H. W. Boustead.

TORONTO.—One of the features of the Jubilee celebration in this city was a Concert, in the Pavilion Music Hall, on June 30, by Mr. Torrington's Amateur Orchestra of sixty performers, assisted by vocalists and instrumental soloists, among them, flute, French horn, and cello solos. Organised early last season to supply the demand for an orchestra, the support afforded the orchestra has been very flattering, and Mr. Torrington intends giving a series of Concerts with them next season. The members, with few exceptions, are amateurs, and rendered a very ambitious programme successfully.——Under the same able Conductor a Jubilee Service was given on the same date at the Metropolitan Church, at which the United City Choirs assisted. The Service, which began with Gounod's "Marche Cortège," included the National Anthem, the chorus and tenor solo "For fifty years our Queen," and "O Queen" (from Mackenzie's Jubilee Ode), the "Prayer" by the same composer, Dr. Bridge's Anthem "Blessed be the Lord thy God," a Jubilee song by the Conductor, and other hymns, solos, and choruses. Between each piece of music short addresses were delivered by several clergymen.

Wellington, N.Z.—On June 17 the Harmonic Club gave its second Concert of the season, the works performed being Bennett's Woman of Samaria and Lloyd's Hero and Leander. Between these pieces Moscheles' Duet "Hommage à Handel," for two pianos, was admirably played by two lady members of the Club, and, at the close of the Concert, Weber's Jubilee Overture was given, the audience joining in the National Anthem.——The official Thanksgiving Services in connection with the Queen's Jubilee, were held in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul on Monday, June 20. In the morning there was a choral celebration of the Holy Communion, the music being Dykes in F throughout, and in the evening choral Evensong was held, and was attended by His Excellency the Governor as Her Majesty's representative. The church was crowded at the latter service, and the music was rendered by a large and efficient choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Parker, who presided at the organ. Dr. Stainer's Jubilee Anthem "Let every soul be subject" was sung after the third Collect, and Handel's Zadok the Priest after the sermon. At the close of the service the whole congregation sang the National Anthem with great fervour.

York.—On July 26 the annual Festival of the North-Eastern Cathedral Choir Association was held in York Minster, and proved to be one of the successful musical events in the city. The Rev. A. S. Commeline and the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe acted as hon. secretaries. They entered most heartily upon their duties, and so complete were the arrangements they had made that not a single hitch occurred. The choirs, after robing in the Ladye and Zouche Chapels, were conducted by their captains to their respective seats, north and south, to the east side of the nave organ. For the accommodation of the lady vocalists five seats west of the choir were set apart. The clergy were seated behind the surpliced choir. The choirs taking part in the Festival were as follows:—Sheffield Parish Church, 32; Selby Abbey Church, 18; Wakefield Parish Church, 38; Dewsbury Parish Church, 41; Dewsbury, St. Mark's, 33; Bradford, All Saints', 36; Bradford, St. Mary Magdalene, 43; Leeds, All Souls', 24; Dewsbury, St. Philip's, 38; Alnwick, St. Michael's, 38; Knaresbro', 58; Dunnington, 19; Scarbro', All Saints', 33; York, St. Mary's, Castlegate, 52; Whitwood, 26; Scarbro', Holy Trinity, 31; Northallerton, 31; Manningham, St. Luke's, 44; Tadcaster, 39; Batley Carr Parish Church, 25; Headingley, St. Michael's, 27; and Halifax, 75. The above were the country choirs, and the following is an analysis of the voices:—Boys: Trebles, 365; altos, 10; total, 375. Men: Altos, 72; tenors, 133; basses, 165; total, 370. Females: Sopranos, 39; contraltos, 16; total, 55. The choirs of York, Durham, and Ripon Cathedrals numbered 90 voices, and there was a contingent of about 40 York ladies. The total number of voices in the full choir was about 930. The Cathedral choirs marched to their places singing the Processional Hymn, and being joined by the several choirs as they were passed. Then ordinary Evensong was proceeded with, the Rev. G. Trundle, vicar-choral, intoning the service. Tallis's Preces were used; the first lesson was read by Canon Lord Forester, and the second by the Very Rev. Dean Lake, of Durham. Nares' Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F were sung. The great event of the afternoon was, of course, the performance of the new Cantata by Dr. Naylor, entitled The Brazen Serpent, to words selected by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe, M.A., of Bilbrough. Dr. Armes, of Durham Cathedral, presided at the organ during the performance of the Cantata. Dr. Crow, of Ripon, also lent valuable help in the service. Dr. Naylor played during the dispersal of the congregation. A collection was made to meet the expenses of the Festival, after which Handel's Coronation Anthem Zadok the Priest was sung.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. G. F. McCleary, A.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Church, Ashby-de-la-Zouch.—Mr. R. Frederick Tyler, F.C.O., L.Mus., Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's Church, Brockley, S.E.—C. T. Dunton, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Cockfield, Suffolk.—Mr. Richard J. Hopper, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M. and F.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to St. Edmund, King and Martyr, Lombard Street, E.C.—Mr. Richard Seaton, Organist and Choirmaster to the Abbey Church, Hexham.—Mr. George Budd, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Saviour's, Forest Hill.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. Charles Radburn (Principal Alto), to the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, S.W.—Mr. Edward Branscombe (Tenor), to the Church of St. Andrew, Wells Street.

DEATHS.

On July 22, Luigi Caracciolo, aged 38.

On July 27, at 53, Billington Road, Hatcham Park, Walter Burnett, Professor of Music, aged 37.

On Friday, the 12th ult., William Henry Husk, Honorary Librarian of the late Sacred Harmonic Society, in his 73rd year.

On Saturday, the 13th ult., at Fontainebleau, Jules Etienne Pasdeloup, in his 68th year.

REQUIRED, on October 1 next, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Parish Church, Melcombe Regis. Applications (accompanied by testimonials), stating salary, to be addressed, Rector and Churchwardens, St. Mary's Rectory, Weymouth, marked on outside, "Application for Organist," and to be delivered not later than Wednesday.

MISS ALICE MOLTENO (Harp Soloist and Pianoforte Accompanist), Miss ADA MOLTENO (Violin Soloist), Miss AGNES MOLTENO (Soprano Vocalist) have concluded their Paris Engagement. At a Competition before one of the largest audiences in London they were voted to the head of the poll as the best musicians. Address, 73, Ondine Road, East Dulwich.

DURING THE LAST MONTH

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

COWEN, FREDERIC H.—"Ruth." A Dramatic Cantata. The Words selected from Holy Scripture by Joseph Bennett. Paper cover, 4s.; paper boards, 4s. 6d.; cloth gilt, 6s. Vocal Parts, 1s. 6d. each.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—"Joan of Arc, the Maid of Orleans." An Historical Cantata. Op. 41. Paper cover, 2s. 6d. paper boards, 3s.; cloth gilt, 4s. Sol-fa Edition, 1s. Vocal Parts, 1s. each. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

READ, J. F. H.—"Harold." A Dramatic Cantata. For Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra. The Story taken from Lord Lytton's Novel, and written by the Rev. F. W. Vernham. Paper cover, 4s.; cloth, 6s.

THE MUSICAL TIMES and SINGING CLASS CIRCULAR. Vols. 17 and 18. The Music of Nos. 385 to 432. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

PAINE, ROBERT PARKER.—"The Lord reigneth." (Psalm xciii.) Paper cover, 1s.

MOSCHELES, J.—"Domestic Life." Twelve Duets for the Pianoforte. (Vol. IX. of Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Pianoforte Albums). 4s.; or in two books (books 27 and 28), 2s. each.

BROWN-BORTHWICK, ROBERT.—Twelve Single Chants, together with Double Chant, for Psalms xiii. and xxxviii. A Setting of Benedicite, Omnia Opera, and Responsive Amens to the "Dresden" Amen. 2d.

CROWTHER, GEO. W. F.—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis for Quartet and Chorus. 6d.

DART, HENRY J. B.—(in D). Te Deum and Jubilate. 3d. each.

LÖHR, HARVEY—(in C). The Morning and Evening Service, together with the Office for the Holy Communion. For Four Voices. 1s. 6d. Or singly: Te Deum laudamus, 4d.; Benedictus, 3d.; Jubilate Deo, 3d.; Kyrie eleison, Credo, Sursum corda, Sanctus, Gloria in excelsis, 6d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 4d.

—— Ditto. For Voices in Unison. 1s. Or singly: Te Deum laudamus, 3d.; Benedictus, 3d.; Jubilate Deo, 2d.; Kyrie eleison, Credo, Sursum corda, Sanctus, Gloria in excelsis, 4d.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 3d.

ROBINSON, FRED.—(in F). Deus misereatur (Psalm lxvii.) 3d.

WOODWARD, REV. H. H., M.A.—The Benedictus, to lengthened Chants. Six Settings. A Medium between the ordinary Chant and "Cathedral Service." 2d.

DENNIS, CHARLES.—Twenty-one Original Hymn-tunes to Popular Hymns. 6d.

KINSEY, HAGUE.—"Seek ye the Lord." Full Anthem. For Four Voices. (Novello's Octavo Anthems, No. 319.) 3d.

PEARSON, W. W.—"The harvest truly is great." Short Full Anthem. For Four Voices. 3d.

VERRINDER, DR. C. G.—"Hear my cry, O God." (English and Hebrew Words.) 1s.

ELLICOTT, ROSALIND F.—"Radiant sister of the day." Four-part Song. Words from "The Invitation," by Shelley. (Novello's Part-song Book, No. 452.) 4d.

LLOYD, CHARLES H.—"The Rosy Dawn." For Mixed Voices In eight parts. Words by the Rev. Canon Bell, D.D. (Novello's Part-Song Book, No. 540). 4d.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF TRIOS FOR FEMALE VOICES.

No. 205. The Bride hath paced into the hall ("The Ancient Mariner") ... ... J. F. Barnett 4d.
206. But tell me, speak again ("The Ancient Mariner") J. F. Barnett 4d.
207. In grotto cool ... ... George J. Bennett 3d.
208. In the dell and dingle ... " " 3d.

VINCENT, CHARLES.—Songs and Part-songs. For Treble Voices.

No. 7. The wind is sighing. Unison. Song ... ... 2d.
9. Blow, soft winds. (Vocal Valse.) Two Parts... ... 4d.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE.—"If doughty deeds." Words written by Graham of Gartmore (1735—1797). Four-part Song. (Novello's Part-Song Book, No. 541.) 3d.

PEARSON, W. W.—"The Singers." A Song. With ad lib. Accompaniment for the Harmonium or Organ. The Poetry by Longfellow. 2s.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Translated by W. G. McNaught.

The eyes of all wait upon Thee. Anthem. For Harvest ... ... Edwyn A. Clare 2d.
All Thy works praise Thee, O Lord. Tenor Solo and Chorus ... ... T. Mee Pattison 1½d.
No. 554. The sun shall be no more thy light by day. Anthem. For a Saints' Day, or Festal use Rev. H. H. Woodward, M.A. 1½d.

REDUCED PRICE:—

PAINE, ROBERT PARKER.—"The Prodigal Son." A Cantata. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.

Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the Chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.
II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.
III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

AN ALTO and TENOR WANTED, for the Choir of St. Andrew's, Ashley Place. Stipend, £20. Apply to Choir master, 274, Vauxhall Bridge Road.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—The ORGANIST of Sevenoaks Parish Church has a VACANCY for above. Full choral service; three-manual organ; and every facility for a thorough musical education. Moderate terms. Address, Arthur W. Marchant, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., Sandrock, Sevenoaks.

WANTED (Country), a Good TUNER and REPAIRER. Must understand Harmoniums and American Organs. Wages, £2 per week. Good references required as to character and respectability. Address, J. H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, in MUSIC BUSINESS in the North, a YOUNG MAN of good address, age 18 to 22. Good Pianist and fair Tuner. Address, Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

SITUATION REQUIRED by a competent PIANOFORTE TUNER. Understands Harmoniums and American Organs. Address, L. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TUNING BUSINESS for DISPOSAL. Returns between £4 and £5 weekly, chiefly ready money. Cash required, £250. Address, M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

NEW ANTHEM for HARVEST. O PRAISE THE LORD. By EDWARD HARVEY. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CHURCH ORGANIST

A COLLECTION OF PIECES FOR USE DURING DIVINE SERVICE

By CHARLES COLLIN.

BOOK I. 2s. 6d.

March.	Offertoire.
Communion.	Postlude.
Elevation.	Offertoire.

BOOK II. 3s.

Offertoire for the Feast of Pentecost.	Communion.
	Ditto.
Hymn.	March.
Elevation.	Postlude.

BOOK III. 2s. 6d.

Elevation.	Communion.
Postludium.	Elevation.
Offertoire.	March.

BOOK IV. 2s. 6d.

Offertoire.	Grand Chœur.
Elevation.

BOOK V. 2s. 6d.

Communion or Offertoire.	Offertoire for Easter-day.
Prelude on the Hymn of St. Joseph.	Offertoire or Communion.

BOOK VI. 2s. 6d.

Allegretto.	Allegro-Fanfare.
Elevation.

BOOK VII. 2s. 6d.

March.	Andantino.
Communion.	Grand Chœur.
Andante.

BOOK VIII. 2s. 6d.

Offertoire (for Xmas Day).	Allegretto.
Hymn (Jesu, dulcis memoria).	Prelude.
	Te Deum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

L. VAN BEETHOVEN.

The English version by The Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.

VOLUME I.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

CONTENTS.

TO HOPE!—An die Hoffnung.
ADELAIDE—Adelaide.
PRAYER—Bitten.
LOVE OF ONE'S NEIGHBOUR—Die Liebe des Nächsten.
DEATH—Vom Tode.
THE GLORY OF GOD IN NATURE—Die ehre Gottes aus der Natur.
THE POWER AND PROVIDENCE OF GOD—Gottes Macht und Vorsehung.
A SONG OF PENITENCE—Busslied.
URIAN'S JOURNEY ROUND THE WORLD—Urian's Reise um die Welt.
FLAME-COLOUR—Feuerfarb'.
THE SONG OF REST—Das Liedchen von der Ruhe.
A SONG OF MAY—Mailied.
MOLLY'S FAREWELL—Molly's Abschied.
A SONG—Lied.
MARMOT—Marmotte.
THE FLOWERET OF WONDROUS SWEETNESS—Das Blümchen wunderhold.
MIGNON'S SONG—Mignon.
NEW LOVE, NEW LIFE—Neue Liebe, neues Leben.
SONG FROM GOETHE'S "FAUST"—Aus Goethe's "Faust."
GRETEL'S WARNING—Gretel's Warnung.
TO THE LOVED ONE AT A DISTANCE—An den fernen Geliebten.
THE CONTENTED MAN—Der Zufriedene.
HOPE—Hoffnung.
LOVE'S COMPLAINT—Liebes-Klage.
SILENT QUESTIONING—Stille Frage.
THE IMPATIENCE OF LOVE—Liebes-Ungeduld.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced price, 2s. 6d. net.

ALBUM OF ITALIAN SONGS

TWENTY-TWO SONGS SET TO ITALIAN WORDS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

ANGELO MARIANI.

4to, gilt edges.

1. Ave Maria.
2. L'Augellin della Biondina.
3. Una Foglia.
4. Vi Chiamo invano notte e giorno.
5. L' ora fatale.
6. Ah! tu non m' ami più.
7. Lia è morta.
8. Giovinettino della bella voce.
9. La povera madre.
10. Oh! come tu soffri mio povero cor!
11. Mia dolce speranza.
12. Il silfo e la mammola.
13. La Zingarella.
14. Date un pane al poverello.
15. L' abbandono.
16. La prece della sera.
17. La Provera operaia e l' usignuolo.
18. Una Rosa in cimitero.
19. Dolore e speranza.
20. Io son poeta e re di gran corona.
21. L' invito alla liberta.
22. Passato, presente, e futuro.

Or, singly, folio, each 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.

MENDELSSOHN'S OVERTURES

In One Volume, folio size, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 10.	Marriage of Camacho.	Op. 36.	St. Paul.
„ 21.	Midsummer Night's Dream.	„ 60.	Walpurgis Night.
		„ 70.	Elijah.
„ 24.	Military Band.	„ 74.	Athalie.
„ 26.	Hebrides.	„ 89.	Son and Stranger.
„ 27.	A Calm Sea.	„ 95.	Ruy Blas.
„ 32.	Melusine.	„ 101.	Trumpet.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.

MENDELSSOHN'S SYMPHONIES

In One Volume, folio size, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 11. First Symphony.
„ 52. Second Symphony (Lobgesang).
„ 56. Third Symphony (Scotch).
„ 90. Fourth Symphony (Italian).
„ 107. Fifth Symphony (Reformation).

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.
(Late of Coventry Street),
WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF MUSICAL STRINGS
FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.
NO OTHER ADDRESS.

300 GUINEAS.—Two-manual and Pedal AMERICAN ORGAN, by STORY and CLARK, of Chicago. Style Monarch. Combination of pipes and reeds in massive walnut case. Elaborately carved, &c.; 15 sets of reeds, 25 draw stops, octave, manual, and pedal couplers; foot and side blowers, &c. In perfect condition as new. Price £95 guineas. Apply, Messrs. Stagg and Co., 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

CC ORGANS for SALE, or HIRE, or both. One: 2 manuals and pedals, 16 stops, 61 notes, 5 octaves; One: 3 manuals and pedals, 54 notes, 31 stops. Apply to G. T., 23, Brunswick Street, Poplar, E.

TWO-MANUAL ORGANS for SALE. Church or Chapel. 26, 16, 10, and 8 stops. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Manchester, S.W.

FOR SALE, the GRAND ORGAN in the Royal Yorkshire Jubilee Exhibition, Saltaire, suitable for a Concert Hall or large Church, containing four manuals and 44 stops. For full particulars apply to P. Conacher and Co., Organ Builders, Huddersfield.

"ALBANY" AMERICAN ORGANS. Cheapest and best. SNELL and CO., Manufacturers (removed to), 32, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W. Special terms to trade and profession.

TO ORGANISTS.—A sound Second-hand 7-octave COTTAGE PIANO, in walnut case, with Rushton's Prize Medal Patent Organ Pedals and Attachment, 30 notes, CC to F; £20. Others, Pipe and Reed Organs, Pianos, and Harmoniums, in any condition, exchanged, bought, and repaired. Couplers, conversions, additions, &c. Several carved Gothic Organ Benches, various in teak, oak, birch, &c. J. Rushton, 32, The Parade, Acton Vale, W. Tram passes the door, close to Acton Station.

"58, Philpot Street, E., 22/8/1887.

"Mr. Rushton has supplied his Patent Pedal Attachment to my Pianoforte, and after a lengthened trial I have found it very satisfactory. The difficulty of changing the feet upon the short keys is reduced by Mr. Rushton's ingenious method of raising the farther end of those keys, by which means the feet can be exchanged upon them with ease.

"THOS. G. BAINES, Organist, St. Margaret's, Westminster."

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES, and HARMONIUMS supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, Post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

MESSRS. BEARE AND SON
MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,
STRINGS, FITTINGS, &c.,
34, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.
MERCHANTS, SHIPPERS, AND THE TRADE SUPPLIED.

BEARE and SON invite an inspection of their unrivalled Collection of OLD VIOLINS, TENORS, CELLOS, and DOUBLE-BASSES. All genuine examples of the celebrated OLD MASTERS, from £5 upwards.

Over Three Hundred Old Instruments from which to select.

Sole Wholesale Agents for JAMES TUBBS'S celebrated BOWS.

The only Makers of the New Queen's Model PIANO and AMERICAN ORGAN CHAIRS (as exhibited at the International Exhibitions). Metal tube frames, gilt with the best gold bronze, shaped seats, upholstered to taste, from £1 11s. 6d.

TOY INSTRUMENTS and MUSIC, for the Performance of Toy Symphonies, from 18s. 6d. per set, including Music. Lists of Toy Symphony Music, and Instruments required, sent on application.

BRASS and WOOD INSTRUMENTS of every kind, at lowest possible prices.

HARPS bought, sold, or taken in exchange.

REPAIRS of every kind of Musical Instrument executed promptly by experienced Workmen.

NEWLY REVISED AND ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE JUST OUT.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.
Gold Medal awarded, Bradford Technical School Exhibition, 1882.
Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

EUSTACE INGRAM
ORGAN BUILDER,
BURNARD PLACE, HOLLOWAY, LONDON, N.
Tone very sweet, characteristic, and sonorous; reeds smooth, even, and brilliant; action absolutely noiseless, light, and elastic, with most perfect repetition. Unrivalled for standing in tune and repair. Prices most reasonable.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
ESTABLISHED 1854.
SPECIFICATIONS FREE ON APPLICATION.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., Post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 14th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

TO CHOIRMASTERS & MUSICAL SOCIETIES.—IMPORTANT COLLECTION of CHORAL MUSIC.—The LIBRARY of Mr. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR. Upwards of 300 Works. Offers for the whole, or considerable portions of the Library, to be addressed to C. H. Tebbs, Esq., 181, Queen Victoria Street, E.C., from whom all particulars may be obtained.

OFFERS WANTED for "MUSICAL STANDARD" from commencement (about 25 years), and large number of volumes of Musical Times, Musical Record, Lute, Concordia, &c. Unbound. All fairly complete. A. D., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES and Others.—WANTED, COPIES of SIR STERNDALE BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN. Cheap for cash. J. Lindley, Hon. Sec., Vocal Society, Mossley, near Manchester.

TO MUSICAL STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

NEW PATENT TOUCH REGULATOR

FOR PIANOFORTES (UPRIGHTS ONLY)

INVENTED BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

From C. SWINNERTON HEAP, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantab.

"Birmingham, July, 1887.

"Having carefully examined the New Touch Regulator, by Mr. E. A. Sydenham, it is with much pleasure I can cordially recommend its use to pianists who are desirous of strengthening their fingers, but whose pianofortes are weak in touch.

"By the application of this invention the technical exercises may be practised daily with the greatest advantage, and I do not doubt that Mr. Sydenham's New Touch Regulator will prove of great value to all pianoforte students who may make use of it.

"C. SWINNERTON HEAP."

From ARTHUR O'LEARY, Esq., Fellow of the R.A.M.

"9, Notting Hill Square, August, 1887.

"Mr. Sydenham is the inventor of a clever contrivance, which, on account of its simplicity and ready adaptability, will prove a boon to thousands of piano students. These latter, as a rule, are condemned to practise on worn out, or at least much used, instruments, the light touch of which prevents not only their gaining strength and brilliancy of finger, but also renders playing on pianos of even medium touch difficult. These grave drawbacks are met by Mr. Sydenham's ingenious invention, which in the simplest manner regulates the touch of the most worn out pianoforte to any degree of heaviness desired.

"ARTHUR O'LEARY, Fellow of the R.A.Mus."

PRICE ONE GUINEA

(Liberal discount to the Profession).

Address, Ellenroyd Villa, Scarborough.

RUMMENS'

ORGAN PEDAL ATTACHMENT

FOR PIANOFORTES.

FOR THE HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

ALWAYS READY FOR USE, AT ANY TIME, FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME. NO BLOWIST REQUIRED.

Price, complete, £8 8s. Coll. Org. or any other Pedal Board, detachable—i.e., instantly removed and replaced, 5s. extra.

These Pedals have been before the musical public for some years, and are always recommended by the entire musical profession as a perfect substitute for the Organ for practice. They are the best London make, and guaranteed to stand any amount of use. With Pedal Frame and Seat, French polished to match Piano, they are a positive ornament to any room.

Extracts from a few Testimonials.

DR. STAINER—"For those who wish to study Organ Music in their own homes I know of nothing more valuable than this Pedal Attachment."

DR. MARTIN—"It gives me much pleasure to be able to say that I think very highly of your clever mechanism for applying Organ Pedals to the Pianoforte."

DR. STEGGALL—"I have recommended these Pedals with great confidence, and they have in all cases given perfect satisfaction."

DR. BRIDGE—"A successful invention, and one which will give satisfaction to those who use it."

DR. FROST—"Every organ student who aspires to become a facile pedallist should have a set in the house."

E. H. TURPIN, Esq.—"In short, I can strongly recommend Mr. Rummens' pedal action and its application to the pianoforte."

ADDRESS—HENRY J. RUMMENS,

47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

GREAT SALE of PIANOS and ORGANS.—In consequence of the retirement of the senior partner of the firm of T. D'ALMAINE & CO. (established 100 years), the entire STOCK is offered for SALE at an enormous reduction in price. Every instrument warranted for ten years, and, if exchanged for a higher class one, full price paid will be allowed for it within three years. Easy terms arranged. After the sale business will be carried on as usual.

The following advertisements will give some idea of the really genuine bargains to be obtained from this, one of the oldest houses in the trade: Students' Piano, full compass, metal plate, &c., 10 guineas; Piano, trichord, full compass, &c., 12 guineas; Piano, steel frame, trichord, céleste pedal, full compass, &c., 15 guineas; splendid steel-frame Piano, trichord throughout, céleste action, full compass, &c., 17 guineas; fine-toned Collard and Collard Cottage, 19 guineas; an Upright Grand (Cottage size), steel frame, overstrung, full compass, trichord throughout, céleste pedal, double check French action, best ivory bushed keys, &c., 24 guineas; a magnificent Upright Grand, double overstrung, by Weidenslaufer, 28 guineas; Upright Grand, by Neiber, 30 guineas; Upright Grand, by Hupfer, of Zeitz, 35 guineas; an ebonised Schreiber Piano, 40 guineas; an Upright Grand Oblique, by Erard, 28 guineas, &c., &c.

American Organs.—Full compass Organ, knee swell, &c., 5 guineas; Organ, 4 stops, knee swell, &c., 8 guineas; Organ, 7 stops, 3 sets of reeds, 11 guineas; Organ, by Karn, 4 sets of reeds, 10 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 13 guineas; Organ, by Estey, 4 sets of reeds, 8 stops, 2 swells, &c., 14 guineas; Organ, by Bell, 4 sets of reeds, 11 stops, 2 knee swells, 15 guineas; Organ, by Bell, 5 sets of reeds, 12 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 16 guineas; Organ, by Dyer and Hughes, 5 sets of reeds, 12 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 15 guineas; Organ, by Story and Clark, 7 sets of reeds, 16 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 20 guineas; Organ, by Story and Clark, 8 sets of reeds, 16 stops, 2 knee swells, &c., 26 guineas. A Two-manual Organ, with full compass of pedals, made specially for students, 45 guineas. Illustrations of any of the above Organs or Pianos will be sent on application.

N.B.—It will be seen from the makers' names mentioned above that the instruments offered are of the first quality.

T. D'ALMAINE & Co., 91, Finsbury Pavement, London, E.C.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

PRIMERS

OF

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

NOW READY

HECTOR BERLIOZ

FREDERIC CHOPIN

ROSSINI

CHERUBINI MEYERBEER

ONE SHILLING EACH.

PROSPECTUS.

Some years have passed since Mr. Joseph Bennett began, in THE MUSICAL TIMES, a series of biographical notices which are still far from ended. The original purpose was a limited one—namely, to throw light upon the personality of famous musicians by means of extracts selected and arranged from their letters and other writings. Hence the series had for first title "The Great Composers, sketched by themselves."

Consequent upon the remarkable favour with which the notices were received, it was determined to extend their scope, and, while making prominent the Masters' own testimony, to deal with each subject in a complete biographical form, as far as allowed by the limits necessarily imposed. The words "sketched by themselves" were therefore dropped from the title.

It was further resolved to make additions in the case of the composers dealt with under the original idea, and to issue the notices separately as "Primers of Musical Biography."

The intention of "Novello's Primers of Musical Biography" is to convey, as clearly as the limits of an elementary work will allow, a just idea of each composer's personality, and to record the principal events of his life. Knowledge of what a man is helps the understanding of what he does. These little books may serve, therefore, as a first step towards acquaintance with the genius and compositions of the masters to whom they are devoted.

For the copious extracts made from letters, &c., throughout the series, no apology is offered. They are the best material upon which to base an estimate of character.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HARVEST ANTHEMS & HYMNS.

All Thy works praise Thee	E. H. Thorne 3d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord...	H. Gadsby 1½d.
Blessed be thou	Dr. Bunnett 3d.
Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice	Sir J. Goss 6d.
Fear not, O land	C. H. Lloyd 1½d.
Give unto the Lord the glory	J. F. Bridge 4d.
God said, Behold, I have given you every herb...	G. A. Macfarren 6d.
Great is the Lord	E. A. Sydenham 3d.
I will give thanks unto Thee	E. J. Hopkins 6d.
I will give Thanks unto Thee	J. Barnby 4d.
I will magnify Thee, O God	Sir J. Goss 3d.
Make melody within your hearts	Rev. F. A. J. Hervey 3d.
O give thanks	E. A. Sydenham 3d.
O how plentiful is Thy goodness	T. M. Pattison 3d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works	J. Barnby 1½d.
O Lord, how manifold are Thy works ...	Sir G. A. Macfarren 1½d.
O praise the Lord	Sir Herbert Oakeley 4d.
O praise the Lord of Heaven	Sir J. Goss 6d.
O that men would praise the Lord	J. C. Bridge 4d.
Our God is Lord of the harvest	Emma Mundella 3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Dr. W. Hayes 4d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	W. G. Wood 4d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul...	H. Lahee 1½d.
Praise ye the Lord for His goodness	G. Garrett 1½d.
Praised be the Lord	C. Steggall 1/-
Sing praises to God	H. W. Wareing 1½d.
The earth is the Lord's	Dr. C. S. Heap 4d.
The earth is the Lord's	A. Lowe 3d.
The earth is the Lord's	T. T. Trimnell 4d.
The fost'ring earth, the genial showers... ...	J. L. Hopkins 3d.
The harvest-tide thanksgiving	J. Barnby 1½d.
The Lord hath done great things...	H. Smart 4d.
The Lord is loving unto every man	G. Garrett 3d.
This is the day	Sir Herbert Oakeley 4d.
Thou visitest the earth and blessest it	W. H. Callcott 2d.
Thou visitest the earth	Dr. Greene 1½d.
Thou visitest the earth	J. Baptiste Calkin 4d.
While the earth remaineth...	C. Swinnerton Heap 4d.
While the earth remaineth...	B. Tours 1½d.
Ye shall dwell in the land	J. Stainer 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE HYMNS WITH TUNES
FOR HARVEST
SELECTED FROM "THE HYMNARY."

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Sing to the Lord a joyful song	J. Barnby.
O Lord, the heaven Thy power displays	Sir F. Ouseley.
Father, blessing every seed-time	Dr. Dykes.
Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants plead...	W. Metcalf.
The wintry time hath ended	Dr. Gauntlett.
Come, ye thankful people, come	Sir George Elvey.
God, the Father, Whose creation...	H. Smart.
Lord of the harvest, Thee we hail...	Anonymous.
Lo, summer comes again	Rev. E. B. Whyley.
Praise, O praise our Heavenly King	German.
Summer ended, harvest o'er	J. Adcock.
O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea	Dr. Wesley.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING MARCH
FOR THE ORGAN
BY
J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.
One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR HARVEST.

THE JUBILEE CANTATA
(HARVEST CANTATA)
FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
COMPOSED BY
C. M. VON WEBER.
Op. 58.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised, by EBENEZER PROUT. The words translated from the German version of Wendt by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, D.D.

Octavo, 1s.; Full Score, 21s.; Orchestral Parts, 15s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM
ANTHEM FOR HARVEST THANKSGIVING OR ANY SPECIAL SERVICE
BY
REV. E. V. HALL.
Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.
WHILE THE EARTH REMAINETH
BY W. H. HOLLOWAY.
Price Threepence.

VERY TUNEFUL AND NOT DIFFICULT.

"It is a tuneful and pleasing composition, and will be found of service in the season for which it was written."—Manchester City News.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SMALLWOOD'S (WM.) FESTAL and GENERAL ANTHEMS.

No. 1. THE LORD REIGNETH. Easter, Whitsuntide, or General.
„ 2. THUS SAITH THE LORD, THE KING OF ISRAEL. Easter, Trinity, or General.
„ 3. PRAISED BE THE LORD DAILY. Harvest, Easter, or Whitsuntide.
„ 4. I WILL MAGNIFY THEE, O GOD, MY KING. Festival or General.
„ 5. IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Christmas.
„ 6. I WILL GIVE THANKS. Easter, Ascension, or General.
„ 7. ALL THY WORKS PRAISE THEE, O LORD. Harvest or General.

Price 2d. each.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 19, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ALBERT LOWE'S HARVEST ANTHEM, THE EARTH IS THE LORD'S. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs. Octavo, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S HARVEST CAROL, HOLY IS THE SEED-TIME. Composed expressly for Harvest Festivals. Octavo, 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL FEED MY FLOCK. NEW HARVEST ANTHEM. Price 4d. By CALEB SIMPER, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene, Worcester (Composer of Ten Prize Tunes to Favourite Hymns, also the First Prize Tune in the Manchester Sunday School Competition, 1887). "Exceedingly pretty, and not difficult." 3rd Thousand.

Also the following popular, easy, melodious, and effective Anthems, &c.

And God said, Let the earth. 26th Edition	3d.
O Lord, how manifold. 6th 1,000	4d.
Fear not, O land. 7th 1,000	3d.
Praise the Lord, O my soul. 5th 1,000...	3d.
They that sow in tears. 6th Edition	3d.
Make a joyful noise. 6th 1,000	3d.
Te Deum in F. 6th Edition	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. 11th Edition. (To be sung by 300 voices at Budworth, September 27)	4d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. 2nd Edition	4d.
Communion Service in F. New...	6d.

TONIC SOL-FA.—The first five Anthems (including the new one) may be had in Tonic Sol-fa. Price of each, 1d. less than Old Notation.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

COMPOSITIONS by S. CORBETT, Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Harvest Anthem, "Behold, we have brought the first-fruits"	price 3d.
Four Offertory Sentences	„ 6d.
Part-song, "Waken, lords"...	„ 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Songs, "The Organist" and "The Reaper and the Flowers," each net 2s.

London: Messrs. FORSYTH BROS.

Fifth Thousand.
HARVEST ANTHEM.

ALL THY WORKS PRAISE THEE. By T. MEE PATTISON. Two Choruses and Tenor Solo. Price 3d.; Sol-fa, 1½d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS.—By THOS. SMITH. 3d. each.

THOU CROWNEST THE YEAR. 26th Ed. "O sing unto the Lord." 4th Ed. "Fear not, O Land." 2nd Ed. "My heart is fixed." 3rd Ed. "It is a good thing." "Sing we merrily." 4th Ed. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Post-free from the COMPOSER, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmund's.

AWAKE UP, MY GLORY. Full Anthem for Harvest or other Festivals. By JAMES LOARING, F.C.O. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VOCAL SCORE. OLD NOTATION. TWELFTH THOUSAND.

RUTH

A HARVEST PASTORAL

WORDS BY

EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

SUITABLE FOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

"The Biblical story of which Ruth is the central figure lends itself with remarkable suitability to an illustration of a harvest celebration. The country landscape, the ripened corn, the sturdy reapers, the standing sheaves, the active gleaners, and the busy farmer, all combine to fill the mind's eye with a pleasant scene of excitement. Set to music by a competent composer such as Mr. A. R. Gaul, the narrative of Ruth's eventful episode lends itself to a pathetic, picturesque, and pleasant performance. The bereaved and sorrowful trio of women on whom the calamity of poverty and famine has fallen, as if to give intensity to their greater grief, and the unexpected and happy influence of patriarchal benevolence displayed by the mighty Boaz, who so quickly transforms sorrow into joy, are all introduced and aptly take their allotted place in the melodious music of Gaul's interpretation of the tale."—Gloucester Citizen.

"The work, like the 'Holy City,' is full of beautiful orchestral passages, while the vocal score abounds with charming numbers."—Bucks Herald.

"'Ruth' is a work of sterling power; its musical form is that of perfect tunefulness combined with simplicity and strength. . . . The composer has grasped his theme in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and has produced a work which is worthy of the subject."—Bradford Observer.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musicianly—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation."—Birmingham Weekly Dart.

"'Ruth' has been set to music by several composers; none, however, has become so worthily popular as the Cantata under notice. . . . It contains some charming music, and is highly characteristic of the story it so vividly illustrates."—South Wilts Express.

"Full of flowing melody."—Salisbury Times.

PERFORMED IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON TWELVE OCCASIONS.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s.; ditto, paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 4s. The Choruses (only) in Vocal Score, for Musical Societies, paper cover, 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 9d. Band parts on loan.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SEED TIME AND HARVEST

HARVEST CAROL

COMPOSED BY

HERBERT TOWNSEND.

Price Twopence. Words only Two Shillings per 100.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition. Price Fourpence.

O THAT MEN WOULD PRAISE THE LORD

(FULL ANTHEM FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS)

BY

DR. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE, M.A.,

Organist of Chester Cathedral.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Octavo, 3d.

THE HARVEST TRULY IS GREAT

SHORT, FULL ANTHEM FOR HARVEST, EMBER DAYS, MISSIONS, &c.

COMPOSED BY

W. W. PEARSON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST MUSIC.

HARVEST CANTATA

Vocal Score, price One Shilling and Sixpence.

I WAS GLAD

Festival Anthem. Second Edition, price Sixpence.

HARVEST HYMN

"Now our barns are full of treasure." Two tunes. Price Twopence.

Compositions of Dr. JACOB BRADFORD, published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HARVEST ANTHEMS

COMPOSED BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Price 3d. each; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d. each.

GREAT IS THE LORD

"An excellent specimen of a Choral Festival Anthem, is bright and jubilant in style, very melodious and easy throughout. It well deserves the attention of Choirmasters."—Leeds Mercury.

O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD

"Can be heartily recommended."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW WORKS FOR HARVEST FESTIVALS

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Fell. Coll. Org

COME, YE THANKFUL PEOPLE, COME.

Harvest Festival Anthem. Price 6d.

In this piece Sir George Elvey's tune, St. George, is introduced in several different ways.

Curtailed Edition, price 4d.

COME, YE THANKFUL PEOPLE, COME.

An Organ piece, consisting of an introduction and thirteen Variations upon the same tune. Price 3s. net.

For full description of these new pieces see previous advertisements.

Other Harvest Festival Anthems by the same Composer: "Thou visitest the earth," 3d.; "When the Lord turned again," 6d.; "God is the Lord," 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or of the COMPOSER, Burlington Villa, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

HARVEST ANTHEM

Introducing the Hymn No. 388 H.A.M., to be sung in Unison by Choir and Congregation,

O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD

BY

LANGDON COLBORNE, Mus.D.,

Organist of Hereford Cathedral. Price Threepence.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

Fifth Thousand.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

THE EYES OF ALL WAIT UPON THEE

"Easy, melodious, and effective."

COMPOSED BY EDWYN A. CLARE.

Old Notation, price 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, price 2d.

To be sung, October 5, by about 1,500 voices at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW HARVEST ANTHEM.

THOU VISITEST THE EARTH. By T. MEE PATTISON. Two Choruses and Soprano Chorus. Price 2d.; Sol-fa, 1½d.

London: STANNIER and Co., Vigo Chambers, 113, Regent Street, W.

NEW ANTHEM FOR HARVEST.

PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM. Composed by W. G. WOOD. Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS for TRINITYTIDE.

Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
Holy, holy, holy	Dr. Crotch	3d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I am Alpha and Omega	J. Stainer	1½d.
I beheld, and lo!	Dr. Blow	6d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In humble faith	G. Garrett	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
In sweet consent	E. H. Thorne	3d.
I saw the Lord	J. Stainer	6d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
O taste and see	A. H. Mann	3d.
Stand up and bless	Sir J. Goss	4d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	H. Hiles	6d.
Whatsoever is born of God	Sir H. Oakeley	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGAN VOLUNTARIES, A to G, 3s. 4d., or two 1s. Unsolicited testimonials. J. Martin, Organist, 96, St. Paul's Road, Bow.

WORKS BY

JOHN FARMER,

ORGANIST AT BALLIOL COLLEGE, OXFORD, AND DIRECTOR OF THE HARROW MUSIC SCHOOL.

		s.	d.
HARROW SCHOOL SONGS	complete	3	0
HARROW GLEE BOOK		3	0
NURSERY RHYMES. 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Sets	each	1	0
CINDERELLA. Fairy Opera		3	0
CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS. Oratorio		3	0
Chorus parts		1	0
REQUIEM		2	0

JUST OUT.

A FROG HE WOULD A-WOOING GO ... 3 0

For Men's Voices, with Solos—for The Mouse (Alto), The Frog (Tenor), The Rat (Bass), with an Accompaniment for String Instruments and Piano or for Piano alone.

Chorus parts		1	0
String parts		0	6
The same for Mixed Voices		3	0
(With Accompaniment for String Instruments.)
And also for Female Voices, ditto		3	0

AND ALL OTHER WORKS ARE PUBLISHED BY

JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS STREET, W.

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

WORDS ONLY.

			s.	d.
1.	Imperial 32mo	cloth	0	9
2.	Ditto, with Proper Psalms	,,	1	0
3.	Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms	,,	2	6
4.	Proper Psalms, 32mo	paper cover	0	3
5.	Canticles, 32mo		0	1
6.	Ditto, 8vo		0	3
16.	Imperial 32mo (Bible version)	cloth	1	0
7.	Psalter and Canticles, with Chants, 4to		5	0
15.	Ditto ditto, ditto, demy 8vo		2	6
12.	Canticles, with Chants, 4to		0	6

CHANTS ONLY.

8.	Post 4to	paper cover	2	0
9.	Ditto	cloth	3	0
10.	Fcap. 4to	paper cover	1	0
11.	Ditto	cloth	1	6
13.	Tonic Sol-fa	paper cover	1	0
14.	Ditto	cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. 1.

*FOUR MARCHES

COMPOSED BY

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

No. 1. Wedding March.
„ 2. War March of the Priests.
No. 3. Cornelius March, Op. 108.
„ 4. Funeral March, Op. 103.

TRANSCRIBED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 2.

*THIRTY MELODIES

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

These Melodies are expressly written to be used in connection with the Author's VIOLIN PRIMER.

No. 3.

*TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 4.

*TEN TRANSCRIPTIONS

FROM

GOUNOD'S "MORS ET VITA"

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

No. 5.

TWELVE SKETCHES

COMPOSED BY

BATTISON HAYNES.

No. 6.

*HUNGARIAN DANCES

TRANSCRIBED BY

SIEGFRIED JACOBY.

No. 7.

NINE MORCEAUX DE SALON

COMPOSED BY

IPPOLITO RAGGHIANTI.

No. 8.

*TWELVE PIECES

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

* These Albums may also be had arranged for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

CIRO PINSUTI.

BOOK I.

No. 1. After the rain.
„ 2. Out in the sunshine.
„ 3. I love all things.
No. 4. I sing because I love to sing.
„ 5. Passing away.
„ 6. The voice of the waterfall.

BOOK II.

No. 7. The mermaids.
„ 8. False love, and true.
„ 9. Under the stars.
No. 10. Bygone days, or Looking back.
„ 11. Love and friendship.
„ 12. The Magicians.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

FREDERIC H. COWEN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. Echoes.
„ 2. Cleansing Fires.
„ 3. Violets.
No. 4. A thought of home at sea.
„ 5. What the birds say.
„ 6. Linger, oh gentle Time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX DUETS

FOR

SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

No. 1. By vale and hill.
„ 2. The Skylark.
„ 3. Sweet content.
No. 4. To Daffodils.
„ 5. Twilight.
„ 6. Waiting and meeting.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX TWO-PART SONGS

FOR LADIES' OR BOYS' VOICES

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price One Shilling; or, singly, twopence each.

No. 1. To Sea!
„ 2. If hope were but a fairy.
„ 3. The willow and its lesson.
„ 4. The Promised Land.
No. 5. Song should breathe of scents and flowers.
„ 6. March.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

WITH THE ORIGINAL WORDS (ENGLISH),

ONE SHILLING.

Cloth, gilt edges ... ... 2s.
German and English Words ... ... 2s.
„ „ Cloth, gilt edges ... ... 4s.

Each Song separately, price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S FOLIO EDITION

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

WITH THE ORIGINAL WORDS (ENGLISH),

TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE;

Or singly, 1s. 6d. each net.

1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from "Ruy Blas."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBUMS
OF
GERMAN SONG

SELECTED, AND THE WORDS TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH,
BY
FRANCIS HUEFFER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

No. I.—THIRTY SONGS
BY
ROBERT FRANZ.

On the hidden wood-path.
Sunset.
Not a star.
Sunset.
Breathlessly the Lake reposes.
In the forest, moonbeamed-brightened.
The Swiss Soldier's complaint.
Rest on me, thou eye of darkness.
At night I see thee with dreaming eyes.
Dreams.
The rose and the lily.
On the sea.
Gently through my bosom flow.
Omnipresence.
Thou art far.
A lifetime wasted.
Lo! he has come.
Autumn sorrow.
Will she come to-day?
Love in May.
Yea, thou art blighted.
The last tear.
Love song.
When my despair is deepest.
Sweetest maid, with lips like roses.
Thinking of thee.
The rose has made sad moan to me.
In Rhine's broad rolling waters.
Forgotten.
Good Night.

No. II.—TWENTY SONGS
BY FRANZ LISZT.

Mignon's song—"Knowest thou the land?"
The King of Thule.
Peace.
Clara's song.
Who never ate with tears his bread?
Wanderer's night song.
The fisherboy.
The Alpine hunter.
Once and now.
Prayer.
The Loreley.
A flower thou resemblest.
Love's marvel.
The violet.
Flower and scent.
I cherish thee.
The three gipsies.
Question and answer.
Once again I fain would meet thee.
How sweetly sings the lark.

No. III.—TWENTY-FIVE SONGS
BY
ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The dewdrops shine.
Like to a lark.
The wood-witch.
Aubade.
Loss.
A message.
Spring song.
In the forest all is growing.
A flower thou resemblest.
The Asra.
Sun and love.
The rose.
Love's presence.
Bend, fairest blossom.
Ah! could it remain thus for ever.
The golden sun is shining.
Be not so coy.
In the forest.
Night.
To Spring.
From a Spanish song book.
Clara's song.
A tragedy.
Morning song.
Budding stands the queen.

No. IV.—TWENTY-SEVEN SONGS
BY JOHANNES BRAHMS.

A Troth.
Love and Spring (1).
Love and Spring (2).
Far over the field.
Amongst strangers.
West-wind blowing.
Spring.
My loved one has left me.
The reason why.
A Symbol.
Nightingales.
Faithful love.
Alone she stood by the window.
A Memory.
The swallow's flying West.
Alone.
Return.
The wounded youth.
Could I but once forget.
So secretly.
Serenade.
Longing.
The Kiss.
At Parting.
Parted.
The Smith.
To an Æolian.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

SELECTED, EDITED, AND TRANSLATED BY
NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

VOL. I.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR MEZZO-SOPRANO.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The Message of Flowers.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")
Hallow'd night, descend.
Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Thro' the pine-wood.
The summer waves.
Wanderer's Night-song.
Trust in Spring.
The Maiden's Lament.
To Mignon.
The Passing-Bell.
Alinda.
Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
The Fisherman.
On the water.

VOL. II.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR CONTRALTO.

CONTENTS.

The Wanderer.
Fisher's song.
The angry Bard.
The unlucky Fisherman.
Old Man's song.
The flight of Time.
Litany for All Souls' day.
The weary heart.
Minstrel's treasure.
Soldier's drinking song.
Sadness.
To the Lyre.
Calm at sea.
Lay of the imprisoned Huntsman.
Passing to Hades.
Comfort in tears.
Death and the Maiden.
Crusaders.
Dithyramb.
Prometheus.

VOL. III.—TWENTY SONGS
FOR
SOPRANO OR TENOR.

CONTENTS.

The Erl-King.
Omnipotence.
Love's unrest.
Rose among the heather.
Sad heart.
The band of roses.
Thou art repose.
Ganymed.
Mignon.
Secrets.
Hark, hark, the lark.
Thee would I greet.
To the beloved one.
Suleika's second song.
Presence of the loved one
Laughing and weeping.
Margaret's prayer.
By the doorways I will wander.
To a brooklet.
To Sylvia.

VOL. IV.—SCHWANENGESANG
(SWAN SONGS)
FOURTEEN SONGS.

(The English Version by the Rev. Dr. TROUTBECK.)

CONTENTS.

1. Love's Message—Murmuring Brooklet.
2. The Soldier's presentiment—In slumber deep.
3. Longings in Spring — Murmuring breezes.
4. A Serenade—Lightly wafted through the darkness.
5. The Retreat—Loud rushing stream.
6. In a strange land—Woe to one wandering.
7. Departure—Adieu, thou home of the happy and gay.
8. Atlas—On me, unhappy Atlas.
9. Her Portrait—I stood, and, sadly dreaming.
10. The Fishermaiden — Thou lovely fishermaiden.
11. The town — upon the far horizon.
12. By the sea — The sea yet gleamed.
13. The Apparition—Hushed is the night.
14. The pigeon post—A carrier pigeon.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOW READY.

(To be produced by the BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.)

JOAN OF ARC

"THE MAID OF ORLEANS"

AN HISTORICAL CANTATA

THE VERSE BY FREDERICK ENOCH

THE MUSIC BY ALFRED R. GAUL (OP. 41)

COMPOSER OF "THE HOLY CITY," "RUTH," "PASSION SERVICE," &c.

No. 1 Introduction and Chorus.
Allegretto Pastorale.
THE VOICES.
List! we call thee, we call thee to come. Come to thy mission, oh, come.
Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Hail to the beau - ti - ful morn - ing of May; Hail to the sun-beams that
No. 2. Recit. TENOR.
But where, oh! where is Joan? She comes not now, she loves to be a - lone.
Song. TENOR.
There is no one like her In the vil - lage here.
No. 3. Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Oh, here comes the maid we all love.
Duet. TENOR AND SOPRANO.
Oh, wel - come the maid we all love...
JOAN.
I come, but the song and the dance.
THE VOICES.
Yes, we call thee, we call thee to come.
No. 4. Chorus of Youths and Maidens.
Our time of sor-row has be - gun. To leave us was her choice.
No. 5. Dialogue Trio. SOPRANO, TENOR AND BARITONE
What! is this the peasant maid who seeks from her home to go?
THE VOICES.
Thy spi - rit voi-ces! hark, they call, Haste thee a - way, a - way!
No. 6. Recit. BARITONE.
May the cho-sen band to - day, guard-ing the maid on her way
Patriotic Song.
Who would not fight for free - dom! Who would not fight for the land!
No. 7. Chorus of Peasants.
A shepherd maid has pass'd; In armour now she's clad.
No. 8. Duet. TENOR AND BARITONE.
Full flows the ri - ver, swol - len by... the rains...
No. 9. Recit. JOAN...
They sleep; my thoughts are of home.
Song. JOAN.
A ring, a simple, simple ring, A gift of ear - ly years
No. 10. Chorus of Populace.
The maid—she is come at last! The en - e-mies' watch did not
No. 11. Battle March. SOLDIERS AND POPULACE.
On! on! on! on to the bat - tle, on!
No. 12. Trio. SOPRANO, TENOR AND BARITONE.
Lead ye on the men - at - arms, With free-dom's bat - tle cry
No. 12a. Chorus. TENORS & BASSES. ENGLISH & BURGUNDIAN MEN-AT-ARMS.
'Tis the witch! the fiend! a - gain!
No. 13. In the Cathedral.
A - ve Ma - ri - a— Glad our thanks a - rise.
SECOND VERSE.
A - ve Ma - ri - a, Oh! bless to
Oh! bless to know how bless-ings wait us near,
No. 14. Chorus of Populace.
Hark the chant - ing swells, Hark the
List to the clang of the bells,
No. 15. Intermezzo LAPSING FROM JOY TO SORROW.
Allegro.
No. 16. Chorus of Populace.
She is lost! she is lost! They have ta-ken, have ta - ken the maid.
No. 17 JOAN.
Is it here that I must die? Oh! France, be-lov-ed.
THE VOICES. Slowly.
Fret not thy-self to - day Of thy martyrdom, thy martyrdom, thy sacrifice; For thou shalt come at last ev-en un-to the kingdom of Pa-ra-dise.
No. 18. Finale, Chorus. YOUTHS AND MAIDENS.
Hail to the beau - ti - ful morn-ing of May...
VILLAGERS, MEN & WOMEN.
Slowly
Hush'd, oh! hush'd be the song! oh! hush'd, all hush'd be the song!
FULL CHOIR
Pompuso.
But her deeds, her deeds will re - main, re -

Price, paper covers, 2s. 6d.; ditto boards, 3s.; Scarlet Cloth, 4s.; Tonic Sol-Fa, 1s.; Vocal parts, each 1s.
Ent. Sta. Hall.] Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

The gratuitous loan of instrumental parts may be had on application to the Composer, and full liberty is given to perform this Cantata and to insert the words in any programme without further permission.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.
Dedicated to his friend, SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

SEVEN HYMNS IN VARIOUS METRES. Set to Music by ROBERT BROWN-BORTHWICK, Vicar of All Saints', Scarborough. Price Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Also, just published.
By the same Composer.
Dedicated to his friend, CANON T. PERCY HUDSON.

TWELVE SINGLE CHANTS, together with DOUBLE CHANT (for Psalms xiii. and xxxviii.), a Setting of BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA, and Responsive "Amens" to the "Dresden" Amen. Price Twopence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Also, just published.
Dedicated to his friend, W. A. BARRETT, Esq.

SAY, WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT? Being a Revised Edition in 6-8 time of Setting recently published (now recalled) in common time. Any possessor of the former issue will receive the above in exchange on sending it to the Author. Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

By the same Composer.

HYMN TUNES. Composed by ROBERT BROWN-BORTHWICK. Being a Complete Collection of all his Tunes to 1884. With their Words. Crown 8vo, elegantly bound in cloth, extra strongly sewn. Price 3s. 6d. net.
London: HAMILTON, ADAMS and Co., and all Boooksellers and Musicsellers.

"The Hymn Tunes composed by the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick are worthy of being extensively known. The melodies are even and flowing, the harmonies effective, though not far-fetched or strained, and the metres are such as can be adapted to the best and most popular words in use among our congregations. There is also a general spirit of reverence and dignity in the Tunes which forms not the least commendable feature in the collection."—Morning Post.

Notice of a former Collection included in this one.

"This small volume is certain to secure a warm reception from all lovers of sacred music. Only six of the tunes are here given to the world for the first time, the rest having previously appeared in various hymn-books and other publications. We are none the less glad, however, to welcome a collection which affords special opportunities of acquaintance with some of the most beautiful of modern hymn tunes."—The Rock.

"The Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick has published a little volume of Hymn Tunes for Congregational and Private Use, which are melodious and flowing without detriment to the devotional element, a consideration not always sufficiently attended to in this class of compositions. Among the signs of a general increase of musical taste may be noted the fact that congregations are no longer indifferent to the character of music given them to sing in our churches, and have their distinct likes and dislikes. To all those interested in this matter we may cordially recommend Mr. Brown-Borthwick's contribution to Church hymnody."—Musical World.

Also, by the same Composer.

BLESSED ARE THE DEAD (REQUIEM). A short, full, and easy Anthem, suitable for All Saints' Day, Saints' Days, and Funeral Services. Composed by ROBERT BROWN-BORTHWICK. Price 3d. To be had also arranged, by W. MEYER LUTZ, for voices, organ, two cornets, two trombones, and muffled drums. Also, shortly, for full orchestra.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY SPIRIT LONGS FOR THEE. Hymn set to Music by Dr. NAYLOR, Organist of York Minster. Together with others by the Editor. Price Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE FOE BEHIND, THE DEEP BEFORE. An easy and effective Anthem for Parish Choirs. Composed by Dr. NAYLOR, Organist of York Minster. Price Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS WITH WELSH WORDS.

MOLWCH YR ARGLWYDD Syr JOHN GOSS. Pris 1½c. Solffa 1c.
CENWCH GÂN O FAWL ... J. STAINER. Pris 3c. Solffa 1½c.
O PRAWF, A GWEL ... Syr JOHN GOSS. Pris 3c. Solffa 1½c.
O ARGLWYDD, MOR LIOSOG YW DY WEITHREDOEDD DI } J. BARNBY. Pris 3c. Solffa 1c.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC
BY
DR. FRANK BATES.

TE DEUM, in B flat ... ... 6d.
JUBILATE „ ... ... 4d.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS ... ... 4d.
HEAR MY PRAYER. Anthem (Soprano Solo and Chorus) ... 3d.
GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH. Anthem (for Parish Choirs) ... ... 2d.
O LORD, CORRECT ME ... ... 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY.

THE LORD REIGNETH
(PSALM XCIII.)
SET TO MUSIC BY
ROBERT PARKER PAINE.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

"At the Concert of the Windsor and Eton Choral Society, at the Albert Institute, Windsor, which was crowded, a new setting to the 93rd Psalm, by R. P. Paine, was performed for the first time. Without doubt there is very much that is really grand in it. . . . Mr. Paine was warmly congratulated by members of the profession upon his success. The audience called for the composer, and the last chorus was repeated."—Buckinghamshire Advertiser.

"The second part consisted of a composition by Mr. R. P. Paine, being the first time of performance, the 93rd Psalm. . . . There is a grandeur about the composition in harmony with the tone of the Psalm. Each number was applauded, and at the close Mr. Paine twice bowed his acknowledgments."—Eton Express.

"Mr. Paine is already the composer of several works, but in none of his previous efforts, successful and meritorious as they have been, has he scored such a success. . . . The rendering of the composition was listened to by several professors of music, who have expressed the highest commendatory opinions of the work, and without doubt Mr. Paine has exhibited exceptional ability."—Windsor and Eton Gazette.

Full Score and Band Parts can be hired.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCHOOL CANTATAS AND SONGS
Composed and Adapted by GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac.

Containing SOLOS, DUETS, and CHORUSES for Treble and Alto, with Pianoforte Accompaniment.

THE BELL TOWER ... ... Staff Notation 1s. ... Sol-fa 4d.
TWELVE SCHOOL SONGS „ 8d. ... „ 3d.
THE FOUR SEASONS... ... „ 1s. 6d. ... „ 6d.

"We cordially recommend this Cantata."—School Guardian.

"'The Four Seasons' is written throughout with appropriate simplicity, but bears the evidence of artistic workmanship in every bar. Some of the soprano solos will delight the prima donna of any establishment where the Cantata is placed in rehearsal."—Musical Times.

"This Cantata cannot fail to be most useful in ladies' schools."—Pitman's Musical Monthly.

"A very pretty Cantata; and the composer may be congratulated at having produced a work so eminently fitted for the purpose."—Essex Weekly News.
London: HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.

THE STRATHEARN COLLECTION of PART-SONGS, as sung by Mr. LAMBETH'S celebrated BALMORAL CHOIR, &c. Price 2d. Those marked * 3d. Sol-fa, 1d.

		Composed or Arranged by
1.	*The Auld House	H. A. LAMBETH.
2.	*The March of the Cameron Men	„
3.	*Will ye no come back again	„
4.	Auld Edinburgh Cries	„
5.	Braw, Braw Lads	„
6.	Bonnie Prince Charlie (Cam ye by Athol) ...	„
7.	Roslin Castle	„
8.	The War-Song of the Men of Glamorgan ...	„
9.	Savourneen Deelish	„
10.	The Jolly Miller	„
11.	Begone, dull care	„
12.	*How calm, how beautiful (Sol-fa, 1½d.) ...	T. RICHARDSON.
13.	*The Twa Doos	J. YORKSTON.
14.	*The Covenanter's Widow's Lament	„
15.	*It was a lording's daughter...	T. RICHARDSON.
16.	*The March of the Cameron Men	J. YORKSTON.
17.	*Will ye no come back again	„
18.	Flowers of the Forest	W. HUME.
19.	Caller Herrin'	„
20.	Lord Gregory	„
21.	Pibroch o' Donuil Dhu	„
22.	The Rowan Tree	H. A. LAMBETH.
23.	Bonnie ran the burnie down	„
24.	The Bonnie Brier Bush	„
25.	Joy of my earliest days	„
26.	The Trump of War	„
27.	Bonnie wee thing	F. PETERSON.

PATERSON and SONS, Musicsellers to the Queen, 27, George Street, Edinburgh; Glasgow, Perth, Dundee, Ayr, and Dumfries.
London: J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent Street.

FRIENDSHIP, LOVE, and TRUTH. Song. Words by JAMES MONTGOMERY. Music by JOHN RIDGE. Price 3s. 6d. (sold at half-price). To be had of the COMPOSER, 148, West Street, Sheffield.

"The melody is beautifully expressive, and is supported by a clever and effective accompaniment."—Sheffield Daily Telegraph.

A copy of the above Song, Post-free (until November), on receipt of Sixpence in stamps.

THE CAPTIVES OF BABYLON

AN ORATORIO

COMPOSED BY

GEO. SHINN, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

THIS work contains many effective Solos and Choruses of moderate difficulty. The first part describes the destruction of Jerusalem and the carrying away of the captives into Babylon. The second part, the fall of Babylon and the return of the captives to Jerusalem.

The work is suitable for Concert-room or Church.

Price 2s. Cloth, 3s. 6d.; Sol-fa, 1s.

LONDON: HART & CO., 22, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

A Specimen Copy will be sent Post-free (until December) by GEO. SHINN, 234, Stockwell Road, Brixton, S.W., on receipt of P.O. for 1s. 6d.

Fourth Thousand.

THE MONTHS

TWELVE VOCAL DUETS FOR SCHOOL USE

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

(Composer of the "Holy City," "Ruth," &c.)

"There are in this series of duets the sweetest things of the kind we have ever met with. No. 4, 'April,' and No. 5, 'May,' are our special favourites, the one being delightfully playful, the other tenderly melodious. Things to be treasured in households where sisters or friends delight in joining voices. The pianoforte accompaniments are well written, and such as an ordinary pianist may successfully undertake."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

	s.	d.
Parts I. and II. ... ... each	1	0
Complete, paper cover	1	6
Ditto, paper boards	2	0
Ditto, scarlet cloth	3	0
Or, in Twelve Numbers ... ... each	0	2

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS by A. J. CALDICOTT.

Poor Little Tom-ee (just published)...	6d.
Where are you going to, my pretty maid? (just published) ...	6d.
Humpty Dumpty	6d.
Little Jack Horner, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
Jack and Gill	4d.
The House that Jack built, 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
The Sobbing Quartet	3d.
The Haymakers. Part-song	4d.
Out on the Waters. Part-song	4d.
Yule. Part-song	4d.
Sleeping Leaves. Glee...	4d.

London: METZLER and Co., 42, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW POPULAR SONGS.

A GOLDEN PROMISE (with Violin and Organ Accompaniments). Key F. Compass C to D. By H. T. TILTMAN.

DAPHNE. Words by Walter Besant. By H. T. TILTMAN.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Now Ready.

SECOND EDITION OF DR. STORER'S SUCCESSFUL CANTATA

THE TOURNAMENT

Two Shillings net.

This work has been performed with great success at Beverley, Dover (with Mr. Santley), Doncaster, Folkestone, Glasgow, Halifax, Londonderry, Salisbury, and other places.

Orchestral Parts to be had on hire from the Author, Folkestone.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

O NOBLE QUEEN OF ENGLAND. A Jubilee Part-Song for S.A.T.B. Composed by T. SIMPSON. Price 4d. No choir should omit singing this stirring part-song at any ensuing entertainment or tea-party.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—A quantity of Cantatas and Part-Songs, in good condition, to sell cheap. Send for list to Mr. C. E. Wheeler, 6, Culmore Road, Peckham, S.E.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	Net. s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ... (Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	2	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	2	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner...	2	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ... (Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)	2	0
THE ZINGARA ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)	2	0
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	2	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
NELLIE OF THE LEA. The words written by R. Richardson, Esq.	2	0
THE LITTLE LASS O' BRAY. The Words written by Edward Oxenford ... ... (Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON and Miss JEANIE ROSSE.)	2	0

PIANOFORTE, &c.
ALBANY. Grande Marche Triomphale (Composed in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold). 2nd Edition	2	0
Transcription for the Organ, by Dr. W. J. Westbrook	2	0
MY LADYE BARBARA'S GAVOTTE	2	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.
THE THREE STARS. 2nd Edition	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 8th Edition	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 19th Edition	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 6th Edition	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 12th Edition	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 8th Edition	0	2
THE HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 10th Edition ...	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 7th Edition	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? 3rd Edition. (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.)	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

FOR MALE VOICE CHOIR.—THE NATIONAL ANTHEM, price 4d.; JUBILEE ODE, price 6d. net., by GEORGE RISELEY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS

BY

STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

SONGS.	POETRY BY		net. s.	d.
Arise, my love!	ROBERT CROMPTON.	Tenor ...	1	6
The lover's star	"	" ...	1	6
Dreaming in the shadow...	CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D.	Soprano	2	0
The magic harp	"	"	2	0
Hark! sweet bells ...	EDWARD OXENFORD.	"	1	6
Little Rosebud	"	"	1	6
The cricketer's song ...	F. T. READ.	Baritone	2	0
Wert thou mine	"	Tenor	1	6
The Woodman	EDWARD OXENFORD.	Bass... ...	2	0
That smile of thine ...	RICHARD Y. STURGES.	Baritone ...	2	0
The sun and the flower ...	"	" ...	1	6
Winter and Spring ...	"	Contralto...	2	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

AUTHOR'S MSS. revised for publication. Compositions arranged for String or Military Band. Hermann Vanderline, 19, Canterbury Terrace, New Brompton, Kent.

Now Ready. Small 4to, price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal Parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE

CANTICLES AND HYMNS

OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE

TOGETHER WITH

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by his Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Just published.

THE

MORNING & EVENING SERVICE

TOGETHER WITH THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

Set to Music in the Key of C, for Four Voices

BY

HARVEY LÖHR.

Price 1s. 6d.; or, singly:—

No. 1. Te Deum laudamus ... ... 4d.
„ 2. Benedictus ... ... 3d.
„ 3. Jubilate Deo ... ... 3d.
„ 4. Kyrie Eleison. 5. Credo. 6. Sursum Corda. 7. Sanctus. 8. Gloria in Excelsis ... ... 6d.
„ 9. Magnificat. 10. Nunc dimittis ... ... 4d.

An Edition of this Service for Voices in Unison may also be had, price 1s., or singly.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE in F.

Price 6d.

OFFICE OF THE HOLY COMMUNION IN F.

Price 6d.

ANTHEM, ALMIGHTY GOD, S.A.T.B.

Verse, Bass. Price 4d.

BY

F. H. CHEETHAM.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PLAIN SETTING

OF THE

OFFICE FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION

INCLUDING

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI, FOR GENERAL USE.

BY E. W. TAYLOR, MUS. DOC.

Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TE DEUM, set to Music in the Key of B flat, on the Melody of "The Chimes," by CHARLES T. WEST. Price Threepence. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

IN THEE, O LORD. Anthem for four Voices. Composed by ARTHUR T. CROOK. Price Fourpence. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE PSALMS

BIBLE VERSION

POINTED FOR CHANTING

BY THE

REV. DR. TROUTBECK.

CLOTH, ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHRISTMAS ANTHEM

BY

EMMA MUNDELLA.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel ... ... 3d.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Square, W.

ANTHEM FOR TREBLE & ALTO VOICES

BY

EMMA MUNDELLA.

Through wisdom is an house builded ... ... 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW TWO-PART SONGS FOR FEMALE VOICES

BY

EMMA MUNDELLA.

Flowers (Canon for two voices) ... ... 2d.
Ye Spotted Snakes ... ... 3d.
Song of Mermaids and Mermen ... ... 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in F). Composed by W. G. WOOD. Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO DR. STAINER.

ORGAN PEDAL SCALES & DAILY STUDIES, by GEO. ERNEST LAKE (including two Themes with varied Pedal Obbligati, containing many of the Passages met with in standard Organ Music). Price 1s. net.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HAIL TO OUR HARVEST HOME! Part-music. By BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 1½d.
"This is a spirited composition."—The Orb.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO COMPOSERS.—SELECTIONS of WORDS for SONGS sent on APPROVAL. Lyrics for secular cantata, romantic subject, also for disposal. A. V., 9, Inglis Road, Addiscombe, Surrey.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.

TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants. s. d.

No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
,, 10.	Cloth boards	5	0
,, 11.	Small edition	3	0
,, 12.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),

With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use 1 3

(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, Threepence.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.
These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC. By Dr. E. J. CROW.

Te Deum and Jubilate in C	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	6d.
Cantate and Deus misereatur in G	8d.
Harvest Hymn. (6s. per 100)	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NEW ANTHEM, WITH VIOLIN OBBLIGATO.

Suitable equally for Parish Choir, Cathedral, or Home Use.

TEACH ME THY WAY, O LORD

Psalm LXXXVI., Verse 11. By W. H. WILSON. "Simple, easy, and effective." Price Threepence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

A FESTIVAL SETTING OF THE

CANTATE DOMINO & DEUS MISEREATUR

In G major for Four Voices

COMPOSED BY

JOHN J. BAILEY,

Organist and Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, Ballarat, Victoria.
Price Sixpence.

Also, by the same Composer

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS

In G major for Four Voices.
Price Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BERLIOZ'S TE DEUM. Op. 22. Performed at the Crystal Palace, April 18, 1885. Vocal Score, 2s. net.
STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER and Co., 84, New Bond Street, London, W.

Fifth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s., paper cover; 3s., cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and PARKER and Co.

Twentieth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.
The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter, having been collated with the Sealed Books, is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Ninth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Seventh Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, by HENRY T. TILTMAN. Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in D. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 6d. Suitable for Festal or general use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO PEACE, from the Eirene of Aristophanes, for Soli, Trio, and Chorus. 1s. TWO SONNETS, by Sir PHILIP SIDNEY, for S.A.T.B. in the Madrigal style. 6d. By VYVYAN WALLIS POPHAM. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

By E. BUNNETT, Mus.D.

Harvest Anthem—"Blessed be Thou." Four voices	3d.
,, "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
Harvest or Festival Hymn—"Sing to the Lord"	1d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Office of the Holy Communion	9d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	3d.
Cantate and Deus Misereatur in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.

PART-SONGS.

Autumn Song Four Voices	3d.
The Rhine Maiden. ,,	3d.
Beware ,,	1d.

And all other Works by the same Composer. Lists on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

2ND THOUSAND.—ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Organist, Diss.

"Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard.

"Contains much useful information."—Musical Times.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

Price Threepence.

VOCAL POLKA

MERRY JUNE

BY DR. VINCENT.

One of the principal features of the enormously popular BALLET AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

MERRY JUNE

VOCAL POLKA

Sung Nightly.

70 Performances by MR. STEDMAN'S CHOIR BOYS.

MERRY JUNE

RAPTUROUSLY APPLAUDED BY NEARLY A MILLION OF PEOPLE AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

VOCAL POLKA

MERRY JUNE

Price Threepence. Most admirably adapted for the use of Schools and Choirs of Ladies or Boys.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TEN SONGS

SET TO POEMS OF ROBERT BURNS

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TRIOS FOR FEMALE VOICES

COMPOSED BY

G. J. BENNETT.

In grotto cool ... ... Words by E. OXENFORD 3d.
In the dell and dingle ... ... ,, 3d.
(Nos. 207 and 208, Novello's Collection of Trios, &c.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

ORGAN MUSIC

TWELVE SHORT AND EASY PIECES

Intended for use between Offertory Sentences, Confirmations, &c.

COMPOSED BY

E. BUNNETT, MUS. D.

Price 2s. net.

Also, by same Composer, for Organ,

LARGO IN E FLAT

Price 1s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

CAVATINA

(IN F)

FOR VIOLONCELLO, WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

COMPOSED BY

FRANCESCO BERGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALFRED GILBERT'S SINGING-BOOK for PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND CHOIRBOYS is equally adapted for Ladies' and other Schools. Price 6d. Appendix of Practical Exercises. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SINGING BOOK Series of Two-Part Songs, For Treble Voices, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Suitable for Classes. 8vo, 2d. each. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALBERT HAM, F.C.O.

Part-Song—"The sun has gone down" (S.A.T.B.) ... 2d.
,, —"Little Jack Horner" ... ... 4d.
(Sung with great success in London and provinces.)
Two-part Songs (S.C.)—"The Robin" ... ... 2d.
,, —"The Skylark" ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUNG BY MADAME ALBANI.

MORE THAN CROWN OF MONARCH PRECIOUS

SOLO FOR SOPRANO FROM A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price Two Shillings net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EMPIRE FLAG

A PATRIOTIC SONG FOR SOLO AND CHORUS

The Words written by

STUART REID AND W. ALEX. BARRETT.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Two Shillings net.

Arranged as a Part-Song, S.A.T.B., 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition within a fortnight.

PLIGHTED VOWS

DUET FOR SOPRANO AND TENOR

The Words by CONWAY WALTER.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

MEYRICK ROBERTS.

Price Three Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published. Price 4s.

THE SINGERS

SONG, WITH HARMONIUM OR ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT

ad lib.

Compass:—

THE POETRY BY

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE MUSIC BY

W. W. PEARSON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price One Shilling.

SELECTION FROM "A JUBILEE LYRIC"

LOVE THAT LASTS FOR EVER

WRITTEN BY THE EARL OF ROSSLYN,

AND PUBLISHED BY COMMAND.

Set to Music for Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus

(With introduction, by Her Majesty's gracious permission, of a Choral by H.R.H. THE PRINCE CONSORT),

BY

SIR HERBERT OAKELEY,

LL.D., Mus. Doc., &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO ORGANISTS AND VILLAGE CHOIRS.

JOHN GILPIN

(COMIC CANTATA)

BY

GEORGE FOX.

Vocal Score, 2s. 6d. net; complete set of Orchestral Parts, 10s. 6d. net.
New Edition revised.

London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners Street, W.

Just published.

MASS

TO THE

MEMORY OF JOAN OF ARC

BY

CHARLES GOUNOD.

For Soli, Chorus, and Organ, preceded by a Prelude for Trumpets, Trombones, and Organ ... ... Score, net 10s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee. By ALFRED ALLEN. "The composer evinces considerable humour."—Saturday Review. Price 4d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the Authority of the Committee of the Royal Academy of Music.

ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.

"In the space of some fifty pages the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals, and scales, rests, time, and abbreviations, and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.

ELEMENTS OF HARMONY AND COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.

This work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

SECOND THOUSAND. CLOTH BOARDS, IMPERIAL 8vo. PRICE 3s.

HARMONY & THOROUGH-BASS

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR USE IN CLASSES AND FOR THOSE PREPARING FOR MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS

BY

ALFRED R. GAUL

Composer of "The Holy City," "Ruth," "Passion Service," &c.

With fifty new exercises, written expressly for this work by T. Anderton, Dr. Bunnett, F. Cambridge, A. Deakin, A. R. Gaul, Dr. Gower, A. Page, H. Stonex, Dr. Wareing, and Dr. Winn; also examples by Albrechtsberger and Reicha.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Birmingham and Leicester: MIDLAND EDUCATIONAL Co., Limited.

CATECHISM on the RUDIMENTS of MUSIC and PIANOFORTE PLAYING. By E. ELLICE JEWELL. Fourth and Revised Edition, price 1s. Also,

ELEMENTARY EXERCISES, to be used in conjunction with the above-named work. No manuscript music-book or paper will be required, as space is left with ruled staves for the pupil to write all the exercises in this book. Price 2s.

PIANOFORTE STUDENT'S DAILY STUDY, comprising Scales, Chords, Arpeggi, and Finger Exercises. Arranged by ELLICE E. JEWELL. Price 6s.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES. Price 1s.

"The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times.

"A great deal of information as to what is generally called Thorough-Bass is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

LAMBORN COCK, 26, Old Bond Street, London.

NEW HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

THE

THREE MERRY DWARFS

WRITTEN BY

EDWARD OXENFORD.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

PRICE FOURPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat)	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A)	6d.
Bridge, Dr. J. F. (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A)	6d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G)	6d.	Stainer, Dr. (in B flat)	6d.
Faning, Eaton (in C)	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C)	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C)	6d.
Lloyd, C. H. (in F)	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F)	4d.
Mann, A. H., Dr. (in E)	1s.	Tours, Berthold (in D)	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C)	6d.	Williams, C. L. (in F major)	4d.

Cantate and Deus (in C), Dr. Steggall, 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

DOMESTIC LIFE

TWELVE DUETS FOR THE PIANOFORTE

BY

J. MOSCHELES.

(NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS, Nos. 27 and 28.)

Price Two Shillings each.

Bound together, cloth (Volume 9), price Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JUVENILE ALBUM

EIGHT CHARACTERISTIC PIECES

(FOUR HANDS)

The Primo Part being generally within the Compass of Five Notes

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

(NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS, No. 26.)

Price Two Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

No. 6.

HUNGARIAN DANCES

TRANSCRIBED BY

SIEGFRIED JACOBY.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

This Album may also be had for Violoncello and Pianoforte.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

SUITABLE FOR OPENING CONCERTS OF THE ENSUING SEASON.

A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED FOR THE

FESTIVAL CONCERT

HELD AT THE

CRYSTAL PALACE,

JUNE 22, 1887.

WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

(OP. 36.)

"An unaccompanied choral prayer, 'Lord of life, and light, and glory,' rises to a still higher plane. Solidly written, and laden with rich yet not recondite harmonies, this number is likely long to survive the occasion that gave it birth. It shows how well Mr. Mackenzie can write in the broadest style for a mass of voices. The lead-up to the National Anthem belongs to a still higher order of things. Constructed with rare art, it answers to the ideal of preparation for a climax, and works upon the feelings with immense power till 'God save the Queen' comes in as an ultimate expression."—Daily Telegraph.

"The reception of the Jubilee Ode proved unmistakably that it had thoroughly taken hold of public favour, and this is a fact agreeable to note seeing that the work was entirely of home growth."—Standard.

"The work is short and occupies only about three-quarters of an hour in performance, but it is full of interest from the first note to the last, and in its every line displays the thoughtful and the experienced musician."—Morning Post.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CONCONE'S LESSONS

NEW EDITION

WITH MARKS OF

EXPRESSION & PHRASING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence each.

50 Lessons for the Medium part of the Voice.

40 Lessons for Contralto.

40 Lessons for Bass or Baritone.

The sterling value and great usefulness of Concone's Lessons have been so long recognised and so generally admitted, that their extensive adoption caused, as a natural consequence, the issue of numerous editions in almost every country where the study of the Art of Singing is cultivated. No edition, however, which has hitherto come under my notice, seems to me as correct, complete, and reliable as it should be.

I have endeavoured to rectify this deficiency by adding in the present edition signs of expression and phrasing, where I considered it expedient to do so, completing, and in some cases altering, the breathing marks, and altogether carefully revising the whole work.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BEETHOVEN.—Funeral March from Sonata, Op. 26. Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by S. Jadassohn	2	0
CHOPIN.—Funeral March. Op. 35. Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by S. Jadassohn...	2	0
DUPONT, A.—Pianoforte School. Part XXXIX. (Mendelssohn Fantasia, Op. 28, and Variations Sérieuses, Op. 54) ...	8	0
ERNEST, G.—Four Pianoforte Pieces:—
Op. 9. Romance	3	0
„ 10. No. 1. Valse Caprice	4	0
„ 10. „ 2. Polka Caprice	4	0
„ 13. Barcarole	4	0
FIBICH, Z.—Sonata, Op. 28, in B. For Pianoforte Duet ...	10	0
FRIEDENTHAL, L.—Trio in D minor. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello. Op. 8	10	0
GOUNOD, CH.—La Melodia. Romance for the Organ. Edited by Dr. Spark	4	0
HAUSER, F.—Theoretical and Practical Singing Method. (German text)... ... ... net	6	0
HOFMANN, H.—Three Small Sonatas. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 86 ... ... each	6	0
HÜLLWECK, C.—Lullaby. Op. 8. For Cello and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same for Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
JADASSOHN, S.—Quintet. Op. 70. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet by the Author	14	0
—— Quartet. For Pianoforte, Violin, Viola, and Cello. Op. 86	24	0
—— Romance. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 87	3	0
—— Album of Pianoforte Pieces ... ... net	6	0
KAAN, H. VON.—Three Serenades. For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 27 ... ... complete	8	0
KLENGEL, J.—Concert Study. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 16	5	0
—— Humoreske. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 17	6	0
MATYS, K.—Four Duets. For Cello and Harmonium:—
No. 1. Impromptu	4	0
„ 2. Canzone	4	0
„ 3. Intermezzo	4	0
„ 4. Rêverie	4	0
MACDOWELL, E. A.—Four Pieces. For Pianoforte:—
No. 1. Humoreske	3	0
„ 2. March	3	0
„ 3. Lullaby	3	0
„ 4. Czardas	3	0
—— Idyls. Six Small Pianoforte Pieces. Op. 28... ... each	2	0
MENDELSSOHN.—Wedding March. Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by S. Jadassohn...	3	0
—— Hero's March. From Capriccio. Op. 22. Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by S. Jadassohn	3	0
MEYERBEER, G.—Coronation March. From "The Prophet." Easily arranged for Pianoforte Duet by S. Jadassohn ...	3	0
MOSZKOWSKI, M.—Intermezzo. From Suite. Op. 39. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet	5	0
NAPRAVNIK, E.—Bagatelles. For Pianoforte. Op. 46 ...	6	0
PAPINI, G.—"Elaine." Song. For Mezzo-soprano or Baritone. With Violin and Pianoforte Accompaniment... ...	4	0
PESTER, A.—Three Easy Pieces. For Cello and Pianoforte. Op. 14	3	0
—— Concert Piece. Op. 15. For Cello and Pianoforte... ...	6	0
—— Tarentella. Op. 16. For Cello and Pianoforte	4	0
ROSENHAIN, J.—Concerto. For Pianoforte and Orchestra. Op. 73. Orchestral Parts	30	0
SCHARWENKA, PH.—Five Tanzscenen. For Pianoforte Duet:—
No. 1. Maskentanz	4	0
„ 2. Lenzreigen	4	0
„ 3. Pas de deux	4	0
„ 4. Brautreigen	3	0
„ 5. Polnischer Tanz	4	0
SCHUMANN.—"Träumerei." From Op. 15. Arranged for Cello and Pianoforte by Ch. Davidoff	3	0
SCHWALM, R.—"Der Jüngling zu Nain." Oratorio. For Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra or Organ. Op. 65. (German words) ... ... net	3	0
SGAMBATI, G.—Three Nocturnes. For Pianoforte:—
No. 1. In B minor	3	6
„ 2. In G	3	0
„ 3. In C minor	4	0
—— The same. Complete	6	0
STORCH, EM.—Concert Piece. For Double Bass and Pianoforte	8	0
THUILLE, L.—Five Songs. With Pianoforte. (German words). Op. 4	5	0
WAGNER.—"Love Song" from "The Walküre." Transcribed for Violin and Pianoforte by J. Barrès	4	0
—— "Swan Song" and Elsa's "Triumph Song" from "Lohengrin." Arranged for Two Pianofortes (eight hands) by F. Hermann	6	0

Sold at half price if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S
MUSIC PRIMERS
EDITED BY
DR. STAINER.

IN issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

			s.	d.
1.	THE PIANOFORTE	E. PAUER	2	0
2.	THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC	W. H. CUMMINGS	1	0
3.	THE ORGAN	DR. STAINER	2	0
4.	THE HARMONIUM	KING HALL	2	0
5.	SINGING (Paper Boards, 5*s*.)	A. RANDEGGER	4	0
6.	SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer)	A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.	2	0
7.	MUSICAL FORMS	E. PAUER	2	0
8.	HARMONY	DR. STAINER	2	0
9.	COUNTERPOINT	DR. BRIDGE	2	0
10.	FUGUE	JAMES HIGGS	2	0
11.	SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC	DR. STONE	1	0
12.	DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT	DR. BRIDGE	2	0
13.	CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING	REV. J. TROUTBECK	1	0
14.	PLAIN SONG	REV. T. HELMORE	2	0
15.	INSTRUMENTATION	E. PROUT	2	0
16.	THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC	E. PAUER	1	0
17.	THE VIOLIN	BERTHOLD TOURS	2	0
18.	TONIC SOL-FA	J. CURWEN	1	0
19.	LANCASHIRE SOL-FA	JAMES GREENWOOD	1	0
20.	COMPOSITION	DR. STAINER	2	0
21.	MUSICAL TERMS	STAINER AND BARRETT	1	0
22.	THE VIOLONCELLO	JULES DE SWERT	2	0
23.	TWO-PART EXERCISES (396)	JAMES GREENWOOD	1	0
24.	DOUBLE SCALES	FRANKLIN TAYLOR	1	0
25.	MUSICAL EXPRESSION	MATHIS LUSSY	3	0
26.	SOLFEGGI (Paper Boards, 5*s*.)	FLORENCE A. MARSHALL	4	0
	Or, in Three Parts, 1*s*. 6*d*. each.
27.	ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT	DR. BRIDGE	2	0
28.	THE CORNET	H. BRETT	2	0

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Any of the above may be had strongly bound in boards, price 6*d*. each extra.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

SAINT LUDMILA

AN ORATORIO

WRITTEN BY

JAROSLAV VRCHLICKÝ.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

(OP. 71.)

PRODUCED AT THE LEEDS FESTIVAL, 1886.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	5	0
,, ,, paper boards	6	0
,, ,, scarlet cloth	7	0
Vocal Parts ... ... each	2	0
Full Score	84	0
String Parts	30	0
Wind Parts	49	0

THE SPECTRE'S BRIDE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

WRITTEN BY

K. J. ERBEN.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

(OP. 69.)

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	3	0
,, ,, paper boards	3	6
,, ,, cloth, gilt	5	0
Vocal Parts, Octavo	4	0
Full Score	63	0
String Parts	17	6
Wind Parts	30	6
Book of Words	1	0

A PATRIOTIC HYMN

FROM THE BOHEMIAN POEM "THE HEIRS OF THE WHITE MOUNTAIN"

WRITTEN BY

VÍTĚSLAV HÁLEK.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

(OP. 30.)

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover (English Words)	1	0
,, ,, ,, (Bohemian and German Words)	3	0
Full Score	21	0
String Parts	4	6
Wind Parts	9	6

STABAT MATER

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

ANTONÍN DVOŘÁK.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	2	6
,, ,, paper boards	3	0
,, ,, cloth gilt	4	0
Vocal Parts, Octavo ... ... each	0	9
Full Score	45	0
Orchestral Parts	30	0

THE STORY OF SAYID

A DRAMATIC CANTATA FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

THE LIBRETTO WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	3	0
,, ,, paper boards	3	6
,, ,, scarlet cloth	4	6
Vocal Parts ... ... each	1	6
Full Score	52	6
String Parts	18	0
Wind Parts	33	0
Book of Words	1	0

ROSE OF SHARON

A DRAMATIC CANTATA, FOUNDED ON THE SONG OF SOLOMON

THE WORDS SELECTED FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	5	0
,, ,, paper boards	6	0
,, ,, scarlet cloth	7	6
,, Tonic Sol-fa edition	2	0
Vocal Parts ... ... each	1	6
Full Score	63	0
String Parts	24	0
Wind Parts	40	0
The Accompaniments, arranged for Harmonium and Pianoforte (instead of Orchestra), by KING HALL	10	6
Book of Words	0	6
Ditto. With Analytical Notes by JOSEPH BENNETT	1	0

A JUBILEE ODE

COMPOSED FOR THE

FESTIVAL CONCERT HELD AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE, JUNE 22, 1887.

WRITTEN BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	2	6
Vocal Parts ... ... each	0	9
String Parts	10	6
Wind Parts, MS. Full Score, MS. Military Band Parts, MS.
Book of Words	0	6

THE BRIDE

A CANTATA

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN OF R. HAMERLING

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
Vocal Score, Octavo, paper cover	1	0
,, Tonic Sol-fa edition	0	8
Vocal Parts ... ... each	0	6
Full Score	21	0
String Parts	6	6
Wind Parts	14	0

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF

TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c.

FOR FEMALE VOICES.

RECENT NUMBERS.

172. At the spinning wheel... ... ... Carl Hering 2d.
173. The Hussar's departure ... ... ,, 3d.
174. The Festival ... ... ,, 2d.
175. Voice of the western wind ... ... J. Barnby 3d.
176. The twilight star ... ... ,, 3d.
177. Sweet May ... ... ,, 3d.
178. Vox Amoris ... ... Otto Schweizer 3d.
179. The Knight and the Lady ... ... ,, 3d.
180. Whene'er the sounding harp is heard ... ... J. Brahms 6d.
181. Come away, come away, Death ... ... ,, 4d.
182. The Gardener ... ... ,, 6d.
183. The death of Trenar ... ... ,, 6d.
184. Eglantine... ... ... Adolf Jensen 3d.
185. The Mountain Spirit ... ... ,, 3d.
186. Spring and his Bride ... ... ,, 4d.
187. The Fairies' Song ... ... Sir Henry R. Bishop 4d.
188. June ... ... Finlay Dun 3d.
189. A Northern Love-song ... ... H. Hofmann 2d.
190. Sympathy... ... ... Otto Schweizer 3d.
191. Quiet Hours ... ... R. B. Addison 3d.
192. Morning Hymn... ... ...G. Spontini 4d.
193. Sweet and low ... ... B. Luard Selby 2d.
194. Flow down, cold rivulet ... ... ,, 3d.
195. Blessed are the pure in heart ... ... Ernest Lake 3d.
196. Through murm'rous leaves ... ... G. Bartel 2d.
197. On the land afar extending ... ... ,, 2d.
198. Morning sweet Cuckoos greet ... ... ,, 3d.
199. True life to live ... ... ,, 3d.
200. The Nightingale ...Thomas Weelkes (arr. by H. Leslie) 2d.
201. Twelve by the clock ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
202. Bright is the day ... ... E. Prout 4d.
203. Sweet the balmy days of Spring ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
204. In our boat ... ... F. H. Cowen 3d.
205. The Bride hath paced into the hall ("The Ancient Mariner") J. F. Barnett 4d.
206. But tell me, speak again ("The Ancient Mariner") J. F. Barnett 4d.
207. In grotto cool ... ... George J. Bennett 3d.
208. In the dell and dingle ... ... ,, ,, 3d.

(To be continued.)

THE ORPHEUS

(NEW SERIES).

RECENT NUMBERS.

162. Come, follow me ... ... E. T. Driffield 4d.
163. Autumn is come again ... ... F. Corder 4d.
164. Great Orpheus was a fiddler... ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
165. Tom he was a piper's son ... ... E. T. Driffield 4d.
166. O mistress mine... ... ... ,, 3d.
167. The Love Spell ... ... T. B. Evison 3d.
168. I wish to tune my quiv'ring lyre ... ... S. S. Wesley 6d.
169. Roaming ... ... H. Hofmann 2d.
170. Sir Cuckoo ... ... ,, 4d.
171. Glorious May ... ... ,, 3d.
172. In Spring time ... ... ,, 4d.
173. Our Maxim ... ... ,, 3d.
174. In dulci jubilo ... ... ,, 4d.
175. Dim and grey appear the mountains ... ... Franz Abt 3d.
176. At Andernach in Rhineland ... ... ,, 3d.
177. The Grave of a Singer ... ... ,, 3d.
178. Laughing ... ... ,, 4d.
179. Tell me where is fancy bred ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 3d.
180. Hymn to Cynthia ... ... Berthold Tours 3d.
181. The Patriot ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 2d.
182. A sad disappointment ... ... C. E. McCheane 2d.
183. Cold blows the wind ... ... G. C. Martin 3d.
184. Fly to my mistress ... ...Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
185. Fisherman's Song ... ... Joachim Raff 3d.
186. Herdsman's Song ... ... ,, 2d.
187. Alpine Hunter's Song ... ... ,, 2d.
188. Come, brother, gaily drink ... ... ,, 4d.
189. Winter Song ... ... ,, 2d.
190. Sad that I must turn to dust ... ... ,, 2d.
191. Cossack's Drinking Song ... ... ,, 2d.
192. One little star in the heaven... ... ... ,, 2d.
193. A mighty king is wine... ... ... ,, 2d.
194. God rules alone ... ... ,, 3d.
195. A wet sheet and a flowing sea ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
196. Stars of the summer night ... ... W. A. C. Cruickshank 3d.
197. The Norman Cider ... ... Arthur E. Dyer 3d.
198. The Song of the Chase ... ... R. Schumann 4d.
199. Have a care ... ... ,, 4d.
200. The Hunter's Morning Song ... ... ,, 4d.
201. At break of day... ... ... ,, 4d.
202. In full chase ... ... ,, 4d.
203. If doughty deeds ... ... G. F. Cobb 4d.
204. God and our country ... ... R. Mähllig 2d.

(To be continued.)

NOVELLO'S

PART-SONG BOOK

RECENT NUMBERS.

501. The Lass of Richmond Hill ... ... H. Leslie 4d.
502. In this hour of softened ... ... C. Pinsuti 4d.
503. The sea hath its pearls ... ... ,, 4d.
504. Ye gallant men of England ... ... E. Hecht 3d.
505. The Moorland Witch ... ... ,, 3d.
506. It was a lover and his lass... ... ... J. Barnby 3d.
507. Come, live with me ... ... Sir W. S. Bennett 4d.
508. Looking for Spring ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 3d.
509. Tell me not, in mournful ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 3d.
510. There is music by the river ... ... ,, 3d.
511. O sunny beam ... ...R. Schumann 2d.
512. O red, red rose ... ... ,, 2d.
513. Wanderer's Song ... ... ,, 3d.
514. Evening Song ... ... ,, 2d.
515. Ah! woe is me ... ... H. Lahee 4d.
516. Sweet evening hour... ... ... S. Reay 3d.
517. Fair land, we greet thee ... ... Ciro Pinsuti 4d.
518. Rise, fair Goddess ... ... H. Smart 3d.
519. A garland for our fairest ... ... J. L. Hatton 3d.
520. Around the maypole tripping ... ... ,, 3d.
521. The boatman's good-night ... ... F. Schira 3d.
522. The Serenade... ... ... J. Brahms 2d.
523. Vineta ... ... ,, 3d.
524. The dirge of Darthula ... ... ,, 4d.
525. As I saw fair Clora ... ... F. Corder 3d.
526. Up! up! ye dames ... ... W. Bendall 3d.
527. If love be dead ... ... C. Wood 4d.
528. The Norse Queen's gift ... ... W. Hay 3d.
529. Cavalry Song ... ... C. A. Macirone 3d.
530. The winds that waft... ... ... Vincent Wallace 2d.
531. Corin for Cleora dying ... ... ,, ,, 3d.
532. Madeleine ... ...J. L. Roeckel 3d.
533. May balmy sleep ... ...Sir M. Costa 3d.
534. Music, when soft voices die ... ... A. King 4d.
535. The days of long ago ... ... B. Tours 3d.
536. The Present; or, the bag of the bee ... C. C. Moseley 3d.
537. The triumph of Victoria ... ... J. Stainer 6d.
538. The three merry dwarfs ... ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
539. Sleep, darling baby mine ... ... Ricardo Mähllig 3d.
540. The rosy dawn ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 6d.
541. If doughty deeds ... ... C. Lee Williams 3d.
542. Radiant sister of the day ... ...Rosalind F. Ellicott 4d.

(To be continued.)

NOVELLO'S

OCTAVO ANTHEMS

RECENT NUMBERS.

277. Enter not into judgment ... Dr. J. Clarke-Whitfeld 2d.
278. In that day ... ... Sir G. Elvey 8d.
279. By Babylon's wave ... ... Gounod 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo, a great multitude ... ... Sir G. Elvey 6d.
281. Thou, O God, art praised in Sion ... Sir R. P. Stewart 4d.
282. In the Lord put I my trust ... ... ,, 6d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost ... ... Sir G. Elvey 4d.
284. Blessed is He ... ... Dr. F. E. Gladstone 2d.
285. The souls of the righteous ... ...H. H. Woodward 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu (Stabat Mater) ... ... Dvorák 6d.
287. Save me, O God... ... ... J. L. Hopkins 2d.
288. My God, my God ... ... ,, 3d.
289. The eyes of all wait ...Orlando Gibbons (ed. by P. Armes) 4d.
290. Make a joyful noise ... ...A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
291. Sing, O heavens ... ... ,, 6d.
292. Blessed is he that readeth ... ... ,, 4d.
293. Come, my soul, while daylight dying ... G. C. Martin 4d.
294. The Souls of the righteous ... ... William Rea 6d.
295. My soul, wait thou still ... ...F. J. Read 4d.
296. Behold, I bring you glad tidings ... ... Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
297. Teach me, O Lord ... ... John W. Gritton 3d.
298. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem ... ... W. H. Bliss 3d.
299. The Hills stand about Jerusalem ... ... G. Gardner 4d.
300. Ponder my words ... ... F. J. Sawyer 2d.
301. O Jesu! Victim blest ... ... J. B. Powell 3d.
302. There is no condemnation ... ... H. S. Irons 3d.
303. Our God is Lord ... ... E. Mundella 3d.
304. The Lord preserveth the souls of His Saints Philip Armes 6d.
305. The Lord is my Shepherd ... ... C. V. Stanford 6d.
306. O Lord of Hosts ... ... Kate Boundy 3d.
307. Christ our Passover ... ...E. V. Hall 3d.
308. Let us now praise ... ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
309. Give the Lord the honour ... ... Charles H. Lloyd 8d.
310. Hear, O God, hear my cry ... ... A. H. Friedlander 6d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord ... ... E. T. Chipp 3d.
312. The Lord hath been mindful of us ... ... ,, 3d.
313. The King shall rejoice in thy strength Sir R. P. Stewart 6d.
314. Come now and let us reason ... ... H. W. Wareing 4d.
315. Behold, O God, our Defender... ... ... F. W. Hird 4d.
316. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem ... ...E. V. Hall 4d.
317. Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous... ... Philip Armes 6d.
318. Lord, Thou art my God ... ... J. Stainer 8d.
319. Seek ye the Lord ... ... Hague Kinsey 3d.

(To be continued.)

THE ORGAN WORKS
OF
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH
EDITED BY
J. F. BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon. AND JAMES HIGGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES 2s. 6d.
In this edition much help is offered towards a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The Preface contains many useful hints.

BOOK II.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND TRIO ... ... 3s. od.
The second book of the new edition of Bach's Organ Works is more advanced in point of difficulty than the first, and will be found of conspicuous interest. It includes the well-known "Giant" in D minor, the shorter Prelude and Fugue in E minor (a great favourite with Mendelssohn), and an exceedingly effective Prelude and Fugue in C minor, in addition to other less-known but important works. It is a specialty of this edition that a convenient and effective mode of performance is everywhere indicated. Appended to the preface is a suggested metronomic rate for each movement.

BOOK III.—PRELUDES, FUGUES, AND FANTASIA ... 3s. od.
The third book contains compositions of greater difficulty, it is therefore more fully fingered and marked for the pedals. It is believed Organ Students will derive the greatest possible assistance by having their attention directed from the outset to a convenient method of dealing with each difficulty as it arises. The present book includes the Fugue in B minor, on a subject from Corelli, a beautiful Prelude and Fugue in A major (most useful for obtaining command of the higher part of the Pedal-board), a Prelude and Fugue in C major, a Fantasia and Fugue in C minor, and the well-known short G minor Fugue. There is, as usual, in this Edition a Preface containing interesting particulars of the several works.

BOOK IV.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... ... 3s. od.
The fourth book contains the first three of the six celebrated Sonatas or Trios for two manuals and pedal. Spitta says: "These Sonatas were intended by J. S. Bach to complete the education of his eldest son, Wilhelm Friedemann, as an organist." They are invaluable as studies and very beautiful as music. In the present edition they are for the first time fingered and marked for the Pedals.

BOOK V.—SONATAS FOR TWO MANUALS AND PEDAL ... ... 3s. od.
The fifth book contains the last three of the six Sonatas. Those in E minor, C major, and G major. They are of exceeding value to the Student of Organ Playing. The mastery of them assuring him of that thorough independence of hands and feet so indispensable to the fully accomplished organist. As in the former book, proper fingering and pedalling is everywhere indicated. The Preface contains a detailed analysis of each movement.

BOOK VI.—PRELUDES AND FUGUES ... ... 3s. od.
The sixth book includes several of Bach's greatest and most popular Organ Works. (1) The Toccata in D minor, with its contrasting effects of recitative-like passages and massive harmonies. (2) The well-known Prelude and Fugue in D major, which Spitta describes as "one of the most dazzlingly beautiful of all the master's Organ Works. . . . Skilful pedal-players will find it exactly suited to them, for the theme is quite exceptionally fitted for pedal technique." (3) The Prelude and Fugue in F minor, less known perhaps than the other contents of the book, but scarcely less beautiful, or less worthy of the student's attention. (4) The great Prelude in E flat major, together with the Fugue in three sections, known as the St. Ann's. The whole are laid out with especial regard to the convenience of the player. Necessary fingering and other marks to help to effective performance are inserted, and the Preface contains various notes and suggestions relative to the history, structure, and treatment of the several works.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SOFT VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN
COMPOSED BY GEORGE CALKIN.
Eight Books, price Two Shillings and Sixpence each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL
Compositions for the Organ
BY OTTO DIENEL
(Organist of St. Marien-Kirche, Kgl. Musik Director, Berlin).

No.		s.	d.
1.	Fugue in G, Op. 2	1	0
2.	First Grand Sonata in D minor, Op. 3	2	6
3.	Concert-Satz, Op. 10	2	0
4.	Second Grand Sonata in G minor, Op. 11	3	6
5.	Funeral March on the Choral "Jesus, my trust," Op. 12	1	6
6.	Adagio in D, Op. 13, No. 1	1	0
7.	Andante in C, Op. 13, No. 2	1	0
8.	Third Grand Sonata in F, Op. 18	5	0
9.	Echo-Andante, Op. 19	1	6
10.	Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 1 / Andante Espressivo, Op. 20, No. 2	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL
Compositions for the Organ
BY J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Andante (varied)	1	0
2.	Hommage à Mozart / Choral Fugue	2	0
3.	Marche Religieuse / Allegretto	2	0
4.	Andante espressivo / Organ Study on Pleyel's Hymn-Tune / Hommage à Haydn	2	0
5.	Allegretto Religioso / Minuet and Trio	2	0
6.	Festal March / Hommage à Mendelssohn	2	0
7.	Harvest Thanksgiving March / Two-part Song without words	1	6
8.	Minuetto (from the Organist's Quarterly Journal)	1	0
9.	Andante con moto	1	0
10.	For Holy Communion	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL
Compositions for the Organ
BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Andante, in D	1	0
2.	Andante, in F	1	0
3.	Andante, in A	1	0
4.	Concert Variations	2	0
5.	Allegretto, in E, and Prelude, in G	1	0
6.	Motivo, in B flat, and Fugue, in D minor	1	0
7.	Marche Triomphale	1	6
8.	Allemande	1	0

Nos. 5 to 8 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL
Compositions for the Organ
BY HENRY SMART.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Choral, with Variations	1	6
2.	Two Trios	1	6
3.	Grand Solemn March	2	0
4.	Andante, No. 1, in G major	1	6
5.	Andante, No. 2, in A major	1	6
6.	Andante, No. 3, in E minor	1	6
7.	Six short and easy pieces, Nos. 1 and 2	1	6
8.	" " " 3 " 4	1	6
9.	" " " 5 " 6	1	6
10.	Air with Variations and Finale Fugato	3	0
11.	Twelve Short and Easy Pieces in various styles, Nos. 1 to 4	2	6
12.	" " " " 5 " 8	2	0
13.	" " " " 9 " 12	2	6
14.	Prelude, in A, and Postlude, in C	1	0
15.	Prelude, in E flat; Introductory Voluntary, in B flat; Andante Grazioso	1	6
16.	Postlude, in D	1	6
17.	Twelve Short Interludes	1	6
18.	March, in G	1	0
19.	Easy Preludes: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in G	1	0
20.	Minuet, in C	1	6
21.	Festive March, in D	1	6
22.	Postlude, in E flat	1	6

Nos. 14 to 22 from the Organist's Quarterly Journal.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN.

No.			s.	d.
1.	Two Introductory Voluntaries ...	George J. Bennett	1	0
2.	Three Andantes	Hamilton Clarke	2	0
3.	Postlude (Christmas)	... Dr. Garrett	1	6
4.	Andante con moto	... Dr. Garrett	1	0
5.	Interlude for Advent	...Oliver King	1	0
6.	Prelude for Lent, Op. 10, No. 2 ... / Fantasia on a Theme by Hermann Goetz, Op. 20	... ...Oliver King	1	0
7.	Three Pieces: (a) Baptism, (b) Wedding, (c) Burial	A. C. Mackenzie (each)	1	0
8.	Voluntary for Christmastide ...	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1	0
9.	Voluntary	Sir Fredk. Ouseley	1	0
10.	Short Voluntary for a Time of Sorrow ...	Ridley Prentice	0	6
11.	Short Voluntary for Lent	B. Luard Selby	1	0
12.	Postlude in C Minor	Dr. Steggall	1	0
13.	Concluding Voluntary or Fantasia (Lent)	C. E. Stephens	1	0
14.	Three Canons	W. G. Wood	2	0
15.	Allegretto	... C. H. Lloyd	1	0
16.	Allegretto in D	B. Luard Selby	1	0
17.	Three Pieces: No. 1, Allegretto moderato; No. 2, Andante con moto; No. 3, Processional March ...	H. M. Higgs	2	6
18.	Andante in G	Herbert W. Wareing, Mus. Doc.	1	0
19.	Andante in A and Minuet in A ...	... C. Harford Lloyd	1	6
20.	Allegro ma non troppo	Oscar Wagner	1	0
21.	Processional Wedding March	Henry R. Bird	1	0
22.	Rêverie	B. Luard Selby	1	0
23.	Three Pieces in F, D, and G	B. Luard Selby	1	6
24.	Marche Serieuse	B. Luard Selby	1	0
25.	Six Miniatures	Oscar Wagner	2	6
26.	Three Preludes	John E. West	1	0
27.	Communion in D flat ... ... / Preludium e Fughetta	B. Luard Selby	1	0
28.	Introduction and Fugue	Dr. Gladstone	1	0
29.	Allegretto	Dr. Gladstone	1	0
30.	Andante and Fugue	B. Luard Selby	1	6
31.	Pastorale and Melody in A flat	B. Luard Selby	1	6
32.	Orchestral March	B. Luard Selby	1	0
33.	Sonate	Oscar Wagner	1	6
34.	Sketch in C minor	John E. West	1	0
35.	Fugue in E minor	John E. West	1	0
36.	Minuet and Trio	B. Luard Selby	1	0
37.	Andante in B flat, and Short Postlude ...	B. Luard Selby	1	0
38.	Sarabande	B. Luard Selby	1	0
39.	Postlude in D...	B. Luard Selby	1	0
40.	Andante Grazioso	Dr. C. S. Heap	1	0
41.	Fantasia in C...	Berthold Tours	1	6
42.	Allegretto Grazioso...	Berthold Tours	1	0
43.	Menuetto	Berthold Tours	1	0
44.	Postlude	Berthold Tours	1	0
45.	Fantasia in C minor	W. S. Hoyte	1	6
46.	Four Short Voluntaries	Kate Westrop	1	6
47.	Concert Fantasia and Fugue	W. G. Wood	2	0
48.	Sonata in D minor	Charles H. Lloyd	2	6
49.	Andante in E, Minuet and Trio, No. 2, in A minor	B. Luard Selby	1	6
50.	Postlude in D...	...W. G. Wood	1	0
51.	Allegro in C	...W. G. Wood	1	0
52.	Melody in B flat	Arthur Carnall	1	0
53.	Three Andantes	Hamilton Clarke	1	6
54.	Postlude, in B flat	John E. West	1	0
55.	Allegro, in form of a Minuet	W. G. Wood	1	6
56.	Allegro ma non troppo (Communion Offertorium)	H. M. Higgs	1	6
57.	Prelude and Fugue	H. M. Higgs	1	6
58.	Mélodie, Prière, Pastorale...	H. M. Higgs	1	6
59.	Offertoire in D minor	H. M. Higgs	1	6
60.	Andantino in D	J. Barnby	0	6
61.	Communion and Larghetto	Edouard Batiste	1	0
62.	Prelude and Postlude	Edouard Batiste	1	6
63.	Andante in A flat and Pastorale in F ...	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
64.	Grand Offertorio in A	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
65.	Minuet in the Ancient Style, B flat ...	Hamilton Clarke	1	0
66.	Larghetto in C	C. J. Frost	1	0
67.	Fantasia in B flat	C. J. Frost	1	0
68.	Sonatina in C...	C. J. Frost	1	6
69.	Andante Moderato in A	Dr. Garrett	1	6
70.	Prelude in C minor	F. E. Gladstone	1	0
71.	Allegro Marziale	F. E. Gladstone	1	0
72.	Prelude and Fugue in A minor	Ch. Grædener	1	0
73.	Andante in F	J. W. Gritton	0	6
74.	Marche Triomphale in E flat and Postlude in F...	Alex. Guilmant	1	6
75.	Fantaisie sur Deux Mélodies Anglaises...	Alex. Guilmant	1	6
76.	Festal March in E flat	Dr. C. S. Heap	1	6
77.	Fantasia on Mendelssohn's Volkslied ...	Geo. Hepworth	1	6
78.	Prelude in G	W. Macfarren	0	6
79.	Religious March in E flat	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
80.	Andante in G and Secular March ...	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
81.	Variations on the Psalm-tune "Windsor"	G. A. Macfarren	1	0
82.	Andante in D...	H. S. Oakeley	1	0
83.	Præludium et Fuga	Sir F. Ouseley	1	0
84.	Prelude in C sharp minor	... W. Parratt	0	6
85.	Postlude in C minor	... E. Prout	1	0
86.	Andante in E flat and Postlude in C ...	... F. J. Read	1	0
87.	Andante Serioso in D minor	... C. Reinecke	0	6
88.	Allegro vivace in D	... C. T. Speer	1	0
